Lake Preservation Policies Sought By P&Z Board

Herald Staff Writer

Sanford may follow the lead of other waterfront cities and develop procedures to promote preservation and control construction along Lake Monroe.

The P&Z began looking at the city's approximately two miles of lakefront property in terms of construction and land use patterns at a work session Thursday and asked staff to come back with policies other cities use to protect their shorelines.

These policies may be culled to assure protection of existing lakefront attributes and avoid negative impacts of ill advised development. P&Z members said.

The board determined through review of land use maps that the vast majority of Sanford's "core" Lake Monroe frontage has already been designated for governmental and park land use. This area extends off marina isle, which was designated for tourist and recreational uses. The core zone includes Sanford city hall, the civic center, two parks, and the Seminole County courthouse.

Residential uses are also within the city's lakefront boundaries and one of them, the Sailpointe apartment complex off French Avenue, was criticized by P&Z members during Thursday's session.

Board members said the complex was built too close to the lake and its design didn't complement historic structures in the nearby downtown district. The complex, built in the early 1980s, contains a number of three-story, white frame and stucco buildings.

"We should have some type of lever on that area so we can guard against the type of development that does occur." P&Z chairman John Morris said. "A case in point is Sailpointe; so that we don't have other white elephants stuck up on the lakefront."

Other members did not dispute Morris' statement and some expounded upon it. On the other hand. P&Z members said the older, multi-story New Tribes Mission, east of Ft. Mcllon Park, was an example of appealing architecture and was set far enough from the lake to avoid encroachment.

Discussed by P&Z members were possible density controls for construction and bolstered set back limitiations, based on building heights.

The integral role Lake Monroe plays in Sanford's "image" was frequently referred to by P&Z members and City Planner Jay Marder during the session.

"Sanford just wouldn't be Sanford without that waterfront," Marder said. "When people think of the city they consider Lake Monroe, the marina and the downtown historic district."

It was cited during the session that transportation and commerce from Lake Monroe and the St.

Johns River were primary reasons for Sanford's founding in the late 1880's. Although Sanford no longer depends on the lake for its ecomomic well being, the water body's scenic and recreational attributes warrant protection, the planners said.

Morris said policies from other cities could provide insights towards ensuring this and also "controlling the aesthetics of development."

The lakefront east and west of Sanford's present city limits is predominantly undeveloped wetland, subject to St. Johns Water Management District restraints, said Planning and Engineering Director Bill Simmons.

The controls, however, do not necessarily preclude the land's development, he said.

The Water Management District at times allows developers to build on wetlands, if they'll agree to create an artificial wetland to replace it, Simmons said. He added the expense involved is consider-

Board Levies Fines

The Sanford Code Enforcement Board has ordered owners or owners' representatives of 10 pieces of property, including the Seaboard Coastline Railway, to clean up their property or pay various fines.

The decisions were made at a regularly scheduled meeting of the board Tuesday at Sanford City Hall. The railroad was cited for not cutting vegetation and not in trash on a vacant lot at Mangoustine and Avocado. Dan Florian, city building in-spector advising the board, said a railroad spokesman promised the lot would be cleaned up within a week. The board voted to fine the ratiroad anyway because other owners in the area within the ordered time limit. In other board action, it:

White House Tapes May Hold Iran-Contra Scandal Secrets

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A taping system and computer network might hold information on White House Situation Room conversations on the Iran-Contra operation and messages sent by fired National Security Council aide Oliver North, it was reported today.

The Washington Post, citing unidentifled sources familiar with the sophisticated taping system, said North frequently used the Situation Room the White House basement crisis management center - as something of a second office.

Sources cited by the Post, however, did not know if any meetings relating to the arms deal were recorded.

Some of the high-level presidential meetings key to the Iran-arms affair were held in the Situation Room, including the Jan. 7 meeting of the White House National Security Planning Group that preceded President Reagan's signing of a presidential intelligence "finding" authorizing the resumption of secret arms sales to Iran, the sources sald.

Secretary of State George Shultz has said that it was at this meeting that he opposed selling U.S. arms to Iran.

The high-tech communications system can record some telephone calls and meetings and its computer system can keep messages and documents composed on NSC computer terminals linked to a secure computer network used by NSC staff aides to communicate with each other and with U.S. intelligence agencies, the report said. White House spokesman Daniel Howard told the Post that some of Reagan's phone calls with foreign leaders were recorded. Another official said the recordings were made to preclude problems arising in the translation of foreign languages. Howard said similar recording systems have been in place since the early 1960s to record key calls with heads of state when aides or translators are not

Howard also said the only audio recording system in the Situation Room is a component of a video system linked with the Pentagon and that it has been used only in tests.

Installation and modernization of the taping system was undertaken following the March 1981 attempted assassination of Reagan, sources said, partly out of a need to have a verbatim record of what transpires during a time of national crisis.

At the time, there was some confusion over just what various senior administration officials - particular former Secretary of State Alexander Haig - said and did in the Situation Room.

A search of the NSC computer system's central memory might provide investigators with information on NSC operations, possibly dealing with the Iran arms-Contra aid offair, sources said.

But it was not immediately known what system was used by the NSC to preserve the information within the larger computer network or whether any such data would be technically retriev-

It was a voice-activated taping system - In the White House Oval Office - that ultimately led to the downfall of the Nixon administration during the Watergate Scandal of 1972-74.

Revelation that Nixon taped Oval Office conversations precipitated a legal battle over access to the tapes that was finally settled by the Supreme Court. Nixon grudgingly released the tapes after being ordered to and resigned.

Snow Snarls Northeast

International

The "biggest storm of the year" in mountainous areas of the Northeast paralyzed much of New England today with up to 30 inches of snow, heavy rains and gale winds, claiming two lives, shutting schools and roads and cutting power to scores of residents.

In the Southwest, a storm that buried parts of New Mexico and western Texas under up to 7 inches of snow ended Thursday but driving conditions remained hazardous today. The National Weather Service posted travelers' advisories in the area.

Rain also extended along the northern Pacific Coast, changing to snow in the mountains of western Washington and northern Oregon.

Ski areas in Vermont today reported up to 2 feet of snow from the storm, and police reported some 60 tractor-trailer trucks were stuck in the southern part of the state.

The storm knocked out power in parts of New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts and Connecticut and closed several roads and schools throughout the Northeast.

'We're happy we're not shoveling the stuff, Massachusetts State Police spokesman James Sartori said. 'And the skiers are happy because they got what they want, where they want it."

Many roads throughout New England were buried under the heavy snow and police warned of hazardous driving condi-

In Massachusetts, one man was killed just after midnight when he was struck by a car on Route 495 in Haverhill. Another man was killed in West Bridgwater on Route 24

Snowfall amounts included 30 inches at Wilmington, Vt., 22 Inches at the Mount Snow ski resort of Vermont, 18 inches in Berkshire County in Massachusetts, 14 inches in Peru, Vt., and Greenfield, N.H. In New York state, about a foot covered Hamilton, Saratoga. Warren and Washington counties north of Albany.

"This is by far our biggest storm of the year," said John Hockridge, a meteorologist for the New England Weather Association.

"I heard it was going be a mild winter" said Greg Lesch, a clerk at the general store in Guilford, Vt. "I hope this isn't a sign of things to come.'

Heavy rains fell along coastal New York and New England, but that was of little consolation to Hartford, Conn., street vendor Sally Bassano. She said trying to sell sandwiches in the wet weather "stinks."

Police reported extreme flooding on all Massachusetts highways. Up to 3 inches of rain in Rhode Island flooded streets and access ramps in the Coventry-Scituate area. Connecticut was drenched under more than 2 inches of rain.

'There's extreme flooding in lowland areas and it is very treacherous at this time," said Sartori.

The rain was followed by high winds that knocked down tree limbs in the greater Hartford, Conn., area, pulling down power lines and cutting service to hundreds of homes.

The weather service said strong north winds would prevail across New England today. High wind warnings were in effect over eastern Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Positive Steps Must Be Taken

The appallingly high incidence of pregnancies among American teenagers - nearly 1 million per year - has prompted numerous strategies. The basic challenge is to reduce the number of children having children. The most recent recommendations are contained in a controversial report compiled by the National Research Council.

The panel commissioned by Congress consists of 15 physicians, social scientists and public-health experts. It urges that contraceptives be made readily available to teenagers. Specifically, the panel suggests that such devices be provided free of charge or at a nominal cost to any teen who requests them. Although the method of distribution could vary, the most likely source of contraceptives would be school-based health

We believe this approach is wrongheaded on several counts.

In the first place, schools have no business positioning themselves between parents and children on a matter that has profound moral implications. Not only do such clinics in the public schools undermine the parents' proper role in dissuading sexual activity among their children, they frequently advise pregnant tenagers to have abortions without the knowledge of their parents.

Apart from the ethical absurdity of wandering into the contraceptive-abortion swamp, public schools leave themselves wide fopen for a whopping legal liability. Consider, for example, the magnitude of a lawsuit stemming from a student who suffers physical injury because of a botched abortion or a defective contraceptive.

- What, then, can be done to stem the alarming number of teenage pregnancies in this country?

Clearly, the schools must do a much better job with their sex-education programs. Any successful program should include a sequential approach to human sexuality that begins in the early grades. It is counterproductive to delay such courses until high school because nearly half of the youngsters are sexually active by then. This isn't to suggest that elementary students be force-fed a comprehensive course in human reproduction. But they should be exposed to the subject.

Schools, moreover, must abandon the myth that sexual education programs can be morally neutral. No responsible adult would take a neutral approach to lying, stealing or cheating. Yet this is precisely the tack that many teachers and counselors take when they discuss sexual behavior among teens. In mort, educators are obliged to discourage exual activity among young persons. Those structors who preach the glib gospel of ituation ethics are exacerbating the problem teenage pregnancy. The government, also could play a crucial role in concentrating the minds of teens on the negative consequences of premarital sex. It should begin by eliminating those anti-lamily aspects of the welfare system that have helped spawn several generations of illegitimate children.

Society also must stop treating teenage pregnancy as a problem peculiar to adolestent girls. Accordingly, teenage fathers should be required to assume more responsibility for child support. Their families could be held financially liable for that support until they turn 18, at which time a portion of their wages could be attached to help pay for the child they fathered. The problems of paternity suits notwithstanding, such a policy might prompt many young males either to abstain from premarital sex or to take the required precautions to prevent conception.

Comprehensive sex-education programs and tougher child-support laws are not panaceas for the nation's teenage pregnancy, problem. But these positive steps are surely preferable to the defeatist policy of dispensing contraceptives to youngsters, implying thereby society's approval of premarital sex.

Give The President A Polygraph Test

The crisis that continues to bedevil national amity in this season of good will is not hairsplitting over legalities in the Iran-contras arms-for-hostages deal, but whether the president is telling the truth.

President Reagan's confession of "mistakes" doesn't absolve him of guilt, but it does reveal a human fragility that eluded Richard Nixon. In the long run, an admission of vulnerability may save Reagan from an orgy of presidential bloodletting that Nixon's arrogant duplicity inspired.

Nonetheless a Niagara of polls continues to wash away Reagan's credibility.

It's difficult to believe that only four months ago Americans were kissing Reagan's ring. Why is this man so popular?" gushed Time magazine in a July 7 cover story. "What Managers Can Learn From Manager Reagan." a headline read for the cover story of the Sept. 15 issue of Fortune (the business member of Time's corporate family).

For a history-shaking exercise in political education, read those reportorial con jobs. If you can do so without retching. "You're a better man than I am, Gunga Din."

"Ronald Reagan has a genius for American occasions," fawned Time. "He is the Prospero of American memories, a magician who carries a bright, ideal America like a holograph in his mind and projects its image in the air.

Fortune magazine practically established him as the model CEO incarnate.

"Surround yourself with the best people you can find, delegate authority and don't interfere." Fortune quoted Reagan. "When I've heard all I need to make a decision, I don't take a vote. I make a decision."

Even if it's a dumb one. Two months after he dispensed his managerial wisdom in the pages of Fortune. Americans are painfully split over its merits. Republicans tend to give him the benefit of the Democrats are convinced he's lying. Outgoing Speaker of the House Thomas P. O'Neill has ruled out any born-again credibility. "... I honestly believe the president knew." O'Neill told an interviewer. (If we can have any faith in the president's managerial style as outlined in Fortune magazine, he did indeed

O'Neill then went on to cite a series of interviews with generals, colonels and lieutenant colonels. He asked them if they could conceive of Lt. Col. Oliver North "accomplishing this by himself." "They laughed," O'Neill said.

America is either laughing or agonizing. This divisive denigration of the presidency must not endure. President Reagan has an obligation to put suspicion and mistrust to rest, prove he's telling the truth or admit he iled.

Only one fail-safe method can restore Reagan's credibility.

A polygraph test. There's ample precedent for public officials. Besides, it's the president who established the "Caesar's wife must be above suspicion" standard for his administration with the issuance on Sept. 15 of executive order No. 12564. It requires that federal employees holding sensitive positions submit to urine tests designed to detect drug use.

Materials Research In Space

By William Harwood UPI Science Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) -Growing crystals and other kinds of materials processing in space promises to revolutionize high-tech applications for those with the vision to invest in basic research, a veteran shuttle astronaut says.

Despite the delay caused by the Challenger disaster, Bonnie Dunbar, who flew aboard the ship during its last successful flight in October 1985, remains optimistic about the future of materials science in weightless space.

Dunbar's Spacelab mission was chartered by West Germany and featured a heavy load of materials processing experiments and served as a pathfinder for scientists looking ahead to operations on NASA's planned space station.

"I think one of the most exciting areas we're looking at is electronic materials. That is, very high-speed integrated circuits," she said during an interview in Houston.

She said the ability of such computer "chip" circuits to operate at high speeds depends in large part on the molecular structure of the material used to make the chips. In weightlessness, scientists may be able to tailor the material to a level of purity and performance not possible on Earth, where the effects of gravity can cause tiny but significant imperfections.

Dunbar holds a master's degree in ceramic engineering and a doctorate in biomedical engineering.

'Certainly the science is exciting and I think the potential for producing something in space is high," she said.

Dunbar is part of a NASA-wide task force studying the current state of materials processing in space, from the first early fluids experiments during the 1975 Apollo-Soyuz joint U.S.-Soviet mission to the most recent research aboard the German Spacelab mission.

A potentially threatening problem for such research in the post-Challenger era is the availability of resources to mount such expensive missions and an air of caution that already has prompted NASA to cut a variety of Spacelab missions from the flight schedule because of safety considerations.

Even so, Dunbar believes it is vital for the United States to pursue advanced materials processing in

"First of all, we need to protect science's budget and support in this country," She said. "Without basic science there is no technology and development."

Governors Lead?

PARSIPPANY, N.J. (NEA) - The eight new Republican governors elected in November - and the 14 holdover GOP governors — are looking to the future.

When they met here recently, the main subject of private discussion was: "Who are you going to support in '88?"

But the agenda itself called for meetings on a wide range of issues - drugs, "America in the 1990s," state finances, education and foreign affairs.

Yet in the face of continuing "Irangate" revelations coming out of Washington, it was not easy to stay on the subject. And the focus of the meetings shifted radically. "Anyone want to talk about education?" asked New Hampshire Gov. John Sununu during a news conference called to discuss the subject on the opening day of the three-day meeting.

"No." was more or less the answer from the assembled reporters, all of whom seemed eager to ask about Washington events and whether the governors believed and supported President Reagan.

The governors ended up publicly discussing whether they might be called upon to save the party if the Iran-contra weapons scandal expands.

Typical was a session featuring Treasury Secretary James Baker. the former White House chief of staff. Baker was at the meeting to discuss taxes, trade and the economy. He never mentioned Iran during his talk. But he was deluged with questions about the crisis and whether Donald Regan, White House chief of staff, should resign or be fired.

Former President Richard Nixon had been scheduled to hold a closed-door discussion with the governors about foreign policy and trade issues. In his hour-and-a-half session with them he mentioned the Iran scandal only in passing, essentially saying it did not compare to Watergate and should in no way endanger the future of the Reagan presidency. But, of course, that was the only part of what was described as a "brilliant" presentation of the world situation that anyone wanted to talk about. As could be expected, in the end, the GOP governors endorsed President Reagan's recent actions and said they believe the president is telling the truth about his role — or lack of it - in the Iran-contra in the long run, perhaps the most important discussions held at this meeting centered around what long-term damage the scandal may wreak on the party.

Several GOP pollsters and consultants analyzed recent findings showing the sharp drop in President Reagan's approval rating. They discussed the future problems that might present for GOP candidates.

Frank Fahrenkopf, chairman of the Republican National Committee, admitted candidly that he was "nervous" about what effect the Iranian scandal would have on the GOP, but he said it was too soon to assess any long-term impact. Privately many of the governors expressed the same thought - if the public reacts sharply to the revelations, the power of the GOP might shift away from Washington and into the hands of state parties and What is especially striking about this is that, by and large, most Republican governors are moderates. This includes both the eight new GOP governors and the incumbents.

Almost without exception this year's GOP gubernatorial winners ran campaigns built around pragmatic themes. They campaigned as men and women who, if elected, could run their states better than their opponents. They ran not as political ideologues, but as practical problem solvers.

These governors now form what has to be considered a centrist position within the GOP.

Everyone Listens To RIAS

BERLIN (NEA) - Grizzly and the Slippery Eel send greetings to one and all. Cowlick and Nincompoop direct theirs specifically to the Tasmanian Devil. Messages like these go out on the Berlin airwaves every Saturday afternoon. They are from young East Germans, addressed to their friends - also in the East - and currently its the hottest way for the younger generation in the socialist state to evade and taunt the efforts of the state's authorities to keep it under control.

The messages are broadcast over RIAS, a West Berlin transmitter; and this is a hot media story. In the last few years, RIAS has been climbing steadily in the audience ratings, and the trend is still upward.

RIAS stands for Radio in the American Sector, (or, in German, Rundfunk im Amerikanischen Sektor) and is as old as the Cold War - a child of that conflict, born at the very outset.

When the victorious World War II powers set up shop in occupied Berlin in 1945, the Soviets claimed the facilities of Radio Berlin, the former voice of the Third Reich, and refused access to their erstwhile Western allies. To counter the Soviet monopoly, which was taking on an increasingly hostile propaganda tone, the American military government set up its own station, at first utilizing mobile equipment captured from the Wehrmacht. RIAS quickly outgrew its ad hoc beginnings to become a full-fledged broadcasting operation and a Berlin institution. Officially, it is an activity of the U.S. Information Agency. Since the 1950s, it has been operated in a cooperative arrangement with the West German government, which now supplies about three-quarters of the funding. The staff is primarily German.

RIAS has had its ups and downs over the years, which often have reflected the fluctuating temperatures of the Cold War. As a symbol of divided Germany whose voice transcended that division, it was long jammed by the East Germans. That ended in 1978 when East Germany, as part of a general improvement of relations with the West, joined the International Telecommunications Union.

The new RIAS has its critics, who are concerned that in pursuit of popularity it is neglecting its primary mission of information. That applies only in part, since the big changes have been in RIAS 2. Another transmission, RIAS 1, is still faithful to a primarily information format, but with a dwindling

Jordan Offended By Secret Iran Deal Hussein and other moderate Arab

By Jack Anderson

And Dele Van Atta
WASHINGTON — The damage done to U.S.-Arab relations by the secret Iranian arms deal was not limited to Iraq, the immediate victim. It shattered American credibility with at least one U.S. ally in the Middle East: King Hussein of

In an exclusive interview with Dale Van Atta in Amman, the diminutive monarch was cordial and diplomatic. But he made it clear that he was personally pained by what he regards as double-dealing by President Reagan and his emissaries, who sold weapons to Iran at the very time they were assuring him and other Arab leaders that the United States was doing all it could to deny weapons to Iran.

Finally, Van Atta suggested that the king must be deeply offended at having been lied to by an American president. Husseln paused, then looked straight ahead and said softly, "I am, sir." So Reagan did say things to Hussein that were completely the opposite of what the United States was doing? Van Atta asked. "He certainly did," the king replied.

It was evident that Hussein did not wish to pursue this particular line of questioning. But he acknowledged that he had yet to receive an apology from Reagan or anyone else in the administration, and that the explanations proffered by U.S. diplomats were unconvincing.

Husseln did find one part of Reagan's public explanation plausible: that the arms deal was made in hopes of gaining influence within Iran.

"I do not believe it was a question of hostages for arms." the king said. 'I believe that it was a strategic decision that was taken a while ago." But he added that the attempt to placate the Iranians "places in jeopardy the future of this entire area."

leaders support Iraq in the 6-yearold war with Iran, because they realize that a victory by the Ayatollah Khomeini's fanatical Islamic regime could spread the fundamentalist revolution to their countries and threaten if not destroy their governments.

The king said U.S. credibility throughout the Middle East had certainly been damaged by the arms deal. He added that "in terms of the area and its future, I believe that a lot of harm has been done." Hussein's feeling of disappointment - even of betrayal - is not likely to be shrugged off in Washington. Ever since he ascended the Jordanian throne 34 years ago, Hussein has been courted as an ally by every American president from Eisenhower to Reagan. It has long been an article of faith that no Middle East peace agreement can be negotiated without Hussein's enthusiastic co-

The king is well aware of his key position, and of his historically warm relations with Washington. No doubt that is why he was so reluctant to discuss the Iranian arms deal, and was so guardedly diplomatic in his responses.

"It has been the focus of our attention recently," he admitted. "My feeling is that (Egyptian) President (Hosni) Mubarak, as has been the case with me, has been in touch with Washington at the highest level to try to see what has happened in the recent past, and to suggest that a lot of damage has been done ... and to suggest at this point that it's up to Washington to tell us if they're interested at all in controlling the damage.

"Needless to say." Hussein said, "what has happened is in complete contradiction to everything that we've been assured was the United States' policy at the highest levels over the past few years."

Hasenfus Home For Holidays But Lips Sealed On Smuggling

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) - Eugene Hasenfus, pardoned by Nicaragua for running guns to the Contra rebels. returned home in time for Christmas and his son's birthday but declined to speak publicly about his smuggling activities before talking with the FBI.

Hasenfus, 45, and his wife, Sally, arrived at Austin Straubel Airport near Green Bay at about 11:30 p.m. CST Thursday, 74 days after he was shot down over Nicaragua during an arms-supply mission.

"It's good to be home." Hasenfus said, sweeping his three children into his arms.

He then picked up his youngest son, Adam, who turned 7 Thursday, and carried him triumphantly through the airport to a room where about 30 relatives and friends greeted him privately.

Parker's Top-Dollar Performance Turns Back Oak Ridge

By Sam Cook

Herald Sports Editor ORLANDO - Sanford's Jerry "Stick" Parker looked up in the stands following Seminole's vic-tory over Orlando Oak Ridge and spotted a familiar face. After gaining the man's attention, Parker began rubbing his fingers

"It was time for a treatment," Parker said. "That's my brother Kevin. He doesn't see me play very often. That game was worth some money."

It was, indeed, a top-dollar performance. Parker tossed in a

Scrooge-Like Raines Next For 7-0 Lions

By Benton Wood Special to the Herald

OVIEDO - Oviedo head basketball coach Dale Phillips gave himself a couple of early Christmas presents in the Central Florida Classic Basketball Tournament with a first-round bye and a walkover victory in the second-round, but Ebenezer Scrooge awaits to spoil the holiday season for the Lions.

Jacksonville Raines, ranked fifth in Class 4A. tore up Martin County South Fork's Christmas wish list with a 82-69 victory, while Phillips and Oviedo quietly watched after unwrapping Daytona Beach Father Lopez, 67-47, in front of 213 fans at Oviedo High School. The two teams remained undefeated heading into the first semifinal matchup tonight at 7, but Raines (6-0) demonstrated its idea of a Christmas greeting by pressing, fast-breaking, dunking and mugging South Fork. Phillips didn't enjoy watching the preview.

"Forget about them being ranked fifth in the state — they looked like they should be ranked number one," Phillips said. "I sure hope South Fork wore them down.

Actually South Fork and Raines raced up and down the floor and traded baskets for most of two-and-a-half quarters before Raines decided it was time for a blow out.

Raines only led, 51-48, with 1:25 left in the third quarter before scoring 12 consecutive points. All of them resulted from either an offensive rebound or a South Fork turnover against Raines' press.

Thomas Dow scored a three-point play on an intentional foul, and Robert Channelle followed with a layup on the ensuing inbounds pass for a five-point play to give Raines a 76-53 advantage with 2:46 remaining, allowing head coach Willie Dorsey to empty his bench.

"We came out a little more determined in the second half, but we can still play much better than this," Dorsey said with an unbelieving Phillips listening in. "We had to get ourselves up in the locker room, and we're going to have to be our own cheerleaders (against Oviedo) because they will probably have this place packed with copie banging on the bleachers

Terry Grey tried to keep South Fork close with 28 points and five steals, but he was overshaddwed by Raines' running reindeer. Forwards Dow and Gary Alexander led the herd with 22 and 17 iointa respectively. They both had nine rebounds and Dow blocked six shots.

"I really thought we were the only team in this half of the bracket that had any chance of beating them." South Fork head coach Derek Thomas said. "That's not taking anything away from Oviedo or anybody else. But they (Raines) are quicker than us, and I know we're quicker than Oviedo.

"They (Raines) are big, fast, disiplined and well-drilled. What else is there to say about them? if we had to lose to somebody, that's a good team to lose to. I know we don't play anybody like that in our neck of the woods."

Unfortunately for Oviedo, Raines is visiting the woods of Seminole County this week and their hunting season on Lions begins tonight.

Despite improving to 7-0, Phillips will find out a lot answers about Oviedo tonight. So far in the young season, the Lions biggest weapon has been they don't have one.

Instead, Phillips counts on his bench strength to wear down the opposition, and that was the formula used against Father Lopez.

Twelve of the 13 players for Oviedo scored, but Chris Griffith and Robb Hughes led with only 11

Phillips' "second group" turned a five pointlead midway through the third period into a 47-33 advantage heading into the final quarter. Reserve guard Dwight Everett had six points in the 11-2 run and Terry Campbell turned a steal into a three-point play.

Oviedo extended its lead to 19 points early in the fourth quarter and were able to work on its press and delay game the rest of the way.

"We may be better at holding the ball than we are at anything clse," Phillips said. "The funny thing is we don't ever work on it in practice."

The Lions got some help from center Cariton Miles, the leading scorer for 3-2 Father Lopez. Miles had 17 points and 15 rebounds, but he was only 5-12 from the foul line while the Green Wave

"I thought (Miles) had some good shots inside, but he just kind of flung it at the basket," Father Lopez head coach Neil Braly said. "The free throws killed us. If we make only half of those we're at least in the ball game."

Lake Brantley improved to 3-5 with a 53-43 victory over 0-8 Dunedin in the losers' bracket game. Brent Bell led the Patriots with 17 points. while Joe Notif scored 10 of his 12 points in the

Countryside FTs Topple Buchholz

By Mark Blythe Herald Sports Writer

CASSELBERRY - Clearwater Countraide overcame a shaky third-quarter performance to hold off Gainesville Buchholz, 60-57, and Winter Garden West Orange routed Lake Howell, 63-41, to advance to the semifinals of the Central Florida Classic Tournament before 51 fans at Lake Howell High Thursday night.

Countryside and West Orange will meet in the nightcap tonight at 8:30. The opener will feature host Ovicdo and Jacksonville Raines. In Thursday's consolation game. Lake Mary knocked off rival Lyman, 52-48.

Ninth-ranked Countryside, who led 39-32 at the half held off a relentless attack by Buchholz. "They're (Gainsville) a real good team," Countryside coach Bob Hientz said. "They handled everything we threw at them. The game just game down to who got the breaks and who hit the free throws."

For the second night in a row the Cougars, now 6-0, came through down the stretch and hit the clutch free throws. Point guard Bob Hientz came through for the second time this season.

"We had the same situation at home early in the season against one of our rivals," said the younger Hientz. "Everything was the same. I had to hit four free throws in the final minute and we won by the same exact score as tonight."

Hientz delivered his first pair from the charity stripe with 33 seconds left to give the Cougars a narrow three-point lead. After David Frazier sank a couple of free throws, Hientz came through again with another pair of free throws on an intentional foul call with four seconds remaining.

"I just remembered that I'd done it once already this year." Hientz said. "I went to the line with confidence and the shots fell." Gainsville came back from a 35-22 deficit midway through the second quarter to take the lead early in the third quarter by scoring the first 13 points of the period.

The Cougars went to their strength early as the play of 6-10 Matt Geiger and shooting guard David Fletcher paced them to their early lead.

Gleger and Fletcher led the way as each scored 14 to lead Countryside. Reserve Kevin McCarthan came through big with 10 points.

Pierre White led the way for Buchholz pouring in a game-high 21 points and Trevor Thomas added 10.

Lake Howell coach Greg Robinson was looking toward an interesting matchup only to West Orange take control after the opening period.

"We played really well, then we just fell apart." Robinson said. "We need to establish some things early and stay with them." Eddle Polland picked apart the Silver Hawks inside to score a game-high 28 points for West Orange, including 19 in the second half. Terry Henderson added 12 more and Damon Ellis chipped in eight to pace the Warriors.

Lake Howell was led by reserve post man Alonzo Robinson who tossed in a career-high 14

Polland and Henderson dominated the play in the middle as guard Stacey Love operated the offense while breaking Lake Howell's press. The Warriors pulled away to take a 26-15 halftime lead and stretched it out to 41-29 after three periods of play. The Silver Hawks then cut the lead to nine early in the fourth period but Polland hit a couple layups before he broke away for a slam with 2:48 to play. A steal resulted in a Polland layup before Love through over the Lake Howell defense to Polland who put another dunk down for a 59-45 West Orange lead with 2:12 remaining.

In the consalation game, Lake Mary downed Lyman in an early Seminole Athletic Conference preview as Oscar Merthie scored 14 of his 16 points in the second half. Merthie also snatched nine rebounds to lead the Rams.

Lake Mary could never put the Greyhounds away going up by as many as 13 in the first quarter. The Rams were led by Matt Napoli in the first half putting in 10 of his 14 points. Napoli also pulled down seven rebounds, dished out four assists and came up with four steals.

Morris: Unique Pitch

TAMPA (UPI) - Jack Morris is having less success pitching to American League owners than to AL batters.

George Steinbrenner, the principal owner of the New York Yankees who often greets free agents with an open mind and an open checkbook, met Thursday with Morris and his agent to hear a "very unique proposal." Moss and Morris had been rejected on three different proposals before asking Steinbrenner to consider a one-year deal with salary to be determined by an

Fans Get Excitement, Tribe Settles For Tie

By Scott Sander Herald Sports Writer

Excitement is one thing that Seminole boys' soccer coach Carlos Merilno hasn't seen much of in his two years as head coach of the Tribe. Sanford only won two games last season and were blown out of a number of them.

On Thursday night, Merlino got what he was walting for as Seminole and Lake Highland Prep hooked up in a wild game. After three goals were scored in less than four minutes in the final 10 minutes of the game, the contest ended in a 2-2 tie before a rowdy crowd at Seminole High School in prep soccer action.

"This was the most exciting game at Seminole since I've been here," Merlino said. "It was really great for soccer. All of the fans for each team were going crazy, and it was just great to see fans getting so riled up,"

With Highland leading 1-0 with under 12 minutes to play. Alex Piquer fed Chris Ray with a pass. The junior split the pipes at the 30:35 mark for a 1-1 deadlock.

Seminole took advantage of the momentum that the goal produced as J.J. Partlow scored 44 seconds later (31:19 mark) to give Seminole the lead.

"After we scored that first one," Merlino said. "I knew that we were going to score again quickly."

Lake Highland didn't quit as Eugene Sturgeon tied the game at the 33:18 mark. "They took the momentum right back,' Merlino said. "It was a heck of a game." Highland scored the apparent game-winner with four minutes left, but the goal was nullified on a late offsides call. "I thought that it was a goal at first." Merlino said. "The fans were Brantley beat Seminole, 10-0.

Seminole had a chance to win with two minutes left, but Piquer's shot hit the crossbar.

Lake Highland's Hash Navee scored the only goal of the first half at the 19- minute mark. "They had a long throw-in." Merlino said. "The kid (Nayee) took the ball and and it hit his head and leg. Somehow it dribbled into the net.

"I'm very happy with the way that we are playing." Merlino said of his 2-2-1 club. "Last year. we were out of a lot of games. This season, we have been in every game that we have played.

"I promised the people here that they would see some exciting soccer this season," Merlino added. "And so far, all of the games have been very exciting." Seminole will rest during the holidays before resuming with play with three tough opponents: Lake Mary, Lake Howell, and Lyman.

REYNOLDS PROPELS JV

Jim Reynolds scored a hat trick lifting the Seminole High School junior varsity soccer team to its first victory of the season, a 3-0 decision over Lake Highland.

The Tribe is now 1-3-1. "The team is improving," Merlino said. "They are doing a good job thus far." Merlino said Seminole's improvement was evidenced in its 1-0 loss to Lake Brantley this past Tuesday. Last year.

Independence: Kicking Game Crucial

SHREVEPORT, La. (UPI) - The winner of the matchup between Texas Tech's tiny punt returner Tyrone Thurman and Mississippi punter Bill Smith in Saturday's Independence Bowl could decide the game. both coaches said Thursday.

"Our two teams are parallel in a lot of ways." Mississippi coach Billy Brewer said Thursday. "They were 7-4 and we were" 7-3-1. We both won our last four of five and lost our next-to-last game. We have a sophomore quarterback and so do they.

Texas Tech coach Spike Dykes agreed.

"They are very much like Texas Tech they kind of started slow and finished fast." Dykes said, "but they probably have one of the greatest defenses in the country. "They've also got the best punter in America. On a wet field or in a bowl game, things are determined in the kicking game.

But we've got Tyrone Thurman. He doesn't have blazing speed, but he has a knack for making people miss." Thurman, the smallest college football player in NCAA Division 1 at 5-foot-3, 130 pounds, led the nation in punt return average. He also ran back two punts for touchdowns, including one 96-yarder, in victories over Texas and Houston.

Thurman, a sophomore, has never called for a fair catch, nor does he watch films of an opponent's kicker.

"I hate calling for fair catches," Thurman said. "Bill (Smith) told me he was going to kick it high, but we'll see. I don't watch films on the punter because I just want to go out there at game time and watch the ball

"I have to kick the ball a little higher or in the end zone," said Smith, an all-Southeastern Conference punter who averaged 44.2 yards a kick this year. "Tyrone's said he has never fair caught a punt, but hopefully he'll have to do that

Both sides downplayed the controversy yardage with 446 and had-a 18.5 senson withat hapouristal around them in the last few weeks. Dykes, formerly Tech's defensive coordinator, is coaching his first college game after David McWilliams departed for Texas and Texas Tech players voted not to have McWilliams coach the game. Mississippi has just been placed on a year's probation by the NCAA for recruiting violations involving star receiver J.R.

"Both teams have had some distractions." said Tech's Brad Hastings, an All-America linebacker. "We've had the coaching changes and they've had the NCAA. But Saturday night that won't matter because at kickoff it's just two teams playing each

"I think the air has been cleared over all of that now," Brewer said. "We've had experience with it (investigations) before and the kids are pretty much used to it." Saturday's game will be the first meeting ever between the two schools. It is the first bowl trip for Texas Tech since the 1977 Tangerine Bowl. Mississippi's last bowl game was a 9-3 loss to Air Force in the 1983

Horford's Debut Hopes To End Struggles For 1-4 Hurricanes

MIAMI (UPI) - Through five games, the Miami Hurricanes showed they need 7-foot-1 center Tito Horford

The Hurricanes have struggled this season without Horford, winning only the season opener against Central Florida and suffering an embarrassing loss to unheralded Winthrop College last Sunday. In their four losses, the Hurricanes were outhustled, outplayed and outmanned.

Saturday night at the James L. Knight Center, Horford is scheduled to make his collegiate debut when the Hurricanes play Dartmouth. He was ineligible for Miami's first five games because of a minor violation of NCAA rules while playing for a professional team in Puerto Rico.

"They really need me," Horford said. "They're looking for me to help them and I'm looking for ways to help them. They've been playing a bit individually. I think they're going to do better. We just have to keep working together."

Horford has waited a 1 1-2 years for the opportunity to play college basketball. He was a consensus All-America at Marian Christian High School in Houston, where he averaged 18 points, 12 rebounds and 6 blocked shots a game during his senior year.

The muscular 247-pounder received publicity last year when he enrolled at Houston, then was ruled incligible to play there because of an illegal visit. He went to Louisiana State for a brief time, then ended up at Miami in January.

"It has been like a year-and-a-half (since he graduated from high school), so it's going to be exciting." Horford said. "I'm not nervous. There's a little pressure, but I can deal with it. I'm not planning on paying attention to the

Lofton Charged With Assault

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) - James Loston, the Green Bay Packers' star receiver, was released from fail Thursday and ordered not to leave Brown County after being arrested on a second-degree, sexual-assault charge.

Lofton, 30, was accused of forcing a woman he met in a bar to perform oral sex on him, police Capt. Thomas Hinz said. Lofton was then suspended by the Packers. The arrest marks the third time sexual-assault allegations have been made against Green Bay players since Coach Forrest Gregg, a Hall of Fame player from the Vince Lombardi era, assumed the Packers' head-coaching position Dec. 24, 1983.

Lofton was released on bond Thursday after District Attorney Peter Naze had asked for additional time to prepare the formal complaint. Brown County Circuit Judge Charles Kuehn agreed to continue the appearance until

Rams-49ers: West Title, A Week Off

United Press International Eric Dickerson and the Los Angeles Rams are playing for the NFC West title - and a vacation

- tonight against the San Francisco 49ers. The loser will face the Washington Redskins in the NFC wild-card game next-week.

The winner will have a weekend off before starting the playoffs. "We want the week off," Dickerson said. "I think we have shown in the past we can play well in San Francisco."

Los Angeles, 10-5, has won three of the last four games between the teams in San Francisco, including a 27-20 triumph last season. The Rams won the earlier meeting this season in Los Angeles-13.

Dickerson has 11 100-yardplus rushing games this season. one shy of the NFL season record shared by O.J. Simpson, Earl Campbell and Marcus Allen. Dickerson has five straight 100-yard games.

"He looks stronger and I think he's more determined now," 49ers safety Carlton Williamson said of Dickerson. "It seemed like all he wanted was daylight in the past. This year, he's putting his head down and going at people. He's not going to be intimidated."

In addition to three teams -San Francisco, the Rams and Washington - the New York Giants and Chicago Bears have already clinched playoff berths in the NFC. In the AFC, the New York Jets, Cleveland Browns and Denver Broncos are in the playoffs.

In games Saturday, the Giants host Green Bay and Denver is at Seattle.

At East Rutherford, N.J., the Giants can assure themselves of a home-field advantage through the NFC playoffs by defeating the Packers. The victory would give the Glants a conference record superior to the Bears, who are also 13-2, and their first 14-win scason.

At Seattle, the Broncos can host all conference playoff games in which they play if they beat the Scahawks and the Browns lose Sunday to San Diego. The Scahawks need a victory plus two losses from among New England, Kansas City and Cincinnati to clinch a wild-card berth.

Sunday, the Jets are at Cincinnati. Atlanta plays at Detroit. Buffalo is at Houston, Kansas City plays at Pittsburgh, Minnesota hosts New Orleans, San Diego is at Cleveland, St. Louis hosts Tampa Bay. Washington is at Philadelphia. Chicago plays at Dallas and Indianapolis hosts the Los Angeles Raiders. Monday, New England is at Miami.

Volusia Speedway To Host Karting Event

Volusia County Speedway will again host the World Karting Association Daytona Dirt Championship on Dec. 27-28. More than 600 karters from across the nation are expected to be on hand for the event.

be the theme for the weekend. Jim Taylor, VCS track spokesman, said that they were distributing tickets to over 30,000 school children, good for either night. "We hope the kids will come out to learn more about go-karting as an alternative to drugs and other problems facing children today," he

Indoor Plants Not Immune To Insect Invasion

When we think of insects, usually we're thinking of outdoor plants and vegetables. But, your indoor plants are not immune to insect invasions. Usually our indoor plants are better protected, however, a number of insects may infiltrate your home in search of a leafy Major enemies of house plants include spider mites, mealybugs, aphids, scales, and occasionally a caterpillar or two. Spider mites are very small — about onefifthieth of an inch long. They're difficult to see without a magnifying glass. They look like tiny spiders, and are usually found on the undersides of leaves. In a severe infestation, you'll see a fine webbing on the foliage.

Mealybugs are small, softbodied insects, about an eighth of an inch long. They're convered with a white powdery material. Aphids are usually less than an eighth of an inch long. They're pear-shaped, have long antennae, and two shor tubes that extend from the rear of the Scales range from an eighth to a third of an inch in length, are covered with a waxy material, and may be circular, oblong, or pear-shaped. They're found on both sides of the leaves, and on twigs and branches.

Occasionally, you'll even find whiteflies on your plants. These resemble tiny moths, are about one-sixteenth of an inch long. and guess what? They're white. You can usually tell if you have whiteflies by gently shaking suspected plants. If they're there, they'll swarm all around the plant for a few seconds. You can also find them on the underside of leaves. When young, they resemble tiny green to whitish flah scales.

Other pests include fungusgnat maggots, psocids, and springtails. These are soil-borne pests and cause little or no damage. Large populations can become a nuisance. Fungus-gnat maggots are white, wormlike, and reach a length of about one-quarter of an inch at maturity. Psocids are about a sixteenth of an inch or less in length. They're grayish and may or may not have wings. Springtails are really tiny, usually white, and they Jump when disturbed.

These are the most commonly encountered insects indoors others may try to sneak in for a free meal. If you're bringing in new plants, give them a close inspectional before placing them near your other plants.

If you discover bugs attacking your house plants, slow down, don't grab the nearest pesticide. You could be making a big mistake! You may be applying a pesticide that would do more harm than good. You may not even need a pesticidel

Those who believe chemicals offer the only sure solution to house plant pests are at least partially wrong. While commercial pesticides usually are essential for severe infestations, many insect problems can be controlled through regular inspection and proper care. You can control them before the situation gets critical.

As soon as you get a new plant, inspect it carefully, make sure it's free of insects. Isolate it for a month or so before placing it with your collection. If it is infested, this gives you time to recognize and correct the problem before it spreads. When potting plants, be sure you use sterilized soil and containers. This will prevent attacks by soil-borne pests.

if a pest problem occurs, and only a few are seen, the simplest solution is to physically remove them. Caterpillars, slugs, and snalls are easily picked off by hand. Such villains as aphids and mealbugs can be seen well enough to be removed with tweezers. Aphids and mealbugs can be removed, too, with a cotton ball dipped in rubbing alcohol and stroked gently on the infested area of the plant. Be careful, though, too much alcohol will burn the foliage.

Plants can be sprayed with a forceful stream of luke-warm water - strong enough to wash the bugs away without damaging the foliage. If you spray your plants once every two weeks. you'll eliminate nearly all of the common pests. Kemember, most insects are found on the underaide of leaves, so spray these areas well. Plants enjoy a frequent shower - it keeps them clean and attractive.

Washing plants with a mild soap solution is another way to control insects. Mix two teaspoons of mild detergent in a gallon of water. Then apply the solution with a soft brush or cloth. You'll probably want to wash your plants outdoors, or in a large sink. For the very large plants that you cannot move, use a sponge or toothbrush to clean them. Most plants will benefit from a thorough washing a couple of times a year. Remember, some plants with fuzzy leaf surfaces cannot tolerate moisture on their leaves. Other methods will have to be used on these sensitive plants.

All of these methods will effectively control bugs on your house plants. They're simple and inexpensive. And, if you keep you plants clean, you probably will not have to resort to stronger measures. In cases of heavy infestations and certain persistant pests, it may be necessary to use a chemical pesticide. If so, check with your favorite garden supply store for recommended insecticides and follow directions exactly.

Happy Gardening!

AIDS Victim Tells It Like It Really Is

21-year-old woman who was recently diagnosed as having AIDS. I started having sex at age 15 and have had too many partners to know who I contracted it from. I have never used drugs or had a blood transfusion. At the urging of several boyfriends. I went on the pill so I wouldn't get pregnant. I didn't know that I could get something far worse than that. Anyone who is having sex. unless you have been in a long-term monogamous relationship, please listen to me, When you sleep with someone, you are sleeping with everyone that person has been with. Are you willing to take that risk? Abby, please print this, I want your readers to know that going on the pill or using another form of birth control other than a condom can be giving yourself a death sentence. You have to be very stupid these days to have sex without a condom.

It's too late for me, although my parents and I still pray for a cure, but maybe this letter will save other lives.

BARBARA H., QUEENS, N.Y.

DEAR BARBARA: You and I will never know how many lives will be saved because you wrote as you did. In a recent column 1 said, "Who is absolutely safe? Only couples who always use a condom, unless they are in a long-slanding monogamous relationship."

I should have stated that there are no "absolutes," that a condom alone cannot be considered "absolutely" safe. However, with proper use and the additional use of a spermicide containing Nonoxynol-9, one can reduce the chances of infection from the AIDS virus.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for six months. Today I received an anonymous typewritten note that read: "Hope to hear from you soon." The envelope was addressed to "Mrs. R - S - " The sender enclosed two Dear Abby clippings, both concerning brides who had not sent thank-you notes for their wedding gifts.

One writer said a year had passed and she was terribly ashamed, but wondered if she should write anyway. The other was from a bride who asked how long was considered OK to wait before writing thank-you notes for her wedding gifts. She said she thought she had read in your column that the bride had a year. (You replied. "No way, not in my column!")

Abby, here's the situation: My husband and I agreed that I would write the thank-you notes for gifts from my friends and relatives, and he would write the thank-you notes for his. Well, mine were written a long time

I hope this makes your column so the anonymous elipper will know that the Mrs. wrote all her thank-you notes, but the Mr. obviously did not.

NOT GUILTY IN ELGIN

DEAR NOT GUILTY: Let's hope the anonymous clipper sees this. Then what happened to the overdue thank-you note will no longer be a "Mr.-ry."

DEAR ABBY: That lady from New Mexico who resented workmen who asked to use her bathroom facilities sure did burn me up. I have a message for her: If the plumber who comes to repair her toilet isn't good enough to use it, fix it yourselff PLUMBER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Read on for a reader who waxed poetic on the subject:

DEAR ABBY: That housewife who be-

Then she might be less high and pristine.

To the embarrassment of some two-seater, so-called sports whirlwinds, we present the BMW 325es. "A beautifully refined hot rod from Bavaria" (Motor Trend). Its 6-cylinder Eta engine provides a torque-rich driving force. A BMW sports suspension endows the car with rate turn-and-corner prowess. # Stocks Open Mixed

NEW YORK (UPI) - Prices opened mixed today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues, with investors looking toward the socalled triple witching hour at the end of the trading day.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which fell 5.49 Thursday, was up 0.42 to 1913.24 shortly after the market opened.

Declines led advances 404-268 among the 1,055 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 6,657,300

Analysts said investors remained wary that the unwinding of trading strategies linked to stock index futures contracts or to expiring options might cause further slides in stock prices.

The triple witching hour occurs quarterly when stock index futures contracts come due while options on those contracts and options on individual stocks simultaneously expire.

"People are still sitting around to see what will happen in the triple witching hour," said Hildegard Zagorski, market analyst at Prudential-Bache Securities.

Analysts said unwinding of trading strategies linked to this witching hour could send stock prices lower as professional traders closed out positions by buying futures contracts and seiling

The stock market finished lower Thursday.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Retail care and entertainment and costs rose 0.3 percent in Nov- other more moderate advances. ember as a slight drop in energy prices failed to offset higher costs for food and new 1987 cars, the Labor Department said

The seasonally adjusted Consumer Price Index, which passed through several months of negative growth early this year because of falling oil and natural gas prices, has advanced a very moderate 1.3 percent since November 1985.

The energy index, which has fallen 19.6 percent over the last 12 months, slipped back by 0.7 percent last month with gasoline costs falling 0.6 percent.

But that price break was more than offset by a 0.9 percent jump In new car costs, a 0.5 percent rise in food costs, a 0.4 percent increase in the price of medical Costs of retall apparel and upkeep rose 0.2 percent but housing costs actually slipped back by 0.1 percent overall. The broad category of "other goods and services" rose 0.3 percent.

Analysts with the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said about 40 percent of that rise was in the new 1987 autos.

A 1.5 percent Jump in the price of winter fruits and vegetables led the rise on grocery store shelves. The cost of meat, poultry, fish and eggs also rose by a sharp 0.6 percent and dairy products were up 0.5 percent.

Food in restaurants and cateries outside home was 0.5 percent more expensive, as were non-alcoholic beverages. Alcoholle beverages rose 0.5 percent. but sugar and sweets slipped back 0.2 percent in November.

Cereals showed no measurable price change.

Within the housing category. shelter costs rose 0.2 percent overall, while renters costs were up 0.4 percent. Household furnishings, on the other hand, were 0.4 percent cheaper last month than they were in October. In apparel, men's clothing was up 0.6 percent and women's wear up 0.1 percent, but the price of footwear fell 0.2 percent and apparel for Infants and toddlers was down a sharp 1.6 percent.

In transportation, the jump in new car costs was matched by a 0.9 percent rise in maintenance and repair prices, but used car costs slipped back 0.1 percent.

An Inherent Beauty In Wood

An Artisan's Unique Creations

There are woodworkers who putter around their home shops occassionally turning out knicknacks. And then there are wood artisans, who skillfully create unique works of art in wood.

These wood artisans, like Longwood's Bob Kopec and Sanford's John Wesley Williams, have gained recognition for their creations with awards at art shows and craftsmen's competitions.

In his effort to create superior handcrafted wood items, ranging from bowls and toys to a prize winning blanket chest and most of the furnishings in his home, Kopec finds some relaxation.

"It's certainly relaxing, the creative aspect of it. But it can be demanding physically and mentally to take something from nothing and create, design and make something," he said.

Dispite the demanding aspect of this pastime, which is always subject to false moves, Kopec said, the top craftsman has an advantage over the novice when mistakes are made.

"I think everybody makes mistakes. One thing I think separates the craftsman from Harry homeowner, because of the craftsman's experience, he may make a mistake, but will generally know a way to fix it so it may not be so obvious.

"Sometimes a mistake totally ruins a piece and and it will have to be thrown away or totally remade again. If one is working for quality, which is what handcraftsmanship is all about, quality rather than products, that's not so unusual. "It takes a person who absolutely loves it to do it. It's not something you could do halfway. You have to have a feeling for wood. Some people who really love wood, love the grain and color, and everything that goes along with it, have been called Druids," who were linked in ancient legends to wood and spirits. "A throwback to the Druids-type thing. I don't think this is true.

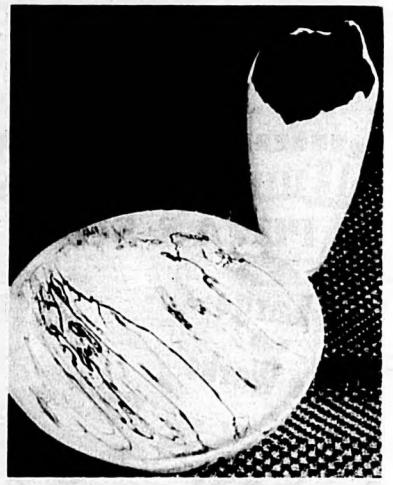

"There's an inherent beauty in wood. I think there's a certain spirit in wood that doesn't exist in any other material. If you pick up a piece of metal or plastic it's unyielding. It's cold. It's hard. Where a piece of wood feels soft. It feels warm. It's got something that makes you want to touch it. I think it's because it's been alive.

"I don't know how to express it exactly, but there's something there. There seems to be some spirit that lives in the wood and you've got to bring that spirit out. It's there all the time.

"Many times some of the best feelings I've had about pieces I've made are of wood that I've rescued from some other fate. Some of the pieces I'm working on now have been from a tree that died in the freeze two or three years ago. I watched the tree die. I could see, because of the grain on the outside of the tree, that there was beautiful wood in the tree.

"And I just happened to be there when they were loading logs from that tree to take them to the dump. I grabbed a few of those pieces off the truck and am building things from those logs. And rather than being discarded, we're going to bring the wood back to life. It's a reincarnation type of thing, like a rebirth. You get some really good feelings when you're able to do something like that.

"The first thing I made out of one of those logs turned out to be so beautiful you couldn't believe someone would actually want to throw this thing away. It came alive. The colors and swirls in this wood came to be so beautiful that it's almost like it was thanking me for saving it.

"it's hard to express these feelings, but with wood there is feeling and communication there between a real craftsman and the material. They talk back to each other. I think this goes back to the feel, the smell of the wood. You really get bound up working with wood. You become a part of it. It becomes a part of you. You get very, very involved in it," Kopec said.

And to get that type of feeling, he said, you have to be serious about the work. "You can't just say, well I'm going to make some bookshelves to put in the den. There's more to it than that. There's more to it than just making things.

"It's funny too, when you make a piece of furniture, especially an original design, you never really give that piece of furniture away. Someone else may possess it for a while. But somehou you always feel that's your piece of furniture. Like your child. and you just let them go out in the world, but something, a piece of yourself is out there," he said.

It's a loving relationship with wood that 40-year-old Kopec has developed during the last 20 years.

At 12, Mario was living with his parents on welfare in a $30-a-month apartment in San Francisco. He slept in a closet: his sister bedded down in the bathtub.

After his father's success in France, Hollywood changed its mind, and the elder Van Peebles directed Godfrey Cambridge in "Watermelon Man" (1970). Van Peebles followed his success with a black exploitation film, "Sweet Sweetback's Baadasses Song" (1971), which white critics loathed but black moviegoers turned into a huge commercial

What In The World Happened To Ralph Waite

Dear Dick: Could you tell me what ever became of Ralph Waite, who played the father on "The Waltons" and later starred in "The Mississippi"? - M.B., Warsaw, Ind.

Dear M.B.: He's working, doing mostly theater and guest roles. He spends his summers in Maine and his winters near Palm Springs, Calif., where he is active in local little theater projects. He'll be back on a series some day, in all probability.

Dear Dick: There is a $10 bet riding on the answer to this question between my husband and me. Who was Barbara Hale married to and who fathered her son, William Katt? My husband says Guy Madison. I say it was Guy Williams or Bill Williams. Also, which one played Kit Carson on that TV series? - N.K., Stuart, Fla.

Dear N.K.: One for you. It was Bill Williams. And he was also on the Kit hit.

Dear Dick: What part does Mickey Dolenz's daughter play on "Growing Pains"? - L.H., Joplin, Mo.

Dear L.H.: Amazing how that story has gotten around. The fact is that Dolenz' daughter had a walk-on on that show last season — one show, one bit role. But the rumor is around that she is a regular. She appeared briefly in a party scene, and that was that.

Dear Dick: As a teen in the 1950s, I saw "Road House," with Richard Widmark and Ida Lupino. It made me a lifetime fan of both and Lupino's song at the piano still haunts me. Is "Road House" on video? — B.W., Elkins, W. Va.

Dear B.W.: No, it's not. And that's a shame. Actually, that film came out in 1948 (OK, so you cheat on your age a few years). It was one of the good "bad" pictures - a grade B film that was better than many grade A films. It should be on video, but it's not.

Dear Dick: I've often seen the commercial featuring the little chef made of dough, seiling Pillsbury products. Why do they keep poking the dude in the stomach? - L.R., Houston, Dear L.R.: There is really nothing significant about that gesture. Just for the fun of it. Don't you ever poke some dude in the stomach, to get him laughing?

Dear Dick: Was there ever a series called "Wonder Woman" starring Lynda Carter? If so, how long did it last? - J.M., Amarillo, Texas.

Dear J.M.: Sure was. It lasted three 'Wonder'-ful years, 1976-79. It wasn't very good, but it was fun-in a stupid sort of way.

Dear Dick: I enjoy watching "The Cosby Show," as does almost everyone. My question concerns the youngest daughter, Rudy. Is It a nickname or is that really her name? What kind of a name is Rudy for a cute little girl? -C.A.H., Warsaw, Ind.

Dear C.A.H: Cute little girls sometimes have very odd names - Ginger, Cybill, Terry, Michael - so why not Rudy? The people who created the show and the characters say that Rudy it is, and it's not short for anything.

Dear Dick: Could you please settle a family debate? My sister says that Gilda Radner is Martha Raye's real-life daughter and that Jackee Harry (of "227") is Marla Gibbs' daughter. Is she right? - C.T., Merrill, Mich.

Dear C.T.: No, she couldn't be wronger.
