Six Year Investigation Fails To Clear up Facts In U. S. Oil Lease Case

WASHINGTON, May 5.—(INS)—Six and a half years have elapsed since the first steps were taken by the then Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall to lease the billion-dollar Teapot Dome and Elk Hills naval oil reserves to Harry F. Sinclair and E. L. Doherty; Senate committee and the United States Secret Service persistently have investigated the mysterious circumstances under which the deals were made, and a half a dozen of the courts of the land have probed them yet still all the truth is not known.

A devious and winding trail that took the investigators all over the United States and through every capital of Europe has brought much to light regarding the "oil scandals" of the Harding Administration, but it is doubtful whether the whole "inside" of the case will ever come to light.

The Government charged that Fall took a bribe of $230,500 from Sinclair for Teapot Dome. It was charged likewise that Doherty bribed the ex-cabinet officer to the sum of $100,000. The latter charge was refuted by a criminal court in London, although three civil courts including the United States Supreme Court, held the Elk Hills lease was fraudulent and Fall was "a faithless public officer."

Breaks Long Silence Fall, desperately ill in California, has broken his long silence and in a lengthy deposition, declared the $230,500 Sinclair gave him was in payment for a third interest in Fall's new Mexico ranch, Sinclair's oil and two women who "I thought could shed much light on the subject of the oil scandal."

The Government, through the efforts of Owen J. Ransohoff, of Oklahoma, and Atlas Petroleum of Ohio, secured possession of the immensely valuable oil reserves. Doherty and Fall have had in the criminal charge in the Elk Hills case, Sinclair, for the second time, in London, the trial for criminal conspiracy, the first having ended in a technical default because of a month and a half sentence for contempt of court for spying on the case.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh, (D), of Montana, original Senate accuser, is continuing his fight in litigation separately. The oil scandals first came to light in the fall of 1923. The late Senator L. F. B. (D), of Wisconsin, long toiling to purge the nation of the scandal, died in 1925, but his fight for a Senate investigation of the Harding administration's public lands policy.

This investigation, straggled along fitfully for weeks. Then a hint was dropped that Fall, known to be "Doherty's" ally, had become ill. Another lead followed when it was learned that former Assistant Secretary of the Navy Theodore Roosevelt had advised by a newspaper that he had the employment of a certain company because "some one was wrong."

Fall's Story These leads were followed until Fall returned to Washington and he had borrowed money from E. P. McLean, Washington publisher. An inquiry proved this statement false and the Doherty "loan" was uncovered, secured by a personal note from which the signature had been torn.

Civil courts were invited to reconsider the two reserves. At Los Angeles, the Doherty lease was voided and the criminal court and the Supreme Court upheld the decision. A civil court threw out the action against Sinclair, but at Cheyenne, Judge Keenan, of the Circuit Court, ordered the case and again the contract was upheld by the Government.

It was while Sinclair and Doherty were preparing for the Cheyenne trial that the trouble over the $230,000 transaction between Fall and Sinclair. The investigation in this case which led them to a new defense company known as the Continental Trading Company, Ltd., of Canada.

The Continental Trading Company was organized overnight by H. M. Blackmer, of the Midwest Refining Company, to purchase 25,000 barrels of oil from the late A. E. Humphreys, of Texas at $1.50 a barrel.

Present when the deal was consummated were Sinclair, Col. Robert W. Stewart, just recently deposited as chairman of the board of the Standard Oil of India, Blackmer, James E. O'Neil, formerly with the Prairie Oil and Gas Company, Humphreys and his son, and former Senator Thomas, of Colorado, the latter representing the Humphreys.

Securities Guaranteed When Thomas demurred at dealing with an unknown company Sinclair, Blackmer, and O'Neil guaranteed with their signatures the contract.

The oil was promptly resold to the Prairie Oil and Gas, and the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company at $1.75 a barrel without the outlay of a cent in cash by Sinclair and his associates.

The Continental took $2,080,000 in profits at this quarter-barrel proposition and then sold the balance of the Humphreys contract to the Prairie and Sinclair companies for $400,000 outright. The money was converted into Liberty Bonds and $230,500 of the amount came into Fall's possession.

M. T. Everhart, Fall's son-in-law, after a long silence, has come forward and admitted that he acted as the messenger for the transaction. Previously, he has refused to testify on the ground he might incriminate himself.

O'Neil and Blackmer fled to Europe, and both are under citation for a $100,000 contempt of court for ignoring subpoenas to return and testify. Henry Smith Osler, Canadian lawyer whose name was used as president of the Continental is in Africa. Stewart has been cited for contempt of the Senate for refusing to answer questions relative to the whereabouts of the profits that company made.

As an interesting sidelight, Senator Walsh just recently warned from Will Hays, Postmaster-General of the Harding Administration, the admission that Sinclair gave him $250,000 in Liberty Bonds to help pay off the Republican Party's deficit in 1923. Hays returned $100,000 of this amount and the rest he sent around in bonds to prominent Republicans who made cash contributions to the Party for amounts equal to the bonds Hays sent him.

Dates In The Case The dates of all the transactions have been held most significant by the courts and by the Senate investigating committee. It was on November 16, 1921, that Doherty and his "flow" to Fall. It was Christmas week of 1921 that Sinclair went to Texas, leaving New Mexico, to see Fall. The Teapot Dome and Elk Hills leases were signed early in the spring of 1922, and the $230,500 for Fall's other lease.

It was November 23, 1923, that Sinclair gave Hays the political contribution and it was in December of 1923 that the Senate committee was first hearing of Fall's sudden affliction and the break in the scandal was announced.

It was in 1925 that the public first learned of the Continental Trading Company, and in that year O'Neil and Blackmer separately returned secretly to Canada and there summoned from the United States by United agents with instructions to what disposition to be made of their share of the profits for the company deal.

Meantime, they started an investigation of the conditions of the oil industry at the time of the scandal, with a view of improving the situation.

ENGLAND SEEKS WAY TO REMEDY MINE TROUBLES

Scores Of Theories Have Been Advanced For The Cause Of The Present Plight Of The Defunct British Coal Mines

LONDON, May 4.—Scores of theories are being advanced by experts for the reasons for the present parlous state of the British coal fields. Many of them undoubtedly are sound, although there is little doubt that the majority of the reasons propounded are contributing factors to a situation which many agree is approaching catastrophic dimensions.

On the one hand it is declared that mismanagement of the mines, indifferent and archaic selling methods, and fierce foreign competition are the main reasons for the situation as it exists today. On the other, there are many who profess to see in the present condition of affairs the natural result of years of intensive working of the mines.

Mines Worked Out It is pointed out that some of the principal mines are nearly 200 years old, and practically worked out, and that coal is found so far from the head that getting it to the surface is an uneconomical proposition.

In the view of another school of thought, principally the Socialists, it is the present system of affairs, whereby the mines are owned by individual persons, that is wrong. Nationalization, according to this group, pooling of resources and a central selling system would materially contribute to the putting of the industry upon its feet again.

It is declared on every hand that the prosperity of the British mining industry depends, in the main, on its export trade. This trade has been lost by the British coal owners through several causes: the world war, frequent stoppages caused by strikes and lockouts, increased coal production in foreign countries, and the increased use of oil and electricity.

With a view to getting the trade back again, the Government has been approached by several influential deputations from the mining areas in recent weeks.

These deputations have urged the lowering of freight and all other sea costs and Government subsidies in the hope of meeting the heavier price of foreign coal.

Remedies Offered Other schemes for rejuvenating the industry include the regulation of output, the fixing of minimum prices for different classes of coal, and the closing of unprofitable mines. All of these schemes have their adherents, and opinion is divided as to what would seem to be the best.

that the only hope for the industry is through central organization and control. Production last winter only just exceeded 5,000,000 tons a week. No improvement either in the home or foreign trade has been perceptible, and with the usual summer fall in consumption the total output for the year is likely to be several million tons less than last year, which was an entirely disastrous one for the industry.

Wide British Army estimates for 1928 show a decrease of $2,575,000 from those of last year, the amount required for salaries and similar expenses will jump from $44,140,000 to $45,115,000.

National Music Week

America in general and music lovers of this country in particular join this week in the celebration of National Music Week. Ushered in last night with varied programs throughout the United States, the week's celebration will continue through Saturday.

The St. Augustine Tribune in noting the advent of National Music Week calls attention to the fact that the "radio has been a great factor into our homes, and during this week promises to bring special elaborate programs of beautiful music within reach of all."

"National Music Week will include competitions held in many places to discover and encourage musical talent. Surely this is a worthy aim. Encouragement of artistic propensities in the young is a great boon to any Nation."

"Do your part by listening to good music during this week, and by taking a special interest in those about you who aspire to be musicians."

"That America is a music-loving country, despite comments to the contrary by persons who dislike jazz and judge us by it, is proven by the great interest that has been displayed in this Music Week event long before the week approached."

A Notorious Red Is Captured

Bitter memories of the "red terror" to which Hungary was subjected by the communist regime for five months in 1919 gripped the people of that nation recently when it was announced that the chief figure in that period of terror, the notorious Bela Kun, had been arrested near Vienna.

When taken into custody, Bela Kun had in his possession documents and pamphlets suggesting that he was again in the employ of the Third International of Moscow, to precipitate communist uprisings in Hungary.

The Hungarians remembered how Bela Kun had resorted to the vilest kind of propaganda which he sought to break down the sanctity of religion, patriotism and morality to make way for communism.

Russian Soviet agents are offering fat contracts to the Austrian government if it will "deport" Bela Kun back to Russia. At the same time Hungary demands his deportation to that country to face charges of having ordered the execution of a hundred and forty-four Hungarians during the "reign of terror."

The extent to which the Soviets will go in their efforts to spread their nefarious doctrines is well illustrated in this case. Seemingly their offer of tempting contracts serves as a good lever to gain the release of this disciple, but it is to be hoped that Austria, in the interest of justice, will consent to the extradition of Bela Kun to Hungary to face trial for his infamous acts.

Mrs. Alfred J. Brossseau, president of the United States, had been able to exert its strength when the need arose American mothers, who bear a double burden whenever there is war, are determined that their country shall never again be attacked by the society for its championship of the government's present program.

These pacifists, while members of the society, have not been prominent in the organization, and apparently they hold membership solely for the purpose of "faring from within" in the hopes of defeating its patriotic purposes.

Included in the attack made by the D. A. R. had an official blacklist, upon which were the names of prominent citizens who had incurred the displeasure of the society because of their pacifist leanings.

There need be no doubt as to the attitude of the D. A. R. when this matter comes before it. Mrs. Brossseau has faithfully interpreted the spirit of the society and of American womanhood when she has supported a program for better naval defense.

HOW IT WORKS

Under the Florida law a criminal convicted for the fourth time is doomed to life imprisonment. In Sanford recently the former president of a defunct bank was convicted for the fourth time.

Probably State Attorney Millard B. Smith took such a view of the case, as it is said he would not ask for the "fourth conviction" sentence. From such an attitude on the part of the state's attorney it president. That was the fourth conviction of the former bank president on charges growing out of the failure of that institution. If given the minimum sentence in each case, Lake's term of residence in prison would be in excess of forty years.

To the convicted banker it would probably make little difference whether sentenced on each count separately, or sentenced under the fourth conviction law, for he is now sixty years of age, and death, when it comes, would find him in prison in either case.

I am really sorry for Forrest Lake. His conviction was largely the result of evidence of his former cashier, who pleaded guilty to embezzlement, and turned state's evidence against his chief, Lake.

Yes, I am sorry, for Forrest Lake, whether innocent or guilty.

STORM BREAKS WATCH SPRING

Bob Holly of Sanford, associate editor of the Eustis Lake Region and former owner and editor of the Sanford Herald, now director of the Florida Public Utilities Information bureau, thinks he has discovered something new—at least it is new and news to him and as new and news, it is traveling round the state.

Not that I would have sentence revoked, or suspended, if he is guilty, for that should not be, but when I remember that he was a man who was useful to his community, respected, trusted, honored; for twenty years mayor of his home city, yet preserving a reputation to which the youth of Sanford might well aspire; when I consider what the name of Forrest Lake has meant to Sanford and Seminole county, it is with a touch of human sympathy that I note his downfall in his declining years.

Health HINTS

By DR. J. C. HOWELL
 200 West Gore Ave., Orlando, Florida
 Ambulant Proctology

Another interesting case was that of a successful Orlando business man, who came complaining of life long constipation severe nervousness, gas in the bowels, bad headaches, and piles. After a thorough physical examination in which nothing remarkable was found except a low blood pressure and anemic condition, he was given a division of the rectum, his hemorrhoids were injected and a painful fissure of the rectum treated, that had given him a great deal of pain and annoyance. He was very skeptical about what we could do for him and consulted several physicians, and a number of our patients before being convinced that this method of treatment offered him quicker and safer relief than any other method but he finally came in for treatment. Relief was immediately experienced. Within a very few days he was beginning to have normal bowel movements without pain, which was a wonderful relief to him, being the first time in his life that he had had this experience, the nervousness improved and while the headaches hung on longer than some other symptoms they finally disappeared along with his other symptoms. Four months later, he induced his sister to come all the way from Virginia to have treatment for a similar condition, and she is now improving rapidly. (Name on application, by permission of patient.)
