Police arrest murder suspect

SANFORD — A Sanford man is charged with murder and held without bond today, accused of the shooting death of another Sanford man Tuesday afternoon. Joseph Ceron Dorlus, age about 26, of 103 E. 13th St., was fatally wounded at his house.

About four hours after the slaying, Feto Aladin, 27, of 2425 E. 21st St., was charged with murder and use of a firearm in a felony. The arrest came after Aladin was questioned at the Sanford police station.

Witnesses told Sanford police they heard three shots at Dorlus house at about 3:47 p.m. Dorlus suffered multiple wounds. He was transported to Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford, where he was pronounced dead at 4:31 p.m.

Police said that Aladin made the statement, "I was at work and the came to my house and beat my wife with a gun, so I killed him."

The location and time of the alleged beating of Aladin's wife Glenda Yvonne Aladin, 20, was not reported by Sanford police. Police also did not report a possible reason for that attack.

Rocket attack kills 11

MOSCOW — A rebel rocket barrage on the Afghan capital of Kabul during the morning rush hour today killed 11 people and wounded at least 26 others, the Tass news agency said.

Eleven people were killed and 26 others wounded, according to preliminary data, this morning when four areas of the Afghan capital came under rocket attack, Tass said.

It said 23 rockets exploded in downtown streets as people were rushing to work. The attack came from the area northwest of the city, it said.

Cruise ship fires investigated

MIAMI — The chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board, surprised to learn of one cruise ship fire while investigating another, has called for a full accounting of fires aboard ships sailing from Florida.

Chairman James Burnett asked the safety board's staff Tuesday to investigate the history of such fires aboard cruise ships in Florida, in cooperation with the U.S. Coast Guard.

"I think it has become quite obvious to us that we have something here that can not be sloughed off," Burnett said in an interview. "Too many warning signs."

Burnett and safety investigators heard testimony Tuesday from five witnesses in connection with a fire earlier this year aboard the Scandinavian Star.

Mets dump Hershiser, L.A.

LOS ANGELES — Gary Carter delivered a two-out, two-run double on a two-strike pitch to cap a three-run ninth inning Tuesday night, helping the New York Mets stun Orel Hershiser and extend their rule of the Dodgers with a 3-2 triumph over Los Angeles.

Carter's sinking liner slipped out of the glove of diving center fielder John Shelby, enabling Darryl Strawberry and Kevin McReynolds to score. McReynolds bowled over Mike Scioscia, one of the game's best plate-blockers, to give New York its 11th victory in 12 games against Los Angeles this season.

Voters okay 'bed tax'

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Little more than five percent of the county's residents decided Tuesday that Seminole County should have a 2 percent tourist development tax.

With all 95 precincts reporting, 13,728 people favored the so-called "bed tax" and 3,772 people voted against it. The referendum carried with an overwhelming 78.4 percent vote.

Tuesday's second primary attracted 18.7 percent of the county's 101,794 registered voters to decide the bed tax question, two Republican runoff races for county commission and three state Democratic runoff races.

Supporters of the bed tax were jubilant. "Seminole County has moved into the 20th Century," said Dave Farr, executive director of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce. "I was proud to see the board of county commissioners responded to (the chamber's request for a bed tax)."

Also pleased was Wayne Weinberg, president of the Central Florida Zoological Society. The zoo near Sanford will receive at least 25 percent of the tax funds during the first two years, beginning Jan. 1, 1989.

Weinberg said the zoo's million dollar annual budget is now funded by admission fees, concessions, society memberships and grants.

"We need a steady source of income," Weinberg said. "Most other zoos have a dedicated funding source and we're one of the few who don't."

Weinberg said upper most in the zoo's plans for the new money are upgrading the animal habitats and an education center.

Kelley, Streetman emerge victorious

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — Seminole County Republicans selected Fred Streetman and Jennifer Kelley as the party's nominees for seats on the Board of County Commissioners. A total of 10,938 of the party faithful, about 20 percent, voted in the primary runoff.

District 3 incumbent Streetman handily won his runoff bid against Jeff Etchberger Tuesday night, taking nearly 60 percent of the Republican vote with all 95 of the county's precincts reporting.

In District 5, Kelley, of Sanford, stayed comfortably ahead of her opponent, Dick Van Der Weide, of Sanford, winning 53 percent of the vote to Van Der Weide's 47 percent with all precincts reporting. It is Kelley's first bid for elected office. Van Der Weide failed in his 1986 bid for state representative.

"Jeff ran an aggressive campaign and an effective campaign," Streetman said.

Streetman said he is ready for his Nov. 8 general election challenge with Democrat Warren Keiner.

"We never, ever take anything for granted," Streetman said. "We'll keep our organization together and the party will be out working for all the candidates. But we'll be working hard."

MacKay ousts Gunter, ready for 'Mack attack'

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — A "battle-ready" U.S. Rep. Kenneth "Buddy" MacKay, fresh from his Democratic U.S. Senate runoff win over state Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter on Tuesday, says he is ready to tackle GOP Senate nominee

Connie Mack. In the race to replace Gunter as insurance commissioner, state Sen. Ken Jenne defeated state Senate President John Vogt for the Democratic nomination. Vogt had represented portions of Seminole County since 1972.

Seminole County voters provided a landslide for MacKay with 62.4 percent favoring the Ocala lawmaker. Vogt carried the county easily with 66.2 percent of the Democratic vote.

An elated MacKay said from his Ocala home Tuesday night.

"I may have a few bruises, but I'm battle-tested and battle-ready. If you think Connie Mack is going to get by with generalities — you've got another think coming.

"We (he and Gunter) are going to come together, we owe it to the Democratic party, we owe it to the people of Florida to get it together and we will," MacKay said.

Lady offers reward for return of door

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A Longwood woman is offering a reward for an antique beveled glass door that apparently has been stolen from a vandalized, abandoned and condemned old house downtown.

Police Chief Steve Harriet called the theft unique although antiques experts said it is common in larger urban areas with neighborhoods are being restored.

Rachel Roth, a realtor and designer, bought the house at 301 Palmetto Ave. last month, just before the city was scheduled to demolish it. The property had been vandalized before she bought it.

She intends to restore the house as a home for her son, and said she will pay a negotiable reward for the return of the door, which she has not seen.

Roth said she has heard rumors about the door, which has been described to her of French, etched-and-beveled oval glass and wood design, with a leitmotif.

"Someone in Sanford has to know where this door is," Roth said Tuesday. She believes the door has a value of at least $300, perhaps more.

Emerson plans Sanford plant

SANFORD — Emerson Electric, a defense contractor with a Casselberry assembly plant, plans to consolidate several smaller operations into a new plant in Sanford.

As many as 600 employees could be hired locally within the next two years and be paid a potential gross annual wage base of more than $1 million. The plant is expected to begin operations in November, said Dave Farr, executive director of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce.

The plant, to be located on Silverlake Drive in the Rush-Hampton Building, eventually could have up to 800 employees, according to Seminole County commissioner Robert Sturm.

Sturm is a director of the Industrial Development Commission (IDC) of Mid-Florida, Inc. The Casselberry plant currently has about 150 employees, says Ron Thibodeaux, IDC vice president. Farr said the Casselberry plant will be consolidated into the new Sanford plant.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Student sniper suspect still at large

MASCOTTE — Absenteeism was up as police searched for a bearded gunman with dirty blond hair who hid behind bushes near an elementary school and fired three times into a group of children on the playground, wounding one student.

Police Tuesday said they had a suspect, but would not identify him because he was still at large. They set up roadblocks and combed wetland for clues in hopes of catching the schoolyard sniper who shot third-grader Leah Wilbanks, 9, during recess at Mascotte Elementary School.

"We don't exactly know the motive of why anybody would shoot a young child like that," said Dor Page, chief of police in the agricultural community of less than 2,000 residents about 40 miles west of Orlando.

Wilbanks escaped serious injury in the shooting Monday, but remained hospitalized in stable condition early today at Orlando Regional Medical Center with wounds from a single bullet in her upper right arm and chest.

Doctors determined no surgery was needed, but the little blond girl was being watched closely for infections, said hospital spokeswoman Martha Workman.

Normal absenteeism runs about 20 of the 412 students at the school, but on Tuesday about 135 students stayed home, said principal Carmen Arnold.

Brewery packs water in cans for islands

JACKSONVILLE — An Anheuser-Busch Inc. brewery plans to ship 72,000 six-packs of canned water to Jamaica and Haiti, which were ravaged by killer Hurricane Gilbert three weeks ago, the company said Tuesday.

Most of the 432,000 12-ounce cans, labeled as drinking water to be consumed by Nov. 16, will be sent inland on the two Caribbean nations, plant manager John Wilchek said.

"My understanding is that there's still a lot of difficulty getting water into the interior," he said.

Wilchek said authorities in both countries have restored water service to many coastal areas, but ran into problems providing water to inland areas.

Workers at the Anheuser-Busch plant filled cans with water, rather than its usual beer products, Friday night and Saturday morning. Wilchek said the Red Cross asked the company to provide canned water.

Lives in garbage bin to aid homeless

DEERFIELD BEACH — A 48-year-old south Florida man is again living in a garbage bin to raise money for the homeless.

Brother Joe Ranieri plans to spend 29 days in garbage bins across Broward County. He has lived in bins several times before to raise money for The Lord's Place, a successful program for the homeless in Palm Beach County. This time the funds are targeted for a shelter for the homeless in Broward County.

Ranieri entered a 5-foot-high garbage bin Monday with nothing — no books, radio, television or magazines. He was bored.

"The morning was slow. This is exile almost," he said. "I tell you, this thing makes you really aware of time. After a while, you're counting the pebbles in the parking lot."

He said there is lots of sun and little shade in the bin, which sits in the lot of a furniture store.

Police round up juvenile escapees

FORT LAUDERDALE — A 16-year-old boy awaiting trial for attempted murder surrendered Tuesday as authorities searched for seven other teenage escapees from the Regional Juvenile Detention Center.

Officials said 11 teenagers broke out of the Fort Lauderdale center when they pried the bars off the windows and crawled to freedom Sunday night. By Tuesday, Fort Lauderdale police had arrested three of the boys.

A fourth youth, a 16-year-old awaiting trial on attempted murder charges, turned himself in without incident Tuesday, Johnson said. "He was the most dangerous one."

Two youths overpowered a guard and locked him in their room, said Greg Johnson, program director for Health and Rehabilitative Services.

Ron Fryer, who became the center's superintendent two days before the breakout, said the incident is under investigation.

The youths returned to the detention center were placed in isolation, Johnson said. "They're being watched very carefully."

Miamians reject baseball stadium bonds

MIAMI — Voters grappling with the prospect of higher taxes soundly rejected a proposal Tuesday to sell $40 million in bonds for a major league baseball stadium, providing a team moves to the city.

Complete but unofficial returns showed the opposition with 14,105 votes, or 68.9 percent, compared with 6,351 votes, or 31 percent, for stadium supporters.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Prisons waste millions on health care

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's prisons have squandered millions of dollars with little idea where the money is going, in a rush to improve inmate medical care, a newspaper reported Tuesday.

A three month investigation by The Tampa Tribune found the Department of Corrections made a quick shift in spending from prison facilities and staff to doctors and hospitals in the outside community, without analyzing cost effectiveness.

Since 1981, the prison health budget has increased 550 percent, from $13 million to $84.7 million by fiscal year 1989, while the inmate population has increased only by 57 percent.

Officials in Tallahassee have virtually no oversight of the spending, the newspaper said. And attempts to figure out where the money is going have failed because of an antiquated and ill-managed accounting system.

"We don't know how much we're spending," said Richard Dugger, secretary of the Department of Corrections. "What we do know is it's a hell of a lot more than we should be spending."

Florida TaxWatch, a business-oriented government watchdog organization that monitored DOC spending, estimated the prisons wasted about $45 million on health care since 1981, when the state came under a federal court order to improve conditions including medical care.

The state will spend an estimated $2.250 per inmate on health care next year, second only to Michigan, the newspaper reported.

Doctors monitoring the system for the federal court, sharply criticized prison medical services. The state then paid private doctors and hospitals to take up much of the burden.

State law exempts medical services from competitive bidding and DOC records were so inadequate that, in most cases, the agency could not seek competitive bids even if the law required it, the newspaper said.

The agency also did little bargaining with outside hospitals over rates, and records were inadequate to determine how many inmates received outside medical care.

"We're spending so much money so fast to satisfy the court, we have no time to analyze cost efficiency, or what it should be costing us," Dugger said.

A 1987 consultant's report showed costs per day in outside hospitals were 87 percent higher, while the average hospital stays for inmates was three times longer than that of the general population.

Inmates aged 15 to 44 saw doctors four to five times more often than the general population and they were X-rayed three times more often.

In 1986, the Legislature created a Corrections Medical Authority to oversee spending. In December 1987, the authority urged independent audits of the Office of Health Services by the state auditor general, but the audits have not yet been completed.

Cruise ship fire tally requested

United Press International

MIAMI — The chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board, surprised to learn of one cruise ship fire while investigating another, has called for a full accounting of fires aboard ships sailing from Florida.

Chairman James Burnett asked the safety board's staff Tuesday to investigate the history of such fires aboard cruise ships in Florida, in cooperation with the U.S. Coast Guard.

"I think it has become quite obvious to us that we have something here that can not be sloughed off," Burnett said in an interview. "Too many warning signs."

Burnett and safety investigators heard testimony Tuesday from five witnesses in connection with a fire earlier this year aboard the Scandinavian Star.

The Star was returning to St. Petersburg March 15 from a two-day cruise to Mexico when fire broke out in the engine room shortly before midnight.

A leaking fuel line caused the blaze, which injured two crew members and one passenger. About 700 passengers and crew members were on board at the time.

The staff captain aboard the Star in March surprised officials Tuesday when he told of an earlier fire aboard the Star.

The disclosure by staff captain Gian Phillips marked the second time safety board investigators have learned of a fire aboard the Star during routine testimony.

During a hearing in June into the March fire, another crew member told investigators of a minor blaze that broke out aboard the Star just days before. The fire, caused by a broken lubricating pipe, was controlled quickly.

Phillips testified that a 1985 fire caused extensive damage to the ship, but no injuries. Hot grease from a deep fryer that malfunctioned caused the blaze, he said.

"I think that will be an area that we will probably want to make further inquiry," Burnett said.

Juice firms indicted for conspiracy

United Press International

TAMPA — Two orange juice firms and two officers of one of them were indicted by a federal grand jury Tuesday for conspiracy to defraud the government by using a by-product of orange juice processing instead of imported concentrate in exported juice.

One of the firms and the two individuals also were charged with five counts of making false claims to the U.S. Customs Service.

Indicted were Allsun Pure Juice Corp., Highland City, Fla., Ohio Pure Foods Inc., Akron, Ohio, Herman B. Cohen, 67, Ormond Beach, Fla., and Robert W. Hurley, 57, Lakeland, Fla.

Cohen was general manager, executive vice president and president of Allsun between 1978 and 1984. Hurley was assistant general manager of Allsun between 1978 and 1980, and later was president between September 1984, and August 1986.

Customs officials said Ohio Pure Foods purchased Allsun in 1984 and Allsun was merged into the Ohio corporation in August 1987.

The defendants were accused of making false claims to customs officials in order to obtain about $776,458 in import duty refunds from October 1983, through November 1986.

The indictment charged each defendant with conspiring to defraud customs into paying "drawback" — a 99 percent refund of duties paid previously on imported merchandise — on what Allsun claimed was frozen concentrated orange juice exported by Allsun.

The "drawback" law allows such a rebate if an exported product is produced from the imported duty-paid product directly, or from a domestic substitute which is the same kind of quality as the prior duty-paid import.

The indictment alleged Allsun filed drawback claims falsely stating it was exporting frozen concentrated orange juice of the same kind and quality as duty-paid imported orange juice. It identified 36 export shipments listed as having been concentrated orange juice which it said was in fact orange "pulp wash."

The indictment alleged the defendants knew the processing by-product was not a suitable product under the drawback law to qualify for rebate of duties.

POLICE BRIEFS

Pawn shop dealers accused

CASSELBERRY — In separate incidents, Seminole County sheriff's deputies report the arrest of two area pawn shop dealers, whom deputies said made improper buys of a gold ring from an undercover investigator Tuesday.

Arrested on charges of violating the precious metals dealers' ordinance and the precious metals purchase ordinance are Peter Nicholas Milanovich, 63, 250 Cherrywood Drive, Maitland, and Antonio Hernandez Soto, 51, 1311 Altamonte Drive E., Altamonte Springs.

Milanovich was arrested at St. Nicholas Jewelry, 4325 U.S. Highway 17-92 S., Casselberry, at 10:50 a.m. Tuesday. The arrest of Soto was made at Ace Pawn Shop, at the same location as his home address, at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Investigators report that both men paid the undercover agent $25 for a gold ring and failed to fill out state required paperwork documenting the buy and identifying the seller. Bond for each man is $100.

Stolen truck discovered when stuck

LAKE MONROE — A man whom Seminole County sheriff's deputies said stole a pickup truck in Volusia County Monday and stayed with truck after it got stuck in mud in Lake Monroe.

Sheriff's deputies report that Thomas Earl Thompson, 28, Deltona, walked out of woods near the truck at the intersection of U.S. Highway 17-92 and Interstate 4, Lake Monroe, at about 8 a.m. Tuesday.

Thompson was charged with auto theft and bond is $1,000. Deputies said that a man who was with Thompson when he lost control of the truck Monday was the one who led the owner of the truck to the scene and alerted deputies to the location of the truck.

Thompson, deputies said, told them he had been sleeping in the truck just before a deputy arrived at the scene. The truck was returned to the Osteen man who owns it.

Man arrested on spouse abuse charge

LONGWOOD — Longwood police report the arrest of Joe Edward Dickerson, 28, 516 Church Ave., Longwood, on a charge of battery-spouse abuse.

Dickerson was arrested at home at 7:16 p.m. Tuesday after his wife accused him of hitting her in the head with his fist. Bond is $500.

Police recover stolen car

SANFORD — Sanford police spotted a stolen car on 15th Street at about 10:15 p.m. Tuesday. They stopped the car and arrested its driver on a charge of auto theft.

Ronald Darryl Daniels, 21, 1705 14th St. W., Sanford, is charged in the case. Bond is $1,000.

Arrested on DUI charges

SANFORD — The following person faces a charge of driving under the influence in Seminole County:

• John Carlo Bonjean, 29, 1364 Tierra Circle, Winter Park, was arrested at 10:14 p.m. Tuesday after his car clocked traveling 60 mph in a 40 mph zone on State Road 436, Altamonte Springs.

Girl accused of school trash fire

LONGWOOD — A 13-year-old girl accused on Sept. 29 of setting a trash can afire in a girl's restroom in an old section of Milwee Middle School, County Road 427, is completing 10 days of suspension from school while officials decide her fate.

Seminole County sheriff's arson investigator Bob O'Connor said he doesn't expect the girl, who is classified as an emotionally disturbed student, will be charged in the arson. The fire was minor, O'Connor said. School principal Willie Holt said school officials haven't determined if the girl will be expelled from school. Her suspension began immediately after the fire was discovered.

Advisory committee elects new officers, hears construction plans

By BANDRA BOUCHAMINE
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The Youth Advisory Committee of the Sanford Recreation Department has appointed new officers. Heather Schaffer, chairman, was chosen for a third term, and Nancy Terwilliger is vice chairman.

At its regular monthly meeting, the committee also heard an update on construction plans from James R. Jernigan, recreation and parks director.

Sanford commissioners recently awarded a contract for work to begin the conversion of the existing youth wing of the City of Sanford Civic Center at the corner of Sanford Avenue and Seminole Boulevard into the Sanford Senior Citizen Center.

Jernigan told the committee that construction will start on the project in about four to five days.

Several areas for a new youth center are being reviewed. Those include the Old Sanford Plaza at U.S. Highway 17-92 and State Street, Zayre's Plaza on Highway 17-92, and the Fairway Plaza at Highway 17-92 at 27th Street.

"We're looking at a minimum of two years until a new facility is built," Jernigan said.

He said that the old facilities were located too far away from the growth areas in the city.

"We want to get into the neighborhoods where the kids live," Jernigan said.

He noted that there were not many available buildings in which to house a recreational facility but that no recreational programs to the citizens would be cut.

150th anniversary of the Trail of Tears marked

United Press International

CHEROKEE, N.C. — A Cherokee Indian chief said tribe members may live thousands of miles apart and have different backgrounds, but they have one thing in common — the Trail of Tears leading back to their North Carolina "home."

Wilma Mankiller, chief of the Western Band of the Cherokee nation in Oklahoma, was one of many dignitaries on hand Tuesday for events marking the 150th anniversary of the forced march of 16,000 Cherokees from their lands in North Carolina, Georgia and Tennessee to reservations in Oklahoma.

Correction

SANFORD — The time of day when the body of a hanged man was discovered Sunday in Sanford was incorrectly reported Monday. The body was found at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, not at 3 a.m. James Burgess, 17, of 200 Krider Road, Sanford, was hunting game when he found the body behind Sanford Court Apartments.

It took nearly 200 days to complete the journey, and an estimated 4,000 of the Cherokees on the march died from exposure, malnutrition, disease and broken hearts, Mankiller said.

"I will always feel that Cherokee, North Carolina, is home," Mankiller said. "We have a lot of history here. Whether we live in Oklahoma or North Carolina, whether we're rich or poor, we all have one thing in common — the Trail of Tears. We will always have that in common."

Beginning in the spring of 1837 and continuing throughout the autumn of the following year, the Cherokees were corralled into a dozen stockades and transported from their lands on an 1,800-mile journey through nine states.

The Cherokees were forced from the homeland as a result of a national policy of the time that on the surface aimed to remove "friction" between the Indians and the ever-increasing number of white settlers, Mankiller said.

But the discovery of gold in the Cherokee homeland was the real root of the forced march, Mankiller said.

FTC official says ads contain many false nutrition claims

By LIDIA WABOWICZ
UPI Science Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — With more Americans demanding information about the food they buy, there has been a flood of advertisements touting the nutritional properties of products, much of it deceptive and misleading, a top federal official said.

William MacLeod, director of the Federal Trade Commission's Bureau of Consumer Protection, said Tuesday that a deluge of nutritionally descriptive advertising followed a 1985 Gallup Poll that showed 68 percent of Americans surveyed were interested in dietary information about what they eat.

"Nutrition advertising is more prevalent today than ever before because that's where the action is," he said. "But because there is more advertising, there also are more opportunities to run a little bit outside the borders."

The rate of deception in such advertising appears to be no higher than that in other ads, but MacLeod cautioned consumers to be on guard against false nutritional claims.

"It's easier to practice deception when the claim involved is hard to evaluate," he said. "It's much harder to sell colored water as beer than it is to sell a vitamin supplement that lacks a full complement of vitamins."

Dietary claims that seem too good to be true — and are — appear more frequently in local advertising and telemarketing than in national advertising, MacLeod noted.

Deceptive advertising, he said, misleads consumers to their detriment, overstates the nutritious quality of a product or exaggerates its performance. As examples, he cited advertisements that claim food products contain more vitamins or calcium than they actually do.

In the past two years, the FTC has investigated a series of cases involving deceptive nutritional claims, and the agency's final judgment was not once contested, MacLeod said.

In the case of "healthy greens," a variety of vegetables compressed into a capsule, the makers agreed to the FTC's demand to stop making their unsubstantiated claims that the product prevented cancer.

The agency now is litigating two health-oriented cases, he said. One involves a disputed calcium content of Kraft cheese and the other a claim that a water purifier can remove all harmful chemicals.

On the positive side, MacLeod said, "If consumers want to know what impact fiber has on health, I'd rather they buy a cereal with fiber information on the back of the box instead of a sweepstakes entry form."

"If you have an interest in various components of your diet, verify the advertising claims made about these specific nutrients."

And, he warned, "Just because an ad says something good about a product, that doesn't necessarily mean there is nothing bad about the product. A product that is a good source of calcium, for example, may also be high in sugar."

Once a nutritional claim catches the attention of the FTC, false advertisers have little chance of getting away with it, MacLeod said.

"With sophisticated modern technology, the experts we employ can easily tell whether a product has the amounts of vitamin C or calcium etc. it claims to have," MacLeod said. "The advertisers and marketers know this and very rarely fail to abide by our decision."

MacLeod's findings were presented Tuesday to 13,000 nutrition experts at the 71st annual meeting of The American Dietetic Association.

Insurance ruling could hurt consumers

By PAMELA A. MACLEAN
United Press International

SAN FRANCISCO — Employees and their families insured under group policies could lose tens of millions of dollars in potential damages because of a court ruling that federal law prevents Californians from seeking damages if their claims are mishandled.

The unanimous 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruling on Tuesday knocked the wind out of the California state law used to protect consumers. It was based on a model enacted by a number of other states around the country and could eliminate the state protections in those states as well.

The ruling came in the case of a Los Angeles couple, Theodore and Beatrix Kanne, whose son suffers from a rare blood disease. Doctors and medical groups have backed the Kannes' cause as well, fearing the delayed payments would leave them with unpaid bills for medical care already delivered.

"I think it a travesty that the insurance companies are protected by federal law this way," said the Kannes' lawyer, Leonard Sacks.

The court said the insurance industry is protected from lawsuits seeking damages when legitimate insurance claims are mishandled, delayed or ignored by a 1974 federal law known as ERISA, the Employee Retirement Income Security Act.

The ruling affects group health, life or disability insurance plans that meets ERISA jurisdiction requirements, and would not affect individual health, life or disability programs, according to Connecticut General Life Insurance Co. lawyer Charles Bacon.

It is estimated as many as 100 million Americans nationwide are covered by employer health programs that would be affected, Bacon said.

"It would be difficult to overstate the importance of this decision," Bacon said. Over the next few years it could mean hundreds of millions of dollars."

The appeal court overturned a decision by U.S. District Judge Edward Rafeche of Los Angeles, who had ruled that Connecticut Life violated both a general duty under California law to handle contracts fairly and in good faith, and the specific duty in the state insurance law to process the claims with reasonable promptness.

But the federal appeals court ruled that federal law preempted the state law on which the ruling was based in an unsigned decision by Judges Betty Fletcher, Harry Pregerson and Philip Wilkins, sitting by special appointment.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled in April that ERISA exempts group insurers from suits based on common law claims for improper processing of insurance claims. The court, however, left open the question of whether individual states could regulate insurance and provide that protection to consumers.

Lawyer Sacks said he has been contacted by numerous other states watching the case, including the attorney general of Michigan, as well as lawyers in Texas, Virginia and Florida.

Sacks said he would seek a rehearing by a full 11-judge panel of the appeal court, and if he is refused, said he would take the case to the U.S. Supreme Court.

"There are just too many innocent crippled people who will suffer to let this go," he said. "The problem is they (insurers) can hold up paying even when they don't dispute the claim. The Kanne's had to sneak in and out of doctors' offices because the insurer (Connecticut General) did not pay what they were supposed to pay."

Connecticut General's Bacon disagreed, saying the effect of the ruling would be to encourage more employers to extend health and disability coverage to employees without "being hamstrung" by possible bad faith claims.

Senate hopes for clean air bill go flat

By GEORGE LOBSENZ
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Senate sponsors of clean-air legislation have given up their efforts to push the bill through Congress this year, citing unyielding opposition from industry and time pressures at the end of the session.

In an emotional speech on the floor of the Senate Tuesday, Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, the prime sponsor of the clean-air bill, announced that he was abandoning his drive to reach a compromise with opponents.

Mitchell noted that the failure of Congress to strengthen the Clean Air Act amendments followed a summer of record air pollution in many cities and new revelations about the role of industrial emissions in acid rain, global warming and depletion of the earth's protective ozone layer.

"Americans are suffering from a man-made phenomenon that can be controlled," Mitchell said. "We have developed the technologies of control (and) we have the resources to apply those technologies. All we lack is the political will to do so."

Mitchell said he was giving up because, with Congress driving toward adjournment in less than two weeks, "There is simply not enough time to consider and act upon legislation of this scope and significance."

He blamed the demise of the clean-air bill on industry and their legislative allies, who he said had "wildly exaggerated" the cost of meeting pollution controls.

"Rather than spend one dollar to prevent pollution, they have spent millions of dollars to prevent the passage of laws to reduce pollution," he said.

Mitchell added: "The decision to do nothing is not a cost-free option. It does not merely delay a solution. It automatically increases the costs of that solution, both in money eventually spent and in damage sustained."

Sen. Timothy Wirth, D-Colo., also expressed regret over the failure to pass a clean-air bill this year, but said he was optimistic it will be a priority in the next Congress, since both presidential candidates have pledged to do something about acid rain and other pollution.

Wirth chastised the auto industry, cited as the largest contributor to air pollution, for fighting the bill.

"This industry, the automobile industry, which has been at the heart of our economy ... no longer can meet the standards of public citizenry and public involvement and commitment," he said.

Environmental groups were disappointed by the announcement.

"The American people need clean-air legislation," said Dan Becker, legislative counsel for Environmental Action. "It is unacceptable for Congress to shirk its responsibility and to allow the current air pollution to continue to get worse."

But William Fay, administrator of the Clean Air Working Group, which represents major industries, said his organization was "pleased" by the death of the Senate clean-air bill.

"The bill was too heavily weighted toward the agenda of the environmental community, without proper consideration of costs," Fay said. "We hope we can get something more reasonable next year."

In private negotiations during the past few weeks, Mitchell sought a compromise with Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia on the key issue of acid rain.

Byrd has opposed acid rain legislation that would require massive reductions in sulfur dioxide emissions from coal-burning power plants. Such reductions would hurt demand for high-sulfur coal from Byrd's home state.

Mitchell reportedly reached a tentative deal with Byrd and the United Mine Workers union to require power plants to install smokestack "scrubbers" that would allow continued use of high-sulfur coal.

The compromise effort also scaled back total emission reductions and stretched out compliance schedules for utilities well past the turn of the century.

Law safeguards parental rights

A U.S. District Judge is conducting a hearing today on Florida's new law requiring parental or judicial approval before an unmarried minor can get an abortion. The law, which took effect on Oct. 1, has been challenged by civil libertarians and pro-life advocates. Critics charge the law is unconstitutional.

Opponents also charge the law cannot be fairly enforced because the Florida Supreme Court has not yet promulgated rules determining which judges have the authority to grant permission for an abortion.

Questions of the ethics and morality of abortions have provoked irrational acts of destruction by so-called "Pro-lifers" and brazen silencing tactics by so-called "Pro-choicers." Activists on both sides have tended to reduce the issue to a series of trite phrases and inexact euphemisms.

However, the effect of the state legislation is not a matter of religious or philosophical convictions. It is recognition of the parent's responsibilities for a child regarding a medical procedure.

The very idea that a minor should be able to undergo surgery without the consent of the parents is ludicrous. Obvious exceptions are where the life of the child is threatened and the parents are not available. An abortion is a medical procedure and normal medical safeguards should be routine.

No medical doctor would think of performing a tonsillectomy or removing a wart from a child without signed permission from the parents, and neither of these are considered as even slightly hazardous. It hasn't taken an act of the legislature to require such parental consent forms for medical procedures involving youngsters under 18 years of age. Common sense has dictated the practice.

Self-styled civil libertarians are challenging the statute, asserting that age should not be a factor in determining rights. Yet, if rear-ended by an irresponsible teenage driver, would the libertarian shun seeking restitution from the parents? Would any parent, of any philosophical persuasion, fail to be outraged to learn that surgery had been performed on their child without permission?

Most parents do an excellent job, though few feel optimistic along the way. Parents assume their responsibilities and take pride in the outcome.

When things go wrong, the last thing parents need is an unnecessary impediment. Within the home there is love of the nature that can only be found between parents and children. Regardless of the steps that may take a teenage girl to a medical doctor for an abortion, parents must be there with consent and love. Or be present to guide the child in another direction. Family life is sacred and should not be transformed into a battleground for publicity-seeking activists of any persuasion.

The affect of the new law is a positive step in the right direction.

Analyzing why men vote Republican

Although George Bush's rise in the polls has stilled talk of a "gender gap," the gap itself hasn't vanished. It's merely narrowed. Pollsters still report that men are more likely to support a Republican than women — as they did in 1980, 1984 and the Senate races of 1986.

For some reason, most theories explaining the gender gap are oddly one-sided. They focus on why women might lean toward the Democratic Party. What about reasons men might favor the GOP — or, more accurately, why some white men might, since blacks of both sexes overwhelmingly vote Democratic?

I believe there's an obvious, yet often overlooked reason contributing to the political preferences of some men: The Democratic Party promises to discriminate against them. The Republican Party does not.

Read the Democratic Party platform adopted in Atlanta. Although vague on most issues, it practically celebrates gender and racial resentment. It promises to marshal the resources of the federal government to help everyone from teachers to small-business owners, but repeatedly emphasizes that minorities and women will come first.

Everyone knows what this means. It means numerical quotas and "targets" in hiring and thus an artificial shrinking of the job market for those people not members of an officially aggrieved group. It means larger "set-asides" in contracts for minority or female-owned firms doing business with government. Rather than equality of opportunity, it means forced equality of result.

Defenders of affirmative action usually insist they merely support aggressive recruiting of qualified employees, never the elevation of marginally qualified workers over others with superior credentials. Meanwhile, however, they defend hiring practices that eliminate any chance of an evenhanded weighting of applicants.

For example, a number of police and fire departments now alternate hirings and promotions between the races according to rigid ratios. Private companies have been pressured into equally obnoxious "remedies," too. United Airlines was sued recently for failing to live up to a consent decree signed in 1978 in which it promised to hire black and women pilots at twice their percentage of total applicants.

The beneficiaries of reverse discrimination aren't even required to prove they suffered injury at the hands of the company or public agency now giving them a break.

If the Constitution's equal-protection clause were interpreted to mean what it says, racial and gender preference of any sort would be illegal — period. Instead, the Supreme Court has issued a series of confusing, unfocused rulings on affirmative action, beginning with the Allan Bakke case in 1978 and continuing through last year. In a nutshell, the court approves of reverse discrimination in hiring or promoting, but finds it intolerable in layoffs. You figure it out.

Justice Harry Blackmun aptly captured the Orwellian flavor of these decisions when he wrote, in all seriousness: "In order to get beyond racism we must first take race into account... and in order to treat some persons equally we must first treat them differently."

Bad syntax but facts right

BOSTON—Let's be fair to the guy. Poppy was right the first time. Dig back through the week of damage control and instant policy revisions. Watch a replay of the precise moment when George Bush was asked whether a woman who had an abortion, or a doctor who performed it should go to jail.

His answer began with a flustered admission. "I haven't sorted out the penalties..." But it ended with the truth: "Of course, there's got to be some penalties to enforce the law, whatever they may be."

If the alarm buzzers went off in the Bush war room, it's because they know how to count. By any estimate some 15 million American women have had abortions since it's been legal. Everyone knows someone who's had one. Would they be criminals in Bush's America?

By morning, the handlers had "clarified" his position. No, no, the women wouldn't be prosecuted. They would be treated lovingly (not to mention patronizingly) as victims.

That, said the Bush people, should "close" the question. Indeed the media praised the Republicans for getting this "gaffe" out of the way and not letting it fester.

Well, not so fast. Credit is due to Poppy for being right and I intend to offer it. The man may get his syntax screwed up, but this time he got his facts right.

If, as Bush hopes, the Supreme Court should overturn Roe v. Wade, the states would have the right to ban abortion. Any law passed would come with penalties.

What would they be? In 1958, before the reform movement, 18 states had penalties for any woman who survived an illegal abortion. As late as 1972, before the Supreme Court decision, 15 states made performing abortion a crime and eleven states made the woman a criminal. In nine states, it was even illegal to aid or counsel a woman to have an abortion.

Back then, a doctor who did an abortion in Connecticut was subject to as many as five years in prison, the woman as many as two. In Idaho, they could get five years in jail. In Minnesota four years.

That was even before the anti-abortion forces had mobilized and radicalized, crying "Murder" at every political rally. Does anyone believe that the penalties would be lighter today? Would there be a murder charge? Would there not be?

Of course, we could "just" prosecute doctors and counselors. But with new technologies, illegal abortions could be performed without medical people. How safely we don't know. In 1968, 5,000 women died from illegal abortions. That would of course be one of the "penalties." But the figure seems small to the right-to-lifers who regard every fetus as a human being. The Republican platform this year clearly places the rights of the fetus above those of the mother.

Today, we have abortion pills as well. Just this month, France and China legalized the one called RU486. In Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine, there was a report about Opostane, a similar drug for early abortions from Holland. There would unquestionably be a black market in such pills. Would we chase after these "drug-runners?"

In a patchwork of state laws, would a woman who had an abortion in a "free" state be prosecuted in a "criminal" state? What if there were a constitutional ban nationwide. Would a woman who went to Canada or Europe be extradited? Would women be watched at the borders? What of a woman who miscarried in this country? Would she have to prove it?

This is not the stuff of science fiction or political alarmists, although there is surely an un-American air to it. In Rumania today, where abortion is illegal, there are pregnancy tests given in factories and women who miscarry have some explaining to do.

Bush is a great believer in the free-market economy. He has said that if women would only deliver their babies and give them up for adoption, supply and demand would take care of the rest. Finally he was forced to think about the real consequences in real life, not in theory.

This was no blooper, no misstatement, no misunderstanding, nothing demanding "clarification" from his aides. Nor is it something we should let slide down the memory hole.

If abortion were illegal, it would be a crime. Every crime has a criminal. Even George Bush, who hadn't "sorted out" the issue, knew that right off the bat. "Of course there's got to be some penalties to enforce the law..." Of course.

FTC probes insurance

WASHINGTON — Elderly Americans may have been given a false sense of security by laws that are supposed to protect them from health insurance scams. Federal and state laws have curbed many of the misleading marketing tactics, but some health insurance hustlers are still duping senior citizens into buying policies they don't need.

The Federal Trade Commission, at the request of a congressional committee, recently investigated marketing practices by the health insurance industry and concluded that there is still plenty of room for reform.

The investigation covered "Medigap" insurance that elderly people buy to pay for the bills that Medicare doesn't cover.

For years, a number of Medigap insurers were criticized for earning excessive profits by selling policies with little economic value.

It was the Medigap sales tactics in the 1960s and 1970s that drew criticism and prompted government investigations. Ads often frightened elderly people by telling them that without the insurance they would be a financial burden to their children or would go into debt, themselves. Many of the ads featured celebrities.

Since Congress passed a reform measure in 1980, cases of sales abuses have declined. But the new FTC investigation found enough deceptive sales tactics to put seniors on their guard. Our associate Scott Slick reviewed the investigative report that has not yet been made public.

The investigators identified one sales ploy called "twisting" — convincing a customer to drop one insurance policy and buy a "better" one. But the replacement policy may not immediately cover existing health problems and the consumer may lose benefits.

Ads sent through the mail can mislead consumers, the report says. Words such as "Medicare" or "Buy U.S. Savings Bonds" displayed prominently in the ads lead some people to assume the letter comes from the government, despite disclaimers. The consumers mail in the response card, expecting to get more information from the government. Instead, they get a visit from an insurance sales person.

FTC investigators reported the case of one nursing home resident who got an embossed card from an insurance company trying to sell her a policy. The card resembled her Medicare card and, thinking it was a replacement, she threw her Medicare card away.

The FTC also warns federal and state officials to keep a close eye on long-term care insurance, which covers nursing home costs. Since medical advances are keeping people alive longer, more seniors face the possibility of needing long-term care. The FTC said the long-term care policies may be developing the same marketing problems found in the Medigap business. Federal experts say other forms of health coverage, such as cancer insurance, no longer rely on deceptive sales gimmicks, but they also may not be a good value.

In a letter to Congress, FTC Commissioner Andrew J. Strenio Jr. suggested more consumer education and a requirement that ads include information about how to contact state officials with questions or complaints.

The recent passage of the Catastrophic Coverage Act expanded Medicare to include catastrophic illness. The law also puts new curbs on Medigap policies.

Stocks open slightly up

United Press International

NEW YORK — Prices opened slightly higher today in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which slipped 3.20 Tuesday, was up 2.67 to 2104.73 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 444-270 among the 1,195 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 9,000,000 shares.

Stock prices closed slightly lower Tuesday in moderately active trading as the market exhibited little conviction in either direction.

Prices traded narrowly mixed for most of the session with the blue chips enjoying modest gains until that sector pulled back in the final hour.

"The market is showing great concern over Friday's (September) unemployment number," said Ralph Bloch, chief market analyst at Raymond, James & Associates in St. Petersburg, Fla.

In recent months, analysts believe the unemployment number has become the most influential report in the setting of Federal Reserve Board policy.

Dollar moves higher; gold, silver mixed

United Press International

The dollar moved higher today in light trading on major foreign currency markets on optimism that Friday's September U.S. employment data will be better than expected. The price of gold was mixed.

Currency market watchers said the focus of attention is the release Friday by the Labor Department of the employment report, which according to forecasts last week and early this week is expected to show new non-farm jobs rising by 275,000-300,000 persons.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar closed at 133.48 Japanese yen, up slightly from 133.15 yen on Tuesday.

In Europe, the dollar began the day in Frankfurt at 1.8655 West German marks, up from 1.86.

The dollar began trading in Zurich at 1.5835 Swiss francs, up from 1.5795 and in Paris it rose to 6.351 French francs, up from Tuesday's 6.329.

In Brussels, the dollar climbed to 39.5550 Belgian francs, up from 39.42 and in Milan it opened at 1,389.75 lire, up from 1,386.

Cost thrift's bailout revised

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Savings and loan industry regulators at a Senate hearing Wednesday raised their estimate of what it will cost to resolve the crisis in the nation's thrift industry to $45 billion to $50 billion.

Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, called Wall to testify on whether the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., which insures deposits in savings and loans, will need a taxpayer bailout.

"I don't think we're to a taxpayer bailout yet," M. Danny Wall, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, said at a briefing for reporters. "It's premature at this point."

He insisted FSLIC could still handle the costs if a special assessment on the thrift industry itself is continued for 30 years rather than the present 10 years.

He acknowledged that would place "an exceedingly heavy burden on the thrift industry."

Wall said FSLIC would need another $24.9 billion to $29.9 billion, in current dollars, to complete the cleanup of the nation's insolvent thrifts following the resolution of 122 cases so far in calendar year 1988.

In fiscal 1988, FSLIC promised $20.4 billion in assistance to acquirers of sick thrifts, including $12.8 billion in promissory notes.

V.P. nominees step into spotlight

United Press International

Democrat Lloyd Bentsen and Republican Dan Quayle have labored in relative obscurity for weeks, but today the vice presidential candidates moved to center stage, insisting they were ready for a possibly pivotal debate.

The two senators traveled Tuesday to Omaha, Neb., in advance of their 90-minute, nationally televised debate tonight that will focus mostly on whether Quayle, 41, can erase considerable doubts about his qualifications that have been raised in the media and by the Democratic ticket.

For the time being at least, the leaders of the tickets — Democrat Michael Dukakis and Republican George Bush — must take a backseat and entrust their hopes to their running mates.

It was a task for which both vice presidential hopefuls insisted they were ready.

Bentsen attended a send-off rally in Austin, Texas, telling a crowd of more than 1,000 he was ready to present the Democrats' case to the voters.

"I have 90 minutes to explain to America why Mike Dukakis and Lloyd Bentsen should lead this country, 90 minutes to describe our vision of America, to tell the voters how (we) plan to keep our economy and our military number one in America," Bentsen said.

Before heading to Omaha, Quayle toured the Bush-Quayle campaign's national headquarters in Washington for the first time. He gave a short pep talk to the staff then walked around, shaking hands and meeting workers and volunteers.

"We're ready," Quayle said as he left the headquarters, a block from the White House.

Nonetheless, Quayle ignored most reporters' questions about how he felt or how he expected to do against Bentsen. Asked about his debate strategy, Quayle advised reporters to "tune in tomorrow night" to find out. He told campaign workers the debate would be "a good opportunity for me to be able to talk to the American people in an unedited version for 90 minutes."

Both campaigns are viewing tonight's debate with a combination of hope and trepidation.

Dukakis, the Massachusetts governor, and his Democratic strategists are hoping Bentsen, the senior senator from Texas and the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, will show his experience and appear presidential in contrast to Quayle.

At the same time, they fear that expectations for Quayle have been driven so low that the Republican will score well simply by being able to discuss the issues intelligently.

Teamsters: producers trying to bust union

By HOWARD S. GANTMAN

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Striking drivers, electricians and laborers say producers are trying to cut unions out of the movie and TV business, but an industry spokesman said they need to bring production costs down to stay competitive.

Teamsters Local 399, representing 2,100 movie industry truckers, limousine drivers and equipment operators, and 1,100 union laborers and electricians set up picket lines Monday after weekend talks broke off.

The Alliance of Motion Picture and Television Producers accused the unions of starting the strike, while the unions said they had been locked out.

"This is nothing but a tactic to break the union out of the movie business," said Earl Bush, chief Teamsters negotiator. "We are asking the producers alliance to drop this lockout and get back to the bargaining table. If not, we must continue the strike."

Bush said the unions had offered to extend the present contract for a year, but the producers refused.

Earlier this year, a walkout by the Writers Guild of America paralyzed the movie and TV industries from March until August, delaying the start of the fall television season by two months.

But Herb Steinberg, spokesman for the alliance, which represents about 200 producers, said the current strike would not affect production.

"We have made preparations for this walkout," Steinberg said. "We're going to continue to produce motion pictures and television programs. We've hired drivers and laborers and there will be no delays."

"Of course they're prepared. They've hired scabs," said Bush. "This is a direct attempt to break the union."

Teamsters also truck portable dressing rooms to and from sets, operate forklifts and cranes, and deliver messages and film.

But the aesthetic value of it to the house, she said, can't be determined.

She has advertised her willingness to pay a reward, with no questions asked.

Roth said the house, which was private property administered by an out-of-state guardian, should have boarded up and protected.

Roth said the Palmetto Avenue house has been the scene of a fire.

Chief Harriett said the theft appears to be an isolated incident and not part of any outbreak of thefts of items from old, unoccupied Sanford houses.

Mark Shuttleworth, owner of Florida Victorian Architectural Antiques, State Road 46, Sanford, agreed.

"It doesn't happen here often," he said. But, he added, it is common in larger urban areas where old neighborhoods undergo restoration. Most any apparently abandoned house becomes the target of people who salvage what they might want from the structure before it is destroyed.

S.F. politician charged with sex offenses

SAN FRANCISCO — Roger Boas, a leader in city and state politics for a quarter-century, was one of five men who surrendered to authorities after being indicted by a grand jury for having unlawful sex with teenage prostitutes.

All of the indicted men were booked Tuesday, then released on bail.

Boas, 67, who was freed on $5,000 bail, was among 14 defendants indicted in connection with a brothel in a two-story townhouse that specialized in teenage prostitutes. He was charged with 19 felony counts of having unlawful sex with minors.

Boas, a wealthy car dealer, is a Stanford graduate who served as state Democratic chairman from 1968 to 1970. His career included long service on the city's Board of Supervisors, and 10 years as the city's chief administrative officer — second in command at City Hall. He ran unsuccessfully for Congress and the mayor's

Figures show 245.1 million as of '88

WASHINGTON — Propelled by a small increase in births over deaths and substantial immigration, the American population rose to 245,110,000 as of Jan. 1, 1988, the Census Bureau reports.

The new estimate, the bureau said Tuesday, showed an increase of 2.3 million from 1987 and an increase of 18 million people since the 1980 census.

The bureau said the new total, reflecting population growth in calendar year 1987, included "a slight increase" of 1.7 million in "natural growth" — 3.8 million births minus 2.1 million deaths — and a net immigration of 600,000, including 200,000 illegal aliens.

Census Bureau population figures have included the 200,000 illegal aliens as a standard component of its estimates since 1980.

House deals final blow to textile bill

WASHINGTON — For the second time in less than two years, supporters of a bill to limit imports of textiles, apparel and shoes failed to sew up enough votes to get the measure past President Reagan's objections.

Backers of the bill came within 10 votes Tuesday of getting the two-thirds margin needed to override Reagan's veto of the legislation he considers protectionist. The president successfully vetoed a similar bill in August 1986.

Defense: jealousy caused Myerson case

NEW YORK — Defense lawyers told jurors in the divorce fixing trial of former Miss America Bess Myerson that "hell hath no fury like a woman scorned," laying blame for "the Bess mess" on a spurned wife's jealousy and "venomous" rage.

During opening statements Tuesday, prosecutors said that Myerson and her "millionaire sewer contractor" boyfriend, Carl "Andy" Capasso, conspired to corrupt a judge in order to reduce Capasso's alimony payments to his former wife.

Myerson, the city's former cultural affairs commissioner, is charged with hiring the judge's daughter for a $19,000-a-year job in a successful bid to have the alimony payments slashed.

Police get tough with protesters

United Press International

ATLANTA — With the resumption of anti-abortion protests, police dressed in riot gear are taking a hard-line approach, twisting arms and bending fingers as they hustle hundreds of demonstrators off to jail.

After a month without protest, leaders of Operation Rescue, an anti-abortion group based in New York, began a weeklong campaign of demonstrations Tuesday they are calling the "Siege of Atlanta" in hopes of making the city "abortion free." More than 300 were arrested.

The demonstrators protested at three women's clinics — Hillcrest Clinic, SurgiCenter and the Feminist Women's Health Center — but police quickly thwarted their attempts to block the doors of the hospitals.

Officers, who handled the protesters with kid gloves during six weeks of previous demonstrations that began during the Democratic National Convention in July, drew criticism for their rougher treatment of protesters arrested Tuesday.

—Operation Rescue leader Randall Terry

"Mayor Andrew Young has learned the lessons that Bull Connor taught him," said one protester, referring to the sluff in Montgomery, Ala., whose officers beat civil rights marchers during the 1960s.

Atlanta police signaled the new get-tough approach with protesters Monday when they arrested Operation Rescue leader Randall Terry and charged him with conspiracy to aid and abet a crime.

Terry, who was arrested at St. Jude's Catholic Church while conducting a training session in non-violent demonstrations, was released early Tuesday after an Atlanta family put up their house as a $75,000 property bond.

Terry watched Tuesday's arrests at Hillcrest Clinic and said Operation Rescue was considering filing a brutality complaint against Atlanta police.

"I could not believe the level of brutality that is going on here," Terry said. "We have not seen anything like this in 25 years."

but when people suffer it makes them more determined in their cause."

Police spokeswoman Debbie Jackson said more than 300 protesters were arrested and jailed pending bond — the most in any day since the protests began. She could not provide a precise figure on the number of arrests, however, because the charges against the protesters still were being sorted out.

Operation Rescue spokesman Robert Nolte said about 360 people were arrested.

Jackson was unsure what charges the demonstrators faced and whether any would be released on bond.

Tuesday marked the first time demonstrations had been staged at more than one clinic at the same time, and several protesters changed their tactics. Some, clutching Bibles, crawled down Spring Street to the SurgiCenter.

Liquor ban proponents say campaign was not in vain

United Press International

CARROLLTON, Ky. — Activists who feuded to cork the flow of liquor sales in a Kentucky community where 27 people died in an alleged drunken driving accident say their campaign at least heightened awareness of "the evils of liquor."

Residents in the Carroll County community voted nearly 2-1 Tuesday to continue liquor sales in the county where a pickup truck, going the wrong direction on a highway on May 14, slammed into a church bus, killing 24 children and three adults.

Trudy Mahoney, 40, a mother of six who is an active member of a dry group, Concerned Citizens for Better Life, said she was not disappointed by the outcome of the referendum.

"I don't feel like we lost. We gave the people in Carroll County the opportunity to vote on the issue," Mahoney said. "We educated them. We made them aware of the evils of liquor. It made them think."

The driver of the pickup, Larry Mahoney, 35, — no relation to Trudy Mahoney — has pleaded innocent to murder, drunken driving and other charges in an indictment July 22.

A test conducted by state police shortly after the springtime accident on Interstate 71 near Carrollton showed Mahoney had alcohol in his system nearly 2 1/2 times the legal limit of 0.10 percent.

Residents backing the continued sale of liquor say they believe the issue is now behind them.

"I just feel relieved more than anything," Chuck Webster, a leader of the wet forces, said after balloting Tuesday showed Carroll County residents wanted to keep the liquor flowing by a vote of 2,284 to 1,200.

"I'm very happy that it was a very substantial margin," said Webster, owner of a drugstore and part owner of a tavern and convenience store in Carrollton. "We were pushing for a big winning margin to keep this issue from coming up again and wasting taxpayers' money."

Poll: Public cautious of both political parties

United Press International

NEW YORK — Nearly half of Americans feel neither major political party offers solutions for personal money woes, and 40 percent feel President Reagan's policies have worsened their financial status, a survey showed today.

The Democrats and the Republicans each garnered the confidence of less than 30 percent of the 2,370 adults in the Money Magazine survey, and 48 percent did not pick either party as being good for their fortunes.

"Those people seemed to say, 'A plague on both your houses,'" said pollster Sy Lieberman, whose company surveyed a cross-section of the American public in June. "I don't get the impression anyone thinks either party will help with their problems."

The annual survey has a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percent.

For the second year running, 40 percent of those surveyed said Reagan's policies had caused their financial situations to deteriorate, while only 13 percent said the policies had helped.

Women were more likely than men to feel that Reagan's policies have hurt them.

Rich and poor Americans had distinct opinions. Wealthier Americans supported the Republicans and poorer people sided with the Democrats. The survey showed indecision among people with incomes ranging from $15,000 to $50,000 a year, Lieberman said.

"These people are very open and that is where the action is going to be. That is why Bush and Dukakis are trying to appeal to that middle-income section," he said.

Former Florida couple ready to defect again

United Press International

PITTSBURGH — Theodore and Cheryl Branch, who defected to the Soviet Union and later returned home to the United States, are trying to get back to Moscow.

The couple which now lives in Erie, Pa., this week, where they talked to officials at the Soviet Embassy, embassy spokesman Boris Malakhov said Tuesday.

The Branches could not be reached for comment.

Theodore Branch, 44, and his wife, Cheryl, 40, went to the Soviet Union on a tour in November and were granted political asylum two months later in Moscow. But the couple left Moscow last month after they said the U.S. promised them jobs and an apartment if they came home.

Now, they want to go back to the Soviet Union because they say the U.S. renege on its alleged promise.

State Department officials said no deals were made with the couple.

The Branches worked for a Mount Dora television station in 1986. Branch was station manager and his wife was music program director. The employer, WGIG-AM, filed for bankruptcy and the couple was awarded $6,500 in back pay and $15,000 in legal fees but were unable to collect on judgment.

A Florida trailer park fire destroyed all of Branches' possessions in 1987. Couple then moved to Pennsylvania, where his parents, LaVera and Clarence Branch, live in Erie.

A Pittsburgh television station, KDKA-TV, paid for the Eric couple to go to Washington to talk with Soviet officials about going back to the U.S.S.R., KDKA spokeswoman Carolyn McClair said.

KDKA-TV paid for the trip because it was part of an "Evening Magazine" story a film crew wanted to complete, not because it wanted them to go abroad, McClair said. Paying travelling expenses for people in stories for filming trips is not unusual, she said.

Malakhov at the Soviet Embassy said he could only confirm that the Branches had a meeting with embassy officials yesterday and would not say if the couple sought to have the Soviets pay their way back.

"I can not go beyond that," he said.

Theodore Branch's father, Clarence, said in a phone interview from Erie that he did not know what the couple was planning.

Branches' chronology: From Florida to the USSR

— 1984 — The Mount Dora, Fla., employer of 44-year-old Theodore and 40-year-old Cheryl Branch, WGIG-AM, files for bankruptcy. Branch is station manager; his wife is music program director. Couple awarded $6,500 in back pay and $15,000 in legal fees but are unable to collect on judgment.

— 1987 — Florida trailer park fire destroys all of Branches' possessions. Couple moves to Pennsylvania, where his parents, LaVera and Clarence Branch, live in Erie.

— November 1987 — Branches, now of Erie, visit Moscow on trip as tourists.

— January 1988 — The Supreme Soviet, the country's parliament, grants Branches political asylum. Couple stays on in U.S.S.R., say they were offered jobs, rent and free apartment by Soviets.

— Feb. 24, 1988 — State Department spokesman Ben Justesen says U.S. Embassy officials met with Branches in Moscow at request of Soviet to show couple not being held against their will.

— Aug. 12 — Branches contact U.S. Embassy in Moscow, say they want to return to U.S. Embassy officials offer them standard U.S. repatriation loan for citizens stranded abroad who want to go home.

— Aug. 22 — Branches contact U.S. Embassy again, indicating interest in a loan.

— Aug. 23 — Branches call U.S. Embassy to discuss details on processing loan, but then later do not follow up on loan.

— Sept. 22 — Branches return to United States in Erie, Pa., and say U.S. government renege on alleged deal to help couple with troubled finances.

— Late September — U.S. State Department in Washington, D.C., receives reports that couple back in Erie, Pa.

— Oct. 2 — Branches move out of Arnold's Motel in Erie, where they had been staying about one week, says motel manager Lucille Wynne.

— Oct. 3 — Branches go to Washington, D.C., seeking to return to Moscow. Soviet Embassy spokesman Boris Malakhov says Branches meet with Soviet officials, but gives no further details. Justesen with U.S. State Department says couple did not contact State Department, but they are free to travel as they please.

"It stinks," Branch said. "What they went there for, I don't know."

The couple had not contacted the U.S. State Department in Washington, D.C., before or since their return, said spokesman Ben Justesen.

"We have not been in contact with the Branches and cannot confirm their whereabouts," Justesen said. "As they are American citizens, they are free to come and go as they wish."

When the Branches arrived back in the United States, they said they had been offered jobs, an apartment and health insurance, then accused the State Department of renege on its alleged offers.

But Justesen said that reports of enticements to get the couple to return home "were not true."

Instead, he said, the couple asked in August about a repatriation loan to get home, which is offered to all Americans abroad. But the Branches then "did not follow up" on it, he said.

Bed Tax

The tax is estimated to generate $477,338 in 1989 and $501,205 in 1990. Seminole County commissioners have decided that the portion of the money not used for the zoo can be used for advertising and promotions, construction and improvements to convention centers and sports facilities.

The funds can also be used for restoration, renourishment and other improvements in local lakes and rivers to promote tourism.

Farr said he hopes the county will use some of the tax revenues to improve the Wekiva and St. John's Rivers. He also favors a lakefront walkway around the five-mile Sanford portion of Lake Monroe similar to Bayfront Boulevard in Tampa.

But Farr said the bed tax dollars can stretch much further if the county and the cities join together in projects.

"I think the agenda should be initiated by the cities, but I think they can both stand to gain much more by working together," Farr said.

MacKay will face Mack, R-Fla., in the November general election.

Jenne, 41, D-Hollywood, edged out Vogt 57, to end a bitter campaign battle. He will face Republican nominee Tom Gallagher in the Nov. 8 general election.

Gunter made his concession speech to a subdued crowd at a Tallahassee motel just after 10 p.m. Tuesday. His defeat ended weeks of acrimony in a campaign marred by mud-slinging and rumors of bigotry.

"I know we all know that all dreams don't come true," Gunter said. "Some dreams just aren't God's will." He also pledged to support MacKay and the two have scheduled a joint news conference today in Tallahassee.

With 98 percent of the precincts reporting statewide, MacKay, 55, had 353,099 or 52.2 percent while Gunter, 54, polled 323,118 for 47.7 percent.

"We're ready to fight," Jenne said at his Miami campaign headquarters.

"I think our records are different, our philosophies are different," Jenne said of Gallagher. He also urged Gallagher to debate once a week on consumer issues until election day.

Also with 98 percent of the precincts reporting, Jenne had 329,774 votes, or 52.5 percent and Vogt had 297,314 votes, or 47.4 percent.

In the secretary of state race, former state Rep. Tom Moore handily won the Democratic nomination.

Moore took the early lead early in the evening and never trailed. With 98 percent of the precincts reporting, Moore had 365,669 votes, or 62.3 percent, to Taft's 220,914, or 37.6 percent. The winner received 66.7 percent of the Democratic vote in Seminole County.

Moore, 48, a Tallahassee attorney, will face Republican incumbent Jim Smith in the general election.

Smith, who was appointed to the office by Gov. Bob Martinez, is considered a strong favorite to become the first Republican elected to the Cabinet since Reconstruction.

Voters also picked general election candidates for three U.S. House seats and 10 state House spots, as well as a number of city and county contests.

With 100 percent of the precincts reporting to the OOP U.S. House races, Clifford Stearns defeated Jim Cherry in District 6. William Tolley beat Rod Borum in District 11 and put Porter Goss turned back Skip Ballis' bid to re-enter politics in District 13.

State house winners who will advance to the general election included:

District 19, Joe Arnall, Republican; District 24, David Flagg, Democrat; District 39, Roger Williams, Republican; District 45, Tom Mims, Democrat; District 58, Jeff Huenink, Republican; District 64, Helen Gordon Davis, Democrat, and Maxwell Hudson, Republican.

District 109, Luis Rojas, Republican; District 111, Nilo Juri, Republican; District 112, Miguel De Grandy, Republican; District 114, Frank Bohnsack, Democrat, and Bruce Hoffman, Republican.

Kelley said she was uncertain what led to her victory. She spent more than $37,000 — including $34,500 of her own money — during the two weeks prior to the runoff in newspaper advertisements, signs and brochures.

"It's hard to say what it was," Kelley said. "We did everything."

Kelley said she has made no strategy plans yet in facing Democrat Art Davis in November.

"Tomorrow, I'll take a day off, then we'll make plans," Kelley said.

Although Etchberger was unhappy he lost the race, he was pleased with his strong showing.

"I hope he responds to the issues I raised, but I doubt he will," Etchberger said. "I didn't get into this to become a politician as Fred has. I got into this because I felt we needed a change."

Streetman had gained about an 11 percent margin over Etchberger Sept. 6 with 7,664 votes to Etchberger's 5,796. But Streetman's 47.5 percent of the vote failed to top the 50 percent plus one vote needed to avoid a runoff.

Bob Webster, the third Republican candidate for the first primary, gained 16.6 percent of the vote and endorsed Etchberger.

Streetman ran his campaign largely on his support of various county projects, such as the library-building program and the Yankee Lake land purchase. Etchberger attacked many of those stands and said the county needs to bring in fresh, responsive management, particularly a new county administrator and attorney.

Van Der Weide led Sept. 6 with 39.5 percent of the vote to Kelley's 32.9 percent. Ned Johnson, the third Republican primary candidate, endorsed Van Der Weide, a move that surprised many political observers in light of his "Independent" campaign.

Van Der Weide and Kelley have fought during the last days before Tuesday's runoff over Van Der Weide's home. He rented a condominium in Sanford about three months ago, but Kelley claimed he continues to live in his Longwood home, which is for sale.

The battle culminated with Van Der Weide filing a complaint with the State Attorney's Office, charging Kelley with making false and misleading statements. Kelley stood by her claim.

Souvenir skulls a headache

United Press International

GAINESVILLE — American veterans who brought Japanese skulls home from World War II as souvenirs are now having trouble disposing of them, a University of Florida death expert said Tuesday.

Once prized possessions to young servicemen, trophy skulls are now a burden to many aging veterans who move in with relatives or enter retirement homes where storage space is limited, said William Maples, a forensic anthropologist at the Florida Museum of Natural History.

"They can't store odds and ends to any great extent, so which would you rather have — a coffee maker or a skull?" he said.

Usually Japanese, trophy skulls occasionally belong to former residents of Micronesia and the South Pacific Islands. Rare in the European war theater, trophy skulls were found on Pacific battlefields by servicemen.

Some of these veterans are now dying and their trophy skulls aren't relished by surviving relatives, who want to get rid of them, he said.

Plastic bullets reducing riot deaths

JERUSALEM — Israel's military chief of staff says the use of plastic bullets against rioters in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip has increased casualties, but lowered the number of deaths.

The nation's political candidates aired their first television commercials of the campaign Tuesday, while in the West Bank city of Nablus, a Palestinian was shot and wounded when he tried to stab an officer and grab his gun, an army spokesman said. Three Palestinians in the Beach refugee camp in Gaza were wounded in clashes with troops, Israel Radio reported.

Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Dan Shomron told parliament's Defense and Foreign Affairs Committee that the number of Palestinian protesters killed in the last three weeks was lower and woundings were higher than in recent weeks, Israel Radio reported.

According to military and Palestinian sources, at least 15 Arabs have been killed since Sept. 13. The army is investigating whether one death was caused by gunfire from Jewish settlers.

The death toll for the three weeks was about average for similar periods since May.

China soon to normalize Soviet relations

BEIJING — The normalization of Sino-Soviet ties is likely soon, senior leader Deng Xiaoping said, in the highest level sign the two communist giants may have resolved more than 25 years of bitter differences, German sources said today.

Western diplomats have said Deng, 84, has become increasingly eager to restore all important Communist Party ties with Moscow in his lifetime — an accomplishment never achieved by his predecessor, Mao Tse-tung.

The Foreign Ministry has indicated a summit between Deng and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev could be in the works and will be discussed during a visit to Moscow by Foreign Minister Qian Qichen later this year.

Ties between the former communist rivals have improved steadily in the past five years and have accelerated rapidly since Gorbachev signaled a fresh outlook toward Asia in a speech in July 1986.

Group claims one third of world tortured

LONDON — Amnesty International says the governments of one-third of the world's nations torture their citizens and reported the use of death squads are again on the rise in Latin America.

In a survey of 135 nations, the human rights organization also said people in 80 countries are jailed for speaking their minds or for political or religious beliefs.

The review by Amnesty, which won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1977, covered abuses in the calendar year 1987.

Hirohito remains stable after 17 days

TOKYO — Emperor Hirohito, bedridden with suspected abdominal cancer for 17 days, received another blood transfusion today after internal bleeding was again detected but palace officials said his condition remained stable.

"The emperor remained in stable condition although he suffered slight internal bleeding this morning and received an additional transfusion," palace spokesman Kenji Maeda told a news conference.

He said the 87-year-old monarch's vital signs remained stable at 2 p.m. and that Hirohito every day is receiving more than 600 calories in nutrients intravenously and through new blood supplies.

News reports said Hirohito is suffering from abdominal cancer. The palace has refused to deny or confirm the reports but asked the media not to continue reporting that he has cancer out of respect for the emperor's feelings.

Aquino eulogizes Filipino publisher

United Press International

MANILA, Philippines — A tearful President Corazon Aquino vowed today at the funeral of a prominent, reform-minded publisher that his call for moral regeneration in her corruption-ridden government will not go unheeded.

Aquino paid tribute to publisher Joaquin "Chino" Roces at services for the man who launched her bid to challenge former President Ferdinand Marcos in February 1986 elections by collecting a million signatures in a petition for her candidacy.

"You disappeared from the public scene so quickly after the victory, you gave us no chance to thank you properly," Aquino said in her eulogy during the nationally televised services at

"We are increasingly on our own and so now I say goodbye my friend Chino. With God's help and with the help of the people I will not disappoint you."

-President Corazon Aquino

suburban Mount Carmel church.

"We are increasingly on our own and so I say goodbye my friend Chino. With God's help and with the help of the people I will not disappoint you," she said.

Roces, publisher of the English-language Manila Times, died Friday at the age of 75 after a long bout with cancer.

In his dying days, Roces worried about allegations of corruption involving high government officials and relatives of Aquino although the president remained untainted and extremely popular.

When the president decorated Roces July 26 with the Legion of Honor, the nation's highest civilian award, the grand old man of Philippine journalism called for a "new moral order" under Aquino.

"We cannot afford a government of thieves unless we can tolerate a nation of highwaymen," Roces said at the time.

It was still very much in his mind as he fought for his life last week," said Cardinal Jaime Sin, the outspoken archbishop of Manila who played a key role in the People Power revolution that brought Aquino to power after the fraud-ridden elections on Feb. 7, 1986.

"One of the last things he asked his family, I am told, was this: 'Do you think our country will be all right?'" Sin said in remarks at the services.

The Manila Times under Roces was the largest newspaper in Southeast Asia before Marcos declared martial law in 1972 and jailed the city publisher for two months. He again was imprisoned for six days in December 1983 after a newspaper he helped publish ran articles questioning the authenticity of Marcos's World War II medals for heroism.

Sabotage, blackouts threaten plebiscite vote

United Press International

SANTIAGO, Chile — Explosions rocked Santiago and blackouts in other cities cast a pall over a plebiscite today in which Chileans decide if 1973 coup leader President Augusto Pinochet will rule another eight years.

Both the opposition and supporters of Pinochet forecast victory in polling today that begins at 7 a.m. EDT in the South American nation of 12.5 million people and ends nine hours later.

Diplomats said they tended to believe polls showing Pinochet's bid to extend his rule could be rejected, and expressed fears his supporters could try to sabotage the plebiscite.

Chile's 7.4 million registered voters are to mark a ballot "yes" or "no" on whether to allow Pinochet, 72, another eight years in office when his term expires in March 1990. A team of 58 international observers includes 24 Americans, one of them former Arizona governor Bruce Babbitt.

Major electrical blackouts blamed on sabotage in Santiago and other cities Tuesday night came against a backdrop of warnings by diplomats and opposition leaders who suspect some sectors of the government plan to disrupt the plebiscite.

Officials routinely attribute sabotage to leftist terrorists. Pinochet's campaign has invoked the specter of chaos and economic ruin that the democratically elected socialist government of Salvador Allende suffered before it was crushed in the 1973 coup that brought Pinochet to power.

Diplomats in Santiago said Tuesday "reliable" reports led them to fear that some elements inside the government were planning to create chaos today by sabotaging the electrical system and that agents disguised as police would provoke shootings in poor neighborhoods.

Two loud explosions heard in the Providencia neighborhood of eastern Santiago knocked out most lights in the capital at 10:30 p.m. Electricity began returning to downtown Santiago a half hour after the original blasts.

Radio Cooperativa reported at least six explosions. Government-run National Radio said bombs toppled three electrical high tension towers and blackouts were reported in the Pacific Coast cities of Vina del Mar and Valparaiso and in Talca, 160 miles south of Santiago, and in Copiapo, 500 miles north of the capital.

Radio Nacional said one of the explosions in the capital was an electrical tower that burst into flames as it crashed to the ground.

Diplomats said they became increasingly concerned about the future of the plebiscite, which the opposition is confident of winning, after unknown groups sabotaged electrical towers Saturday night, blacking out the capital.

A diplomat in Santiago said Tuesday that a blackout late today, hindering computer analyses and communications, would constitute an interference in the election process itself.

Blue Jays rehire Williams

TORONTO — Jimmy Williams, whose job has been considered in jeopardy for more than a year, Tuesday was rehired as manager of the Toronto Blue Jays.

Williams guided the team to a disappointing third-place finish this season, but a strong finish helped his cause. Toronto struggled through the first five months of the year at .500, but closed with a rush in September and finished 87-75, two games behind American League East champion Boston.

Jimmy Williams

Williams endured several confrontations with players, most notably outfielders George Bell and Lloyd Moseby.

Bell was replaced in left field during an August game at Minnesota after numerous defensive miscues. Moseby was pulled out of a September game against Detroit when he failed to touch home before a teammate was thrown out at third. Williams engaged in a shouting matches with the players on each occasion.

Layendecker topples Gilbert

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — Unseeded Glenn Layendecker toppled No. 1 seed and defending champion Brad Gilbert, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4, Tuesday night in the first round of the $415,000 Eagle Tennis Classic.

The loss stunned Gilbert, who had just returned from the Olympics, where he won a bronze medal.

Layendecker got into the tournament as a qualifier.

A 20-year rivalry has preceded the match, said Layendecker, who explained he first played Gilbert when they were 7-year-olds in California.

"This ranks pretty high for me in the last two years," Layendecker said. "It proved I could win one tough match."

"It wasn't really a well-played match. He (Gilbert) basically gave me the first set."

Layendecker has been playing with a brace on his right leg since January 1987, but said he is fully recovered from the injury that required it.

Eagles acquire Solt

PHILADELPHIA — The Philadelphia Eagles Tuesday acquired offensive guard Ron Solt from the Indianapolis Colts in an attempt to bolster their faltering running game.

Team officials said Solt, 26, was obtained for undisclosed future draft picks, including Philadelphia's No. 1 pick in 1989.

Last Wednesday, Solt signed a 5-year, $2.6 million contract with the Colts, ending a 70-day holdout that began when he refused to report to training camp. After agreeing to the pact, which made him one of the 10 best-paid offensive linemen in NFL history, he made demeaning comments about Indianapolis management. Colts General Manager Jim Irsay denied the trade was retribution for the remarks.

Bucks deal Reynolds to Sonics

MILWAUKEE — The Milwaukee Bucks traded third-year swingman Jerry Reynolds to the Seattle SuperSonics Tuesday in exchange for a second-round draft pick in 1990.

The pick will be the second-best of three now held by Seattle — their own, New York's, or Portland's.

Reynolds, 6-foot-8, came out of Louisiana State as the 22nd in the 1985 draft. In three seasons with the Bucks, he averaged 6.3 points, 2.4 rebounds and 1.7 assists.

Bucks Coach Del Harris said trading Reynolds will help the Bucks pursue contracts with Jeff Gray, Jay Humphries and Randy Breuer.

Carter's two-out single in 9th sinks LA

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Gary Carter delivered a two-out, two-run double on a two-strike pitch to cap a three-run ninth inning Tuesday night, helping the New York Mets stun Orel Hershiser and extend their rule of the Dodgers with a 3-2 triumph over Los Angeles.

Carter's sinking liner slipped out of the glove of diving center fielder John Shelby, enabling Darryl Strawberry and Kevin McReynolds to score. McReynolds bowled over Mike Scioscia, one of the game's best plate-blockers, to give New York its 11th victory in 12 games against Los Angeles this season.

Hershiser, who entered without surrendering a run in a record 59 straight innings, ran into trouble in the ninth. Rookie Gregg Jefferies — who was 3 for 4 — singled leading off and took second on Keith Hernandez' groundout. Strawberry doubled into the gap in right-center to draw the Mets within 2-1 and plate the first run against the Dodgers' starter since Aug. 30.

Loser Jay Howell entered, walked McReynolds and struck out Howard Johnson with an off-speed breaking pitch. Carter reached for a low, outside curveball and produced his winning hit to silence the sellout crowd of 55,582.

Randy Myers pitched two trouble-free innings for the victory. Hershiser allowed seven hits and one walk, and struck out six.

Mike Marshall drove in the game's first run with a two-out single in the first and Alfredo Griffin provided an RBI single in the seventh for the NL West champions, who managed just four hits.

Dwight Gooden, who entered with an 8-1 record and 1.22 ERA against the Dodgers, struck out 10 and walked just one before leaving for a pinch hitter in the eighth. He allowed two hits in an inning twice, and each time the Dodgers scored.

Los Angeles will attempt to even the best-of-seven playoff Wednesday night when it sends rookie Tim Lincecum against 20-game winner David Cone.

The Dodgers, frustrated by Gooden so often in the past — they had managed just two earned runs in 53 innings against him at Dodger Stadium — scratched out a run in their first at-bat.

AL opener: Hurst vs. Stewart

United Press International

BOSTON — Game 1 of the American League Championship Series pits a hurler who must contain a fearsome lineup against one who must contain his own nerves.

Bruce Hurst of the Boston Red Sox takes on baseball's wingest team Wednesday and Dave Stewart counters for the Oakland Athletics at Fenway Park.

The weather forecast calls for occasional rain with temperatures in the 50s at gametime, 1:20 p.m. EDT.

Hurst, 18-6 this season, faces a lineup that includes Jose Canseco, who led the league with 42 home runs and 124 RBIs.

Thirteen of Hurst's victories came in Fenway Park and his ability to move the ball around and throw strikes can give the A's trouble.

"He throws an assortment of pitches," Oakland Manager Tony La Russa said of Hurst, who is 5-1 lifetime against the A's. "You can't look to any particular area. Even if the ball is carrying well here, you can't look to pull the ball."

Unlike Hurst, Stewart is a power pitcher. If his fastball and forkball are working, he can dominate a game. He also needs to pitch on an empty stomach.

"I have a problem with nerves before a game," said Stewart, who went 21-12 this season. "If I eat before a game, I don't have the ability to keep the food down. If I eat, I'd probably throw up on the mound."

The prospect of pitching in Fenway Park is enough to make many pitchers sick. The Green Monster in left field influences how they throw.

"Some try to keep the ball away from right-handed hitters. Others concentrate on keeping the ball down. That's where they go wrong. Pitchers who try to get too fine wind up walking people. That's when the home run really hurts."

Hurst's approach is simple — throw strikes. That's his philosophy wherever he pitches and that's the approach the Boston left-hander will take in Game 1.

"In any park, quality pitches will beat quality hitters," said Hurst.

Notre Dame fans still irked

United Press International

CORAL GABLES — Notre Dame football fans are not waiting until top-ranked Miami comes to South Bend, Ind., to let Coach Jimmy Johnson know exactly how they feel.

Johnson is 3-0 against Notre Dame as coach of the Hurricanes, and the total score of the three games with Johnson as coach is 113-20. Included in that aggregate total is the infamous — in the eyes of Irish fans — 58-7 Miami win in the Orange Bowl that led to charges Johnson ran up the score during Gerry Faust's farewell game.

So it is no surprise that Notre Dame fans dislike Johnson. What is surprising is their determination to let him know about it before he and the Hurricanes arrive Oct. 15 for their showdown with No. 5 Notre Dame.

Johnson has been getting a steady flow of letters from Notre Dame fans, and even a few phone calls.

"I read every one," Johnson said Tuesday. "Some of them are irritating, a lot of them I wouldn't let my mother read. I get half a dozen to a dozen letters most every day from Notre Dame people."

While he could not recall any letters that could be repeated and printed in a newspaper, Johnson did mention a phone call he got early in the season from a Notre Dame freshman.

"My secretary had already gone home, so I answered the phone and this little voice on the other end, it sounded like a young teenager, said 'Coach Johnson?' Johnson said, 'I'm a Notre Dame freshman. I said 'Oh, OK,' then he said 'I'm beating the rush.' I didn't understand what he meant, so I said 'What do you mean, you're beating the rush?'"

"He said 'That's you now.' Johnson chuckled, but the caller was not finished.

Lady 'Noles sweep Howell

By CHUCK BURGESS
Herald correspondent

SANFORD — The Lady Seminoles used a lesson they learned the hard way and a new defense to cage the Lake Howell Lady Silver Hawks, 15-3, 16-14, in girls prep volleyball action Tuesday evening before 201 fans at Bill Fleming Gymnasium.

"After last Thursday against Lake Brantley we've played a lot better as a team," head Lady 'Noles coach Beth Corso said. "We changed our defense around and it worked well for us tonight. I think we're going to stick with it."

The Lady Tribe stuck it to the Lady Hawks in the first game and held on in the second to run their record to 9-2 overall and 5-2 in the Seminole Athletic Conference. The Lady Silver Hawks dropped to 4-10 on the year and 1-6 in the SAC.

Both teams hit the road tonight as the Lady 'Noles travel to Ocala to take on the Kowgirls and the Lady Silver Hawks pound the pavements in Apopka to battle the Lady Blue Darters.

The first game was somewhat of a cakewalk for the Lady Seminoles as they came out firing. Liz Long led the way with three straight kills and senior Yolanda Baker served six straight points. The Lady Hawks struck back with three points of their own, but the Lady 'Noles were not to be upset on this night.

"We've been playing good ever since Brantley," senior spiker Adrian Hillsman said. "We know we can play better than we have been and tonight it showed."

Hillsman, who is establishing herself as one of the premier athletes in Seminole County, was all over the court as she had four kills on the evening and three crucial blocks.

"I've been working on my blocks," Hillsman said. "I'm starting to look at the other person's arm and the set so when I jump to block I know where the ball is going."

The second game was a battle as the Lady Silver Hawks put on their scrappy-playing suits and really came after the Lady 'Noles. Leslie Barton put down three kills and two dinks in the game to put the Lady Hawks up 9-6. Chinita Gilchrist of Seminole put an end to that, however as she finessed two dinks of her own.

"Chinita had a good night tonight," Corso said. "She had four dinks on the night and helped our offense out a lot."

Probably the biggest surprise of the night for the Lady 'Noles came from the play of Amy Fastbender as she hustled down ball after ball and pounded a few spikes of her own. Fastbender teamed with Baker in the second game to spark the comeback win, according to Corso.

"Amy and Yolanda did a great job tonight," Corso said. "Amy played well and Yolanda did a good job digging. Our setters did an excellent job putting the ball up for the attacks, too."

However, it was the play of the two veterans, Long and Hillsman who prevailed in the end. With the

Orel's streak ends, so do LA's hopes

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — When the streak came to an end, so did the Los Angeles Dodgers' chance of victory.

Hershiser finally gave up an earned run Tuesday, allowing two to score in the ninth inning as the New York Mets took a 3-2 victory in Game 1 of the National League Championship Series.

Hershiser entered the game with a record 59 consecutive scoreless innings, and ran it to 67 1-3 before the Mets staged their comeback with three runs in the ninth.

With Los Angeles ahead 2-0, rookie Gregg Jefferies singled in the ninth and scored on a double by Darryl Strawberry. That led to Hershiser's removal in favor of Jay Howell.

"No matter what I thought," Hershiser said, "it was Tommy's (Dodgers Manager Lasorda's) decision. He made the right move for the situation. You go to your bullpen. I wasn't the guy for that situation."

Neither was Howell, who had trouble with his control and walked Kevin McReynolds, giving up a two-run double to shake center by Gary Carter that decided the game.

Hershiser felt he wasn't throwing well early in the game, but found his control until the ninth.

"I really don't expect pitching duels," he said. "We were just unfortunate in that Gary (Carter) didn't hit the ball any better."

Though the streak has ended, Hershiser's record has not. Because the runs scored in a playoff game, the scoreless-innings string will be alive when the 1989 regular season opens.

"I'm proud of what I did," Hershiser said. "The streak was going to end."

"Hershiser was in trouble throughout," said first baseman Keith Hernandez, who went 1 for 4 and lined into a double play in the first. "We kept hitting 'at 'em' balls. We hit a lot of balls hard all game and got nothing out of it. The ninth inning was justification for that."

Somewhat lost in the commotion following the comeback was the performance of starter Dwight Gooden, who struck out 10 and allowed just four hits before leaving for a pinch hitter in the eighth. The right-hander has a 1.50 ERA in three starts in the championship series, yet sports an 0-1 record.

Mike Marshall, who drove in the first run, said the Dodgers will be realistic.

"We had this happen to us a couple of times during the season, and we bounced back," he said. "If we don't this time, it will be a short series."

"Look at the guy who was pitching against us. We got a couple of runs. They weren't enough."

Orel Hershiser had the Mets stymied for eight innings Tuesday night but New York rallied for three runs in the ninth and a 3-2 victory over the Dodgers in the opening game of the NL playoffs.

Jefferies loves the pressure

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Apparently, this Gregg Jefferies is a rare rookie, one who wants to be at the plate when the game is on the line.

The baby-faced third baseman ignited New York's winning three-run ninth inning with the third of his three singles Tuesday night as the Mets rallied for a 3-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers in the opener of the National League playoffs.

Jefferies, who batted .321 in 29 games after being recalled August 27 from Triple-A Tidewater, opened the ninth with a single off Orel Hershiser and scored out later on Darryl Strawberry's double to right center.

"I was glad I was in that situation," he said. "I can't say I expected to get a hit, but I had been one of the guys hitting the ball pretty well."

"He's a great pitcher, that's obvious, but we have the attitude that we don't quit. Even though I haven't been here a long time, I realize that and use it to my advantage."

Now the Mets have the advantage in the best-of-seven series. In Game 2 Wednesday night, they send 20-game winner David Cone against rookie Tim Lincecum.

Tuesday night's rally, which culminated with Gary Carter's two-run two-out double on an 0-2 pitch from Jay Howell, was a damaging blow to the Dodgers, who failed to win behind their ace.

"They needed to win tonight's game," New York Manager Davey Johnson said. "A loss is a loss, but with Hershiser on the mound and a two-run lead ... it meant a lot. It was their chance to get momentum."

Although Hershiser blanked the Mets through 8 1-3 innings to extend his shutout string to 67 1-3, New York was unimpressed.

Then there was Strawberry, who commented in a Los Angeles Times article he wanted to finish his career in his hometown — where the Dodgers play. Some of his teammates were displeased with the remarks, but weren't complaining after his ninth-inning RBI double.

"We've had so many crises on and off the field that stories like this don't faze the ballclub," Johnson said.

Added Strawberry: "I didn't say anything wrong. Everybody wants to play in his hometown. I have two years remaining on my contract and I will continue to play by heart out for New York."

Clemens No. 2 man in rotation

United Press International

BOSTON — Roger Clemens will watch someone else pitch Game 1 of the American League playoffs and insists he doesn't care.

Personal achievements, said the man who has won the last two AL Cy Young awards, hardly compare with team success. That was something he tried to emphasize recently to friend and former college teammate Greg Swindell.

"Greg had a great season (18-14 for Cleveland) and showed he's probably ready to win 18 to 24 games every season now," Clemens said. "But I told him last week when we played in Cleveland until he gets (Tom) Candiotti or (Rich) Yett to win 16 to 18 games along with him, he'll just sit home and watch the playoffs."

Clemens knows how that can happen. The Boston right-hander went 20-9 last season to win the second Cy Young. But the Red Sox failed to repeat as AL East champs.

This year, he struggled in the second half and finished 18-12, but Boston won the division. Bruce Hurst, 18-6, stood out down the stretch to earn what was expected for Clemens: the start in Game 1 Wednesday against the Oakland Athletics.

"I don't care what people think," Clemens said. "I pitched well this year. Hurst had a great year and we're in the playoffs. That's all that matters."

Clemens, who will pitch Game 2 Thursday night at Fenway Park, eased the way for Hurst to work Game 1 by going to Manager Joe Morgan and saying he would not feel slighted if left-hander Hurst started the opener.

"Once the game (Game 1) was changed to a day game it made sense," Clemens said. "It didn't make any difference to me. He's a left-hander and in this ballpark with the bright lights in center field in the day that causes trouble. I'm probably going to have to come back on short rest anyway."

Can he come back on short rest though? Clemens was 15-5 after his start of July 30, who is 25-6 the last two years at Fenway. "There are no absolutes in pitching other than getting the first guy out and staying ahead in the count."

Stewart realizes that, but despite winning 21 games this year, throwing strikes can sometimes be a problem for him.

If you walk too many people, especially in Fenway, you give the opposing team an opportunity for a big inning.

"My approach going into the game is to eliminate walks,"

Stewart said. "In the past against them, I've put a lot of people on base without letting them work for it. I've had problems here recently, but that's in the past."

Walks are something Hurst rarely has problems with.

AL playoffs matchups

First base — Mark McGwire vs. Todd Benzinger. In what was supposedly a down season after Rookie of the Year year, McGwire still delivered 32 homers and 59 RBI. Benzinger outstanding in the clutch and full-time move to first coincided with Boston's surge to lead. McGwire is better fielder. Edge: McGwire.

base. Hit .283 this year. Edge: Barrett.

Shortstop — Walt Weiss vs. Jody Reed. A duel of rookie shortstops. Weiss committed just one error after All-Star Game. Hitting also improved. Reed secured regular job in second half and ended .293. Also strong in field, but not as good as Weiss. Edge: Weiss.

Second base — Mike Gallego vs. Marty Barrett. Gallego forced into full-time duty because Glenn Hubbard out with a hamstring injury. Is solid fielder, who will bring no threat to plate (.209). Barrett a little things player: sacrifice, hit behind runners, take extra Third base — Carney Lansford vs. Wade Boggs. Lansford threatened early to win batting title, then Boggs won it for fourth straight year. Boggs hit .366 and had .476 on-base percentage. Doesn't strike out and will walk to start rallies. Edge: Boggs.

Steve Sax, batting .167 lifetime against the New York starter, fluted the second pitch of the inning for a single to right, then took advantage of Gooden's slow delivery to steal second.

After Franklin Stubbs struck out and Kirk Gibson grounded out, Marshall looped his single to shallow right. Strawberry got a late start on the ball, which appeared catchable.

New York was frustrated by Hershiser in the first and third innings. With one out in the first, Hernandez lined into a inning-ending double play with Jefferies moving on a hit-and-run play.

In the third, Carter led off with a single and was put in scoring position by Wally Backman, who sacrificed. When Mookie Wilson singled to right one out later, the slow-running catcher was held at third, and Jefferies' comebacker ended the threat.

Gooden placed himself in jeopardy when he began the third by walking Hershiser and hitting Sax with a 1-2 pitch — but escaped by fanning Stubbs, Gibson and Marshall with looping curveballs.

In the sixth, New York put runners on first and third with two-out singles by Jefferies and Hernandez, but Hershiser recovered by getting Strawberry on a weak topper to first.

The Dodgers, batting just .203 since Sept. 1, added a run in the seventh. Scioscia led off with a double, advanced to third on a groundout and scored when Griffin singled over a drawn-in infield.

SHELBY DEFENDS DIVE

LOS ANGELES — John Shelby, whose reliance on instincts may have cost the Los Angeles Dodgers Game 1 of the National League playoffs, defended his decision to dive for Gary Carter's winning drive.

"I dove to catch the ball," the Dodgers center fielder said Tuesday night after Carter doubled with two out in the ninth inning, rallying the New York Mets to a 3-2 victory over the Dodgers. "It hit off my glove, so I had a chance on it."

Had Shelby been more conservative, he would have played the ball on a hop, and Kevin McReynolds would not have scored the winning run from first. Had he been playing less deep, he surely would have gloved the ball for the final out and victory.

"I try to go out and play the same game I do all season," Shelby said. "Any loss is difficult. We just lost another tough one."

Dodgers starter Orel Hershiser, who followed his 59 straight shutout innings with eight more Tuesday night, left in the ninth after yielding a single to Greg Jefferies and run-scoring double to Darryl Strawberry.

"I've thrown the ball better at times and I've thrown the ball worse," Hershiser said. "It was Tommy's (Manager Lasorda) decision to take me out. It was the right move for sure. You go to the bullpen. I wasn't the guy for the situation."

"I don't know where the team is going to focus. We're going to come back tomorrow and play another baseball game. This one is over."

Dodgers left fielder Kirk Gibson, who struck out twice and went 0 for 4, said Los Angeles blew chances to score more runs off Dwight Gooden.

"You can look at where we should've manufactured runs," he said. "I struck out in the third with a runner at second. When you don't do your job and you lose, it's tough to swallow."

Rebuilding over: Patriots shoot for state meet

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

ALTAMONTE — After five years of struggling and rebuilding the Lake Brantley boys cross country team has finally found the right combination and has set its sights on making the class 4A state meet for the first time in six years.

The Patriots, though, know they must keep improving and must avoid injuries which have hurt them in the past. The dedication of the athletes this season, though, has been the big difference, along with a couple of transfer runners.

"I'm real happy with the progress we've shown," Brantley coach Charlie Harris said. "It's a real pleasure to watch a team that has been struggling come together and be competitive. Our first goal at the outset of the season was to get out of the district, now with the transfers and the dedication we've had we want to make it to the state meet."

Lake Brantley will have a tough road to make it to the final 16 as it is in the toughest cross country district in the state. The district includes Seminole County powerhouse Lyman along with a strong Lake Howell team. Two other teams pose a threat for the Patriots in John I. Leonard and Spanish River, who both have strong teams this year.

Lake Brantley, though, proved to all doubters last week that it is for real when it finished fourth in the always tough Florida State Invitational last Saturday in Tallahassee. Not only did the Patriots finish fourth, but they were very close to the front two teams, Lyman and last years class 3A state champion Niceville.

"We're starting to come along and the kids are really starting to believe in themselves," Harris said. "A year ago I was lucky to have a varsity team and when I did there was always someone run around 19 or 20 minutes. Now I have people on the junior varsity running in the 18s. It has been a big turn around and everyone has been involved."

Leading the way for the Patriots so far this season has been Darrin Tugman who is a junior loaded with talent. Tugman is a strong runner with good speed and could possibly challenge for a top ten spot at the state meet. Matt Jewell, a transfer from Colorado has been a big factor with this teams improvement. Jewell runs close to Tugman in every race and continually pushes him in practice to help both of them improve.

Ron Gordon is the team leader and is a big reason for the turn around in the Brantley program. Gordon, a senior, guides the team and gets them ready before practice as well as meets.

"Ron Gordon is the inspirational leader of this team," Harris said. "He's like an assistant coach, when I'm not around I know I can count on him to get practice started when I set up a workout he helps me set it up. He's a good leader with hard work habits and he has set a great example for the rest of the team."

John Feola is another runner for Brantley that has made a commitment to running as he gave up band to concentrate on cross country. Andy Ogilvie, Pat Eason and Craig Streetman have all made conscious efforts to improve and have worked extremely hard to make the Patriots a contender.

"I just hope good things will happen to this team," Harris said. "They've worked so hard and given up so much it would be nice to see them make it to the state meet. They can do it, they know it will be tough and know what they have to do. I'm just curious to see how good they really can be."

Rollins rally buries UCF

By CHRIS FISTER
Herald sports editor

WINTER PARK — While Rollins College's Lady Tars resurrected from a lethargic start and a 2-1 deficit in games, the University of Central Florida's Lady Knights paid a visit to collapse city Tuesday night.

The inspired Lady Tars rallied behind the offense of ferocious Falecia Douglas and Jacel Wozniak, the all-around play of Anne Bolling and the defense of Jolee Johnson to claim a 15-11, 8-15, 11-15, 15-11, 15-8 victory before 251 fans at Enyart-Alumni Fieldhouse.

"This is really a great win for us," Johnson, a Lake Howell High graduate, said. "It's the first time we've beaten UCF in my three years here. I don't even remember taking a game from them before."

The victory lifted the Lady Tars to 16-2 for the season while the Lady Knights dropped to 10-6. Rollins will compete in the Florida Southern Tournament this weekend at Lakeland while UCF hosts the University of Florida on Friday.

Rollins' comeback also overshadowed a superb performance by Oviedo High graduate Jill Knutson, the starting setter for UCF as a walk-on freshman.

Wozniak (12 kills on the night) and Douglas (11 kills) shredded the UCF defense with some devastating hits in the opening game while the Lady Knights had trouble getting their offense cranked up.

UCF did come back to take an 11-8 lead behind some nice play by Knutson and Teas Nelson, but a kill by Douglas gave Rollins a sideout and Wozniak served the Tars to a 13-11 lead with Kathy Fields putting down a spike and a block to highlight the rally. Rollins then put the first game away on the serve of Chris Murno.

The Lady Knights came to life in the next two games, though, with Knutson's all-around play providing the spark along with the hitting of freshman Linda Santiago.

A tip by Knutson broke up a 3-5 tie in the second game and UCF went on to build a 13-6 lead. Rollins made it 13-8 before Santiago served the last two points. The final point came on a spike by Jennifer Owen off a nice backset from Knutson.

Knutson mixed the UCF offense up well in game three and the Lady Knights roared to an 11-3 lead over the sluggish Lady Tars. Rollins tried to get something going, but Knutson came up with one of her best plays of the night when she exploited the Rollins defense with a dump to the short middle for a sidout and the Lady Knights went on to build a 14-5 lead.

Rollins then ran off six points in a row before UCF got a sideout and Santiago's block accounted for the 15th point and a 2-1 UCF lead.

Not the least bit interested in dropping another match to UCF, Rollins came out blazing in game four and took an 8-4 lead behind the serving of Johnson and Douglas.

UCF stayed within 10-7 when Douglas and Wozniak took over again and powered the Lady Tars to the 15-11 win which tied the match at two games each.

The decisive game was back and forth in the early going with UCF being hurt by four service errors. The only thing that kept Rollins from dominating early on in game five was the net play of Lady Knight middle blocker Shannon Pack.

While UCF continued to struggle, though, Rollins picked up the intensity and reeled off nine of the next 11 points for a 13-5 advantage.

UCF was hurt by two serve receive errors during the Rollins rally while the Lady Tars also dug up everything hit by the Lady Knights, with Johnson leading the defensive charge.

The Lady Knights scored the next three points to make it 13-8, but Pam Hopkins' dink gave Rollins a sideout and Rollins' Falecia Douglas rears back and prepares to spike during Tuesday's match vs. UCF. Falecia was ferocious, providing 11 kills in the Rollins victory.

Johnson served the final two points. Wozniak finished the evening off with feeling for Rollins as she blistered a spike down the right side of the court for her 12th kill.

"The three games we won is probably the best we've played as a team this season," said Johnson, who, along with twin sister Kellee, is a junior at Rollins. "After we dropped the second two games, we just had to go back to our game."

Oviedo overcomes sluggishness, Lyman

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

LONGWOOD — Oviedo overcame a sluggish performance and played a solid third game to down Lyman, 15-4, 7-15, 15-7, in prep volleyball action Tuesday night before 121 fans at Lyman High School.

Oviedo improved to 10-1 overall and 6-1 in the Seminole Athletic Conference. Lyman dropped to 3-6 overall and 2-4 in the SAC.

"We played terrible in the second game and I wanted to see us play better in the third game," Oviedo coach Anita Carlson said. "We did play better, we built a 13-0 lead, and then we relaxed. When we continue to be aggressive and don't relax we'll be good."

Oviedo jumped out and took command in the first game after neither team could get off to a quick start. The Lady Lions' got on the board first off a Suzanne Hughes serve. Lyman came right back with two points of the service of Melondy Hillsman to take the lead.

Kerstein Colon then served six consecutive points to put Oviedo in control. After Lyman cut the score to 7-4, Shannon Wilcoxson served a pair of points to regain the five point margin.

Betsy Hughes then served two more points for the Lady Lions before Suzanne Hughes served out the games final four points to give Oviedo the first game of the match.

The two teams battled back and forth in the second game with the Lady Greyhounds taking control midway through. Neither team could put any rallies together and were tied at 7-7 before Lyman went on a run. Led by the play of Julia Callarman and Emily Rosenfield who helped build a 9-7 lead, Tracy Browne then served six straight points to even the match up at one game apiece.

The Lady Lions, though, came out strong in the third and final game and showed its dominance as they took command early and did not let up until they were in complete control.

Suzanne Hughes, who finished with 10 kills in the match, led the way with Serena Caldeyro and Ann Wolary adding front row strength. Betsy Hughes started Oviedo off with two service points before Suzanne added another point to up the lead to 3-0.

Oviedo then battled for two more points before Wilcoxson reeled off four straight points to up the lead to 9-0. Caldeyro added four more points for the Lady Lions to up the lead to 13-0.

Oviedo then let up a little and Lyman managed to get back in the match, cutting the lead to 14-7 behind the play of Hillsman and Callarman.

Oviedo, though, had built to big of a lead and Heidi Steiner served the final two points and gave her team the match.

"I was disappointed that we didn't stay aggressive when we had them down 13-0," Carlson said. "We have to learn to play hard until the match is over and not when we think it's over."

In boys action it was Lyman sweeping the Lions 15-13, 15-10 to post its fifth win of the season and improve to 5-1 overall. Oviedo dropped to 2-4 overall and will return to action next Tuesday against Lake Mary.

LAKE MARY RIPS DELAND
In other prep volleyball action it was Lake Mary downing DeLand 16-14, 15-7, Tuesday in a Seminole Athletic Conference game at DeLand High School.

Lake Mary, 9-5 overall and 4-3 in the SAC, returns to action today at home against Bishop Moore. DeLand dropped to 1-7 and 0-7 in the SAC.

"It was a very sluggish match for us and we did not play very well," Lake Mary coach Cindy Henry said. "We sat around for about two hours and I think that took some pep out of us. I think we'll play a lot better at home."

In the boys match, Lake Mary continued its domination as the Rams pounded the Bulldogs, 15-0, 15-2, with Jason Sewell and Matt Sloan leading the way.

Matt Rapp and Sloan, along with Sewell played strong in the first game while Lake Mary coach Bill Whalen played an entire team of underclassman in the second game.

"I wanted to see how our future players would look and they did real well," Whalen said. "We hope to keep playing well tomorrow when we play Seminole."

Connection, Ryder Trucking crush foes

SANFORD — The Tim Raines Connection ripped Ken Kern Transmission, 22-1, and Stromberg Carlson crushed Ryder Trucking, 18-1, Monday night in Sanford men's softball action at Chase Park.

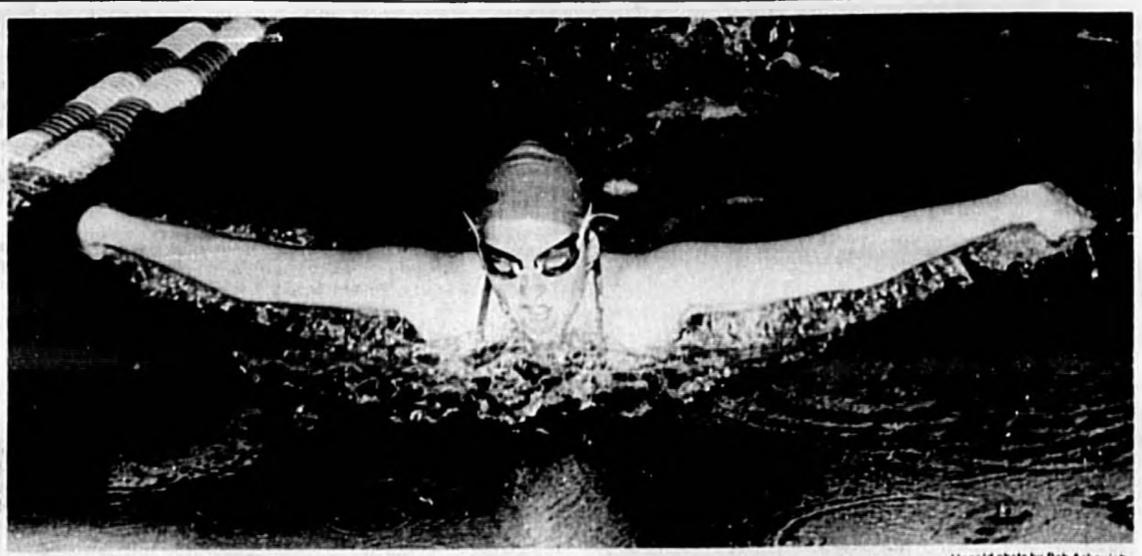

Sam Raines led the way with a double and two base hits, driving in three runs while scoring three more. Ernest Shuler added a triple with two singles and two RBIs with three runs scored. Ned Raines added three singles, three RBIs and two runs scored.

Rodney Turner belted three doubles with three runs batted in and two scored. Billy Griffith added an inside the park home run and a double with three RBIs. Ed Jackson and Burnett Washington each added a single with one run scored. Otis Raines added a double and a run scored with Tommy Raines adding a single and a run scored. Tony Dunkinson ripped two doubles, drove in four runs and scored two. Thad Brooks added a single and a run scored as Len Green singled and scored a run. Greg Hardy completed the offensive assault with a run scored.

Mike Clonn led Ken Kern with a single and a run scored. Willie Ortiz drove in the only run with a sacrifice fly in the third inning.

Mike Hartwig led Stromberg as he blasted a pair of home runs and a double, driving in five runs and scoring three. Jim Gill added a single and a walk with three runs scored.

Flying Ram

Lake Mary's Carol Aadland splashes through the water while competing in the 100 butterfly at the Bishop Moore Invitational. The Rams return to the pool today at home vs. Bishop Moore. In other action, Lyman High hosts Lake Brantley and Seminole will compete in a quad-meet at the Sharidan Aquatic Club.

Freshman: Rams top SHS

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary's freshman football team battled back twice to take a narrow, 15-13, win over Seminole High Tuesday night at Don T. Reynolds Stadium.

Lake Mary, 3-1, will return to action next week against Lake Howell. Seminole dropped to 2-2 for the season.

Seminole opened the scoring on a 12-yard run by Mark Kouch with 3:12 left in the opening half, the extra point was blocked and Seminole held a 6-0 halftime advantage.

Lake Mary's Kanush College then evened things up on a 42-yard sweep with 2:34 left in the fourth quarter. Jason Donaldson added the point after and the Rams led 7-6.

Seminole's Quin Byrd then intercepted a pass and rambled 63 yards for the TD and put Seminole back on top.

score deadlocked at 14-13 in favor of the Lady Silver Hawks. Long put down a kill and Hillsman put down another kill and a block to end the match.

In the junior varsity thriller, the Lady Tribe of Seminole clawed their way to a 17-15, 6-15, 15-12 victory. Lynn Guy closed out the match on her serve while sophomore spiker Jennifer Bengt set the fast pace of the game.

In boys action, Christy Scott's Silver Hawks got the job done over the Tribe with a 15-12, 15-5 win.

The Seminoles, playing their first match of the season, played intense, scrappy ball in the first game, but the play of Lake Howell's Todd Carlson and Jason Witherrall prevailed in the victory to up the Silver Hawks' record to 5-2.

"Jason did a good job off of the bench," first year coach Scott said. "We need to get serious and work on the three C's. Consistency, control, and concentration."

Underdog piglet Smidget dies

OSTEEN — Smidget the Pig, a runt who captured the hearts of her town's peoplefolk, has died of nutritional deficiency.

The piglet, born Aug. 28 and featured in the Sept. 8 edition of the Sanford Herald, died Monday evening in the home of owner Cindy Reiley of Osteen.

Reiley took the demise hard.

"It's been hard for me," she said. "I've been so attached to her. She was so close to us. It was like losing one of our children."

Smidget, the last-born of its 10 siblings, was stunted and unable to nurse for itself. Although given up for dead, the piglet was taken under the care of Reiley, who believed Smidget could pull through despite the veterinarian's foreboding prognosis.

Three times previously, as the pendulum of her health swung from stable to critical, Smidget had "died" and was resurrected, Reiley said.

Most recently, Smidget refused to be fed by syringe or bottle, Reiley said. "She definitely wanted to die. It was like she was saying, 'Don't keep me alive any longer.' She may have been in pain. So we wrapped her in her preemie blankets and let her lie down and die."

Because the runt didn't receive enough normal nutrients from her mother, her stomach lining stripped to point where it couldn't repair itself, Reiley said, so that Smidget was not absorbing nutrients from the formulas she was fed.

Funeral services were held Tuesday as Smidget's tiny casket was buried in Reiley's flower garden. A statue of a pig serves as a grave marker.

"I'm going to miss her," Reiley said, choking up. "It's hard not having her to feed and her things all sitting around. We're trying to put them out of sight in the back room. But she's still with us in our thoughts."

Bicyclists gear up for festival

MOUNT DORA — Entries for the 14th annual Mount Dora Bicycle Festival from Oct. 21-23 already exceed total registrations last year at this date, according to event chairwoman Cathy Gilliam.

Advance registration is advised, she said, since participation is limited to 1,200 bicyclists this year.

Registration forms are available from the Mount Dora Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 196, Mount Dora, Fla. 32757, or by calling 904-383-2165. An accompanying brochure includes information on accommodations.

Participants may choose one, two or three days of events. Fees are $30, $45 and $60 respectively and include meals. Children 4-12 are charged 50 percent of the full fee.

Rides vary from one-hour leisurely tours of Mount Dora to rides through the Central Florida countryside.

Cooking by the book

Reading, relatives guided her efforts

By JANE HALE
Herald correspondent

SANFORD — Culinary relatives as well as an voracious appetite for reading cookbooks are what our Cook of the Week attributes her cooking skills to.

Phyllis Haas of Sanford, a teacher, minister's wife and mother, was born in Selma, Ala., but was raised in Greenville, Ala. She attended all the schools there and graduated from the local high school in Greenville. While in high school she participated in the production of Hello Dolly, in which she got to sing a solo. "I really cannot sing, but I enjoyed doing so during this play," Haas said.

Her father was in the construction business and has helped build most of the Holiday Inns across the United States.

Her mother worked in a glove factory making ladies' gloves from age 18 until her retirement. "My mother's father lived in a log cabin that was built in the early 1850's and the family still owns it," she said.

Haas said she grew up in town but liked spending a lot of time out in the country on her grandparents' farm. "I had a good time and really enjoyed myself while I was growing up."

Haas has one brother who is younger than she is and the two always did things together. "I really liked my brother and even though we fought when we were younger, we have always been close," Haas said.

"My mother should get the credit for teaching me how to cook," Haas said. "I also love to read cookbooks and I have read them from cover to cover. I would read them and then experiment on the recipes."

She also gives credit to her aunts for teaching her how to cook. "When I would go visit them, they would let me sit in the kitchen and watch them and then let me help."

"One thing I remember was the time I decided to fix cream puffs. I had been reading a cookbook and came across the recipe. It sounded different and good, so I decided to try the recipe. Well, the recipe must have made a hundred cream puffs, because we ate them until we were all sick of them and didn't want to see another cream puff for a very long time!"

Haas also remembers the first meal that she cooked on fixing for her family. "It was for home economics and it consisted of fried chicken, mashed potatoes with country gravy and biscuits. It was a real southern meal," she said. "The family like everything I fixed except the vegetable, which was brussel sprouts, but I made them eat it anyway."

While Haas was living at home, her mother and she struck up a deal. "The deal was I would cook the meals while mother worked out in the yard because I disliked yard work," Haas said. "I would much rather be indoors than outdoors. I enjoy cooking southern style meals."

Haas met her husband, Tim, while they both were students at the University of Montevallo in Montevallo, Ala. "We were college sweethearts," Haas said. They were married while they were still students and even had a child before they graduated.

Tim was a certified public accountant before he got the call to be a minister. He then attended the seminary at Emory University in Atlanta, Ga.

"We have lived in St. Petersburg, Florida and in Thomaston, Ga.," Haas said. "We really hated leaving Thomaston, but have made many a new friend in Sanford, where Tim is the associate minister at the First United Methodist Church."

When Tim was in seminary in Atlanta, we were having dinner with friends at a restaurant and sitting across from us was Jimmy and Rosalyn Carter. "Haas said, "This was really a thrill for us. We got to shake hands with them and get their autographs, but we forgot our cameras."

Haas has two daughters, Terri, 13, a student at Sanford Middle School, enjoys music of all kinds. She is taking piano lessons, sings in the youth choir at the First United Methodist Church and is secretary of the Methodist Youth Fellowship.

Daughter Keili, 9, attends Idyllwilde Elementary School. She enjoys dancing and is taking ballet lessons at the School of Dance in Sanford. She also enjoys reading. Keili aims to turn her backyard into a pasture for a horse, which she would like to own. She wants to be a doctor or a veterinarian when she grows up.

Haas teaches first-grade at the First Presbyterian Church Preschool. "I really enjoy teaching children at that age, because I love to see their faces light up when they discover they can read on their own."

Stitchery of all kinds is another hobby of Haas', along with cooking and reading. "I read all kinds of books because you can learn a lot just by being able to read," Haas said. She also likes to go to all the church activities that she can get to. "My philosophy on life is 'Nothing is impossible,' because if you make up your mind to do something, you can do it," Haas said. "Just put your trust in the Lord and you can accomplish just about anything you want to do. Nothing is impossible if you just pray."

Listed below are recipes that Haas fixes for her family.

TURKEY SCALLOPINI

4 turkey breast cutlets
3 tablespoons bread crumbs
3 tablespoons Parmesan cheese
½ teaspoon lemon pepper seasoning
¼ teaspoon dried thyme
1 teaspoon olive oil
½ cup spaghetti sauce
2 ounces shredded mozzarella cheese
1 teaspoon butter or margarine

Place cutlets between layers of waxed paper and pound until flattened. In shallow dish, combine bread crumbs, Parmesan, and seasonings. Lightly moisten cutlets with a little water, then coat with crumb mixture. Place in refrigerator for 30 minutes to allow coating to set. Preheat broiler. In a medium non-stick skillet, heat oil and margarine. Add cutlets and brown on both sides over medium-high heat. Turn heat to low and continue to cook until cutlets are done (about 3 minutes). Top cutlets with spaghetti sauce and cheese, place under broiler until cheese is hot and bubbly (about 1 minute). Makes 4 servings.

BOOTHBAY CHOWDER

3 slices chopped bacon
1 cup chopped onion
1½ cups chicken broth
3 cups potatoes
1½ cups water
1 teaspoon salt
2 cans minced clams
1 8-ounce bottle clam juice (optional)

1 cup light cream
3 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons parsley
¼ teaspoon pepper
Cook bacon until crisp in large pan. Remove and drain. Add onion to bacon drippings. Sauté until soft. Add potatoes, chicken broth, water, salt and pepper. Cover and simmer 15 minutes until tender. Drain liquid from clams into a 4-cup measure. Add bottled clam juice and cream to liquid. Briskly stir flour into liquids and add to potato mixture in saucepan. Cook, stirring constantly over medium heat, until chowder thickens and bubbles. 1 minute. Add clams, heat. Sprinkle with parsley and bacon. Makes 6-8 servings.

For Oktoberfest, make October feast

October, Oktoberfest, German food, all mean robust, strong flavors and hardy meals. Cooler weather, which is typical at this time of the year in most parts of our country, make this kind of food very welcome.

For those of us who live in Central Florida, however, it may be still quite warm. With the help of our microwave ovens, we can prepare these wonderful fall specialties but with little heat and shorter cooking time.

Enjoy this rich cheesy soup as a first course.

BEER-CHEESE SOUP

½ cup finely chopped celery
½ cup finely chopped carrot
3 green onions, sliced
1 clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons water
2 cans (14½ ounces each) chicken broth
½ cup cornstarch
½ cup beer
1 jar pasteurized process cheese spread

Combine celery, carrots, onions, garlic and water in 1½-quart glass casserole. Cover. Microwave on 100 percent power 5-6 minutes or until vegetables are tender, stirring once. Add 1½ cans of chicken broth. Cover. Microwave on 100 percent power 8-9 minutes or until steaming hot. Combine cornstarch with remaining ½ cup broth. Stir into hot soup, mixing until blended. Microwave on 100 percent, uncovered, 4-5 minutes or until mixture boils, stirring once or twice. Stir in beer and cheese spread. Microwave on 100 percent power, uncovered, 2-3 minutes or until heated through. Top each serving with chopped fresh parsley.

Oktoberfest would not be complete without a sauerkraut dish. Pork ribs become tender when cooked with a lower power setting, and the flavors blend better as well.

RIBS AND KRAUT

1 can (32 ounces) sauerkraut, drained
1 medium apple, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons brown sugar
3 pounds country style ribs
1 small onion, sliced

MICROWAVE MAGIC

MIDGE MYCOFF

¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Combine sauerkraut, apple, garlic and brown sugar in a 3- to 4-quart simmer pot. Arrange ribs and onion slices on sauerkraut. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Microwave with full power, covered, 15 minutes. Reduce power to 30 percent, microwave covered 60-70 minutes or until meat is tender, rearranging ribs halfway through the cooking time.

Sauerbraten is a traditional German favorite. This version takes much less marinating and cooking time.

BAVARIAN ROUND STEAK

1½ pound boneless round steak (½ inch thick)
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons cooking oil
1 medium onion, sliced
2 cups water
1 envelope brown gravy mix
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon ground ginger
¼ teaspoon pepper

Cut steak into serving-size pieces. Pound steak with meat mallet or rolling pin to help tenderize. Coat meat with flour. Heat oil in 10-inch pyroceramic skillet (Corningware). Add steak and brown on both sides. Add onions. Combine remaining ingredients; pour over steak. Cover with skillet lid. Microwave on 100 percent power 10 minutes, reduce power to 30 percent power, microwave 45-55 minutes or until done, rearranging meat once. Serve with boiled potatoes, potato pancakes or noodles.

Cabbage cooks to a beautiful green tender-crisp texture in the microwave. This dish would be a good accompaniment to the Sauerbraten.

BAVARIAN CABBAGE

1 small head of cabbage, coarsely shredded
3 tablespoons water
2 tablespoons margarine
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
Salt and pepper
Combine cabbage and water in 1-quart container. Cover with lid or plastic wrap. Microwave on 100 percent power 5-6 minutes or until just about tender. Let stand 3 minutes. Microwave margarine in small bowl about 45 seconds. Blend in mustard. Drain cabbage. Season with salt, pepper and mustard mixture.

For a dessert, an apple or spicy kuchen, pie or even something very simple combining spices and apples will be a complement to most German foods.

SIMPLE APPLE DESSERT

4 medium cooking apples
¼ cup all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
Peel, core and slice apples into a shallow 1-quart casserole or 9-inch round glass cake dish. Combine flour, sugar and spices. Sprinkle over apples. Cut butter into thin pieces. Place evenly over flour mixture. Microwave on 100 percent power, uncovered, 5½-6½ minutes or until apples are tender. Serve warm or cold.

DIABETES

TAKE CONTROL!

"I was recently diagnosed as having diabetes... I can't believe it."
...Harry Hoffman

"I don't have diabetes, it must be something else." Don't bet on it, if your doctor has told you. Diabetes is nothing to be ashamed about - concerned - yes. You can learn to live with it and lead a happy life by accepting it. But more importantly, don't let diabetes be your master.

Take control. Check into the Diabetes Education Program. Personal, one-on-one counseling by the Registered Nurse/Certified Diabetes Educator and Registered Dietitian will give you the "how" to be in control. Group classes provide support, reinforcement and yes, understanding and warm caring by the leader and new found friends.

Spend your anger on action. Take control of your diabetes and you will be in charge of you. Call today.

Hotel reservations give unmarried couple pause

DEAR ABBY: Would you please tell me how to make reservations at a cruise or resort hotel for an unmarried couple who are traveling together here and possible abroad? I am a widower, 60 years old. Since I was married during the so-called sexual revolution, I am not familiar with this sort of thing.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

My traveling companion and I do not want to pass ourselves off as a married couple. When I call or write for reservations, should I say it is for "John Smith and Mary Jones," or "John Smith and friend," or what? I doubt if the hotel management cares whether a couple is married or not, yet I want to avoid possible embarrassment.

Your help will be greatly appreciated. I trust you will not use my name in your column if you think this is printable. Sign me...

UNBOPHISTICATED IN ST. PAUL

DEAR UNBOPHISTICATED: Ask for reservations for John Jones and Mary Smith. You must use your correct names if you plan to travel abroad since your passports will bear your correct names. Specify whether you want twin beds, or double or adjoining rooms. Consult with your traveling companion so there will be no embarrassing surprises. And you're right—most hotel managers don't care whether you are married or not as long as you're quiet, manly and pay your bill.

DEAR ABBY: My father passed away a year and a half ago. He was cremated. This decision was made by him and told to his "new" wife of one year. (Mom had been dead for three years.) Now his wife (widow, really) refuses to give me his remains to bury. She says that she cannot bear to part with them. She keeps his remains in an urn in her bedroom and does not want them buried.

Abby, I spent 23 years with my father, and she had been with him for only a year and a half. I feel I am entitled to burial rights. We have a family plot, and that is where I think my father should be.

His wife (widow) wrote to me.

suggesting that instead of my father's ashes, we bury some possession of his in our plot. But we have nothing of his because she has it all.

What should we do? I'm considering getting a lawyer and suing this woman for Dad's remains. I'd appreciate your opinion.

LOVING DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: Please reconsider. To sue your stepmother for your father's remains would be not only in poor taste, it would be acting contrary to your father's wishes. He wisely expressed them to his wife, she acted accordingly, and as his wife, she is entitled to keep his remains.

Please honor your father's memory by respecting his wishes.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

 1/2 cup cold water
 1/2 cup brown sugar
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 2 teaspoons cinnamon
 1/2 teaspoon ginger
 1/2 teaspoon all-spice
 1 1/2 cup pumpkin
 3 large egg yolks
 1/2 cup milk
 For meringue:
 3 large egg whites
 6 tablespoons sugar
 1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar
 Dissolve gelatin in cold water. Mix the rest of the ingredients (except for meringue ingredients) in a large saucepan. Bring to boil over low heat. Boil for 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat; stir in gelatin. Chill until partially set. Beat until smooth. Carefully fold into a meringue made with egg whites, cream of tartar and sugar. Pile into baked pie shell. Chill until set, at least 2 hours.

BOUR CREAM ENCHILADAS
 1 dozen corn or flour tortillas
 2 cans cream of chicken soup
 1 pint sour cream
 1 6-ounce can green chiles
 1 chicken, cooked and deboned
 1 small onion, diced
 1 12-ounce package shredded Longhorn Cheddar Cheese
 Microwave tortillas according to package directions to soften

(or soften by dripping tortillas in hot oil). Fill tortillas with a mixture of soup, chicken, sour cream, chiles, cheese and onion. Roll up and place in casserole dish with a little sauce in the bottom. Cover with remaining sauce and sprinkle a little shredded cheese over the top. Bake 30 minutes at 350° F.

SHELLS WITH CHEESE
 1 package shells
 1 1/2 pounds Ricotta or cottage cheese
 1/2 pound mozzarella cheese
 1/2 cup Parmesan cheese
 1/2 pound ground beef (or ground turkey)
 2 eggs, beaten
 1/2 cup parsley
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/2 cup cracker meal
 1 quart spaghetti sauce
 Cook shells according to package directions. Drain some of the water when the shells are done, but allow shells to remain in warm water. Mix cheeses, eggs, parsley, salt, cracker meal and ground beef (or turkey). Remove shells and stuff. Pour one half of the spaghetti sauce in the bottom of pan. Arrange shells, add rest of sauce. Cover and bake at 375° F for 30 minutes.

Classes teach how to eat for heart's sake

SANFORD — How to grocery shop nutritiously is just one of the major topics covered in the "Heart Healthy Foods and Nutrition Course" being offered by Central Florida Regional Hospital.

On-going, the next series of three sessions will be held the second Monday of each month, Oct. 10, Nov. 14 and Dec. 12 from 9:30-10:30 a.m.

Classes, conducted by a registered dietitian who literally prepares a low-cholesterol and low-fat dish each time, will be held in the hospital's Cardiopulmonary Rehabilitation Center, Suite 209 of the Medical Arts Building, 1403 Medical Plaza Drive, which is located immediately behind the hospital.

Dietary risk factors of heart disease and a basic low-cholesterol and low-fat diet are explored in one class. Featured is a casserole made of ground turkey and low-fat cheese instead of sour cream and the high-fat content cheeses.

According to Mari Reick, CFRH dietitian, many foods are misrepresented as to type of fat and amount of sodium; therefore, it is vital to shop carefully. How to plan your trip to the grocery store is the highlight of this session as well as preparation and the cooking of a lentil loaf. The dietitian also will speak on meat alternatives, how to increase fiber in your diet and how to read labels.

Types of food available in stores are covered in the third session, along with recipe alternatives and exchanges. Participants will get another tasting session, this time a tofu lasagna using soy beans as a meat alternative.

Fee is $15 for the three classes. Pre-registration is required and enrollment is limited due to the personalized nature of course content.

To enroll or obtain further information, call CFRH, 321-4500 or 668-4441 ext. 607.

Treatment to aid a snapping knee

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have trouble with the iliotibial band. The doctor says it's unusual. I have severe snapping in the knee. Are you familiar with treatment for this?

DEAR READER: The iliotibial band syndrome is an overdiagnosed condition in runners and consists of painful snapping of a band of tissue at the knee. It is diagnosed by the exclusion of other causes of knee pain. Treatment consists of special stretching exercises and ultrasound therapy, under the guidance of an orthopedic surgeon. Occasionally, surgical release of the band may be necessary.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My friend was told her vocal cords were paralyzed during carotid artery surgery. What can she do to build up her voice again?

DEAR READER: The vocal cords are controlled by nerves that can be injured during neck surgery. When this accidentally occurs, one (or both) vocal cords become paralyzed. Speech becomes hoarse and, in some instances, breathing may be difficult.

The purpose of therapy for paralysis of a single vocal cord is to augment the weakened structure. The injection of a Teflon suspension may strengthen the weak cord enough so that speech is improved. Because this problem requires the skill of throat specialists, I suggest that your friend seek consultation with an otolaryngologist. Such a doctor will be able to advise her whether the Teflon injection would be beneficial. For more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report, "Medical Specialists." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44161-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Whenever I take a walk outside — regardless of the temperature — my throat starts aching and brings me almost to the point of panic. I'm exhausted after nursing my sister, but in good health despite my 84 years. Is there such a thing as pharyngitis?

DEAR READER: Yes, pharyngitis does exist. It is an inflammation of the pharynx, the area at the back of the throat, by injury or infection. I do not believe that you have pharyngitis. More likely, you are experiencing the equivalent of panic attacks, stemming from the stresses you are under.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Here's an example of good luck at bridge. South pushed a bit when he jump-shifted to three diamonds, but he needed very little from North to make game or slam. Of course North got excited when he heard the jump shift, particularly since he had such a good diamond support, which he could show by an immediate raise to four or five diamonds. However, since he also wanted South to know about the ace of clubs, he first bid four clubs. South rebid his diamonds, and North now bid five, hoping that partner would believe he had slam interest. But North had bid five diamonds without using a bullhorn (that would violate ethical properties), and from South's point of view, that five diamond bid might just be a decision as to the best choice of game contracts. That's why South passed.

Declarer won the ace of clubs shedding a spade and played A-K of hearts, throwing a spade from dummy. He then cashed his spade ace and ruffed a spade. He ruffed a club back to his hand and ruffed a small heart. His hearts were now good, with the queen still to play, so he played ace of diamonds and a diamond, angry that he had not bid the slam. And here's the good luck. Because West held K-J-10 of trumps, the defenders had to take two trump tricks and slam would have gone down.

HOROSCOPE

What the day will bring...

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
October 6, 1988

This year something of tremendous significance will completely revise your philosophical outlook. New views will strengthen your character and expectations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) People you are dealing with today might lack direction and purpose, but this isn't likely to be true of you. You'll know what you want and, more importantly, you'll know how to get it. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be alert today for unusual financial opportunities. Something profitable could suddenly spring loose out of the blue.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today, you have a marvelous touch for taking the ideas of others and reconstructing them into something more promising. This could be especially true in two instances.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may be drawn into something today that has strong, competitive elements. Fortunately, you'll be the one with the odds tilted in your favor.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Someone of considerable significance is about to enter your life. It's possible that an old friend might introduce you to this person today.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If today's objectives are clearly defined, your chances of achieving them are excellent. Be definite regarding your goals, and don't let outside influences get you off target.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's imperative that you have faith in yourself and your ideas today or else a minor setback could cloud your mind with negative thoughts and make you less effective.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If a financial development is presently running in your favor, don't let it drag on. Try to do something conclusive today that will lock it down.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you're willing to make concessions when dealing with others today, they'll respond in kind. However, they're only apt to act upon your cue.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Financial trends continue to look favorable again today. Make doubly sure that you are capitalizing on these fortuitous influences.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A situation may arise today where you'll find yourself competing against one who always tries to outshine others. This person will fall flat.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Flow with events today instead of trying to alter their course. Conditions look good, provided you don't rock the boat.

Singh rests in military hospital

United Press International

WIESBADEN, West Germany — An Indian-born U.S. resident held hostage in Lebanon with three American colleagues tested in a U.S. military hospital today and prepared for a debriefing on his 20-month ordeal.

Mithleshwar Singh, who was released in Beirut Monday and turned over to U.S. officials Tuesday in Damascus, arrived early today from Syria in a U.S. Air Force C-141 transport at the Air Force's Rhein Main Air Base outside Frankfurt.

Singh, 60, a U.S. resident and chairman of business studies at Beirut University College, flew to Germany for a debriefing and medical attention at the U.S. military hospital in Wiesbaden, near Frankfurt.

Craig Springer, spokesman for the U.S. Consulate in Frankfurt, said Singh would be debriefed at the hospital by a team arriving today from Washington. An Air Force spokesman said today Singh's doctors planned an afternoon news conference and it was unlikely Singh would be present.

A team of State Department officials were scheduled to debrief Singh today at the Air Force hospital in Wiesbaden, a U.S. Air Force spokesman said today. He said Singh's doctors were scheduled to speak at an afternoon news conference.

U.S. officials said today Singh was not accompanied to Germany by his wife, Lala Mani, who remained in the Middle East. She continued to reside in Beirut after gunmen kidnapped her husband in January 1987.

Before leaving Damascus, Singh said his kidnappers treated him "better than I had expected" but there is no substitute for freedom.

Asked about the condition of the three American hostages with whom he had been held, Singh said, "They are OK. I cannot say more because it might go against the people who are still kept in captivity."

U.S. Ambassador to Syria Edward Djerjian said plans were being made for Singh to go to the United States, apparently after a short stay in Wiesbaden, where American hostages in the past were taken after their release in Lebanon.

At the State Department's request, Singh made no statement on his arrival in Germany.

Singh held on to the handrail as he came slowly down the green transport's gangway about 50 yards from where reporters and cameramen were gathered.

He was greeted by Alexander Rattray, U.S. consular general in Frankfurt, and Col. David Williams, commander of the air force's 435th Tactical Air Lift Squadron.

Singh stepped into an automobile and left with a police escort for the hospital.

The Islamic Jihad for the Liberation of Palestine said it kidnapped Singh and his three American colleagues — all professors at Beirut University College — and announced the imminent release of one of them Monday.

President Reagan and other U.S. officials have denied any deals had been made with the kidnappers who seized Singh along with Americans Alann Steen, Jesse Turner and Robert Polhill on Jan. 24, 1987.

U.S. officials also denied involvement in negotiations with Iran, which the spiritual leader of a pro-Iranian group believed linked to kidnappers of 14 foreigners in Lebanon said were being held.

Ayatollah Hussein Fadlallah of Hezbollah, or Party of God, who reported that U.S.-Iran talks were being conducted, also said Monday the remaining nine American hostages in Lebanon will not be freed before the U.S. presidential elections next month.

Why Singh was freed was the key question U.S. officials were unable to answer. While welcoming his release, Reagan told reporters at the White House, "I'm not going to hazard a guess as to why they turned him loose — not as long as we've still got hostages there."

A former Iranian president living in Paris also said secret talks on the hostages between Iran and the United States were already under way.

Abohashan Bam Sadr, who was ousted as president of Iran in 1981, told a French news agency Tuesday that an envoy of Vice President George Bush has recently met secretly with Iranian Foreign Secretary Mohammad Javad Larijani in Switzerland to discuss the release of the hostages.

Bani Sadr said the latest phase of the secret talks included a visit to the United States "yesterday (Monday) or today (Tuesday) of an intermediary." He refused to identify the mediator "so as not to destroy the chances for the release of the hostages."

White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater denied the allegations of Bush's involvement in back-channel negotiations with the Iranians. "Those have been denied by everyone, and I would certainly deny them to the extent we can check them out," Fitzwater said.

State Department spokeswoman Phyllis Oakley said Secretary of State George Shultz thanked the Syrian government for ensuring the safe arrival of Singh, but would not say whether Shultz also had thanked the Iranian government.

"We certainly are appreciative of the efforts the Syrian government has made on behalf of the release of Mr. Singh and the other hostages. We have thanked all those people who have played a role, but I'm not going to go into specifics," Oakley said.

She also urged Iran to facilitate "the urgent, unconditional release of all hostages."
