

PLACE SOUL ABOVE DOL- LAR--BANKER

IS ADVICE OF WILLIAMS BE- FORE NATIONAL CON- VENTION

National bankers gathered at Kansas City at the annual convention of the American Bankers' Association were told by John Skelton Williams, comptroller of the currency that they could fulfill their duty to the world in the great financial reconstruction following the European war only if they "put the soul of the people in the use and application of the dollars."

"We have outgrown responsibility to our county and generation," said Mr. Williams. "We have become responsible to the whole world because we have become the supreme world power, especially in finance. It is for you, gentlemen to determine whether these dollars of ours shall prey upon our country and the world with teeth and claws, or shall have souls put into them to rebuild."

The comptroller spoke before the National Bank section of the Association. He reviewed the progress of the banking under the Federal Reserve law, sketched the commanding position the United States has taken in world finance, declared that for the first time America had become distinctly a creditor nation, urged the bankers to take a more active interest in politics and warned them against the danger of too great concentration of wealth at the expense of small enterprises.

"Is it not hard to grasp the thought that this country of ours which in 1902 had already reached a pinnacle among the nations, has since that year doubled the volume of its business in virtually all the great cities of the land?" he asked. "If we should divide the new wealth created annually among all the men, women and children engaged at work, they would have not far from a thousand dollars per year each."

"Our bank deposits at this time are so huge that if there should be withdrawn an amount of deposits equal to the total present resources of the Bank of England, the Bank of France, the Bank of Spain, the Bank of the Netherlands, the Bank of Norway, the Bank of Sweden, the National Bank of Switzerland, and the Imperial Bank of Japan, all combined, the deposits of our banks would still be as great as they were three years ago."

"If a balance would be struck today, the probabilities are that we would find ourselves, for the first time in our history, a distinctly creditor nation. We hold a mortgage on the world's physical assets. The world holds a mortgage on our soul, on our goodwill and broad nobility of purpose."

"Patriotic Americans have a right to gloat over such a showing with swelling pride. Thoughtful Americans will find for fear that wealth may betray us into rapacity and inequality of distribution that will mean destruction."

"The law of gravitation as we know applies in finance as in the physical world. Huge accumulations of value naturally draw to themselves the lesser masses." He then urged the bankers not to forget that "the most immediate and vital business duties which lie before us relate to the upbuilding of our home enterprises, especially the small factories and mills and development undertakings in the lesser cities and towns in our country districts."

"These provide the safest and surest foundation on which to erect national wealth," he declared. The comptroller paid tribute to Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo. In summing up the results achieved under the Federal Reserve system, Mr. Williams said rates for money had been lowered and equalized, business of all kinds placed on a stronger foundation and bank failures greatly reduced.

"It is certain that just before us, a few months or two or three years," he said in conclusion, "a mighty task is to be done to organize and re-establish the nations of the earth. We have the right to do it to our own profit. But it is our duty and our opportunity to let the word

'fair' go hand in hand with the word 'profit.' Let us have the great American soul go in company with the great American dollar."

Comfort Cottage Opens
Comfort Cottage will open for the winter season next Monday morning, the opening of this popular place being made one month earlier on account of the many former patrons who were anxious to get those same elegant accommodations. Many reservations have been made for the winter months and Comfort Cottage will be crowded from the first floor to the roof all season. The entire building has been screened and other wise improved and the guests can be assured that the name still holds good. Remember the date of opening, October 2nd, next week.

Rollins College Opens
Before an audience which taxed the capacity of Knowles Hall to the limit, Rollins College yesterday morning formally opened her thirty-third consecutive year's work, under the most favorable auspices in the history of the institution.

The event was particularly interesting and inspiring because of the fact that it marked the re-entry of Dr. George Morgan Ward into the active work of Florida's oldest institution of higher learning, as its acting president. Dr. Ward, for a number of years during the most critical years in the history of the institution, following the "big freeze," occupied the presidency of Rollins with the greatest possible credit to himself and the institution, which he safely piloted.

CLEAN UP IS THE SLOGAN FOR SANFORD

OCTOBER 9TH TO 14TH WILL BE GENERAL CAMPAIGN HERE

Over three years ago, in the first year of its organization, the Woman's Club inaugurated the semi-annual clean up campaign which has become a factor in the civic life of Sanford, not only securing the cooperation of the administration and city forces but enlisting the interest of townpeople so thoroughly that Sanford now ranks among the cleanest and prettiest of Florida towns.

Under the supervision of Mrs. W. W. Abernathy, the first chairman of the clean up campaign the work of that first year under the direction of the Woman's Club was so systematic and thorough that a request came from the mayor and aldermen that the good work be continued and it has continued twice a year with splendid results, for Mrs. Abernathy set a standard that succeeding chairmen have maintained. The town was divided into districts and a chairman appointed for each, owners and agents of business houses, factories, railroad properties and private residences were enlisted, and incidentally men were seen to be cleaning up their yards and gardens who had never been known to handle a rake before. The campaign extended even to the porches, in an effort to abolish unsightly tin cans, old pots, etc., that served for flower pots and everywhere was urged the painting of pots and pans, the planting of seed and a consistent effort to beautify. The street committees of council and the working forces responded to the requests from the Woman's Club committees, banners announcing campaign week fluttered from dozens of automobiles and wagons, and children with rakes, hoes, shovels, etc., rode through the streets attracting attention to the campaign. Days were set apart for parks, parkways, streets and home grounds and the good work has continued twice a year since that first clean up week. November has heretofore been the month when we have observed our fall campaign, but with its usual spirit of cooperation the Woman's Club will comply with the request of the Federation State Chairman of Civics, Mrs. Hondley and proclaim Oct. 9-14 to be the official time for the campaign in Sanford. Under the general supervision of Mrs. W. E. Watson, chairman of the Welfare department, with an able corps of assistants the clean up campaign will be pushed with its usual enterprise.

FINED EDITOR EXECUTIVE FOR CONTEMPT CATT'S CASE COMMITTEE WILL MEET

PENSACOLA EDITORS OP- FENDED THE SUPREME COURT

Tallahassee, Fla., Sept. 28.—The supreme court, which late yesterday afternoon found Percy Hayes and Bryan Mack guilty of contempt of court for articles printed in the Pensacola News in reference to the Knott-Catts recant matter, dismissed them this morning on payment of the costs, amounting to about $13.

The decision was announced to Mack in person, the court stating that they had no personal hostility toward the accused, but that the press had been so strong in criticism of the courts in this matter they felt it their duty to let it be known that there is such a thing as contempt. Hayes returned to Pensacola last night and Mack goes back this afternoon.

The men were found guilty of contempt at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Mr. Mack made the following explanation of the matter printed:

"In explaining my report as published in the Pensacola News regarding the court hearing, I want to say that when the report was written it was not my intention to offend the court or to discredit it before the people of Florida.

"As a newspaper correspondent it was my duty to report the court hearings. At the time the report was written I was attempting to give the readers of the newspaper which I was representing the same idea of the case they would have gained had they been present.

"During all my newspaper work I have always tried to tell the truth and every statement in the article I thought at the time to be the truth. It has been my impression that readers of newspapers are just as much entitled to the facts brought out in a court hearing as if they actually attended the trial.

"I am a great believer in the courts. The contentment of our whole people depend upon them and where confidence is destroyed in the minds of the people a deplorable state of affairs has been reached. I have never sought to have the public believe the courts could do wrong but I never had an idea it would be considered contempt of court to tell the truth and I was only trying to tell the truth when I prepared the article for the Pensacola News."

Catts 12 Ahead

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 27.—Should Sidney J. Catts receive the credit for the 69 votes said to have been cast for him in the La Crosse precinct of Alachua county, June 6, and which were not counted because the inspectors failed to sign the returns, he will be 12 votes in the lead unless further gains in recounts asked for and granted W. V. Knott in the counties of Seminole, Hillsborough and Franklin and a part of Alachua are made. Knott people are working on the theory that he will get the La Crosse vote.

In the Alachua county precincts the inspectors of thirteen of the twenty-six precincts answered to the writ ordering recounts and tomorrow it is expected that arguments will be heard. In the thirteen precincts that are recounted a gain of 21 votes was recorded for W. V. Knott.

In Marion county Knott made a net gain of 86 votes over Catts, the former gaining 28 on the recount and the latter losing seven.

In Dade county Catts made a net gain of 21 votes today and yesterday in recounts of thirteen precincts. The Knott mandamus proceedings called for recounts in fifteen precincts but the officials of the other two precincts are out of the state and recounts will not be made in these.

Important to Club Women
The first business meeting of the season will be held at the Woman's Club at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 4th. All members of club are urged to attend. The new president, Mrs. Ernest Galloway will preside.

STATE COMMITTEE WILL GET BUSY IN CAM- PAIGN

Call was issued Wednesday by Chairman George P. Raney for another meeting of the state Democratic executive committee, to be held in Jacksonville October 7. Following the meeting of the executive committee the campaign committee is to meet, and make plans for concerted action in behalf of all Democratic nominees. In a statement today Mr. Raney speaks of the effort being made by the Republican party to take advantage of the factional fight in the Democratic party and of the avowed intention of Mr. Catts to run for governor without the Democratic nomination if W. V. Knott goes on the ballot as the Democratic nominee.

The call sent out to the committeemen follows:

"Tampa, Fla., Sept. 27, 1916.
"Notice of call for meeting of State Democratic Executive Committee of Florida:

"A meeting of the state Democratic executive committee of Florida is hereby called to be held at Jacksonville, Fla., Seminole Hotel, Saturday, Oct. 7th, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon for the purpose of adopting such measures as may be proper and necessary to aid in the election of all nominees of the Democratic party.

"A meeting of the campaign committee will be held at the same place immediately on adjournment of the state committee.

"Very truly yours,
George P. Raney.

"Chairman State Democratic Committee of Florida."

Mr. Raney's statement follows: "It is undoubtedly the duty of the state Democratic executive committee to give every assistance in its power to the election of the regular nominees of the Democratic party, national state and county, in the ensuing general election.

"The Republican party encouraged by the factional fight within the Democratic party in this state is, for the first time in many years, making a serious effort to become a factor in Florida politics.

"One contestant for Democratic nomination has undoubtedly declared his intention of running for governor in the general election, whether he obtains the Democratic nomination or not; notwithstanding the fact that his leading council has stated substantially over his own signature that every ruling made by the supreme court of this state with respect to such contest has been absolutely fair and impartial, and that such council has perfect confidence that future rulings of the supreme court will be equally fair and impartial, and the same leading council is quoted in the press dispatches as having voluntarily apologized to the supreme court for the unwarranted aspersions cast upon the judiciary of this state by his client.

"With the Democratic party confronted with these conditions I deem it my duty to issue the above call for another meeting of the committee."

The campaign committee appointed by the chairman is composed of Messrs. E. W. Davis of Orange county, W. A. Russell of Putnam county, R. W. McLendon of Dade county, Robert E. Davis of Alachua county, Carlton Blackwell of Suwannee county, H. H. Wells of Washington county, and J. C. Sale of Levy county as secretary and Geo. P. Raney of Hillsborough county as chairman.

Rosh Hashana Observed
Rosh Hashana, the Jewish New Year began Wednesday evening at sunset, and for two days will be observed by orthodox Jews throughout the world. The reformed or unorthodox Jews only celebrate one day at the beginning of the New Year.

The year that is ushered in is 5,677. The event is second in importance in religious significance in the Hebrew faith, Easter, or the Feast of the Passover being the first. From time immemorial, in the orthodox churches, the two days of Rosh Hashana have been observed with prayer and worship in almost exactly the same manner. It is a time especially set apart for repentance and purification.

At sunset the rabbis around the world will summon the Jewish believers to the synagogue with a blast from the ram's horn or shofar. This method of calling the congregation together has an especial symbolic significance. The use of the ram's horn dates back to the almost prehistoric days, shrouded in the half light of tradition, when those musical instruments were about the only means which the wandering tribes of Israel, who were shepherds, possessed for calling to worship.

In the orthodox congregations, which cling most tenaciously to the old time ritual, one of the customs is for the men to appear in the temples wearing shrouds to typify the significance of the day as a reminder of death. This part of the ritual is not now used in the reformed temples.

Dr. Ward Sunday

Dr. Geo. M. Ward, the newly elected president of Rollins College will preach at the Congregational church on next Sunday evening. This is the first time that the people of Sanford have had an opportunity of hearing Dr. Ward and the friends of the college and the public generally are especially invited to attend this service.

There will be no services in the morning. Sunday school 9:45. Christian Endeavor 6:30.

FLORIDA BOYS GET ORDERS FOR MEXICO

THE SECOND REGIMENT WILL MOVE AT ONCE

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 28.—The Florida troops were ordered to the border Thursday.

Four trains carrying the second Florida infantry probably will begin moving from Black Point with 24 hours, carrying the command to the Mexican border, orders for the movement having been this morning issued in Washington.

As soon as orders are received at regimental headquarters the regiment will prepare to break camp. The Atlantic Coast Line Railroad is expected to be able to place equipment without delay, and if cars are properly provided the second regiment could be in train within six hours.

The regiment probably will proceed to El Paso, Texas, where further orders will be received. It is expected the Florida command will relieve an eastern regiment, which has been ordered home, several recently having come from the border.

The present strength of the regiment is 55 officers and 1,076 enlisted men.

The second regiment is composed of the following units:
Headquarters company, band, non commissioned staff and mounted orderlies. Home posts, Palatka and Gainesville.

Supply company, Gainesville, Capt. R. V. Ott. Twenty-four men. Sanitary detachment, St. Petersburg, Maj. M. H. Axline. Twenty-three men.

Machine gun company, Gainesville, Capt. Shelda Warren.

First battalion, Major John W. Blanding, Gainesville; Company A, Ocala; B, Kissimmee; C, Orlando; D, Lakeland.

Second battalion, Major Vivian B. Collins, Plant City; Company E, Plant City; F, Wauchula; G, Tampa; H, Tampa.

Third battalion, Major Charles W. Sams, West Palm Beach; Company I, Key West; K, Arcadia; L, West Palm Beach; M, Miami.

From Black Point the regiment will travel over the tracks of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad to Montgomery, where they will be shunted to New Orleans. From New Orleans to Houston and thence to El Paso, the movement will be over the Southern Pacific line.

The second regiment went into camp June 22, after mobilization orders had been issued on June 19. News of the order for movement was received with joy at the camp.

SEMINOLE CO. CONTRIBUTES LIBERALLY

CAMPAIGN FUND FOR DE- MOCRATIC PARTY GOES FORWARD

If all the counties in Florida respond to the call for finances for the Wilson campaign fund—as well as Seminole according to the population Florida will, raise the requisite ten thousand dollars in the next few weeks.

The campaign was inaugurated a few weeks ago and while it was only waged a few days the sum of $109.75 has been sent to Wilbur W. Marsh, the treasurer in New York and there will probably be more to follow.

The following committee was appointed for Seminole county: F. L. Woodruff, A. T. Rossetter, L. P. Hagan, B. W. Herndon, P. M. Elder, A. P. Connelly and R. J. Holly and the committee held a meeting and organized by electing F. L. Woodruff, chairman and R. J. Holly, secretary and treasurer.

The dollar idea was carried out, although any one that wished to donate more was urged to do so and the fund that has been raised at the particular time of the year is very gratifying to the committee, as the growers and business men are not as flush in finances in the fall as they are in the spring and a dollar to the people here means as much as ten dollars to the people of the northern states, but the dollars were contributed with the true Democratic spirit of the people and will help swell the campaign fund.

The secretary wrote many letters and in the country precincts urged the cooperation and help of the county committeemen, who responded nobly to the call. Special mention should be made of J. H. Osteen of Altamonte, G. M. Jacobs of Chuluota, Theo. Aulin of Oviedo and J. H. Hartley, Jr., of Longwood who sent in their contributions promptly, the same having been noted in The Herald. Other committeemen are to be heard from and the list will probably reach a higher mark in the next few days.

Seminole county is supposed to have some ten thousand people within its confines and with the present donation has responded nobly to the call considering the season of the year and the fact that there are about 1200 Democrats in the county and that a personal solicitation was not made in the entire county.

Therefore in closing the campaign for contributions the committee wishes to thank all those who have contributed freely and in the Democratic spirit. The party has no chance to open the money bags of the country, has no access to a flush fund and does not want to be dependent upon the money power of America for campaign funds, hence the donations from the free and untrammelled Democracy is very satisfactory and the election of Woodrow Wilson in November will be made possible by the voluntary contributions of the rank and file of the true Democracy of the United States.

Married in Washington

The following from the Washington Times of Tuesday, Sept. 26 will be of interest to a host of friends in this city:

"An interesting wedding of this evening will be that of Miss Norma Bell Cowan, daughter of Mr. John Cowan, formerly of this city, and Mr. Ernest Harry Moyer, which will take place at the home of Rev. Chas. E. Fultz, pastor of the Memorial United Brethren church at 8 o'clock, Mr. Moyer and his bride leaving later in the evening for Atlantic City for a stay of ten days, after which they will return to this city and will be glad to welcome their many friends."

'Doug' Fairbanks Scores Another Knockout

Reginald Morton, a wealthy idler of athletic tendencies is the leading figure in "Reggie Mixes In," the new Douglas Fairbanks release on the Triangle program. He has become bored with his shallow society set in which he moves, although he is engaged to marry Dorothy Fleming, a member of it. Dorothy is engaged to Reggie mainly because of his money and is flirting desperately with all comers.

While out in his automobile one day Reggie chances upon a lost little girl sitting on the curb. He takes her back to her home in the slums and there he sees and falls in love with Agnes, Shannon, a sweet young girl of good family now compelled to earn her living in a cheap cabaret. He then discovers that Dorothy is faithless to him and breaks his engagement, leaving him free to pay court to Agnes.

His rival for the affections of Agnes is Tony Bernard, the leader of the gangsters of the neighborhood, and Bernard has instructed one of his henchmen to bring Agnes to him. Reggie frustrates the scheme, beats up the henchman and the owner of the dive in which Agnes works hires him as his bouncer.

But Bernard has not given up the idea of possessing the girl, and as Reggie is the only obstacle in the way of his getting her, he orders him shot. They waylay Reggie, but he beats them up, one by one. Cornered at last, Reggie challenges Bernard to enter a room alone with him and have it out. The man survives the battle to get the girl. Bernard agrees.

A terrific fight takes place. The light is smashed, but it continues until the two men, their shirts stripped from their backs, are too exhausted to go on. By a supreme effort Reggie deals the blow and staggers out, where he is attacked by the band. But the police have been tipped off.

How Reggie finally wins Agnes is the culmination of a thrilling romance. At Lyric Wednesday.

"The Devil at His Elbow"

John Ashton, a brilliant young mechanical engineer is completing the plans of a new submarine. The government is vitally interested in his work and he has promised to have it done by the tenth of the month, which gives him only six days in which to complete it. More and more he has been resorting to whiskey to keep his brain active, and now keeps a bottle constantly at his elbow. His friend, Franklin Darrow, and his assistant, Robert Gray, remonstrate with him but to no avail.

His fiancée, Grace Sealey, telephones him and urges him to attend a dinner party on the ninth. Finally he accepts, though against his will. He keeps on drinking and working feverishly, but falls asleep at his work.

He prepares to attend the dinner, and is still intoxicated when he arrives. Grace's father at once breaks off the engagement and he leaves the house in disgrace. He goes home and finishes his plans on the morning of the tenth, and then, still wearing his evening clothes, wanders out into unknown streets.

He goes into a saloon on the waterfront and drinks until he is insensible. There he is noticed by the captain and mate of a freighter and shanghaied on board the vessel. When he comes to his senses he is far out at sea, and he is set to work swabbing decks and splicing rope. He is told that the cruise will occupy six months, but that he may have all he wants to drink. So his ancient enemy is still with him.

The remaining scenes, replete with excitement can best be appreciated after witnessing the picture.

"Gloria's Romance"

The most expensive contract ever made for a motion picture outside New York and Chicago, was signed in Atlanta Saturday morning and Ralph De Bruler booked for the Piedmont Theatre the million dollar George Kleine production, "Gloria's Romance," in which Billie Burke is the star.

By the terms of the contract the Piedmont pays $20,000 for the exclusive rights to the Billie Burke film. No higher price has ever been paid for a photoplay save in these two other cities. So far as Atlanta is concerned, the price is nearly twice over that paid for any other production ever released here.

There's a reason for this record. "Gloria's Romance," produced at Palm Beach, this winter cost Kleine a small fortune. The salary of Billie Burke alone was staggering, while settings, gowns for the star and salaries for a capable supporting cast ran into the thousands. It is said to be an actual fact that before the first roll of the picture was cut its cost was over a million.

As a result, when George Kleine put it on the market, he put a price that caused a howl. The exhibitors began to think. They tried to beat him down, but Kleine refused to be beaten. The Piedmont is one of the first theaters in the country to accept Kleine's terms and in the face of hot competition from other houses, secured the Billie Burke picture exclusively.

"Gloria's Romance" is described as a motion picture novel. It was written by Rupert Hughes, author of "Empty Pockets," "What Will People Say?" and other best sellers, in collaboration with Mrs. Rupert Hughes.

In story form it is itself a highly entertaining tale, and every installment will be run in the Journal, the first paper in the south to get exclusive rights to the publication of the novel.

Announcement will be made later by Mr. De Bruler as to just when "Gloria's Romance" will first be put on at the Piedmont. He is paying $1,000 a week for twenty weeks for the production and will stage it in a style in keeping with the price.

At Lyric Tuesday.

Drink and Regeneration Theme of New Metro Play

"The Devil at His Elbow," a startling five part Metro wonderplay in which Clifford Bruce and Dorothy Green, two supreme dramatic artists are seen in the stellar roles, will be the feature attraction at the Star tonight. This production contains scores of big situations presented on an elaborate scale in genuine settings on New York's waterfront, on board a big steamer at sea, and on a submarine obtained from the United States navy. The story was written by Aaron Hoffman, who has written all the features for Mme. Petrova since she has been appearing in motion pictures. It deals with the subject of drink and its evil influences when taken by a mechanical engineer as a stimulant to continue in an almost superhuman endeavor to complete plans for a new submarine. Mr. Bruce has the role of the engineer, while Miss Green plays the part of a pitcher named Apple allowed one hit in two nine-inning games at Little Rock the other day, but lost both. This lad's a pippin.

If Larry Doyle is going to do any leading of the National league swatters this year, now is the time for the Gotham captain to get busy.

Harold Crisp, one of Connie Mack's pitching recruits, is only seventeen years of age. He made his mark with a high-school team in Boston.

Connie Mack says he took Rube Oldring at his word when the outfielder announced that he had quit baseball for good, and gave him his release.

Manager Rowland of the White Sox, it is said, has advised all his players to have their tonsils taken out. But why? They don't think with their tonsils.

The Cubs have only four good pitchers—Lavender, Vaughn, Packard and McConnell. Manager Tinker has lost faith in Hendrix, Seaton, Brown and Prendergast.

Vedder Gard, captain of the University of Indiana ball team, who was given a trial by Terre Haute, failed to show at the bat, though his fielding was high class.

Pitcher George Leclair has admitted that his desertion of Little Rock "to work in a munitions factory in Canada" was a bluff and he wants to get back in baseball again.

One of the causes for Charley Wagner's dismissal at Harvard was that he let Willie Hoyt, the schoolboy pitcher secured from the New York Giants go without a trial.

woman of the waterfront. Both characters are drawn with a master hand and afford these stars unbounded opportunity to display their versatility and dramatic gifts.

"The Daughter of MacGregor"

It is no small task for a young Scotch girl, just arrived from the old country, to go into an American lumber camp and win the affectionate regard of the rough men. That is the task which Jean MacGregor faced in the Famous Players production, "The Daughter of MacGregor," in which Valentine Grant is being featured on the Paramount Program. It is the attraction at the Star Friday.

Jean has run away from home after a serious disagreement with her father and, after earning enough money to get to America, has discovered that her uncle whom she depended upon for assistance is an old bear who refuses to help her in the least—except to get her a job in his cook tent with instructions to the chef to give her all the work possible! So Jean bit her lip and proceeded to battle her way into the hearts of those lumbermen, appealing to some through their sense of humor and to others by her unlimited courage.

With Miss Grant's wonderful acting this story winds into one of the most interesting Scotch stories of the season.

A pitcher named Apple allowed one hit in two nine-inning games at Little Rock the other day, but lost both. This lad's a pippin.

Blue serge gives an excellent account of itself in this one-piece frock trimmed with box plaits and twin belts of self-material. The chemise is of gray chiffon.

Here is one of those rare frocks that may be worn for morning or afternoon. It has been given such an excellent account of itself as far as fashionable requirements are concerned that one recommends it almost unconditionally. Dark blue, combined with gray is cleverly handled in this design, made with a square yoke in back and front. Into the open neck is fitted a chemise of gray chiffon cut in one with a flare collar. Both the front and back of the dress are laid in deep plaits and belted. For medium size $3\frac{1}{2}$ yards 44-inch material are required, with $\frac{1}{2}$ yard 36-inch chiffon.

The plaits should be laid very carefully, for the frock is simple and their effect supplies much of its chic. In making the design, first form plaits in front and back, crossing on slot perforations, then bring folded edge nearest center back to center, and bring remaining folded edges to corresponding small "o" perforations and press. Close the seam underneath plaits in front; finish edges above for closing. Adjust pocket lap to position on front. Sew front and back yokes to upper edges of front and back, bring front edge of yoke to center-front and close underarm and shoulder seams.

Next adjust the chemise to position underneath yoke, matching large "o" perforations. Stitch neck edges together from shoulder seam to center back. The collar may have the edged picoted.

Now, turn under slashed edge of sleeve on slot perforations, lap to small "o" perforations, notches even and finish with buttons if desired; close seam underneath. Close remaining seam as notched. If desired with cuff, cut off lower part of sleeve along small "o" perforations; line cuff and sew to sleeve bringing single large "o" perforation to corresponding perforation in sleeve; and bring small "o" perforation in cuff to seam of sleeve. Roll cuff over on large "o" perforations. Sew sleeve in armhole as notched, small "o" perforation at shoulder seam, small "o" perforation at shoulder seam, small "o" perforation at shoulder seam, small "o" perforation at shoulder seam.

Turn under upper edge of pocket section (O) on small "o" perforations and gather $1\frac{1}{2}$ inch from folded edge. Gather lower edge between double "TT" perforations. Join the 2 sections as notched. Adjust to position on front and back (over the under-arm seam) between indicating small "o" perforations. Front of pocket indicated by line of large "o" perforations. Draw the gathers at upper edge of pocket to the required size.

For the last touch, adjust the belt to position with upper edge at single small "o" perforation in back and at under-arm seam. Close belts a little to left of center front and finish with a bow, and ends.

Child's Dress of Batiste Flouncing

When she goes visiting the little girl going on four or five or six is more than likely to wear a dress of batiste or organdie. Summer or winter the removal of her coat discloses her finery in these thin materials, sometimes hand embroidered, more often machine embroidered, and often finished off, in either case, with fancy needlework stitches. In the summertime her frilled bonnet is much like her dress, and in winter time it is apt to match her coat.

The little frock pictured above is of machine-embroidered batiste in a fine quality. Among the embroidered flouncings there are many patterns that seem made especially for children's dresses. The flower designs are dainty and the work fine. Such a pattern is needed for the little dress shown here. Frills are set in the short sleeves and they are made of the same flouncing as that used in the skirt. The skirt is set to a short baby waist, and what little needlework there is, is done by hand.

The finest of organdie edgings and flouncings are used for making those dressy bonnets with double frills about the face, that have a permanent place in style for little children.

JUSTICE TO THEM

MIDDLE-AGED MEN NEED FEAR NO LONGER FOR THEIR JOBS.

Noted Physician Says Big Business Has Learned Value of Mature Judgment and Plodding Steadiness in Workers.

American industry can no longer dispense with the middle-aged workers, writes the noted physician, Dr. I. Madison Taylor. Middle age and even old age need no longer dread the junk heap on which big business previously proposed to scrap all but the most energetic of the population.

Little more than a year has elapsed since American business parlance began to forget its phrase, "an old man of forty." Little more than a year may elapse before it shall have adopted the phrase, "the young man of fifty." Times are changing, and men with them.

Every indication of current industrial, economic and commercial conditions evidences the imminent necessity on the part of 100,000,000 composing the population of the continental United States, of increasing enormously their productive capacity and, necessarily, their individual efficiency. The lesson is one that has been inculcated, in various forms of admonition, throughout the past year by students of the European war and of the economic conflict which must follow its conclusion.

Little more than ten years have gone since, throughout the range of "big business," the fiat went forth that this is the day of the young men. In many instances employees of undoubted loyalty and complete proficiency were dismissed or denied advancement solely on the score of an age limit which, too frequently, was set at a ludicrously low appraisal.

Even 40 years of life and fruitful activity were supposed to be sufficient to incapacitate a man for the initiative demanded by our "modern" business methods. Grievous wrong was done large numbers of mature intelligences whose sobriety of judgment more than compensated for the inappreciable abatement of their dynamic energy.

The present insistent demand for workers of all classes has, to a noteworthy extent, swept aside the erroneous verdict of the "big business" of the past decade. The conditions of the immediate future make certain the utilization in some form or other of all of the mental and physical resources of our people, if their industries are to survive in the approaching struggle between European and American industries.

Yet it remains, in the pitiless light of that brief tradition—existing long enough to establish a precedent still respected—for men past the first flush of their early vigor to realize the conditions under which, if at all, they are to come into their own and are to hold it henceforward.

If, in our industries, we are to meet successfully the bitter competition impending, not only must our executives utilize all the labor energy and skill at their disposal, but the men of middle age must do their utmost to keep themselves at their best.

How shall they do it? As a practical physician, I should advise the average middle-aged man, for his first salvation, to resolve not to squander effort. He must concentrate; he must refrain from assuming useless burdens, however tempting they may be. He must limit his expenditure of energy to the work which he has in hand and limit his appetites to the gratification of those only which shall conserve his working powers.

Middle age, wisely conserved, need not dread comparison with youth's strength weakened by youth's lavishness.

Go into German workshops—into any industrial organization in Germany—and you will have visual demonstration of the fact that the men most treasured are the men of middle age and, frequently, old age. These men usually evidence a plodding steadiness which implies less initiative than is to be found in Americans of corresponding years. But the lauded and envied German efficiency has proved their very steadiness, their indefatigableness, their assured expertness to be qualities more than compensating for the "ginger" of mere youth.

Knowledge Is Power.

It is true that knowledge is power, but how to use this power is another question, and means the learning of another lesson. The Persians have this significant and clever saying: "It takes ten pounds of common sense to carry one pound of learning." As common sense is not so very common after all, it will mean a diligent use of the means to gather ten pounds to carry the one pound of learning, but it can be done. How much better to do it, than to lose the power of knowledge, or waste the learning so hard to gain.

Consideration.

"You don't mention the American eagle in your speeches as often as you used to."

"Well," replied the statesman, "I cherish a whole lot of sentiment for that American eagle. And after seeing what the donkey and the elephant and the moose have gone up against, I want to do what I can to keep the old bird out of the mix-up."—Washington Star.

Tannehill Goes to Minors. The veteran Leo Tannehill has been signed to play third base with the South Bend Central league team.

DIAMOND NOTES

As a rule a bullplayer's popularity fades with his batting average.

You can't expect those Washington Nationals to move very fast without Shanks.

Harry Howell and Garnett Bush, umpires, are having trouble in the North-western league.

Whittaker and Krepps, pitchers on the Tufts college team, will get try-outs with the Athletics.

Jack Dalton is back in the game for San Francisco and the Seals now expect to climb to the top again.

Maynard, a pitcher who has made a reputation with the Marshall college team, is now with Lexington.

Connie Mack has signed a seventeen-year-old schoolboy pitcher named Crisp. Betcha this kid's a snappy player.

Al Mumaux, Pittsburgh's young pitcher, stands firmly between the Pirates and the deep, dark waters of the Monongahela.

Lee Tannehill, who played third base with Jones' world champions in 1900, is playing third for South Bend in the Central league.

Ed Walsh attempted a comeback for the Chicago White Sox in a game of the Washington series. He started well, but that was all.

The Cardinals have signed a rookie pitcher entitled "Mule" Watson. "Mule" is a promising young pitcher, barring a slight tendency to balk.

Those Giants are anything but devils in their own home town. They haven't won enough games on the Polo grounds this season to save their franchise.

If big league teams were given traveling accommodations according to their standing, the Athletics would be sent around the circuit by parcel post.

The Mackmen do not seem to be able to stand prosperity. After making a pretty fair spurt a couple of weeks ago they have now subsided, and do not seem to give anyone much of a battle.

Sam Jones, the pitcher Carrigan got from the Cleveland club as part of the price of Speaker, has not been doing much for the Red Sox. Jones says he is being kept in shape for the world's series next fall.

The Sanford Board of Trade is the biggest thing in Sanford and they are working while you sleep. If there is a citizen left who does not 'belong' let him come up and enroll his name.

Reports from the north all state that the largest influx of visitors to Florida in the history of the state will start this way, beginning next month.

Clean up week next month should be participated in by the people of this city. Mayor Davison should issue a proclamation to the citizens and then let the city officials get busy and start the wheels in motion backed up by the Board of Trade members and the Woman's Club and the citizens collectively.

Sanford growers have increased their celery acreage 30 per cent. Sanford people know on which side their bread is buttered.

Despite the pressure from all sides this paper refuses to take sides in the Catts-Knight controversy and will support only the Democratic nominee whoever he may be.

The Herald takes pleasure in announcing the return of Mrs. R. A. Terheun to the society column of this paper. The winter season approaches with all of its accustomed gaiety and society and social affairs will receive the allotted space in this paper as heretofore.

Resenting the drubbing given the Tampa boys by the Sanford baseball aggregation, we hereby challenge Bob Holly, the bald-headed editor of the Sanford Herald to fight a ten round bout in Plant Field during the South Florida Fair and Gasparilla carnival.

You're on, Frank. And meantime let us know the dimensions of Plant Field so we can train either for a fight or a foot race.

When Cyclone Mitchell attempted to speak in Sanford a few nights ago Catts' followers endeavored to prevent him by hammering on tin cans.

Don't know where you get that report about the meeting. While Mitchell was closing his remarks another man started talking about national issues and drew part of the crowd away from Mitchell.

should not have been allowed but it was not an attempt to stop Mitchell as every man is allowed free speech here and all political meetings have police protection, but the police in this instance were lax in their duty and should have made the other man keep quiet until Mitchell had finished.

THERE'S A REASON! And a reason it is too. But it seems that it will take a thousand years to impress it upon some of our merchants.

They seem to think we are only after what they would pay us for advertising, and they don't believe in "contributing to charity" on too expensive a scale.

Only this week hundreds of catalogues from a big mail order house in Chicago have been flooding Columbia county, and these catalogues are "thick as hops" in Lake City.

And the catalogue trade will steadily increase and home trade in many lines will steadily decrease—until local dealers awaken to the situation and stop it.

There are several ways to stop it—or several things that must all be done—and the most important thing is newspaper advertising.

Some dealers will say they don't advertise in the papers.

And the mail order houses will continue to get business that ought to come to them. And they will still wonder why it is this.

CLEAN UP WEEK

OCTOBER IS THE MONTH TO GET BUSY

Clean-up week in Florida! The Civics Department of the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs is sponsor for it—with their feminine dislike of dirt they have recognized the necessity and have put the idea into working order by designating the six working days, from Monday, October 9 to Saturday the 14th, as the time for all Florida cities to get busy to gather up the stray tin cans and trash and hide them or better yet, to destroy them.

The women at first proposed to invoke the aid of the state authorities to set aside a week for general house cleaning all over the commonwealth, but it was decided that it was the business of each municipality to take care of its own washing; and so the mayor of every city that has a mayor has been asked to start the proposition in its own bailiwick and leave it to the Governor to proclaim a day for general thanksgiving when the cleaning is done.

Not only heartily favors the plan and urges that every city shall set aside this particular week for this particular work, but it also seriously endorses the intention of the women's clubs throughout Florida, to make a clean up week not an annual, but a semi annual institution, fixing such a period for "brushing up" every spring and every autumn.

In the days, and years that are gone, individual cities and towns in Florida have had occasional spasms of cleanliness, which have had splendid advertising value at least. But such efforts have been spasmodic and, with few exceptions these have not been permanently recurring.

Now that the women by organized effort have undertaken to spread the practice, there is little doubt that it will become permanent, regular, efficient and of immense value to the state.

More than this, it will make Florida among the first, if not the first state in the Union, to have all its cities swept and garnished regularly and often.

But clean up week means more than a popular effort to remove trash from the streets and alleys. For, after all, loose dirt that is carried and scattered by every wind that blows, however disagreeable it may be, is not the serious menace to health that is to be found in every city, whether in Florida or in other states.

sanitary home surroundings which increase the sick rate. Possibly it will secure what most city councils refuse to enforce by ordinance—the careful screening of refuse from livery and other stables; which left uncovered releases its myriads of manure bred flies, the carriers of several highly fatal diseases.

Many, perhaps most, of the unsanitary neighborhood nuisances are maintained on their own premises by individual home-keepers. If the evil results could be confined to these householders, the punishment would be kept and inflicted, where it belongs, but unfortunately these results are carried to the unoffending neighbors.

If the women of Florida can discover a method for abating these nuisances, for compelling offenders to cease their sinning, if they will arouse and make effective a public sentiment for better municipal sanitation in Florida, they will accomplish more for the lasting good of the state than the votes of their fathers and brothers and husbands have been able to bring about up to this time.

GRANDAD'S NURSE

By LOUISE OLIVER. It was Sunday morning and out in the lawn swing under the pink and white blossom-covered trees, Mr. Calvin Wickham and his grandson were reading the morning papers.

The wide lawn stretched over to a low iron fence, and there began another wide spreading lawn and then a house. On the porch of this house a woman in white appeared, and with head thrown back to take in the fresh morning air, she started to promenade the gravel walk.

"Look at that trained nurse over at Patterson's! Why can't she sit down and be quiet?" The younger man, also keenly alive to the presence next door, bit with different emotions, looked up casually. "Who? Oh, Miss Taylor! Why? I suppose she's out for exercise. She's kept shut up pretty close, I suppose. Nice looking girl!"

"Nice looking! Perfect doll baby! I've no time for your so-called professional nurses, always dolled up in white caps and white dresses and aprons and things. It's only a pose. How could anyone do any real work in a get-up like that?"

"They do it, just the same," declared Frank stoutly. "They pick out the part they want to do all right, take temperatures, dab 'em with alcohol out of a bottle and keep a chart, while the family hustles to do the other things. Whenever I see the old-fashioned kind with her sleeves rolled up down in the kitchen cooking soups and things to make 'em well I say to myself, 'Now, there's a nurse!'"

Frank laughed. "But you don't understand, grandad. If you want a cook you hire one, and if you want a parlor maid you hire one. The Pattersons are devoted to Laura Taylor."

"So you know her name, do you? Seems to me you're getting pretty well acquainted." "I met her the other night when the family had her out for a ride in the car," explained Frank. "I heard one of the girls call her Laura. I think she's a relative."

Coming home from church, Frank found himself walking with Muriel Patterson. "Laura is leaving tonight," she said in her gay little chatterbox manner. "Mamma is just about as well as ever. I thought maybe you could come over to tea. We'd love to have you, and I'll dig up one or two others."

Frank accepted the invitation with alacrity. That night, under the soft light of the candles, Frank thought that Laura Taylor, unofficially clad in a dress of sheer pale pink, looked like an angel on the wrong side of heaven. He couldn't take his eyes off her, and after tea, when the others repaired to the library to hear something new of Homer's on the graphophone, he whispered a request which she hesitatingly granted, a walk with him in the garden.

A light was burning in the Wickham house. "Grandad hasn't gone to bed yet!" remarked Frank. "That's unusual."

"I must watch the time," finally announced his companion. "My train goes at eleven and I have to change my dress. By the way, do you know anything about the trains on the E. D. and L. road? I have to change cars at Roston and the Pattersons have lost their schedule."

"I have one at the house," returned Frank. "It will just take me an instant to get it. Suppose you walk over with me?" "All right. I won't go in, though. I can wait on the veranda."

sat still and white in his chair by the table. Laura had his wrist in a second. "No, not dead!" She spoke hurriedly. "Run over, please, and get my bag. It's in the lower hall by the clock." In three minutes Frank was back with the entire family at his heels. "We'd better carry him upstairs," suggested Mr. Patterson. "No, don't touch him," said the nurse, in a quiet, firm voice Frank scarcely knew. "I want a glass of water," she added. Quietly and quickly she opened the bag, got a little black box and dissolved some tablets. Then she rolled back the old man's sleeve and went to work. "His heart!" she explained. "This is strychnia!" Her hand went again to his pulse and stayed there. "Now please let us get him to the couch—very easy, now."

And so old Mr. Wickham got well. Laura didn't take the eleven o'clock train, but stayed to nurse him, and during her two weeks' stay the old man would scarcely let her out of his sight.

One day he called Frank in. "Son," he said, "if you want to do me a favor in my old age, try to persuade Laura Taylor to marry you. She's the finest, smartest woman in the world."

"Good advice, grandad, but a little late," laughed Frank. "She's already promised me that very thing!" (Copyright, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

TWO STRICT MANAGERS

Castigations Given Players Are Like Father's Reproofs.

Nothing They Resent So Much as Newspaper Criticism of Boys Playing for Them—Will Not Tolerate Interference.

McGraw, manager of the New York National league baseball club, is very strict with his players, but they all swear by him, for they know that he is "on the level" with them. The same thing is true of McGraw's old side partner, Hughie Jennings. They may "call" their players unmercifully, in the heat of a diamond battle for some bad mistake, but such castigations are like a father's reproofs to his sons who bear no ill will. Let someone else offer criticism, and these two managers will fight back just like a parent would were his sons attacked.

There is nothing they resent so deeply as newspaper criticism of their players. They assume that they can conduct their own baseball households without outside interference, and as they are the parties responsible for the showing of the teams, they propose to do it.

Both are very hotheaded, and for this reason their seats on the bench are isolated and shiny—the former condition due to discretion on the part of the players, and the latter to nervous hitching about, incited by the managerial view of various plays. If some unlucky wight out on the diamond happens to err, a colleague roosting close to the manager is likely to be the recipient of a spontaneous and unthinking broadside for something not his fault, simply because the manager's mind must be freed. The actual offender generally escapes, because so many things happen before he gets back to the bench that his slip is forgotten.

McGraw strives eternally to drill his baseball knowledge into the brains of his players. The thing he most abhors is a "bonehead" play. It is for such that he chides his Giants, not for the sort of errors that go into the box scores. If his team should play orthodox baseball, and yet lose the entire 154 games of a schedule, he would not whimper. But if a single game is lost through mental inability to grasp a situation, he raves. He cannot stand that.—Popular Magazine.

Farmers Grow Big Corn Crop

In practically every section of the state the corn acreage shows a decided increase. This increase is demonstrated to a large extent in a number of counties where corn has not been an important product. Newspapers from every section report that local farmers are going more and more into corn-growing. C. K. McQuarrie, state agent for the University of Florida Extension Division, has made inquiries to the county agents concerning the crop in their counties. Every agent except some in the districts where the corn was damaged by storms reports a decided increase over last year.

Brevard county farmers who have been interested in other branches of agriculture are taking a great deal of interest in corn. Last year there were on, y eight acres in the county. This year there are about 550. While that acreage is small it shows the tendency toward greater corn production in a county which has been growing a great deal of truck. The yield reported for this year is from 12 1/2 to 46 bushels. An increase of 15 per cent is reported in some counties even where storms damaged the crop.

REGISTER, REGISTER

Democrats who voted in the June primary should bear in mind the fact that registration in the primary books does not qualify for participation in the November election, whether his party affiliation be Democratic or otherwise, must be properly registered in the general registration books.

The registration books for Seminole county are now open in each precinct and will remain open until October 14th.

Be sure your name is on the general registration books if you expect to vote in the general election. Register—do it now, before you forget it! 11-6tp

If I get any more such letters from you as I received last week I will come in and maul hell out of you." The minister answered the letter like this: "I have been trying to get that out of the editor for ten years and if you come down and maul it out of him then, my dear sir, I will have twenty members of my church I will let you operate on."

EVIDENCE

By CATHERINE CRANMER.

"So you refuse to tell me whether or not you intend to go to that phobian public masque ball?" Gerald shifted his hat and stick, which he held in readiness for departure.

"I refuse to be bullied. So I refuse to answer your question because you lunged it at me as a demand to account to you in advance for my movements."

"Now, Dot, you can't think that; it is all from my desire to exercise the right and the privilege which our engagement gives me to protect you."

"Protection actuated by jealousy and intolerance isn't what I want or expect. As for our engagement, why— She began to fumble with her ring.

"Please, Dot," said Gerald quickly, "don't say anything about that now, and please think seriously before you join those feather-brained Gilbert girls and Charley Mason in a lark at that public masque."

"Good afternoon," was Dorothy's only reply, but as the front door closed behind him she crumpled up on the big davenport and sobbed. Gerald's pleading failed to keep Dorothy away from the public masque ball, although she did decide to wear a black domino instead of the fantastic costume she first had in mind. The Gilbert girls, Charley Mason and the two other young men in her party dressed as a band of gypsies, and they were surprised and disappointed when Dorothy appeared in her domino. Once in the gay crowd, though, all entered heartily into the merriment. Here and there through the hilarious crowd other domino-clad figures were scattered, giving a seeded touch of black to the kaleidoscopic whirl of color. Some energetic domino-clad man undertook to gather all the dominoes together and line them up in mock protest at some of the gayeties going on about them. Dorothy was drawn into his group, and she gayly, though silently, tried to induce a tall, broad-shouldered fellow-domino to become also a fellow participant in making things gay. Reluctantly, at first, but gradually more willingly, the tall figure began to move about with some show of life.

As the crowd grew more mirthful Dorothy became less and less gay. Her tall companion could see that she was vainly searching for someone. He squeezed her hand reassuringly and broke the long silence between them.

"I see that you have lost your friends," he said simply. "Will you allow me to help you find them or to take you home if you can't find them?"

A few moments later, they were entering a taxi, to whose driver Dorothy gave the half of a visiting card containing her residence number, having nodded a vigorous negative when her escort asked her destination. As they were whirled along in the taxi, the man softly asked her to speak to him, as he was sure her voice must be as charming as were her grace and ease in dancing. He even squeezed her hand lightly, and although she was unresisting she still shook her head and remained silent. This seemed to add to the young man's determination, for he began to plead eloquently, but was astounded to be roughly pushed away with two tiny but determined hands.

At the taxi turned a corner, Dorothy realized that she was nearing her home, and she quickly sprang up and covered the eyes of her escort with her hands. "Swear you won't look," she whispered hoarsely, and with those soft hands pressing his eyelids, the man willingly promised. A few moments later, the taxi came to a full stop, and Dorothy electrified her companion by kissing him full on the mouth and springing from the door the instant the driver opened it.

Quite forgetting his promise, he sprang after her, but took in his surroundings with a dumfounded glance. About six strides took him the distance that Dorothy had covered in sixty rapid steps, and he overtook her just as she reached the marble-lined vestibule to her home.

"Dorothy, dear," he pleaded, "why didn't you let me know it was you?" "Just because I wanted to see how far you'd go in doing the very things you tried to forbid me doing when I hinted I was going to this ball," she eyed him defiantly, like a plucky fighter at bay. "Your tender pleading for the sound of my voice and your gentle squeezing of my hand when you thought I was somebody you didn't even know convince me that you are at least human enough to be inconsistent and also that you're not to be trusted."

"Which ought also to convince you that it's time to treat me like a human and take me for better or worse." Then, very softly, he added: "Don't you know, dear, that it was only because I wanted to look after you that I went to that old ball?"

Dorothy had backed up against the bell so that with her elbow she had managed to press the button without Gerald's knowledge. "And don't you know," she retorted, "that it was only because I recognized you by your dancing that I pretended to be lost from my friends and enticed you into bringing me home?"

The silent footman opened the front door and Dorothy vanished through it with a softly spoken good night before Gerald fully realized the unexpected good fortune that had come to him. (Copyright, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

As TAYLOR Sees It

Only a few weeks ago people said it was "impossible" for a Submarine carrying freight to cross the Atlantic. Yet, on July 10th the "Deutschland" arrived in Baltimore Harbor with a big cargo of dyes.

Our competitors often tell you that the values we give are "impossible" that no retailer could sell such goods at such a price. Still the fact is that we do it. Comparison will show that we always undersell other merchants on the average, 5 per cent to 15 per cent.

What formerly was "impossible" with limited knowledge and old ways, becomes easy with the application of new ideas and better methods. Thus: If we had to buy, handle and sell goods on the same basis as "Old Line" we could not give any better prices than they do.

For examples of our better values, call and see our stock of goods.

The High Cost of Matches
The newspaper man is a regular guy. At least he is most of the time. The bo who approaches with tears in his eye is sure to go away with the dime.

The newspaper man always falls for a touch. Regardless of what he may earn; He digs, as a rule, and he answers "How much?" Though he knows it will never return.

That whiskey is no respecter of persons is evidenced from the story of a well known Baptist pastor, who was the host of a great convention, and who had wrought ardently in preparing for its entertainment, and when he felt himself about to break down, yielded to the too popular, but erroneous idea that he needed a stimulant to help hide tide over the extra strain upon him, and so began to stimulate himself with a toddy every morning. When the convention was over he had to keep it up, or give down utterly. The consequences were that "he went to pieces," and had to go to a Keeley Cure establishment to be cured of alcoholism. He confessed it freely and was restored to his normal self. He lost out with his church, and suffered irreparable damage to his reputation. That is what many of our people are doing right now. They call it nervous breakdown, and various other names, when it is plain drunkenness. The shame of it is that there are so many people yet who imagine that whiskey is a necessity to keep a man going. That is proven absolutely false. Whiskey is not a stimulant. It is an irritant. It creates for itself an appetite which becomes a habit, and sooner or later it destroys health, happiness, peace and prosperity.—Baptist Witness.

Quite right, brother, and if the ministers and all others could cut out those so-called patent medicines that contain two-thirds whiskey and one-third near whiskey. There are many testimonials from ministers about these medicines making them feel young again and the feeling is nothing in the world but the effects of the whiskey. It is a well known fact that these fake medicines have the largest sale in dry territory and the joke of it is the testimonials of ministers who fail to note the whiskey in the medicine or noting it go right on taking it. When the churches and the physicians and the temperance societies get together and stop the sale of these whiskey medicines they will go a long way toward saving the latter day drunkards.

For good and sufficient reasons which I need not explain it would be well for the city council, the city physician and all the other physicians to take extra precautions about the schools opening on account of infantile paralysis. You know as well as I do that the danger is great. Read what Palm Beach Post says about the precautions taken down there:

That no open doors are being left in this community through which may creep the dreaded children's disease which has been so much in the public eye for the past ninety days is evidenced by the ordinance which has just been passed by the council of this city. While this country has never been without this infant paralysis for the past dozen years, and while cases have been brought to light in nearly every state in the Union, Florida seems to be one of the very few states where there has been no official recognition of the complaint; and the city and school authorities will take every possible step to prevent its introduction.

The ordinance as adopted by the council forbids the entrance into the schools of this city—either the public school or any private school—of any pupil coming to this city from any other state, or county in this state, until after the child shall have been a resident here for at least twelve days. There is a penalty affixed for any non-observance of this law—and those whose duty it is to make the proper investigation will be held responsible to see that a strict compliance is made to the requirements of the ruling.

It is understood that if the child had been exposed to any contagious or infectious disease before coming to this city the twelve days of vacation would be a sufficient length of time to bring forth a developed case if such results were to follow; consequently these twelve days must be allowed to elapse before school attendance shall begin. While it is true that a spread of any disease contracted prior to the entering upon residence in this city may be just as easily communicated by social intercourse upon the streets or in private homes the fact remains that a lesser number will be exposed—and much of this general publicity must be left to the honor and standing of the parents themselves.

The ruling will effect many children whose permanent home is in this city—as well as the many whose home is merely through the winter season. There are families who will tomorrow still be lacking one day, or two days perhaps, or half a dozen days of the required twelve; but all will stand in the same light in the eyes of the law. Those who happen to come at a later date will be subjected to the same regulation and stipulation.

The mind of the public will be set much at ease by this new ruling—and its passage is hailed with much approval.

There is no reason for the county of Seminole spending good money on brick roads and planting grass if the farmers and others are allowed to drag cutaway harrows and other farming implements over the brick or on the sides. If these machines are run on the brick it tears up the surface and if allowed on the grass it tears up the grass sod—that was planted with such care a few months ago and should be fostered. There is a law about this and the man or men who do it or allow their help to do it should be arrested and fined.

These farming implements can be placed in wagons and hauled over the roads as they should be hauled. In order to save a few minutes' work a lazy negro is allowed to drive a harrow over the good roads and spoil hundreds of dollars worth of good works. It is up to you, Mr. Taxpayer, and you should tell your commissioners about it. This is being done all over the county and is not confined to any one locality, although I saw it lately on the Sanford Orlando road. Honestly, it is a shame to treat our roads in this manner and I hope it is stopped at once.

This Catts-Knott business is getting on my nerves and it will be a most pleasant day in November when the whole thing is over. It should never have been allowed to start in the first place and as I remarked several years ago the second primary was good enough and would have settled this cat fight long ago. Give us the old way of two primaries and then cut out all the new fangled notions about voting. All kinds of safeguards are thrown around the voter and the candidate before the election but not so much safe after the election else why all this fuss about the votes.

Sanford needs a general clean up. I say this because for some reason or other the mosquitoes have been bad for the last few days and every one is kicking about them and since they have not been so bad this season and cooler weather should make them scarce there must be some local cause for it and I am inclined to think that more weeds should be cut and more rain water barrels removed. The following call is being issued by the state federation of the Woman's Clubs and should be heeded here:

Dear Madam Presidents:
The date for the fall clean up is fast approaching, Oct. 9-14. Have your mayor issue proclamation and let's make this the best clean-up campaign Florida has ever had.
Get every place clean and looking its best before our guests (the tourists) arrive. I am pleased to announce that Dr. J. Y. Porter has rendered his assistance and cooperation in this work.
Yours for the cleanest and most healthful state in the Union.

FANCIFUL IDEAS OF PLAYERS

Polly McLarry, Former Cup Player, is Collector of Bats—Different Stick Each Inning.

Talking about fanciful notions of ball players, a Los Angeles correspondent furnishes this:

"Polly McLarry has a hobby. He is a collector of bats. Since joining the Angels McLarry, according to Secretary Boots Weber's figures, broke something less than a thousand bats, and has as many more ordered on the way. McLarry has a different bat for every inning, and sometimes he is liable to switch clubs while at the plate. Naturally he needs quite a supply of weapons on hand. On the other hand, Harry Wolter has yet to send in a bill for a bat to the Los Angeles club. Harry grabs whatever bat is nearest his hand when it is his turn to go up and hit. It makes no difference to him who is pitching or how many are on base. One bat is as good as the next. Wolter gets results from his system, and McLarry punches out hits with his thousand bats. So what's the use?

Beginning the Season. With the fall openings passed into history, and the activities that announce that the school season is at hand...

punch was served by Mrs. Henry Wight, wearing a handsome gown of white net and rich lace. The decorations of the punch table were clusters of purple grapes...

Pink tones prevailed in the adornment of the table, which was centered by a large gilded wishbone, within which was placed a vase of pink flowers and ferns. Small gilded wishbones were concealed beneath the bank of flowers, attached to pink ribbons which extended to the places. These unusual favors were unique and quite suggestive of the good wishes which were given the honor guests, by each one present.

Miss Harrold was assisted by her mother, Mrs. J. A. Harrold, Mrs. J. J. Purdon, Mrs. Henry McLaulin, Mrs. R. L. Peck and Miss Lettie Caldwell. Only the intimate friends and wedding guests were invited.

Cottage. Again pink was used in beautifying the rooms, quantities of pink vine, arranged effectively against a background of asparagus plumosa was placed upon mantels and cabinets and draped the piano. The delicate loveliness of the tiny flower was offset by bowls of pink and green calladium leaves.

Campers Return to Town

The Carter and Turner families with their guests have broken camp at Crystal Lake and returned to town on Monday morning. All the pleasures of camp life were enjoyed by the jolly party but they just couldn't agree upon the name.

Porch Card Party

Mrs. S. Puleston opened the fall social season on Friday afternoon with a beautiful tea and bridge party in honor of Mrs. D. L. Thrasher who leaves Sanford next week to make her home in Tampa, and Mrs. Chas. Bell of Atlanta, the attractive guest of Mrs. Geo. D. Bishop.
