It's a rainy night in Sanford

By SHARI BRODIE
Herald Staff Writer

If it had rained pennies from heaven Thursday afternoon, the city of Sanford would have had more than enough money to fund removal of the standing water that was the result of a relatively heavy downpour.

The rain gauge at the University of Florida Agricultural Research and Education Center, on Celery Avenue, caught 4.20 inches of rain in a storm that moved in from the north around 5 p.m. Employees in offices and businesses in the downtown Sanford area were delayed in their journeys home, first by the torrential downpour and then by the flooding that closed many streets. There were reports of standing water, in excess of four inches, in some downtown streets.

"That was a pretty intense event," Jerry See Rain, Page 4A

Deal fails for sale of troubled apartment complex

By MARIA OREM
Herald Staff Writer

For the second time, the owner of Pine Shadow Apartments in Sanford has rejected an offer from Central Florida HANDS Inc. to purchase the complex.

Central Florida HANDS, a non-profit agency that buys and renovates housing for low to very low income individuals, had been in negotiations with R.K. Seesurum Inc. a Florida-based corporation with the owner residing in England. Another offer had been made about a year ago, according to Steve Chitwood, director of Central Florida HANDS.

Chitwood had notified the city via fax on Wednesday that the deal would not go through because the parties involved could not arrive at a reasonable figure. A major sticking point, Chitwood said, was that the owner was unwilling to pay past interest and fees on the property. In addition, he said, the property was in worse shape since his agency made its first offer last year.

"What it boils down to is the cost per unit to bring up to standards is not worth it to us," he said.

Chitwood said the property is still available for purchase. Seesurum had authorized the agency to post final eviction notices Monday at the 44-unit complex which has been plagued with problems.

Pine Shadows had its state license and city occupational license revoked because of unacceptable living conditions and numerous violations including poor plumbing and electrical wiring. The See Sale, Page 4A

Judge sticks to decision: No VIP nudie bar

By RUSS WHITE
Herald Staff Writer

Not yet, VIP Gold. Circuit Court Judge Leonard Wood said Thursday he was sticking with a decision he made in June that there would be no nude dancing at a Fern Park club known as VIP Gold.

The club began business during the time Seminole County had issued a moratorium designed to prohibit any adult entertainment/sexually-oriented business openings until the county enacted its new laws.

The county sued the owner of VIP Gold for opening "illegally," and was its case in Judge Wood's court while losing a similar case in the Judge Alan Dickey's court.

Once the county's new adult law was enacted, VIP Gold filed and was denied an adult entertainment license. It then asked Wood to dissolve the temporary injunction he made in June and asked for a Stay Pending Review.

Wood held court on July 30, but made no decision that day, saying he would take the matter under advisement.

On Thursday, the judge denied both of the defendant's motions.

He based his decision on several factors:

1. "The court seriously questions whether it has jurisdiction to grant the Motion to Dissolve the Temporary Injunction because the order granting the injunction is on appeal (in the Fifth District Court of Appeals).

2. "Even if the court clearly had jurisdiction to dissolve the temporary injunction, Defendant did not make the showing required to be See Judge, Page 4A

In the Emeralda Marsh, the Lake Griffin Flow-Way Project (Area 3) will be drawn down, which should improve habitat. Water levels are expected to be up again by the end of the year. All other areas will have adequate water levels for waterfowl hunting. The St. Johns District is also taking precautions to not spray herbicides on noxious aquatic weeds immediately before or during the duck hunting season.

Quality quota hunts are established at Dunna Creek, Bayard and See Hunting, Page 4A

County receives federal grant to administer nutrition program

The Florida Family Nutrition Program is the nutrition education component of the Food Stamp Program. The program is a team effort between the Food Stamp Program, the Florida Cooperative Extension Program, and our community. Christina Kemper is the new Extension Agent for the family Nutrition Program in Seminole County. She is a graduate from the University of Florida where she earned a Bachelor of Science degree in Food Science and Human Nutrition. While attending the University, she gained an interest in nutrition as a dietetic volunteer for Shands Hospital. Also as a student she taught basic nutrition concepts to college students and served meals at a local soup kitchen in Gainesville. Through the Family Nutrition Program, Christina will teach nutrition education lessons to food stamp eligible individuals and families. The lessons will include topics such as meal planning, food safety, food budgeting and healthy eating. The grant will help low income families receive the best nutritional mileage for their food stamps and will teach techniques to stretch. See Nutrition, Page 3A

Midsummer madness
That's all you call a weekend like this one.
Believe it or not this is Mosquito Awareness Weekend, with World Championship Mosquito Calling Contest.
Today is Sneak Some Zucchini onto Your Neighbors Porch Night, Pelion Peanut Party time, the eve of Elvis Week and Bonza Bottler Day.
Mosquito Awareness Weekend is the social event of the year in Waldcott, Ark., and there's plenty of excitement about the Mr. and Ms. Mosquito Eggs competition.

There will be a mosquito swatting contest and a soda-pop sucking competition. Music will be provided by Gnat King Cole tapes.
Overzealous zucchini planting prompted Sneak Some Zucchini onto Your Neighbors Porch Night. Squash the guy next door. Go ahead.
Pelion Peanut Party time is just about the best night of the year in Pelion, S.C. The Miss Peanut contest is a hoot. Watch out for the shell game artists.
Elvis Week will be something else this year. The King's been gone (not necessarily dead) for 20 years. Tens of thousands will be visiting Graceland Mansion in Memphis, Tenn. The candlelight vigil is on Aug. 15. Avoid the Priscilla Presley perfumes being sold in the souvenir shop.
Bonza Bottler Day, an ingenious yet naive opportunity to get seriously silly at least once a month.

Dustin Hoffman as "Tootsie" next party is 9/9.

Toot Toot Tootsie
It's birthday party time for Ether Williams (74), who'll have a pool party; Dustin Hoffman (60) who'll be Tootsie for a day; Connie Stevens (59) who'll be Cricket Blake for the day and Mel Tillis (65) who'll just be himself. Happy 9th birthday to you, too, Beatrice, Princess of York.
A reminder that Sunday is Herbert Hoover Day. Hoover was the first president to have a telephone on his desk. It was installed on March 27, 1929. He called out for pizza a week later.
Candid Camera had its TV premiere 49 years ago Sunday. Allen Funt called for pizza a week later.
Sunday is Eddie Fisher's 69th birthday. He once sang "Oh My Papa" while eating a pizza. A week later, he jilted Debbie Reynolds for Liz Taylor.

Boating classes available

ORLANDO - Water safety courses for power boaters in Orlando, Pine Hills and Kissimmee, and an educational video for owners of personal watercraft, so-called jet-skis, are in the offing from the Orlando Power Squadron, an all-volunteer organization of boat owners and boating enthusiasts that promotes safety on the water.
Suzanne Singer, Public Relations Officer for the Orlando Power Squadron, said the Boat Smart Course, produced by the United States Power Squadron, is scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 16 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Orlando Public Library on Central Blvd. downtown. Due to limited seating, pre-registration is required. Boaters may pre-register at ENB Discount Marine, located at 5135 Adanson St. off Lee Road on Sat. Aug. 9 from 10-2.
In September, Singer said the Power Squadron will hold evening classes from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday, Sept. 9 through Sept. 18, at the Evans High School cafeteria on Silver Star Rd. at Pine Hills Rd. To find out how to pre-register, contact Paul Lytle at (407)277-2782 or Suzanne Singer at (407)841-6182, days and (407)351-2701 evenings.

A flag-raising first day of school

Library adds storytime to weekend schedule

By KELLIE WERNER
Herald Staff Writer

Children in the community are top priority with many organizations and businesses.
Seminole County's library system is no different.
Throughout the entire year, the children's program is a major focus of the system's five branches.
"All of our library's branches try to meet the needs of the children in our communities," said Children's Librarian for the North (Sanford) branch, Sandy Oakley. "Right now, with the summer almost over and a lot of the kids returning to school, there isn't a lot of activity, but the emphasis is still on fun, educational programs to get kids into the library and reading."
A major part of the children's program is story time. The reason for story telling is to get the kids interested in books so they will eventually want to come to the library and select their own books to read.
In Sanford, there are story times for all age groups. Toddler (18 months to three years) story time is on Monday mornings at 10 a.m. and 10:45 a.m. Tuesdays are

"I am constantly looking over the new books we get in to find interesting stories for the children," Oakley said. "It's so rewarding to see the kids from the story groups come in and choose their own books with excitement."
New to the September calendar is Saturday Stories. Because so many parents have to work and the kids are in school now and don't get to come to as many story times, the library decided to try story time on Saturdays.
It is hoped by the library staff that more families will be able to attend story time together and enjoy the experience with the new Saturday time.
In addition to stories, the children's program also includes puppets, drawing stories, music, animals, magicians and occasional films.
"If a child learns to like the library, he will hopefully also learn to like reading," Oakley said. "Therefore, we just want to get the kids in here and help them to realize how wonderful the world of books can be. Kids who are introduced to reading early have a head start. We want to help them get that introduction."

Expert airs strategy against mounting mosquito disease

Special to the Herald

VERO BEACH — Tuesday's medical alert issued by the Indian River County Health Department on St. Louis Encephalitis (SLE), a serious, sometimes deadly mosquito virus, means that those at risk must choose the use their repellent wisely, and make their yards less inviting to mosquitoes which may be carrying the disease. This means people living anywhere from Gainesville to Miami should exercise extra caution as this region was affected during the 1977 and 1990 SLE epidemics, which began under identical circumstances.

That's the advice of Dr. John Randall, an associate professor of medical entomology at the Florida Medical Entomological Laboratory and recognized state and national authority on encephalitis. He believes many people on news of the virus may be reaching for the first available repellent without realizing that different varieties are designed for different outdoor situations, with the key being the number of hours the repellent lasts.

Well familiar with taking insect disease from his field work in the heart of the crown-of-thorns thistle mosquito problem, Dr. Davis works in other mosquito-borne diseases, such as malaria, and knows the key to optimum repellent application and performance.

Major cause of the bug bites, mosquito bites are up against an increasing number of mosquitoes, he said. He said that mosquitoes are becoming more resistant to insecticides, and that the most significant mosquito-borne disease in the U.S. A couple can contract the disease after just one bite from an infected mosquito.

St. Louis Encephalitis symptoms, which appear 5 to 15 days after being bitten by an infected mosquito, include severe headaches, disorientation, fever and convulsions. As the disease progresses, the person can fall into a coma. It is fatal in up to 30 percent of cases and there is no immunization available.

The Indian River County Health Department, in conjunction with Indian River Mosquito Control District, first issued their medical alert to public health officials across Florida on the news that 7 out of 8 flocks of sentinel chickens posted throughout the county tested positive for the SLE virus.

Although no human cases have yet been reported, the unusual number and timing of the virus indicates a significantly increased risk for human contraction. In 1990, the last major outbreak of SLE in south and central Florida, 226 cases were reported, including 11 deaths.

In response, Dr. Davis advice for people who need to be outdoors is to choose only well established repellent brands such as DEET, which contain the active ingredient DEET. Products such as this provide the most effective, longest-lasting protection against mosquito bites and most disease transmission.

Using repellents with DEET, especially those the amount of DEET they contain is critical to spending any amount of time outdoors, says Dr. John Randall, senior research scientist with the DEET Institute. He said that the DEET Institute has been conducting research for eight years.

Dr. Randall points out that DEET is a powerful repellent, but it is not a pesticide. It does not kill mosquitoes, but it prevents them from biting. The Institute's research shows that DEET is the most effective repellent, with a protection time of up to 10 hours, depending on the specific DEET product selected. Regular DEET lasts up to four hours, and DEET skin cream lasts up to two hours.

Dr. Randall says to read the label to make sure the repellent meets your needs, and make sure you have some on hand at all times. In the case of children, repellents with DEET can be applied with confidence. Adults, not the youngster, should be applying the repellent, and always follow label directions.

Dr. Randall relays the following tips to achieve the optimum repellent performance:

1. Apply a light, even coating of repellent to any exposed skin, as areas left untreated, even an area as small as a dime, continue to be susceptible to bites. If using a spray or spritz repellent, it needs to be rubbed evenly on the skin, not just sprayed on.

2. As an added safeguard apply repellent to clothing.

3. Remember that hot and humid conditions, and increased physical activity may require more frequent repellent application.

More tips come from Dr. Randall to help reduce mosquito presence around the home:

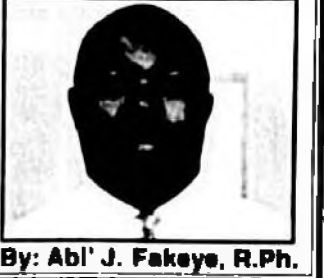

1. Clear any debris and obstructions from your yard.

2. Keep your water well contained, and do not over-empt. Children's wading pools and ground pools are common mosquito breeding sites.

3. Clear any debris and obstructions from your yard.

4. Clear any debris and obstructions from your yard.

If you're wondering about new tax breaks for higher education...

Special to the Herald

The tax breaks to go to college, proposed by President Clinton and approved by Congress mark a watershed event for America's working and middle-income families in pursuit of their educational hopes and dreams.

The balanced budget and tax cut bills that the President will sign into law include two big new ideas for higher education that are in tune with the times. The HOPE Scholarship that will make two years of college as universally available as the previous 12 years of school, and a lifelong learning credit. They will help families pay for college or training and usher in a new era of expanded access to higher education.

The HOPE Scholarship, a tax credit of up to $1,500 for the first two years of college for working and middle-income families—sends a clear message to students that at least two years of college is the new educational standard. At a time when education beyond high school is essential to compete for the best new jobs, this provision is a powerful incentive that says college is available to each and every American who works hard.

The tax break for lifelong learning is the "sleeper" item in the entire budget accord. It offers a tax credit to juniors, seniors, graduate students, or those who take a course or two to enhance their job skills. Students of all ages will get a 20 percent tax credit on the first $5,000 of tuition and fees through 2002, and the first $40,000 of tuition and fees thereafter for every year they need it and use it.

The HOPE Scholarship and the tax credit for lifelong learning will offer needed relief to hard-pressed working and middle-income families that are struggling to meet the costs of college or skills training and make them less reliant on loans to pay college tuition bills.

The tax cut bill includes several other measures supported by the President that will help families to pay for college. "Education Savings Accounts" will allow families to deposit $500 annually into an IRA for each child under 18 to accumulate tax-free earnings that can be used for post-secondary educational expenses. The bill will allow families to withdraw savings from their IRAs penalty-free for higher education. Employers can provide employees up to $5,250 in educational benefits per year that is excluded from the employer's taxable income. Working and middle-income families will be able to deduct interest paid in the first 60 months of repayment for a government-backed student loan.

Tax Credits for Students in Florida:
Number of Beneficiaries: HOPE Scholarship - 255,000; 20% Credit for Lifelong Learning - 311,000; TOTAL - 566,000

Opinions

Julia Roberts and Mel Gibson in Warner Bros.' thriller, Conspiracy Theory.

Here's your ticket to what's in the theaters this week

Formerly, "Screen Tests" is the name given to the individual movie reviews you may or may not have read in this newspaper. Now, "Screen Tests" is the name for the new column starting today and continuing every Friday in The Sanford Herald. This column will update you every week on the best and worst of the new releases in movie theaters, and, in addition, will cover my opinions on mid-week openings or films that had no screening before their opening date for some reason or another. Without delay, let's get right to the movies.

Last week, a new British offering popped into theaters. Mrs. Brown (Three and a half stars) is a delightful addition to the late season movie crop. No doubt positioning itself for Oscar contention, Mrs. Brown sports the same genre most Academy voters, historically, have been suckers for: the period piece.

This poignant, oft humorous film, directed by Britain's John Madden (Ethan Frome) and written by Jeremy Brock, writer of numerous, British television productions, chronicles the true life, scandalous love tale between a Scottish Highlander servant and Queen Victoria of England. A mourning, depressed Victoria, brilliantly played by Judi Dench (Goldeneye), is awakened from her self-imposed funk by Scot John Brown, played with equal brilliance by Billy Connolly (Absolution).

Before passing Mrs. Brown off as a high brow, boring history lesson, consider the thoughtfulness the filmmakers use in showing the gradual friendship and love between two very different people, and how their relationship affected, socially and politically, 19th century England. My only criticism is that these films come off as too polished or perfect. However, that is a perfection I can live with.

Opening today is a film that won all 13 Japanese Academy Awards. Shall We Dance? (Three stars) is a charming, little film about a forty-ish Japanese accountant who finds something missing in his stable life. On his way home from work everyday, he stares up at a dancing school watching a sad, lonely looking girl gazing out into the night. The girl sparks something in the accountant so he takes up ballroom dancing to get closer to her.

This funny, heartwarming mid-life crisis film, written and directed by Masayuki Suo (Sumo Do, Sumo Don't), has some conventional plotting to it -- how many mid-life crisis movies have you seen? -- but it is a sweet movie about finding common ground with different people and bringing out hidden traits that have been suppressed. For the accountant it is the resurgence of youthful passion, for the sad dance instructor, it is a freedom to feel the rush of competition again and for a co-worker of the accountant it is a chance for him to explore a wilder alter ego as a Latino rumba dancer. Shall We Dance? is a simple joy and a testament to the beauty of ballroom dancing -- a dance formerly frowned on by the honor and tradition of Japan that is now a growing favorite in that country.

Friends cutie Jennifer Aniston stars in Picture Perfect (Three stars) as a young and hungry ad agency employee, who must conform to her boss' image of the perfect employee. To do that, Aniston must solicit the help of a Massachusetts video taper whom she met at a friend's wedding. He has to play her supposed fiancé during a business dinner to give off the facade of her stability to her boss. However, the smitten video taper falls for Aniston's ad girl which, to her dismay, wasn't according to her script.

Opening last week, Picture Perfect has been criticized for having these almost unbelievably superficial, shallow characters. But how their shallow traits backfire on them and the results they learn is the pleasure of Picture Perfect. Admittedly, the plot could have been much better. But Picture Perfect had outstanding romantic comedy performances by Kevin Bacon (Sleepers) and Jay Mohr (Jerry Maguire) as dueling suitors for Aniston. Olympia Dukakis (Moonstruck) as Aniston's worrying mother, Illeana Douglas (Grace of My Heart) as Aniston's best friend, and Aniston, herself, who may just give Julia Roberts a run for her money.

Speaking of Roberts, her and Mel Gibson star in Conspiracy Theory (Two stars), a tired film of government cover up and programmed assassins a la Manchurian Candidate.

Gibson is a manic, paranoid New York taxi driver who constantly hounds Roberts' Justice Department agent about these wild but often accurate theories about the evils abounding in the world. Gibson's character arouses the attention of some "higher ups" and, soon, he and Roberts find themselves entangled in a pressure cooker waiting to explode.

This movie rambles on for about the first hour until the plot finally kicks in. After the long, drawn out exposition, audiences are given this compact version of what is going on, and it doesn't make sense. Conspiracy Theory shows a way over-the-top turn from Gibson, a rather quiet performance from Roberts, and a stable heavy by Patrick "The Next Generation" Stewart. Stewart, however, does not give a performance that makes his rumored asking price for the next Star Trek movie justifiable. Directed by Richard Donner (the Lethal Weapon movies), this Theory doesn't hold much water.

So this concludes the first "Screen Tests" column. But buy a ticket for next week as we explore other cinematic entries including Sylvester Stallone's Cop Land. Until then, polish up for the next set of "Screen Tests".

entitled to its dissolution."

3. "The court has considered Defendant's Motion for Stay Pending Review and concluded that granting the stay would allow Defendant to accomplish indirectly what it cannot accomplish directly."

4. "Further, the appellate court has already denied Defendant's motion to stay the temporary injunction pending review. This court does not believe it would be appropriate for the trial court to second-guess the appellate court (which had denied the Stay)."

What all this means, said Deputy Seminole County Attorney Lonnie Groot, is the county has won the latest round in what is expected to be a long-going battle with the adult entertainment industry.

"We expect the next thing that this club (VIP Gold) will do is dispute the county's right to deny it a license under the new law we have enacted."

The county contends that

VIP Gold and Sassy Merlot's, another newly opened nude club, are not located in industrial areas as required by the new ordinance and are also closer than the 1,000 feet to residential areas. The county doggedly insists neither VIP Gold nor Sassy Merlot's applied for adult licenses before opening. Thus they were open illegally when the adult law was enacted.

Sassy Merlot's won a court case before Judge Alan Dickey to stay open during the moratorium, and immediately applied for an adult entertainment license as required by the new law. The county denied the request.

As the debate over who can and cannot operate continues, the county is involved in talks with the owners and attorneys representing the existing, legally-operated clubs who were in business before the new law came about. They have until Sept. 30, 1999 to change their operations or move into an industrial area.

Rain

Herman, Public Works Director for the city, said of the storm that receded within an hour. He added that even the most modern stormwater systems can not handle a downpour of more than two inches in an hour. He said the city gauged 4.10 inches at public works.

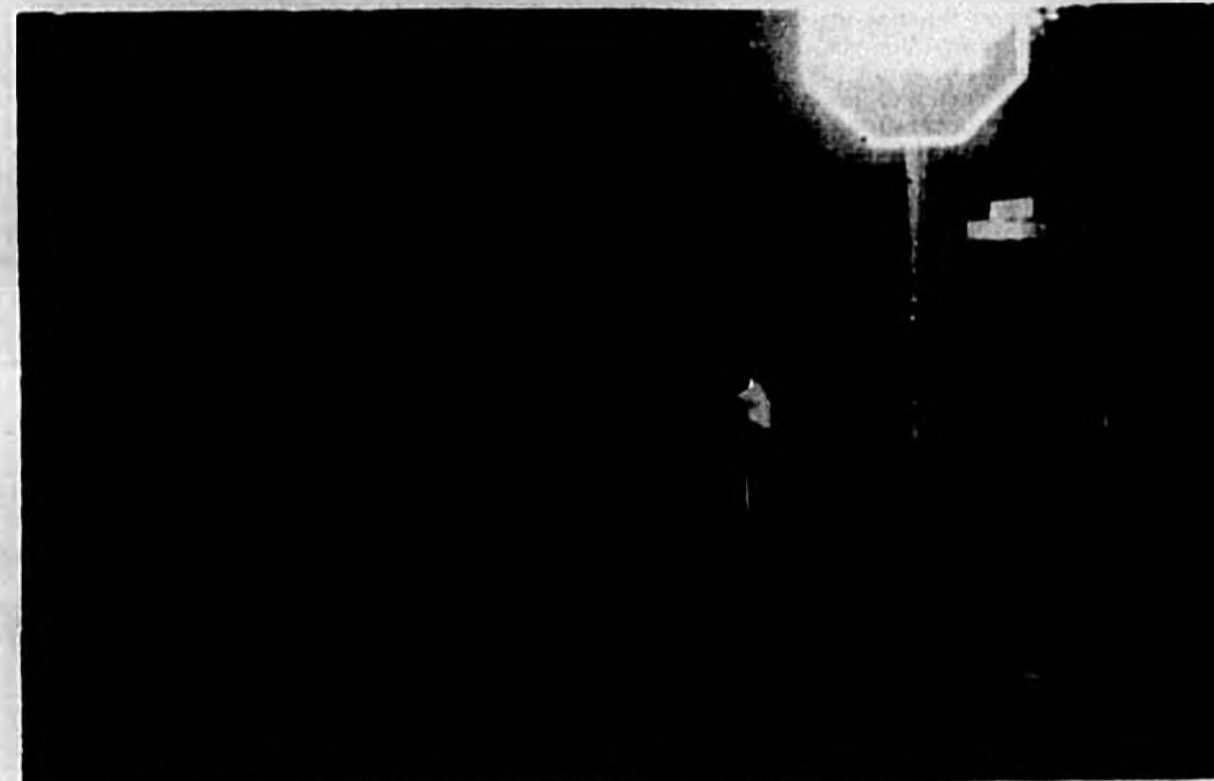

He said that the floods drained quicker than most times and that the system was not totally "surcharged." Herman said stormwater drainage in the city is usually pretty good, thanks to naturally occurring creeks adjacent to Lake

Monroe. There is also a technical term he threw in, Gravity Positive Outfall, which simply means that we have plenty of high places for the water to run from into the naturally occurring creeks, such as the Downtown Interceptor, that flows into Lake Monroe, east of town and Cloud Branch and Mill Creek, that empty into Lake Monroe across from the Police Benevolence Assoc. building, off Seminole Boulevard.

The proposed Fiscal Year 1998 budget for stormwater utility fund is $1,372,881. Of that figure, $681,600 will go to capital projects, $404,018 to personnel expenditures and $287,264 to operations expenditures. Most of this is funded by the stormwater fee, which just went up to 84 per month. That the city has been collecting since 1992. "The bulk of what we're doing is repair," said Herman.

The Sanford rainfall amount was apparently one of the highest in the state, with the National Weather Service at Orlando International Airport reporting 1.97 inches and 2.12 inches reported in DeLand and 3.37 inches reported in St. Cloud.

city had the water turned off July 15. An outstanding water bill of $16,000 remains.

Evictions started in June, however, two apartments appear to be occupied, according to Charles Rowe, director of community development for Sanford. He added that power to the last two buildings has been cut off because of vandalism to the service.

In response to this latest development, Rowe said the city will initiate condemnation proceedings.

"We will take this to the city commission at its next meeting on Aug. 25," Rowe said.

If the recommendation is approved, he said, city staff will complete a title search and potentially demolish the buildings.

Swim-a-thon for Y.W.A.M. missionaries

LAKE MARY - On Saturday, Aug. 16, Leda Freire will swim at the Seminole Family Y.M.C.A., in Lake Mary, to fund-raise for her daughter and son-in-law, Jim and Aiyana Ehrman, who are full-time staff missionaries with Youth With A Mission in Tyler, Texas.

Jim is Education and Training Director for the YWAM School of the Bible. Aiyana teaches in a missionary Christian school K-12, and both of them train short-term missions teams which take God's Word and His Gospel throughout the world. They also train foreign missionaries who then return to their countries to start Christian schools and conduct evangelistic outreach. They are supported entirely through private donations. Since they both come from very small churches in other states, and live in such a rural area, they need to expand their support base substantially at this time.

Jim and Aiyana have dedicated their lives to the fulfillment of the Great Commission since their early teens, at great cost to their personal lives, and now need for each and very one of you to hear from the Lord in their behalf. Their car has given up, and they need reliable transportation, among other pressing financial needs. Please see His Heart for theirs.

Your pledge for the Swim-A-Thon should be made to Y.W.A.M., and mailed to 218 S. Fourth St., Lake Mary, 32746, or turned in at the Y.M.C.A. on the day of the event. Leda intends to swim around 200 laps, so you can pledge per lap as He leads.

If you have any questions or would like to verify any of this information, please call Pastor David Munizal at Wekiva Assembly of God, 774-0777, or Ed Thomas at the YMCA, 321-8944.

Special to the Herald

DeLAND - Dr. E. Earl Joiner, an author, historian and Stetson University professor of religion for 37 years, died Saturday, Aug. 2 at Florida Hospital Medical Center, Orlando. He was 73.

"Dr. Joiner is a landmark figure in Stetson University's history," said H. Douglas Lee, president of the university. "As a faculty member he excelled both as a teacher and as a scholar. He stood among the university's most gifted intellectuals and was one of our faculty's most prolific authors. Dr. Joiner, a true leader and a dear friend, will be deeply missed."

Born in rural Georgia near Colquitt on April 25, 1924, he was one of seven children of a farm family. A U. S. Army World War II veteran, he served as an infantryman in Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army Division. He remained in Europe as a chaplain's assistant after the war, and also studied at Biarritz American University in Biarritz, France.

In 1949 he graduated from Stetson, then earned a master's degree in theology and a doctorate of theology from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky. He joined Stetson's religion faculty in 1955, specializing in Christian ethics.

He was named chairman of the religion department in 1981, the same year he was appointed to the Sam R. Marks Endowed Chair of Religion. He served twice as Faculty Senate chairman and later as the university's grievance officer.

Past curator and secretary-treasurer of the Florida Baptist Historical Society, and a past president of the Southern Baptist Historical Society, he published A History of Florida Baptists. At the time of his death he had just finished a revision, which is due out soon.

Other books include A Christian Considers Divorce and Remarriage and An Introduction to the Bible, written jointly with four other Stetson religion professors. His most recent publication was Florida Baptist Children's Home: A History of Care.

He was internationally recognized for his study of Protestant reaction to the Holocaust, and was one of only 400 scholars invited in 1988 to an international conference on the Holocaust in England. At home, he has worked with the West Volusia Holocaust Memorial Committee each year to plan a memorial service for Holocaust victims.

Throughout his working life he also volunteered with community organizations, including the West Volusia Council on Human Relations, which he served as president; the Volusia County Community Action Agency; Legal Services; and Habitat for Humanity. His work with the Boy Scouts included leading Appalachian Trail hikes for 12 years. He continued hiking the Trail for the rest of his life, completing an 80-mile hike last year.

Before joining Stetson's faculty, he was the pastor of churches for seven years in Florida and Kentucky. During his Stetson years, he held several interim pastorates, and served for 20 years as pastor of Beulah Baptist Church in Georgetown. He has also worked as a counselor at the Volusia County Jail.

He was named an emeritus professor when he retired from Stetson's faculty in June 1992, and received Stetson's Doyle E. Carlton Award the following year for extraordinary contributions to the life and development of Stetson University, the City of DeLand and the State of Florida, and for devotion to Christian higher education. He continued to serve the university as an advisor in church relations after his retirement.

He was a member of the American Academy of Religion, American Society of Christian Ethics, and the DeLand Breakfast Rotary Club. Longtime DeLand residents, he and his wife, Geraldine, received a Bi-Centennial Award from the City of DeLand for outstanding community service. He is a member of First Baptist Church of DeLand.

In addition to Geraldine, his wife of 51 years, he is survived by a daughter, Ann Rigby of DeLand; three sons, Edward E. Jr. and Paul Allen, both of DeLand, and John A. of Tampa; two sisters, Pauline Goethe of Sanford and Lillie Mae Woolwine of Crescent City; and five grandchildren.

A memorial service is planned for Saturday, Aug. 9, at 4 p.m. in the sanctuary of the First Baptist Church of DeLand. In lieu of flowers, the family asks that memorial contributions be made to the West Volusia Holocaust Memorial Committee, the Appalachian Trail Conference, West Volusia Habitat for Humanity, or the endowment fund for the Earl Joiner Chair in Religion at Stetson University. Lankford Funeral Home in DeLand is in charge.

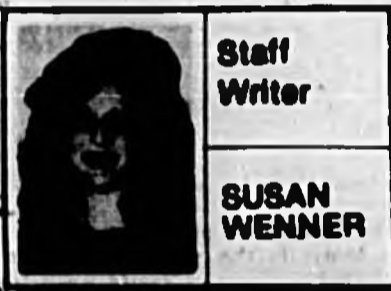

The perfect addition for what God sees fit

By the time you read your paper today, I will have probably already given birth to our new baby. Angeley Nicole was born Sunday, July 27 at 10:12 p.m. at Florida Hospital, Altamonte, some two weeks early and by c-section after three hours of unexpected labor.

The miracle of a new life is such an awesome thing. Some doctors speculate that it takes so many thousands of hormones, organs, body functions and etc. to be in place for conception that it's amazing that a woman ever gets pregnant.

Yes, our little OOPS is definitely our big blessing. A third child seems overwhelming at times, but the perfect addition for what God sees fit.

I pray that our Angeley Nicole will live up to her name as a "messenger of God" and "the people's victory", although that is a tall order for such a tiny little charmer. I believe God has a purpose for each of us. Although she was severely anemic and breathed in meconium and fluid in her lungs, she is finally home with us: some four days after my discharge. She has fully recovered.

It is strange to think about the fact that all that kicking and movement will now be in my arms and not my tummy. The "wide load" and "big as a house" jokes will cease, but maybe not right away until some of the "baby fat" goes away.

That tiny life once growing inside me now has an identity separate from me. Miniature hands, feet and features all within a simple glance and not buried behind layers of skin and within amniotic fluid.

P. S. She is gorgeous. But so are our other two. Isn't that just like proud parents.

Sherry Orr to present worship music

First Baptist Church of Sanford invites you to join us for a day of inspiring music with music evangelist Sherry Orr. Based out of Orlando, Sherry has a love for the church and a story to share. That story is about Jesus and salvation through Him. I have a desire for people to know Jesus Christ, and not only to receive Him but to truly know the sweetness of a personal relationship with Him. Sherry will be performing special music during the morning service at 10:30, Sunday, Aug. 10. At 6 p.m., she will give a worship concert. This event is free of charge. First Baptist is located at 819 S. Park Ave. For more information please contact the church office at 322-6041.

Now the fun begins

Three years of planning and preparation will begin to show a profit tomorrow when the 1997 Babe Ruth League Bambino World Series opens play.

Bambinos ready for action at Eastmonte

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Three years of hard work come to fruition starting tonight when the Orlando Area Sports Commission and the City of Altamonte Springs unites with the Altamonte Springs Babe Ruth League in co-hosting the 1997 Babe Ruth Bambino World Series.

Eight teams, ages 12 and under, from across the country and the host team from Altamonte Springs will battle for the title of national champion when they converge on Eastmonte Park in a series of 17 double-elimination games. During the 1996 games in Henderson, Kentucky, the event drew approximately 60,000 spectators.

This will be the third major tournament hosted by Eastmonte Park since Altamonte Springs joined the Babe Ruth League in 1995. In 1995 the league hosted the Bambino Division Southeastern Regional Championship and last year played host to the Southeastern Regional Championship for the Prep Division (13 year olds).

Approximately 66 families from across Altamonte Springs will be housing players from competing teams. The families are responsible for their accommodations as well as providing entertainment throughout their stay.

Their will be player's banquet at the Orlando North Hilton today at 5 p.m. and then the Festival of Champions will officially kick off the World Series at Crum's Sunset Park tonight at 7 p.m. Neither of these events are open to the public.

The Festival of Champions will feature musical entertainment by Two Down Down, a old show, food, games (including a radar pitching machine and a velcro wall), rides and attraction mascot appearances. The festival will culminate with a fireworks display at 10 p.m. Pauson Communications will broadcast on-site from the festival.

The Babe Ruth League Opening Ceremonies will take place at noon tomorrow with the opening game between Brooklyn, New York and South Lexington, Kentucky being played at 1 p.m.

Altamonte Springs will then hold its own Opening Ceremonies at 2:15 p.m. with the host team's first game being played at 4:08 p.m. against

Do power lines increase cancer risk?

DEAR DR. GOTT: For years I have read that high-tension power lines are associated with an increased risk of childhood cancer in families who live close to such electromagnetic radiation. Is this true?

DEAR READER: Until recently, I couldn't answer your question with confidence. Several studies, notably one performed in Sweden, had indicated a small but significant risk of childhood leukemia in people who live within 300 yards of high-voltage electrical lines. As you can imagine, these conclusions caused enormous concern among the general population, especially since many people distrust the government and industry authorities who control power lines.

However, an excellent National Cancer Institute study, reported in the July 3, 1997 issue of the New England Journal of Medicine, dispels these concerns.

Using more than 600 children with leukemia and another 600 children without, the researchers meticulously investigated the role of high-tension wires. The results conclusively proved that prolonged exposure to the electromagnetic radiation from power lines was not — repeat NOT — a factor causing childhood leukemia.

In this country, about 2000 children are diagnosed with acute lymphoblastic leukemia each year. Despite remarkable advances in therapy, the mortality rate is still too high. This is a tragedy for the victims and their families. However, it is reassuring to know that the government and the power industry are not to blame.

Surely, we need to know why thousands of children get leukemia; that question awaits further research. For now, we can at least discard one possible cause. If you live near high-voltage power lines, your risk of leukemia and other diseases is not increased.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Viruses and Cancer."

DEAR DR. GOTT: I live in an area where Lyme disease is prevalent. My friend was recently treated with amoxicillin for Lyme disease. Will this antibiotic also kill other tick-borne diseases?

DEAR READER: No, it will not. The deer tick, a ubiquitous and tiny insect, can spread at least three serious diseases when it feeds on humans.

Lyme disease is one. The typical symptoms of this affliction are rash, fever, and muscle aches and pains.

The second disease, human granulocytic ehrlichiosis, is similar to Lyme disease but lacks a rash. Common symptoms include headache, fever, joint and muscle pains, weakness and difficulty concentrating.

The third disease, babesiosis, also causes symptoms identical to Lyme disease and ehrlichiosis.

All three disorders are serious, can

MEDICINE

cosial, and if not treated early, can cause heart, joint and brain damage that becomes more difficult to cure the later treatment is begun.

The diagnoses are made by patients' clinical presentations and by blood tests.

Amoxicillin, an antibiotic frequently prescribed for Lyme disease, is ineffective therapy for ehrlichiosis and babesiosis. In such a situation, where the possibility of more than one disease exists, experts recommend another broad-spectrum antibiotic — doxycycline — which should be taken for at least a month.

Your friend has probably received adequate treatment, because the coexistence of two or three tick-borne diseases is unusual. On the other hand, it is indeed possible that he could also have a non-Lyme disease that will not respond to amoxicillin therapy. In my practice, I treat all cases of early Lyme disease with doxycycline, hoping that related infections will be eradicated with one course of antibiotic therapy.

Innate or acquired?

How does that saying go about some men being born unlucky, some achieving unluckiness, and some having unluckiness thrust upon them? Into which category do you think today's declarer falls?

At both tables in a match at the Zone 4 Championships in Cape Town, the contract was seven no-trump. The first pair had the sense to play it by North. East led a heart. Declarer cashed two top spades, claiming when everyone followed. If the spades had broken 4-1, he had squeeze chances as well as the diamond finesse on the back burner.

Our unlucky expert played the contract from the wrong side when his partner (with debatable wisdom) raised spades immediately. There followed two cue-bids and two doses of Blackwood. At that point, North, with such a strong hand, decided that if South could invite seven, he had what-ever was needed.

Knowing the ace was in the dummy from the cue-bid, West made the good lead of a diamond. Not having X-ray vision, declarer won with dummy's ace and played a spade to his ace, West dropping the nine. Well, was that a singleton? If so, declarer could finesse East out of his remaining jack and 10. Delaying the evil moment, declarer played a club to dummy's 10. East discarded a heart! Surely the odds of a 1-4 spade break had increased dramatically. (True, they had changed, but a 2-3 break was still about twice as likely as 1-4. And West might have started with J-10-9.) Bravely — or foolhardily, depending on how you view these things — declarer ran dummy's spade eight, going two down when West won with the jack and cashed the diamond king.

Your Birthday

Saturday, Aug. 9, 1997

Your prospects for success look strong for the year ahead, provided you are consistent. Leaving a string of unfinished projects in your wake yields you only failures.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This might not be a productive day for you. You will know what needs to be done, but you could be an unprepared starter and never get your rocket airborne. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10158.

VIROO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It is not what you have that will impress others today.

It's what you are that counts. Do not compare material worth to substance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be optimistic today, but also be realistic. Try to see things for what they are. If you don't kid yourself or others you'll do okay.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your hunches could be faulty today and impel you toward unsound judgments. Talk matters over with people whose logic and opinion you respect.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Do not dawdle your time away today on expensive, frivolous pursuits. You could end up spending more than you intend or can afford.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be cognizant of your behavior at all times today, especially when associating with people who could either help or hurt your career.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Be imaginative today, but also be able to determine which things are feasible. Positive expectations are constructive, wishful thinking is not.

PICES (Feb. 20-March 20) It could prove wise today to stay out of the confidential affairs of others and also bar them from entering yours.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Do not pretend that you're willing to share something with another if you aren't. People you try to kid will perceive your little deceptions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Objectives for which you aim today could be illusory; the prize you are eagerly striving toward might be just an empty package.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Do not speculate financially today in areas with which you are unfamiliar. Your lack of expertise in these ventures could cause expensive mistakes.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you are responsible for certain household chores today, don't shirk these family duties. Those who depend on you will be severely disappointed.
