Houses may cost $10,000 more

TALLAHASSEE — A new home could cost as much as $10,000 more, creating a housing affordability crunch. The boost is because of Florida's Growth Management Act, a group of lenders said. The growth law says new homes can't be built without appropriate roads, utilities and schools planned.

Upsala station may collapse

SANFORD — The Seminole County commission this morning ordered the emergency closing of the Upsala garbage transfer station west of Sanford which may be collapsing. Gary Cider, environmental services director, said the concrete wall of the garbage collection pit is bowing inward.

The dumping area, built on a mound of garbage, could collapse under the weight of a dumptruck, Cider said. The transfer station, located on Upsala Road, will remain closed until an engineering firm reviews the structure. Until then, garbage will be directed to either the county landfill or the Sanlando transfer station.

City department changes name

SANFORD — The city Cultural Affairs Department was given a new name last night, three months after its creation.

The city commission last night voted unanimously to change the name of the department, created after the commission decided to split the former Parks and Recreation Department in July, to the Recreation Department as a means to dispel confusion over its function.

Commissioner Lon Howell said he proposed the change because the current name is confused with the Cultural Arts Center, a city facility to be maintained by the Parks Department after renovation is completed this month.

Commissioner Whitey Eckstein said, "It's very confusing. I agree."

"This is my third title in six weeks," department head Mike Kirby joked after the meeting. He was named head of the department in August after serving as Parks and Recreation Department superintendent of special events for seven years.

Lucas registers as PAC

SANFORD — Larry Lucas, an official with the Lake Mary Business and Property Owners Association, registered himself as the Tax Fax Environmental Committee with the state and county Monday.

"I received a letter and some documents he had filed with the (Florida) Division of Elections," said Sandra Goard, Seminole County elections supervisor. Goard said the documents showed Lucas, the sole member of the political action committee (PAC), contributed $892.78 to the PAC and spent that amount on a newspaper advertisement.

When the advertisement appeared nearly two weeks ago, the Tax Fax group was not registered with the state or county as a PAC, a violation of state election laws. Goard said with Lucas' registration, no further actions will be taken.

Victim: robbers beware

Mike and Darlene McPherson are recent crime victims.

By BRAD GUNSON
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Mike McPherson knows from dangerous experience the value of having more than one person on duty in a convenience store after dark.

He manages the Wareco minimart on U.S. 17-92 near First Street on the edge of downtown. The store has been robbed more than once, as well as burglarized.

The most recent robbery happened over the weekend and police caught a suspect in part because of a second clerk's description.

"I think it's a real good idea to require two clerks to be on duty (at night)," McPherson said today, following the city commission's decision last night to draft and ordinance requiring late night double duty.

McPherson says Wareco has two clerks on duty at all times so an ordinance requiring two clerks at night won't have any effect on his operation.

The business was robbed Saturday night, and McPherson says the second clerk in the store at the time helped to positively identify a suspect who police captured a short time later.

Arrested was William Daniel Ivey, 27, of known address. He was charged with armed robbery, use of a firearm during a felony, and possession of a firearm by a felon.

"The police did an excellent job," McPherson said.

The robber, after paying for a pack of cigarettes, reached around and into the cash register drawer when it was opened for the clerk to get change for the man.

McPherson said the clerk grabbed the man's arm and scratched him before she saw a gun in his other hand and released him.

"Both girls got a good look at him, and a customer just getting out of his car when the guy left also identified him," McPherson said.

McPherson said opinions on ordinances requiring two clerks are mixed as expressed in a convenience store.

Board wants better security for city stores

SANFORD — Late night visitors to Sanford convenience stores may soon see two faces behind the counter, thanks to a city commission decision last night. The commission called for an ordinance requiring stronger security measures for convenience stores.

Commissioners also tabled discussion of restrictions on yard sales.

The commission unanimously agreed to draw up an ordinance requiring stores to staff two clerks between 8 p.m. and 4 a.m., to improve lighting in parking lots and visibility through store windows and to install security cameras.

The proposed ordinance must yet be returned to the commission for final action.

A.A. McClanahan was the only commissioner to express opposition.

Campaign spending

Mahoney led the way in Lake Mary election

By SANDRA BOUGHANNE
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — Thomas Mahoney, who defeated Ken King in last week's city commission election, collected and spent more money than any of the other three candidates.

The largest contributions to the city commission campaigns came from land development interests, including: Realtors Political Action Committee of Tallahassee; Heathrow Land and Development Co.; David Guy, head of Arvida, the firm that manages the Heathrow community; Paulucci International, Heathrow; Larry and Cindy Dale; and The Hardy Development Group.

Through Nov. 2, Mahoney reported a total of $4,685 in contributions including $320 in-kind and a $100 loan. He spent $3,796.29, according to his treasurer's report.

King reported $1,815 in contributions, including $500 in loans, and spending $1,548.89.

Final campaign reports are due in February, according to Lake Mary City Clerk Carol Edwards.

King lost by 15 votes, receiving 49.3 percent of the votes.

Bill Greene, who was defeated by George Duryea, received more in contributions and outspent his opponent.

Greene reported $3,650 in contributions, including a $50 loan, and $2,577.78 in expenditures through Nov. 2.

Duryea reported $2,340 in contributions, including $40 in-kind and a $50 loan. He spent $1,855.01.

These are the contributors for the candidates as reported through Nov. 2:

Smaller signs, more scenery

By A. MARK DANFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners will consider changes to their sign code to make county greenery a little easier to see.

Commissioners will consider a proposal making billboards in unincorporated portions of the county smaller in size and spaced farther apart to help reduce sign clutter. Owners of existing business signs that don't meet the requirements would, in some cases, be given up to five years to replace them with conforming signs.

Commissioners will consider the new sign ordinance at a meeting beginning at 7 p.m. tonight at the end of a seven-item zoning agenda that could last two hours or more. The meeting will be in the commission chambers at the County Services Building on East First Street.

The changes were sought by county planning and zoning commissioner John Tracy in March. Tracy said the 15-foot sign height limit on Lake Mary Boulevard should be expanded for signs throughout the county. The county's sign ordinance was reviewed by the county Program Review Committee who recommended more limits on the size and number of signs.

Store signs would have a maximum height of 15 feet, reduced from 35 feet, with a minimum distance of 300 feet between signs. No more than three county, state or American flags would be allowed on a property.

City needs help to furnish new arts center

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The city commission is looking for help to furnish the Cultural Arts Center, which is scheduled for completion this week.

During discussion of furniture selection for the 65-year-old Fifth Street structure, Commissioner A.A. McClanahan suggested seeking donations to help furnish the building.

Bill Simmons, director of engineering and planning, said the city would take care to choose traditional furniture for the center, which will be used for city functions and community rentals.

The commission last night tabled discussion of guidelines and rates for rental of the building until a work session next week.

City Manager Frank Faison said the Cultural Arts Center will not compete with the Sanford Civic Center, also a city facility, for group rental fees. He said any group would qualify for use of the building, but would pay on a sliding scale determined by the group's objectives. Rates for the civic center are $15.50 an hour for private organizations who may profit from the building's use, $10.50 an hour for churches or clubs based in Sanford, and $9.50 an hour for non-profit organizations.

Faison said Parks Department

Consultants offer help to SHA

By LINDA L. COLLIER
Herald staff writer

BANFORD — A national group of public housing management consultants has offered to help Sanford Housing Authority determine the agency's goals before reorganizing for private management.

The National Center for Housing Management (NCHM) has offered to evaluate SHA management following the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development rejection of a management contract negotiated two months ago.

Miranda Wingate of NCHM said she first contacted Sanford Housing Authority in August after she learned from HUD the agency was seeking private management.

Wingate and a number of public housing authorities across the country are turning to private management in response to growing problems with drugs, rent collection, vandalism and other socio-economic troubles.

"All large public housing authorities are experiencing major problems. Therefore, everyone is looking for help," Wingate said.

NCHM wants to help SHA determine what they need to improve the authority before negotiating another contract, Wingate said.

"If you don't have a clear picture of your needs, how can you negotiate for improvement?" Wingate said.

NCHM is currently assisting the Cleveland Housing Authority, the third largest public housing agency in the United States, in developing guidelines for improvement. The group has previously worked with the Housing Authority of New Orleans to develop criteria for negotiation with private management firms, Wingate said. The criteria are based on the agency's special needs determined by analyzing public housing staff, occupancy, turnover and finances, she said.

Wingate said NCHM would do the same type of analysis of SHA if invited by the board of commissioners, who will consider the group's offer at a meeting Thursday.

SHA first voted to switch to private management in March, then in August agreed to enter negotiation with The Park Co. of Coral Gables. Within one month, the contract was rejected by HUD because it did not meet federal guidelines for contracting services to public housing authorities.

Thursday's meeting will be the first regular meeting since the contract was rejected.

SHA employees and the Seminole County branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) have expressed concerns about contracting private management. The NAACP last month also called for an investigation of the authority commission and management by HUD.

Armed robbers stalk store customers

By SUSAN LORAN
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — A pair of three armed robbers apparently followed four sets of victims from a convenience store to rob them when they arrived home between 9 and 11 p.m. Sunday.

The incidents, which are under investigation by Seminole County sheriff's deputies, occurred in the Wekiva area of rural Longwood and Apopka.

One robber was armed with a small revolver and another was armed with a rusty, double-edged knife, deputies reported. The gang is comprised of three black men, in their early 20's, all of whom are around 6-foot tall and who weigh about 180 pounds, victims said.

In the first case, Matthew Rodriguez, 27, of Longwood, parked at his house at about 9:17 p.m. and was approached by a man who demanded his wallet. The robber was armed with a revolver. Two other suspects joined him.

Rodriguez had no money, but the robbers took a $700 gold necklace from his neck before fleeing on foot.

At about 10:37 p.m., the gang struck again on Thomas Morgan, 24, of Longwood, arrived home and got out of his car.

Morgan was approached by three men who came from the east side of his house. One man brandished a gun and demanded Morgan's wallet. Morgan gave the robbers his watch and wallet. He was hit in the face three times by the gunman. A knife-wielding suspect approached Morgan. Morgan pushed one of the other robbers to the ground. Morgan told the robbers he didn't have any gold, except for his rings, and he refused to give them up, a sheriff's report said. The robbers fled on W. Wekiva Trail.

Within minutes, the gang struck again in Apopka when Dan and Karen Guillen arrived home with their 3-year-old daughter.

One robber approached Mrs. Guillen, while two confronted Dan Guillen. They demanded Guillen's wallet, and said "You'd better give me money or you'll be dead."

Another robber took Mrs. Guillen's purse and jewelry and the robbers ran away. The Guillen's lost $6, a wallet and purse and a $60 watch to the robbers.

A police dog was brought in to search for the robbers. Nothing was found except for a discarded gasoline receipt that belongs to Guillen, the report said.

The final robbery occurred at 11 p.m. in Longwood, when Jason Paul Fayard, 18, and James Allen Martin, 16, arrived at Fayard's house.

They were confronted outside the house by robbers who brandished their weapons and demanded money. A gun was held to Martin's head while Fayard was ordered into the house for money.

The robbers fled with Martin's wallet.

In all cases the victims had just returned home from a convenience store, but sheriff's deputies didn't report the location of the store, and they didn't say if there was more than one store involved.

Deputies did confirm that the suspects and the method of operation seems to be the same in all cases.

Watchdog group demands lower rates from state's three largest electric companies

United Power International

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's consumer watchdog petitioned the Public Service Commission on Monday for rate reductions for customers of the state's three largest electric utilities.

The petitions filed by Public Counsel Jack Shreve call for a reduction in return on equity for Florida Power & Light Co., Tampa Electric Co. and Gulf Power Co. prior to Jan. 1.

Shreve said the petitions are related to last week's broader petition in which he urged the PSC to use its emergency rule-making authority to lower the rate of return — and, in effect, utility rates — for all utility companies.

"We wanted to get these in the mill before too much time went by," Shreve said. "Frankly, this is what we asked for two years ago and didn't get. Once the commission acts on the emergency rule, it can move directly to these petitions."

Shreve, who is a state-paid consumer advocate, has argued that utilities are profiting excessively from a 1986 action by Congress that reduced the federal tax rate.

The PSC agreed to allow the utilities to keep the difference and issue refunds a year later. But the refunds have never come close to equaling the excess collections.

For instance, Florida Power was able to keep $146 million in 1988 because of the change in the tax rate. It agreed to refund earnings beyond a 13.6 return on equity, which amounted to $38.2 million in rebates for customers and "more than $100 million in pure profit" for the utility, said Shreve.

All in all, said Shreve, the windfall has amounted to $1.1 billion for Florida utilities since the corporate tax rate dropped from 46 percent to 34 percent.

Florida Power & Light has been operating under rates established in 1984, when the PSC granted a return on equity of 15.6 percent. Tampa Electric's and Gulf Power's rates were set a year later, with the authorized rate of return set at 15.6 percent and 14.5 percent respectively.

The rates were authorized because of the companies' relatively higher cost of equity at the time. Since then, however, "the circumstances which dictate the cost of equity to the power companies" — interest rates, oil prices, inflation — "have changed and have drastically reduced the companies' cost of equity," Shreve said.

"For example," he said, "in contrast to the 15.6 percent return on equity authorized by the commission to Florida Power & Light in 1984, the commission's own Division of Auditing and Financial Analysis, in August 1989, estimated the current cost of equity to Florida Power & Light to be only 11.4 percent."

Shreve noted that the three power companies "offered" last December to reduce their rate of return to 13.6 percent, but "this concession by the power companies still results in the ratepayers being overcharged."

Florida Power & Light, with 3 million customers, is the state's largest electric utility. Tampa Electric and Gulf Power have about a million each.

The PSC's next scheduled meeting is Nov. 21, at which time it could act on the petitions.

Carelessness, poor weather blamed for ship grounding

United Press International

MIAMI — Carelessness, poor weather and strong currents were blamed Monday for the grounding of a Greek freighter on a federally protected reef during the weekend, causing heavy damage to the environmentally sensitive area.

Ship Capt. Panagiotis Tsirikos was asleep at the time of the accident and chief mate Nikolaos Lasos, who was piloting the 470-foot vessel, said he realized he was off course when he saw Carysfort Reef Light, a 100-foot navigational aid. He changed direction, but it was too late.

"Four minutes after I changed course I felt the ship shaking and I realized I was grounded," he told a Coast Guard board of inquiry investigating the accident.

Lasos said through a Greek interpreter that rain prevented the crew from seeing navigational markers near the coral reef in the Key Largo National Marine Sanctuary for at least two hours before the Epiros rammed the reef at a speed of nearly 14 mph shortly before midnight Friday.

Florida Marine Patrol officer Chuck Collins, who investigated the grounding about 5 miles east of Key Largo, said he tested those involved for alcohol intoxication and no one appeared to be drunk.

Tsirikos admitted that he had two drinks after the accident occurred, but Collins said the captain was not intoxicated.

Both Collins and Jason Horadam, a patrol officer for the sanctuary, said the Epiros was traveling against a swift Gulf Stream that was moving at nearly 6 mph. The crew said that along with the strong currents, they were headed south against northeasterly winds while trying to travel close to the reef to save time and fuel.

"They were trying to get as close as they could to the reef to avoid the Gulf Stream," Collins said. "Careless observation and the direction of the wind might have had something to do with the accident."

Tsirikos also blamed the current. "It happened due to the current," the Epiros' captain said, also through a Greek interpreter. "(The tide) was low and the speed of the current had increased."

Third engineer Nikolaos Hrisaohos, also Greek, and seaman Khalid Ibrahim, from the Maldives islands, also testified at the hearing.

The board of inquiry, which consisted of Capt. R.J. Opezio and Lt. Keith Ward, will make a report of the hearing.

"Our investigation is being done solely to determine the cause of the accident," Opezio said. "The Coast Guard has no civil or criminal actions pending against the parties involved."

On Sunday federal authorities seized the Epiros and filed a suit accusing the crew of negligence for allowing the vessel to run aground in the environmentally sensitive sanctuary. The reef is one of the five most popular areas for divers and fishermen.

The accident was the third grounding in as many weeks near the keys. The freighter, with 85,600 gallons of fuel oil on board, was carrying 2,000 tons of sugar from Holland to Tampico, Mexico.

The full extent of the damage, which authorities described as "heavy," will be determined by Tuesday, said Mike White, manager of the sanctuary.

Nixon helps clear the air in China

Although some critics questioned the wisdom of former President Richard Nixon's trip to China and the government's decision to support the pro-democracy movement, his visit turned out to be constructive.

It served the important purpose of clearing the air and promoting the West's message to Beijing in direct and understandable terms.

Mr. Nixon pulled no punches. Although he knew it would offend his Chinese hosts, he rightly referred to the brutal crackdown against peaceful protest in Beijing's Tiananmen Square as a tragedy.

Many Americans believed the military crackdown was excessive and unjustified. In fact, the events of April through June "damaged the respect and confidence which most Americans previously had for the leaders of China."

In the bluntest formal criticism leveled at the communist regime since the crackdown, he asked: "Are martial law and political repression permanent features of life in China?"

Yet, on the same day that Mr. Nixon met with China's paramount leader, Deng Xiaoping, the regime adopted a tough new law giving the government wide latitude to quash public gatherings that are critical of government policy.

This is yet another blow for the country's pro-democracy movement and strengthens the communist government's already tight grip on what it contemptuously refers to as "bourgeois liberalism."

Mr. Nixon's prognosis all for China on the U.S. to cement in its relations with the present relationship relied on the amiable formula of recognizing shared interests without insistence on shared values. It was the same key he used to open the door to China in 1972.

The shared aim is the same as it was then: to develop a relationship of friendship and mutual respect, free of ideological differences, despite the huge differences that divide both countries over the legitimacy and importance of the pro-democracy movement.

For his part, Deng predictably broadsided the former president with a charge that the United States was interfering in China's domestic affairs by backing the pro-democracy protests.

It is widely known that Deng was especially furious with the Bush administration for granting refuge in the U.S. embassy in Beijing to anthropologist Fang Lishi, China's most prominent dissident, and his wife.

As one of the most respected Americans in Chinese eyes, Mr. Nixon's words carry considerable weight in Beijing.

His criticism of the regime's repression is not likely to be taken lightly. Indeed, if China's leaders expect to improve their relationship with the United States, they must begin to take Mr. Nixon's message to heart.

Docudrama: The lie made flesh?

Leonard Garment, who was counsel to President Nixon during the Watergate affair, has taken issue with ABC-TV's dramatization of "The Final Days." Woodward and Bernstein's book on the subject. In an article on The New York Times Op-Ed page, Garment concedes that the portrayal of himself in the TV production, though inaccurate, is "brave," but he has nothing but sympathy for Mr. Nixon, Gen. Alexander Haig, Sen. Henry Wirth and others when personalities and conduct are twisted beyond recognition by this "docudrama."

Mr. Garment may be considered to know that some of us have been worrying about docudramas for quite a while. Back in 1977, I persuaded the National News Council, a well-known and short-lived critic of the media on which I was serving as the only conservative member, to issue a statement noting the development of this genre and warning against its dangers.

"The National News Council notes with deep concern the growing problem arising out of the recent emergence on television of a form which has come to be known as 'docudrama,' the statement declared. 'These are dramas, purportedly based on fact, written and produced not by journalists but by dramatists, an entertainment in the broad sense....

That the dangers of public confusion and historical revisionism are considerable.

...The council expresses its concern and urges that the television networks take this matter under serious consideration, going beyond mere routine disclaimers, to assure a proper regard for factual and historical accuracy.

The networks, of course, did no such thing, and now we have a "docudrama" in which Richard Nixon collapses in tears in front of Henry Kissinger on the carpet of the Lincoln sitting room — a spectacular incident indeed, but one which, according to both Mr. Nixon and Mr. Kissinger, never occurred.

He feels docudrama marketed.

What can be done about this? Nothing, as Mr. Garment says, "Final Days" is "stuffed with false pictures, false speeches and words that were not spoken by the people who speak them.... Nevertheless, the show will be defended as art and as a piece of journalism protected by the First Amendment and, as a practical matter, there is no recourse at the moment." Richard Nixon and his official coverage are "public domain," and as such, under current Supreme Court guidelines, are effectively denied the right to sue anyone for libel.

Of course, defenders of docudrama will maintain that distorting the historical facts in the interests of good theater is a trick as old as Shakespeare. But there is a world of difference between maligning Richard III in a play written more than a century after his death and mauling Richard Nixon beyond recognition before he has even shuffled off this mortal coil.

And need I point out to my liberal friends that nothing but their own tight control of the airwaves prevents some talented bigot from broadcasting a "docudrama" that selectively depicts the late Martin Luther King Jr. as a runy rascal alternating between civil rights marches and boulder triumphs? It would make quite a show.

GEORGE F. WILL

GOP needs stronger leadership

WASHINGTON — Time crawls when you are not having any fun at all, so for Democrats it must seem a century rather than a mere decade since Ted Kennedy launched his first and last presidential campaign (Nov. 7, 1979). Ten years to the day later, Democrats had fun in New York City, New Jersey and Virginia.

On any given Election Day, the party that does best talks about national trends and the other party says, plaintively, "All politics are local." In the aftermath of Tuesday's results, Republicans are sounding plaintive, although they have a small slice of a point.

The fact that New York will have yet another Democratic mayor is not momentous news, even if he is black. Virginia's new Democratic governor, who is black, will replace a popular Democrat who in turn replaced a popular Democrat. In New Jersey, people are probably more intensely interested in the issue of auto-insurance rates than anything else.

Still, the Republican Party is suffering a severe case of ham-handedness, beginning with its Maximum Leader. In September in New Jersey, President Bush said the gubernatorial election there was a referendum of the national party's values. The Republican candidate, Jim Courier, caught the spirit: "If you liked Michael Dukakis, you'll love Jim Florio." Florio beat Courier with 61 percent of the vote.

Republicans had won five victories in New Jersey in the 1980s — Reagan carried it twice, Bush once, and Tom Keane twice won the governorship. How important was the abortion issue there and in Virginia?

There is ample evidence that most Americans spend most waking hours thinking about sex. But abortion? Most voters will not pull the voting lever for or against a candidate solely because of his position on that issue. But it can change the way voters think about an entire party. It may make the Republican Party look frivolous and cynical.

Abortion is one of the relatively few issues on which the parties are explicit and diametrically opposed. Democrats are for abortion as a fundamental constitutional right. The last three Republican platforms have called not merely for overturning the 1973 Supreme Court ruling — not merely for restoring the abortion issue to the political arena — but for a constitutional amendment to outlaw abortion. Probably 80 percent of the electorate opposes the Republican view.

Courier's campaign collapsed early when he was unprepared to comment intelligently on last summer's Supreme Court ruling that expanded states' powers to regulate abortions. Then he waffled about his previous anti-abortion views, saying he still held them but would not let his convictions influence public policy. The Republican gubernatorial candidate in Virginia, Marshall Coleman, might have won in a walk instead of losing narrowly to Douglas Wilder had he not been so strongly anti-abortion.

So from coast to coast, Republicans are tinkering with what they smilingly call their conviction. They are seeking graceful, or at any rate the least disgraceful, ways to say, "Er... um... we'll... on-the-other-hand, that stuff we said about abortion being the murder of 'pre-born babies'? We never meant it." That will be the first truthful thing many of them have said on the subject for years. This party-wide exercise in shall we say, clarification will require presidential leadership.

This decade dawned with candidate Bush unburdening himself on the subject in the pages of Rolling Stone (March 1980). There he said of the Court's 1973 decision: "I happen to think it was right." He happened to think that saying so would help him politically. It did not then, but it may now. So look for yet another U-turn, like the one he took in late summer 1980 to get from pandering to Rolling Stone readers to running with Reagan.

The Republican Party prospered in the 1980s because it was accorded—sometimes grudgingly—the respect that comes to institutions that have moral gravity. It had a seriousness that seemed admirable even to many people who were skeptical about its wisdom. Now, as the party begins the entertaining spectacle of wriggling off the hook on which it has impaled itself, it is in danger of sounding simply silly.

Today the President, hero of last month's successful struggle to prevent public aid from reaching impoverished victims of rape and incest, sounds somehow softer. The day after the election, he said he would never, ever, change his position. But what is it this week? "I just come down more on the side of the life." Wriggle, wriggle.

We who opposed the 1973 ruling when we read it rather than when we read polls about it have always seen the synthetic nature of much Republican opposition to it. Now everyone shall see the insincerity as the political bill comes due for a decade of opportunism. More and more Republicans are going to say, "Murder? No, actually we meant 'mistake.'"

Republicans are tinkering with what they call their conviction.

Is EPA chief just a pretty face?

WASHINGTON — We owe our readers an apology. In a recent column we took Environmental Protection Agency Administrator William Reilly to task for being too accommodating to industrial polluters. We led you to believe that was Reilly's biggest problem. We were wrong. Reilly's biggest problem is that he is a made-for-TV administrator.

He has been dubbed by some EPA insiders, "The Vanna White of the Bush Administration" and a "clean air head."

To be sure, Reilly spends far more time than his predecessors cultivating an image as a champion of the environment. Staffers say they know Reilly is truly pleased with a new idea when it makes the six o'clock news.

For Reilly, the camera angle and sound bite are paramount, some staffers told our associate Stewart Harris. But is Reilly for real?

The administrator is on a two-week swing through Europe on EPA business and, for once, is not available for interviews. But his spokesman said that the grumbling from some EPA staffers about Reilly's public image will end when they get used to the idea of an agency head who uses the soapbox.

Administrators during the Reagan years were expected to work quietly or lose their jobs. That gave staffers plenty of time to work closely with Reilly's predecessors, including Lee Thomas and William Ruckelshaus — something they can't do with Reilly because he spends so much time on the road and in television studios.

The day-to-day administration has fallen on Reilly's deputy, Henry Habicht.

Staffers may eventually get used to Reilly's high profile, but they may never get him to pay attention to details. Insiders tell us that Reilly often glazes over when staff meetings turn to nitty-gritty policy issues. He would rather recount his lurches with Washington celebrities.

Some environmental leaders are concerned that Reilly's tough talk about the environment is, like his cover-boy looks, only skin deep. One prominent environmentalist gave Reilly "high marks on rhetoric, low marks on essence."

Reilly's aborted attempt to get a limousine for home-to-work transportation didn't impress his staffers who remember his predecessor, Lee Thomas, unfolding his strapping frame from a Toyota Tercel every morning.

An EPA spokesman told us that the limo would have given Reilly an extra hour during his commute to make phone calls and read. That episode left some agency workers wondering if Reilly was truly committed to the environment.

Likewise, some staffers were amazed when Reilly fell for an unworkable alternative fuels plan that would have forced Detroit to sell 1 million cars a year that run on something other than pure gasoline. It is doubtful that Americans would have been willing to buy the cars. And it is even a more remote possibility that the federal government would have forced gas stations to stock alternative fuels.

The unrealistic proposal would have run out of gas on its own if it had not collided head-on with powerful oil and auto interests in Congress. Despite the drubbing, Reilly is still clinging to hope for the plan.

To a certain degree, Reilly's public relations campaign has been successful, even if the man behind it stumbles occasionally. In a poll released last month, Americans in rural areas said they trusted the EPA more than Congress or the White House to protect the environment.

Ancient Mayan site found

LOS ANGELES — Archaeologists have identified what may be the oldest major center of Mayan civilization in a remote Guatemalan jungle, indicating that the sophisticated pre-Columbian society originated as much as 400 years earlier than was previously believed.

Cap killer apprehended

NEW YORK — A convicted drug dealer and murder suspect who used a smuggled gun to kill two police detectives as they drove him to the Rikers Island jail was apprehended 10 hours after the slayings, police said today.

From United Press International reports

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The House passed a package of bills providing legislative permission for major parts of the war on drugs, including $125 million for the Andean nations that produce most of the U.S.-bound cocaine.

"We cannot let (Columbian President Virgilio Barco, the people of Colombia and the people of Bolivia and Peru twist in the wind until next year," said Rep. Lawrence Coughlin, R-Pa. "We cannot pack up and leave town and leave this legislation undone as part of the war against drugs, as part of the strategy we in this Congress requested and the president has presented to us."

And Rep. Larry Smith, D-Pa., took note of the issue's importance Monday, saying his constituents were "more concerned about a crack attack in their neighborhoods than they are about a nuclear attack."

My constituents are more concerned about a crack attack in their neighborhoods than they are about a nuclear attack.

-Rep. Larry Smith, D, Pa.

All four pieces of legislation still must be acted upon by the Senate.

The Transportation appropriations bill now at the White House puts up an extra $3.2 billion for government-wide anti-drug efforts, and the bills handled by the House Monday provide congressional permission for the various programs.

One of the bills, passed 371-0, directs an extra $180 million to local school districts for the development of drug-free schools and subsidies to support the program and activities that get behind local drug prevention programs. About $15 million of the money must go for grants in areas of high drug use.

An international drug control measure, passed by voice vote, puts up $125 million in military aid for the three Andean nations during fiscal 1990, with no more than $19 million available for the police forces of each nation. It lets the Pentagon buy items such as patrol boats and helicopters for use by those countries, and it allows the use of up to $800,000 to develop safe and effective herbicides for use against coca crops.

The legislation also authorizes up to $115 million for global anti-drug efforts over and above the Andean assistance. It also waives a law barring U.S. aid to countries behind in their repayment of debts to the United States, a provision that would likely apply only to Peru.

Walesa seeks investment instead of U.S. handouts

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Solidarity founder Lech Walesa, saluted by President Bush as "the spiritual godfather of a new generation of democracy," Tuesday began his first full day in America with a plea for billions of dollars in U.S. investments in his Polish homeland.

Speaking on ABC's "Good Morning America" program, Walesa, who later Tuesday was to address the AFL-CIO, said, "I'm coming here to ask for cooperation and it will take billions of dollars."

Walesa, 46, a once obscure electrician who sparked an explosion of freedom in Eastern Europe, is seeking foreign investment in Poland, which is now saddled with a $40 billion debt and runaway inflation.

The Senate is considering a $738 million aid package for Poland and Hungary and the House has approved an $840 million measure. The legislators hope to reach agreement on an aid bill to give to Walesa as a welcoming gift when the 1983 Nobel Peace Prize winner addresses a joint session of Congress Wednesday.

Walesa said Tuesday he would rather have billions in investment.

Speaking with the aid of a translator, he said, "I think it is a great mistake. I wanted to finish this stage when Poland will be asking for handouts from America."

Saying "we can do some business," Walesa said, "We are ready, our system is ready, and we invite you to come."

Walesa, who is scheduled to visit the Polish Embassy, hold a news conference and have dinner at the White House Tuesday, began his four-day U.S. trip Monday with a visit to the White House where he received the nation's highest civilian award.

"History may make men, but Lech Walesa has made history," President Bush said in presenting him with the Presidential Medal of Freedom, whose earlier recipients included Martin Luther King Jr., John F. Kennedy and Mother Teresa.

Walesa burst onto the Polish and world stage Aug. 14, 1980, when he climbed over the fence at Gdanek's Lenin shipyard to join, and then lead, the 18-day strike that paved the way for the transformation of a nation.

As strike leader he demonstrated toughness, compassion, humor and charisma — qualities that endeared him to workers he eventually led in the nearly 10-million member Solidarity, the first free trade union in the communist world.

Senators oppose getting pay raises

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine said a "substantial majority" of senators oppose any pay raise for themselves and that means House members could wind up with bigger salaries.

Mitchell said Monday he and Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas sounded out senators and found overwhelming opposition to a pay increase being readied for action in the House before Congress adjourns for the year.

The package expected to be presented to the House also includes a ban on honoraria — payments such as speaking fees — and a package of ethics reforms.

"It does not appear the proposal being taken up in the House will have the support of a majority of senators," Mitchell told reporters. "Indeed, it will be opposed by a substantial majority."

As a result, Mitchell said, Congress could end up with a "differential that is not desirable," giving House members but not senators a pay raise.

Mitchell, however, said the position of the Senate should not discourage the House from acting.

Although Mitchell indicated the Senate would have to give formal approval to House pay raises, it would also have to vote to set its own pay scale and new ethics rule.

The Senate has no "closed rule," meaning senators would have to vote on a pay raise, standing by itself. Mitchell said last week he supports a requirement an up-or-down vote on a pay raise.

But Mitchell said, at the same time, "If it is merely a cost-of-living adjustment, I do not support that (up-or-down) requirement," indicating the Senate may accept a cost-of-living increase only.

House Speaker Thomas Foley of Washington has tentatively scheduled a vote Thursday under a "closed rule" that would limit amendments to those approved by the leadership.

The House bill, worked out by a special task force, would increase salaries by 7.7 percent next year.

El Salvador says rebels routed

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — The government says it has retaken rebel-held positions in the capital after more than two days of fighting that left more than 300 people dead. But battles persisted in outlying areas, including a neighborhood where the U.S. ambassador and other Americans live.

A National Police spokesman said the fighting broke out Monday night in the Zona Rosa, an exclusive residential zone that is home to U.S. Ambassador William Walker and popular with Americans on San Salvador's west side.

Embassy spokesman Jefferson Brown, however, said the "off and on fire fights" in the area were directed at the Salvadoran military and not U.S. citizens.

Kohl visits Auschwitz

AUSCHWITZ, Poland — West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl paid tribute today to 4 million victims who died in the death camps of Auschwitz and Birkenau at the hands of Nazis during World War II.

Kohl walked through the camp gate with the inscription "Arbeit Macht Frei," (work makes you free) on the foggy morning and toured the camps where Nazis tortured and executed their victims.

He approached the execution wall and laid a wreath that read, "From the Chancellor of Federal Republic of Germany."

Kohl is the third West German Chancellor to visit the camp, following Willy Brandt in 1970 and Helmut Schmidt in 1977.

Soviets try to quell riots

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union dispatched 2,000 troops to the Moldavian capital of Kishinev, where more than 200 people were injured in rioting sparked by arrests made during last week's Revolution Day celebrations, an Interior Ministry official said Monday.

The official news agency Tass described the situation in the city Monday as "complex and explosive," and said nationalists continued to stage large rallies in downtown Kishinev despite a ban on assemblies imposed in the wake of the rioting.

Poland aid agreed on

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Senate, on the eve of an address by Solidarity leader Lech Walesa, was in virtual agreement on a $738 million economic aid package for Poland and Hungary designed to promote their breakaway from communist rule and state-controlled economic planning.

Senate leaders arranged to vote on the bill today, then planned to seek the approval of the House so it could be presented as a welcoming gift to the former shipyard electrician and 1983 winner of the Nobel Peace Prize during his address to a joint meeting of Congress Wednesday. The House has approved an $840 million aid package.

Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas and Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., narrowed their differences over the authorization bill Monday, with Simon giving up his call for $200 million in loan guarantees to subsidize U.S. exports to Poland.

Dole said the additional credits "just won't work in Poland" because of its foreign debt of nearly $40 billion.

Parliament elects new premier

United Press International

EAST BERLIN — Reform-minded communist Hans Modrow, chosen as East Germany's new premier by the parliament with a show of hands, said he wants the Berlin Wall to remain standing because he fears crime, drugs and AIDS from the West would be "shoved across ... an open border."

Also Monday, the parliament elected a non-communist as speaker for the first time in its 40-year history in an unprecedented secret vote, and the Communist Party Central Committee approved holding an extraordinary party congress with the power of revamping the entire Central Committee.

The 165-member Central Committee acted on a proposal by new East German leader Egon Krenz and set the congress for Dec. 15-17. Krenz told the Central Committee that the scheduled Communist Party conference "would not be enough" and should be replaced by an extraordinary congress.

The difference was crucial because a congress has the power to change or even dismiss the entire Central Committee, which in turn elects the ruling 10-member Politburo.

As the parliament met Monday, the number of East Germans lining up to cross the newly opened border into West Germany eased to a relative trickle of 100,000, compared with the millions who crossed over the weekend.

West German authorities said 26,700 of the weekend visitors had elected to stay in West Germany and registered in refugee centers, and another 3,000 signed up Monday.

Modrow, 61, was designated last week by Krenz to replace hard-liner Willi Stoph, who ended 22 years as head of government Nov. 7 when he resigned along with the entire 43-member Cabinet.

Although Modrow's election had been expected, it came at the end of an unprecedented day in the Volkammer, or People's Chamber, as the parliament is called.

In the first secret ballot since East Germany became a state in 1949, the parliament Monday elected Democratic Farmers Party candidate Guenther Maleuda as its new speaker.

Modrow was formerly Communist Party chief in Dresden and the first high-ranking East German communist to openly back Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's reforms.

The West German newspaper Bild quoted Modrow in an article Monday as saying he rejected the complete destruction of the Berlin Wall because "our nation knows only minimal crime, hardly any AIDS, and drugs are as good as unknown. If all those things were shoved across to us over an open border, my policies as premier wouldn't stand a chance."

Modrow said the government and the parliament will discuss when to hold general elections, which will be called before 1991, and said he was confident communists would win the vote.

FOOTBALL

Zendejas boots Bengals

HOUSTON — Houston Oilers head coach Jerry Glaviano has supported kicker Tony Zendejas in good times and bad, and Monday night Zendejas paid him back.

Zendejas kicked four second-half field goals, including a 28-yarder as time ran out, lifting the Oilers to a 26-24 victory over the Cincinnati Bengals.

"Believe me, those kicks are something else," said Zendejas, who earlier this season missed a 57-yard field goal that would have given the Oilers an overtime victory over Buffalo.

"Our whole season was riding on it," he said. "Making that field goal keeps us in the race. Thank God I made it."

Cincinnati's Jim Breach had given the Bengals a 24-23 lead with his 38-yard field goal with 7:53 remaining. But, after an exchange of possessions, Houston quarterback Warren Moon drove the Oilers 70 yards in 14 plays before Zendejas kicked the game-winner.

St. Louis recalls Evans, Twist

ST. LOUIS — The St. Louis Blues on Monday recalled winger Doug Evans and defenseman Tony Twist from the team's minor-league affiliate in Peoria, Ill.

Both players participated in Monday's workout with the Blues at The Arena, team officials said.

Evans, 26, was tied for the team lead in scoring at Peoria, which is in the International Hockey League. He scored six goals and added seven assists for 13 points in 14 games with the Rivermen.

Signed by the Blues as a free agent in 1985, Evans has played in 160 games with the Blues during the past four seasons. A checking and penalty-killing specialist, he has career totals of 16 goals and 32 assists in his career.

Twist, 21, began the season with the Blues and played in six games before being sent to Peoria on Oct. 27. He did not score in the brief stint but picked up 29 minutes in penalties.

Aaron's record homer lauded

NEW YORK — Hank Aaron's record-breaking 715th homer was voted the greatest moment in baseball history by fans and sports writers around the country.

Aaron's homer on April 8, 1974, sent him past Hall of Fame slugger Babe Ruth. In balloting sponsored by MasterCard, with results announced at a banquet Monday night, Aaron's homer edged Ruth's "called shot" in the 1932 World Series, Lou Gehrig's farewell address in 1939, Bobby Thomson's "shot heard round the world" that decided the 1951 pennant, Don Larsen's perfect game in the 1956 World Series and Kirk Gibson's game-winning home run in the 1988 World Series opener.

The dinner benefited the ALS Association (Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis, known as Lou Gehrig's disease).

A panel of sports writers and broadcasters chose 20 "greatest moments" then submitted them to fans, who cast their votes between Aug. 1 and Sept. 20. Organizers say close to a half million people participated.

Jazz shuts down Washington

SALT LAKE CITY — The Washington Bullets saw a four-game winning streak end Monday night as Utah held two players who were averaging 45 points a game between them to only 11.

"They were able to prevent us from doing some things we wanted to do and we didn't adjust very well," Bullets Coach Wes Unseld said after the Jazz defeated Washington 106-93. "It just wasn't a good night for us. Jeff Malone's shots weren't dropping, and they were able to do what they wanted all night long inside."

Malone went into the game with a 27-point average, but managed only 4 points after pouring in 37 Sunday in Washington's 104-95 victory in Portland. Bernard King, averaging 18 a game, was held to 7.

Utah's Karl Malone scored 33 points and John Stockton added 30 points and dished out 16 assists.

SANFORD HERALD PLAYER OF THE WEEK

Bouey has great night for Lyman

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

Cedric Bouey helped Lyman snap a two-game losing streak by rushing for 219 yards on 14 carries Friday night to lead the Greyhounds to a 48-6 sheeling of Lake Mary. For his performance, Bouey has been named the Sanford Herald Player of the Week.

Bouey, a junior, scored three touchdowns — two of which accumulated 141 yards, including one an 87-yard jaunt. After gaining over 1,000 yards as a sophomore Bouey has been keyed on this season, but with his performance Friday, he went over the 1,000-yard mark for the second consecutive year.

Others considered for Player of the Week honors were Seminole's Bernard Eady, who came up with two key interceptions, a 40-yard reception and 14 yards rushing to help the Tribe win the 4A-District 7 title; Lake Mary's Mike Merthie, who completed 8-of-18 passes for 155 yards and a touchdown; Oviedo's Hector Diaz, who had three interceptions and a 60-yard punt return for a TD; and Lake Howell's Ken Spearman, who was a steady performer for the Silver Hawk defense.

"Cedric (Bouey) had a great night," Lyman coach Bill Scott said. "But he needed the help from the line. He couldn't have done it on his own. Once he hit the secondary, he turned it on."

Lyman came up with its best team effort of the year and had a brilliant game plan for Lake Mary, who entered the game with a three-game winning streak.

"The coaches played put together a nice plan of attack," Scott said. "It was a tremendous team effort. The kids did a real good job in practice and on the field Friday night."

Bouey, who makes the Lyman offense go, was not used as much against the Rams as he has been in the past but was just as effective.

Cedric Bouey

"There are two things that make Cedric a good back," Scott said. "He has both good speed and strength. You really have to hit him to knock him down."

Scott has been very pleased with Bouey's year, knowing that other teams would be looking to stop him in order to beat the Greyhounds.

"He's had to work harder this year and he has done a real good job," Scott said. "Other teams know of him now and key on stopping him. We've mixed the offense up, but Cedric has still done an admirable job."

SCC hosts basketball double dip

From staff reports

Junior college basketball will take center stage Tuesday night as the Raiders of Seminole Community College, both the men and women, will host a doubleheader at the Health and Physical Education Center on the SCC campus.

The women will open their season as they play host to the Rockets of Patrick Air Force Base at 5 p.m. while the men will be looking to stay undefeated when they host the Lakers of Lake-Sumter Community College at 7:30 p.m.

Seminole Head Coach Beanna Gallagher, starting her ninth season, and assistant Val Roessler will go with a starting lineup of sophomore Sherry Siegrist (a Lyman graduate) at point, sophomore Dana Carr at off guard, sophomore A.J. Jackson and freshman Tina Lester at forward, and either sophomore Carolyn Kuhl (from Lake Howell) or freshman Kim Johnson at center.

The women's team will be looking to turn around last year's 6-22 record and return to the form of the three previous years, when the Raiders averaged 19 wins and six losses and made two state tournament appearances.

Citrus' choice of ACC may alter plans of other bowls

United Press International

The Citrus Bowl announced Monday it would exercise its option and take the Atlantic Coast Conference champion, a decision that could create problems for at least two other bowls that already had made deals with ACC schools.

The Citrus, played New Year's Day in Orlando, took ACC champion Clemson the past two seasons but was not obligated to the league this season, according to terms of an agreement between the ACC and the bowl.

However, Citrus officials turned to the ACC after their apparent first choice, Tennessee, was wooed away by the Cotton Bowl. A Big Ten team, probably Illinois or Ohio State, will be the ACC's opponent.

"There has been a lot of strong sentiment toward the ACC champion all along," said Dylan Thomas, Citrus director of information. "The opportunity to bring the ACC champion to Orlando is something we're very excited about."

Virginia and Duke lead the ACC with 5-1 records, and each has a game remaining Saturday. The Cavaliers, 9-2 overall, are at Maryland. The Blue Devils, 7-3 overall, are at North Carolina.

Clemson, which finished 5-2 in league games, could gain a share of the title if both Virginia and Duke lose. Clemson is at South Carolina in its regular-season finale.

In case of a tie, the Citrus will take the highest-ranked ACC team in the UPI poll, currently Clemson at No. 13. Virginia is 14th, and Duke is not in the Top 20.

Clemson and Duke already had agreed on bowl plans. The Tigers were to play in the Gator Bowl, and the Blue Devils were headed to the All-American. Virginia's best bet seemed to be the Peach Bowl until the Citrus decided to exercise its option.

No blowout this time: Hawks hold off Magic

United Press International

ORLANDO — Guard Glen "Doc" Rivers came alive to score 10 points in a five-minute stretch in the fourth period to propel the Atlanta Hawks past the Orlando Magic, 112-104, Monday at the Orlando Arena.

Playing before Orlando's fourth straight sellout crowd, Rivers went to work with Atlanta clinging to a 90-88 lead with 7:43 left. A baseline jumper, several drives into the teeth of the Magic defense and a couple of free throws effectively ended any hopes Orlando had of defeating another playoff-caliber team.

It was just eight days ago that the Magic stunned the New York Knicks, 118-110, here before a capacity crowd of 15,077.

Rivers, who finished with 14 points, Dominique Wilkins and Moses Malone turned back the Magic offensive surge at different times to make sure they would not emerge victorious again.

Magic guard Sam Vincent, who played well in Orlando's 148-109 loss in Atlanta Saturday night, did his best to keep the hosts close. But not even Vincent's eight points in a six-minute span during the final stanza could prevent Orlando from bowing out of this game on a losing note.

Nevertheless, Orlando still had a chance to snap its two-game losing streak when Vincent hit two free throws to slice Atlanta's advantage to 104-101 with 1:14 remaining.

But Malone slipped inside and Wilkins connected on four consecutive free throws to seal the Hawks' second straight victory.

The first half Magic fans witnessed some the same poor field-goal shooting — 34 percent — that plagued their team throughout most of Saturday's lopsided loss in Atlanta. Before the Hawks' 39-point pounding, Orlando had shot better than 50 percent, including 55 percent against Detroit for two consecutive games.

Despite their shooting woes, the Magic found themselves trailing, 37-36, on a Terry Calledge tip-in 5:21 before halftime. That was the closest the hosts had been since See Magic, Page 2B

Mental illness 'cures' vary from case to case

DEAR DR. GOTT: What are the statistics on psychiatric care of patients? Are there any objective, hard-core statistics that psychiatrists are using to show that their profession is treating mental illness?

DR. GOTT: You're in a two-part question placed in the when-did-you-stop-beating-your-wife mode. I'll break it down and answer the last part first.

Chiropractors are not qualified to treat mental or emotional illness. Most chiropractors recognize this fact and accept it; they carry out their spinal manipulations and leave mental health to the mental-health professionals. Therefore, converting psychiatry to chiropractic is meaningless, sort of like adding the corollary: Are psychiatrists any more credible than chiropractors in spinal adjustments? Heck, no! They don't even do them!

The second part of your question is more complicated. Do psychiatrists cure patients? Yes and no.

Mental illness comes in many forms and in many degrees of seriousness. On one hand are chronic psychotic schizophrenics. Such patients are totally out of touch with reality, an aspect of us understand it. These patients cannot take care of themselves, carry on lengthy conversations with imaginary voices, behave inappropriately, may harm themselves or others, and traditionally have been shut away in insane asylums.

On the other hand is a healthy neurotic patient who faces reality and understands it but has trouble dealing with it. This person can function in society, have a career, be a parent—and suffer interminable torment.

In between these extremes are the majority of emotionally handicapped individuals: the depressives and the substance abusers, to name a few.

Unquestionably, many pa-patients can be helped by psychiatric intervention. The schizophrenic can be given medication and stabilizing drugs, permitting more control—maybe even a return to society.

One of the ways to beat a contract is to shorten the declarer's trump by forcing him to ruff. Eventually declarer will run out of trumps before he has done everything needed to make his contract. Even when you cannot reduce declarer's trumps to fewer than yours, forcing him to ruff can still be effective. In today's deal, South played in four spades after North jumped to game, compensating for his earlier passivity. Clubs were led and continued. Declarer ruffed, then played A-K and a diamond. East won the trick as West discarded a heart. Declarer ruffed the club return and played a heart. West won the ace and played still another club. Declarer ruffed low in dummy, East overruffed with the nine, and South won in his hand with the trump 10. He now had nothing better to do, if he wished to make the contract, than play A-K of spades and hope both defenders would follow. As West was left with the lone trump and two more good clubs, so declarer was down three.

Declarer played with too much abandon. He should time things better. After ruffing the second club, he does better to play a low diamond. The defenders will play another club. He ruffs and then plays a heart toward dummy's king. West can win and play another club if he likes, but South can take the ruff in his hand, cash A-K of spades, then get to dummy with the heart king to draw the last trump. He can then take the remaining tricks with his A-K-Q of diamonds.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
Nov. 15, 1989

In the year ahead you might enter into an interesting arrangement with someone who is older and more experienced than yourself. This could turn to be a rewarding association in several ways.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23) Today you might be a trifle difficult to get along with if your companions aren't in complete accord with your ideas or suggestions. Strive to be democratic, not dictatorial. Scorpio, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph, predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're likely to be better at managing the resources of others today than you will be with your own. However, even in this area your performance may not be up to par.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try to keep your life in proper balance today. Don't be all work and no play, nor all play and no work. Party is essential for happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There is a possibility today you might pretend you received nothing in return for something you did for another while, in actuality, you did receive some acknowledgment.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Slighta will breed resentment today, so be sure you do not play favoritism in your involvements with friends. Anyone you anger may not forgive readily.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You will generate respect from associates today by emphasizing your modest virtues. Conversely, if you tend to be flamboyant or pretentious, your behavior will have the opposite effect.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In areas where you have previously been fortunate your luck is apt to be still intact today. However, in situations where you've not established a track record, developments could be dubious.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your prospects for personal gain could be rather "iffy" today, so proceed cautiously in all commercial matters. It won't take much to tip the scales against you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It might be best if both you and your mate keep your hands off the family check book today. Either of you are capable of bruising it rather badly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be realistic today if you have to negotiate a matter that pertains to your work or career. There might be a tendency on your part to make larger concessions than necessary.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Avoid the lines of least resistance today, because what may appear to be simple could be fraught with complications, while that which appears difficult will be slower but sure.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Give full expression to your ambitions today, but be realistic regarding what you hope to achieve. Don't establish objectives that are unattainable.

Decaf coffee may boost cholesterol

NEW ORLEANS — Decaffeinated coffee may boost cholesterol levels in humans, a researcher said, drawing earlier studies indicating that coffee, either decaffeinated or not, can either lower or raise cholesterol levels.

The study by Dr. Robert Superko, assistant professor of the Loyola University Medical Center in New Orleans, found that in at least a dozen other studies that indicated decaffeinated coffee had higher cholesterol levels.

Superko, who delivered a paper on his study Monday at the American Heart Association's 68th Scientific Session, decaffeinated most of those studies — including a study that showed decaffeinated coffee had higher cholesterol levels than regular coffee.

"When you see studies that show coffee causing increased cholesterol in humans, that's not true, but it's because they had their coffee and didn't get their decaf," Superko said.

Most American coffee drinkers — 89 percent — drip their coffee through filters, which removes the fat associated with increased cholesterol, he said.

For Superko's four-month study, 180 middle-aged male coffee drinkers drank three to six cups of regular coffee a day for two months. After testing, they were randomly assigned to one of three groups. One group was given decaffeinated coffee to drink, a second got decaffeinated coffee and the third drank no coffee and acted as the control group.

The men did not change their eating patterns, and none was allowed to consume his coffee or use any type of creamer.

"I tried to design the test like you would a drug study, and wouldn't have other drugs lurking in and out of the protocol," he said.

At the end of the study, Superko said he found no cholesterol level difference between the control group and the decaffeinated coffee drinkers. "There is absolutely no difference when you stop decaffeinated coffee consumption," he said.

But the decaffeinated coffee drinkers experienced "significant elevations" in levels of low-density lipoprotein cholesterol, the so-called "bad" cholesterol, Superko said.

The study found that the group that drank decaffeinated coffee had LDL cholesterol levels that averaged 9 milligrams per deciliter higher than the other two groups.

The elevation apparently is related to the type of bean used to make decaffeinated coffee, Superko said.

Most decaffeinated coffee is made from the robusta bean, instead of the arabica bean used in regular coffee, he said.

Madame Katherine, psychic, gives advice on problems

Award-winning psychic Madame Katherine of Longwood introduces her daughter, Sylvia, who has been a psychic for 15 years. Her natural psychic ability has developed under the guidance of her mother since she was three months old.

Sylvia assists Madame Katherine in her business, which Sylvia will one day take over. Both are licensed by the state and the county. A psychic for more than 50 years, Madame Katherine has given readings in the privacy of her home for more than 25 years, helping people by advising them on their problems.

"That's why they voted me Central Florida's best psychic," she said.

She has been at the same location on Highway 17-92, two blocks south of State Road 434 in Longwood, since 1968.

"We could help you in your problems in business and in love," Madame Katherine said.

"We can reunite the separated."
 "Do you want to know about your future?" she asked. "Why worry when one visit will ease your mind? We could help your children with drug problems and worries. We could help you in your finances by analyzing you and telling you the right direction to take."

"We will answer all questions after the reading. We will advise you what county, city or state is best for you, what are the best investments and what business or job is best for you. We will tell you if you have the right love in your life," she added.

Madame Katherine and Sylvia do psychic, palm, crystal ball, card and tarot card readings as well as making horoscope charts by appointment only.

Call (407) 686-7005 for an appointment. Their hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Brazilians to vote for president

United Press International

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil — Brazil's first popular presidential campaign in 29 years ended on a lulling samba beat and the government began deploying upwards to 8,000 troops to prevent violence at polling places.

Government sources told United Press International Monday that troops would beef up security measures in at least five states, primarily in the rough and tumble Amazon region where about 400 people were killed in election-related violence in local elections a year ago.

An estimated 82 million Brazilians are expected to vote Wednesday in the more than 250,000 polling places throughout the nation of 154 million people. Voters will choose among 21 candidates in Brazil's first direct presidential elections since 1960.

Voting is mandatory in Brazil. Until 24 hours after the election is over, police are barred from arresting anybody unless they are caught red-handed in the commission of a crime, known by the Latin term "flagrante delicto."

Candidates ended their campaigns Sunday with numerous rallies around the country at which samba bands provided a festive, carnival atmosphere.
