Commerce Committee Shelves Mortgage Rate Bill

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — A bill to let mortgage bankers update interest rates on old loans to current levels, which caused a major stir in the House last week, has been quietly put to sleep in a Senate committee.

The much-debated "due on sale" bill (SB 1049) by Sen. Harry Johnston, D-West Palm Beach, was temporarily passed over at the Senate Commerce Committee's final meeting of 1981 Thursday Bills "temporarily passed" are usually scheduled for the next meeting — but the commerce committee shelved Johnston's bill with the knowledge that it would not be meeting again.

"That's euthanasia, I think," said Johnston after the parliamentary ploy spiked what little was left of his bill.

Johnston's bill had been stripped of its vital parts a few minutes earlier by fellow West Palm Beach Democrat Don Childers, who amended it to allow interest rates on "assumed" mortgages to be raised only in transactions taking place after July 1. Since variable-rate mortgages are already allowed, Johnston said, the Childers amendment would prohibit bringing up-to-date the interest rates on loans made from 1976 through the present — the period the bankers wanted to cover.

"It's going to add approximate $100 a month to the average mortgage payment," said Childers. "This will take hundreds of thousands of young couples out of the housing market."

Johnston contended that buyers of new houses are paying "18 percent plus three points." He said that rate could be reduced if rates on assumed mortgages were subject to updating.

Although Monday's meeting of the commerce committee was the last scheduled for this session, another meeting could be called; the Senate leadership could change direction and back the bill or the Senate by a two-thirds vote on the floor could take the bill out of committee, State Sen. John Vogt said. But he added none of those alternatives appears likely.

The Cocoa Beach Democrat whose district includes Seminole County said the committee's mood was not to pass the bill.

"In the final analysis the issue should be settled in the courts and most of the court decisions in Florida have been against the 'due on sale' provision," he said.

Vogt said when the special clause was placed in mortgage contracts by Savings and Loan institutions in 1976, it was done in the absence of state law.

"For them to ask the Legislature to ratify what they have been doing for five years is not, to my way of thinking, good," he said. "Whatever the Legislature did, it would wind up with the courts anyway."

10 Dead, Toll May Rise

Texans Dig Out From Flood Mud

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — Residents in the Texas capital dug out today from foot-deep mud left by the worst flooding in a half century. Cleanup crews pulling cars from mud-choked streams found 10 victims and feared the death toll would rise.

A 7-inch downpour sent Shoal Creek — normally a picturesque, meandering stream — roaring out of its banks during the Memorial holiday weekend, wreaking damage in the "multimillions" of dollars to homes and businesses.

At least 10 people were killed and four were reported missing and believed drowned, including a woman and child swept away by the floodwaters. Police and volunteers trudged along creek banks throughout the day in search of more bodies.

Mayor Carol McClellan immediately asked Gov. Bill Clements to declare Austin a disaster area. Authorities described the flooding as the worst in the city since 1933.

While city crews pulled cars from streams and ditches, neighbors along Shoal Creek in one of the city's oldest and plush residential areas helped each other drag mud-splattered furniture from their flooded homes to dry.

"I've lived along this creek since 1947 and it's never been like this," said Sam Kinch Jr. as he surveyed Shoal Creek Boulevard and yard after yard filled with furniture. "It's miserable. These people are in shock."

Heavy property damage also occurred in a commercial area near Shoal Creek, with at least five car lots in the area suffering extensive damage.

Most of the dead were caught in cars washed from crossings by the rapidly rising waters that turned normally placid creeks in Texas' Hill Country into raging rivers.

The flood peaked early Monday, however, before many residents awakened and by late afternoon, Shoal Creek had drained and picnickers and joggers enjoyed the sun in parks nearby.

Others searched for friends who were missing.

Sanford May Hike Occupational License Fees

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The Sanford City Commissioners at a 7 p.m. meeting today will consider raising occupational license fees by 50 percent for all but two businesses which can operate within the city.

The only two activities excepted are carnival or street fairs and fortune teller. The increase in fees on these two categories will be 25 percent. Both are currently being charged a fee of $500. City Finance Director Henry Tamn, in a report to the city commission, said these fees can be increased by only 25 percent, according to state law. The new fee in both cases is to be $625.

Tamn estimates the 50 percent increase in fees will give the city about $28,700 more revenue annually. During the current fiscal year, the city has received revenues totaling $67,300 from occupational licenses. The estimate of additional revenues is about five percent less than could be expected because of the possibility of a "shift in the economy during the 1981-82 license year."

Total of the projected revenues is $96,000 annually from this source.

The city commission asked Tamn for his recommendation on the matter. State law permits a city or county to increase license fees up to 100 percent in categories being charged less than $100; 50 percent in categories being charged more than $100 but less than $300 and 25 percent in categories being charged more than $300.

In other business the commissioners will be told that former Commissioner Julian Stenstrom hasn't given up on his idea to have some sort of sign placed on Interstate 4 indicating motorists can get into Sanford from the federal highway via Lake Mary Boulevard.

Stenstrom, public relations director of Cardinal Industries, was rebuffed by the Lake Mary City Council when he asked its permission to have a sign at the Lake Mary Boulevard interchange directing traffic to the county seat. The state Department of Transportation told city officials it would not order the Sanford directional sign placed at the Lake Mary Boulevard interchange unless the city of Lake Mary approves. The city council there objected to the idea, saying the sign would create more traffic on the thoroughfare through Lake Mary.

Stenstrom's latest idea is to ask signs be placed north of the St. Johns River and south of Lake Mary Boulevard, noting "Sanford next three exits."

The Sanford City Commission has switched its meeting day this week because of the Memorial Day holiday.

Also included on the city commission agenda are items concerning bus service in downtown Sanford and renovations at the city-owned building in which the county operates a branch library.

Laura Fritel, a county planner, is asking city approval to locate four bus stop signs on First Street in the downtown section.

City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles pointed out to the commission in a memo the bus stops might cause traffic problems.

He suggested the stops be located on Commercial Street, one block north of First, but Ms. Fritel, in a letter to the city, indicated this would not be acceptable.

Knowles also told commissioners by memo that while the county is planning $110,000 worth of renovations at the old post office building where the county branch library operates, it does not appear there will be structural alterations.

"The sketch plan shows a ramp on the east side and two work rooms," he said, adding "nearly all the funds apparently will go into mechanical work, fixtures, equipment, lighting, carpeting, plumbing, roofing and painting."

Since the county would like to know the market value of the building before the renovations are done, Knowles is suggesting to the city commission that it hire a realtor to appraise the property.

Fast-Drawing Granny Nabs Burglar

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — A 77-year-old grandmother, fast on the draw with a .38-caliber revolver, nabbed a would-be burglar at her home and made him crouch down on all fours as she sipped a glass of bourbon and waited for police.

Gladys Kastensmith was awakened in her rocking chair Monday by a man trying to crawl through a doggie door in her home, police said.

Mrs. Kastensmith was waiting for him.

John Lynch, smiling, congratulated her.

the police radio room, said he monitored the telephone call.

"She had him down on all fours and told him if he moved she'd shoot him," Lynch said. "He moved and she said (to police), 'Just a minute, honey' and then kablam!"

Lynch said the woman fired at least one shot at the man to keep him from moving while she talked to police. When police arrived, they found David Snead, 28, still on all fours while Mrs. Kastensmith guarded him.

John Lynch, smiling, congratulated her.

Hunt To Address Legislature On Ronald McDonald Houses

By JANE CASSELLBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

Tom Hunt of Sanford will address both the State House of Representatives and Senate Wednesday in conjunction with the formal presentation of the Legislative resolution recognizing the contributions of the Ronald McDonald Houses to the citizens of Florida and the declaring of a Ronald McDonald House Day.

Vice president of the Friends of RMH, Inc., Hunt will tell the legislators about the progress of the Ronald McDonald House to be built near Shands Hospital in Gainesville. Scheduled to open in the fall, the house will serve as a haven for families of young patients at Shands who often have long and repeated stays for medical treatment that put a strain on the families emotionally, physically and financially.

There is already one such home for Miami, which like Gainesville are major centers for treatment of children. Representatives for these two Ronald McDonald Houses will also speak.

The presentation is scheduled for approximately 11 a.m. in the Senate gallery and 11:30 in the House gallery. A luncheon will follow at the North Florida outside the House Office Building.

Hunt recently received the coveted Jefferson Award for his efforts on behalf of obtaining a Ronald McDonald House in Gainesville as well as other community service activities.

He has a personal understanding of the need for the facility as his son, Eddie, was a patient at Shands many times before his death three years ago at the age of 14½.

Hunt is responsible for a six-county area including Seminole to coordinate information, education, programs and fund raising activities for the Gainesville

Amid Scandal

Italy's Government Resigns

ROME (UPI) — Italy's 40th government since World War II resigned today amid charges that an array of top government officials, including three Cabinet Ministers, belonged to a secret society involved in criminal activities.

Christian Democratic Prime Minister Arnaldo Forlani, 54, submitted his coalition government's resignation to President Sandro Pertini at the presidential Quirinale Palace after a Cabinet meeting this morning.

Pertini accepted Forlani's resignation, but the prime minister will continue to serve until a new government can be formed.

The fall of the government — a 7-month-old coalition of Christian Democrats, Socialists, Republicans and Social Democrats — was precipitated by the Socialists' refusal to attend today's Cabinet meeting and consider a Cabinet shakeup as a means of saving the government.

By not attending the meeting, Socialist leader Bettino Craxi, 47, effectively announced his party's withdrawal from the coalition.

The government's collapse came less than a week after Forlani made public a list of members of a Masonic Lodge that investigators say was involved in criminal activities and may have sought to overthrow the government and install an authoritarian regime.

The list included a wide array of government officials, including three Cabinet officials, undersecretaries, police and army officials, as well as well-known bankers, lawyers, industrialists and journalists.

Magistrates investigating the "P-2" Masonic lodge believe it operated as a secret society that worked illegally to further the professional, political and financial interests of its members.

Nearly everyone named in the list denied they were lodge members.

OPEC Ministers Near Oil Price Pact

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani entered a crucial meeting today fingering worry beads but hoping other OPEC nations would show moderation to give the West a break from continually climbing oil prices.

His nation, worried that high prices will permanently scare off customers, has flooded markets with lower-priced oil to steal customers and pressure other OPEC nations into accepting a price cut or at least freeze.

There was a seemingly optimistic mood as the showdown on pricing and production opened, apparently stemming from private talks during the night in the upper-floor ministerial suites at the hotel.

Edouard Alexis MbouyBoutiz, oil minister of Gabon, said, "I am optimistic" and Rene Ortis, the outgoing OPEC secretary general, said he believed agreement was "very possible."

Saudi Arabia had found little support for price cuts among OPEC members charging record-high rates during preliminary discussions Monday. Yamani offered to raise Saudi prices if the others lowered theirs, but the idea was rejected by militant North African producers.

For months, Yamani carefully built for this showdown at the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' semi-annual meeting. He wanted all 13 OPEC nations to have one price, instead of the current range from his low of $32 per barrel to a high of $41 for high-grade Libyan crude.

To win, Yamani went to his strength — Saudi Arabia's massive oil reserves. The country has far more oil than any other OPEC nation so Yamani simply flooded the market with lower-priced crude oil and siphoned away customers.

The ploy created some of the deepest dissensions within OPEC in recent years, divisions that surfaced Monday.

Yamani held out his offer just before the start of the two-day conference. He said he was willing to raise the price of his oil if — but only if — the other OPEC members would lower theirs.

Seminole's Tops In Career Education

By SYBIL MITCHELL GANDY

The Seminole County Schools, Career Education Program took first-place honors recently at the State Conference as Florida's most effective program.

C.E. Coordinator for county schools, Mary Joyce Bateman, told school board officials at their Wednesday meeting that Seminole County and St. Lucie tied for first place as the most

"The support we've always received from you is a major reason for us receiving this award," she told Supt. Robert Hughes and school board members.

According to the 1980 CEIA Report submitted by Career Education State Coordinator Mrs. Olive Thomas, Seminole County CE was cited for the following:

— The program extensively utilizes community organization resources.

E Coordinator complete with support staff. Leadership is very effective with much enthusiasm.

— There is strong administrative support on both the county and school levels.

— The CE concept has been infused in all existing schools as well as new facilities as they are added to the system.

— The county has developed a CE program for all students, including the special needs.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Poland Discloses 'Assaults' Against Soviet Soldiers

WARSAW (UPI) — The Polish government said Soviet soldiers stationed in the country had been assaulted and warned the national interest was being harmed by the spreading of "anti-Soviet sentiment." The warning, later partially watered down, followed an official announcement Monday of the suicides of two former Cabinet ministers who were under investigation for corruption.

In a statement Monday, Poland's Council of Ministers warned of a "dangerous" deterioration of public order and said there had been "isolated cases of assaults against Soviet soldiers stationed in Poland."

The statement was changed two hours later to read "insults" instead of "assaults," but Poland's official late-night television newscast ignored the correction and quoted the original statement.

There are between 30,000 and 40,000 Soviet soldiers stationed in Poland who, the statement said, "fulfill a difficult and responsible service..."

"Attempts to disturb this (fraternal) atmosphere, the sowing of unwillingness and distrust and sparking of anti-Soviet sentiment is contradictory to the spirit and letter of allied relations and harms the interests of Poland," the council said.

3 Irish Policemen Burned

BEIRFATH (UPI) — A booby-trapped crate of gasoline bombs exploded in the faces of three Londonderry policemen Tuesday, burning one badly and setting their Land Rover ablaze, police said.

A hospital spokesman said the most seriously injured officer underwent emergency surgery and was expected to survive. The other two officers were treated for superficial burns.

Police said the officers were in their Land Rover making a pre-dawn security check and drove into a supermarket car parked where they saw the crate. As one policeman examined it, the crate exploded. The force of the explosion rattled windows in houses up to 500 yards away, police said. Meanwhile a fifth IRA hunger striker was reported only days from death as some 12,000 Catholics gave a military-style funeral to the fourth Irish Republican prisoner to starve himself to death.

In Belfast's southwest fringe where Bobby Sands was the first hunger striker buried May 7, houses were draped in mourning today for Carole Ann Kelly, 11, who died Friday from a plastic bullet fired by security forces. Black IRA flags flew at Sands' home.

Rivals Battle In Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Nine rival forces battled across Lebanon in a resurgence of fighting that has pushed Syria and Israel near war. Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin offered to go to Beirut to sign a separate peace treaty with Lebanon.

While U.S. peace envoy Philip Habib waited in Israel Monday for the outcome of discussions between Syria and mediator Saudi Arabia, Syria shot down its third Israeli pilotless reconnaissance drone over Lebanon's Beqaa Valley in 11 days.

Begin, repeating an offer made several times earlier, said Monday, "I'm willing to go within 24 hours to Beirut or to Host (President) Elias Sarkis in Jerusalem and sign a peace treaty between Lebanon and Israel."

Egypt is the only Arab nation to sign a separate peace with Israel and it led to their diplomatic isolation.

Pope Feeling Very Tired

ROME (UPI) — Pope John Paul II, recovering from wounds suffered in an assassination attempt 13 days ago, was feeling extremely tired today because of the switch from intravenous feeding to a normal diet, a hospital official said.

The pope was taken off intravenous feeding Friday. "In the last few hours the pope began feeling very tired because of the passage to regular feeding from the administration of intravenous feeding," said Dr. Emilio Tresanti, chief medical officer of the Gemelli hospital.

Stewardess Signals Counterattack

Hostages Overpower, Beat Hijackers

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI) — Passengers aboard a hijacked Turkish DC-9, acting on a signal from a stewardess, overpowered and severely beat two pistol-wielding terrorists to end a 38-hour skyjacking ordeal. Five American bankers were among the 96 freed hostages.

All four gunmen, who hijacked the Turkish Airlines jet Sunday from Istanbul to the Black Sea port of Burgas, Bulgaria, were in jail today.

Five hostages were injured

Monday at the end of the ordeal as they leaped from the plane, but none was seriously hurt, news reports said.

The five executives of New York-based Citibank — George J. Clark, 58, Michael Kelland, 36, William E. Pitts II, 37, John H. Bernson, 34, and Timothy M. Kelly, 39 — escaped unharmed after 38 hours of captivity during which they were told they would be the first hostages killed.

The escape plan was set in motion by a stewardess who alerted passengers. "The time of rescue has arrived," as she passed out dinner trays, the pilot of the hijacked airliner, Burtas Akidil, said on the return of the plane and passengers. Akidil said two hijackers, members of the Turkish ultra-leftist terrorist group Dev Sol, were lured off the plane for a press conference and seized by security forces.

"As soon as the two terrorists, nicknamed Jackal and Hawk by their own group, got off the plane, we decided the time for action had arrived," Akidil said.

"One of the two terrorists inside the cabin was guarding the entrance to the cockpit and the other was at the rear exit," he said. The gunmen shouted if their demands were not met "We'll take off and blow up this plane over Ankara."

At that moment, the stewardesses signaled and a Turkish soldier on the plane lunged forward and grabbed the gun hand of a terrorist, while three other passengers pounced, Akidil said.

The gunman recovered his balance and began firing wildly.

"Luckily, no one was hit," Akidil said.

"While this was going on, I and another passenger attacked the other gunman who was guarding the cockpit." More passengers joined in and helped pin the gunman to the floor.

The official Bulgaria news agency said one of the gunmen was severely beaten by his (other) hostages.

The plane's co-pilot started the engines and brought the jet to lurching halt at the airline terminal. Passengers flung open the emergency exits and clambered out.

'Goat Lady' Charged With Making Harassing Calls

By BRITT SMITH
Herald Staff Writer

Ingeborg Morris, who came to be known as the "Goat Lady" after snubbing her nose at Seminole County officials by keeping a herd of 16 miniature goats at her home in defiance of county law, has branched out. Her legal troubles now extend into Lake County.

Morris, 46, of Oak Drive in Forest City, was arrested Friday on a Lake County warrant charging her with making harassing telephone calls. She was released on $325 bond.

According to Herb Baker, investigator with the Lake State Attorney's Office, the offending calls were being made to the Ag Carriers trucking firm of Leesburg.

"They weren't obscene or anything," Baker said. "She was just calling them so much — more than 50 calls in one day — that they couldn't get their work done. She kept all their phones tied up."

"It was some type of boyfriend-girlfriend problem," he said. "He apparently ran out on her and she would call him at work and harass him. I tried to get them to straighten out the problem themselves, but she wouldn't have any part of it. She put a cushion on me you wouldn't believe. So, we filed the warrant."

No trial date has been set for the case.

Morris is scheduled to appear in Seminole Circuit Court at 9:30 a.m. Thursday before Judge Vernon Mize Jr. for a hearing on the civil lawsuit filed by the county in November asking the court to issue an injunction prohibiting her from keeping goats at her home.

Morris has been in court before with the same problem. On Oct. 13, she pleaded no contest to violating a county ordinance and was fined $25. On Feb. 23, she pleaded no contest to a similar charge, but County Judge Wallace Hall withheld a finding of guilty in the case pending the outcome of the county's civil lawsuit.

PIPE DREAM

Two 19-year-old Sanford men were in the Seminole County Jail today charged with burglary and grand theft after they were caught stealing copper pipe from the county school maintenance department at 410 W. 4th St., Sanford.

Arrested were John L. Inman and Richard Bernard Frederick of 32 Castle Brewer Court.

The pair were observed by Sanford patrolman Darrel Praelley inside the fenced maintenance compound throwing sections of pipe over the fence. When Praelley approached, Inman and Frederick fled, but were found hiding under a vehicle inside the compound.

'Armed And Dangerous' Escapee Still At Large

PEMBROKE PINES, Fla. (UPI) — An "armed and very dangerous" inmate with a history of four escapes remained at large today after eluding a SWAT team and fleeing from a maximum-security ward of South Florida State Hospital.

A statewide alert was issued by the Broward County Sheriff's Department for Michael Omar Zildgen, 36, of Miami, who fled from the state hospital early Monday after pulling a gun on two unarmed security guards and jumping over a fence.

A Special Weapons and Tactics unit stationed at the hospital to guard the prisoner was in the security office when Zildgen, wearing blue shorts, a black shirt and tennis shoes, escaped about 3:45 a.m.

"They (the SWAT team) weren't in the right place," said Sheriff's Capt. Dave Yurchuck.

Deputies speculated that a woman who visited Zildgen twice during the weekend may have helped him escape and a getaway car may have been waiting for him.

The alert issued to authorities throughout Florida described Zildgen as 5-foot-11-inches tall, weighing 181 pounds, "armed and very dangerous."

Zildgen, also known as "Michael Salem, had been held at the state hospital since April 7 for psychiatric evaluation to determine if he was competent to stand trial on drug charges in Dade County.

He was arrested on March 4 on charges of escaping from the Polk County Jail, possession of a firearm by a convicted felon and possession of marijuana, cocaine and other drugs.

Broward sheriff's deputies said Zildgen's arrest record dates back 20 years and includes charges of murder, kidnapping and four escapes. He had previously escaped from the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary, Jacksonville Correctional Institution and a New Jersey jail.

Hospital officials said the SWAT team was called in Friday when word was received that six of Zildgen's friends, armed with machine guns, planned to storm the hospital to get him out. On Sunday, officials asked Dade County Judge James R. Jorgenson to return the inmate to jail but the judge refused.

Holiday Death Toll Exceeds Expected

By United Press International
Floridians died at a rate better than one every three hours on the state's highways during the Memorial Day weekend, pushing the holiday death toll beyond the grim expectations of the state highway patrol.

By midnight Monday, when the 78-hour holiday period officially ended, the highway patrol had recorded 32 traffic deaths — seven more than the total predicted by the troopers before the long weekend began Friday evening. And late reports were expected to swell the numbers further.

A grisly accident between two vans near Homestead, in southwest Dade County, claimed the first victims when the count had barely begun Friday. That wreck — the worst of the weekend — killed three Haitian refugees and injured 19 other persons.

Other victims lost their lives while traveling on foot, on bicycles, motorcycles and in many kinds of four-wheel vehicles.

One man, John Wesley Branton, 56, died when his car was struck by an Amtrak train at a railroad crossing in Deland. An 82-year-old Brooksville man on a moped was killed in the final hours of the holiday period when he changed lanes and smashed into another vehicle.

The youngest victim was 16-year-old David Ronald McCabe, who was killed early Sunday in West Palm Beach when his car, which was stopped at a red light, was struck from behind by another vehicle.

Speeding drivers were responsible for at least two accidents that claimed as many lives.

Alcohol was a factor in a head-on collision that killed two drivers late Monday on State Road 5 in St. Augustine. Authorities said Johnnie Edward Tyler, 48, was driving while intoxicated and was traveling north in the southbound lane. He struck a southbound vehicle driven by William James McLaughlin, 23.

The Country's 'Toastmaster General'

Colleagues Eulogize George Jessel

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Friends and fellow entertainers eulogized George Jessel, who as the country's "Toastmaster General" had offered eulogies for hundreds of celebrities for 50 years.

"I was brought up with George Jessel," his old friend Milton Berle said Monday. "We were born next door to each other on 118th Street in Harlem. He was one of a kind. When the Lord made George Jessel he threw away the mold." Berle often shared the date with Jessel at the Beverly Hills Friar's Club, which Jessel helped found.

He will deliver the eulogy for his friend at funeral services Wednesday at Hillside Memorial Park and Mortuary. Jessel died at age 83 Sunday at UCLA

Medical Center of an apparent massive heart attack, about an hour after he lapsed into a coma. He entered the facility last week for tests following a fall at his home.

Bob Hope, describing Jessel as "the emcee's emcee," said he had talked with his longtime friend last week when he entered the hospital. "He reminded me of our running philosophy of life," Hope recalled, "which was based on a one-liner from the musical 'Roberta.'"

"The line was, 'Life is like hash — You've got to have confidence in it to enjoy it.' Well, George had confidence in life, and he enjoyed it."

Jessel spent almost 75 years in show business from a kid singing "School Days" in vaudeville to the man fondly called "the Toastmaster General of the United States."

An unabashed sentiment and a straight-faced sense of humor were Jessel's trade marks and he spoke of his own death recently in an interview.

"I don't know what happens after you're gone," he said, "but I know something happens."

"When I come back I'll phone you," Jessel broke into show business as a 9-year-old nickelodeon singer in New York City theatres and he continued in vaudeville.

In his later years the entertainer was a tireless fund raiser for Israel.

Summer Program Set For Blind Children

Ten Seminole County blind youngsters will discover for the first time what a summer education experience is like thanks to Seminole County schools officials and the state Division of Blind Services.

Mary Witenger, Director of Exceptional Education in the county and Don Wedewer, Director of the Division of Blind Services have agreed to cooperate to provide a half-day instructional program for young children in the county.

Created for blind children from pre-school through 8 years of age, the program will begin on Monday, and run through July 27. These special classes will be taught at the Rosenwald Exceptional Education Center 5 days a week from 8:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

County schools will provide a bus for transporting the children as well as a full-time vision education instructor. Additionally the county will provide the use of speech and physical therapists to work with the children on an individual basis.

The Division of Blind Services, in addition to another full-time vision education instructor, will provide instructional materials, evaluation tools, and mid-day snacks.

Designed to improve communications as well as cognitive skills, the classes will also try to create environmental awareness in the children.

Officials from both Blind Services and Seminole County public schools said they believe the program will be especially significant for the children since summer activities will most likely reinforce those skills and concepts taught during the regular school session.

The program will include work with parents so the skills taught may be further emphasized in the home.—SYBIL MITCHELL GANDY

Bus Rolls Down Mountain

Killing Three, Injuring 25

CARSON CITY, NEV. (UPI) — A chartered bus full of vacationers, its brakes smoking, careened out of control down a mountain road and collided with a station wagon, killing three people and injuring 25 others.

The Nevada Highway Patrol said the brakes failed on the bus Monday as it sped down Spooner Summit after leaving Lake Tahoe with a group from Los Angeles aboard. It reached a speed of 50 mph before going through a red light and smashing into the other vehicle on U.S. 395, about 5 miles south of Carson City.

The bus had passed the last emergency exit on U.S. 50 apparently before the driver realized his brakes had failed. The three killed were in the station wagon. They were identified as Gerald Wheat, 38, of San Francisco; his wife, Martina, 38, and their son, Andrew, 11. A daughter, Robin, 8, was in serious condition at St. Mary's Hospital in Reno.

Twenty-five of the 36 bus passengers were taken to Carson-Tahoe Hospital and an emergency station in Gardnerville for treatment of mostly minor injuries.

Respiratory Ailments Test

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — A new test involving injection of a radioactive substance may help doctors treat many of the 150,000 people nationwide who each year suffer from severe respiratory ailments.

The test — radioactive tracing — was the brainchild of Dr. Harvey Sugarman, an assistant professor of surgery at the Medical College of Virginia.

Half of the 150,000 patients who suffer severe breathing difficulties each year die when their lungs fill with fluid, medical statistics show. Doctors often were frustrated in their attempts to save more patients because no effective method existed for measuring the amount of fluid in the lungs.

In Sugarman's test, similar to tracing tests used on other parts of the body, a patient is injected with a mildly radioactive dose of a substance called albumin. The albumin is pumped into blood vessels of the lungs. If capillaries of the lungs are leaking substances from the floodstream, the radioactive albumin will leak out with them into surrounding tissue. A device called the Gamma Camera is then able to detect the amount of fluid in the lungs.

Conscientious Objectors?

BOSTON (UPI) — Anticipating a new peacetime draft, the Boston Archdiocese has begun allowing 19- and 20-year-old Roman Catholics to file letters to the church saying they are conscientious objectors.

The Justice and Peace Commission of the Boston Archdiocese said the program is a "confidential registry of letters or other statements submitted by men and women who intend to claim recognition as conscientious objectors in anticipation of a possible return to peacetime conscription."

More than 4,000,000 young men last summer were required to register with the Selective Service.

Eight Stabbed In Melee

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Eight people were stabbed and two of the victims were hit by a car in a melee touched off by an argument over a bottle of beer, police say.

Police said they received a call Monday night a car was hitting people and signs in Marshall Park.

Officers arrived and found eight people had been stabbed and two also had been hit by the car.

They said one of the people involved apparently won a bottle of beer and got angry when others wouldn't give it to him. He broke another bottle and smashed one of the people, triggering the melee, police said.

Atlanta Victim Identified

ATLANTA (UPI) — A black man whose nude body was found in the suburban Chattahoochee River Sunday was identified today as 27-year-old Nathaniel Cater — the 28th young black to be slain in the Atlanta area in the last 22 months.

Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown called a news conference to announce Cater's identity, which was established by fingerprints a short time after the body was taken to the morgue.

Police said they withheld the name of Cater, who was never reported missing, to avoid any interference with the effort to trace his last movements.

Meanwhile, Ronald Crawford, a missing 22-year-old man whose name was added Monday to the special police task force list, reportedly called his mother late Monday to report that he was working in a peach orchard since July, 1979, one other missing youngster, 10-year-old Darron Glass, remains unaccounted for since dropping from sight last September.

Cater was the 17th of the victims to die of asphyxiation or strangulation and was the oldest, although four of the previous five victims were adults. His body was the sixth to be found in the Chattahoochee, a river that winds through Atlanta's northern and western suburbs. Three others have been pulled from the South River, south of the city.

More Households In U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The number of households in the nation is rising and the number of people in each household is falling, the Census Bureau said today.

The bureau reported the number of households rose by 27 percent over the decade to 80.4 million in 1980, and the average household size dropped from 3.11 in 1970 to 2.75 last year.

Among the reasons for the drop are an increase in divorces, declining birth rates and an increase in the number of young adults living alone.

The census report shows that 220.8 million people lived in households in 1980 and another 3.7 million were in "group quarters" such as institutions, rooming houses, military barracks and college dormitories.

The biggest state in the nation, California with 23.7 million residents, also had the highest number of households — 8.6 million. Next were New York and Texas with 6.3 million and 4.9 million households, respectively.

Utah — which in the past decade had one of the nation's highest population growth rates at 37.9 percent, and had a 53.2 percent growth in the number of housing units — had the largest average household size at 3.2 persons. Hawaii, where population has risen 25.3 percent and housing units have increased 54.4 percent in the decade, was second with 3.15 persons per household.

The smallest households were in the District of Columbia and Florida. These had averages of 2.39 and 2.35 persons per household, respectively.

The Census Bureau said it was releasing the figures in advance of separate publication of final state reports because there has been a large demand from various businesses and governments for the information, often used for marketing or governmental planning purposes.

The bureau defines a household as "all persons who occupy a group of rooms or a single room which constitutes a housing unit (and who) live and eat separately from other persons in the building and have direct access from the outside of the building or through a common wall."

Agents Arrest Three In Bomb Plot

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Federal agents arrested three people attempting to plant a dynamite bomb at a synagogue, reportedly part of a Ku Klux Klan plot to blow up Jewish properties.

The bomb was defused without incident Monday afternoon and the two men and a woman were taken to Metro Jail, the Nashville Tennessean said in a copyright story in today's editions. The paper said the three were Klan members.

At least seven other KKK members were being sought late Monday night in a conspiracy which included plans to blow up the WSM-TV tower and to bomb a number of Jewish-owned pawn shops, the paper said.

The three people in custody, described by the paper as "neo-Nazi types," were arrested as they drove a pickup truck carrying the dynamite bomb into The Temple's property at 5:45 p.m. as Rabbi Randall Falk was preparing to leave his office for the day.

The paper said federal agents, who uncovered the plan as part of an ongoing two-month investigation in several states, had The Temple staked out when the trio arrived.

'Donna' Duck OK After Arrow Removal

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — A mallard duck, dubbed "Donna" by humane society officials, rested comfortably in a veterinary clinic today, recovering from an operation to remove a three-foot arrow from her chest.

The bird, which makes her home on the 13th fairway of the Sahara Country Club golf course, successfully evaded would-be rescuers for more than a month before falling victim to bread laced with a tranquilizer.

The bird, which has become a media darling in a town full of celebrities, had been able to eat, fly and swim normally despite the arrow.

Donna was captured Monday by Humane Society of Southern Nevada Chairman Dart Anthony as the bird settled by a pond's edge about a half-hour after eating the bread containing sodium amytol, a strong barbiturate.

Earlier attempts to snare "Donna" with a net proved futile as Donna's mate warned her, and the bird has become more wary of people in recent days.

The injured bird was wrapped in a blanket and Anthony held her on his lap for a 20-minute helicopter ride to the Black Mountain Veterinary Clinic in Henderson, Nev.

Dr. Gary D. Weddle broke and removed the arrow and stitched the wound. He said the bird was in fairly good shape and, unless infection causes a setback, "Donna" should be able to return to the golf course pond by the end of the week.

Authorities believe the duck was shot by a teen-age boy living near the golf course.

Senate-House Clash Seen In Use Of Drugs By Florida Optometrists

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — The House and Senate appear headed for a clash over whether optometrists should be allowed to use drugs not only in the examination of eyes but in the treatment of certain eye injuries and disease as well.

Optometrists, who hold doctorate degrees in the field of vision defects, and ophthalmologists, physicians specializing in the eye, have been battling for years over their overlapping areas of practice.

The House took the optometrists' side Monday, adopting an amendment that would clear the way for their using drugs in both the examination and treatment of the front part of the eye.

A final vote on the measure (CS-HB 482) is due today.

Across the Capitol, the Senate Commerce Committee last week took the opposite position, approving a measure that would severely limit the use of drugs by optometrists to diagnostic purposes.

In 1939, the Legislature removed all references to drugs in the law that sets license standards for optometrists. Since then, optometrists have commonly used eye drops, salves and other drugs to help in examining eyes and treating minor eye problems.

Last year, however, with physicians charging that some optometrists were attempting to expand the scope of their practice, the state Board of Pharmacy ordered that prescriptions from optometrists no longer be honored.

The optometrists filed a lawsuit and appealed to the Legislature for help.

Rep. Dick Hodes, D-Tampa, a physician, said that while optometrists are trained to use cleansing agents, liquid dyes and the like in the diagnosis of eye problems, they are untrained to use drugs in the treatment of eye maladies.

Hookers' Customers Could Be Jailed

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Pimps and customers of prostitutes would be subject to the same penalties as veteran hookers — up to five years in jail and a $5,000 fine under a bill approved by a Senate committee.

The measure (SB 178) by Sen. Toni Jennings, R-Orlando, would make it a third degree felony to operate a place of prostitution or to patronize a person selling sex. The bill, approved by the Senate Judiciary-Criminal Committee Monday, would also require written records of arrests for soliciting sex from a prostitute or operating a place of business for prostitution purposes.

The public records would include fingerprints of the pimps and "Johns," so they could be identified in subsequent court cases.

The Jennings bill would make it a third degree felony to keep a house of prostitution, live off the earnings of a hooker or "purchase the services of any person engaged in prostitution."

The House last Thursday passed a bill setting the same third-degree felony maximum penalty for prostitutes convicted three times of selling sex.

Liquor License Overhaul In The Works

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Hoping to make next year's liquor license distribution a little less lucrative, the Senate Finance and Taxation Committee has approved a major overhaul of the system.

None of the 3,067 liquor licenses justified by past census figures is still available and many license holders are sitting on the valuable permits — waiting to sell them to new clubs or restaurants willing to pay thousands of dollars for a permit originally costing $1,500 to $1,750. There will be about 800 new permits issued under the 1980 census figures.

The bills by Sens. Sherman Winn, D-Miami, and Joe Carlucci, D-Jacksonville, would ration those licenses over the next decade — one-fifth of them being issued every two years — and would require a double-lottery method for choosing recipients.

New license holders would be required to use their licenses 180 days a year.

The initial license fee, which now ranges from $1,500 to $1,750 in various counties, would go up to $3,000 — but the annual renewal fee would remain $1,500 under the bills.

What Kind Of A Question Is That?

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Who are the least effective members of the Florida House?

That's an unfair question, according to House leaders. And they advised their members Monday not to answer it.

Speaker Ralph Haben and Rules Chairman Sam Bell told legislators they shouldn't participate in the Gannett News Service survey seeking the five most effective and five least effective members of the House and Senate.

Haben also told sergeant at arms Wayne Westmark never to allow into the House chamber a poll or survey "trying to determine who is good, bad, effective, least effective or anything else."

Bell, of Daytona Beach, started the House discussion by informing legislators after the noon break he has discovered they had gotten copies of the Gannett survey.

"This would be a very bad thing for us to engage in," Bell said. "It would be a very grave mistake if we engaged in a process that results in selecting out of our colleagues here those who are least effective."

"If the press wants to criticize us and say who is the most effective and least effective, that's their business, but it would be totally inappropriate for us to do that sort of thing."

Lawmakers have participated over the years in the Florida Times-Union survey honoring the most effective members of the Legislature.

In the early 1970's, members did participate in a Florida Trend Magazine survey resulting in the designation of the best and worst members of the House and Senate.

Robert Dubill, GNS executive editor in Washington, defended his organization's survey, saying similar ones have been conducted in Illinois and other states "and have been completed and returned routinely."

"Gannett News Service distributed this survey to Florida lawmakers in hopes of gaining a better understanding of the legislative process from those most closely involved in that process, legislators themselves," Dubill said. "We believe the survey, taken in the proper spirit, could lead to a useful public dialogue."

The GNS survey also asked legislators whether they think lobbyists have too much influence on them, whether the Legislature's leadership has too much influence, what would they most like to change about the law-making process and do they need or desire a pay raise.

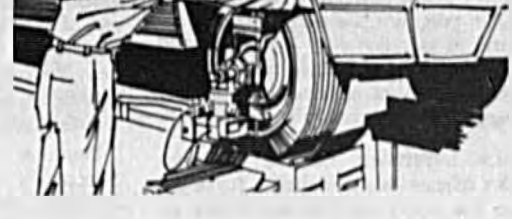

Senate chief of staff Howard Walton said he did not know of the Gannett survey and had not heard any senator complain about it.

Schmidt's Headache

West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt is a troubled man. And no wonder.

The Federal Republic's economy is sputtering and the chancellor is beset with unsettling indications of his own political mortality, including a recent West German public opinion poll that gave his government a 60 percent negative rating.

That sort of news would be sufficient to give any chief of state a nagging headache. But Helmut Schmidt is suffering from a full-blown migraine. The reason: Schmidt's support for strengthening NATO's theater nuclear deterrent is sparking a rapidly growing rebellion within the left wing of his Social Democratic party.

The West German leader is personally and politically committed to the American-inspired plan to deploy 572 U.S. cruise and Pershing II medium-range nuclear missiles in Western Europe beginning in late 1983. Present plans call for 206 of these weapons to be stationed on West German soil.

That fact especially has aroused West Germany's appeasement lobby, which includes sizable numbers of Social Democrats egged on by party chairman and former chancellor Willy Brandt. So worrisome has this opposition become that Schmidt threatened recently to resign if his party withdraws support for European deployment of the new American missiles.

It isn't likely that Chancellor Schmidt's stock has sunk so low in his own party as to permit repudiation on so fundamental an issue. Still, the formally stolid Schmidt isn't given to theatrics. That he felt compelled to threaten resignation is a measure of how serious the debate over stiffening NATO's nuclear defense has become.

Absent the degree of Finlandization already sapping the resolve of many West Germans and other Europeans, there would be no debate at all. The huge, and growing, Soviet arsenal of strategic nuclear weapons has long since cancelled the deterrent effect of the U.S. nuclear umbrella over Western Europe.

Nor can NATO rely on superiority or even parity, in either tactical or medium-range nuclear weapons. The Soviets hold intimidating edges in both categories.

As for conventional strength, a showdown along NATO's central front would find allied forces facing, for example, a 3-1 Soviet superiority in tanks.

In fact, then, NATO must strengthen its forces across the board if Western Europe is to be defended.

The immediate need is to counter the Soviets' dear-monopoly in medium-range nuclear missiles. Moscow has already deployed some 220 SS-20 mobile, nuclear-tipped rockets — 150 aimed at Western Europe. New SS-20s are being added at the rate of one every five days.

Thus, about 400 SS-20s armed with three warheads each are likely to be deployed before the first American cruise or Pershing II missile reaches Western Europe.

Helmut Schmidt's desire to salvage something of East-West detente in Europe hasn't blinded him to the imperative need to counter those SS-20s. The chancellor is enough of a realist to understand that there can be no detente in Europe unless NATO is capable of defending itself.

President Reagan is enough of a realist to understand that Helmut Schmidt and his counterparts elsewhere in Western Europe need political help in selling the NATO missile plan to a nervous citizenry. Which means Mr. Reagan must reaffirm the administration's commitment to negotiating with the Soviets on the theater nuclear question.

The Soviets won't be inclined to yield their current advantage. Indeed, Moscow is certain to try digging out the talks as a way of slowing or halting the deployment of the new cruise and Pershing II missiles.

So, what ought to emerge as a result of the Reagan-Schmidt discussions is a reaffirmation of the "dual-track" strategy: A willingness to negotiate with Moscow while pushing ahead with production, and deployment of NATO's response to the SS-20s.

By SAM COOK

The Orlando Twins are as good as the Minnesota Twins are bad.

Prior to twin 10-inning losses Thursday and Friday, Tom Kelly's Double A boys ran off an 11-game winning streak which catapulted them atop the division.

Saturday the O-Twins started another streak by thrashing Memphis 13-3 before 4,043 Bank Night fans at Tinker Field. Memphis, by the way, sits on top of its division too.

Andre David, the Twins' center fielder, rapped a three-run inside-the-park home run in the midst of a five-run seventh inning which knocked out the visitors.

David is one of five players Orlando General Manager Bob Willis envisions playing for the big boys in Minnesota one of these days.

Another young phenom, right fielder Steve Douglas, is on a tear himself these days. Douglas drove in five runs Friday, four runs Saturday and came up with one hit in two official trips.

Scott Uliger was the big RBI man in Sunday's 7-3 victory over the West Division leaders. Uliger cracked two homers and chased home four runs. His three-run shot in the eighth inning gave the O-Twins their 13th victory in 15 games. Lance Halberg clouted a fifth inning, two-run round-tripper which was the Twins 54th in 45 games. The league record is 146 set by Asheville in 1964.

The O-Twins used three pitchers in Sunday's win. Brad Haven picked up the victory by going 6.1 innings to improve to 6-1 for the year.

Steve Green bailed out first reliever Gary Serum in the ninth inning to pick up the save.

The O-Twins home stand continues through Saturday. They play Memphis tonight, then close with four dates with Columbus beginning Wednesday.

Crooms High School honored its athletes last Thursday with an awards night. William Wynn and Sharon Jenkins were named Most Outstanding for the school year.

Jenkins, who runs track for Seminole, was also named most valuable player on the volleyball team. She also played basketball.

The 6-foot-1 Wynn was a standout in football, basketball and baseball. "He didn't miss a practice all year in any sport," said Basketball Coach Chris Marlette about the dependable power forward.

Other football awards included, Steve Grey (MVP), David Linton (Most Outstanding Offensive Lineman), Willie Bass (Most Outstanding Offensive Back) and Wynn (Most Outstanding Defensive Lineman).

In basketball, Willie Mitchell was MVP, Steve Alexander was Most Outstanding Offensive Player, Steven Grey was Most Outstanding Defensive Player and Wynn was Most Improved.

The baseball MVP was Teddy Jones with Paul McKeivry the Most Outstanding Offensive player. Brian Rogers was Most Outstanding Defensive player and Wynn Most Improved.

In girls sports, Penny Morris was the winner of the Sportsmanship trophy for volleyball, while Sherry Carpenter was Most Improved and Arlene Jones Most Dependable.

Kathy Barbour was the softball MVP and Deidre Hillery was the Most Outstanding Offensive player. Maxine Campbell was the Most Outstanding Defensive player and Sue Besigne was Most Improved.

Two "Coaches Trophy" awards were given to Octavia Horn and Bruce Franklin.

War On Export Violators

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The recent raid by Customs Service agents on a Soviet Aeroflot jetliner at Washington's Dulles Airport was not a random occurrence. Rather, it was part of a major effort by the Reagan administration to deny the Soviets the high-technology items that they have for years bought from U.S. companies, says an influential Justice Department official who agreed to be interviewed only if his name would not be used.

This effort includes the impaneling of several secret federal grand juries to consider indictments against businessmen and companies who sell such goods to the Soviets or their allies in violation of U.S. laws and regulations.

Customs agents delayed the takeoff of the Moscow-bound plane to search for what were termed "high-technology defense-related items." They found aircraft-navigation equipment, radiation-measuring devices and electronic circuit boards. The items were quickly returned to the Soviets when it was determined that only the navigation equipment needed an export license and that the Soviets had obtained one.

Both the Arms Export Control Act and the Export Administration Act require businessmen or companies to get export licenses before selling a wide variety of items abroad. Licenses for exports to Western Europe has for years been granted almost automatically. Licenses for exports to the Soviet Union and other members of the Eastern bloc were more difficult to obtain but were regularly issued — until the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Then the Carter administration prohibited the Soviets from purchasing from U.S. companies a wide assortment of high-technology items, especially computers and computer programs. Now the Reagan administration is going even further by expanding the list of prohibited products and launching an all-out effort to stop the circumvention of the export restrictions.

Justice Department officials say that complex schemes are often used to try to get around the export controls. Sometimes an exporter tells a manufacturer that its high-technology product will be used domestically but then ships the product abroad without an export license. Other times exporters obtain licenses by supplying phony information to the Customs Service.

The most common method of circumventing the restrictions is for an exporter to obtain a license to ship the high-technology product to Western Europe. The item may pass through two, three or four hands and as many countries before reaching its final destination in the Soviet Union or an ally.

IRS Has Millions In Unclaimed Refunds

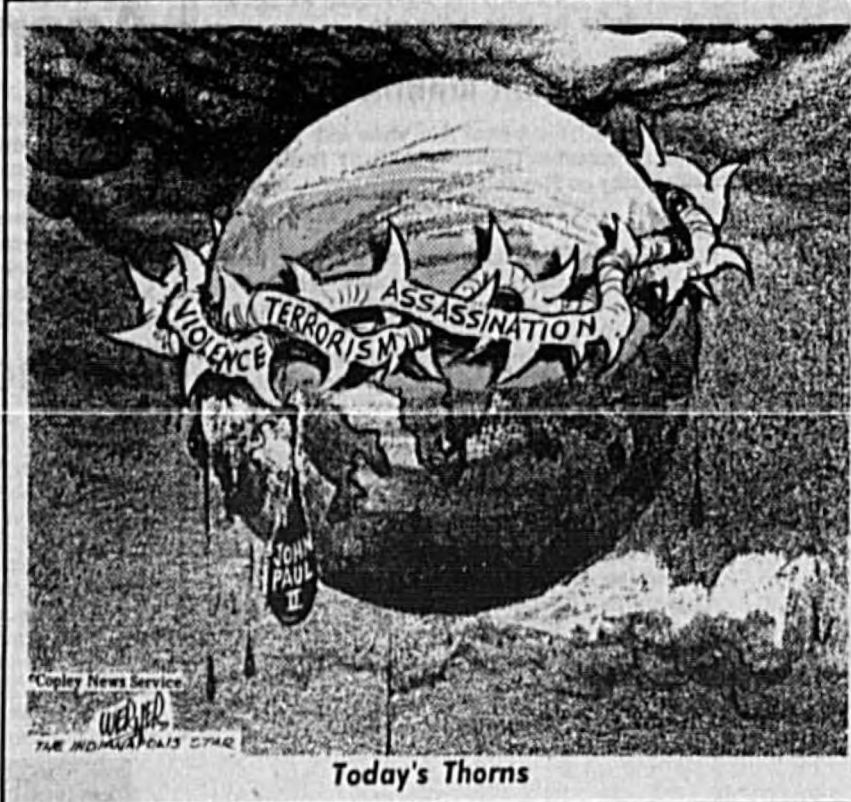

WASHINGTON — This is the time of year when the Internal Revenue Service rolls up its sleeves, sharpens its pencils and tracks down its deadbeats who cheated on their income taxes. IRS auditors go after the tax chiselers with commendable enthusiasm and fair success.

But the revenooers show less zeal — and less success — in their efforts to track down the thousands of taxpayers whose refund checks go undelivered because of inadequate or outdated addresses.

The number of these taxpayers is astonishing: As of last December, the IRS was holding 87,780 refund checks that had been returned stamped "addressee unknown." The total value of these checks is $24.5 million.

Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., told my associate Lucretia Lagnado he is convinced that many of the people owed money by the government are low-income women and elderly Americans who badly need their refunds. The IRS has no statistics to prove or disprove this theory.

According to IRS computer breakdowns of the undelivered refund checks, most of them are for amounts between $100 and $1,000. But many are worth up to $10,000 and some are for even larger amounts.

GOP Glories In Power

EASTON, Md. (UPI) — Republicans leaders are discovering that being in power is better — but not necessarily easier.

More than 125 GOP governors, members of Congress, cabinet officers and state elected officials gathered on Maryland's Eastern Shore recently for the fourth annual Tidewater Conference.

It was the biggest and most successful of the informal leadership conferences organized by Sen. Robert Packwood of Oregon. For two days party officials sat around in shirtsleeves — unhampered by staff, lobbyists or other pressures — and discussed major issues facing the nation.

Veterans of the conference like Packwood, former party chairman Bill Brock, now special trade representative; and Reps. John Rousselot of California and Jack Kemp of New York were right at home drafting resolutions on tax cut legislation, trade negotiations and the like.

Some of the Reagan administration newcomers — like GOP Chairman Richard Richards, Interior Secretary James Watt and Energy Secretary James Edwards — were unaccustomed to their new power, and said nothing all weekend.

One new-old pro, White House political director Lyn Nofziger, did what he has always done — drifting from table to table, making sure no language was drafted that inadvertently put Reagan in a bad light.

The thorny issue of Social Security was not originally on the agenda — the president's controversial revisions had come up too late for conference planners to include them.

But it was very much on the minds of the delegates as they gathered Friday night for social evening of clams and oysters and singing around the piano. By the time the conference got down to work Saturday morning the agenda was rearranged to put Social Security high on the calendar.

This was against the better judgment of some veteran delegates who thought the issue too controversial and too new for in-depth discussion. They argued for attaching a simple amendment to some other resolution saying, in effect, Social Security needed to be overhauled — but only after careful study of a solution that didn't hurt anybody.

But too many of the House members — the dominant faction at the conference — had received anguished calls from constituents about Social Security to bury the issue.

By the time the Social Security debate was one hour old, more of the delegates probably wished the issue had not come up. They found it hard to draft language to quiet the fears of constituents that did not also sound critical of Reagan.

Being good politicians, they finally drafted a statement that neither endorsed nor criticized the president's proposal, and called on Democrats to work with them in a bipartisan effort to find a solution to ensure "no particular age group or segment of our population will sustain an unfair burden of the reform."

Republican leaders learned a valuable lesson on how to flex their new-found muscles — and when to open their mouths and when to keep them closed.

Packwood started the conferences as his contribution to bringing the Republican Party back into power. The Democrats could do worse than copy his idea in their comeback attempt.

Hitting Beaches Once More

The situation turned increasingly ugly as spring progressed.

Clashes among political and religious factions were beyond the fragile government's ability to control. Outsiders were becoming increasingly involved, with Syria openly moving arms and forces into the country. The next steps appeared likely to be regional war, great-power involvement and quite possible a full-fledged East-West confrontation.

The subject is Lebanon, and this summary of the situation may roughly fit 1981, but it is actually a once-over-lightly review of 1958, a trial run that set the scene for today's crisis.

Back then the problem was Gamal Abdel Nasser, still riding high on the momentum of the Egyptian revolution and very much the man of the Mideastern hour. He was the hero of the Arab masses throughout the region, and in Lebanon enthusiasm took the form of riots that threatened the delicate governmental balance between the country's Moslem and Christian communities.

Very briefly, Egypt was then federated on paper with Syria in the United Arab Republic. The next-door Syrians were conveniently placed to supply weapons and, if needed, additional manpower to pro-Nasser Lebanese. Nasser — this was less than two years after his seizure of the Suez Canal and the ensuing conflict with Israel, Britain and France — also had some exceedingly powerful friends in Moscow who stood to gain from any gains he made in Mideast skirmishing.

This alarmed powerful people in Washington who warned the Syrians and Nasser directly, by way of getting a message across to the Soviets, to lay off Lebanon. Maneuvering and warnings escalated until July 15 when U.S. Marines hit the beaches near Beirut.

American intervention came at the request of the Lebanese president and in a building crisis that was bigger than Lebanon. Pro-Nasser officers had overthrown the Iraqi government and strung the king in a Baghdad street. British troops were also moving into Jordan.

It was the crisis of the 1958 season. Nasser, the Soviets and anti-Western Arabs demanded immediate U.S. withdrawal or else — or else what never being precisely stated. The Eisenhower administration refused until all parties guaranteed Lebanese integrity — i.e., the pro-Western status quo. The few pro-Western Arabs around then kept their heads very low. Resolution countered resolution at the United Nations.

But for those most immediately involved, it was not an uncomfortable crisis. Violence subsided in Lebanon. Marines shared the sunny beaches with vacationing bathers. The government held on and was eventually reestablished.

payer refund checks go unclaimed or uncashed," the amount is small compared to the taxes that are legally owed the government but are never collected.

TERRORIST SCRUPLES: While terrorists see nothing wrong with slaughtering the innocent to achieve their goals, they seem to draw the line on drug smuggling. That's the conclusion of a secret Drug Enforcement Administration report.

While some individual terrorists — including the notorious Carlos the Jackal — have personally used drugs, "most terrorists have avoided involvement with narcotics trafficking in developed countries," the report states. There are several reasons:

— Ideologically, "drugs are seen as an opiate used to escape from society, not as a means of achieving the desired mobilization of the masses against the political system."

— Drug pushing is considered poor public relations, making the terrorists responsible for the nonpolitical crimes committed by users to support their habits. "The image of the degenerate pusher is not one which would be revolutionary heroes wish to cultivate among potential supporters."

— While many terrorists ultimately wish to fundamentally alter social conditions, social disintegration induced by drug trafficking is regarded as antipathetic to their aim of reform through revolution." Also, social disruption from drugs is hard to control.

— "Most terrorist groups have more lucrative methods of securing funds" — like bank robberies, kidnapping for ransom or handouts from sympathetic governments, all of which are easier to justify politically.

Despite these ideologically valid reasons for avoiding the stigma of drug pushing, the DEA report notes, some terrorist groups — usually in Latin America — have been involved in the drug traffic.

The reasons for this vary. Drug traffic can be used to recruit members or to line the pockets of gang leaders. On rare occasions, arm smugglers will accept narcotics instead of cash. And in some countries, peasants whose livelihood comes from growing opium poppies, coca bushes or marijuana plants may become potential supporters of the revolutionary terror groups.

But the DEA report concludes that "funds from drug smuggling represent only a small, and perhaps insignificant, part" of terrorists' financing. This doesn't stop some foreign governments from seeking help from the United States by claiming that local insurgents are supporting themselves by drug smuggling.

Ready for another delivery by Dunan Brick are (from left) Wayne Cronise, driver and yard man, David Adams, manager and assistant vice president of the company, and Robert Vogt, salesman.

For Large Or Small Jobs Depend On Dunan Brick

Whether you are a do-it-yourselfer planning a backyard project or an architect planning a large construction job, Dunan Brick will be glad to meet your needs for face and structural brick, ceramic tile and natural stone.

The Sanford branch of a Miami based company that has been in business since 1929, Dunan Brick opened six months ago at 702 S. French Ave. (just behind Scotty's). The firm's other branch operation is in West Palm Beach.

"Sanford was a good location for the facility because of the logistics of delivery and to Orlando, Daytona, Melbourne, Leesburg and Lakeland. Most of our work is in a 50-mile radius of Sanford," said David Adams, manager and assistant vice president of Dunan Brick. This office serves six counties.

A distributor for brick, brick pavers, ceramic tile, and fireplace and barbecue accessories, Dunan handles quality products of leading manufacturers.

Dunan is presently running a special on brick pavers... a very inexpensive way to beautify your house... starting at 36 cents a square foot.

Adams and salesman Robert Vogt have a good knowledge of the brick business and will be glad to talk to homeowners about the various types of ways that materials can be installed, such as using compacted sand in an area that doesn't require a concrete slab.

Brick has the advantages, in addition to its beauty, of low maintenance (it doesn't need painting), energy savings, and it is impervious to damage by pests such as termites.

Brick floors in kitchens and entry ways as well as patios can add to the value and appearance of a home. Dunan has the materials and supplies needed for complete installation and they believe that competitive pricing and good service are the keys to success of the company. Dunan has setting materials, various color grouts and necessary tools for installation.

They have a substantial inventory in stock and will order specialty items for delivery within a few days. Many of the materials are displayed either as samples or in actual installation to show the customer what they will look like installed.

"Ceramic tile counter tops are becoming popular as they are easy to install and have many benefits over standard Formica," Adams said. Dunan has ceramic tile, both glazed and unglazed, cleaners and permanent type sealers.

"This area is growing so much that we feel this will be one of our key operations," said Adams. "We hope to expand our operation here shortly as the need becomes greater."

Dunan is a member of the Mid-Florida Builders Association, the Professional Specifiers Institute and the National Association of Brick Distributors.

They are open from Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and on Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon. Call them at 322-6687.

Sensational Hearing Aid Costs Pennies Per Year To Operate

Space age technology has come to the hearing aid industry. A hearing aid has been developed that actually costs pennies per year to operate. This is a far cry from the $25.00 to $70.00 a year the average hearing aid costs to run. Aid also automatically controls speech interfering noises and can be custom adjusted for correct hearing on the spot.

Bowlegged Boy Not Alone With Defect

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to BOWLEGGED AND MISERABLE was both unkind and unhelpful. You advised this 18-year-old boy to see a psychiatrist or psychologist. Now the poor kid will not only worry about his bowlegs, but he'll think he's mentally disturbed, too!

Your only other advice was to recite a prayer to an imaginary deity. What cop-out advice! Why didn't you name some famous people who are bowlegged, yet attractive? Or you could have suggested wearing loose trousers.

Your blanket advice that people seek psychiatric help for minor problems is lazy, uncaring and potentially harmful to the spirit and the pocketbook. Next time someone like this boy writes, give him what he asks for — common-sense advice.

INDIGNANT IN MADISON
DEAR INDIGNANT: BOWLEGGED AND MISERABLE got my best advice. A good-looking 18-year-old who perceives himself to be "deformed and inferior" (his words) and is afraid to ask a girl for a date because he's moderately bowlegged needs more than a list of "bowlegged yet attractive" people. He needs a more realistic perception of himself.

Furthermore, one need not be mentally disturbed to seek psychotherapy. A temporary emotional upset is sufficient reason. And as for psychotherapy being "harmful" to the spirit and pocketbook — poppycock! The spirit will be enriched, and there are mental health clinics everywhere that charge only what the patient can afford.

Dear Abby

they come.

When I was 18, I also felt self-conscious, but that never stopped me from asking a girl for a date. I just made up my mind that nobody's perfect and there are worse imperfections than having bowed legs. At least mine were strong and healthy and got me where I was going. (They even took me to the beach where my legs were in full view of the public.)

Keep this in mind: Any girl who would refuse to go out with a guy because he is bowlegged isn't worth spending your time and money on.

And, from one bowlegged guy to another, ask girls for dates and forget about your legs. Life is too short to do otherwise.

BOWLEGGED AND NOT MISERABLE
DEAR ABBY: Tell BOWLEGGED AND MISERABLE not to waste any more time feeling sorry for himself. There are plenty of girls who would be glad to go out with him. I, for one, think bowlegged guys are sexy.

TRUDY IN WILMINGTON, N.C.

Mead, the mildly alcoholic beverage that was the favorite drink of Queen Elizabeth I, was made by combining honey and water with spices, herbs and lemons. After boiling, it was left to stand for three months. Finally it was bottled, and considered fit to drink six weeks later.

HOROSCOPE

By HELEN BEDE (SOI)

For Wednesday, May 27, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY May 27, 1981 Set your sights high this coming year. Your possibilities for achieving what you go after are better than usual. The degree of your success is up to you. SCORPIO (Oct 24-Nov. 22) In partnership situations today, especially those with your mate, don't do anything without your counterpart's consent which could be mutually harmful if it goes wrong. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Persons with whom you associate today will have a great influence over your work habits. Triflers could substantially lessen your productivity. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Even tasks which you normally enjoy could become a bore today. It might be helpful to break away from your routines for some pleasurable activities. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Try to focus your efforts and energies today on things which contribute to your security or enhance your income. Scratch other projects from your list. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're very capable today, provided you are allowed to operate independently. When others get into the act they could slow you down considerably. ARIES (March 21-April 19) You can be more helpful to others today by encouraging their strengths rather than by excusing their weaknesses. Make constructive suggestions. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today it may be necessary to exercise extra discipline over spending. Your extravagance is lessened in the company of frugal pals.

Elevated Testicle Is Cancer Risk

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband, who has been with me one descended testicle. Our doctor consulted with a specialist who recommended that he have an operation. They would either remove the undescended one or put it in the scrotum if it was close. Our doctor didn't seem too concerned or think we should be in a rush to have it done. He did say that it might turn into cancer if left where it is. What are the chances of this? Shouldn't his parents have done something when he was younger?

DEAR READER — There are two problems with an undescended testicle. The first one is that it will not produce live healthy sperm cells. However, it will produce male hormone. That is why even if both testicles are not descended a man will still have all the male characteristics and normal sex drive. His semen will just not contain any viable sperm cells.

To preserve the testicle's function of producing healthy sperm cells the testicle should be in the scrotum well before puberty, the time when function of the testicle is normally stimulated to begin. If an undescended testicle is going to descend it usually does so in the first few years of life. Lowering the testicles after puberty or in adult life usually will not enable that testicle to produce sperm. The testicle is permanently damaged as far as this function is concerned. The second problem is the one your husband needs to consider. An undescended testicle is far more likely to become malignant than one in the normal scrotal location. Figures are that if the testicle is in the abdomen, it is 50 times more likely to become malignant and if it is in the canal just above the scrotum, 11 times as likely. You will be interested in reading about the testicular functions along with the discussion of undescended testicles included the The Health Letter number 17-4. Male Reproductive Functions, which I am sending you. Moving the testicle into the scrotum now will not decrease its chances of becoming malignant at this age. Since the one descended testicle will provide adequate amounts of sperm and male hormone, the idea of letting the undescended testicle remain, even in the scrotum, is questionable. DEAR DR. LAMB — How important is it to drink plain water? I do not like the taste of it at all and am sorry to say I never drink it and haven't for about 15 years. I usually drink hot tea or cold tea. What effect does this have on my kidneys? I'm 31 years old. DEAR READER — Water is water whether you get it in fruit juice, such as your morning glass of orange juice, in milk or any number of beverages. The important point is to get enough fluids from whatever source to promote a good normal elimination of urine each day — an average of at least a quart of urine. The other point is that the fluid should not contain something that is harmful to the body, such as alcohol in beer. My concern is not your lack of water but how much tea you are using. The caffeine and other drugs in tea can be harmful. If you are not getting much water, pure or in beverages, your kidneys will have to concentrate your urine, which may predispose you to kidney stones and perhaps urinary tract infections. And it can lead to dehydration of the body which can predispose you to heat strokes.
