BUDGET OF OPINION "JUST BETWEEN YOU AND ME."

EVEN THE GATE POST NOT IN IT

A CHIEF IS AMONG YE TAKING NOTES AND FAITH, "HE'LL PRENT 'EM"---SO SAYS SAUNTERER.

The following from the Manufacturers' Record echoes my sentiments:

I would rather be an optimist, seeking the stars that pierce the night of gloom, or looking for the silver lining to the sable cloud than to be a pessimist, searching for fuel to heap upon the smouldering fires of despair.

I would rather snatch the sun-beam and weave it into song and laughter, than take the shadow and transform it into mutterings of discontent.

I would rather take the prattle of innocent childhood, and make it the guiding star of my pilgrimage than take the wail of the disconsolate and make it the silent voice toward which my barque should forever sail.

I would rather take the dimple from the rosy cheek of my boyhood and endeavor to transplant it in perennial setting upon my own brow than take the wrinkle from the face of the hopeless, and make it part of my visage.

I would rather take the notes of Nature's songbirds, and make them consonant with the melodies of my own soul than take the croakings of the toad, and arrange them into jarring discords that should forever greet my ear.

I would rather take the rose-planted by the hand of the Eternal Artist in tints of celestial beauty, and pin it to my breast, than take the seared leaf blighted by the breath of the Frost King and use it as a badge to portray my sombre feelings.

I would rather chase the rainbow that spans the brow of the evening, in quest of the fabled bag of gold than succumb from sorrow, by plunging into the mirky waves from London's bridge.

I would rather watch the eagle in his spiral course to the vaulted blue than watch the silmy snake as he makes his crooked trail through the slush and mud.

I would rather be a Christian, with faith in an omnipotent God, and with the star of hope ever drawing me to a better world, than be a pagan with no beacon light to beckon me beyond the confines of my own earthly existence.

upon the patrons of the office. Who are the patrons? Democrats, Republicans, Socialists, ladies. Do the Republicans ask the Democrats about the appointees for the post-office?

There is at least one lady and perhaps two ladies who are candidates for the postoffice. Would Mr. Lefler bar the ladies from voting and bar these ladies from the primary? He calls upon Congressman Sears to settle the matter by primary and Congressman Sears has not been asked by the Democratic voters of this special district whether he will recommend the appointees of the primary or not. He states that the people elected Mr. Sears to office. Did Mr. Lefler elect him and did the Republicans, and others not Democrats elect him and does Mr. Sears owe anyone who did not help elect him anything?

Mr. Lefler seems to think there are only a few candidates for the postoffice. There are at least eight, and a new one came out last week and there will be new ones all the time unless Mr. Sears makes an appointment at once. This of course is up to Mr. Sears. He is the congressman and I sincerely hope he will be the congressman in all things. The best way to settle the Sanford postoffice matter is to settle it right now and have it over with. There is no one exercised over the postoffice except Mr. Lefler and he is only exercised because he wants it himself and probably thinks Mr. Lefler is the best man for the place. And in conclusion I just want to tell him that there will be several disappointed candidates in this race. All of them could not be appointed postmaster at Sanford and if left to a primary there would have been but one elected and the disappointment would still be there. When Wilson was elected President several applicants made the race for postoffice and obtained petitions, among them Mr. Lefler. All of them who are in the race will get a fair shake from Mr. Sears and he will recommend the man who has the strongest support of the people—in other words the man who satisfies the greatest number of people—and this is just what the petition and the primary election would do. It is all according to whose ox is gored.

Colored Civic League Organized

A committee of ladies from the civic committee of the Woman's Club met with a representative body of colored women from Georgetown and Goldsboro yesterday afternoon for the purpose of outlining the plans for the Organ Up Campaign to be held Nov. 17-20, and to ask the cooperation of the colored people of Sanford during this campaign.

Prizes will be awarded in Georgetown and Goldsboro for grounds, etc. and the colored population given an opportunity to share in the civic pride and uplift that must come from an individual interest in the welfare of the town in which we live. As an immediate result of the visit of the civic committee to the school house in Georgetown where the meeting was held, a colored woman's civic league was organized, with its full corps of officers and committees and the league proposes to get right down to business and become a factor for the cleanliness and sanitation in the town.

We rejoice that another step has been taken for the community of Sanford and willingly give our support and encouragement to this new effort on the part of colored citizens.

Mme. Petrova at the Star Thursday

"The Vampire" will be Metro's next release, with Mme. Petrova in the leading role. The title of the photo play is derived from incident in the life of Jeanne Lafarge, the victim of a bogus marriage. She is incensed to the point of revenge herself for the wrong done her by conspiring to enmesh all men whom she meets and makes them her victims. She has two men conspirators in her nefarious work. Events bring a young legation attaché into her coils who falls desperately in love with her. She finds she is in love with him herself. Her love for the man is the inspiration which prompts her to shield him from harm. And she succeeds but a much cost to herself in mental a gush and suffering. Ultimately she is reclaimed. This will be one of the most interesting productions yet set forth by Metro and will be shown at the Star Theatre on Thursday, November 11th. Admission 5 and 10 cents.

Their ages being respectively 12 and 8 years.

Many games were played upon the lawn and the joyous laughter of the little ones gave ample proof of their enjoyment. This was followed by delicious refreshments of ice cream and cake. The table was beautifully decorated with festoons of red, white and blue crepe paper, and lovely cut-roses in profusion were placed about the room and on the table. Sanford vs. St. Augustine

S. H. S. Football team went to St. Augustine Saturday, Nov. 6th to try their luck and held them the third quarter when they succumbed to their superior weight, which was about 15 pounds to a man.

All the boys put up a good fight. The St. Augustine boys outdid us. The official report being 19 to 2 in favor of St. Augustine.

The Sanford Stars were Spencer, Ezell, Pope and Roberson. For St. Augustine Foy, Pritchard and Case. The line ups are as follows:

St. Augustine—Captain, Hopkins; fullback, Foy; Rt. half, Pritchard; Lt. half, Golee; quarter, Case; Rt. end, Hopkins; Lt. end, Alexander; Lt. tackle, DeQue; Rt. tackle, Copps; Lt. guard, Reyes; Lt. guard, McCormick; center, Wilson.

The boys were royally entertained with a banquet that night and are loud in their praises for the people of St. Augustine.

Great Lecture Coming

W. Blanchard Moore, the world traveler will lecture and throw on the screen his many still and moving pictures of Russia and Siberian prison life. The following is an excerpt from some of his paragraphs. He will be at the Congregational church Saturday night, Nov. 27th:

A Siberian prison is an excellent place to study human nature, to note how the same misfortune will affect different people. Many become extremely sad and have what is termed the "Siberian Expression"—an expression of hopeless despair, some become ill natured and revengeful; a number take their misfortune philosophically—they find no fault; they make no complaint. A few, however, have so much cheer and good nature in their make-up that they seem to be happy under all circumstances. They are the "sunshine of sorrow," an angel of mercy in a Siberian prison.

While in one of the prisons where I was detained as an American spy, I met one of these "happy-go-lucky" fellows, who apparently would smile and look even happy if he were being hanged. While taking my usual exercise in the court with other prisoners, a little Scotchman, whose face was radiant with a happy smile, held out a welcome hand and said: "Good morning, pal, I am glad to know you. You are an American. What are you here for and for how long?" When I asked him the same questions he replied: "Ten years, have been here four years, and the Czai insists that I remain as one of his guests six years longer." Continuing, he added, "I was nearly three years in America, and it is a wonderful country." When I enquired if he had been in any of the America prisons, he replied: "Sure thing. Uncle Sam became so much interested in me and my work that I was entertained at one of his castles in Leavenworth, Kansas, for two years.

This little Scotchman is evidently a connoisseur on prison life, for, according to his statement, he has been in thirteen prisons and all in different countries. "I dare say you were arrested on many different charges," I said to him. With a hearty laugh he replied: "Oh, no! always the same old thing—running opposition to the government—manufacturing money without a license."

Clean Up Campaign

As one walks the streets of our pretty little town, there is every indication of a most cordial interest in the Clean Up Campaign that is being waged by the Civic and City Beautiful committees of the Woman's Club. The rattle of the lawn mower is heard early and late in every section of the town, the city forces are busily engaged in cutting down the grass and the town is already putting on a nice, clean dress for inspection day. Enthusiasm is everywhere apparent, even the kiddies have caught the contagion and are helping Mother and Dad clean up. But there is much to be done yet for there are so many vacant lots that detract from the general appearance of a block, lots that are overgrown with weeds and are most unightly. We make a strong plea with property owners and the city that these too have some attention. Let the good work go on and everybody get busy.

PLANT SALE AND FLOWER WILL BE HELD IN SANFORD

AS AFTERMATH TO "CLEAN UP" WEEK IT WILL BE A GREAT ATTRACTION

In ordering stock for the plant sale the committee has kept to the idea of getting out of the ordinary ornaments before the people. Of course we all know what hibiscus, roses, gladioli and the like will do in Seminole county and these will all be on sale but there will be other things just as lovely and more distinctive. These unusual flowers and trees are planted generously will make a beautiful beauty spot indeed. There will be rare palms, not a great variety but large enough to show up the specimens will be. There will be plants of the species which are in such splendid bloom in B. F. Whittier's garden, and the salmon yellow hibiscus which is not generally known. There will be the Bauhinia or mountain glory of evergreen foliage and a bloom like a lovely creole.

of orange plants there will be Avocado, Papyrus, Papyrus, Papyrus, and dracaenas and the like which will be represented by Eugene, Amazonia and the exquisite Queen Lily listed as Curcuma.

There is a rare and beautiful plant with blossom, the Lantana, and other gorgeous flame color plants. There will be plants in each of these on sale. Of these there will be two year old flowering bushes from the Miami Horticultural Co. of New York which will be sold at a very low price but will be of standard variety.

The offering fancy caladiums may be seen selections from the beautiful ones. Prof. Schling will send a flower show and orders looking for will be delivered in March. There will be a liberal concession on the price of these exotics.

Those who saw Mr. Mead's wonderful garden in the April flower show will be encouraged to see the garden which will be in bloom.

The garden is intended to be a money making affair. The whole idea is to help make Sanford and Seminole county a worthy part of a most beautiful Florida and the people who are here to see how a thing can be done.

At the Parish House

The Methodist church will be glad to see the Brotherhood of St. Andrew's. They have organized a basketball team and have several games scheduled. The first of the series will be played in the parish house against Daytona High School. These games will furnish the funds for Sanford with a clean and neat street and we hope the games will be well patronized as the boys are working very hard to build up a winning team and will give all of their opponents a hard battle.

There are a lover of a good clean street to the parish house and let your friends with you. Remember the date, tonight, Friday, the day of November.

Revival Meetings

The revival meetings in progress at the Methodist church under the leadership of Dr. Carpenter of Jacksonville are increasing in interest and attendance from day to day.

Those who have heard him declare to be one of the strongest speakers ever visiting Sanford. Dr. Carpenter is simple in speech, profound in thought, reasonable in his methods, pleasing in address and his addresses reach the hearts of his hearers.

Those who have not heard this able speaker have missed a rare opportunity.

Dr. Carpenter will speak at both morning and evening hours on next Sunday. Large audiences are expected. Plans are made to have all attending comfortably seated. Every one in the city and vicinity has a cordial invitation. Services during the week are held at 4 p. m. and 7:15 p. m.

California Crops

New York, Nov. 8. Advice from the Pacific Coast show that the acreage in cauliflower in California is somewhat larger than usual. The crop is looking fine and will soon be ready to market. Californians are waiting until the Long Island crop will give the Western product chance on the Eastern markets. There will not be a great deal of early cauliflower to be shipped during the last of this year, as not much of a movement is expected until after January 1.

The celery acreage in southern California has been cut down at least one third of what it was last season. This was not caused so much by any scarcity of seed as it was by the fact that last year there was a over production, and growers did not receive returns commensurate with their investment. The celery acreage in northern California, on the other hand has been increased over last season. Celery is now moving from California, but the shipments are confined to the western and middle west for market. There is not in condition just yet to range at 25¢ additional per bushel.

The weather has been rather good this season and a cool spell for awhile kept the tomatoes from ripening so that not enough are maturing to orders. This in turn has resulted in a firm market on the coast and operators have plenty of places to market their stock at good prices. The average acreage has been planted. Artichokes are fast the chief of the backward season and are maturing slowly on account of dry weather. Produce News.

Rev. Frank Hunt named Synodical Evangelist

Bristol, Va. Times, November 4. Knoxville today was chosen as the next annual meeting place of the synod of Appalachia in session here. The date will be decided later.

The above clipping will be read with interest by the many friends of Rev. F. D. Hunt in Sanford. However Mr. Hunt has not yet decided whether he will accept the call to go to the synodical evangelist.

Goes to Nashville

L. L. Andrews has gone to Nashville where he will have the state agency for the Herald of Liberty, a fraternal insurance company. Mr. Andrews has been in the office several years and made good his claim of being a writer. He has done his work. He has been in the office of the Herald of Liberty and he has been given the state of Tennessee with headquarters at Nashville for a larger field. Mr. Andrews is a hustler and his many friends here while hating to lose him know that he will make good in his new home.

Noted Star in "An Enemy to Society"

The small admirers of Hamilton Brown and Lois Meredith will begin with pleasure that they are to appear jointly in a screen version of George Bronson Howard's famous story "An Enemy to Society" which has just been produced by the Columbia Pictures Corporation for release on the Metro Pictures Corporation. The story of "An Enemy to Society" deals with the kidnapping of young Steve Meredith, one of a modern type of kidnapping, and the story is being played by Walter Van Dyke and Lois Meredith. The story is a tale of the bond that it is right and noble to steal from the rich to give to the poor, making him a modern Robin Hood. The boy's adventure, his meeting with the beautiful Diana Doreys, a ward of her father and his final regeneration, such a drama of love, mystery, intrigue and romance, the equal of which is seldom seen, comes to the screen.

Mr. Reynolds, in the role of "the enemy to society," comes one of the notable successes of his screen career, while Miss Meredith, as the dainty Diana Doreys is bound to captivate her audience from the moment of her appearance on the screen. "An Enemy to Society" is the latest release on the Metro program and will be seen at the Star Theatre Tuesday, Nov. 16th. Admission 5 and 10c.

Volusia Poultry Show

Three officers of the Volusia Fair Association, namely C. L. Allen, W. H. Schooley and E. W. Brown went to Live Oak the first of the week to attend the Suwannee County Fair and incidentally to secure the meeting of the American Poultry Association, which was held this year at Live Oak. Although there was considerable rivalry, still the DeLand officials had enough new life memberships to the association to warrant them holding their next meet in DeLand.

This is quite an honor for the new fair association as it means that their second annual fair will have a poultry show that will number some three thousand birds.

Thanksgiving Proclamation

Tallahassee, Nov. 12. Governor Park Trammell has issued the following proclamation in connection with Thanksgiving: State of Florida, Executive Office. By the Governor A Proclamation.

Whereas, It is eminently fitting and proper that a day should be set apart for the public generally to render to the Great Giver of all good reverential expressions of gratitude and thanksgiving for His merciful care and bountiful blessings, and,

Whereas, Time honored custom has fixed for such day a date in the harvest season, a season expressive of a benign Providence; and,

Whereas, The people of this great commonwealth, our beloved state of Florida, as well as throughout the entire nation, have the most profound reasons for being deeply grateful for the blessings which surround them, and the hallowed Christian influences under which they are enjoying the blessings of liberty, peace, prosperity, health and happiness; and,

Whereas, Our people have, especially cause for gratitude to Him who rules over the destinies of nations, that we have been free from engaging conflicts and have not been drawn into the consuming vortex of war and,

Whereas, The people of Florida have unusual cause for rendering thanks for the rich gifts of nature and the wonderful opportunities afforded in our great commonwealth;

Therefore, I, Park Trammell, Governor of the state of Florida, by virtue of the authority vested in me by law, do hereby proclaim Thursday, Nov. 25, 1915, Thanksgiving Day, and suggest that the day be appropriately observed throughout Florida.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the state of Florida to be affixed at Tallahassee, the capital, this 9th day of November, A. D. 1915.

Park Trammell, Governor. H. Clay Crawford, Secretary of State.

Youngest Leading Lady on Broadway in "Running Fight"

Viola Heming, who makes her first appearance on the screen in the Paramount Picture, "The Running Fight," is the youngest leading lady on Broadway. Starting at the age of 12 she played Roberta in "The Runaway" and at the age of 14 became Albert (Bert) Truitt's leading lady in "The Fox and the Hen". Then came "The Fox and the Hen" and "The Fox and the Hen" in which she was associated with George Abbe. Beginning last September she appeared in "The Modern Girl" at the Comedy Theatre, then as Lucy Shale in "The Lie," opposite Miss Margaret Blington. Selwyn & Co. transferred her from this production to that of "Under Cover," at the Cort Theatre where she is now playing. In the fall she will be seen in the leading woman's part in "Roi Cooper McGree's new play, "Under Fire."

Miss Heming's family has long been associated with the theatre in England. Her father owned the Douglas and Southport Theatres for many years. She is very anxious to please, keenly alive to the opportunities the screen offers the actress to improve her work and very successful. The film, as she says, is the natural answer to the Scotch verse, "If we could but see ourselves as others see us." She is very fond of outdoor sports, swims and rides beautifully and plays tennis remarkably well.

Admission 10c.

CENTRAL FLORIDA HIGHWAY ASSOCIATION WILL MEET

MEMBERS WILL GATHER IN CITY OF GAINESVILLE ON THE 9TH DAY OF DECEMBER

One of the most important meetings to take place during the present winter is that of the Central Highway Association, which will convene at Gainesville on the 9th day of December. The association is composed of more than two thousand active members who are uniting their wonderful energies toward the creation of a sentiment which will stop at nothing short of good roads in this section, the first of which is to be the Dixie Highway.

Every booster for good roads in the section known as the west coast, the central, the middle and the northern part of the state are directly interested in matters that will be discussed at this meeting and should now begin making preparations to be there.

Besides the good roads matters, word comes from Gainesville that preparations are already under way for handsomely entertaining the good roads delegates and any friends who may go along with them and that town always does the handsomest thing in this line.

One of the interesting features of the entertainment will be a visit to the University of Florida, affording for those who do not already know an opportunity to see just what the state has provided in the way of educational facilities to train her boys for the professions and for agricultural pursuits. This alone is worth a trip to Gainesville.

Temple Circle

One of the most enthusiastic organizations connected with the First Baptist Church is the Temple Circle. This Circle is composed of twenty-two young married ladies. The Circle meets each Sunday morning at 9:30 on a Sunday school class in connection with the regular school of the church. Once a month a social meeting is held. The work of the Circle is divided into four departments: social, literary, musical and evangelistic.

The last social meeting was in the form of a silver tea given at the hospitable home of Mrs. J. B. Lawson, the secretary of the Circle. Most of the members were present and with them a number of friends. The afternoon was one of the most enjoyable the Circle has spent since its organization.

The following program was rendered:

Prayer led by Mrs. Schelle Maitland.

Vocal duet by Mrs. John Thomas and Mrs. Claude Herndon.

Dialect reading with guitar accompaniment, by Mrs. F. W. Barnes.

Vocal solo by Miss Charlie Seay, Miss Lettie Caldwell accompanied.

Each of the above responded with encores.

At the close of the program, which was delightful, elevating and satisfying the hostess served delicious sandwiches and tea.

All present expressed their joy of the occasion and departed looking forward to the social to be given at the Temple on Nov. 19th by this Circle.

PAUL MURPHY'S BOOK
The controversy as to the relative merits of brick and sand-asphalt for the roads to be built in south Florida still rages inconclusively between the Clearwater Sun and the Eustis Lake Region, and is reaching the personal stage where the editors call each other names.

Whether Holly is plump or in earnest we do not know, but it is plain that Paul Murphy's resignation would warm things up considerably for certain demagogues who have worked Floridians "to a frazzle" for many years.

BRICK ROADS THE BEST
The controversy as to the relative merits of brick and sand-asphalt for the roads to be built in south Florida still rages inconclusively between the Clearwater Sun and the Eustis Lake Region, and is reaching the personal stage where the editors call each other names.

There is one man in this country who ought to be an expert on the question, and that man is W. E. James, chief of maintenance of the good roads department of the United States government.

and investigated the whole Pinellas situation thoroughly. He did not know he was coming into an election campaign, and he took no sides, but he did tell the truth to all of his questions.

Such roads as marl, shell and rock are out of the question. They deteriorate at the rate of about $1,000 per mile per year.

"Sand-asphalt roads are not favored by the government. They are but an experiment, and an unsatisfactory one so far.

"Brick is the best road for Florida. Its duration is as yet unknown, because no well constructed brick road has yet worn out, and the cost of maintenance is very small—beginning at from $25 to $50 per mile.

"The quality of brick called for by the Pinellas contract is all right.

"The contracts, both engineering and construction are all right.

SYNOPSIS.

The New York police are mystified by a series of murders and other crimes. The principal clue to the criminal is the warning letter which is sent the victims signed with a "blotching hand." The latest victim of the mysterious assassin is Taylor Lodge, the insurance president. His daughter, Elaine, employs Craig Kennedy, the famous scientific detective, to try to unravel the mystery. What Kennedy accomplishes is told by his friend, Jameson, a newspaper man. After many fruitless attempts to put Elaine and Craig Kennedy out of the way the "blotching hand" is at last found to be none other than Perry Bennett, Elaine's lawyer and the man she is engaged to marry. Bennett flees to the den of one of his Chicago criminals, the Chinaman forces from Bennett the secret of the whereabouts of $2,000,000. Then he gives the lawyer a position, which will suspend animation for months. Kennedy reaches Bennett's side just after he has lost consciousness.

TWENTY-FIFTH EPISODE

THE LOST TORPEDO.

From the rocks of a promontory that jutted out not far from the wharf where Wu Fang's body was found and Kennedy had disappeared, opened up a beautiful panorama of a bay on one side and the sound on the other.

It was a deserted bit of coast. But anyone who had been standing near the promontory the next day might have seen a thin line, as if the water, sparkling in the sunlight, had been cut with a huge knife. Gradually a thin steel rod seemed to rise from the water itself, still moving along though slowly now as it pushed its way above the surface. After it came a round cylinder of steel studded with bolts. It was the hatch of a submarine, and the rod was the periscope.

As the submarine lay there at rest the waves almost broke over it. The hatch slowly opened and a hand appeared reaching for a hold. Then appeared a face with a pair of dark, black hair and keen, thoughtful eyes.

After it the body of a man rose out of the hatch, a tall, slender, striking person. He reached down into the hold of the boat and drew forth a little package.

All ready to start on his way, he saw a boat and a man on the water. He turned back and saw a man in a dark suit and a hat, who was looking at him with a keen interest.

The man and the boat were in the bay and the man was looking at the submarine. The man in the dark suit and hat was looking at the submarine. The man in the dark suit and hat was looking at the submarine.

the little motor, and the driver shot ahead down a bit of side road and out into the main shore road again, urging the car forward to overtake the one ahead.

Such was the entrance of the stranger—Marcus Del Mar—into America. How I managed to pass the time during the first few days after the strange disappearance of Kennedy I don't know. It was all like a dream—the apartment empty, the laboratory empty, my own work on the Star uninteresting, Elaine brokenhearted, life itself a burden.

Hoping against hope, the next day I decided to drop around at the Dodge house. As I entered the library unannounced I saw that Elaine, with a faith for which I envied her, was sitting at a table, her back toward the door. She was gazing sadly at a photograph. Though I could not see it, I needed not to be told whose it was. She did not hear me come in, so en- gressed was she in her thoughts. Nor did she notice me at first as I stood just behind her. Finally I put my hand on her shoulder as if I had been an older brother.

She looked up into my face. "Have you heard from him yet?" she asked anxiously. I could only shake my head sadly. She sighed. Involuntarily she rose and together we moved toward the garden in the last place we had seen him about the house.

We had been taking up and down the coast, talking earnestly, only a short time when a man made his way in from the Fifth avenue gate. In this case, Dodge, he asked me if I had seen him.

"I have not," I answered. "I thought he might be the bearer of some message," I said. "A matter of fact, it was the necessary to whom the factographer had thrown the torpedo model from the Navy building in Washington."

"This was only a part of a deep investigation," Dodge said. "I was hoping to find out more about it. To him the factographer had given a list of instructions and notes, and he had come out leaving the model and the notes in the garden. I had seen the model and the notes, and I had seen the man who had brought them out."

"I had seen the man who had brought them out," Dodge said. "I had seen the man who had brought them out. I had seen the man who had brought them out. I had seen the man who had brought them out."

sulle a valet was already unpacking some trunks and laying out clothes when Del Mar and his assistant entered.

With an exclamation of satisfaction at his unostentatious entry into the city, Del Mar threw off his heavy coat. The valet hastened to assist him in removing the clothes, still wet and wrinkled from his plunge into the sea.

Scarcely had Del Mar changed his clothes than he received two visitors. Strangely enough, they were dressed in the uniform of policemen.

"First of all we must convince them of our honesty," he said, looking fixedly at the two men. "Orders have been given to the men employed by Wu Fang to be about in half an hour. We must pretend to arrest them on sight. You understand?"

"Yes, sir," she nodded. "Very well, come on," Del Mar ordered, taking up his hat and preceding them from the room.

Outside the La Coste, Del Mar and his two policemen entered the car which had driven Del Mar from the seacoast and were quickly whisked away, uptown, until they came near the Dodge house.

Del Mar leaped from the car, followed by his two policemen. "There they are, already," he whispered, pointing up the avenue.

All three hastened up the avenue now, where, beside a wall, they could see two men looking through intently as though very angry at something going on inside.

"Arrest them!" shouted Del Mar, as his own men ran forward.

The yell was short and sharp, with every evidence of being genuine. One of the men managed to break away and turn his back on the wall. Del Mar and one of the policemen after him, while the other only reached the wall to be dragged down by the other policeman.

Elaine and I had been, as I have said, talking with the man named Bailey, who posed as a secret service man, when the rumpus began. As the man came over the fence, swinging a club, it was evident that neither of them had time to escape. With his club the policeman struck the nose of one of the two, while the tall athletic gentleman leaped upon Bailey, and before we knew it had him disarmed. In a most efficient and professional way he snatched the club from the man.

Elaine was reticent at the first, but she soon broke down and confessed even to making a confession. For me it was all so simple that I had no chance to take part in it. I was a sidekick, I should not have known of it, on which side to try to save Elaine.

As it was over so quickly, I took a step forward to see what was going on. I was pardoned, I am sure, for being there.

But don't you think this is a bit of the story? What a great deal of the story. What a great deal of the story. What a great deal of the story.

The newest comer, even to me for a moment, then with quiet stride drew from his pocket and handed me his card, which read simply:

M. DEL MAR, Private Investigator.
As I looked up, I saw Del Mar's other policeman bringing in another man, dressed in a uniform.

What of this, asked Elaine, looking up the note from behind me. "Take a forgery," reiterated Del Mar, looking at it a moment critically. Then to the men in uniform I spoke as I would to the fellows in the street.

As the policeman spoke to Del Mar, he turned to Elaine. "Would you mind answering a few questions about this man?"

Why not, she hesitated. But I think you'd better go into the house, after such a thing as this. It makes me feel nervous.

With Del Mar I followed Elaine in through the conservatory.

Del Mar had scarcely registered at the La Coste when the smaller car which had been waiting at the fishermen's hut drove up before the hotel entrance. From it alighted the turgid old gentleman who bore such a remarkable resemblance to the fisherman, hastily paid his driver and entered the hotel.

He went directly to the desk and with well-manicured finger, scarcely reminiscent of a fisherman, began tracing the names down the list until he stopped before one which read:

"Marcus Del Mar and valet, Washington, D. C., Room 529."

With a quick glance about, he made a note of it and turned away, leaving the La Coste to take up quarters of his own in the Prince Henry down the street.

Not until Del Mar had left with his two policemen did the fussy old gentleman reappear in the La Coste. Then he rode up to Del Mar's room and rapped at the door.

"Is Mr. Del Mar in?" he inquired of the valet.

"No, sir," replied that functionary. "The little old man appearing to consider standing a moment dandling his silk hat. Absent mindedly he dropped it. As the valet stooped to pick it up the old gentleman exhibited agility and strength scarcely to be expected of his years. He seized the valet, while with one foot he kicked the door shut.

Before the surprised servant knew what was going on his assistant had whipped from his pocket a handkerchief in which was concealed a thin tube of anesthetic. Then leaving the valet prone in a corner with the handkerchief over his face, he proceeded to make a systematic search of the rooms, opening all drawers, trunks and bags.

He turned pretty nearly everything upside down, then started on the desk. Suddenly he paused. There was a paper. He read it, then with an air of extreme elation shoved it into his pocket.

As he was going out he stopped beside the valet, removed the handkerchief from his face and bound him with a cord from the portieres. Then, still immaculate in spite of his encounter, he descended in the elevator, reentered a waiting car and drove off.

Quite evidently, however, he wanted to cover his tracks, for he had not gone half a dozen blocks before he stopped, paid and tipped the driver generously, and disappeared into the theater crowd.

Back again in the Prince Henry, whither the fussy little old man made his way as quickly as he could through a side street, he went quietly up to his room.

His door was now locked. He did not have to deny himself to visitors, for he had none. Still his room was cluttered by a vast amount of paraphernalia and he was seated before a table deep in work.

First of all he tied a handkerchief over his nose and mouth. Then he took up a cartridge from the table and carefully extracted the bullet. Into the space occupied by the bullet he poured a white powder and added a wad of paper, like a blank cartridge, placing the cartridge in the chamber of a revolver and repeating the operation until he had it fully loaded. It was his own invention of an asphyxiating bullet.

Perhaps half an hour later the old gentleman's room cleaned up and his immaculate appearance restored, descended forth from the hotel down the street like a veritable tiger, to drop, to show himself.

Elaine seemed quite impressed with her new friend, Del Mar, as we made our way to the library, though I am sure that it was a pose on her part. At any rate he seemed quite eager to see me.

What do you suppose has become of Mr. Kennedy?" asked Elaine. "I don't know," I answered. "I should be glad to search for him, if you would quickly. He was the greatest man in our profession. But first I must assist in the completion of the secret service. We must find his torpedo model before it falls into foreign hands."

We talked for a few moments, then Del Mar, with a glance at his watch, excused himself. We accompanied him to the door, for he was indeed a charming man. I felt that if in fact he were a spy, to the case I would not know it.

"I might accompany you part of the way," I said.

"Delighted," I said to Del Mar.

As I followed him, I saw the other policeman in the distance, and conversation until at last we came near the La Coste.

"I am glad to have met you, Mr. Jameson," he said, pausing. "We shall see a great deal of each other, I hope."

I had not yet had time to answer when he turned and disappeared.

Gentleman who had evidently been hurrying through the crowd. He had slipped on something on the sidewalk and lost his balance, falling near us.

We bent over and assisted him to his feet. As I took hold of his hand I felt a peculiar pressure from him. He had placed something in my hand. My mind worked quickly. I checked my first impulse to speak and held my tongue, but curiosity than anything else kept the thing he had passed to me surreptitiously.

"Thank you, gentlemen," he called, straightening himself out. "One of the infirmities of age. Thank you, thank you."

In a moment he had hurriedly quite contentedly. Again Del Mar said good-by, and I did not urge him to stay. He had scarcely gone when I looked at the thing the old man had placed in my hand. It was a little white paper, printed in pencil, disguised.

"Be Careful! Watch Him!" I read it in amazement. "What a bit of luck!"

As the La Coste, Del Mar's car, by two of the men in the hotel, and they drove up to my room.

"Honor To Whom Honor Is Due"

The Florida Citrus Exchange

The News, of Arcadia, has not been an advocate of the Florida Citrus Exchange. On the contrary, the editor of this paper has severely criticised the organization on numerous occasions. This fact makes all the more remarkable the glowing tribute to the Exchange published in a recent issue of the News.

No one thing pleases the News more than to give proper credit to others. While in the North this summer we did not miss an opportunity to discuss the citrus fruit marketing, both with wholesale and retail dealers. Without a single exception each party interviewed spoke in the highest praise of the way the Citrus Exchange handles its fruit, all agreeing that the fact that these people put up the fruit was sufficient guarantee that the condition was O. K. Mr. Sisetruk, manager of the largest and best equipped wholesale fruit storage plant in central Kentucky, located at Lexington, was very profuse in his praise of the good work done by the Exchange, both in the lines of the improved pack and in that they have done in advertising the Florida product. He thinks the future of the state's prosperity is assured if we will look more fully to the proper distribution so that no city will be supplied with more fruit than the demands. Mr. Sisetruk agrees with us that it is infinitely preferable that it should remain on the tree with risk of dropping than to force it into an already overcrowded market. —Editorial from the Arcadia News.

The standing of the Florida Citrus Exchange in every important citrus fruit market of the country is as good as in the cities visited by Mr. Jones, the editor of the News. Why not take advantage of this favorable condition when selling your oranges or grapefruit, and market them through the Exchange? See the manager of the local association, if there is one in your community; otherwise communicate with this office for further particulars.

While Del Mar was speaking Elaine picked up a ribbon from the table and started to tie it about Rusty's neck.
As Del Mar proceeded she paused, still holding the ribbon. Rusty, who hated ribbons, saw his chance and quietly sidled out, seeking refuge in the conservatory.

Alone in the conservatory, Rusty quickly forgot about the ribbon and began nosing about the palms. At last he came to the pot in which the torpedo model had been buried in the soft earth by the thief the night it had been stolen from the fountain.

Quickly Elaine recalled herself, and, seeing the ribbon in her hand and Rusty gone, called him. There was no answer, and she excused herself, for it was against the rules for Rusty to wander about.

In his haste the thief had left just a corner of the handkerchief sticking out of the dirt. What kind of one had noticed, Rusty's keen eyes and nose discovered and his instinct told him to dig for it. In a moment he unconsciously rolled the torpedo and handkerchief and sniffed.

Del Mar meanwhile had followed Elaine through the hall and into the conservatory. As he entered he could see her stooping down to look through the palms for Rusty. She straightened up and went on out.

Del Mar and the Old Man Drew Guns Together.

"She has found it!" he exclaimed in wonder, following Elaine.
"Outright on the lawn, Del Mar's men had been looking about, but had discovered nothing. They paused a moment to speak.

"Look out!" whispered one of them.
"Here's someone coming."
They dropped down in the shadow there in the light of the street lamps was the fussy old gentleman coming across the lawn. He stole up to the door of the conservatory and looked through. Del Mar's men crawled a few feet closer. The little old man entered the conservatory and looked about again stealthily. The two men followed him in noiselessly and watched as he bent over the palm pot from which the dog had dug up the torpedo. He looked at the hole curiously. Just then he heard sounds behind him and sprang to his feet.
"Hands up," ordered one of the men,
covering him with a gun.
The little old man threw up his hands, raising his cane still in his right hand. The man with the gun took a step closer. As he did so the little old man brought down his cane with a quick blow and knocked the gun out of his hand. The second man seized the cane. The old man jerke-care, on the sofa, and Elaine, already regaining consciousness, lay back in a deep easy chair.

As Del Mar moved I turned again to Elaine, who was now nearly recovered.
"How do you feel?" I asked, anxiously.
Her throat was parched by the as-phyxiating fumes, but she smiled brightly, though weakly.
"Whose did I get that?" she managed to gasp feebly, catching sight of the rose in her hand. "Did you put it there?"
I shook my head and she gazed at the rose wondering.
"Whoever the little man was, he was gone.
