An Important Asset

Figures released for publication yesterday by F. I. Koontz, caretaker at the "Big Tree," indicating that around 150 persons visit the tree every day, with approximately 400 on Sundays, throughout the winter season, reveal to some extent the increasing popularity of this phenomenon of the forest.

Such figures would show that no less than thirteen hundred persons visit the tree each week, and that if this pilgrimages keeps up at this rate for only three months out of the year, in the course of that time more than fifteen thousand persons have been to see it. That leaves the other nine months of the year, the annual total up to what must be a truly impressive figure.

The thought has occurred to us that perhaps Emerson was right when he said that the world is a vast wilderness. The thought has occurred to us that perhaps Emerson was right when he said that the world is a vast wilderness. The thought has occurred to us that perhaps Emerson was right when he said that the world is a vast wilderness.

Perhaps we have something here which could be utilized to greater advantage. We are not prepared to say that the acres surrounding it are "Acres of Diamonds," but they could be vastly improved, and by improvement, could be made even more attractive to winter visitors and an even greater advertising asset. For the value of the Big Tree to Seminole County lies as much in its advertising qualities as in anything else.

We would like to see a WPA project proposed for the beautification of the grounds surrounding the Big Tree. There are a number of old cypresses in the vicinity which, while not quite as large or as old as the one monarch of the forest itself, nevertheless are something to see. They should be made accessible to the public and the old trees should be connected by paths, and the paths should be bordered by azaleas, with occasional gardenias and Japanese gardens along the way.

We live in mind the "Cypress Gardens of Winter Haven" where some enterprising individual selected a dozen or more cypresses not half the size, or one-tenth the age, of our Big Tree and used them for the background of a spot as beautiful as any to be found anywhere in the country. Seminole County could do the same thing with its Big Trees, and the number visiting them would increase from thousands to hundreds of thousands.

Tax Changes Needed

A suggestion that our tax system should be revised so as to reward, instead of penalize, those who make improvements to their property, comes from Editor Clarence Poe of the Progressive Farmer. The same thought, it seems to us, should be applied to those who give employment. Some means should be provided by taxation for encouraging them to furnish jobs, rather than resort to labor saving devices.

"If a landowner now lets his land gully and wash away to the hurt of this generation and to the impoverishment of all future generations," writes Editor Poe, "do our present tax systems rebuke or hinder or check him in any way? By no means. On the contrary, they seem to try to reward him. His tax assessments per acre are reduced, and some of the tax burden he has been toting is thus shifted to the shoulders of the rest of us. Our foolish tax system does not penalize him for making the country poorer. It does penalize all the rest of us for his shiftlessness and neglect."

"The same foolish policy prevails in the case of our forest wealth. The man who lets fire ravage his woodland, burn up the humus and nitrogen, destroy the young growth and stunt the older growth—what do our tax systems do to him? They reduce his tax assessment and therefore his tax-load per acre—while they increase the assessment and taxload of the man who keeps a good stand of thrifty trees and puts out every fire. And every time such a man's taxes are reduced $1 or $100 as a result of his neglect, $1 or $100 more tax burden is put on the backs of the rest of us who try to take care of land and woods."

The average business man's day's work wouldn't be so long or so arduous if there weren't so many traveling salesmen and peddlars of one kind and another who insist upon taking your time. There really ought to be a law.

Someone should organize a "let out of the year" drive in Seminole County for the coming Democratic primary. Otherwise there may be a great shortage of ballots when the voters are counted. As far as the senatorial race is concerned there seem to be a half-dozen people who would about as soon have one of the candidates represent this state in the Senate as another.

New Development in Bartholomew Case Uncovered

ORLANDO, Mar. 8.—On the eve of the longest into the death of Frank K. Bartholomew, 58-year-old collector for the Internal Revenue Department, a prophetic statement added new interest to one of the most perplexing cases in local police annals.

It was learned last night that the dead man tossed an insurance policy onto the desk of a prominent Lake County resident some weeks ago with the words: "You will be in a position to collect on this March 8."

Mr. Bartholomew, resident of Winter Park for many years and widely known throughout Central Florida, was found with a bullet hole through his brain, his body sprawled backward on the whirling dolly of a stairway leading to his office in the local postoffice building the morning of March 8. From unimpeachable sources it was learned that Mr. Bartholomew was indebted to the Lake County business man in the same amount as the face value of the insurance policy.

The money supposedly was borrowed to finance an operation about a year ago and had not been repaid.

The Lake County man was named as beneficiary in the policy.

Thirteen witnesses have been subpoenaed to testify before the coroner's inquest into the death of the Winter Park resident at 8 o'clock this afternoon.

The leading witness in the inquest is expected to be Charles Winslow, Federal Bureau of Investigation agent, who has been actively engaged in conducting a probe of the Bartholomew case.

and asserted: "You can't own any property without taxes; it's a crazy way of doing business causing devaluation of property."

Dr. Townsend advocated a system which provides equal distribution of tax on and hit at the methods employed by the rich to evade payment of taxes while those of moderate means were forced to pay in full. He declared that the rich avoided taxation through movement of their securities from place to place and also through investment in federal securities.

He advocated a present transaction tax or "gross income tax," which he declared will provide a more equal and universal system of taxation.

"Taxes are destructive to property," he said, and asserted that "the power to tax is the power to destroy and we haven't yet reached the zenith of taxation, just wait until some of the national debts fall due."

As another plank for the party platform, Dr. Townsend advocated efficient government, and received acclamation from the audience when he declared that "those fellows (in Washington) don't know how to spend money. The biggest part of them are small time lawyers and don't know how to do business."

He declared that it was only through intelligent planning that the Townsend Plan had evolved to its present status and stated that this policy should be carried to Washington.

In the first passionate outburst during his speech Dr. Townsend shouted "Old folks, it's up to you and me, for we're going to run this country in a little while." Again the aged man was greeted by a loud acclamation of applause and shouts.

Dr. Townsend declared there is a dire need for a legislative reform stating that "efficient government in Washington is something we haven't had in 50 years. Not a man there knows what he is voting for half the time."

Abolition of poverty was another aim pointed to by the Townsend Plan leader when he declared that for the first time in history it was possible to demand the abolition of poverty and stated that it existed in a land where there is plenty produced for all.

"Poverty must go," he asserted. "We can't afford it any longer; it is costing infinite more to maintain it than it will to abolish it."

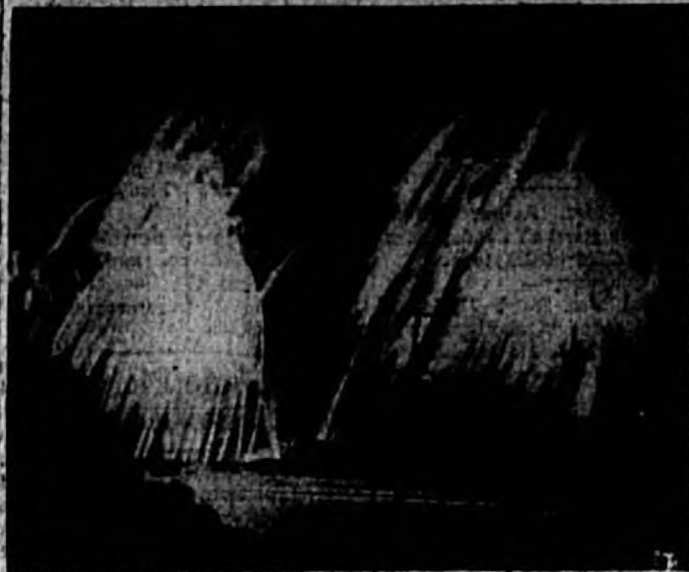

In the present state of affairs no one knows when the spark of revolution will be set off among 40,000,000 persons in the United States who are in the depths of poverty. He stated that the Townsend Plan could be provided in the operation of the Townsend Plan and pointed to the result.

ing effect on business since the purchasing power of 40,000,000 persons was raised to normal. During the current week Dr. Townsend is making an itinerary of the State and is scheduled to speak in Jacksonville today, in Pensacola on Wednesday, in Tampa, Friday and in Orlando next Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock in the Municipal Auditorium.

F. Manley Goldberry, who a few weeks ago spoke in Sanford, accompanied Dr. Townsend as well as a number of officials of the various Florida Townsend districts.

The pension leader was welcomed to Daytona Beach by J. B. Carter, president of the Daytona Beach Chamber of Commerce.

Large Crowd Cheers Ex-Governor Sholtz

MONTICELLO, Mar. 8.—A large crowd vigorously cheered here last night as Dave Sholtz, candidate for the United States Senate, opposed reorganization of American farmers and stayed "injustice" to Florida tobacco growers.

The former governor said he would fight for repeal of the crop control bill which deprives farmers of freedom in planting and marketing crops. He declared farmers should have the privilege of planting what they wanted and as much as they wanted and to get whatever price they could.

He charged that Florida tobacco growers and their servants reduced drastically while North Carolina planters maintained practically the same average. Sholtz promised farmers he would do everything in his power to change statutes so that the farmers would be let alone and be given a chance to make a decent living.

He was given rousing applause as he pledged legislation to assist elderly persons and said he would work for repeal of that section of the Social Security law which forces them to give a lien on their property before receiving old age assistance.

Drive Begins To Kill Tick-Infested Deer In 2 Counties

ORLANDO, Mar. 8.—Hunters' guns have laid low six deer, two of them does "heavy" with fawns, as the drive to free two quarantined sections of Orange and Osceola Counties of tick-infested deer resulted in open season on the animals. Chief Conservation Officer, Jim Black of the Fifth Congressional District announced yesterday.

Open season to war on the tick carrying deer in sections of Glades and Highland Counties has also been declared, Black stated.

McCrory, pastor, noted game preserve section of Central Florida, who the spot where the deer were killed by huntersmen II, advised by the State Livestock Sanitary Board and a hunt is also being conducted in the Perry-Walton timber tract and the Touchatchee preserve, but Black was unable to say how many animals had fallen before the guns in those areas.

"Killing of these two does is inhuman," declared Harry McDonald, former game commissioner for this district, in commenting on the slaughter yesterday.

McDonald, who recently was removed from his office by Governor Fred Cone under charges of "malfeasance and misfeasance in office," retaliated with the charge that the Governor's move was based on politics, prompted because McDonald would not renege Black with a Cone political appointment.

McDonald, who added that he had learned that Warden Tucker, who has been working in Flagler County for four years, had been replaced by a man named Denson, "who has been living in the county for only two years. The people of Flagler County are up in arms about the appointment too," McDonald charged.

The deer slaughter, claimed being done mostly at night by the aid of lights, has led to a bitter war between cattle grazers and sportsmen. The sportsmen group stopped the slaughter with a court restraining order but recently their arguments were rejected by the State Court which once more removed legal protection from the deer in the infested areas.

Quality of an Orange County doe that calls for replacement of all deer killed in the eradication drive has been called of doubtful value by local sportsmen. Black said that he knew of no provision that would force replacement of the slain deer.

Employers Fail To File Worker Reports

JACKSONVILLE, Mar. 8.—The U. S. Bureau of Internal Revenue at Washington, D. C. has today expressed its concern to Internal Revenue Collector J. Edwin Larson over the large percentage of employers in Florida who have not yet filed reports showing taxable wages paid to employees from July 1, 1937 to December 31, 1937, as required under the Federal Social Security Act.

Of Florida employers subject to Title VIII of the Federal Social Security Act, approximately 23 percent have failed to file returns on Forms SS-2 and SS-3 with the Collector for this period. These figures are significant as the employers who have failed to file these information returns have in their employ approximately 112,000 persons for whom no wage reports have been received.

The collector stated that it is to the interest of the employer, as well as the employee, to have this information sent to the Collector without further delay. The necessity of having in make contributions to their employees by employers of dependent children, and will cut down on the need of further contributions with government officials if they are not prompt in submitting these reports to the U. S. Collector of Internal Revenue.

RAILROAD BUILT ON GOLD...

Even steel is sometimes more valuable than gold, also someone long ago would have found the tracks of the old Sacramento Valley Railroad in California, which runs for 23 miles over a bed of gold.

In February, 1855, a young and visionary engineer, Theodore D. Judah, began construction of the line from Sacramento to Folsom. Only six years before, this very region was the end of the trail of many gold-seekers of the "49" rush. Judah saw more wealth than that lying in the rich, gold-bearing earth, however, and laid plans for his railroad.

The rails of his "V. R. R." ran directly over rich gold ore. Judah did not bend his tracks to avoid it, he disregarded the mining possibilities of his roadbed, but did have a souvenir ring made, inscribed with the words: "First gold ever taken from earth used in making a railroad bank."

Placer gold deposits were so plentiful during the construction period that nobody attempted to dislodge Judah from his plan. And, several years later, when the rails might have been moved to give way to hydraulic mining, the placer method of separating gold from the soil had been declared unlawful.

In exactly one year, Judah finished his line and, strange as it seems, the tracks today still lie on rich gold ore! Southern Pacific trains now use the old railroad line.

600 Insurgent Seamen Die On Torpedoed Ship

A laborite motion condemning the arms costs and asking Britain to return to the League of Nations instead of entering into direct deals with Europe's heavy-armed dictators, was rejected by a vote of 251 to 124.

Chamberlain, painting a grim picture of Europe's and world's unrest, said that if his direct negotiations with the dictators collapsed Britain will speed up her pace of re-arming to even greater speed.

The British people will go to war, he said, if other creeds of government threaten their liberties.

Mr. Thomas Inskip, Minister of Co-ordinated Defense, met attacks on the strength of Britain's air force with a statement that by March, 1939, the Royal Air Force will be equipped with the world's most modern and most efficient fighting air fleet.

To defend the British Isles, he said, a balloon barrage is being organized in 10 squadrons to build an aerial wall against any invasion by enemy planes.

"Coal" defenses and other means which I must not mention will be an effective defense against any invader," he asserted.

Major Clement R. Attlee, leader of the Laborite opposition, berated Chamberlain for his shelving of the League of Nations in embark on "a system of alliances."

Chamberlain revealed that the $7,000,000,000 figure originally set for Britain's five-year rearmament program may be only a hint of the actual stupendous cost before Britain achieves her "verifying power."

Britain's defense objectives, he said, must include first of all the following:

- 1-Protection of the country.
- 2-Protection of the empire trade routes.
- 3-Protection of British territories overseas from attack by land, sea or air.
- 4-Co-operation in offense of the territories of Britain's allies.

The first passenger air service from Paris to South America will be inaugurated this summer by Air France. A weekly service is planned. The 2,000-mile flight to Buenos Aires with intermediate stops will be made in about four days.

Sanford Girl Scouts, under the direction of Miss Irene Hinton, gave a matinee show in which they depicted the 16 spot laws. The youth made their own lanterns, and constructed their own stage. Miss Hinton stated.

The Bonville High School Glee Club under the direction of Mrs. W. R. McCracken sang several numbers which included "On the Road to Mandalay" and the Russian folk song, "Dark Eyes."

Miss Irene Hinton conducted a little game which was designed to get the tourists better acquainted with each other.

Concluding the evening's entertainment was a social hour in which sandwiches, coffee, and coffee buffet were served.
