Gasoline Rationed By Sears Roebuck

MIAMI (AP) — Sears Roebuck & Co. is rationing gasoline sales in 11 south Florida outlets and in two Tennessee cities because of a critical shortage of fuel supplies, company spokesmen say.

Motorists patronizing service stations operated by the department store chain are limited to a 10-gallon maximum purchase at Sears pumps from Palm Beach

The restrictions were imposed Tuesday, said David Faulkner, community affairs director for Sears South Florida district. A company spokesman in the store's Chicago, Ill., headquarters said similar rationing was underway in Memphis and Nashville, Tenn., but not nationwide.

"We're on an allocation from the supplier and gasoline sales have increased," said Faulkner. "So before the situation became critical and we were forced to close stations, the decision was made to limit purchases.

Sears' stores in Florida are provided by the Marathon Oil Co. of Findaley, Ohio, but recently the supplier informed Sears no extra gasoline was available.

"Marathon doesn't have any more to sell," said Faulkner, adding the shortage wasn't created by the low retail price of the gas.

A survey of several Miami area stations revealed Sears regular gasoline was priced as much as five cents below competitors' prices. Faulkner said few complaints had been registered about the rationing but one service station employe said there had been some "Grumbling." "But there's nothing that can be done about it, the attendant said.

Kimbrough Questions Longwood

LONGWOOD - Mayor Eugene Jaques declined comment today on a letter sent to the city by a county commissioner questioning the contiguity of Lake Ruth South Subdivision on SR 427.

District County Commissioner John Kimbrough Tuesday mailed a letter to Council Chairman William Klosky, enclosing a copy of a plat map showing the location of the subdivision as well as a copy of an ordinance annexing it to "As you can see, this property does not appear to be ontiguous to the city limits of Longwood," Kimbrough said. 'Please advise the board (of county commissioners) if there are other annexations that may affect this particular parcel of land to make it contiguous."

Jaques told The Herald, "We (the city) are apparently involved in litigation with the State of Florida over road annexation. I have not received Kimbrough's letter and I will not comment on it at this time. "But there seems to be here and in other cities a question of whether certain annexed properties are within the territorial limits of the city. Before making any comment I would like to discuss this matter with the city attorney (S.

Joseph Davis Jr.) since he is representing us on any road The subdivision is on the east side of SR 427. The city some months ago annexed a parcel across the highway from Lake Ruth South to be developed into a trailer park. At the time, Councilman E. E. Williamson questioned whether the trailer park was contiguous and was told by the attorney Lake Ruth South provided the link with the city. The subdivision, according to city map, is not land contiguous since it is separated from other city territory by a sliver of county land. The mayor's comments appear to indicate the city will claim contiguity by virtue of prior annexation of the highway. The city currently is involved in a suit brought by Atty. Gen. Robert Shevin challenging the contiguity of the Shadow Hill subdivision on the Longwood-Markham Road being built by Trim-Tic Development. Since the suit was filed, the city annexed a parcel of land which the city fathers claim now makes the Trim-Tic tract contiguous.

Contiguity is one of the annexation requirements under the city charter and state law.

Advisory help is in the offing for drafters of the Seminole dog control ordinance, R. L. Myers, vice president of Orange County Humane Society, told the board he will work with the ordinance committee in the interest of humane treatment for

A model ordinance on dog control will be sent out to municipalities in Seminole County for consideration so that a county wide program can be instituted.

No Participation

Commissioners chose not to participate in placing city limit signs in Seminole County. The City of Winter Springs had requested Commissioner Mike Hattaway to investigate the possibility of help from the county in the placement of signs around Winter Springs.

Commissioner Greg Drummond suggested the county set the initial signs with the cities assuming responsibility for upkeep and further moving if the city boundaries change. The County is seeking an entity to accept junked cars found on the county roadsides, and on county right-of-way. Road Supt. J. C. Lavendar said the county has a crane which can pick up junk cars when his work schedule will permit. He was instructed to find an agency which would accept the junkers if delivered to them by the county.

In Conference

Chairman Sid Vihlen reported he was in conference with the major property owners on SR-15, which runs through Monroe, regarding the possible donation of right of way necessary for improving the road.

Vihlen said he considered it improbable after the conferences, that donations would be forthcoming. On recommendation of Commissioner John Kimbrough, a work session will be scheduled to outline all the resurfacing and safety road projects in the county and to set priorities in order to give the road department a view to future work

County Engineer William Bush told the board that the time has come for work sessions with cities in Seminole County to determine future policies for road signals. He said that since the 8th cent gasoline tax rebates now go to the cities, these projects may be considered for funding from

3 Resolutions

Three resolutions presented to the board by the directors of the planning and zoning departments of the county operation were approved. One resolution amended the subdivision regulations to allow more efficient administration in processing proposed

Another resolution provides for buffer yards adjacent to residential zoning districts and establishes plan review procedures for zoning in Light Industrial districts.

The third, dealing with Industrial district zoning provides for buffers adjacent to residential zoning districts and establishing plan review procedures.

In other action, the board approved fees for the various application processing operations, as proposed by the planning zoning departments.

There are currently no charges for permits to move a house, for dredge and fill, trailer parking and renewal; variances to subdivision regulations; appeals to the Board on variances, special exceptions and trailer parking. With the adoption of these figures residents seeking

Aid Sought

In other action, Attorney Gene Stephenson and two associates appeared request of administrative assistance in the problem of legal aid in Seminole County. Stephenson said that he was not sure that the board could legally help. He explained that in the past, the president of the bar association has handled the legal aid program once indigency is confirmed, the case is referred to a local attorney on a revolving basis. "The system will no longer work - the case load is growing too fast, he said.

Mexico Wise In Seeking New Answers

Mexico is searching the world over for new

The president, of course, is measured in his

"Mexico has chosen the democratic path to development," he says. "We are striving to build an economic order that integrates all productive efforts and distributes the fruits of labor equitably. An economy shaped by all for all." However, to make sure that Echeverria's sentiments are not misinterpreted, some of his closest advisers have elaborated on them. Fausto Zapata, youthful under secretary of the presidency, for example, explains "That the government has resolved to modify the strategy of our (national) development." This change in game plan, Zapata says, was prompted by "the evident bankruptcy of the

be concluded that the Mexican way was a failure. But that would be a mistake.

Life in Mexico has improved immeasurably in the last three decades, as any comparison of conditions during the World War II years and those now will show.

Treasury Secretary George Shultz's recent visit to Moscow to discuss details of new trade agreements took place against a background which helps explain why it has become in our national interest to look for new trade opportunities in Communist countries.

The still-smoldering dollar crisis is evidence enough that the United States cannot hope to stem the flow of its currency abroad without moving into new export markets. Our prohibition against sale of strategic goods to the Russians must stand, of course, but that is not what they are interested in buying.

President Nixon's trips to Moscow and Peking last year were based on a vision of a world in which countries can remain ideological adversaries, and even political and military rivals, and still find mutual benefit in trade. Indeed, he sees that trade as a force working for tolerance and peace.

Another accompaniment to Mr. Shultz's journey was the introduction in the U.S. Senate of a bill sponsored by threefourths of the senators demanding that the Soviet Union allow free emigration of its citizens before we grant it "most favored nation" status in any trade agreements. ## Rail Pact Can Guide Phase III

Back in January, Treasury Secretary George Schultz suggested that uncertainty over how voluntary guidelines would be enforced under Phase 3 of President Nixon's economic program would require business and labor to move cautiously in raising prices and wages.

The first major test of the standards supports the Shultz The tentative pact between railroad labor and management negotiators hints that while the bargainers were less than terrified of Mr. Nixon's "club in the closet," the option of reinstituting mandatory controls, they were aware that the club is there. The 10.7 per cent increase in wages and benefits over 18 months amounts to about 7 per cent a year. While more than the 5.5 per cent standard the President has more or less adhered to in public pronouncements, the figure is considerably short of the hefty increases advocated by a number of labor leaders as justified by rapidly rising

And it is considerably less than the 12 per cent annual increase provided for in the current 42-month contracts which will expire June 30.

Still the proposed rate of increase reflects the thinking of AFL-ClO President George Meany, who in a March 4 television interview confessed a feeling that hikes in the neighborhood of 7.5 per cent would be more appropriate than the 5.5 per cent carried over from Phase 2.

'A SPECIAL DEAL FOR A SPECIAL FRIEND?

And the settlement recalls the qualifying statement of Mr. Nixon's Labor-Management Advisory Committee last month that "no single standard can be equally applicable at one time to all parties.' The railroad agreement is subject to ratification by the unions and review by the Cost of Living Council, which is likely to exert its prerogative. The council is also likely to give its approval. If negotiators in approaching contract discussions in the areas of shipbuilding, trucking, meatpacking, automaking and rubber goods manufacturing - among the major industries with nearly 5 million workers to bargain this year - are looking for a Phase 3 precedent, the council may be happy to let the railroad pact stand. The settlement does not go to the extreme in challenging the President's professed flexibility. And it indicates that reason may be as effective in maintaining wage stability as outright use of the club.

Awash In Sea Of Mothers

Suburbia Nightmare Site For Dad

By JAMES F. DONOHUE

SCITUATE, Mass. (AP) - A man who works at night and is free to roam suburbia during the day learns quickly that it's a woman's world. Driving into any small suburban town at 11 a.m. on a weekday he realizes with a little tick of terror that he's alone and awash in a sea of mothers driving station wagons. All the men are away in the city or in town, tending to their chores. There are some things more dangerous than a preoccupied matron in a station wagon, but they

Even if the suburban night worker stays home in the daylight hours, the telephone is there to remind him of the all engulfing presence of woman. It rings. His wife is somewhere in the basement doing laundry or casting spells. He panics, but he has no escape. He answers it.

"Hello," he says. The worst thing a suburban man can do at 11 a.m. is answer his own telephone. He precipitates a social receiver the confusion he's caused for the caller, a woman, of course. "Ah-ooo-er, ah," says the caller.

"Is Mrs. Suburbia there?" "Yes, but she's in the basement in communication with Satan. Maybe I can help you." "Ah-ooo-er, ah. No. I'd better speak to Mrs. Suburbia."

"I see. All right. Can I tell her who's calling?" "Ah-ooo-er, ah, this is Mrs. Eek from Central School. I want to talk to her about Cathy, ah-ooo-er, ah, her "Maybe I can help," says Suburbia, "I'm Mr. Suburbia." "Cath's father." "Oh?" There is great surprise, almost pain, in Mrs. Eek's voice. Suburbia wonders, "Now who did this woman think I was. The milkman? The mailman? Something worse? "Oh," says Mrs. Eek again, "Abooo-er, ah, perhaps I'd better call

She hangs up. Her relief in escape is apparent right through the receiver The poor woman is conditioned like a machine to expect a woman on a home telephone at 11 a.m. She just cannot cope with a man. There are other problems. Store clerks, even men, look at Suburbia at 1 a.m. as if he is out of place at best, or casing the joint.

Even waking in the bosom of one's own home is on trial. It's 10 a.m. for everybody else. The day is in full cry, full of alarms, challenges and joys. But it is dawn for Suburbia.

Nobody really cares. Children assault him like banshees. Strange children, over to play, invade his bedroom without shame. True, there are great advantages to a night schedule. No traffic, no parking problems, the daylight to enjoy oneself.

But, as with anything else good

Fulbright, D-Ark., and some of his colleagues have waged of late is their attempt to strangle the U.S. technical aid program to foreign police departments. Their almost-successful sledgehammer attempts to kill the program entirely a while back has spurred them to new oblique efforts. Yet consider these points: If we are to cut back on terrorism—as when Olympic athletes or American and other diplomats or others are arrogantly killed in cold blood, it is essential this country assist in training more efficient police worldwide. Otherwise, terrorists can cow moderate officials and hamper (or even prevent) peaceful solutions in the Middle East, Southeast Asia and other troubled areas. Then add in what terrorists do to the ability of men and nations to operate in dignity . If we are to reduce the flood of heroin pouring into this country with such alarming results, we must intensify (not eliminate) technical assistance to foreign constabularies and patrolmen concerned with this problem. · If we are to put a damper on the police brutality customary in so many lands, we must have advisers to pass on to their associates around the world the knowledge that terrorism and cold brutality are counter-productive and that police forces are most effective when the policeman on the beat becomes involved in helping his

· And finally, if we are to prevent future Vietnams, local police forces must be trained not only on how to prevent local terrorism, but in ways to better relations between the police, the government and the community. This reporter has seen firsthand in four countries the dramatic effects of such U.S. advice on the reactions of local police. Perfection has not been reached, but as one native liberal put it, anything the Americans do must two countries, the cold war imported into the United States Poland and Yugoslavia have social policies. Free trade could end up in making things better in less torture and brutal-> ments. What these senators should be doing is attacking aspects of the aid program they believe are harmful. They should be suggesting improvements. Do they believe we are sending the wrong men abroad? Or are they getting the wrong training?

The police aid program, of course, requires improve-

BRUCE BIOSSAT ERTS Promises Wonders for Man

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

Somewhere between 10 and 20 per cent of the earth's land surface has not been explored for possible mineral resources. There never has been a full inventory of the world's potential timber supply. All too little is known of the extent and nature of water drainage systems which affect estimates of resources and of perils like flooding. All these things, and much more, the busy "working satellite" called ERTS is now helping America and the world to find out with amazing speed and accuracy. Set against the steadily building crises posed by the pressures of soaring population on resources of food, energy, minerals and other vital materials, the launching of ERTS last July came none too soon. Some scientists say food output in the world must be tripled by the year two thousand to prevent mass starvation. It is guessed that the demand for minerals may also triple in the next 27 years.

It was ERTS, of course, that discovered the fact that a sizable part of global land surface is still unexplored. In its tireless daily orbits, transmitting thousands of detailed images to earth stations where computer analysis translates them into useful ground knowledge, this satellite is doing work that not even the largest and most determined team of cooperating world specialists on the ground could hope to achieve. We should not be misled, however, into imagining that the urgent magic of ERTS, with its images taken from an orbital height of 570 miles, is going to bail the world miraculously out of its menacing crises. A group of energy specialists just met in Washington to weigh the long-range outlook. They listened to the promise and the hope offered by the accumulating findings of ERTS. But they threw in one hard, sobering counterjudgment. ERTS may detect countless new potential energy and other mineral resources, but many are truly remote from populated areas.

The missing element, say the skeptics, is that it will take much energy to develop these new energy sources. So, they add, a sizable subtraction must be made from the hopeful new potential. Moreover, development costs in remote zones obviously can only be sky-high.

Nevertheless, ERTS gives us more promise than we have had in recent years from any other quarter. Its capacity for defining the condition of the earth's land and water surfaces-measured carefully, too, where change is almost constant-gives us a brilliant leap forward when we need it most. Imagine a space vehicle so geared, as ERTS is, that it can provide an accurate picture of changing crop conditions in each of the 8.864 farm fields in California's lush, irrigated Imperial Valley. It can do more. It can summarize, in a kind of composite panorama, the total acreages of each crop planted in the Imperial Valley's 465,000 farmable acres.

This remarkable space instrument, used to its fullest, can tell earth scientists whether a given farm field is ying fallow, has been freshly plowed or recently irrigated and thus probably seeded. It can detect the onset of crippling crop disease even before a farmer on the ground

The American-built automobile of the early 1980s probably will be smaller than today's conventional models but otherwise they will be pretty much the same. That's the prediction of James M. Roche, former chairman of the board of General Motors Corp. and still a board member. With GM since he was 21, the 67-year-old native of Elgin, Ill., says, "We will have the piston engine with us for a long time.

In an interview Roche did not discount claims that there are some advantages to the much-publicized rotary engine and said that next year Chevrolet will come out with two rotary engine-powered models.

"We (at GM) are working on the rotary engine," Roche says. "We're spending $50 million in five years on rotary

He notes the comparatively high price of the rotary engine auto (Mazda) but concedes it has some "pleasing performance characteristics.

Other auto makers are known to be working on the rotary The rotary power plant and electric energy for autos came up as Roche discussed the present impasse between

U.S. auto builders and the Environmental Protection Agency's 1975 deadline for "clean air" engines. Roche, like other leaders of the auto industry, insists there is no way that engine technology can be advanced quickly enough to meet EPA exhaust emission control

"We're making substantial progress," he emphasizes "but we don't have the final answers yet." Emission control devices already have made today's engines 80 per cent cleaner than those of uncontrolled

'But we're still looking for those last few percentage points needed to meet EPA standards," he adds. Roche warns that "clean air" engines will be more expensive and will use more fuel to produce the efficiency of incontrolled motors. He suggests a closer look at EPA emission control standards to determine whether they are

Some auto builders have cautioned that the industry EPA impasse could lead to a production moratorium if the agency refuses to extend the 1975 deadline. "Down the raod," Roche says, "we hope to engineer our

But they, too, have a pollution control problem, for it takes fuel to create energy to produce electricity. The great technical snag in development of an efficient electric engine for autos, however, Roche adds, is the lack of a capacity to store electrical energy in

"So far the range of an electric car without a battery recharge is only 50 to 60 miles," he points out, "We built an electric auto that would travel 200 miles at normal speeds and performance without recharging its batteries. But it added 800 pounds of weight to the car, took up all the luggage torage room and the battery cost $22 000 '

SAIGON (AP) — Several hundred Vietnamese civilians invaded the departure camp for American GIs today on the final day of the U.S. troop withdrawal from Vietnam and went on a looting spree while Vietnamese guards stood by.

The civilians broke through the chain fences around Camp Alpha, at Tan Son Nhut Airbase, three hours before the last planeload of GIs was scheduled to leave and cleaned out the mess hall. "They took anything that wasn't tied down," said one U.S. officer.

The last American MPs guarding the camp had just left when the crowd burst in. A Vietnamese MP helped the looters pass tables and chairs through the fence, and other Vietnamese guards stood by while the mob grabbed bread, utensils and cabinets from the kitchen and 1,000seat dining hall.

The few American officers left in the area called out a dozen GIs waiting for planes home, and they drove the mob out. The U.S. Military Command had turned the camp area over to the U.S. Embassy. Its future use has not been announced. The mob in the mess hall was the second crowd of scavengers. Earlier in the day the camp's Vietnamese maids moved in to snatch up the de-

National Airlines Orders Seven Aircraft

MIAMI - National Airlines announced a $148-million order for seven McDonnell Douglas DC-10s, including five domestic and two intercontinental versions of the widebodied aircraft. L. B. Maytag, chairman and president of National, said that four of the 219-passenger planes would be delivered late next year, with the remainder arriving in November, 1975.

Known as the "good neighbor" airplane because it is much cleaner and quieter than previous jets, the DC-10 is equipped with high-bypass engines that eclipse the thrust output of earlier jet engines. The plane can operate from all airports capable of handling the smaller Boeing 727.

National presently operates nine DC-10s. Two long-range local taxes. The date has been arrived at by the Tax Foundation. a private, nonprofit research organization, which has calculated that for the average American, the first 121 calendar days of this year will go to pay taxes. Thus May 2, the Tax Foundation suggests, "will be a national holiday of a sort."

We want to add our suggestion of an appropriate way of observing the day and honoring George Flatwallet. Let everyone, upon arriving at his or her assigned place of work on National Sigh of Relief.

Mr. Flatwallet's heroism can not be appreciated until you understand that he will not have earned any money for his own use during January, February, March, April and the first belong to a bevy of tax colectors. Federal taxes clain 62.77 per cent of his earnings through May 1, state and local taxes the remaining 37.23 per cent.

Thus, as you can well imagine, Mr. Flatwallet will be pretty hungry by May far behind on his rent, and wearing a frayed shirt, unpressed trousers and a gaunt look. In tribute to George, let's make that National Sigh of Relief one that can be heard from coast to coast Many taxpayers may wish to follow that with another sigh, of a different sort, in response to something else ointed out by the Tax oundation: Flatwallet "now works longer to pay for his government than he does to pay for his food, clothing and shelter."

DEAR POLLY-Senior Citizens have less need for LARGE meals so I wish restaurants would offer a "Senfor Citizen Portion" just as they do those for children. Many of this age have economic problems so they could enjoy a meal out more often if they were not paying for more than they consumed. It would also be an aid to diet conscious customers if a low calorie dressing was offered for salads.-MRS E. G.

DEAR POLLY-1 am answering Virginia who wants to know how to clean her rings. My husband is a jeweler and he told me how to make a solution of one-fourth cup ammonia, one-fourth cup white vinegar and one-eighth cup dishwashing detergent. Dip rings in this mixture and clean with a small brush (a clean mascara brush works nicely), rinse with clear water and they really sparkle. -CANDY (POLLY: Be careful while pouring ammonia.)

DEAR POLLY-Virginia wanted to know how to clean her engagement and wedding rings and the owner of a jewelry store where I once worked told me his secret was to use toothpaste for cleaning all types of jewelry from rings to watchbands to bracelets. Use a toothbrush and the paste for a good brushing inside and out, rinse well with warm water and then dry. I have used this method for years and it works great.—BETTY JEAN

DEAR POLLY-Virginia wanted a different way to clean her rings and I have it. I drop mine in a solution made with water and a denture cleaning tablet and they came out perfectly clean and not hurt in the least -IDA

State Asks Capitol Phone Rate Rollback

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert Shevin asked the Florida Supreme Court today to rollback a rate increase on Capitol telephones on grounds the Public Service Commission acted arbitrarily in boosting Centrex rates. Southeastern Telephone Co. of Tallahassee did not ask for an increase in rates for Centrex— the system installed in the Capitol complex of buildings last year to eliminate switchboards-and the commission received no testimony on its cost, Shevin said.

The General Service Department estimated the increase would cost the stat $12,100 a month-$2.75 each on 4,400 Centrex phones.

Gov. Reubin Askew and the Cabinet overrode Shevin's objections last week and, by a 6-1 vote, directed him to petition the Supreme Court for a rollback. Shevin said "it is practically impossible" to win a Supreme Court reversal of a PSC order but promised to prosecute the appeal vigorously
