

Stewart Says— Berlin and Rome Show Evidence Of Rough Going

By CHARLES F. STEWART, Central Press Columnist

BERLIN AND Rome, as our state department interprets the news from these two supposedly strictly censored sources, are furnishing the most convincing of all proofs that things are going badly with the European Axis.

From Berlin recently came the information that Herr Hitler has remorselessly squelched all reports of a "Holland-On-Go" but doubtless has squelched "Am."

Adolf Hitler, but his announcement that he's done so is taken as an admission from a first-class authority that there were Dutch disorders that required squelching. And it was as good an authority as Signor Mussolini, who testified that the Fascists were a lot worse licked in northern Africa than even the British said they were.

Adolf and Benito ought to know, if anybody. Benito's revelation was naive to the point of being funny. It evidently had leaked out in Italy itself that the Italian forces were on the run on the southern side of the Mediterranean, and it appears that the Italians at home were beginning to mutter that he'd neglected to send enough of 'em into that field of activity or to keep 'em supplied adequately. Seemingly Benito was stung by these criticisms, so he made that speech of a few days ago, to the effect that his African military outfit was, too, a great plenty more numerous and better equipped than Italy and the rest of the world had given it credit for being. Well, if it was undermanned and skimpily armed it had some excuse for being licked. But, if not, as he asserted, it hadn't even that excuse for taking its licking. Ditch Albania. Benito hotly denied that the Italians there were knocked into a cocked hat by the Greeks due to any failure of his own to send enough of 'em across the Adriatic or to furnish 'em with sufficient guns, munitions and aviation; they simply had been trounced by superior Greek fighting ability, though Benito didn't put it quite that way.

Not His Fault! The nub of it is that, yes, they've been licked, but it wasn't his fault. The inference drawn from Adolf's remarks is that he's conquered more territory than he's going to be able to keep long under subjection. The Dutch already are so ugly, according to his own oracular pronouncements, that he has had to declare German army rule throughout all the northern Netherlands. Presumably it's effective there at present, but it must be a nuisance to him to have so much hostility simulating that he has to sit on it with a big military force to prevent it from going on the rampage under him.

And of course there are other areas for him to worry about. Norway's reported to be as near to an anti-Nazi uprising as it dares to be. France certainly won't stay beat any longer than it has to. It stands to reason that Denmark, Poland and Belgium can't but be ripe for revolt at the first favorable opportunity. The Balkans also are only as pro-German as they're afraid to be otherwise.

Now, Herr Hitler can concentrate on one little spot, like northern Holland, and suppress its anti-Nazi, unquestionably. But suppose Adolf were to have uprisings break out against him in France, Holland, Belgium, Poland, Denmark and Norway about simultaneously, plus Britain on his hands, maybe the Balkans and Turkey, too, and with Russia's unreliability to reckon with! Wouldn't all that keep him pretty busy?

Japan Is Far Off. Italy's a broken reed to him. And Japan's too far away to help him in Europe. Just how solidly Germany itself is behind the Fuehrer is something of a problem here. That it's strongly predominantly so isn't questioned. Nevertheless there are rumors of a bit of domestic discontent with him; the Fatherland traditionally has its demagogues. There are observers who think they might manifest themselves quite formidably if he runs into serious trouble, giving them a chance to speak above a whisper without being instantly GEB-ELT.

Washington's diplomatic strategists estimate that Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini are getting on with their news from abroad and the latter with his news from Albania and Albanian (which) have been a couple of the most enlightening informants.

The world's largest man-made dam, the Grand Coulee Dam, is nearing completion on the Columbia River, in Washington.

Germans Still Battling For Food Freedom After 18 Months Of War

By MORGAN M. BRATTY, WASHINGTON, Mar. 11—(AP)—After 18 months of war, the Germans haven't won their battle for food freedom.

And that despite the windfall of foods from conquered, occupied, or dominated countries. Official German diet tables showing what the average German eats, published first in 1927, again 10 years later, and extended by United States Department of Agriculture experts to date on the basis of the official rationing, show these facts:

1. The average German's basic diet in 1927 was about 2,866 calories per day per person, or almost the same as the high averages of British and American diets.

2. The "consumption planning" campaign of the Nazis was highly successful in conserving essential foods, but by 1937 it had reduced the basic diet level to the point where it was estimated by American nutrition experts to be 15 percent below the American standard.

3. The present basic diet has been reduced further since 1937, to the point where it averages 13 percent higher than normal in total bulk, but is about 40 percent below normal in energy giving meat and fat. The exact loss in calories cannot be estimated because the complete diet of today is not available.

UNITED STATES Department of Agriculture experts have made two appraisals of the German battle for food freedom within the last year, the latest of which has just reached the desk of President Roosevelt.

They conclude that a crisis in fats, probably leading to even more drastic reduction in this important food element, will come by July 1. But they figure grains and potato reserve will be more than sufficient to last well into mid-1942. That means to the experts that German workers probably won't show serious signs of malnutrition for some time to come, although their production per worker might begin falling off drastically by mid-summer.

The American experts also conclude that the Reich food estate—the organization charged with setting the most out of the available foods—has done a remarkably efficient job of conserving food supplies.

First, these in charge lowered fat and meat content of German diets as early as 1934, so that the German citizen felt hardly a lilt when the deficient war rations went into effect.

They jugged the ration allowances so that manual workers received almost twice as much food as the average German, and the soldiers received fully twice the ration of the folks back home. But they still left the manual worker with only half enough fat. They fertilized German farms to the limit in the three years just before war began and achieved extra production. And finally they gave themselves a breathing spell this winter by "buying" food in the conquered areas.

NEVERTHELESS, the American experts conclude, this has not been enough to win the battle of food freedom. Not by a jugful. And, here, they tell you, is the proof.

Said Die Deutsche Volkswirtschaft, the official economic journal of the Nazi Party, on Mar. 2, 1939—a few months before the war started, and after the German people had been eating a deficient diet for more than five years: "Lately, signs of over-exertion of workers and employees have become apparent. First, the gripe epidemic has reached such an extent that it can only be explained by increased susceptibility owing to physical and psychological weariness. Second, extreme irritability on account of nervous strain resulting from over-exertion is common. Third, unexcused absence and attempts to stay away from work for flimsy reasons have increased sharply."

The over-exertion of workers is, in the last analysis, only another symptom of the general over-utilization of all resources. THESE, the American experts indicate, are the symptoms of an unintentional all-down strike, a result of the lack of proper fat and meat in the workers' rations. Other experts suggest sustained British defense and blockade could aggravate that condition among the German populace as a whole. The cheerful workman is the fellow who gets plenty of meat and fat, or, in its place plenty of vitamins from fruits and vegetables which Germany admittedly lacks.

This the German battle of food freedom—or in other language—self sufficiency—is not yet won.

Lawrence Tibbett Headlines Artist Series At College

TALLAHASSEE, Mar. 11—(Special) Lawrence Tibbett, Metropolitan Opera star, and star of radio, motion picture and concert stage, will headline the artist series for next year at Florida State College for Women.

This announcement has just been made by Dean Ella Scoble Opperman of the School of Music, who is chairman of the artist series committee.

Tibbett will come in February or March of 1942, giving two different concerts. It will mark his first appearance in this area.

This announcement is expected to be of major interest to music patrons who have taken advantage of the increased accommodations made possible for seating audiences in the college auditorium as the result of the policy to schedule two appearances by each artist.

Tibbett, who is a native of Bakersfield, Calif., first appeared on the concert stage at Los Angeles in 1917; and made his operatic debut in the Hollywood Bowl, singing the part of Amonaro in "Aida" in September, 1923. His debut with the Metropolitan occurred in Nov. 30, 1923, when he sang the part of Valentine in "Faust."

He has made concert tours annually from coast to coast and in Europe, and has been featured with various cultures since 1929. He received a gold medal for "good" action on the stage from the American Academy of Arts and Letters in 1933; was chosen "best classical singer" by a radio editors poll four consecutive years and was presented with Litteris et Artibus medal by the King of Sweden in 1937.

At least two other attractions are planned next year on the College Artist Series which every student attends without further cost since allowance is made for this at the beginning of the college year in the student activity fee.

The best-attended artist series in the college's history ended recently with performances of "Carmen" and "Madame Butterfly" by the San Carlos Company, marking the first time grand opera had ever been brought on the artist series. Coe Glade took the leading role in "Carmen" and Hal Koyke, native Japanese, the leading part in "Butterfly." The United States Marine Band was brought back as the opening attraction on this year's artist series.

The first postal service in America was inaugurated on May 7, 1803, between Portsmouth, N. H. and Philadelphia.

500 American Airmen Enter British Forces

Over 500 Fliers Reported Signed Up With Royal Forces Since Last July

Most Volunteers Are Instructors

Several Have Joined 'Eagle Squadron,' U. S. Unit

NEW YORK, Mar. 12.—(AP)—More than 500 fliers, drawn from the growing American reservoir of civilian pilots, have enlisted in England's Royal Air Force and Royal Canadian Air Force since mid-July last year.

More than 400 are flying instructors in Canada. About 100 are ferrying England-bound bombing planes across the Atlantic. About 80 are transferring British-made planes from factories to airfields. A few have joined the "Eagle Squadron," an American fighting unit.

Unconfirmed reports reached diplomatic circles here early today that a big British expeditionary force from North Africa is being landed at Piraeus, the port of Athens, for action on the Greek front.

It also was reported that British transports were about to land troops at Balkans, a port near the top of the Aegean Sea barely 60 miles from where German mechanized forces are massed along the Bulgarian-Greek Macedonian border.

Diplomats in Belgrade heard without any direct confirmation that 40 British military transports arrived Tuesday at Piraeus, heavily bombed Greek port five miles from the city, and began unloading troops.

The British expeditionary force was said to be drawn from Gen Sir Wavell's Army of the Nile in Egypt and Libya after the battering of Marshal Graziani's Italian North African forces.

For several days it had been reported in Belgrade that the British had assembled at least 10 divisions—approximately 175,000 troops—in Africa for transportation to Greece, but it was not revealed how many of these, if any, had been actually disembarked.

Contracts for eight baseball players have been mailed by the Sanford directors and the committee to raise funds for the team have been at work all day in an attempt to collect the necessary money in one day. Otto Caldwell, president of the board of directors, said today.

Rick Gillespie, Joe Justice, Bill Daugherty, Jack Russell, Frank Hudson and Ray Ashton have been mailed contracts for the 1941 season.

Gillespie, shortstop, played four years for Rollins College and was optioned to Fort Pierce in the Florida East Coast league for much of last season. He is now assistant coach at Seminole High School.

Joe Justice, second base, is a native Rollins player signed by the Florida East Coast league for much of last season. He is now assistant coach at Seminole High School.

Bill Daugherty, pitcher, is the latest Rollins player to be signed by the Seminoles. Before coming here he pitched the first part of last season with St. Albans, Vt., in the Northern league. While in Rollins he was considered their star hurler. Last season he was knocked out of the box only twice.

Jack Russell, catcher, batted in Al Kinsler last season but might have been first string on other teams in the league if he were leveled. He signed up last year.

Outlook For Florida Farms Is Improving

Effects Of War And Defense Spending Are Seen As Raising Farm Prices

Due principally to improved domestic demand, the 1941 outlook for Florida farmers is brighter than for the past year and the effects of the European war are likely to be felt increasingly by farm families this year, a report issued today by the University of Florida's Agriculture Extension Service indicates.

"The rapidly expanding program for national defense has resulted in greater industrial production, employment, and income. With a national reduction in hog marketing in prospect for 1941, total slaughter supply of cattle and calves marketed in 1941 is expected to be about the same as for the past two years. A decrease in grain-fed cattle going to market now seems probable, since feed grains are continuing high relative to cattle prices in 1941.

"Since 1938, the farm census shows that the number of acres in cropland and pasture has increased and that the production of about 100 million bushels of grain and other crops is expected for 1941.

"The demand for food in Florida during 1941 will be much greater than for many years, and consumption probably will be increased in a direct result of naval and military training camps in Florida.

Other crops to be in demand are cotton, sugarcane, and citrus. Many factors in the national as well as in the Florida situation stand out as of particular importance to poultrymen in the coming year. Florida poultry production in 1941 should be in a relatively good position to obtain higher prices and incomes from their flocks as a result of increased domestic demand and smaller stocks of birds in the market.

Supplies of poultry and other farm products are expected to be good during 1941. The 1941 national outlook for improved domestic demand for farm products and other crops is expected to be good during 1941.

U.S. Will Assume Some Of British Supply Contracts

Country Will Be Relieved Of Part Of Burden Of Filling War Orders

Sum Involved Is Over 300 Million

WASHINGTON, Mar. 13.—(AP)—A $246,385,144 appropriation bill to carry forward the war-time Navy construction program was presented to the House today along with a warning from the Navy's high command that the critical work situation may continue to grow worse for some time to come.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 13.—(AP)—A high Administration official disclosed today that the Army and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation are negotiating to assume between $300,000,000 and $350,000,000 worth of British war contracts and factories in this country.

The official added that this is no way means the British "will be relieved of the remainder of their obligations in this country."

He explained that negotiations probably would end British war obligations between 30 and 35 percent.

The President noted yesterday in making for an appropriation under the lend-lease bill that while the defense equipment produced under the lend-lease bill remains under the control of the United States until it is finally disposed of, it is the fixed policy of this government to make for democracies every gun, plane and munition of war that we possibly can.

Importance of the message was shown by the fact that it was referred to the Appropriations Committee as usually is done. An appropriations sub-committee headed by Representative Woodrum, Democrat, Virginia, was to begin hearings on the measure today under a program which would bring it before the House early next week.

Senate leaders prepared to give the legislation a green-light after the House acts and they appeared confident of being able to defeat "pay-as-we-go" and other amendments which non-interventionists reportedly are planning to offer. Some leaders felt the entire matter could be disposed of in less than a fortnight.

Budget Director Smith made three recommendations in his communication designed to insure the President flexibility of spending under the multi-billion dollar spending. One would allow the President to transfer a maximum of 20 percent of the money earmarked for one category of war to another, provided the original amount of the second item was not increased more than 20 percent by the shift.

Labor Board For Defense Takes Shape

Secretary Perkins, Knudsen And Hillman Submit Their Ideas On Question

WASHINGTON, Mar. 13.—(AP)—President Roosevelt received from Secretary Perkins and Defense Directors Knudsen and Hillman a specific recommendation for a mediation board to handle the labor problems related to the defense program.

No details in what they had suggested were announced, but Miss Perkins told reporters the idea of a mediation board was taking definite shape.

The Office of Production Management yesterday kept a watchful eye on the strike situation in national defense industries but announced through Sidney Hillman, associate director, that the defense program was not being seriously hampered.

Hillman told a press conference that he and Director Knudsen were exploring proposals for the establishment of a national mediation board to handle strike situations. If such a plan were agreed upon, he said, it could be put into effect by President Roosevelt without legislation.

At a meeting in Washington, legislation to restrict the Agricultural Department's authority to concentrate government-owned cotton was approved by the House Banking Committee by a 19-9 vote.

Chairman Steagall (D-Ala.) said he hoped to get House consideration early next week.

Nazi Victory Foreseen By Adolf Hitler

German Pilots Claim Heavy Attack Upon City Of Liverpool; Drop 10,000 Bombs

LINZ, Germany, Mar. 13.—(AP)—Hitler keynoted the Nazi celebration commemorating the third anniversary of the Union of his native Austria with the Reich by predicting today in a speech at Linz that the war would end in a tremendous German victory insuring the development of a "greater Germany."

German pilots returning from raids over England reported that 10,000 incendiary and incendiary bombs were dropped on Liverpool, inflicting destruction even "exceeding that at Coventry"—in reference to the England midlands town which was all but wiped out on the night of Nov. 14.

Enactment of the British aid bill by the United States Congress is making a profound impression in all strata of German life and continued last night to be the subject of the most serious thought.

But the final analysis of all available comment is that anything the United States may do to help Britain cannot change the forward surge of the German political and military forces toward the "new European order" envisaged by Adolf Hitler.

The country's both semi-official and informal reflects German opinion that the American decision may have vast importance in immediate developments.

Yet the general conclusion is expressed in Berlin, is that "it won't change things in the end."

More Powerful Bombers Are Used In Assaults On Hamburg And Bremen

Invasion Coast Also Attacked

BERLIN, Mar. 13.—(AP)—The Luftwaffe yesterday reported that since the war German armed forces have sunk more than 5,000 British ships.

British bombers smashed at Berlin, Hamburg and Bremen in the heaviest raid yet launched on Germany. It was officially announced in London today, while several hundred Nazi planes struck with fire bombs and high explosives in a large-scale assault on Liverpool.

Heavy rain clouds across the Channel this morning indicated that R.A.F. bombers were following up the night raid with attacks on the German-held invasion coast.

With new and more powerful bombers thrown into the assault, well-placed sources reported that as a result of the night raid, the R.A.F. now has in its hands a really effective offensive against Berlin.

The British declared today they had been freed of worry over the replacement by passage of the United States anti-Berlin bill.

Yugoslavia, the last Balkan state uncommitted to either of the great belligerents, has agreed to permit the signing of the German-British-Yugoslav armistice, government circles said today, but wants more time before the pen is put irreversibly to the paper.

After hours of urgent conference, Regent Prince Paul and his advisers were understood to have decided to give in, but made these counter-conditions to the German demands:

1. That Yugoslavia sign immediately a declaration of friendship with Germany and that she allowed a transition period, before going all the way, to try to modify pre-British sentiment in an effort to avoid possible internal trouble.

2. That the German and Yugoslav governments have a further discussion of Nazi demands for the demobilization of the Yugoslav army, for a guarantee that the Yugoslavs will make "no military moves" and for the right to pass troops through southern Yugoslavia from Bulgaria to Greece.

This form of capitulation, it was understood, was made up of representations by military leaders in Prince Paul that military resistance was impossible since the country is all but surrounded by Axis forces.
