

OH YEAH?

By PETER SCHAAL

How'd you like to pitch three-hits in a ball for eight innings, and have your work go for naught? Well, two men out in the field, two home runs were pounded off your delivery, and the crowd went berserk? That's the end fate of Ray Benev, the young pitcher, who, staked up against the league-leading Cardinals in the final game of the series last night, a 2 to 1 decision when Watson and Pisch his successive homers in the last of the ninth. What a life! The Phillies were leading to a precarious lead of one run, manufactured in the first frame by the big bludgeon of Chuck Klein, who hit his 17th home run of the year. Grimes hurled three-hit ball for the Cards, but was removed in the ninth when it appeared that a single and a walk might produce something. Stutz went in and stopped the rally. The Phillies made only four hits all afternoon. Truly, that game was one for the book.

After running up a seven run lead in the early innings, the Braves, whose recent performances have set the league on fire, lost an 8 to 7 decision to the Cubs in an exciting finish as Chicago has won in month. News started for the Braves but was stifled from the hill in the seventh under queer circumstances. The score was 7 to 4 in favor of the Braves as the leg-stretching inning started. Drees dropped Grimes' pop fly to a starter. Evidently that surprised Mr. Moss, for he walked pinch-hitter Moore. With the dangerous Cuyler coming up, DeLoach chose to remove Moss and put in Tom Zachary. That old war-horse caused Cuyler to fly out to short. But, Tom walked the next two men, scoring a run. The second walk drew a lead out from Catcher Grimes, and led in fact that Umpire Clark chased him from the field. Stephenson singled to score two runs, and Hemeny doubled to break the fourth run over. The Braves had put Solbold on the mound just before Stephenson came in. But, he made the next two men pop up, and the scoring was all over. Wilson of the Cubs hit his sixth homer of the year in that game.

What started out to be a chunky duel on the banks of the Ohio turned into a 6 to 1 victory for the Giants as their sluggers pounded on St. Johnson of the Reds and tallied five runs in the sixth inning. Fred Fitzsimmons, one of the Giant's sensational hurlers, came through with a five-hit game, which makes about four of such games which he has hurled this season.

Three runs behind as the ninth inning came around, the Senators playing the Browns, got going, killed the bases with none out, and won their 11th straight game when Harris tripled to center, scoring all the men. He scored on the play when Levy, to whom the long-hit ball was relayed, threw wild to third, as Harris headed for home. The score was 11 to 10, and it was one of the darndest batting affairs they'd ever seen in the Capitol City. Everybody hit, and before all the scoring was over seven triples and four doubles, plus 15 singles had been batted out. The men out the Macks led to two and one-half games, and were again established the Senators as the favorite team throughout the country.

The leaders in stats: Homers, Klein, Phillies, 17; triples, Cronin, Senators; Washington, 10; doubles, 8 each, Graham, Webb, and Ross; most runs, Washington, 51; most hits, Cronin, Senators, 52; most runs batted in, Cronin, Senators, 50; most home runs, Chapman, Yanks, 10; most strikes out, one game, Cronin, Yanks, 12; most bases on balls, one game, Morris, Red Sox; Frasier, White Sox, 10.

BUDDY LAKE HAS REAL CHANCE TO TEST HIS ABILITY

By PETER SCHAAL

Sanford's pride and joy, young Buddy Lake, the sensational 17-year-old hurler, who gets credit for the Feds' first win, and who has pitched three satisfying games against some of the strongest competition in the league, will get his big chance tomorrow afternoon over in DeLand when Manager Chapman sends him to the hill to mow down the league-leading DeLand outfit.

Young Lake has had a 10-day rest, and is tugging at the leash if his comments and performances at training sessions during the week are any indication. Manager Chapman has talked to the youth on numerous occasions, pointing out minor faults which needed only a guiding hand for correction. He intends to teach the youngster the effectiveness of a change of pace when it is used by a steady hurler, and will also teach Lake how to turn loose a laughing ball just when it isn't expected.

Efforts to induce Manager Chapman to handle Lake's slants for part of a game at least, have so far resulted unsuccessfully, although the new pilot intimates that as soon as he got into the swing of things again, he might enter competition. All clubs in the circuit, as well as many players know what to expect when Chapman is in the game, and many a pitcher would breathe a sigh of relief if he had the assurance that Chapman would not enter a game during the season.

Yesterday afternoon the Feds worked out under a hot sun in another session which saw batting stressed to a fine point. The new pilot is anxious to have his players become known as the smartest batters in the league, for instance, and not a day passes that he doesn't give them a chance to lay down those thrill-satisfying things called perfect bunts.

A newcomer by the name of Johnson was on the field yesterday and gives every indication of being a man who can be used to much effect somewhere on the Fed machine. His previous experience of Central Florida League players which you'll see in another column. Note with interest that one of our own youngsters has batted his way into the select list of .300 hitters. Learn with more interest that he expects to climb to very near first place in the batting race before the season is over for no reason in the world except that he wants to show a certain college baseball coach who thought him too weak at bat for college baseball, that he is hitting better pitching than he'll find in any college league.

This youngster goes to bat with a dutiful bearing, ready to do the bidding of his manager, but in every swing he takes, he says to himself, "That's one step closer to what I want". Every time he gets a hit he figuratively thumbs his nose in the direction of west Florida. As soon as he loosens up a bit, and he will, with the new pilot ready to point out his batting stance faults, that youngster will lead the Feds to many a victory. Provided of course, that Red Martin, the lady-killing mystery man, doesn't go into a slump. The youngster tries to get as many hits as Red does in one game, you see.

They're making all sorts of preparations over in DeLand for tomorrow's game with the Feds. As usual Manager Randle is handling openly that Red Lake won't last beyond four innings against the DeLand sluggers, and that the Feds will go down to their fourth defeat at the hands of the University Cityans. The Fed's new pilot may have something to say about what the DeLand outfit will or will not do.

Speaking of the mystery man, he and a bunch of the boys were whooping it up at the Trianon Dance Emporium last night, and if you think that Red can't do anything but hit and field, you ought to watch him dance. Red, with his spick and span team suit, his blue shirt and tie, and his blue eyes and red hair, was soon the favorite of any number of the fair sex, was without a doubt, "the ball of the ball". Red has a combination tap-toe-back dance step which from a distance, gives one the impression that he is riding on a horse-headed horse. Not from the expression in his eyes and his partners' eyes, that says he certainly is a real-time partner. You can almost hear the girl say, "Red sure has that back home the way he dances in the main."

LEAGUE BATTING AVERAGES SHOW SAINTS LEADING

All Clubs Slumped As Pitchers Curb All Batters On Sunday

That three-hit game which Link Sibley, the former Gator ace now pitching for DeLand, inflicted on the Saints last Sunday, took the edge off the Cathedral City outfit as far as their batting lead was concerned, for this afternoon they are barely hitting .300, after more than a month's batting leads of the league according to Peter Schaal, league statistician. They are now within striking distance by both Winter Park and Daytona, two other hard-hitting clubs.

Individual batting averages are still in the hands of the Big Four, Bussey, Mobley, Hutto, and Pittman. Each of these players is making a determined bid for first place honors, with Mobley being the most constant and dangerous hitter. Bussey dropped 20 points as a result of Sunday's game, while Mobley, getting three hits in four trips, jumped to almost the .500 mark. The Feds have landed one player in the list of the best 12
