More Arrests Expected Before Planned Demonstration

10 Missile Protesters Still Refuse To Give Names

By Fred Cooper Herald Staff Writer

ORLANDO - Eleven arrested missile-test protesters who said they came to Florida to make a statement refused, with one exception, to identify themselves as a source of the message. The eleven were taken from the Brevard County jail to Orlando for their initial appearance before Orange County Judge James Hauser Monday afternoon in the Federal District Court.

More arrests are expected before a massive "cancel the countdown" demonstration Saturday at the gates of the Air Force station.

Judge Hauser presided in the absence of a federal magistrate.

The defendants, identified initially as John Does 1 and 2, and Jane Does, 1 through 9, were advised of their rights and bonds. The charge of trespassing on the Cape Canaveral Air Force Station was filed against the defendants in a statement of charges signed in court by John M. Decker, FBI special agent, in the Cocoa bureau

Stating that all defendants were from "out-ofstate" and claiming to be in the 4th day of a water fast, John Doe 1 declined to give his name stating that he had "committed no crime, but the United States government was guilty of crimes in connection with the proposed launch of the Trident missile.

The remaining 10 defendants were brought before the judge as a group and seated in the luror's box, Judge Hauser explained that without identifying themselves bond could not be set. He also indicated if they identified themselves they would probably be released on their own recognizance.

With the prospect of awaiting an April trial while in jail, Harriet Nestel, 48, of Leverett, Mass., identified herself, giving her address as the Peace Pagoda in Leverett.

Gary Libricke, assistant U. S. attorney, stated after the hearing that Ms. Nestel would probably be released within "two or three days if she has no other criminal record.'

The remaining 10. handcuffed and unidentifled, were taken back to jail.

Another 14 protesters are in Brevard County jails awaiting their initial appearances.

Lt. Col. Robert Nicholson, a spokesman for Patrick Air Force Base, said between Friday and Monday 26 protesters were arrested for trespassing at either the military complex or the Kennedy Space Center.

One person even managed to climb part way up

SIB Replies

To Critics

Board to city commissioners.

The report contains numerous votes of support for the SIB from community representatives. It will not be formally acted upon by commissioners, but was commented on favorably by four of them after their regular meeting Monday.

Monday's session was the first regular meeting for newly elected city commissioners A.A. McClanahan and Whitey Eckstein. The session was brief and subdued and served as opportunity for Eckstein to announce his resignation from commissioners' Humans Relations Advisory Board. Eckstein said he felt it inappropriate to continue on the board now that he's a commissioner. He proposed the vacancy be filled by Dennis Stewart, one of his opponents in last month's District 4 commission race. The rest of the commission said they'd act on Eckstein's recommendation at their next regular session, after he submits his resignation from the board in writing. Stewart is a patrolman with the Casselberry Police Department.

Three of the city's commissioners requested the Scenic Improvement Board begin a self-evaluation in November to address criticisms leveled against it by the city's two other commissioners. The two, Milton Smith and Dave Farr, are no longer in office. The three commission members who requested the SIB evaluation -Mayor Bettye Smith. Bob Thomas and John Mercer - said Monday they feel the 55-page report is comprehensive and signifies sufficient response to help allay recent criticisms. The board was accused last fall by Farr and Smith of using a heavy hand to promote city beautification. They leveled charges of city charter violation and alleged the board was pressuring local businesses to beautify their properties. Smith and Farr were also sharply critical Sara Jacobson, the SIB's chairman at

In addition to numerous community representatives' endorsements of board efforts, the SIB package contains minutes of two sessions the board devoted to the commission requested self-assessment.

The report finds no serious problems within the SIB's 9member ranks or with its methods of promoing beautification. The report also A 55-page rebuttal to recent states SIB members "will concriticisms has been submitted by tinue to monitor our actions and the Sanford Scenic Improvement make a special effort to ensure to all concerned that we are following our approved ordinance and bylaws." The SIB report contains "positive testimony to the negative allegations" leveled against the board, and "encourages" city commission input and attendance at the SIB's monthly meetings, according to a cover letter by new board chairman Ray Priest.

Mrs. Smith said Monday she is satisfied with the SIB's response to commissioners' request and "Now I'm looking forward to some good things continuing to come out of the board."

The report was comprehensive, and "shows that a lot of people out there support them," said Mercer, whose wife is an SIB member.

Thomas called the report 'volumunous" and said "it answered our questions."

Eckstein and McClanahan also received copies of the report, although they were not on the commission when it was requested. Eckstein said it "shows another side of the issue," and 'was quite enlightening."

McClanahan said he wanted to reserve comment until he's had a chance to review the report more thouroughly.

The report includes the names of 56 individuals, couples and business that contributed $3,100 to the SIB as a show of support for its efforts.

The pledges were solicited by Ms. Jacobson during three days of phone calls last month. She asked community represcritatives who support the SIB "to put their money where their mouth is." Their pledges range from $25 to $100 and will be placed in a city account earmarked for beautification projects.

Ms. Jacobson said she "didn't call the enemy" for contributions. She also said only two or three of those she contacted declined to contribute.

The SIB report also contains letters of endorsement from local businesses and organizations the board has worked with on beautification projects. The correspondance was also solicited by Ms. Jacobson.

The SIB wrapped up its selfevaluation last week at a reorganization session in which Ms. Jacobson stepped down as chairman. The board's new

King Holiday No Break For Some

The state and federal holiday declared for Martin Luther King's birthday, Jan. 19, apparently is not going to be a holiday for any Seminole County employees or employees of the county's seven cities.

The day is not a holiday for county workers because the county commission did not establish it as such when the commission voted on this year's holiday schedule in 1985, said David Berrien, Clerk of Court.

And because his office works for the state and the county, it will remain open. Federal offices, such as the post office and federal courts will be closed, as well as many state offices, such the Department of Corrections, Probation and Parole. the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, administrative offices of the Florida Highway Patrol and employment offices. Banks and savings and loan associations will also be

The State Attorney's office for Seminole and Brevard Counties is supposed to be closed but that may be up in the air along with the closing of the Public Defender's office.

James Russo, Public Defender, said his office will follow the lead of the judges and apparently some of them, county and circuit, are working and some are not.

A Dec. 22 letter from Florida Supreme Court Chief Justice Parker Lee McDonald urges all 20 judicial circuits in the state to cease legal activity that day, but does leave discretion to individual judges because often a judge's schedule is made up months in advance.

No juries will be picked on the holiday, but

$500 reward is being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of vandals responsible for $2,000 worth of damage at Ahoy Marina at 511 E. 25th St., owned by former candidate for Sanford City Commission Dot Meadors and

Sanford police officer Claudia Webber said the incident occurred between midnight and 1 a.m. Sunday morning. Her report said someone with an unknown vehicle rammed the west front gate and south rear gate at the business. A chain-link rear gate had scratched.

"It was definitely malicious," Ms. Meadors said, but she said it was probably vandal-

"We have thought and thought, and we don't think we have made anyone mad at us," she said, adding she was sure it wasn't related to her campaign for public office.

Judging from the amount of traffic in the area that night, she said she believes there must be witnesses, which is why she is offering a $500 reward.

"I'm sure someone must have seen or been cut and the retainers removed. Ms. heard something, because it must have Meadors said some of the boats were also made a lot of noise." And that's why she's offering a $500 reward.

She said it looked as though the damage was done by a car rather than a truck because of the tire tracks. No paint was found, but some chrome possibly from a bumper was located, she said. While there was considerable damage, police said nothing appeared to have been taken. Coincidentially, the owners said they drove by the property just minutes before the vandalism and found everything intact.

Anyone with information is asked to call the Sanford Police Department at 323-3030.

Oppose Soviets In IMF, World Bank

Any Soviet application for membership in the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank would be actively opposed by the Reagan administration, according to Treasury Secretary James A. Baker.

Concerned over World Bank President Barber A. Conable's Oct. 16 comment that the bank "would be happy to explore" a membership bid from Moscow, Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., wrote Baker that Moscow's "record of aggression abroad and oppression at home" made it clear that Soviet membership would not be in the interest of the bank or of the United States.

"Silence on this matter can only lead to confusion about U.S. intentions and will encourage the Soviets to believe they can move forward in requesting membership," he

If it joined the bank, Kemp said, the USSR would distract other members from their concentration on a market-oriented system and could become the "ringleader" of an anti-democratic coalition within the bank.

His letter complained that, following Conable's comment, the administration had not said it would oppose a Soviet membership bid but only that no bid had been made.

Baker's letter in reply said the USSR is unlikely and unwilling to comply with either the World Bank or IMF membership requirements. "The administration would oppose Soviet membership actively within their respective boards to this end," Baker added.

Kemp and Baker are to be commended, the former for asking the administration to publicly state its position, and the latter for unequivocally doing so.

The USSR, in fact, could not be a legitimate member of either financial institution. For a nation to apply for World Bank membership, it must first qualify to be an IMF member. In this connection consider the statement of Janangir Amuzegar, a former imprexecutive director:

"It is no secret that the IMF statutes and convenants expect the Fund to promote a world of free markets, free trade and unitary exchange rates under a multilateral payments system. To allow a different course of action would place the IMF in violation of its legal mandate."

The USSR is philosophically opposed to free markets and free trade. It has no place in the IMF nor, by extension, in the World Bank.

Mining Law Bad

In 1872, Congress passed the Federal Mining Law. Those were the days of the robber barons, and the law was designed to help industry exploit the nation's natural resources.

The law says the federal government must grant hard rock mining permits when a commercial quantity of a mineral is found. It does not take environmental and recreational safeguards into consideration.

Recently, Energy Fuels Nuclear Inc. was given permission to start work on a uranium mine near the south rim of the Grand

The company claims it will not discharge waste in such a way that it might drain into the canyon. It will build holding ponds. But holding ponds elsewhere have broken, and pollutants could wash into the canyon.

Down river, the Havasupai Indians oppose the mine because a leak could endanger the tribe's water supply. Under the mining law, the Havasupai claim appears to be the only hope for halting the mine.

Environmental groups argue that the mine could harm the ecological balance of the canyon. But the old law gives them little

This case should give Congress a strong motivation for revising the law. For the law gives little protection to America's wonderful parks, wilderness areas and places of recre-

Buchanan Denies Opening Campaign Office

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Patrick J. Buchanan. White House communications director, says he has not rented office space in nearby Alexandria, Va., with an eye to running for president

The Washington Times reported that Buchanan had taken an office, but he told UPI: 'I have not rented in Alexandria and I don't think anybody else is doing it." As for whether he will seek the presidency, Buchanan had one reply that he repeated several times: "Take it easy."

Buchanan, a vocal fire-eating conservative who says that the "left is after Ronald Reagan," had wanted to be ambassador to NATO, but was blocked from that job by Secretary of State George Shultz.

A dedicated true believer, he gave up some $400,000 from column writing, television appearances and radio broadcasts to join the Reagan staff.

He may have had a sense of deja vu when the Iran arms scandal broke, having been with Richard Nixon's White House at the time of the Watergate scandal.

But Buchanan gives no sense of that. He is outraged and on the attack, defending the president against all comers, particularly what he sees as a hostile "liberal" press.

Saily McEiroy, an assistant in the White House press office, is the darling of 7-year-olds at The Alexandria Country Day School.

Sally gave the classmates of Scott Brady, son of White House press secretary James Brady, a tour of the West Wing and the press center during the Christmas season. They properly wrote their thank-you notes, most of them mentioning the joy of meeting Sam Donaldson.

That should warm the heart of ABC correspondent Donaldson, who gets a stack of letters deriding him daily for his reporting on the

Here are some samples of the thank-you notes:

"Dear Sally," "Thank you for the tour of the White House. I liked when we talked to Sam Donaldson the most. And I really just really liked the jelly belly's and it was real cool when Scott made the speech it was very excited." It was signed "love."

"Dear Sally,"

"Thank you for your help. I really like meating Sam Donaldson ... it was fun. I also liked the jelly belly's. They were yummy.
"I like the Christmas that had almost 7,000 oranments."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes insisted to reporters that the president was "outraged" that the Senate Intelligence Committee had voted not to release a report on its findings in the Iran arms scandal.

Those opposing the release of the document say it is incomplete in view of the lack of testimony from two key players, Vice Adm. John Poindexter, the national security adviser who resigned, and Lt. Col. Oliver North, a deputy, who was fired. Asked how he knew Reagan was outraged. Speakes said he had talked to other aides. "After I talked to (White House chief of staff) Don Regan ... "that's when we became more outraged."

SCIENCE WORLD $80 Nuts, Biggest Cash Crop

By Philip Williams

VICTORIA. Seychelles (UPI) -The pelvis-shaped coco-de-mer - a sort of double coconut - is not just remarkably suggestive, it is also obscenely expensive.

The scarce, husky nuts - the world's largest seeds, often the size of the human body parts they resemble - grow only on the Seychelles island of Praslin. Those that tourists do not buy as a source of smutty jokes are shipped at up to $80 each to specialty markets in Asia and the Far East for aphrodisiac use.

Per pound, these nuts represent the most valuable agricultural product the Seychellols possess. But that is to say precious little.

Such is the scarcity of arable land on the 100-plus rocky Islands of the archipelago that even if all was used with total efficiency, the nation could not produce more than perhaps 60 percent of its food needs - never mind meet the exotic demands of the 70,000 tourists who come annually to strip on the blindingly white beaches.

The islands, a fomer British colony wrested from France in 1794, lie off the East African coast on the old Indian spice trade route. Cinammon, copra (dried coconut). limes and vanilla are the principal cash crops; most are shipped to Fish is a money maker, though not strictly speaking as an export. The Seychelles commercial fleet is small, but foreign trawlers pay handsomely to chase tuna across the nation's 240,000 square miles of sea. The fees come to about $5 million a year.

Industry - alcohol, tobacco, soap - is negligible as an earner, contributing only 10 percent to the Lilliputian 1985 gross domestic product of $162.51 million.

The result is an annual balance sheet of remarkable disproportion. Exports, dominated by fish and copra, earned a meager $27 million in 1985. The import bill was $100 million.

Tourism, employing 30 percent of the workforce, must try to bridge the gap, but it cannot. Eight actual or attempted coups in almost 11 years of independence have not been the best advertising. The peak annual figure for visitors was 78,850. in 1979. in 1985, there were 72,000 tourists, overwhelmingly from Europe.

Tourism earnings of $50 million rose 16 percent in 1985. But the government's plan to attract 100,000 people every year by 1988 seems overly optimistic.

ROBERT WALTERS

Dirt On Clean Water

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Any leg-Islation approved by both houses of Congress without a single dissenting vote surely ought to engender skepticism if not suspicion.

That's certainly true in the case of the 1986 amendments to the Clean Water Act, promoted by countless legislators as crucial to environmental quality and approved last autumn by a 408-0 vote in the House and a 96-0 vote in the Senate.

The measure did indeed include dozens of provisions crucial to sustaining the cleanup of the nation's lakes, rivers and other public waterways. Moreover, it extends two landmark environmental laws - the Federal Water Pollution Control Act of 1972 and the Clean Water Act of 1977.

But $18 billion of the $20 billion authorized by the bill was earmarked for the construction of sewage treatment facilities that traditionally and properly have been the financial responsibility of state and local governments.

Shortly after Congress adjourned for the year, the bill was "pocket vetoed" by President Reagan, who neither signed nor directly vetoed it within 10 business days after Congress concluded its work for the

That was the only prudent, responsible action the president could have taken because in recent years the sewage treatment grant program has become a wholly un-Justiflable "pork barrel" operation.

Now, however, both the House and Senate have placed the legislation atop the agenda for the 100th Congress. It almost certainly will be re-enacted by margins so large that a second presidential veto could not be sustained.

Before that occurs, it's worth noting that until 1972, funds for the construction of sewage treatment plants logically came from water usage fees or property taxes collected by state or local governments. The federal program was intended to allow municipalities to catch up with growth that had occurred during the 1950s and 1960s but then finance future construction themselves. Instead, state and local spending on waste treatment facilities plummeted with the availability of money from Washington, and sewage plant financing became the second largest federally funded public works program, after highway construction.

When initiated in 1972, the federal program was estimated to cost a total of $18 billion. It now has consumed $44 billion and will soar far beyond the $100 billion mark If not contained.

Reagan has waged a determined campaign to impose some sanity upon the program. Early in his first term, he successfully pressed Congress to reduce the federal share of construction costs from 75 percent to 55 percent and to slash annual spending from $5 billion to $2.4

Last year, he proposed phasing out the federal program by spending $5.6 billion during the ensuing four years to finance projects already underway. Congress, however, insisted upon spending more than three times as much for twice as long — $18 billion over an eightyear period.

To wean state and local governments from the federal dole after the eight years. Congress also approved an especially generous "transition" program.

It called for authorization of an additional $8.4 billion, to be placed into a revolving loan fund from which states could borrow at below-market interest rates, then transfer the money to municipalities seeking construction funds.

Dole Steps Down

By Steve Gerstel

WASHINGTON (UPI) - On the opening day of the 100th Congress, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas sat in the same chair and behind the same desk that have been his for the last two years. But what a difference!

For those two years, Dole was the Republican leader of a Senate controlled by Republicans - the single. most dominant man in what is generally recognized as the most exiusive political club in the world.

Although Dole had several months to adjust to his new role as the Republican leader in a Senate controlled by Democrats, the Impact must have been sharpest on the first day of the tentennial Congress.

Dole no longer was No. 1. That role shifted to Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd, sitting on the other side of the aisle and the first in history to have served as majority leader, then minority leader and returned again as the chief of a triumphant majority.

In the minutes before the noon opening last week, the signs of the changing of the guard were notica-

Dole, who entered the chamber before Byrd, kept his distance from the more than 50 reporters anxious to ask him questions by keeping a row's distance between himself and the hordes. Whether this was the normal deference shown the majority leader by the minority leader or a reluctance to talk isnot known.

What is known is that when Byrd. laden with manila envelopes and other papers of state, entered the chamber. Dole was quickly forgot-

And later, extolling Byrd's mastery of the rules, he said, "I am not certain how it is going to work.

"Now that I am minority leader, he can probably do most anything and I will never know the difference," Dole added. "But we will try to be alert and see what happens."

Has The News Media Gone Too Far?

By Jack Anderson And Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON - The story of the hostility between President Reagan and the media is too tangled a topic perhaps to be settled by a poll. But it has raised misglvings that hang over Washington like a miasma.

There has always been a fundamental conflict between politician and press that is built into the American system. From its primitive state when anyone cantankerous enough could set up his press and assail the village elders. our system has pitted the ferreter of fact against the manipulator of opinion.

Some journalists have become skilled in the jugular arts and have inflicted painful cuts upon the president. Some White House aides, in turn, have become skilled at the serpentine game of politics and have led the media astray.

What is your opinion? Has the media gone too far in its assaults upon the president? Or has the press merely been doing its duty as monitor, arbiter and critic of all politicians? Your views will have an impact on both institutions. If you think the press has been fair to President Reagan, please dial 1-900-210-3280. If you think the media has been unfair, dial 1-900-210-3284. The telephone company will bill you 50 cents for

Or just write the telephone number of your choice on a post card and mail it to Peoples Poll, P.O. Box 2300, Washington, D.C., 20013. If you wish to elaborate your views, we will welcome a letter.

The results will be tabulated, analyzed and interpreted by the veteran pollster, Dr. Vincent J. BreglioofResearch/Strategy/Management Inc: As a guide, here's a summary of the opposing arguments:

THE CASE FOR THE PRESS: The need for the press to occupy an adversary role was clear to America's Founding Fathers. That is why they made freedom of the press the first guarantee of the Bill of Rights. Without press freedom, they warned, the other freedoms would fall. For government, by its nature, tends to oppress. And government without a watchdog would soon oppress the people it was created to serve.

With rare exceptions, top officials and authorized spokespersons say only what the president wants them to say. It is the function of the press to dig out the facts and give the people an alternative to the official version of events. President Reagan thought he could circumvent the working press and reach the public outside the historical process. For six years, it seemed to work - on the surface. But under the surface, the media chafed with investigative itch. What it couldn't learn in the usual ways, it began to dig for. Some of the exposures may not have been published, at least would not have been sought so diligently, were it not that the Reagan presidency stirred up the press.

THE CASE FOR THE PRESI-DENT: An angry memorandum. never intended to be read outside the White House, summarizes President Reagan's feelings about his press coverage. His acts and policies are reported to the nation, he believes, by 'a left-of-center working press" that does "a masterful job reporting all the gory details" when anything goes wrong.

At a time when the nation needs strong leadership, the president believes, the media is doing its best to weaken and, if possible, destroy him. He thinks the people who cover the White House put their own prejudices and politics above the national welfare.

The Washington media "will remain allies of the Democratic Party" and "its anti-administration cant will not stop," the memo declares. Furthermore, the memo adds hopelessly, "there's absolutely nothing the Republicans can do

White House Responsibility Maintained in Soothing Israelis

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Responsibility for the Iran arms deal is being held in the Oval Office with a White House attempt to soothe Israeli leaders and a new admission from former national security adviser Robert McFarlane.

Officials revealed Monday the White House had assured Israel that last week's release of documents describing Israeli roles in the decision to sell American arms to Iran was not intended as criticism of the U.S. ally

The assurance, conveyed orally by U.S. Ambassador Thomas Pickering to Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir in Jerusalem, was extended after Israeli officials expressed annoyance over recent disclosures in Washington that have focused on Israel's role in encouraging President Reagan's secret Iran deals.

Female Marriage Data Disputed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Don't believe the line that women who get through college and their 30th birthday face a slim 1-in-5 chance of getting married, the Census Bureau advises - nearly two-thirds of them will end up at the altar.

The bureau released a report Monday devoting 14 pages and an equal number of charts to debunking the widely publicized study of last year that suggested America's over-30 single women are doomed to spinsterhood.

The truth, according to demographer Jeanne Moorman. is that more than 90 percent of the women born since 1945 are likely to be married, about the same rate as that for their mothers and grandmothers.

Fire Devastates Mill

FALL RIVER, Mass. (UPI) - Firefighters today poured more water on the embers from an inferno fueled by high winds and explosive chemicals that devastated a 90-yearold mill complex, leaving nearly 800 people without jobs.

A Fire Department spokesman said the blaze at the six-story Kerr Mill was under control, but that 60 firefighters remained at the site early today to douse hot spots. The spokesman said firefighters would "be there for a while. These things don't just up and disappear

The fire began about 7 a.m. EST Monday and raged out of control for nearly five hours, officials said. Fire Chief Louis Shea said it apparently began in a boiler room and did not appear to be suspicious.

Congress Gets Pentagon Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, taking his $312 billion military budget to Capitol Hill today, is urging reluctant lawmakers to put up $5.23 billion for the "Star Wars" missile defense project.

Weinberger, scheduled to make his first budget pitch of the new Congress to the Senate Budget Committee, will defend the Pentagon's request for $626.6 billion to be spent in fiscal 1988 and fiscal 1989 - the first two-year budget package ever drafted by his department.

The measure calls for an increase of 3 percent, plus inflation, in defense spending for fiscal 1988, which begins Oct. 1, giving the Pentagon $303.3 billion. A request for another $8.7 billion for defense projects at the Energy Department pushes the requested 1988 defense total to $312 billion.

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - Gov. Bob Martinez' chief aide says the new administration has gotten off to a rocky start in its relations with the press by accident, not by intent.

He's Been In Jail More Than 50 Years

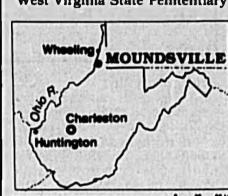

MOUNDSVILLE. W.Va. (NEA)

- Every winter at this time Freeman Collins has something of a melancholic and altogether singular post-holiday letdown. He has not received the only Christmas present he feally wants, and he furthermore knows that he is not likely to get It in the gathering new year.

That present is liberty.
Collins is serving a life sentence in prison. And the thing is, he is actually serving it. He was convicted of murder in the first degree in 1930, he was convicted again of a similar crime in 1976, and he has now spent more than half a century, or more than half his existence, in confinement.

That means he has been behind bars longer than anyone else in West Virginia history. And he may in addition be the oldest person in an American jail today. Prison authorities believe he is almost 80, according to the records; but Collins claims he was born way in the last century and is over 100.

In either case he is an ancient fellow. And everyone agrees that most of his time has been spent in difficulty. He came to the West Virginia State Penitentiary

when it was still under construction, when Herbert Hoover was president, and he's lived here (with one exception) for 52

Not surprisingly. Collins thinks it's been a burn rap. He says he's always been an innocent man. That first murder, for example, was in reality a killing in self-defense.

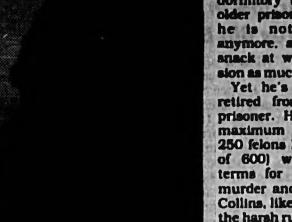

"I was born in the hills," he notes, "the law wasn't too good, and if you want, I'll tell you the real truth of what happened."

Collins says the whole matter started when his father was slain in a family feud. He says he told everybody that he was going to get even, and he eventually became a target in the feud. He says he was confronted one day by a member of the other family. and "I just got him before he got

A jury disagreed. It said Collins killed the man "maliciously. deliberately and unlawfully." and sentenced him to life with mercy, thus at least sparing him from the gallows of the day. He was given prison number 19555 (there have been a total of 50,000 convicts at the lockup) and put to hard labor.

That was when the second killing took place. This time the Collins says he was framed. Collins helped erect the institu- Penal officials, however, wonder if he was just homesick. He was feeding, and he did what he thought he had to do in order to be sent back for good.

drink in this place. I mean a bottle: I never took drugs, you know, but I do like the boose."

Collins admits he has some amenities in the cage. One is that he doesn't live in an ordi-nary cell. He has a bunk in a dormitory that is set aside for older prisoners (55 or beyond). he is not assigned chores anymore, and he is allowed to anack at will and watch television as much as he wants.

Yet he's not by any means retired from his career as a prisoner. He is still subject to maximum security. There are 250 felons here (in a population of 600) who are serving life terms for such aberrations as murder and rape, and Freeman Collins, like the rest, is subject to the harsh rules of order.

So he says he wants to get out once again. And he watches the clock just the same as his associates. He has a calendar taped to the wall behind his bed. above the spare dresser where he keeps his belongings, and he ritualistically scratches off each day as he waits to be released.

The ritual may in fact be for naught. Prison officers say No. 19555 is not going anywhere. He is technically eligible for parole on his second life sentence, but the law can't forgive him for the first. He lost the right to be freed on the original count when he committed the second murder.

His only hope each year is a Christmastime pardon. And that's why he has the afterholiday blues. Prison authorities fear the old man is still dangerous, and they argue against freedom. He makes a good convict but a bad citizen. they say, hence he should stay here for life, no matter how long

Disclosures Muddy Iran-Arms Waters

By Judi Hasson

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Stunned by leaks of documents and intense White House pressure, the Senate and House select committees face a monumental task in Investigating President Reagan's arms-for-hostages deal with Iran.

Even as the Watergate-style committees were created to investigate the sale of U.S. arms to Iran and the diversion of funds to the Nicaraguan Contras, new disclosures last week appeared to do little to make any easier the committees' task of answering key questions about the affair.

Among the questions the committees still must answer when they start hearings sometime next month is whether money actually was diverted to the Contras; if so, how much, and where it is now. The committee also needs to determine who engineered the operation and whether the sale of arms was authorized after it had already occurred.

Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., a member of the Senate select committee, said a good deal of investigative work has been done on the arms sales to Iran, but the diversion of funds to the Contras has not been pinned

"You have the 'in-go' and the 'out-go," he said. "The 'out-go' as I understand It remains a mystery."

Rep. Lee Hamilton. D-Ind., chairman of the House panel, said the newly named committees would rely heavily on work by other committees and pledged to complete the task of finding all the answers as quickly as possible.

House and Senate leaders pledged a non-partisan investigation and promised to come up with the truth, no matter what it was. But it was apparent from the start that politics would not be left out of the scandal that still is threatening to engulf the White

report that concluded that President Reagan embarked on the arms deal with the understanding it could bring about the release of American hostages held in

The committee voted not to release the report last week despite calls from Reagan and Republicans for a full disclosure and their acknowledgement that the committee's report would embarrass the president but show he knew nothing about funds for

The next day, the White House countered with its own release of the order signed by the president authorizing the arms sale as well as a memo from Lt. Col. Oliver North outlining the deal and the reasons for it.

The document lists three U.S. goals for initiating the clandestine overture to "moderates" in Tehran's radical Islamic government, expressly designates "third parties" as intermediaries in the dealings, and orders the CIA to withhold data about the covert operation from Congress.

Reagan signed the order on Jan. 17, 1986. It was attached to a three-page memorandum presented by the national security adviser, Vice Adm. John Poindexter, and written by North, his aide.

Both men have refused to testify before congressional committees and Reagan unsuccessfully tried to persuade Senate and House committees to grant them limited immunity from prosecution in order to get the full story out.

The memo says the approach to Iran "may be our only way to achieve the release of the Americans held in Beirut."

Once signed by the president, the document permitted the United States to skirt its own arms embargo against Iran - cited repeatedly by the administration as a terrorist nation — and allowed the CIA to withhold telling Congress about the covert

No mention is made in the documents of the diversion of millions of dollars in arms sales profits to Nicaragua's Contra rebels. White House officials have insisted Reagan knew nothing about the side deal and the Intelligence Committee's draft report apparently supports that assertion.

At an extraordinary press briefing, a senior official who refused to be identified said the documents were released to show exactly what the president knew and to prove that what he told the public in mid-November and later was based entirely on the January 1986 Poindexter memo.

On Capitol Hill, House Speaker Jim Wright of Texas said the documents' release would not undercut the congressional investigations.

"We want the information brought to light, whatever it is," he said.

Earlier in the week, Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, chairman of the Senate select committee that is expected to start hearings in late February, noted the importance of making a clean and accurate record for the

Deadly European Storm Kills 125, Freezes Big Ben

LONDON (UPI) - Killer avalanches tumbled in the Soviet Union, London's Big Ben froze silent and snow flecked the jet-setter beaches of France in one of the bitterest cold waves to hit Europe and western Asia this century.

By early today, more than 125 people had been killed by snowstorms, hurricane-force winds, heart attacks, hypothermia and accidents in the two weeks since the icy air mass swept from the Arctic heart of Siberia.

While Iceland basked in 39-degree temperatures and the island of Spitzbergen, 800 miles above the Arctic Circle, barely dipped to freezing, mercury plummeted to record depths in some European cities.

The Soviet Union, where meteorologists say it all started and may not end for days, felt the brunt. In Leningrad, the temperature hit 49 below, the lowest there since records were first kept in 1743. The city of 4 million was on a virtual war footing.

Hotel Fire Charges Expected

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) - Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon said charges will be filed soon in the New Year's Eve arson fire that killed 96 people at the Dupont Plaza Hotel and told the commonwealth's lawmakers that "justice will not be made to wait."

Police Superintendent Carlos Lopez Feliciano said Monday that because of the sensitive stage the investiga-tion had reached, no futher information would be disclosed until charges are filed.

"It must be kept in mind that any information on the inner aspects of the investigation, given public exposure ahead of time, could harm the outcome," he said in a statement. "Since the investigation is well-advanced we don't want to hurt It."

Hernandez Colon told a news conference that investigators dismissed claims that terrorists set the fire that engulfed lower floors of the 20-story hotel minutes after the Teamsters union voted to strike the resort at midnight over a contract dispute.

Congressmen Trek To Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Eight U.S. congressmen - four talkative Democrats and four tight-lipped Republicans - arrived for separate fact-finding tours beginning today. The four Democrats, on private visits, arrived late Monday at Sandino International Airport aboard a commercial airliner from neighboring Honduras.

The Republicans, on an official two-day visit, arrived 90 minutes later aboard a U.S. Air Force jet.

"We're just here to visit and see." Rep. Frank Wolfe, R-Va., the leader of the Republican delegation, told reporters at the airport. He refused to elaborate. The Democrats were more forthcoming.

"I think the next two months, maybe one month, is very, very important for the peace process," said Rep. Jim Slattery, D-Kan. "I want to learn, hear from all sides, as to what's going on and what U.S. policy would do."

Slattery and Rep. Thomas Foglieta, D-Pa., said they would ask to see Sam Hall, the brother of Rep. Tony Hall, D-Ohio, who was arrested Dec. 12 on a restricted air base near Managua. The government says he had maps in his ... socks and accuses him of spying.

Philippine Peace Talks Resume

MANILA. Philippines (UPI) — The government's intelligence agency said today it was investigating alleged leaks of classified information after a military report to President Corazon Aquino feli into communist hands.

Aquino's powerful executive secretary, Joker Arroyo, announced Monday he would resign if it was proven that his office leaked the memo on U.S.-Philippine relations written by the armed forces chief, Gen. Fidel Ramos. The allegation came in a newspaper report.

National Intelligence Coordinating Agency Director General Luis Villareal said the "alleged leak" of the Ramos memorandum to the communist-led National Democratic Front was under investigation but he appeared to absolve

Intellectuals Blamed In Protests

PEKING (UPI) - Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping, in his first reported comment on recent student unrest, today accused three well-known intellectuals of defying Communist Party rules and siding with pro-Western activists.

Deng told visiting Japanese Liberal Democratic Party leader Noboru Takeshita that the protesters had received

The diplomats said Deng did not explain the two-week public absence of party chief Hu Yaobang.

Castro Exports Marxist Spirit

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI) - The flery rhetoric is toned down now. and gray hair flecks the beard that became a symbol of the Cuban revolution.

At the age of 60, "Maximum Leader" Fidel Castro has matured into one of the elder statesmen and most traveled figures of the Marxist world, keenly anxious to tread the stage of international affairs.

The Jesuit-educated leader who took power 27 years ago is, in fact, a prodigious and wideranging reader with phenomenal powers of retention. Castro frequently addresses the nation in rambling, televised speeches in the course of which he pours out facts from memory. He is addicted to detail, and few facets of the economy are too small to escape his notice. He even personally writes unsigned editorials in the party newspaper Granma.

But in some ways, Cuba seems to have become too small for Castro, who runs the country in almost caudillistic fashion with the help of 20 advisers known as a "coordination and support group."

In recent years, he has turned increasingly to international affairs. He has, so far unsuccessfully, attempted to lead a revolt by Third World debtor nations crippled by massive interest payments to Western banks.

He takes inordinate pride in the fact that Cuba is the only third-world nation to send substantial "internationalist" military and civilian aid to other countries. Although Cuban troops have been described by U.S. Sen. Patrick Moynthan as "the Ghurkas of the Soviet empire." it appears that Castro, rather than Moscow, was instrumental in sending them to defend Marxism in Angola. Ethiopia, Grenada and elsewhere.

Today, we have very solid links with the Soviet Union, to be sure, but also with countries in Asia, Africa and Europe and, above all, in Latin America.

"The majority of Latin American countries once supported the United States against Cuba. This is what has changed. The re-emergence of democratic governments in the majority of these countries has brought about a new attitude to Cuba."

The proximity of the United States is constantly used to justify massive military spending. "Senores imperialistas, we have absolutely no fear of you," reads a large illuminated sign outside the building housing U.S. diplomatic interests in U.S.-Cuban relations took another blow in November when U.N. Ambassador Vernon Walters charged Cuba with ers and committing "systematic and flagrant abuses of basic Once a powerful backer of the human rights so offensive that they demand universal condemnation." At the same time, President Reagan received a former Cuban political prisoner. Armando Valladares, who has accused Castro of committing crimes on a par with Josef Stalln.

Cuba angrily rejected the allegations. It admits to the presence of about 300 political prisoners, but Alarcon said, "each one is in prison for a well-determined reason. In the United States, they would have received the death penalty or incomparably longer prison sentences.'

The human rights question is "Before, we had relations with a major irritant in Cuba's international relations. Castro told Frei Betto that "never have the enemies of the revolution been able to prove that we have tortured, mistreated or caused to disappear a single prisoner in Cuba." On the other hand, an unofficial tribunal in Paris last year, organized by the group Resistance International, found Cuba "guilty" of subjecting prisoners to beatings, sexual abuse and experimental starva-

> Certainly, few officials on either side look for a major improvement of U.S.-Cuban relations so long as Reagan remains in office.

But that does not mean relations are at a standstill. Both sides maintain large diplomatic staffs in each other's capitals. The arrangement seems unchallengeable for the foresecable future, as do Cuba's relations to the Soviets - which recently agreed to a 50 percent increase in economic and trade aid.

Despite some past ups and downs between Havana and Moscow, and Castro's own pretensions as an independent Third World leader, Communist Cuba cannot survive economically without Moscow's help. For the Soviet Union, in turn, Cuba represents a huge investment of money and political effort, as well as a strategic geopolitical asset in the Western hemi-

Economic Woes

Castro is still fighting hard to keep the revolutionary spirit alive in Cuba under the impact of bureaucratic inertia and economic sloth.

The buzzword in Cuba these days is "rectification" — a correction of the faults blighting an economy that, without Soviet aid estimated at well over $10 million a day, would collapse overnight.

At last month's third congress of the Communist party, Castro made a wide-ranging attack on poor economic planning and bureaucratic shambling. According to him, the economy is afflicted with "capitalist" vices of greed while benefiting from none of the capitalist virtues of efficiency.

Instead he insists that Cuban workers must be motivated not so much by money but by "conscience, a Communist spirit

A Western diplomat said the economy has degenerated into "an extraordinary state of inefficiency and corruption." The search for a cure in effect recalls a 1960s debate when then-industry minister Ernesto 'Che' Guevara was proposing "moral" incentives, while Castro argued for Soviet-style pay incentives and profit. Today. Castro derides such material sweeteners as "capitalist mechanisms," and says they have produced "crazy, unintelligible (and) incomprehensible" anomalies in pay. Many workers are rewarded for work they do not do. Others have enough free time to hold down favor. His bearded features peer down from billboards and appear repeatedly in propaganda clips on television.

Now he seems to be back in

The inference is that Guevara's theories of communist purity also are back.

"We have seen men make incredible efforts and sacrifices for specific ideas and moral values," Castro said in a recent speech. "We have to resort to that."

In recent months, Castro's distaste for anything capitalistic has led him to close down the farmers' markets where Cubans could buy goods outside the creaky state distribution system, ban the private buying and selling of houses and even abolish classified advertisements in newspapers.

He seemed particularly incensed that an enterprising peasant farmer could earn many times more than a leading sur-

"Is this how we believe Socialism must be built?" he asked.

No Free Enterprise Under Castro's impulse, Cuba thus is moving away from market mechanisms, while all other communist nations are slowly embracing them. Even the Soviets are allowing a limited amount of free enterprise. A wry joke is that Cubans will know that communism has truly arrived when they have to start importing augar from the Soviet-

That notion is not so farfetched as it seems. For the past two years, Cuba has had to spend part of its precious hard-currency reserves on buying sugar from the Dominican Republic in order to fulfil pledged deliveries to the Soviet

For all the heavy overlay of Soviet influence, Cuba retains much of its old Latin flavor along with what Castro described as "our native tendency to chaos, anarchy to a lack of respect for the law, to do whatever pops into our minds."

Some time ago Castro dropped in unexpectedly on an illegal building site where a person was constructing a house, using a crane stolen from a power plant and a cement mixer from the state oil company. He did not say what happened to the house-builder, but he did hold the incident up as an example of rampant corruption.

"There are tens of thousands of rich people in this country," he said during one of his frequent, rambling speeches. What are the consequences? They will bribe anyone. They will corrupt anyone."

On the other hand, Cuba takes pride in the basic social security It provides citizens. In a booklength series of interviews with a Brazilian Catholic churchman Frei Betto, Castro boasted "we have our wealth better distributed ... a citizen in this country is secure in his home, there is not the danger he will be thrown onto the street. He is secure in the assistance he receives from society, in his pension. He is secure in the education his children receive and in the medical care available to his children and family."

Cuba spends the equivalent of $3 billion a year on health and education, a major effort for a relatively small country. Castro himself claims to scour foreign foreign media in search of news about medical developments that can be applied here.

Merlin Olsen, Enberg's color commentator this season, did not match CBS counterpart John Madden for exuberance and forsight. But Olsen had a tight game and he was in form from the beginning.

He cited the difficulty of catching passes on a cold day, and both he and Enberg accurately noted how the winds had died at Cleveland Stadium during John Elway's key 98-yard drive. In contrast, former quarterback Bob Griese added little. Maybe it was prophetic when Enberg forgot to introduce him.

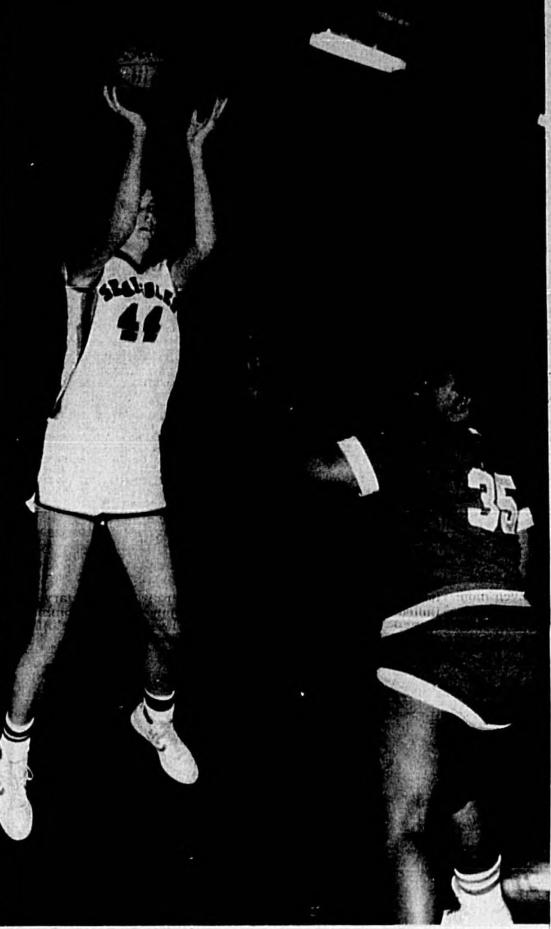

Enberg and Olsen had trouble on replays distinguishing the cause of some penalties. But Olsen was on the mark when he explained why Cleveland's attempt at drawing Denver offside at midfield in the final quarter

By Chris Fister Herald Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) - Champions Mike Tyson and James "Bonecrusher" Smith, considered the hardest-punching heavyweights, will fight March 7 in Las Vegas, Nev., in the next-to-last step of the division's title unification series.

Fehr Warning: No Negotiating

NEW YORK (UPI) - Baseball players' union chief Donald Fehr reminded the Montreal Expos and Detroit Tigers Monday they no longer can negotiate with free agents they failed to sign by last week's deadline.

Fehr said in a statement the Expos still were negotiating with outfielders Andrew Dawson and Tim Raines, and that the Tigers were talking with catcher Lance Parrish.

Tigers General Manager Bill Lajole told the Detroit Free Press last week Parrish could sign a minor-league contract with the Tigers and work out with the club in spring training. But Fehr said this could not be done.

"Jan. 8, 1987 was the deadline for the signing of a player free agent by his former club," Fehr said.

Hoop Polls In Good Hands

A poll is a canvassing of persons to analyze public opinion on a particular question. In sports, the canvassing and analyzing is done by sports writers, coaches and connoisseurs of the game.

Polls draw mixed emotions. If your team is ranked, it brings pride to the school. If your team is unranked, it is discounted because it is simply a "poll."

Coaches say they don't pay too much attention to polls. Players, on the other hand, race to the newspaper each day to see if their team has inched into the Top 10.

Principals pay attention to polis, too. Lake Mary High School Principal Don Reynolds was as proud as a peacock last week, and with good reason. Four of his teams - girls basketball, wrestling and both soccer teams - were all ranked among the Top 10 in the state.

Reynolds is not quite as happy this week. Three of the four have fallen into the "Also receiving votes" category. Still, it its quite an accomplishment to have coach Bill Moore's Lady Rams' basketball team ranked No. 3 while the soccer teams of Larry McCorkle and Bill Eissele, along with the wrestling team of Doug Peters, are on the fringe of the Top 10.

Seminole County received more good news Monday night when coach Bill Klein's Fighting Seminoles moved into the No. 9 slot of the basketball poll. Six consecutive victories did the trick. A 69-62 conquest over Spruce Creek at Port Orange drew the loudest roar. The Creek has lost just three times at home in five years.

Coach David Jekanoski's Oviedo boys soccer team slipped into the No. 10 spot in the Class 3A poll. The Lions caught the pollsters' attention by playing the county's 4A teams tough and winning two tournaments. Lyman and Lake Brantley remain No. 2 and No. 3, respectively, in the girls' poli.

Polls, nevertheless, are purely speculation. But speculation based on facts. Florida is fortunate with its basketball polls, though. They seem to be in very good hands. Don Wilkie, a sports writer for the Fort Myers News Press, coordinates the boys' and girls' polls. He does a very thorough in past years, it was easy to "throw" a team into the honorable mention. Not so this year. "The 'Also receiving votes' teams are ranked just like the Top 10," Wilkie said Monday. "I think Seminole was 19th last week, so they made a big move to ninth."

This gives credence to the "Also receiving votes." In essence, it is similar to the UPI College Basketball Poll where 20 teams are ranked. Even teams in the honorable mention know exactly where they stand.

When it comes to the girls' poll, Wilkie said he depends heavily on Bob Corwin. Nothing wrong there. Corwin, a connoisseur when it comes to tastes in girls baskethall, is the state's No. 1 source. He ranges from Pensacola to Miami across to Tampa and back to Cocoa Beach. Inbetween he hits Seminole County and Orlando.

"Corwin has seen over 70 games already this year," Wilkie said. "There isn't too much he doesn't know about the girls."

Prior to each season, Corwin releases his index on the Top 21 seniors. It is circulated nationally via Women's Basketball News Service of New York and the Blue Star Scouting Service of

Lady Rams Use 'Broen Factor' To Trim 'Noles

By Chris Fister Herald Sports Writer

Seminole High's Lady Seminoles were definitely prepared for the wind-chill factor Monday night as they wore long-sleeved shirts and warmup pants to fight off the bitter cold.

However, when you're playing Lake Mary's Lady Rams, you must also take into consideration the "Broen Factor." Whether it is with an assist, a goal or two or just dominating offensive play, senior striker Kelley Broen is always somewhere in the picture.

Monday night, Broen's two goals crased an early 1-0 Seminole lead as the Lady Rams claimed a 2-1 Seminole Athletic Conference victory before 51 fans at Seminole High.

Lake Mary improved to 10-3-2 overall and 3-2-2 in the SAC while Seminole had its two-game winning streak snapped and now stands at 5-7-2 overall and 1.5.1 in the conference. Seminole will compete in the Gainesville P.K. Yonge Tournament this Friday and Saturday while Lake Mary travels to Stuart Martin County Friday and plays at Vero Beach Saturday.

"The girls made a few mental mistakes that cost us, but overall they played really well, Seminole coach Suzy Reno said. "It was much better than the last time we played Lake Mary (7-0 loss)."

Seminole broke a scoreless tie with 19 minutes left in the first half Monday. Cindy "Boom Boom" Benge unloaded a corner kick that hit off the left crossbar and rebounded out to Sherri Rumler who knocked it in for a 1-0 Seminole lead. It was Rumler's seventh goal of the season and Benge's third assist.

Seminole hung onto its lead for 10 minutes but the explosive Broen then scored twice in a two-minute span to put the Lady Rams in centrol. On Broch's first goal, she got a nice feed from Michelle Mattingly and ripped a shot that Seminole keeper Kim Walsh deflected. Broen controlled the deflection, took one consecutive shutout and seventh dribble and slipped the ball into of the season.

half, Lake Mary was awarded a free kick from 30 yards out and Broen hooked it past the Seminole wall and underneath a diving Walsh for a 2-1 Lake Mary lead. The free kick goal was Broen's 14th of the season.

Seminole had a chance to tle it with 1:30 left in the half when Rumler had a breakaway and fired a shot that Lake Mary keeper Tammy Scott made an excellent save of.

BRYANT GOES WILD

The chilly temperatures could not freeze. Lyman High's Maye Belle Bryant Monday night as she exploded for four goals to lead the Lady Greyhounds to a 6-0 rout of DeLand's Lady Bulldogs at Lyman High.

Lyman, ranked second in the state, improved to 12-1-3 overall with its ninth consecutive victory. The Lady Greyhounds are at third-ranked Lake Brantley Friday night in a game that could have a major bearing on who wins the Seminole Athletic Conference. Lyman is 3-0-3 in the SAC while Lake Brantley stands at 5-0-1.

"The girls have played really well the last three games." Lyman coach Laura Dryden sald "They're looking forward to playing Lake Brantley again."

In two meetings this season, Lake Brantley and Lyman have tied once (2-2 in an SAC game) while Lyman won the second game, 3-1, in the Burger King Classic finals.

On Monday night, · Bryant scored Lyman's first four goals to run her season total to 15. Randi Huddleston added one goal and one assists for the Lady 'Hounds while Dana Boyesen scored the final goal on an assist from Jennifer Sutherlin.

Lyman outshot the first-year Lady Bulldogs, 33-4. Lyman goalkeeper Sarah Cobb made two saves in recording her third

After a sluggish performance on Saturday, Lake Mary's Rams were clicking on all cylinders Monday night as they crushed Seminole High, 8-0, in Seminole Athletic Conference play at Lake Mary High.

Alford

Steve Alford sent the Michigan fans home muttering to themselves and Indiana Coach Bob Knight loved it.

Alford hit a seven-foot jumper as he drove the lane with one second left Monday night to help No. 4 Indiana defeat Michigan 85-84 in a Big Ten game.

Knight leapt from his chair after Alford drove down the court after rebounding Gary Grant's missed free throw. The victory was Knight's first over Michigan after three straight losses and he enjoyed sticking it to the Wolverine faithful.

"To beat Michigan meant nothing." Knight said after his team raised its Big Ten mark to 3-0 and overall record to 12-1. "But listening to all that crap from the crowd sitting behind me - it's the worst in the Big Ten - that meant a little bit. To have them walk out and say, 'Everybody s -- s' to themselves...' Crisier Arena's crowds have seldom been friendly to Knight, who charmed them one year by giving them a flated salute. Fans behind Knight were typically obscene to the Indiana coach, especially as the game tightened up in the second half.

The Hoosiers blew a 19-point lead in the second half as Michigan, which trailed 53-34 after Indiana scored the first basket of the second half, scratched back. Garde Thompson made three

3-point shots in a row to help bring Michigan back from a 77-68 deficit with 4:22 to play. Glen Rice's basket with 2:12 to play tied it 81-81. Indiana's Darryl Thomas missed the front end of a 1-and-1 before Grant hit a baseline jumper to give the Wolverines an 83-81 lead with 1:08 left. Steve Eyl then tied it with two free throws before Grant hit a foul shot to put Michigan ahead "The only thing we didn't do is get it done down the stretch," Michigan Coach Bill Frieder said. "It started with Grant's free throw and ended with Alford's

Turgeon Records Goal, Assist But Devils Snap 10-Game Skid

United Press International

A loss and a tie somewhat overshadowed the magnitude of individual success realized by two players who only recently returned to the NHL.

Sylvain Turgeon, an All-Star and 45-goal scorer last season for the Hartford Whalers, Monday night scored his first goal of the 1986-87 campaign in his third game after complications and surgery resulting from a torn stomach muscle. Turgeon also drew an assist before Hartford went on to drop its fourth straight game, a 7-5 decision to the New Jersey Devils — who broke a 10-game winless skid.

At East Rutherford, N.J., Pat Verbeek scored at 11:39 of the third period to snap a 5-5 tie and lift New Jersey to victory over Hartford, breaking the Devils' 10-game winless streak. Low-scoring defenseman Bruce Driver and Mark Johnson each scored twice to help New Jersey win its first game after an 0-7-3 skid.

Later at Bloomington, Minn., St. Louis Blues' center Cliff Ronning, who was recalled from Team Canada last Thursday, scored the first three goals of his NHL career before the Minnesota North Stars pulled out a 4-4 tie.

In other games, Montreal edged Toronto 2-1 and Boston beat the New York Rangers 4-1.

Bosworth Sidesteps Questions

NEW YORK (UPI) - All-America linebacker Brian Bosworth of Oklahoma, banned from the Jan. 1 Orange Bowl because he used steroids, said Monday night the last two weeks have been "like a nightmare" for him, but sidestepped questions on whether he will return to the Sooners next season.

Bosworth, appearing on NBC's "Late Night with David Letterman," also said he regretted appearing on the sidelines at the Orange Bowl game wearing a shirt that read: National Communists Against Athletes — a satirical acronym for the NCAA, which banned him from the game.

"I pushed the line too far with the shirt incident in Miami." Bosworth admitted. "But they took something away from me that was important to me, and I wanted people to know there were other circumstances involved."

Annacone Outlasts Mmoh, 6-4

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) - Unseeded Paul Annacone of Bridgehampton, N.Y., outlasted Nigerian Tony Mmoh Tuesday, 7-8 (8-8), 7-8 (7-4), 8-4, in the first round of the $1.65 million Australian Open.

Annacone withstood a serve and volley barrage from Mmoh and countered with some siercely-hit passing shots at the sun-drenched Kooyong courts.

There was only one break in the match — when Mmoh dropped his second serve in the third set.

None of the 16 men's and women's seeds have appeared in the first two days of the tournament. Martina Navratilova of Fort Worth, Texas, and Sweden's Stefan Edberg, the defending champions, will begin play on outside courts Wednesday.

NBA Committee Screens Cities

Pat Williams, the catalyst behind Orlando's move for NBA Magic, said Monday night the ball is in the expansion committee's court and he will wait for an announcement later this week on the city's franchise hopes.

Williams, along with representatives from Miami, Minneapolis and Charlotte, all stated their case Monday before five members of the committee. Williams broke along an fold-up seat with NBA commissioner David Stern's name on it and a jar of dirt from Orlando's recently-started arena.

"This is just another step in the progression," Williams said. "Now, we just have to wait for the next move." The Magic hope for admittance for the 1987 season.

FREMANTLE (UPI) — Dennis Conner's Stars & Stripes scored a 1 minute, 20 second victory over New Zealand's KZ7 Tuesday to take a 1-0 lead in the best of seven America's Cup challenger finals.

Conner, avoiding a tacking duel, led around all eight marks in the 18 to 26 knot winds and four-foot sweels to snap New Zealand's 28-race winning streak. The Kiwis lost for just th second time in 39 matches, both losses coming against Stars & Stripes.

Dominique Celebrates

Atlanta's Dominique Wilkins. on his 27th birthday, presented the Los Angeles Clippers with their 28th loss in 29 games. Wilkins scored 53 points — surpassing 50 for the second time in exactly one month and third in his five-year career — to highlight a 125-115 victory.

'I'll take that any day." he said. "I wanted to come out playing good on my birthday. I wanted to come out and play strong. I don't think offensively I've been playing the way I should be playing. I think this game here gives me incentive going into the next game because I had my offensive game going."

And going and going. Wilkins. who had a 57-point game against the Chicago Bulls on Dec. 12. hit 19 of 25 from the field and 14 of 19 from the free-throw line.

"Nique had a super night -53 points is a good birthday present for the whole team.

Atlanta's Cliff Levingston said. The loss was the 16th straight for the Clippers, dropping their record to 4-31. "I think we are two players away from turning this thing around," Los Angeles Coach Don Chaney said. "I don't know if we need to give up a draft pick to get a veteran player or what. We are in every game, but we're late in the game to give us the big push." In Monday night's other game. Washington topped Sacramento 113-109.

Stocks Open Lower

NEW YORK (UPI) - Prices opened lower today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange

The Dow Jones industrial average, which scored its seventh advance in a row Monday with a gain of 3.51, was down 8.30 to 2001:12 shortly after the market opened.

Declines led advances 602-357 among the 1.437 Issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 14,237,000 shares.

The stock market scored its seventh straight gain Monday with the help of a strong oil sector and advances by secondary issues.

Since the start of 1987, the Dow has climbed 113 points.

"We're seeing a steady flow of money into equities from individual investors and pension funds," said Barry Berlin, president of Shearson Lehman Equity Management.

Berlin said investors who sold in December in order to take advantage of the preferential tax treatment for capital gains that ended with the new tax law are "coming right back into the market." He said the market will eventually suffer a decline, "but it may not be severe and may not occur tomorrow."

Newton Zinder, director of technical research at E.F. Hutton, agreed.

The Trident 2 is scheduled for deployment aboard Ohio-class nuclear submarines in 1989.

Twenty test flights are planned, and the Air Force has said the first in the series is planned for sometime this month.

Four protesters were arrested Friday after they reached the base in a Spaceport USA tour bus. NASA officials said the tours have been suspended for the rest of the week, although tours of the Kennedy Space Center will continue.

The Trident 2 missile is expected to be accurate enough to place a warhead within 400 feet of a target. Demonstration organizers claim this capability is primarily useful for destroying hardened enemy missile siles, and as such, the Trident 2 is a first-strike weapon.

The three-stage solid-fuel missile is capable of carrying at least 10 independently targetable nuclear warheads with an explosive yield of from 50 kilotons to 500 kilotons each.

High Tech Jobs Show Decline

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) - High technology firms that used to flood college science and engineering majors with job offers are cutting back, creating a tighter employment market for last year's graduates, a survey

But the study by the Public Policy Institute, released Monday, said more than half the jobs locked up by graduation.

DEAR ABBY: No! No! No! Although I've been a strong supporter of yours for many years, I've never written to you before. Now I feel compelled to because I'm so angry and ashamed of you! I'm referring to your reply to "People Against Drunks." Shame on you for joining the guilty-until-proveninnocent mob and jumping on the anti-drunk drivers' bandwagon.

I think the allegedly drunken man did extremely well to keep his composure for 10 minutes before resorting to physical tactics to retrieve his car keys from that neighbor who judged him as too drunk to drive.

Answer me this: If this man was (as his neighbor described him) so drunk he could hardly walk, how could he have overpowered the guy to get his keys back? I've never committed a violent act in my life, but if some self-righteous busybody confiscated my car keys because he decided that I was too drunk to drive, I'd be tempted to dynamite his house! Maybe in communist Russia this could happen, but here in America, a person is presumed to be innocent until proven guilty.

DON IN EUGENE, ORE.

DEAR DON: Are you serious? Drunks who can hardly walk have been known to commit mayhem with their bare hands. And what do you mean, a person is presumed to be innocent until proven guilty? Getting drunk is not a crime, but driving drunk is! Must we presume a person to be "innocent" until he has killed someone because he was guilty of driving drunk?

I stand by my advice: It's your business, my business, and the business of every person to do whatever is necessary to prevent a drunk from driving. Please, read on:

DEAR ABBY: How I wish someone would have taken my car keys away from me last Feb. 18, when I was drunk but got into my car, crossed over into the other lane and hit another car head-on, killing a young woman instantly. She left a husband and two small boys.

I'm now in prison in Lincoln. Neb., serving 20 months to five years - a cheap price to pay for taking someone's life.

Abby, please tell people who let drunks drive, that they are as much to blame as the driver if he kills someone. And they should ask themselves how they would feel if their child or wife or husband was killed by a drunk

Although I will be a free man one day, I will never be free of

DEAR ABBY: I am writing in response to "People Against Drunks." in 1982, a 17-year-old girl was killed by a drunk driver on the night of her high school baccalaureate ceremony. This girl believed in and worshiped God with all her heart. She was a good friend and a caring stranger, but her life was cut tragically short because someone let a man drink and drive.

I live in a small town called Marion, Va., and we decided to take some action against drunk drivers, so our police department developed a system last year that has cut the number of drunk driving fatalities in half! It's called R.A.I.D., which stands for "Report All Intoxicated Drivers.'

There's a phone number that anyone in or around Marion can call to report a possible drunk driver. The callers need not give their names unless they want to: they just have to describe the vehicle, the license number and the approximate location. The police will then check out the

CONCERNED TEEN-AGER IN MARION, VA.

DEAR CONCERNED: Three cheers for Marion! I hope other cities will adopt the idea.

DEAR ABBY: I am an executive secretary for a department head of an oil company. Two the guilt I will carry for the rest years ago, when I started working for "Mr. John Jones," I asked him how he preferred to be addressed because I have had bosses who preferred to be addressed by their first names. He said his preference was "Mr. Jones." I had no problem with that as I am from the generation of secretaries who are accustomed to more formality in the office than is now generally the custom.

My problem is with the boss's wife - who until two weeks ago I had never met personally. (We still have not been formally introduced.) When calling the office, she would always say, "Mary, this is Mrs. Jones. Is Mr. Jones there?"

Two weeks ago my boss returned from lunch. His wife was with him. They both passed my desk on their way to his office. She said, "Hello," but he didn't introduce us. I was immediately called in for dictation. They both sat there. (Still no introduction.) When she left his office, she acknowledged me with a nod.

When she phones the office, she continues to call me "Mary," while referring to herself as "Mrs. Jones." How can I deal with this on a daily basis? I've checked out volumes of etiquette books from the library and none addresses this issue.

STEAMING IN TEXAS

DEAR STEAMING: Your boss is insensitive and rude, and so is his wife. Common sense and sensitivity are not to be found in any etiquette book. If you like your job, and the benefits outweigh the drawbacks, adjust to the situation. Don't complain to your boss. It would only cause problems for yourself.

Rita Greenwalt, executive vice president of United Security Mortgage, discusses mortgage loan with customer.

United Security Mortgage Can Get You The Best Deal

United Security Mortgage Co. makes it easy to take care of your mortgage needs and get quick approval for all types of credit. If you can't get to their offices at 210 Park Place, Suite 300, Altamonte Springs, during office hours they will even come to your home at your convenience or discuss your needs on the phone.

Licensed mortgage brokers Wayne D. Schneiderhan and Rita Greenwalt had been in finance for a combined total of 14 years when they got together to form the company in October 1985. Both are associated with the Florida Association of Mortage Brokers.

They handle both first and second mortgages either residential or commercial. "Because we have a lot of lenders to choose from and know how to get the lowest interest rates," said Ms. Greenwalt, "we can get the best deal for the customer. Because we are small, the customer doesn't have to feel lost, the same person will take the deed work to the conclusion.'

"We take care of all the paperwork involved in getting the package together for a mortgage," she said. "We do all the running around and take it to the lender. If a survey or termite inspection is needed we take care of it, all the customer needs to do is be at the closing to sign the papers. Our job is to know what is needed and take care of it

"We have a background in credit, so we know what the lender is looking for regarding credit."

Ms. Greenwalt said. "Because of our association with Florida Association of Mortgage Brokers, we keep informed on all the new laws that have been passed in order to help our customers better".

"It is a good time for people to get into home ownership, because home equity can be used for credit," Ms. Greenwalt said. "You can pay off high interest on first or second mortgages for lower monthly payments or consolidate bills and can get the extra cash you need for home improvements, vacations, a new car or any other

For those facing foreclosure because of medical problems or bankruptcy. United Security Mortgage can help out so you don't wind up losing your home. "We always counsel people to avoid bankruptcy. There are alternatives to save your money and your home," Ms. Greenwalt said. "It is dumb to walk away."

In addition to loans, United Security also offers life insurance for customers who want it.

Schneiderhan is a member of the Seminole County Board of Realtors. They are members of the Greater Seminole Chamber of Commerce.

Robin Thorn is a full-time mortgage broker with the company and previously had worked with other mortgage companies for several years in first mortgage loans. He was previously employed by Pan Am Mortgage Co.

jolt, "like watching the MOM burn again." a lawyer who sued the Las Vegas resort recalled. Until an arsonist created an inferno in the Dupont Plaza on a San Juan beach, the MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas ranked as the nation's second worst hotel fire, a blaze that revolutionized the state's fire safety codes and became a classic in fire disaster history.

The worst fire at Atlanta's Winecoff Hotel Dec.

7, 1946, claimed 119 lives. The Dupont Plaza and MGM Grand fires have much in common, making the end result of the San Juan tragedy predictable.

Both were located in resort cities in warm climates and had casinos. The MGM was heavily booked with a weekend crowd. The Dupont Plaza was gearing up for a big New Year's Eve.

Neither hotel had a full sprinkling system or adequate fire alarms. In both disasters, the fire broke out on or near the ground floor and rolled through the casino, trapping and killing terrifled guests and employees.

Both high-rises acted as chimneys, drawing black smoke straight to the roof, where survivors were rescued by helicopter. Many who couldn't reach it died of smoke inhalation.

The death tolls were great, but could have been higher if the fires had struck at night when the casinos would have been jammed.

As it was, 96 died in the Dupont fire, mostly in the casino, and 106 were reported injured. The fire in the 20-story 423-room hotel broke out at 3:30 p.m. on Dcc. 31, 1986, when many of the estimated 700 guests were shopping, sightseeing or on the beach.

The death toll at the 2,300-room 26-story MGM initially was 84, but three people died later from fire-related injuries, pushing the final count to 87.

More than 1,000 suffered burns, smoke Inhalation, cuts, sprains and broken tones, but firefighters said probably 1,500 lives were spared because the Nov. 21, 1980, fire occurred at 7 a.m. when showrooms were closed and few people were gambling.

Toxic fumes from burning synthetics in carpets, draperies and decorations were quickly suspected of contributing to death tolls in both

The causes were different — electrical at the MGM, arson at the Dupont — but the effects were the same: multimillion-dollar lawsuits within days, and remorse over inadequate fire safety

Wendell Gauthier, one of the flock of lawyers who sued the MGM Grand, said deaths and injuries settlements cost the defendants, including suppliers and contractors, $210 million. "But now," he said, "the MGM is the safest hotel you can stay in today. Lawsuits already have been filed against the Dupont Plaza and are expected to mount. Tourist-dependant Nevada, shocked by the MGM fire, quickly passed a tough law requiring smoke detectors, fire alarms, sprinklers and other life-saving features to be installed in all buildings over 55 feet tall within two years.

The law applies to hotels, condos, stores and office buildings, and any building with 5,000 square feet that is used for dining, dancing or

Some 33,000 buildings had to be retrofitted at a cost of about half a billion dollars.

"We've got the strongest (fire safety laws) in the country. It's been a long road, and difficult, but our compliance ratio is 99 percent," state Fire Marshal Tom Huddleston said in a telephone interview Friday.

Florida and Massachusetts also have passed laws requiring all high-rise hotels to install sprinking systems, U.S. Fire Administrator Clyde Bragdon, the former Los Angeles County fire chief, said Los Angeles and a number of other cities have passed retrofit requirements in recent years, but only three states have laws requiring retrofitting of hotel sprinklers.

An American Hotel and Motel Association survey showed less than 5 percent of the 50,000 hotels are fully equipped with sprinklers, Bragdon satd.

"I feel strongly the victims of the MGM Grand Hotel were martyrs in drawing attention to hotel safety on a national basis. But it's still not enough." he said, speaking from his office in

The MGM Grand was closed for eight months. reopening in July 1981 amid fanfare over its $100 million restoration, including a $5 million fire safety system with heat-activated sprinklers and a smoke-sniffing computer that monitors 2,800 locations at once, watches the sprinklers, and sounds alarms if anything happens.

If a hallway fills with smoke, the system can change all the air in the hotel within 10 minutes. The crew manning the computer can make public address announcements to people in specific hotel areas, or broadcast instructions throughout the hotel.

Death On The Ice: Air Florida Crash Spurs Changes

By Frank T. Coongoo WASHINGTON (UPI) - Five years ago an Air Florida jet struck a bridge seconds after takeoff and plunged into the icy Potomac River, killing 78 people and generating greater emphasis on air safety.

Airlines were told to give more attention to de-icing of planes inadequate de-icing was blamed for the tragedy - and new measures were imposed to rescue survivors of crashes.

It was Jan. 13, 1982. A near-blinding snow storm was raging in Washington when Flight 90 took off from Washington National Airport. The Boeing 737 struggled 352 feet into the air and crashed nioments later at 4:01 p.m.

There were five survivors - four passengers and one crew member, all sitting in the back of the doomed plane, were rescued from the river. Another man drowned just as workers desperately tried to reach him.

The National Transportation Safety Board said the pilot should not have attempted to fly with ice on the wings. Safety experts also noted the crew was inexperienced in winter flying.

Air Florida, a product of airline deregulation, is no longer in bustness.

"One of the 10 commandments in flying is that you don't do it with ice on the wing." Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Fred Farrar said in discussing the crash on the eve of its fifth anniversary, "We have re-emphasized that to the airlines."

The crash resulted in improving rescue operations at National and Washington-Dulles International Airport.

Metropolitan Washington Airports. the agency in charge of both National and Dulles, said there have been several safety improvements.

For example, another 550 feet of overrun area was added at National, thereby reducing chances of a plane overshooting the runway.

William Halligan, director of public safety at Metropolitan Washington Airports, said following the crash a task force was put together for overall emergency and rescue planning. He praised the District of Columbla government in "doing some excellent work" in coordinating emergency rescue

On that fateful January day, the rescue effort was hampered by adverse weather. The fact that there was another emergency - the crash of a Washington subway train that killed three people and injured more than two dozen others - did not help either.

Halligan said the airport agency, under the FAA but soon to become independent of the federal government, has obtained more and better equipped since the Air Florida crash.

He said the agency has aquired five rescue craft, including a 40foor former Coast Guard vessel capable of breaking 4 Inches of

All craft are equipped with rescue tools and life raft.

"In the crash itself

there were only six survivors," Halligan noted. "A sixth person who initially survived the crash drowned in the river. That person may have been saved today. At this time in place, anyone surfaced (in the waters) would have been rescued."
