Fire damages school

CASSELBERRY — An fire this morning before classes started at Sterling Park Elementary School, 501 Eagle Circle South in Casselberry, damaged a portable classroom behind the school, but did not disrupt campus life, officials said.

The fire in the wooden structure was limited to the front door, the door frame and the roof in the vicinity of the door.

Sheriff's office spokesman George Procehel said the fire was reported at approximately 4:20 a.m. this morning Seminole County fire equipment responded to the scene.

At about 6 a.m., sheriff's arson investigators were called in. Investigators found no break-in bad occured and that a flammable liquid apparently had been poured on the door and ignPed, causing approximately $5,000 worth of damage to the structure, officials said.

Flu abates in schools

By VICKI DeSORMIER Herald Staff Writer

The long Thanksgiving holiday weekend may have done more than given students and teachers a respite from the rigors of studying. It may have helped stem the tide of a flu epidemic in the making, school officials said today.

Before the holiday, schools in the district were reporting high rates of absenteeism due to the flu, but those numbers dramatically decreased when classes resumed on Monday.

According to Dick Hofmann, the district's community relations coordinator, some schools were reporting as many as 15 percent of their

Lake Mary events

students were at home with the flu

Verna Jackson, an assistant principal at Seminole High School, 2701 Ridgewood Ave. in Sanford, said attendance was quite low before the holiday.

"But things have rebounded." she said. "It's not nearly as bad as it was last week."

Jackson speculated that students had a chance to rest and cat well over the holiday, but Hofmann had a different theory as to why the attendance figures are rebounding this week.

"I think we just didn't have the kids together in the schools coughing and sneezing on each other," he said.

Jan Rayburn, attendance clerk at Lake Mary

High School, 655 Longwood-Lake Mary Rd. in Lake Mary, said about 100 students per day have been out with the flu the past two days.

"But it's getting better," she said. "Last week we had about 10 percent of the school out with this. It's getting better, I think."

Marie Lewis, FTE clerk at Pine Crest Elementary School, 405 W. 27th St. in Sanford, said that last week started off with 113 of the school's 968 students reporting their absences from school were due to the flu.

Those numbers dropped to 97 by Wednesday of last week and were down to 77 flu-related absences by Monday morning.

"They're getting better," she said.

Longwood says trash plan stinks

By LACY DOMEN Herald People Editor

LONGWOOD — Longwood residents Monday night said they think the city's proposed ordinance reducing household refuse collection to once a week to add a weekly yard waste pickup stinks. Literally.

"Longwood would smell pretty bad in the summer," Pat Clark said. "I don't think we can get by. There would be too much odor and more rats, cats and dogs in the garbage."

Mayor Adrienne Perry explained the city has no choice but to amend the contract for garbage collection now held with IWS.

"The city of Longwood, as here other city, has no other choice. The state says we can no longer mix yard trash and garbage," she said.

The proposal would allow for three pickups at each household each week; one for household refuse, one for recyclable materials and one for yard trash. Currently Longwood household refuse is picked up twice a week. Recyclables are picked up

"It seems that the structure of the building is line and that it is rebuildable." Dick Hotmann, coordinator of community relations for the school district who was at the scene Tuesday morning, said.

The 31 fourth grade students whose class was in the portable building was meeting, instead in the school's art classroom today. A replacement classroom will be in place at the school tomorrow and the damaged facility will be repaired.

According to Hofmann, most of the damage inside the building was limited to the teacher's desk and the items on her desk, including her grade book.

"The desk was only about four fect from the door and the heat was very intense." he said. "If the grade book had been in the desk it might not have been damaged."

There was minor damage to a few of the student desks.

'My Girl' at the top

LOS ANGELES – "My Girl." a movie filmed in the filstoric disrict of Sanford, placed second in the box-office over the five-day Thanksgiving weekend. Earnings reached a strong $17.2 million in its premiere, according to figures released Monday by Exhibitor Relations Co. Inc.

Rise in rates for workers' comp OK'd

Associated Press Writer

TALLAHABSEE - Workers' compensation premiums for Plorida businesses would jump an average 25 percent next year under a rate increase announced by Insurance Commissioner Tom Gallagher. The industry had requested a 39.3 percent increase.

"Without the 39 percent increase, the rates aren't going to be totally adequate, but this is a minior rate increase," and fam filler, a spokesman for the nejor insurance companies in the state, including Liberty Mutual Insurance Co., which does the most workers' compensation business in Florida. Miller said the industry was encouraged by Galiagher's decision and added that a challenge to the increase was unlikely.

But an advocate for Florida's small businesses expressed disappointment.

"The 24.9 percent rate increase announced today certainly comes as disheartening news," Bill Herrie, state director for the National Federation of Independent Business, said in a news release.

Herrie urged lawmakers to make changes in the 1992 legislative session to further reduce premiums, such as adoption of uniform fees for various medical procedures. Under the premium -change. employers who have to turn to a last-resort, high-risk, pool, to, get coverage will see their payments climb an average 37 percent. That compares with an average increase of 21.2 percent for companies that can buy policies on the open market.

Health care company ruled negligent

OCALA — A private health care company has been criticized by a grand jury for negligence at the Marion County Jail in the wake of three suicides at the facility in the last two months. The grand jury report released Monday accused Prison Health Services of Newcastle, Del., of improper procedures and negligence in treating suicidal prisoners at the jail.

Also singled out in the report was Beverly Wolfe, a licensed practical nurse, who was criticized for her handling of one of the suicide victims, according to a story in today's editions of the Ocala Star-Banner.

The grand jury's investigation of the suicides was requested by Sheriff Don Moreland following the suicidal deaths of Pergy Henderson on Sept. 11, Eric Lovelace on Oct. 2 and Joern Schuett on Oct. 28.

The grand jury findings said there were no criminal violations, "but have found reason for concern in the quality of health services received by inmates at the Marion County Jail from the employees of Prison Health Services who are paid with public funds to provide those services."

Part fell off shuttle after landing

HOUSTON - A part the size of a film canister that fell off space shuttle Atlantis just after landing is being redesigned because the same thing happened after other missions, NASA says.

The part - about 2 inches long and 1 inch wide - was an electrical connector that helps detonate explosive bolts so the shuttle's giant external fuel tank separates after launch. said Atlantis vehicle manager Bob Hill. It came loose and fell to the ground when the doors to the tank were opened for inspection after landing Sunday at Edwards Air Force Base in

"It was no hazard" during flight, but the part is being redesigned, Hill said Monday.

Meanwhile, the six crewmen said they accomplished a lot even though a broken navigation unit forced NASA to cut three days off the 10-day mission.

The primary objective was achieved the first day: putting into orbit a $300 million millitary satellite for spotting missile attacks and nuclear blasts.

The crew also used highpower cameras, binoculars and a telescope to observe U.S. military sites in a test of whether astronauts can be of use in wartime.

Gallagher said his office tried to find ways to reduce the rate increase, which follows a 25 percent cut to premiums ordered by state lawmakers' last year after they reduced benefits to injured workers.

Before the rollback, premiums rose 36.7 percent in 1969 and 28.8 percent in 1988.

"Unfortunately, the workers' compensation system is burdened by heavy losses - and companies are paying out $1.35 for every $1 they are taking in," Gallagher said in a news release.

The premium increase request was filed by the National Council on Compensation Insurance, which represents about 300 companies licensed to sell workers' compensation policies in Florida.

MIDWAY — Seminole County may face a legal challege from a man with a condemned home and store on Water Street.

"If they want to tear it down, I'll let 'em tear it down," said Emanuel Hillery, the Midway owner of the structure at 2440 Water St. "Then I'll take 'em to court. I have an attorney looking at it right now."

Seminole County commission-ers condemned the structure last week and required Hillery to either repair it or tear it down before Dec. 10 or the county would tear it down. Commissioners first took action against the structure in 1989, declaring it uninhabitable, but Hillery told them' he' would repair the condemnation procedings. County inspectors found the foundation piers, walls, roof, floor and windows were damaged beyond repair due to neglect. Inspectors also found the electrical, plumbing and sewage systems unrepairable. On Sept. 24, Sheriff Don Esiinger declared the same structure as a crack house, making it eligible for state prison labor to demolish it. The same program was used to demolish a crack house on Sipes Avenue Tuesday. Eslinger wrote that investigators found crack cocaine pipes and other signs that it was used for the consumption of cocaine. Hillery said he tried to have the home-store structure repaired but county officials told him the property was not zoned; for such uses. He said he thentried to have the property con-verted to a duplex, but was told it was not zoned property. Hillery said when he inquired about accking a rezoning, he was told he would probably be unsuccessful because the county had rejected other duplex requests in the area. He said he was unwilling to convert it to a single-family structure because it had been a multi-family structure since 1944. "It's my building." Hillery said. "How can they tell me how to fix it as long as I bring it up to code?"

Good labels

A visit to the supermarket is a journey into a world where every product shouts its virtue.

"Low-fat." the ice cream proclaims, as if cating a quart would melt inches off your waist.

"Prevents cancer," the oatbran doughnuts announce, wearing the guise of a health food. For even well-informed consumers intent on purchasing foods for a balanced diet, the trip inevitably ends in confusion and frustration.

That will soon change, when the new food labeling rules proposed by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and Agriculture Department begin to cut through the babble. When they are fully implemented in 1993, consumers who wish to choose healthy and nutritious food will at last be ble to do so without being intentionally mialed by halftruths and meaningless claims.

The proposed rules, mandated last year by Congress, will limit and define the use of descriptive labels and standardize serving sizes at levels that reflect the way people really eat. The result will be labels that offer relevant information and can easily be compared.

"Low-fat" will mean the same thing on breakfast cereal as it means on frozen fruit pops: that the product contains less than 3 grams of fat per serving.

No longer will shoppers in search of heart-healthy products be beguiled with "low cholesterol" labels on products loaded with saturated fats, another dietary contributor to heart disease. Foods labeled low cholesterol will have to contain less than 2 milligrams of cholesterol per serving and have less than 2 grams of saturated fats.

And no longer will a food processor be able o tout its cheesecake as "low calorie" by pretending that a serving size is one ounce when consumers typically eat four. The rules will not instantly make nutrition casy: Consumers will have to invest some time in learning what "lean," "low fat" and "light" mean and what foods make up a balanced, healthy diet. But diligent shoppers willing to read the labels will have the information they need to make intelligent comparisons and the confidence that health claims in the supermarket actually have some meaning. That is an important step toward better diets and a healthier nation.

WILLIAM A. RUSHER Chicken Littles foresaw new ice age

As everyone knows, the great danger confron-ting the human race these days is "global warming" — the slow but deadly increase in the world's average temperature caused by mankind's heedless discharge of huge quantities of carbon dioxide into the atmosphere, producing a "greenhouse effect."

Unless we mend our ways, many scientists warn, the rise in temperature will continue, and sometime in the next century (authorities differ on exactly when) the polar ice caps will begin to meit, raising mean sea ievel and flooding the world's sesports and coastal plains. Today's temperate zones will become habitable only with the expenditure of huge quantities of energy on air-conditioning. What's more, the warming is already under way: The decade of the 1980s witnessed several years that were, over much of the earth, among the hotiest on record.

Anyone who responds to this dire scenario by arguing that the whole thing is simply a scare-story manufactured by the media to pander to the free-floating anxiety of the human race is sure to be dismissed as a reactionary old curmudgeon unwilling to face the unpalatable truth.

So, in the perhaps futile hope of slowing our rush toward stark panic on the subject of "global

In February 1973, in an article in Science Digest estilled "Brace Yourself for Another Ice Age." Doughs Colligan linked pollution to a far ofder and even granter danger: "At this point, the world's climatologists are spread as only two things: That we do not have the conditional the next ice age, and that how Scientists once thought the onset of an ice age would be very gradual, with glacters slowly pushing down from the North, but recent studies ... indicate the transition can be rather sudden – a meticate the transition can be rather sudden – a matter of centuries - with ice packs building up relatively quickly from local snowfall that ceases to melt from winter to winter."

JACK ANDERSON Some EPA 'experts' are not qualified

WASHINGTON - Some of the people the Environmental Protection Agency has hired to check the safety of pesticides are not qualified, according to one EPA scientist who is in a position to know. He's one of them. Dwight Welch boldily proclaims, "I don't know what the hell I'm doing." But no one seems to be listening.

Weich didn't come by the job in the usual way. He took the whistleblower's route. For years he was the EPA's top expert on bug bombs, the indoor aerosol foggers that kill fleas and other peets. In 1989 we reported on Weich's struggle to get the EPA to label bug bombs as flammable. He investigated cases in which the foggers caught fire when they were exposed to a flame - something as simple as a pilot light. Weich figured a But no one warning label would solve the problem. seems to be listening. But he made a pest of himself trying to get that accomplished and he was trans ferred to a new job. Now Welch works in the EPA's Office of Pesticide Programs. He is supposed to decide if pesticide labels have enough precautions on them. And to do that, Welch must check the work of the chemists who made the pesticide and determine how toxic the ingredients are to humans and animals. Appropriately, this field of work is called toxicology and the people who do it are called toxicologists. But Welch is an entomologist, a bug biologist. He can tell you if a pesticide will kill bugs, but he can't tell you if it will kill humans or animals. The federal personnel system sets out minimum requirements for EPA toxicologists, including 30 hours of college chemistry and 12 hours of college toxicology. The requirements specifically state that on-the-job training is no substitute for the college courses. But Welch hasn't had those courses, and neither have most of the people who work with him and are called toxicologists. Ironically, the chemical industry scientists who submit the toxicology data to the EPA are required to meet the same education standards, and they do. So they are better qualified than most of the people checking their work. The EPA has avoided the issue by calling Weich and his coworkers "biologists." But the toxicologists we spoke to were in agreement that the office is doing toxicology. What's the harm if a label on a pesticide isn't up to anuff, especially if the pesticide has already been determined by the EPA safe for use? The Harts Blockade case of 1986 answers that question. The flea spray was approved for use, but the label wasn't specific enough to tell the users how much was too much. Hundreds of pets were killed or injured by excessive amounts of Hartz Blockade sprayed on them by unwitting owners. The EPA solved the problem by requiring that Harts beef up its label to warn about overuse. Now Weich is one of the people who is supposed to make sure the labels are adequate to begin with, and he says he isn't trained to do it. "It was pets then. Next time it could be humans," he told our reporter Nick Budnick. Weich doesn't expect his bosses to take his word for it. He obtained affidavits from two EPA toxicologists in other departments. They looked at his qualifications, and at the requirements of the job. One said it was "ludicrous" to have Welch doing what he was doing. The other said "his lack of qualifications makes it probable that the U.S. public might suffer grievous harm from an improperly though honestly performed evaluation by Mr. Welch.

Lend a hand to minorities

Home ownership, the essence of the American dream, ought to be available to everyone who qualifies, regardless of race. That's the law. But at Bank of America, it apparently helps to be white.

The bank's recently released statistics show that white applicants received 76 percent of 66,214 home loans in California last year, even though the state's white population is less than 60 percent. Of loan applications from Blacks and Hispanics. 39 percent were rejected. Only 14 percent of the white applicants were rejected.

Bank of America's lending history is cause for concern. The huge bank plans to merge with Security Pacific, another large bank.

That's why these banking giants need to examine their lending practices carefully. It's all too casy for banks, with weak ties to local communities, to lapse into the bad old patterns of the past. Redlining - the practice of denying loans in certain neighborhoods hurts minority loan applicants. So do credit requirements that subtly and often unreasonably deny home ownership opportunities to minority workers.

HODDING CARTER Foreign policy is on auto-pilot

For most of its history, the United States was proudly isolationist. World War II and its aftermath changed that, though not without effort. After extensive public debate, the nation made a series of hard political decisions that formalized America's commitment to international interventionism. Almost a a half-century later, it's time for another wrenching redefinition of our appropriate role in the world. The presidential campaign of 1992 provides the perfect opportunity.

The differences between then and now are obvious. In 1945-1950, the United States was the world's sole economic superpower. Militarily, the only challenge came from the Soviet Union, which actively practiced ideological and territorial imperialism. Containment was the dominant American foreign policy objective. Rebuilding a shattered world economy was a pressing priority. As our own economy surged into record growth, it seemed possible for America to do everything simultaneously.

In the 1990s, all is changed. The Soviet Union is an economic and political corpse. The Soviet empire exists no more. Our vanquished enemics, Japan and Germany, are the economic success stories of the past two decades. The U.S. economy sputters and stalls. It is no longer possible to avoid confronting unmet domestic needs.

But the organizational forms and governmental focus spawned by the long Cold War and equally long American economic leadership are virtually intact. We know where we have been and what we have accomplished. but there is no consensus about where we should be going and what needs to be done to retool the nation for the new challenges.

The result is piecemeal policy and ad hoc adjustment. Little has really changed. Illustratively, virtually every federal department has carved out a piece of the foreign policy-national security action. The State Department, Central Intelligence Agency, Defense Department, United States Information Agency, Labor Department. Agriculture Department, Commerce Department, Special Trade Representative, National Security Council staff, Justice Department and its various semi-autonomous offshoots such as the FBI, and about a half-dozen other federal entities all play the "great game" abroad. Overlapping jurisdictions and redundant budgets are permitted. if not encouraged.

It is a remarkably inefficient, costly way to do business, but it was once justified in the name of national security and underwritten by a steadily rising economy. We cannot alford it today and shouldn't even if we could. It is a structure that grew like Topsy and should be torn down, redesigned and built anew.

That this isn't happening is the structural consequences of intellectual and political bankruptcy. There is no conceptual framework, no redefined priorities, so what we have is bureaucratic squabbling over a shrinking budgetary pie. The defense budget is cut: the CIA's secret funding is, presumably. reduced; the foreign service is once again slashed - all this happens, but without overall design. Future function is determined by past form. rather than vice-versa.

Some argue that change has come so rapidly that it asks too much of government to do more than cope will each new turn of events. When the old design is unravelling. it's hard to stitch together a new one. But difficulty of accomplishment is no argument against the effort.

Fortunately, at least some of the candidates who have already surfaced seem intent on forc ing a national debate about our role in the world. Is economic nationalism the answer? Right, says Patrick Buchanan, former White House staffer and apostle of the New Right, who is apparently serious about challenging President Bush for the GOP's nomination. Right, says Tom Harkin, liberal Democratic senator from lowa and would-be president as well. In one way or another, both are echoing the old George McGovern theme of 1972: "Come home. America."

fit's time for

wrenching

redefinition of

appropriate

In the absence of a compelling alternative, it will be an attractive prescription. Today's Internationalists, in whose number President Bush is presumably included, will have to formulate a comprehensive vision to replace the old one. Are we to play the world's policeman in a time of multiple brush fires, or will we try to build a multinational police force. Are we going to use the "peace dividend," if such exists, to rebuild America's infrastructure, or reaffirm our commitment to the economic and political needs of newly freed peoples around the world? If it is not either/or, but both, how do we make choices in a time of limited resources? What is the philosophical underpinning for internationalism now that containment has won the day?

Those are among the questions that should be debated and answered in the coming campaign. If they are, we could have the most meaningful election since 1968, which signaled the end of the long Democratic reign.

The EPA's position is that Welch can get all the training he needs by learning on the job.

Although Lovestrand's motion for a workshop to consider the proposal died for a lack of a second, other commissioners agreed to listen to additional information Lovestrand said he would gather.

"I want to know if this will benefit my city or if I'll have to wait 10 minutes holding a criminal at bay with my new gun," Commissioner Fred Pearl said. I'd like to see this come back so I can act intelligently. Let's not let this die. We need more information.'

Manning said he and his 32-men are not necessarily opposed to the concept, but that he thinks the residents should decide the level of service they want from a police department. "The citizens need to hear all sides and decide this issue, not the commission. Residents need to hear what they get and what they lose," Manning said. Manning said should residents decide to opt for county protec-tion, the sheriff's department would probably contract to pick up former Longwood officers.

But Manning was disgruntled that Lovestrand chose not to discuss the matter with him or other officers whom he feared would panic thinking they will be out of jobs soon.

"I think of my employees. The way he went about this is wrong. The employees deserve more respect and they deserved to know more about this before Commissioner Lovestrand made his proposal. When you acrew with the employees I get hot. And you can underline screw." Manning said.

Lovestrand said he walked neighborhoods in his district. knocking on doors, and talking to residents about their concerns.

"I found massive dissetisfac tion with taxes and local government," Lovestrand said.

Citing figures he had gathered from the city, Lovestrand said Longwood's population had in-creased only 23.3 percent over the past 10 years but the general fund budget grew by 355 per-cent, the a-t valorem taxes grew by 472 percent and the cost of government per person grew from $146 to $540, 299 percent. over the same period.

"We can't keep going to the till and raising taxes," Lovestrand naid.

Lovestrand said consolidating police services is effective in small areas. He said he had information from five cities in Broward county that had effectively switched police service from the city to the county. The county could provide a level of police protection to Longwood similar to protection in unin-corporated areas. Cost would remain virtually the same with savings generated from aban-doning the city department. Lovestrand estimated the city spends about $47,000 per year for each of the 33 Longwood officers.

"We can save between stallon notilim 18 bns 000,008 per year by consoldiation of police services." he said. "That's a saving of $50 to $100 a year with a one to two mil reduction to each taxpayer.

But Longwood Police Chief Greg Manning was doubtful the city would save that much money. He said if Lovestrand had discussed the proposal with him prior to the commission meeting, he could have provided him with additional information.

"We could have provided him with a lot of assistance pro and con, but Mr. Lovestrand has failed to call me. The savings are not going to be what he presumes they will be. We have cut coats over the years and I could have told him that," Manning is made. said.

Manning said he turned city dispatch service over to the sheriff's department years ago and he has kept administrative cost to the city low, saving Longwood about $250,000 a year.

weekly yard waste pickup, but a large family needs two garbage pickups a week. A large family has to pay extra." Marvin Metzger said.

"You're taking away one garbage pickup and making it a yard trash pickup. We need the garbage picked up twice a week. We can't stand to have any more smells in the city of Longwood." Ed Myers said.

Commissioners agreed to consider a proposal for residents to purchase tags from the city or from IWS that can be affixed to trash bags, paying for yard trash pickup on an as-needed basis. City Administrator Don Terry will discuss the proposal with IWS officials before any decision

"We would prefer to keep service just as it is today. The new ordinance means we will pick up the same amount of garbage for the same price. But it is possible to continue two pickups a week and bag and tag trash." Terry said.

Only Anderson remains hostage

BY ED BLANCHE Associated Press Writer

DAMASCUS. Syrta - American Alann Steen was freed in Lebanon today by Shifte Muslim kidnappers after nearly five years in captivity, it was the second hostage release in two days.

After being freed in Beirut, the 52-year-old teacher was escorted to the Syrian capital. where he was turned over to U.S. diplomats.

Steen was escorted across the mountainous border by Syrian army officers. Syria is the traditional first stop for hostages freed in Lebanon.

Steen's release leaves just one American. Associated Press correspondent Terry Anderson, still captive in Lebanon. The Beirut office of Iran's official news agency said Anderson, who was seized in March 1985 and is the longest-held U.S. hostage, could be freed by the end of the week.

Hostages freed earlier said Steen was seriously ill in the spring of 1987. He escaped in his first year of captivity, but was recaptured in a Beirut street and reportedly was severely beaten by his captors.

Steen is the eighth Western hostage released since August, when the United Nations began intensive negotiations to arrange a swap of Western hostages for hundreds of Arab prisoners held by Israel and its proxy militia in Lebanon. For its part, Israel seeks an accounting of four missing servicemen in Lebanon.

Uri Lubrani, Israel's chief hostage negotiator, today was quoted as saying progress was being made. He told the daily Haaretz that Israel expects to receive information 'in the very near future" on Ron Arad, an air force navigator shot down over Lebanon In 1986. He is the one missing soldier Israel believes is almost certainly alive.

And the Israeli daily Maariv quoted Lubrant as saying: "I have reason to believe that something is coming together, that we are at the height of the last stage in the solution of the hostage crisis and the Israeli POWs."

On Sunday, Israel released 25 Arab prisoners, bringing to 91 the total number set free since August and giving new impetus to hostage releases.

Steen's captors announced Monday they would free him within 48 hours. They freed him about nine hours later.

The pro-Iranian organization of Islamic Jihad for Liberation of Palestine said Steen. who was kidnapped Jan. 24, 1987, was being released under a U.N.-brokered agreement.

On Monday, American Joseph Cicippio of Norristown, Pa., 61, was freed in Beirut. turned over to the American ambassador in Damascus and flown to a U.S. military hospital in Germany for tests and debriefing.

U.S. officials said Cicippio was examined and found to be in good shape despite his gaunt appearance.

Besides Anderson, two Germans, Thomas Kemptner and Heinrich Struebig, are still held. An Italian, Alberto Molinari, is missing, but reports say he is dead.

what your weak spots are and where they can help you the most. During this phase you are required to take two to four supplements a day.

The third stage is your stabilazation period. This lasts eight weeks, adding certain food groups back into your program so that you can prepare for your maintanance. During this time you are still required to take your two to four supplements a day and make your 3 visits per week.

After all this comes your one year maintenance. After you get to this point, you are basically eating all the foods you used to eat, the right way! You are no longer required to take supplements and you visit the clinic as often as you wish. Ideally, by the time you reach this period you have learned all the things that will keep you at your desired weight.

While you are working on reaching your ideal weight, you can also work on that perfect tan. Right Choice offers tanning programs to their clients and to the public.

Right Choice is open Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 9:00 AM to 6:00 PM, Tuesday and Thursday, 9:00 AM to 1:00 PM and Saturday's by appointment. For more information about how you can start your new year now, call 321-6800.

SANFORD - For the second straight year the Sanford-Seminole Jaycees will sponsor a basketball player of the week for the men's and women's teams at Seminole Community College and the boys and girls teams from Seminole High School.

At the conclusion of the season each weekly winner will be awarded a certificate of achievement at an awards banquet hosted by the Jaycees.

Also presented at the awards banquet will be a student-athlete of the year plaque or trophy for each team.

Last year club President Brent Adamson, Vice President David Russi (also basketball committee chairman) and secretary/treasurer Mat Altemose held a pizza party for the winners at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce.

After the banquet the Jaycees treated the winners to a professional basketball game between the Orlando Magic and the Portland Trailblazers.

The first four weekly winners from the SCC men's team have been announced. The winners are Brian Nason, Deon Gavin, Darnell Robinson and Troy Bruening.

SCC teams see action tonight

By DEAN SMITH Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD - The Seminole Community College men's and women's basketball teams will get back into action tonight with games against Manatee Community College.

The men (6-3)will look to stretch their winning streak to three games when they travel to Bradenton for a rematch with the Lancers. Last Wednesday night the Raiders held on for a 72-69 triumph behind the three-point shooting of Brian Nason and Troy Bruening and good from free throw shooting.

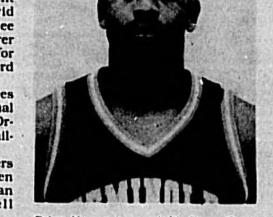

The men also received a big game from sophomore center Bill Freeman who scored a career high 13 points and grabbed four rebounds.

Freeman's performance at center will be a big key if the Raiders are to continue their winning ways. With Deon Gavin out with an injury and Robert Moore still suspended with grade problems. Freeman and Darnell Robinson have become the lone rangers of the inside.

Also having a big impact on the play of SCC has been the performance of Lake Mary's

DEAR ABBY: You recently published several letters on the Kent State killings that reflected your readers' prejudices, not the facts as determined by the of-ficial investigative bodies, par-ticularly the President's Commission on Campus Unrest. Some of the myths your reders cling to cannot be adequately addressed in a short column, but I would, at least, like to set the record straight on a few points: 1. The anti-Vietnam War raily that the National Guard broke up at Kent State was peaceful until the Guard made what the President's Commission called a "highly questionable" decision to dispense the crowd. The President's Commission concluded: "There was no apparent impending violence. Only when the Guard attempted to disperse the rally did some students react violently." 2. Though the Guardamen were subsequently subjected to some abuse, including some rock throwing, the notion that the Guardsmen had to fire because their lives were endangered by an uncontrollable mob was also disputed by every official investigation. The Justice Department concluded the shootings were "neither necessary nor proper." Similarly, the President's Commission concluded the killings were "unnecessary, unwarranted and inexcusable."

3. The students who were dents who were responsible for the burning of the university's took place at Kent State. Army ROTC building or any other act of violence which occurred in the city of Kent the weekend before May 4, 1970.

4. On May 4, two of the four students who were killed had participated in the demonstration and may have at some point thrown rocks at the soldiers. The other two (an ROTC student explaining that it is from "a and a coed carrying books to class) were strictly bystanders. The Justice Department concluded that because all four fatalities were located more than 300 feet from the firing soldiers. none were "in a position to pose even a remote danger to the National Guard at the time of the firing."

> DEAR ABBY: Could you please give me some advice on how to make restitution of a large sum of money and still remain anonymous?

I can't send a personal check or walk into my local 7-Eleven store with $4,000 and ask for a money order. And I certainly don't want to send cash anony-a cover letter to the president repentant client who wishes to remain anonymous."

DEAR ABBY: My wife's first cousin died several years ago. but my wife continues to invite this cousin's husband and his two single adult children to our home every Thankagiving and Passover. We don't hear from these people throughout the year — not even a telephone call, yet they continue to accept our invitations. Moreover, they leave immediately after dinner. (Last Thanksgiving, after accepting our invitation, the young man didn't show up and didn't cancel.

Although we enjoy their company during the brief time they are with us, I think we should rid ourselves of this "obligation" that is taken for granted and never reciprocated. I would prefer inviting other friends and family members who would appreciate spending the holidays with us.

My wife and I have had a difference of opinion abut this for years. Should we continue to invite these people? If we decide not to, I think we should give them plenty of notice so they

you tell me about Huntington's

READER: Huntington's disease is an inherited neurological disorder in which patients exhibit progressive intellectual deterioration and uncontrolled random movements of the extremities. These movements often include a lilting gait and flicking motions of the arms and legs.

The psychiatric manifestations may precede the movement disorder. Initially, patients may seem merely apathetic and irritable; however, this progresses to full-blown emotional disturbances, such as severe mood disorders and loss of contact with reality. In time, patients become incapable of taking care of themselves; they are unable to walk, have difficulty swallowing and become severely demented. Because there is no cure for Huntington's disease, genetic counseling is extremely important: The children of an affected parent are at 50 percent risk of inheriting HD. Symptoms of the disease' generally appear be-tween ages 30 and 50, but have appeared as early as 2 and as late as 70. As a result of new medical research, however, certain patients with Huntington's discase can be identified at an early age through genetic test-

DEAR DR. GOTT: I would like information on cellulitis. How is this acquired and, most of all, how can it be prevented?

DEAR READER: Cellulitis is a diffuse, spreading infection of the skin and underlying structures: the inflammation sometimes affects tissues in deeper areas. The most common cause of cellulitis is streprococcus, a ubiquitous class of bacteria associated with many human infections, such as strep such as animal bites: more often. no clear path of entry can be identified. The bacteria probably work their way into the skin entrenched, they grow pro-lifically and apread by using an enzyme to break down the body's usual defenses. (C)1991 NEWSPAPER EN-

He won trick one with was my man, nickname and all. sitting in the middle. Once you have learned something, it often crops up again almost immediately. The same is true with bridge hands. You spot a cardplay theme in one hand, and another hand requiring the same technique soon turns up.

East's weak two-bid is hardly classical. In fact, the hand has such good playing strength in two suits that I think the bid is inadvisable.

After South overcalled, North invited a game, while promising a heart stopper, and South was happy to jump to four spades.

South was Jeff Rubens, codummy's heart ace and led a spade to the ace, getting the expected news. His only chance was to discard a red-suit loser on the fourth round of clubs. Also West would have to hold four clubs; otherwise he would obtain a fatal ruff with the spade seven. Rubens cashed the A-Q of clubs. led a club and finessed dummy's 10. When that won, Rubens discarded his heart loser on the club king. The defense could win only one diamond and two spade tricks.

Do you remember when last you saw this technique? It was in this column 15 days ago.

By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY Dec. 4, 1991

Do not be satisfied with the status quo in the year ahead. You're in a cycle where it's time to elevate your sights socially, financially and on the job.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If there is something you need to get your head together for, don't request advice from others. Go off in solitude until you get it sorted out yourself. Sagittarius, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for Sagittarius' Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph. c/o this newspaper. P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan.

19) Because you'll treat others in a warm, friendly fashion today. you'll be repaid in the same way. A smile and a kind word generates a similar response. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

Don't sell yourself short in competitive developments today: the odds will be tilted slightly in your favor. Capitalize on your edge.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Believe in yourself today and those you'll be involved with will follow suit. Your formula for success is focused on, "Yes, I can.'

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A business matter you're involved in could take an unexpected turn for the better today. However, to get things moving, it'll require some nudging on your behalf.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In situations of mutual domestic interest, discuss things in detail with your mate before taking action today. This will assure smooth results.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're not apt to have too much time to play around today; your serious involvements could be rather demanding. Being productive will give you the greatest gratification.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

Try not to take yourself or things you're involved in too scriously today. Becoming tense will stifle your effectiveness.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may be able to profit from something today that is obvious to you but overlooked by others. Don't let their indifference influence your response.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be tolerant of a co-worker today who might not grasp things as quickly as you do. Putting this individual down won't enhance productivity; it could smother it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You have a knack today for dealing with money or things of value. If you follow your instincts, you'll have good chances for acquisition or profit.

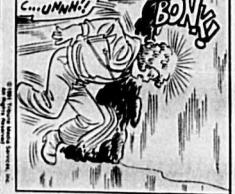

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Concentrating on endeavors that are of importance to you today doesn't mean you're selfish. This is one of those times when it's necessary to think of yourself first.
