Arson suspected in fatal fire

LYNN, Mass. — Investigators found evidence of arson in the remains of five-story rooming house destroyed by a fire that killed three people and injured a dozen others.

"We have reason to believe that an accelerant was present and we're treating the fire as an arson right now," Essex County District Attorney Kevin Burke said Wednesday. "At this stage, I'm not going to be specific about the kind of accelerant."

Golfers struck by lightning

MAYWOOD, Ill. — Lightning struck four golfers huddled under an umbrella Wednesday, critically injuring one man.

A downpour halted play on the second hole of the suburban Carriage Green Country Club in Darien at about 5:15 p.m. CDT, when a lightning bolt hit the foursome, who were part of an AT&T golf league, said Fire Department Cmdr. Robert Turett.

Three of the men sustained burns where the lightning passed through their bodies, and a spokeswoman at Loyola University Hospital and Medical Center in Maywood reported them in good condition. Michael Pandel, 32, Naperville, was in critical condition.

Town orders 11 p.m. curfew

DERMOTT, Ark. — City Council has established a curfew for people under 18 and provides for punishment, including time in a stockade, for parents who refuse to take responsibility for their children who violate the law.

The action establishes a curfew from 11 p.m. to 5:30 a.m. in the southeast Arkansas town of 4,731 people.

Land tax chaos looms

Court decision opens the door for increases

SANFORD — Residential property owners in Seminole County and throughout Florida could pay higher taxes as a result of a three-judge panel's ruling on appraisers' assessment of commercial property, a county official said today. Terry Manfre, appraisal director of the Seminole County Property Appraisers Office, said the court decision, if upheld, could be used to lower several commercial assessments in the county.

As a result, the county and cities might have to increase homeowner's taxes to make up the difference that would be collected from higher-valued commercial properties.

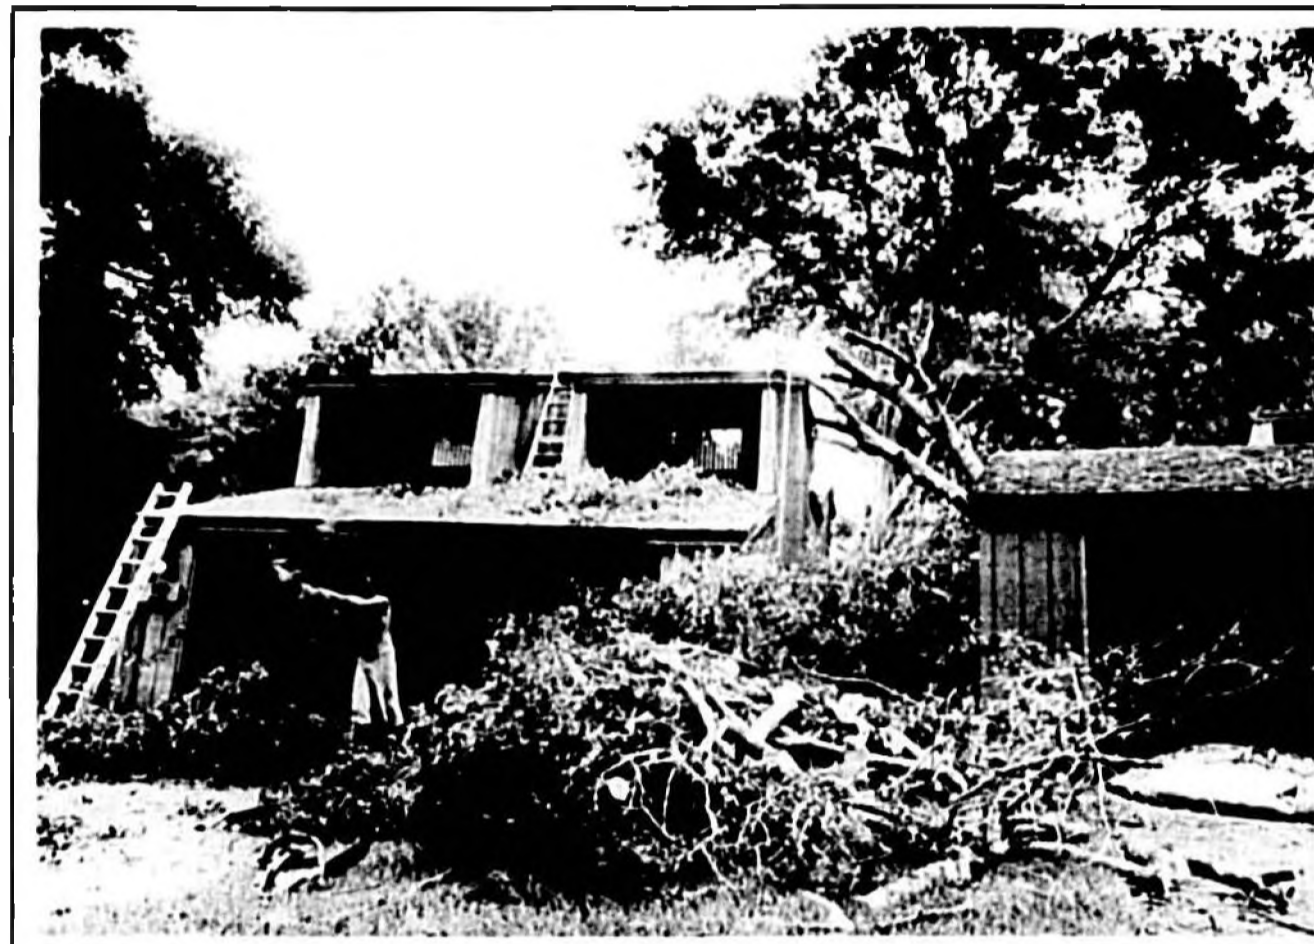

"We value property as though it were unincumbered," Manfre said. "I would have to study this case, but it would probably cause us to go back and reevaluate how we assess those properties with long-term leases."

Manfre said she did not know how many commercial properties would be affected by the decision.

The case, which was decided July 21 by the 2nd District Court of Appeal, involves the assessment of a K Mart shopping center in Largo in which the owner said the assessment was higher than it should have been.

In 1986, the Pinellas County property appraiser increased the assessment of the 116,800-square-foot building from $2.1 million to $4 million. TM Florida-Ohio Realty, Ltd., the owner of the building, appealed the ruling to a circuit court judge who agreed with the property

Watering cutbacks ordered

Beginning midnight Aug. 19, it will become a crime to water your lawn after 8 a.m.

Facing possible drought conditions, the governing board of the St. Johns River Water Management District voted Wednesday in Palatka to impose mandatory outdoor water-use restrictions for the 19-county district, which includes Seminole County. The district had asked residents to voluntarily restrict their water usage since June.

The restrictions will remain until groundwater levels return to normal levels. District officials hope to get an early start on reserving drinking

County signs truce, Sanford next

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners approved an agreement with Sanford officials Tuesday ending Sanford's challenge of the county's right to impose fees on new construction throughout the county to build new roads.

City commissioners are scheduled to consider final approval of the agreement Aug. 14. They gave tentative approval June 26.

After the agreement has been approved, the city's decision will free nearly $500,000 in building permit fees that have not been collected since July 1987 when Sanford, Casselberry and Winter Springs passed moratoriums on collecting the fees in their cities. The county sued the cities and earlier this year the Fifth District Court of Appeals decided the county could collect the fees.

The three cities persisted, saying other issues remained, including the validity of the county's impact fee ordinance. A hearing is scheduled next month before Seminole Circuit Judge Kenneth M. Lefler on the issues.

Under the agreement, the county will write property owners where construction has occurred in Sanford since July 1, 1987 demanding payment of the fees. The county notified the property owners of the fee when they were issued city building permits, but told them not to pay until the lawsuit was resolved.

The county will not seek payment of the fee from current residents

Governor's ideas for school reform get mixed reviews

From staff and wire reports

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Bob Martinez called Wednesday for a sweeping re-examination of the state's system of elementary and middle school education, including an evaluation of the length of the school day and the school year.

A random sampling this morning of Seminole County school administrators showed that educators agree reform is necessary in the elementary and middle schools, but they do not agree about the governor's motivation in forming a commission to study the issue.

In announcing the creation of the Governor's Commission of Reform of Education, Martinez said, "I believe when you look at ... the results of our public school education, you see that failure starts real early in life."

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Contra chiefs get U.S. asylum

United Press International
MIAMI — Three of nine top contra military officers, including the rebel chief of staff, were granted political asylum Wednesday, Immigration Chief Perry Rivkind said.
 The high-ranking contras, which include field commanders and advisers, won the State Department's approval for asylum two days after five Central American presidents agreed on a plan to demobilize the anti-Sandinista forces within the next four months.
 The claims were given "special action" status and reviewed immediately, said Rivkind, the Immigration and Naturalization Services district director.

 "Because of the nature of their positions and possible security problems, we ask that their case be moved fast," he said.
 Israel Galeano, the rebel chief of staff known as Commandante Franklin, led the list of officers filing claims. He was one of several approved immediately.
 Galeano said the contra leaders have no plans to move to the United States and sought nothing more than "travel documents."

"Some of us have the need right now to mobilize in the international field," Galeano said outside the INS office in Miami. "There is a need to get documents to travel."
 But Francisco "Johnny" De la Cruz, a political adviser on the Southern Front who was also granted asylum, admitted the action could be misinterpreted by the 12,000 rebel troops holed up in border camps.
 "It could be demoralizing to the troops if we were seen as retiring from the struggle," De la Cruz said. "But the troops know that's not so. Our struggle continues."

The officers denied there was a connection between their applications and the accord signed Monday by five Central American presidents in Tela, Honduras, calling for the dismantling of the contras.
 "We're doing this errand to facilitate our struggle," De la Cruz said.
 Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega declared that the plan puts an end to the rebel movement. The Sandinista government agreed to Democratic reforms leading up to national elections in return for the repatriation or resettlement of the Contras by Dec. 8.

Woman attacked by shark in Bahamas

MIAMI — A Florida woman vacationing in the Bahamas was attacked by a shark Wednesday, losing part of her hand, Coast Guard officials said.
 Judy St. Claire, 31, of Marathon, was attacked shortly before 4:15 p.m. off Highborn Cay in the Exumas, a string of small islands southeast of Nassau in the Bahamas, the Coast Guard said.
 She was transported from the Bahamas to Jackson Memorial Hospital, where she was listed in stable condition, said Lt. John Capitani of the Coast Guard. Doctors said she would have to have the rest of her hand amputated above the wrist, he said.
 St. Claire was found on a beach, the Coast Guard said, and a doctor from the United States administered an I.V. and gave her immediate first aid.

Murderer says execution is 'neat idea'

STARKE — Convicted murderer James William Hamblen, who has fought efforts to stay his execution, says his death in the electric chair is "spiffy" and "a neat idea."
 "I can't hardly wait to sit in Old Sparky," said Hamblen, referring to the electric chair. "I'm curious about it."
 Hamblen, 60, said he saw no future for himself and preferred to be executed instead of spending his life in prison.
 "It's not a matter of not being able to cope. I just don't care to cope," he said.
 "I think it's just dandy that the state executes me. It fits very well with my idea of the death penalty, my notion of the death penalty and my notion of society," said Hamblen.
 Hamblen was sentenced to die after pleading guilty to the April 1984 shooting of a Jacksonville shop owner, Laureen Jean Edwards. The shooting occurred while Hamblen was robbing the woman's lingerie store.

Agency wants to seize baby at birth

ST. PETERSBURG — An 18-year-old woman who is nine months pregnant should lose custody of her baby at birth, welfare officials say, because one of her children already has been beaten to death and the other badly burned.
 Sgt. Rollin Lightfield, supervisor of the St. Petersburg Police Department's Youth Services Division, called the incidents "probably the worst case of child abuse I've ever seen."
 Gloria J. Snell was jailed in Pinellas County in lieu of $5,000 bail. If she goes into labor Snell will be taken to a Clearwater hospital for the delivery, sheriff's spokeswoman Marianne Pasha said.
 The baby will be placed either in a foster home or with relatives if the courts award the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services protective custody, HRS spokeswoman Elaine Fulton-Jones said.

Searchers find councilman's boat

CEDAR KEY — Searchers have found a missing boat belonging to Cedar Key councilman Lud Johnson, but have not yet found the missing councilman.
 Johnson went crabbing off Cedar Key last Friday and was supposed to have returned Sunday, but he did not return. The Coast Guard and other authorities have been searching since Sunday, finally finding in 24-foot boat in 95 feet of water in the Gulf of Mexico yesterday.
 Officials said Wednesday the boat was found in the Gulf about 55 miles southwest of Cedar Key. That is about where his last known position was.
 Authorities said they are still optimistic about finding Johnson alive, since at least one life jacket appeared to be missing from the boat. The Coast Guard is using tide charts and other materials to see where he may have drifted.

Child abuse ruled out in boy's death

BARTOW — Investigators in Polk County have ruled out child abuse in the death of a 15-month-old boy who died Tuesday night at his foster parents' home in south Lakeland.
 Officials said Wednesday an autopsy showed no signs of abuse or neglect in the death of Jesse Williams, who reportedly stopped breathing as his foster mother changed his diapers. Samples will be sent to another laboratory for further analysis of why the boy died.
 The child was under state care. The Health and Rehabilitative Services operation in Polk County is under scrutiny since two-year-old child was killed late last month after being returned to his mother.

Doctors gear up to test prison system

TALLAHASSEE — Just like a lot of patients, Florida's prison system is asking other doctors for a second opinion.
 Doctors from the Florida Medical Association will begin training Friday to inspect the status of the prison system's medical care situation. State officials hope a good diagnosis will lead to an end to the 17-year-old lawsuit over prison conditions.
 The Department of Corrections said previous inspections of the prison system's health care system have been overly subjective and likely to make negative findings.

Columbia sails on in secret

United Press International
CAPE CANAVERAL — The Columbia astronauts, circling Earth every 90 minutes in an orbit carrying them over 80 percent of the Soviet Union, went about their stealthy business Thursday with no word on the status of their spy satellite payload.
 The military space shuttle mission is being conducted under a Pentagon-imposed veil of secrecy, but U.S. Space Command officials in Colorado Springs, Colo., "declassified" orbital data about Columbia's not-so-secret flight path.
 A spokesman said Columbia was racing around Earth every 90 minutes in a circular orbit 185 miles up and inclined 57 degrees to the equator — precisely what sources had said before launch.
 A computer bulletin board used by amateur satellite trackers listed the shuttle's orbital period as 90.49 minutes, the inclination as 57.0006 degrees, the high point of the orbit as 185.1 miles and the low point as 184.5 miles.
 Spacecraft launched in such "high-inclination" orbits can fly over roughly 80 percent of the Soviet Union and the reconnaissance satellite reportedly carried aloft by Columbia presumably was launched Tuesday afternoon as the shuttle was sailing over the Indian Ocean.
 But Army Capt. Thomas Niemann, a space command spokesman, said he had no orbital information about such a satellite.
 Columbia, NASA's oldest space shuttle, blasted off on the fifth post-Challenger mission Tuesday, the rebuilt spaceplane's first flight in 3 1/2 years.
 On board are Air Force Col. Brewster Shaw, 44, the commander, Navy Cmdr. Richard "Dick" Richards, 42, co-pilot, Navy Cmdr. David Leestma, 40, Army Lt. Col. James Adamson, 43, and Air Force Maj. Mark Brown, 37.
 The five-day mission is scheduled to end Sunday with a landing at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., between 9 a.m. EDT and noon. The exact landing time is classified, but sources say touchdown is planned for around 10:37 a.m.

Plan would clean Everglades with natural marshland filters

United Press International
WEST PALM BEACH — Water managers released a plan Wednesday to reduce the phosphorus pollution that has caused a cattail invasion in the Everglades by filtering farm runoff water naturally through a series of marshlands.
 The plan by the South Florida Water Management District seeks to protect the 3,500-square-mile Everglades, which filter much of the region's drinking water. The report says the greatest danger to the Everglades is phosphorus and other nutrients in the water that drains from the sugar, vegetable and cattle farms on its northern border. The nutrients are used in fertilizers.
 High phosphorus levels have caused an invasion of cattails over 20,000 acres of land in the water conservation districts, reducing the dissolved oxygen levels and crowding out other more beneficial plants, the report said.
 The two-pronged cleanup plan, which will be the subject of public discussions before being put into effect in December, would require farmers in the 700,000-acre Everglades Agricultural Area to clean farm runoff to 0.03 milligrams of phosphorus per liter, or less. That level is consistent with natural rainfall levels in non-polluted areas.
 Farmers would do that by establishing marshland borders on their property. Marsh plants absorb the excess phosphorus and nitrogen as the water flows through.
 "We are asking the agriculture folks to do what dairy people are already required to do north of Lake Okechobee, to develop similar plans to detain and clean water on their own land," said district spokeswoman Ann Overton.
 "Most industries have to clean up their own pollution before they release anything into the air or land. That's what we are asking them to do."
 Ed Barber, an environmental official of the Florida Sugar Cane League, said the plan would cost farmers $100 million or more, yet is based on untried principles and does not specify exactly how the cleanup would be accomplished.
 "It's a big gamble," Barber said. "That would never fly in a vacuum — if you take away the public pressure."
 The plan would also expand the conservation areas around Everglades National Park by 40,000 acres.

School board fires physician

Bus drivers improperly diagnosed, school transportation officials say

By Vicki Buchanan
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The Seminole County School Board yesterday approved a request to terminate the contract with Dr. Peter Hsu, the doctor who has been doing physical examinations for the transportation department.

Hsu, a partner with the Emergimedical Family Practice of Winter Springs, was the low bidder for the 1989-90 contract. There is less than a month remaining on his current contract.

According to Richard Wells, assistant superintendent for facilities and transportation, there have been several "concerns" which have surfaced about the doctor. School officials said the concerns include approving drivers with vision problems, prescribing medicine for drivers when a family physician has found nothing to warrant it, failing drivers on eye exams when an optometrist or ophthalmologist has stated they have no problems, and requesting drivers return for additional checkups.

Hsu was not available for comment.

Complaints began to surface as early as February but, ac-ording to director of transportation Benny Arnold, the frequency and severity increased during the summer.

On July 30, assistant director of transportation Tom Preston and supervisor of operations Barbara Higgins met with Hsu to review the problem.

In an Aug. 2 letter to Wells, Arnold wrote "apparently Dr. Hsu either does not understand the requirements of the bus drivers physical or is unwilling to give the examination required."

"We believe he was not doing a proper job," Wells said. Wells requested an emergency measure by the board to terminate Hsu's contract even though there was only one month left on the agreement.

"This is the time of year when we are testing most of our drivers," Wells explained, adding that the transportation department did not want to risk continued improper results.

The remaining month of the contract will be awarded to the Semoran Medical Surgical Center, which was the next lowest bidder for the service last year. At the end of the contract, the district will again bid for a new physician.

Wells and attorney Clayton Simmons, who is acting in place of vacationing board attorney Ned Julian, are drafting a letter to inform Hsu of his rights in the termination of his contract. They hope to send the letter by week's end.

Sanford man arrested after lip bitten

SANFORD — Stanley Roy Reid, 46, of 48 Castle Brewer Court, Sanford, was charged by Sanford police with battery after he allegedly bit a woman on the lip during an argument. Police identified the woman as his girlfriend. Reid was arrested at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at home.

Taxi taken to cash check

CASSELBERRY — A woman suspected of forging and cashing a $50 check at Barnett Bank, U.S. Highway 17-92, Casselberry, was traced by Casselberry police through the identification number of the taxi cab in which she was allegedly riding when the check was presented to a drive-up teller.

The cab driver was located and gave police information on his passenger. That led police to Winter Park, where Penelope Susan Leppard, 28, of Canada, was taken into custody.

She was questioned at the Casselberry police station and charged with forgery and uttering a forgery at about noon Wednesday, the day of the bank transaction. Bond is $1,500.

Suspect hits deputy with door

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A companion of two accused shoplifters detained by Sear's security at the Altamonte Mall allegedly hit a Seminole County sheriff's deputy with a metal door.

The deputy said Michelle Carter, 19, of 671 Morse Blvd., Winter Park, resisted his orders to leave the area and when he arrested her, he said she struggled with him. Carter was charged with battery on a policeman and resisting arrest with violence at 11:14 a.m. Wednesday at the store. Bond is $2,500.

Police say man had cocaine

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A man was arrested after he allegedly tried to walk away from Seminole County sheriff's deputies while they were questioning him outside the Diaco Food Store, County Road 427, rural Altamonte Springs.

Frank Lorenzo Sheppard, 34, of no address, was arrested on a charge of resisting arrest without violence. He was searched after his arrest. Deputies reported finding crack cocaine in his possession. A charge of possession of cocaine was added. The arrest was made at 4:42 p.m. Wednesday. Bond is $3,000.

Geneva man pleads no contest to attempted murder charge

By BRAD CHURCH
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A Geneva man agreed to spend at least three years in prison Wednesday in return for his "no contest" plea to three charges, including attempted first-degree murder.

Gerald Thomas Fargo, 38, was scheduled to go on trial Wednesday on a total of nine charges in connection with a break-in and shooting at a Sanford residence Feb. 7. In return for his plea to the attempted murder charge and charges of burglary to a dwelling and battery, the state attorney's office agreed to drop the other seven charges.

As part of the plea agreement, Fargo agreed to serve between three and 17 years in prison. The length of his sentence will be decided by Judge O.H. Eaton after a Sept. 21 sentencing hearing. Judge Eaton will sentence Fargo Oct. 16.

A plea of no contest means

Fargo admitted responsibility to the charges but does not accept civil liability for the charges.

Fargo's burglary and assault charges came when he broke down the door of Diana Hittell's home at 1815 Meltonville Ave. at about 1:45 a.m. Feb. 7, and assaulted Hittell when she came to the door.

The attempted murder charge resulted from Fargo entering the bedroom of the home, beating Charles Carter as he lay in bed, then shooting him in the head. Carter was admitted to Orlando Regional Medical Center and survived the wound.

Fargo was also charged with criminal mischief for breaking the door to the residence, two counts of battery for assaulting Carter with a television set, and for assaulting Hittell again; two counts of aggravated assault for pointing a gun at Carter and Hittell; and with shooting a gun inside a building.

Survey: College tuition rising nationally

By staff and wire reports

NEW YORK — The cost of attending a four-year private college in the Sanford-Lake Mary area has increased for the upcoming academic year as it has in other parts of the country.

The rising cost of attending area schools has mirrored national trends, a recent report by the College Board reveals. College students will pay an average of between 5 and 9 percent more for tuition and fees this year, the report says.

In its annual survey of college and university costs, the non-profit educational association also warned Wednesday that students could expect to pay between 6 and 7 percent more for campus room and board this fall.

Students at Stetson University, a private four-year school in DeLand, will see a 9.9 percent increase in their tuition bills, bringing the amount from $7,370 last year to $8,100. Their room and board will increase an average of 10.5 percent from $1,780 last year to $1,990 this year.

The University of Central Florida, a four-year public school, has increased the tuition for in-state students by 13.7 percent to $40.85 per credit hour — up from $35.23 last year.

In several recent articles concerning removal of a tree in Lake Mary to move a house, it was reported that the home was owned by J.R. Williams. Williams had relinquished the home on June 15 to an out-of-state charitable organization. He is not involved with moving the home.

year. Last year's out of state students paid $120.28 per credit hour; this year they will pay 9.4 percent more, or $132.82 per credit hour. This year's tuition hike also includes a $4.50 increase per credit hour that will be used for athletic fees.

Rollins College in Winter Park, a four-year private institution, has added an additional 8.9 percent to their tuition bills for this academic year. The increase brings the bill from $10,881 last year to $11,950 this year. Room and board will increase 8.6 percent from $3,488 last year to $3,815 today.

Seminole Community College, a two-year institution, has not increased its tuition at all in the last five years.

According to the student catalogue, the cost of attending the Sanford school has remained steady at $21 per credit hour for Florida residents while out of state residents pay $42 per credit hour.

According to the College Board survey, students at four-year public colleges will pay an average of $1,694 for tuition and fees in the 1989-1990 school year — up 7 percent from 1988-89.

Those attending two-year public colleges will pay an average of $642 for tuitions and

RIISING TUITION COSTS

- College students nationally will pay an average of between 5 and 9 percent more for tuition and fees this year, and between 6 and 7 percent more for campus room and board this fall.
- Students at Stetson University will see a 9.9 percent increase in their tuition bills, and a 10.5 percent increase in room and board fees this year.
- The University of Central Florida has increased in-state student tuition 13.7 percent and out-state student tuition 9.4 percent this year.
- Rollins College has added an additional 8.9 percent to their tuition bills and added 8.6 percent to room and board costs this year.
- Seminole Community College has not increased its tuition in the last five years.

fees, an increase of 5 percent.

Students at four-year and two-year private colleges will pay an average of $8,737 and $4,713 for tuition and fees — up 9 and 7 percent from last year.

But the College Board urged prospective students and their parents to check financial aid at different schools and not be misled by differences in costs between different schools.

"Students may not realize that more expensive colleges usually have more financial aid available and use more of their own funds for aid," said Donald Stewart, College Board president.

He said almost half of all college students receive some form of public or private assistance, with student aid reaching an all-time high of $26 billion in the coming year.

The survey also found that averages for tuition and fees "mask a wide range of charges." For example, tuition and fees at private four-year colleges range from $100 to $16,488 at the most and least expensive institutions, with half of these colleges charging between $5,500 and $7,200.

Among public four-year colleges, tuition and fees range from $100 to $3,672 at the most and least expensive institutions, with half of these colleges charging between $1,251 and $1,537.

Clarification

In several recent articles concerning removal of a tree in Lake Mary to move a house, it was reported that the home was owned by J.R. Williams. Williams had relinquished the home on June 15 to an out-of-state charitable organization. He is not involved with moving the home.

Abyss and ethics

The discovery of a treasure-laden 17th-century Spanish galleon off Florida is believed to be a multimillion dollar bonanza for the private business group that financed the exploration for it. Archaeologists believe the well-preserved vessel is even more valuable for its historical significance.

Underwater vehicles now are able to locate sunken ships at heretofore impossible depths where low temperatures and high pressure preserve them in a near-perfect state. Before the advent of high-technology deep dives, salvage was limited to wrecks in fairly shallow water, where currents, wave movement, oxygen, and sunlight had long since destroyed wooden hulls.

These expansive new techniques for underwater research have raised profound questions about the ethics of deep-sea treasure hunting. Historians believe, for instance, that sea-floor artifacts should belong to the world at large, adding to mankind's store of knowledge and wisdom. Private salvage groups, on the other hand, which risk their capital and often their lives to locate sunken wrecks and retrieve valuable artifacts, believe they are entitled to rewards that historians are unwilling or unable to pay them.

The galleon found 75 miles southwest of Key West was located in 1,500 feet of water and appears to be relatively intact. It is of greater interest to historians, therefore, than the usual ruin found in shallow water. If, as seems probable, this discovery turns out to be a preserved sailing ship from nearly 400 years ago, its value to historians would be incalculable.

Careful study could provide an insight into the past almost unmatched by any maritime discoveries so far. A mere handful of ships have survived even partially intact from ancient times, and this discovery could rival such finds as the Swedish warship Wasa which sank on its maiden voyage in 1628 and King Henry VIII's flagship, the Mary Rose, which lay preserved by mud for four centuries.

The Florida galleon is believed to be one of nine bound for Spain, all of which foundered in the area during a hurricane in 1622. It has been tentatively identified as the Merced, which was carrying 1.5 million pesos. Commendably, the private group that discovered it has called on archaeologists for salvage advice and has promised to make detailed maps showing the location of artifacts.

Such trusteeship will help the group to avoid accusations of plunder. But more importantly, it sets a valuable example for similar discoveries to come. Such sensible cooperation simply means that treasure hunters and historians alike can benefit from the riches of the deep.

BEN WATTENBERG

North American anti-Americanism

Somebody up there doesn't like us: Canadians. In a recent poll, a sample of 1,000 Canadians was asked to describe Americans in just one word. Brace yourself: Eight of the top 10 responses were "snobs," "pig-headed," "aggressive," "powerful," "obnoxious," "indifferent," "stupid" and "rich." (The other two answers were — whew! — "good" and "friendly.")

It's pretty clear that it's not just our acid rain policy that's been bothering them.

The poll was taken by Decima Research in Toronto and appeared in a July issue of Maclean's, Canada's largest circulation magazine. Devillingly, Maclean's/Decima simultaneously also polled an American sample.

Would you like to know what single words Americans used most frequently to describe Canadians? "Friendly," "nice," "neighbors," "wonderful," "satisfied," "normal" and — ugh! — "delightful."

It's an odd couple: the fat klutz waltzing with the demure damsel.

Curiously, American cosmic geopoliticians are concerned about anti-Americanism everywhere else in the world. If poll results like those above came in from Bangladesh or Burundi, there would be a task force at work. Results like that from Japan tend to shake the international economic system. In Europe, when Americans are described as obnoxious pig-headed snobs, we shudder about the future of NATO. Everyone is concerned about what Mexico thinks of us; you know, its our back door, and there are Communist guerrillas in Central America.

The standard solution for anti-Americanism is well-known: teach 'em about America, let 'em see our movies and television shows, let 'em read our books and hear our music, let 'em come visit. There is a small problem with that remedy for the Canadian situation: They do know us.

They're the largest tourist group we have. And Canada is drenched with U.S. popular culture: An overwhelming proportion of Canadians live within range of a U.S. television station.

Odd couple: fat klutz waltzing demure damsel.

What's bugging them up there?

Truth be told, the poll reveals clearly that we are indeed ignorant about our friendly, satisfied neighbors. Only 12 percent of Americans knew that Canada was our largest trading partner (Erroneously, 69 percent thought the answer was Japan). Only 11 percent of Americans knew that Brian Mulroney was the prime minister of Canada. (By contrast, 35 percent of Canadians knew that Dan Quayle was the American vice president.) Only 57 percent of Americans knew that the United States and Canada recently had signed a Free Trade Agreement — but 97 percent of Canadians knew it.

Maybe we ought to take a short course about our wonderful northern neighbors. We could begin by noting that not long ago (1984) a substantial percentage of Canadians (29 percent) thought it would be nice if Canada became part of the United States. Ho, ho! Today the rate is down to 14 percent. By contrast, 66 percent of Americans think it's a peachy idea.

Is all this a problem? It is a symptom of the problem that one even asks the question. If the nice Canadians were not such compatible neighbors, they'd surely be a big problem.

There are times in the course of human events when the best thing to do is not much. Maybe we just ought to leave bad enough alone.

DAVID S. BRODER

Fiscal policy courts disaster

WASHINGTON — One of the perverse rules of behavior of the Washington press corps is our tendency to savor being told secrets while ignoring what is on the public record. Eight years ago, there was a huge furor when William Greider published the previously private views of budget director David Stockman on the perils of the fiscal policy he had helped create and move through Congress earlier that year.

Stockman's phrases — his observations, for example, that "the hogs were really feeding" when the special-interest lobbies finished with the tax bill — created a sensation. Stockman had made the comments in what were originally off-the-record, one-on-one conversations with Greider.

The man who now holds Stockman's job as director of the Office of Management and Budget, Richard G. Darman, late last month sounded an equally urgent note of alarm about the selfishness of fiscal policy. But in contrast, he caused scarcely a ripple.

Darman's mistake was that he didn't leak his views to a single reporter but stood up and delivered them, of all places, at the National Press Club. If you want to be ignored by most of the press, apparently the place to go is the National Press Club.

Despite our deafness, what he had to say is every bit as important as Stockman's eight-year-old warning that the tax and spending decisions of President Reagan's first year had opened up the prospect of unending deficits — and the slow erosion of our economic independence. Indeed, the Darman speech can be read as Stockman II — another warning, from the man in the best position to know, of the peril of our current course of policy.

Darman called the deficit "one more symptom of" a cultural impatience, an unrestrained appetite for satisfying immediate wants immediately that he called "now-now-ism." It is, he said, a "formula for trouble" and "borders dangerously on imprudence."

"In our public policy," he said, "we consume today as if there were no tomorrow." The evidence:

Despite claims of progress in narrowing the budget deficit — achieved largely through phony bookkeeping devices — the public debt this year is expected to climb past the $3 trillion mark. Interest payments on that debt have risen to 15 percent of the budget, almost $180 billion that, as Darman said, "buys the future nothing and...buys the present nothing more than the ability to keep its borrowing game going."

The interest payments and the debt are far higher, if you use honest accounting methods, which the government has chosen not to do. "Indeed," said Darman, the trust funds for Social Security, Medicare and other transfer payments "that pretend to hold 'surpluses' for future beneficiaries in fact hold billions of dollars in unfunded IOUs. These are a little surprise for the workers of tomorrow left by the consumers of today."

Those are but two items in the bill of particulars he offered. It is too long for summary here, but it amply proved his contention that "collectively, we re engaged in a massive Backward Robin Hood transaction — robbing the future to give to the present."

It took some courage for Darman to say this, while serving in an administration whose motto remains the Bush campaign song refrain, "Don't worry. Be happy." It would be more admirable if Darman were prepared to set forth publicly the clear implications of the pattern to which he has pointed.

But in a meeting with reporters a few days after his speech, Darman ducked and dodged on budget-policy questions. He suggested that the deficit might again be cut below the (magnificently elastic) Gramm-Rudman-Hollings targets without new revenues and defended the administration's shell-game scheme for keeping the multi-billion-dollar cost of the savings-and-loan bailout "off-budget."

It would be nice if public servants as smart as Darman were also 100 percent consistent and principled. If he were, he would be pointing out that the needs he clearly identifies cannot be financed so long as the budget deficit sops up private savings and inhibits federal spending. These needs include an improved education system, the repair and modernization of our transportation system, an increase in the research and development investments on which our economic and technological advantage has rested, and the reassertion of America's leadership in space.

But Darman's refusal to cross the T's and dot the I's does not excuse the press' inattention to the obvious implications of his analysis.

We consume today as if there were no tomorrow.

NASA is victim of pork barrel

WASHINGTON — When it comes to money on Capitol Hill, Jamie Whitten is the man to see. The Democratic congressman from Mississippi has the combination to the safe.

As the chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, Whitten can make and break political careers by granting or denying money for hometown projects. It stands to reason that Whitten's home district is sitting pretty.

This session of Congress, Whitten, with help from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, delivered a multi-million-dollar gift to northern Mississippi — a plant to build a new generation of solid rocket motors for the space shuttle.

Never mind that the old solid rocket motors are working fine.

Never mind that NASA's own Aerospace Safety Advisory Panel recommended against the new motors.

Never mind that they will cost the taxpayers $1.5 billion over the next five years. The project is going to Whitten's district. End of debate.

"It's the chairman's (Whitten's) baby," one House appropriations staffer told us. "If the chairman wants it, he gets it."

It wouldn't matter if Whitten had authorized a surfboard factory. Most of his colleagues wouldn't question him because they are afraid he would squelch their own hometown projects.

The issue of a new solid rocket motor is far from settled within NASA. The safety panel issued a thick report in March wondering aloud why NASA would put its energies into a new "advanced" solid rocket motor. The existing "re-designed" motors have been working well since the shuttle program got back on its feet. In essence, the panel said, if it ain't broke, don't fix it.

The NASA officials who favor a new rocket motor sealed the deal when they decided to build the project in a never-used nuclear plant in Yellow Creek, Miss. Whitten saw jobs and votes, and from that point there was no turning back. The proposal was bounced over to the House Science, Space and Technology committee for an endorsement. They wrangled behind closed doors about a $121 million appropriation to begin research on the new motor next year. But, "If it wasn't in Whitten's district, I would have been surprised if we would have even considered it," said one committee staffer.

Committee sources told our associate Jim Lynch that Rep. Robert Roe, D-N.J., chairman of the space committee, tried to play hardball with Whitten. Roe is a big promoter of a space station and he privately threatened to block Whitten's plant if Whitten didn't support the space station.

The only one bold enough to challenge Whitten publicly was Rep. David Nagle, D-Iowa. He can't fathom why Congress should fund advanced shuttle rocket motors against the recommendation of the NASA safety panel.

When the dust settled, the appropriations committee had rubber-stamped its chairman's pet project and sent it to the House floor, where it was passed without a peep about Whitten's self-interest. A similar appropriations bill is working its way through the Senate with an escort of Southern senators.

CORRECTION — In a recent column on congressional travel to Eastern Europe, we mistakenly made a reference to Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., as being part of the delegation. It was Sen. Jim McClure, R-Idaho, who made the trip. Lugar did not participate.

If the chairman wants it, he gets it.

Iran, others communicate with U.S. about hostages

United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Bush, searching for a breakthrough that might free the U.S. hostages in Lebanon, is getting unprecedented messages from Iran and other sources, a White House spokesman said.

Assessing the developments in the dilemma, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater also said U.S. relations with Syria are prompting new optimism that a solution can be found for the civil strife in Lebanon.

"There seems to be a feeling any long-term solution to the hostage problem is going to require a change in the whole situation in Lebanon," Fitzwater told United Press International on Wednesday.

The spokesman's comments marked the first time a White House official has stressed the role of besieged Lebanon and its conflict as part of the solution of the hostage problem.

Fitzwater observed that a new dialogue is developing with Syria and a new tone is becoming apparent in third-party contacts with Iran.

"We're seeing a series of new

relationships developing in the Middle East," Fitzwater said. "It's unclear at this point what kind of dialogue may take place."

"In this case, we're seeing messages that we've never seen before. ... There is enough going on that we can be hopeful."

Bush has emphasized diplomacy in trying to resolve the hostage problem, but he has also maintained a heavy buildup of U.S. warships in the Mediterranean Sea.

In an interview Wednesday with the Hearst Newspapers, Bush said, "No president is going to sit idly by and see American after American executed to achieve some end."

He also told Hearst he has not informed Iran what would happen if other American hostages are killed.

"I don't have to advertise to them," Bush said. "All they have to do is turn on some network and see ships going in certain directions, moving around and have a lot of speculation. That is all that is needed."

Bush told reporters Wednesday that he is willing to talk, but will not engage in any quid pro quo to get the eight remaining U.S. hostages freed.

"I hope I'm open-minded to talk and to exercise every diplomatic channel I can to free these Americans, and no Americans are going to be content until these people are free."

"Life is too precious for me to stick my head in the sand and miss a signal."

Hezbollah blames Israel for 'setback'

United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The pro-Iranian Hezbollah movement has accused Jerusalem of blocking efforts to negotiate the release of Western hostages in Lebanon and vowed to press on with its "martyrdom struggle" against Israeli forces.

The remarks Wednesday referred to Israel's refusal to free Lebanese Shiite clergyman Sheik Abdul Karim Obaid, seized by Israeli commandos July 28, and about 450 other Arabs in exchange for the release of one American hostage.

The Revolutionary Justice Organization, an offshoot of Hezbollah, said Sunday it would release Joseph Cicippio if Israel freed its prisoners. Israel refused because the offer did not include three Israelis held hostage in Lebanon.

"We hold Israel responsible for the setback in efforts that were exerted to release Western captives," an official spokesman for Hezbollah said. Hezbollah has been linked to several fundamentalist groups holding hostages in Lebanon.

"The racist Zionists appear to be completely ready to sacrifice the others (hostages) for the sake of their interests," the spokesman said.

Hezbollah claimed responsibility for an attack Wednesday on an Israeli convoy in southern Lebanon that wounded five.

Drug plan focuses on production

Proposal would spend millions to cut cocaine production, use

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — A plan to cut cocaine use in half would funnel hundreds of millions of dollars to cocaine-producing nations and drug-ridden inner cities, but not increase efforts to intercept illegal drug shipments into the United States.

The plan, a marked shift in the nation's anti-drug strategy, was outlined by the Los Angeles Times today, which cited government officials and a draft of the plan drawn up by federal drug czar William J. Bennett.

The $6.1 billion plan is intended to cut production and use of drugs, a change from Reagan administration policies to prevent the drugs from entering the United States.

It's goal is to reduce drug consumption by half within a decade and by 10 percent within the next two years. The proposal is to be presented to Bush on Friday during meetings of the National Security Council and the Domestic Policy Council, the Times said.

The plan would more than triple military and economic assistance to Peru, Bolivia and Colombia, whose economies have become dependent on the drug trade. American advisers and troops would help the countries halt the drug trade there.

According to a draft of Bennett's plan, as described by the Times, the program would more than double federal money for state and local law enforcement and increase by 50 percent federal spending on drug treatment programs. The plan also endorses President Bush's $600 million proposal to increase the number of federal jail cells by 85 percent.

Bennett's plan, if approved by the president and Congress, would add $2 billion to the federal government's current anti-drug spending. Administration officials did not specify how the program would be paid for.

Certain state funding would be tied to new federal conditions under the proposal. For example, for states to continue receiving highway funds, the plan requires drivers license restrictions to be imposed on convicted drug users, the Times said.

The foreign aid portion of Bennett's plan was not described in the draft report obtained by the newspaper, but the Times said federal sources confirmed that at least $300 million in federal aid is proposed for drug-producing nations, which currently get about $57 million in aid.

The draft report lists Los Angeles, New York, Miami, Houston and the Southwest border with Mexico as "high-intensity drug-trafficking areas" that could qualify for federal aid. An official said, however, that final designations will not be made until early next year.

By rejecting new spending for interdiction programs along the border, the plan would delay several projects the government once said would be pivotal in the war on drugs, probably including the deployment of radar balloons that could spot low-flying planes that currently evade higher aiming radars.

Inmate releases hostage, kills self

McCORMICK, S.C. — A convicted murderer took two guards and another inmate hostage Wednesday and held them for 11 hours before releasing them and killing himself with an automatic pistol, authorities said.

The prisoner, Thomas Walden, 42, shot himself twice in the neck with a .25 caliber pistol at 10:27 p.m. EDT, said State Corrections Department spokesman Francis Archibald.

"The hostages were released unharmed before he shot himself," Archibald said.

Walden, who was serving a life sentence plus 40 years for murder and armed robbery, had made three demands: to see a lawyer, talk to his wife and be shown a written copy of his prison record.

Prison officials immediately set up contact with the inmate by telephone and tried for more than five hours to persuade him to release the three hostages.

Threats on Bush taken seriously

OAKLAND, Calif. — Secret Service agents are investigating a suspected bank robber's claim that inner voices drove him to follow President Bush around the nation so he could kill him.

John Spencer Daughette, 34, told his bizarre story to Oakland police after he was arrested last Friday as a suspect in a $1,400 bank robbery. He was scheduled to appear before a U.S. Magistrate today for a bail hearing.

While he was being questioned about the robbery, Daughette said he had robbed seven other banks throughout the United States, partially to finance his stalking of the president.

He also said he made a serious assassination attempt in Michigan in April.

"It is important for us to look at exactly why he has made these statements," said Richard McDrew, special agent in charge of the Secret Service in San Francisco.

Daughette claimed he was prepared to assassinate Bush in Hamtramck, Mich., when Bush spoke to a crowd of about 4,000 people. He said he chose a spot from which to fire, but could not reach it because of metal detectors near the president.

While Daughette has no criminal record, investigators in the Midwest said he has told them of being hospitalized at least once within the past three years because he heard recurring voices.

Union officials found shot to death

RIDGEFIELD PARK, N.J. — A father and his son, both leaders of a longshoremen's union local, were found shot to death in the union office, police said Thursday.

The bodies of Richard Costello and his son, Richard Costello Jr., were found in a second floor office of Local 1964 of the International Longshoremen's Association, police said. The elder Costello was president of the local and his son was the local's business manager.

A fellow union worker telephoned police when he found the bodies at 8:40 p.m. Wednesday in the union local's health insurance office in Ridgely Park, said Officer Gene Hammond of the Ridgely Park police department.

"Both men were shot several times," Hammond said, adding that they apparently were shot with a pistol. No weapon was recovered.

Hammond said no other employees in the building reported hearing any disturbance at the time of the shootings.

Imelda Marcos takes Fifth at hearing

HONOLULU (UPI) — Imelda Marcos tearfully defended her husband's rule in the Philippines, but took the Fifth Amendment more than two dozen times when questioned about her financial assets during a federal immigration hearing.

Marcos, 60, appeared at the hearing Wednesday to appeal a detention order by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service that prevents her from leaving the country.

From United Press International reports

Gen. Powell tapped to head Joint Chiefs

United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Bush has decided to name Gen. Colin Powell as chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, making him the first black to command all American military forces worldwide, government officials confirmed Wednesday.

Powell, 52, a four-star Army general, was a top aide and protégé of former Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci. He also served in a high-ranking position under former Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

President Reagan ordered Powell back from Europe to reform the National Security Council at the White House in the wake of the Iran-Contra scandal, the worst of Reagan's presidency.

Earlier this year, Powell was awarded his fourth star.

In an interview, Powell noted that he was the second black officer in U.S. Army history to become a general, adding: "In time, that will not be something one should take note of at all."

Currently, Powell is in charge of all U.S. troops based in the United States. He has long been

Gen. Colin Powell a rising star in the military. As Reagan's national security adviser, Powell joined Reagan in meetings with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

Powell was born April 5, 1937, and rose from the streets of the South Bronx in New York City to the rank of Army second lieutenant through the Reserve Officer Training Corps program at City College of New York.

Phone strikes continue on east, west coasts

United Press International

The communications breakdown between three regional telephone companies and their striking unions continued unchecked today as frustration mounted for thousands of strikers and millions of customers on both coasts.

The five-day walkout against the Bell Atlantic, NYNEX and Pacific Telesis telephone companies has idled more than 150,000 employees and slowly eroded services for millions of customers in 15 states and the nation's capital.

Police arrested 49 strikers Wednesday in New York state and Massachusetts. There also were more reports of vandalism.

Workers represented by the Communications Workers of America and International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers unions struck Sunday after talks between labor and management collapsed over wage and benefit issues.

Bell Atlantic officials in Washington tentatively scheduled discussions with union negotiators Thursday after talks on Tuesday failed to produce any significant progress.

Negotiations between the unions and the NYNEX telephone company in New York remained at an impasse. Pacific Telesis officials said they were continuing their informal talks, although no progress was reported.

Prolific art forger arrested in California

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Major art forgers are rarely caught, but authorities say they have nabbed the nation's most prolific faker, a man who sold hundreds of phony Picassos, Mirros and Salvador Dalis from Beverly Hills to Japan.

Investigators said Wednesday they have charged Anthony Tetro, 39, of Claremont, Calif., an upscale suburb of Los Angeles, with 44 counts of forgery and conspiracy to commit grand theft.

"All our indications are that Tetro created these works of art alone and that he was the single biggest forger in the United States," District Attorney Ira Reiner told a news conference.

More than 250 forged paintings, watercolors and prints were confiscated in Beverly Hills, New York, Chicago, Boca Raton, Fla., and Japan.

One of the confiscated works, a more than 8-foot forgery of a Dalí painting "Lincoln and Dalí Vision," would have been worth more than $2 million if genuine.

Tetro was arrested July 31, but it was not announced until Wednesday. Free on $10,000 bail, he was expected to surrender for arraignment Friday.

It's all over but the shouting.

Polish opposition may reject cabinet

WARSAW, Poland — A spokesman for one of the political parties in the communist-led coalition government said Wednesday it will probably reject the Cabinet of Prime Minister Czeslaw Kiszczak when it is presented to Parliament.

Aleksander Bendkowski, assessing the results of a meeting of the Peasant Party parliamentary caucus, said there is great dissatisfaction with the current leadership.

"The deputies came with negative reflections on Kiszczak's appointment as premier," Bendkowski said in an interview with Polish television. "On the grounds of the opinions expressed so far, I can say the club will vote against the Cabinet presented by General Kiszczak."

He also said the caucus is seriously considering an offer by Solidarity leader Lech Walesa to join Solidarity in a coalition government that would exclude the Communist Party.

"The club is susceptible to the proposition of Lech Walesa and questions its participation in the current coalition," he said.

The Peasant Party has 78 members in Parliament and the Democratic Party has 27. Together with the Communist Party, they form a majority but several deputies from the two smaller parties have recently abandoned the coalition on crucial votes.

Walesa's offer to the coalition partners took the Solidarity parliamentary caucus by surprise.

Both its leader Bronislaw Geremek and Solidarity spokesman Janusz Onyszkiewicz said Wednesday they did not know about the offer beforehand. Onyszkiewicz attributed that to inadequate communication.

Previously, Walesa and most of the Solidarity caucus had been saying Solidarity should stay out of the national government completely until it could be assured of the power it needed at the regional and local levels.

Toxic waste ship departs for Canada

LONDON — British port authorities barred a Soviet cargo ship from unloading 6 tons of toxic wastes from Canada and asked the ship to return home following protests at the port of Tilbury, a port spokesman said Wednesday.

The Khudozhnik Saryan was met at dawn by protesters from the environmental group Greenpeace, which had promised to block the shipment of polychlorinated biphenyls, known as PCBs, from a Quebec power company.

As the storm of protest over the ship grew, the Khudozhnik Saryan left the British port of Tilbury Wednesday night to return to Canada, officials said.

A port spokesman said authorities at Tilbury, about 20 miles east of London, decided the cargo would not be unloaded because of "public concern and the environmental issues."

John McNab, chief executive of the port, said the chemical shipment posed an unacceptable risk to dockers and the community. The port will not accept future shipments.

PCBs, once widely used as a coolant in electrical transformers, have been linked to cancer and liver disorders. Most nations have banned them.

The ship was met at dawn as it entered the port by Greenpeace protesters in three motorized inflatable rafts. After two attempts, the protesters succeeded in attaching a banner with a skull and crossbones to the ship's hull with magnets.

Bhopal gas leak survivors demonstrate BHOPAL, India — Police clashed with demonstrators trying to occupy an abandoned Union Carbide plant Wednesday, injuring at least 25 people and arresting 500 more, many of them survivors of the 1984 Bhopal gas leak tragedy, police said.

Police said an undisclosed number of officers were also hurt in the violence that erupted during a protest by 2,000 people on the first day of a week-long "Union Carbide quit India week."

Abdul Jaffar Khan, an organizer of the movement, said protesters wanted the government to ban all Union Carbide products from India and to close the company's plants.

Ethnic Russians strike in Estonia

United Press International

MOSCOW — Ethnic Russians in Estonia went on strike, shutting down cargo operations at two train stations and at the Baltic republic's main airport to protest a new electoral law they fear will disenfranchise them.

The work stoppage Wednesday was the second strike in Estonia less than a month.

At the end of July, the Russians who make up 27 percent of Estonia's population of 1.5 million closed two shipyards and 15 plants to protest the legislation then in draft form.

Estonia's parliament Tuesday passed the measure requiring two years' residency in the republic to vote in local elections and five years to hold political office. The Russians promptly renewed their strike.

"According to the republican Council of Strike Committees, 19 industrial enterprises ... joined the strike today," the official news agency Tass said. "Three branches of the Tallinn Automobile Transport Association, two freight railway stations and the Civil Aviation Board also declared a strike."

"An (Estonian News Agency) correspondent was told at the headquarters of the strike committees' council that the Tallinn airport was not handling cargo flights," Tass said.

The law passed Tuesday cut in half the draft measure's original residency requirements but did not eliminate them. The debate grew so furious that lawmakers had to call a recess at one point.

"It is not the best of laws that we have adopted," Tass quoted lawmaker A. Lukoshin as saying after the vote. "It guarantees universal suffrage to practically all Estonians and deprives of it tens of thousands of people of other nationalities."

By establishing residency requirements, Estonia effectively bars the tens of thousands of ethnic Russian workers living in the republic on short-term contracts from voting in local elections.

The republic's 1 million ethnic Estonians who comprise two-thirds of its population have been pressing for greater political and economic autonomy under President Mikhail Gorbachev's reforms.

Last month the Supreme Soviet, the national parliament in Moscow, granted Estonia and its two neighboring Baltic republics, Latvia and Lithuania, regional economic autonomy effective January 1990. The law is expected to free them in part from Moscow's central-planning system.

The Estonians also have been pressing for an annulment of the Hitler-Stalin pact of Aug. 23, 1939, which they charge ended Estonian independence and led to its incorporation into the Soviet Union in 1940.

A commission of the Supreme Soviet is now studying the pact and will make a recommendation that is being eagerly awaited by the Baltic republics as the 50th anniversary of the non-aggression treaty nears.

Preparations are under way by the Estonians and Latvians to form a human chain between their capitals of Riga and Tallinn on the 50th anniversary of the accord. Between 150,000 and 300,000 people are expected to take part.

After Estonia's inclusion in the Soviet Union in 1940, Moscow began settling Russians in the tiny Baltic republic while shipping Estonian nationalists to labor camps.

Many Russians who work in Estonia go there on contracts and work alongside Estonians and those Russians who have lived there now for close to 50 years.

Mexican train plunges into river

At least 87 killed as train heads north

United Press International

MEXICO CITY — A train bound for the California border with 480 passengers aboard plunged into a river where heavy rains had washed out a bridge, killing at least 87 people and injuring 85 others.

Authorities said eight of 15 cars on the Extra 409 train fell into the Pichigulla river Wednesday morning in the accident between the towns of Bamoa and Guamuchil, 393 miles from the U.S.-Mexican border.

A steady rain hampered efforts to recover bodies still trapped inside the mangled coach cars.

Horacio Roldan, a police spokesman in the state of Sinaloa, where the accident occurred at about 4:30 a.m., said several of the victims were laborers and their families heading to the United States in search of work. There were no reports of American casualties.

Roldan said 87 people had been confirmed dead so far and 85 others were injured, 20 of them seriously. Conductor Jeronimo Cardona and mechanic Emilio Gonzalez were both reported missing.

The train, which originated in Guadalajara, had stopped in Mazatlan and was headed north to the border town of Mexicali, across from Calexico, Calif., when the accident occurred.

The conductor apparently had only a few seconds' warning that the rail bridge over the Pichigulla had been washed away and was unable to brake the train in time, said Fabricio Gonzalez, a spokesman for the state government of Sinaloa.

Trains traveling along that route often carry U.S. citizens vacationing in Mazatlan, but there no reports of Americans among the dead and injured.

"We have not been able to confirm whether there were any Americans aboard," said Clint Wright, deputy press officer at the U.S. Embassy in Mexico City.

U.S. airplanes join search for Leland

United Press International

NAIROBI, Kenya — U.S. military aircraft today joined the massive air search for a small plane that disappeared over western Ethiopia with U.S. Rep. Mickey Leland and 13 others aboard, U.S. Embassy officials said.

A U.S. C-130 cargo jet, the first of several American military aircraft headed for Ethiopia, flew in from Britain to assist a fleet of private and Ethiopian government planes in the search for the twin-engine Otter that vanished in stormy weather Monday, said Jim Haley, spokesman for the U.S. Embassy in the Ethiopian capital of Addis Ababa.

A second C-130 was expected to arrive later in the morning, followed by two massive C-141 Starlifters carrying medic evac specialists and spare parts for the C-130s, Haley said. Officials in Washington said a high-altitude U-2 spy plane and four military helicopters also would join the search.

Thursday's effort was likely to extend across Ethiopia's western border into Sudan, the spokesman said. Leland, chairman of the House Select Committee on Hunger, had been traveling to the Fuguido refugee camp near the Sudanese border.

Ethiopian military and police aircraft began the third day of their search Thursday morning

Japan's new leader plans visit to U.S.

United Press International

TOKYO — New Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu, seeking to shore up diplomatic relations hurt by a succession of revolving-door leaders, plans to meet President Bush in Washington next month to reaffirm strong U.S.-Japan ties, government sources said today.

Kaifu, 58, elected as Japan's third prime minister in as many months, was officially inaugurated along with his 20-member Cabinet by Emperor Akihito at Tokyo's moated Imperial Palace.

For the first time in history the Cabinet includes two women, whose appointment is viewed as a calculated move by the scandal-battered ruling Liberal Democratic Party to counter an opposition-led women's revolution in traditionally male-dominated politics.

Kaifu wasted little time in mapping out plans for Japanese leaders to attend a series of international meetings to fill the political void caused by the resignation of Souzuke Uno, and his predecessor Noboru Takeshita.

IN BRIEF

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Boddicker continues Royal hex

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Mike Boddicker fought through a persistent shoulder problem to keep his winning streak at Royals Stadium alive.

Boddicker pitched a six-hitter over 6 2-3 innings and Danny Heep connected for a two-run homer Wednesday night, giving the Boston Red Sox a 6-2 victory over Kansas City.

"There was only a 78 mph fastball and the slider tonight," said Boddicker, who improved to 10-5. "I still have that knot in my shoulder and I can't really pop it."

Even without the sharp fastball, Boddicker hasn't been beaten in Royals Stadium since May 27, 1983.

"A fastball only if you call it that. It was nothing but a straight ball."

In action Wednesday night, Milwaukee mauled Detroit 6-1; Minnesota blanked Baltimore 7-0; Cleveland downed New York 7-4; Texas trimmed Toronto 4-3; Chicago bested Oakland 3-2 in 11 innings; and California clubbed Seattle 4-1.

Chang upset, Courier advances

LIVINGSTON, N.J. — Australian Jason Stoltenberg upset top-seed Michael Chang Wednesday night in a second-round match and advanced to the quarterfinals at the $125,000 Swiss Army Knife Open.

Stoltenberg, served seven aces and displayed a strong ground game in eliminating Chang 6-3, 7-6 (7-4), in an 84-minute match.

In other second-round matches, Sanford-born Jim Courier defeated Alex Antonitsch of Austria 6-1, 6-1. Chris Bailey of Britain ousted Rich Fromberg of Australia 6-3, 7-5 and Jim Grabb of Tucson, Ariz. eliminated Jeff Tarango of Manhattan Beach, Calif., 6-4, 6-3.

"It's my biggest victory," said Stoltenberg, the world's 113th ranked player. "This is the first time I have ever beaten a player in the top ten."

FOOTBALL

Bucs look to play in Scotland

HOUSTON — The Houston Oilers and Tampa Bay Buccaneers could become the first NFL teams to play a game in Scotland.

Negotiations are under way for the two clubs to play an exhibition game next year in Edinburgh.

"Yes, it's true," Tommy Smith, the Oilers' executive assistant to the president, said Tuesday. "It's pending league approval. We're very excited about the possibility of playing a game over there. It's such a beautiful country."

If the Oilers and Buccaneers, who begin their exhibition seasons Saturday night in Tampa Stadium, do make the trip next year, Scotland would be only the third European country to host an NFL game.

London is the city of the annual American Bowl while last year, Minnesota and Chicago played an exhibition game at Goteborg, Sweden.

Murphy powers Braves past LA

LOS ANGELES — Dale Murphy hit a pair of home runs and drove in five runs Wednesday night, powering the Atlanta Braves to a 6-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Murphy clubbed two home runs for the 30th time in his career and the second time this season. The Atlanta slugger has 35 home runs against the Dodgers, including 20 at Dodger Stadium, the most by any active player.

Pete Smith, 3-11, posted his first victory since June 17 after three losses and five no-decisions. He allowed five hits and two runs over five-plus innings, walking one and striking out one.

Rookie John Wetteland, 3-4, lasted five innings, giving up four hits and two walks and striking out three.

Elsewhere in the NL Wednesday, New York routed Philadelphia 6-0; Chicago shut out Montreal 3-0; San Francisco hammered Cincinnati 10-1; St. Louis downed Pittsburgh 5-2 and San Diego tripped Houston 2-1.

Three teams tied for first in men's softball

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald correspondent

And then there were three. The race in the Sanford Men's Slowpitch Softball Class "C" League fell into a three-way tie for first place between The Barn, the Wrecking Crew, and Creative Invasion after Wednesday night's games at Chase Park.

The Barn suffered its first loss of the second half when it dropped an 8-7 decision to the Wrecking Crew and Creative Invasion came from behind to defeat Heathrow 7-4. In the other contest, Ken Kerna Transmissions handed Mobilite a 18-1 defeat.

The Barn, Wrecking Crew and Invasion all have 4-1 records. Ken Kerna is 2-3. Mobilite is 1-4 and Heathrow is 0-5.

In their game on Wednesday, The Barn jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the top of the first inning on singles by Farmer, Brasser, Meeka and Collins and a double by Garner.

The Crew cut the lead in half as Heath Short and Steve Pridgen drove in a pair of second-inning runs with RBI singles, but The Barn went back up by three in the third on an error and a sacrifice fly by Meeka.

A four run rally in the fourth inning finally gave The Crew its first lead of the night. Pridgen singled in two runs. Tim Winkle hit an RBI sacrifice fly and Stacey Biles had an RBI single to score for the runs.

After The Barn used a pair of singles and an error to score two runs and retake the lead in the top of the fifth, The Crew came back and won the game with a pair of runs in the sixth. Tony Cox led off with a walk and went to third when Jeff Kruger's fly to left was dropped for an error. Short and Pridgen then hit sacrifice flies to win the game.

Doing the damage for the Crew were Pridgen (two singles, one run scored and four RBI), Tommy Winkle (two singles) and Short (one single, two runs scored and one RBI).

Cox and Kruger each singled once and scored twice while Wilkes singled and scored a run. Biles had one single and one RBI, James Serna hit a single and Tim Winkle had one RBI.

For The Barn, Meeka had two singles, two runs scored and two RBI as Brasser contributed two singles and three runs scored. Farmer added a triple, single and one run scored while Garner had a double, one run scored and two RBI. Collins had a single and one RBI, and Reddington, Imes and Molenaar each singled.

Creative Invasion fell behind 4-2 after three innings but refused to Academy gets past Irvine, Calif.

From staff reports

BASEBALL CITY — Wes Rinker's Florida Baseball Academy traveled to Boardwalk and Baseball Wednesday afternoon to whip Irvine, Calif., 6-2 behind the pitching of Steve Haight and Paul Giambalvo.

WRFB ran its record to 23-14 and will return to action today with a doubleheader, opening with Tustin, Calif. at 10 a.m. before playing Mater Dei, Calif. at 1:00 p.m.

"We didn't really play a very good game," Wes Rinker said. "We made four errors, walked five people and hit a batter. That's allowing too many free base runners."

Irvine opened the game's scoring in the top of the first when Mike Davis walked and moved to third on a Storm Meinkle double. Both base runners then scored when Pascaul Ramos tripled to give Irvine a 2-0 lead.

The Academy picked up a single run in the top of the second. Tim Krier led off with a walk and stole second before Mark McClintic singled him in to trim the lead to 2-1.

WRFB came up with two runs in the fifth as McClintic led off with a single before Mark Bellhorn followed with a single that placed runners on the corners. Tyler Iller then singled up the middle to score a run. When Iller stole second, the throw skipped away from the second baseman and into center field, allowing Bellhorn to score and give the Academy a 3-2 lead.

In the top of the seventh, WRFB came up with three more runs during a two-out rally. Haight started things off with a single and

Kemper Lakes in great shape to end a memorable decade of golf

United Press International

HAWTHORN WOODS, Ill. — The final major golf championship of the 1980s opens Thursday over a course that until this week had been a well-kept secret.

After this week, however, the Kemper Lakes Golf Club could be one of the most talked about courses in the country.

The 71st PGA Championship will be the 40th major event of the decade, bringing to a close a dramatic 10-year period in which a host of memorable shots were inserted into golf's scrapbook.

Tom Watson's chip at the 17th hole of the 1982 U.S. Open, Bob Tway's bunker shot at the final hole of the 1986 PGA, Larry Mize's sudden death chip-in at the 1987 Masters and Sandy Lyle's approach at the final hole of the 1988 Masters all became moments to remember.

And the challenging nature of the Kemper Lakes course could mean another such moment is in store this week.

"This is a great, great golf course," leading money winner Tom Kite said. "Usually, the old-style courses like the ones at the U.S. Open have holes where you can ease up. There aren't any of those here."

"This is a new course, but it is not like most of the newer courses you see. After this week, this course will

Dolphins sign ex-Gator Oliver; FSU's Smith still out

United Press International

MIAMI — The Miami Dolphins Wednesday signed one of their first-round draft choices, former Florida safety Louis Oliver.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed, but it was reportedly worth over $2 million over four years.

Oliver, who is 6-foot-2 and 228 pounds, was the 25th player picked in the draft and is expected to start at free safety this year. Miami Coach Don Shula said there was a chance he would play Monday night in Miami's exhibition opener against the Chicago Bears.

Oliver said he was tired of holding out, and demanded this week that the negotiating process be accelerated by talking by telephone to owner Joe Robbie, who is in Ireland on a business trip.

"I was watching the preseason games on television over the weekend and I couldn't take being out any longer," Oliver said. "I knew we were going to play Chicago this weekend and I just wanted to be there.

"They were willing to wait, but I said go ahead and make that call (to Robbie) because I was going crazy."

"I haven't been able to sleep. I was tossing and turning all the time. I was just glad they got things worked out so I could go to work."

Oliver said he worked out daily, and had recently begun working out twice a day in Chicago.

"I feel I'm ready to go in and I feel like everything should fall into place. I'm sure I missed a lot of conditioning, a lot of plays and coverage, but I came down during the five-week (off-season) program and I pretty much got everything in, so now it's just a matter of going out, looking at it on the field and just recognizing it," Oliver said.

The signing leaves running back Sammie Smith as the Dolphins' only unsigned rookie.

Smith, who gave up his final year of eligibility at Florida State to enter the draft, was the draft's ninth pick overall. He is not believed to be close to signing.

Smith could be waiting for No. 7 pick Tim Worley of Georgia to reach an agreement with the Pittsburgh Steelers and try to negotiate a similar contract.

Four veterans also are holding out. Linebacker Mark Brown and guard Tom Toth are negotiating new contracts. Wide receiver Mark Clayton and linebacker John Offerdahl are signed but are in the option year of their pacts.

Oliver had been projected as a much higher draft choice than 25th. After the first 10 players were selected and Oliver was still available, ESPN asked Oliver about reports linking him to possible drug involvement.

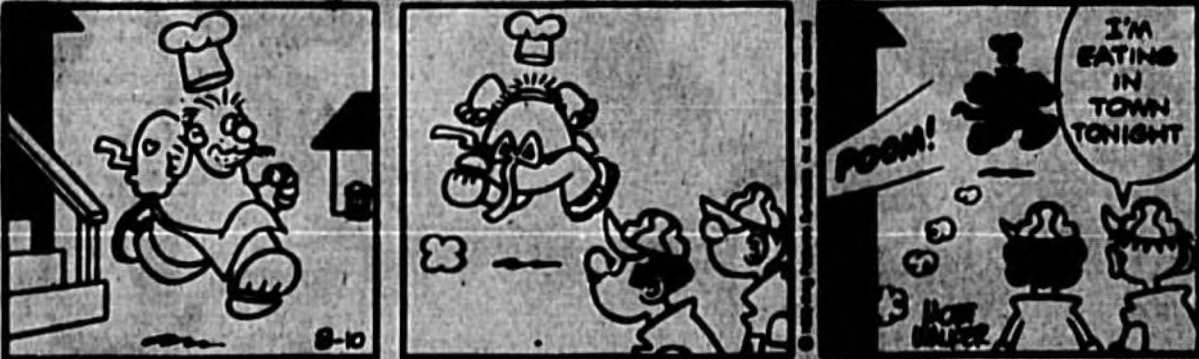

Oliver denied those reports, and several NFL executives criticized ESPN for publicizing the rumor. They said there were no such reports.

Cold feet may indicate bad circulation, nerves

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a problem with cold feet. Three to four blankets, socks and the like don't help. DEAR READER: Cold, stinging feet can be the first sign of a blood circulation problem or neuropathy (nerve malfunction) in your lower extremities. Circulatory deficiencies are often caused by age-related arteriosclerotic buildup in blood vessels. When insufficient blood reaches the feet, they can feel prickly and cold. Neuropathy is a common consequence of metabolic diseases, such as anemia and diabetes. I suspect that vascular disease is the cause of your problem, because you are on medication for high blood pressure. However, you should ask your doctor about this.

While you're at it, question your doctor about anemia, diabetes, kidney disease, Lyme disease (an infection caused by a tick bite), and other ailments that are associated with the symptoms you describe. Finally, ask your doctor to consider the possibility that one or more of your medicines may be contributing to the problem. For example, by reducing circulation at the same time they lower blood pressure, many anti-hypertensive drugs can cause cold, prickly feet.

I believe your doctor is the logical person to sort out the possible causes of your complaint.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've always had either sodium pentothal or nitrous oxide for dental extractions. Is this advisable since I'm now 64?

DEAR READER: The choice of dental anesthesia is a decision best left to your dentist or oral

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
North took the blitzkrieg approach. When he made a forcing jump raise in hearts and South cue-bid the spade ace, he simply asked for aces and bid six. No doubt he hoped that South held three clubs, so that a spade could be shed from dummy on South's club ace. When the spade 10 was led, declarer's first chance was that West had led away from the king. But dummy's queen drew the king from East. Now a 2-2 heart split would leave declarer positioned to make the slam just by guessing who held the diamond queen. But king of hearts and a heart to the ace left East holding a good heart trick. What was left now? If diamonds were 3-2, it would do declarer no good to guess the diamond, since

East would ruff in and cash the jack of spades to beat the hand. The only chance for declarer would be to find East with four diamonds. If East did have four, he would be more likely to hold the queen. So, in dummy now with the ace of hearts, declarer led the nine of diamonds and let it ride when East played low. A second diamond was then finessed to the 10, and the king of diamonds was cashed. Declarer reached dummy with a club and played ace of diamonds, throwing a spade as East had to follow with the queen. The last diamond led declarer get rid of his last spade, and the slam was made. Lucky, yes. But declarer played for the only combination of cards that would let him make the slam.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Oost
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Aug. 11, 1989

A number of very interesting changes could be in store for you in the year ahead. Some will happen slowly, while others could occur in the twinkling of an eye. This should appeal to you because of your innate interest in variety.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you can't comfortably liberate the cash you need for pleasurable pursuits today, it's best you face the fact honestly and revise your plans accordingly. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Guard against inclinations today to blame others for conditions over which you or they do not have control. Your targets will not appreciate being made scapegoats.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Inside information should be taken with a grain of salt today. Believing all that you hear could get you off course or lead you up a blind alley.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Generosity is an admirable quality. Today, however, don't waste your kindness on known ingrates. Focus on recipients who are as open-handed and appreciative as yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Dominating the conversation, regardless of how interesting your topics are, won't enhance your image today. Step back a few paces and let others have the floor.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Although you're not usually prone to gossip, you might have a hard time today keeping silent about some intriguing tidbits you recently heard. Spreading unsubstantiated rumors could do another injury.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Even though you might be bored to tears today if you have to contend with a pal who always does a lot of talking but never has anything to say, at least try to be tolerant.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The chances of career associates seeing your points of view are extremely slim today. Should a controversial subject come up for discussion, don't get too deeply involved.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Do not use wishful thinking as a substitute for productivity today. If you want to get something done, you're going to have to go through the whole physical procedure.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Before finalizing your plans today, it's best you consult with those you are including in your activities. Complications could result if you later discover they're not in accord with your ideas.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Family issues that evoke opposing points of view should be avoided if possible today. Solutions to these disagreements aren't likely to be found.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If someone goes out of the way to be helpful to you today, don't take it for granted that this person knows you appreciate such efforts. Be sure to voice your "thank you."

LaVonne Volkmann
Sales Manager

Hi! I would like to introduce myself and let you know we are presently hiring associates to join our team. If you would like to work a career and not just a job, we need to talk. We are the largest ERA office in the area, and we have already closed over $40 million this year. Let us hear from you, and maybe the next listings we advertise could be yours.
