

ZEPPELINS WILL CARRY TRANS MAIL

FROM GERMANY TO UNITED STATES IN THE NEAR FUTURE

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 8.—Two "double" Zeppelins, unarmed and each with a carrying capacity of sixty tons have been built in Germany to carry mail between Berlin and the United States, according to a statement here by Morris Epstein, agent of the German American alliance, who returned from Europe yesterday.

Epstein said the Zeppelins have been christened "Amerika" and "Deutschland." He was permitted to view them he declared. Their engines are powerfully equipped and they can make the aerial voyage between Berlin and New York in seventy two hours.

"They are so constructed," declared Epstein, "that they can rise higher than any aeroplane and thus escape hostile aviators. They also can descend to the water and travel their under their own power."

Epstein said the postage charges had already been arranged and would be the regular international postage plus one mark, or twenty-five cents for each letter.

London, England, Sept. 8.—Subscriptions to the German war loan for the first two days indicate that the loan is a failure, according to advices from Berlin to the Exchange Telegraph Company via Copenhagen. Returns for the first two days were far behind the total raised in that time for the previous war loans. A large number of subscriptions have been received from cities, savings banks and munition firms, the dispatches state but the public have not responded and there is talk of extending the time limit to October 15.

Amsterdam, Holland (via London) Sept. 7.—A telegram from Berlin says that in view of the forthcoming convocation of the Reichstag Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg and the party leaders conferred yesterday. The chancellor declared that Field Marshal von Hindenburg, chief of staff, agreed that the military situation was favorable. It was said there was no thought of raising the age limit of liability for military service. Confidence was expressed in the success of the new war loan.

Fall Opening at French Millinery Shop

With their usual enterprising judgment and discrimination the proprietors (Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilmot) of the French Millinery Shop placed on display a rare and beautiful line of fall and winter millinery at their attractive store yesterday. The openings of this up to date establishment have become a popular feature as the seasons come and go and notwithstanding the fact that many people are out of the city, the attendance was large and continuous throughout the day. Nowhere in the south is there a more attractive setting for the exquisite creations in flowers and feathers and modish shapes than the chic little black and white showroom of the French Shop, and incidentally the French designs in hats and trimmings are particularly pretty for this season. In color the charming blending of purple and bronze leads, with combinations of black and white, pale shades of gray and yellow, coral, green and black in harmonious combinations follow closely and attract the popular fancy. The veiled turbans with their long, flowing veils reaching far below the knees is one of the season's novelties, as are also the Knickerbocker shapes in pheasant plumage. For ornamentation are used flowers, feathers, bead ornaments and the very latest and newest fads in zephyr embroidered birds and animals in brilliant colors.

The imported velvets are exquisite and the polka dot veils make a strong appeal to the woman of fashion and "lest we forget" are shown "war designs" embroidered in colors on velvet such as "crossed guns," "cannons," etc. The new military hats and jockey caps are the latest ever and are displayed in unique and handsome models at the French Shop.

The picture hats are the prettiest things in this line that have ever been shown in Sanford.

Over one thousand hats, toques, caps in every one of the latest styles and trimmings are seen in the show cases and on the shelves, among them being the Fiske, Knox, Gage, Knickerbocker and the queer six point novelty that is a tremendous hit.

Neither have the children been forgotten in the magnificent display, for everything of the very latest in a large and beautiful assortment is here from which to choose for the Sunday best or the everyday wear. The best has been called from the northern and eastern markets and the evening gown is even here remembered in the beautiful line of Maribou trimming in every shade and color, which is used also for the adornment of hats. The courteous assistants of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmot are Mrs. Ida McMurray, the milliner brought out from Gages, New York; Madame Blee and Miss May Doyle.

The millinery parlors were attractively decorated with gorgeous hibiscus, full flowered white star jessamine and the graceful sprays of love's wreath, by courtesy of Mrs. W. A. Ginn. Mention should be made of the tasteful and artistic arrangement of the windows. With the background of black and white, in one window was displayed a beautiful line of purple and bronze hats, while in the other was seen an attractive assortment of models and designs in black and white. Today the windows will feature picture hats.

Refreshments were served throughout the day and music rendered during the hours of the opening.

And thus passes into history, business history, another charming and successful opening of the French Millinery Shop which will continue to maintain its usual high standard.

STATE BOARD DENY RECOUNT TO W. V. KNOTT

MANDAMUS PROCEEDINGS WILL TAKE PLACE TODAY

Tallahassee, Sept. 7.—Attorneys for W. V. Knott Wednesday afternoon demanded of the state canvassing board that it meet and canvass the international returns as amended by the recounts. The board refused and the supreme court issued an alternative writ of mandamus returnable September 8, at 10 o'clock, addressed to the board to show cause why it should not be compelled to make the recount. It is a perfectly friendly proceeding so far as the state canvassing board is concerned.

Tampa, Sept. 7.—Writ of mandamus ordering recount in twenty precincts of this (Hillsborough) county, was issued by Circuit Judge Robles here Tuesday in favor of W. V. Knott, who is contesting for Governor with the declared nominee, Rev. Sidney J. Catts. The writ was made returnable September 20. The petitioner alleges irregularities in the primary of June 6 last. Recounts over the state have wiped out the 260 plurality which Catts had over Knott. The latter will shortly ask the state canvassing board to recount and receive the amended returns.

Presbyterian Church The Presbyterian church has resumed its preaching services with a very favorable outlook. The congregations were good last Sunday. During September the services will be somewhat shorter than usual, lasting about 40 minutes. This announcement met with general approval last Sabbath.

Miss Leo Denaler of Columbia College will sing at the morning service.

As the weather is pleasant at nights, we are hoping for large crowds at these night services. Sunday night the pastor will preach on "Testing our Life." The service begins at 7:30 and closes at 8:10.

There will be an important meeting of all the officers of the church at the close of the morning preaching service.

FOR WILSON IS SLOGAN OF COMMITTEE

DEMOCRATIC CAMPAIGN FINANCE COMMITTEE WILL GET BUSY

The members of the finance committee of the national Democratic Campaign Committee for Seminole county met in The Herald office Wednesday night at seven o'clock, being called together by Chairman F. L. Woodruff. A plan of campaign for campaign donations was decided upon and petitions will be circulated at once and every loyal Democrat in Seminole county will have a chance to contribute to the fund.

The members of the finance committee for Seminole county are as follows:

F. L. Woodruff, A. T. Rossetter, L. P. Hagan, J. N. Whitner, B. W. Herndon, R. J. Holly, A. P. Connelly and P. M. Elder.

At the meeting F. L. Woodruff was elected chairman and R. J. Holly secretary and treasurer. Each member of the Democratic executive committee in Seminole county will act as a member of the committee in his own precinct and will be authorized to solicit subscriptions and otherwise assist in the movement. At the primary election in June there were some 1300 voters registered as Democrats and at least half of these good Democrats should donate as much as one dollar toward the election of Woodrow Wilson. If each Democrat will ponder over the matter and give it some thought they will be willing to lend a hand and subscribe for the fund that will help perpetuate the party that has accomplished so much for the people of the United States.

The names of the contributors will be published in The Herald each issue and your name should be written there if you are a loyal Democrat.

Petitions will be on file at The Herald office, at Woodruff & Watson's, at the office of J. N. Whitner and several will be circulated in the county in order that all who wish to contribute to the campaign fund for the re-election of Woodrow Wilson will be able to do so. The committee have already been assured of a nice sum to start the fund and it is hoped that Seminole will be among the leaders when the lists are published at the headquarters in New York city.

For any further information see any of the members or the chairman and the honor roll for good Democrats is open for your signature at any time within the next three weeks.

BUSY SUMMER IN SANFORD COMMITTEE IN BUILDINGS

NEW SCHOOLS, NEW CHURCHES, NEW FACTORIES NEW STORES

Sanford is experiencing no dull summer months there having been a greater amount of building here than at any time within the past two years. The new primary school, the addition to the grammar schools and other buildings for Sanford schools is under way in order to have them finished in time for the opening of the schools if possible. This work will total about $35,000 and will give Sanford one of the most complete school systems in the state, consisting of a magnificent high school building, a greatly enlarged and well equipped grammar school building and two primary school buildings, one for the east side and one for the west side.

Another great work of building and rebuilding is that of the Seminole Bank. The DeForest building recently purchased by the Seminole Bank and occupying one of the principal corners of the city, Magnolia avenue and First street is a two story brick building. The entire front, part of the side and the entire interior is being changed to fit in with the elaborate plans of the bank under the direction of the Muller Co. of Atlanta. A mammoth vault has been built, the lobby will be tiled and several big windows added to the building. The front will be embellished with four marble pillars making a very beautiful appearance and the exterior will be stuccoed to correspond with the marble effect. The second floor will also be remodeled for offices and this building will add greatly to the appearance not only of First street but Magnolia as well. The improvements alone will amount to about $20,000.

Another decided change in the business portion of the city is the new building on Park avenue being erected by N. H. Garner, consisting of two store rooms for rental purposes. The new building is of brick with tiled entrances and will be up to date in every particular with an estimated cost of several thousand dollars. Mr. Garner also recently built a first class brick garage on Magnolia avenue that adds to the business activity of this section of the city.

One of the big projects is the cold storage plant being erected by the Sanford Light & Fuel Co., at Rand's Siding. It is a reinforced concrete building, capable of holding 5,000 tons of ice. This addition to the plant of the Sanford Light & Fuel Co. will make it one of the largest and most complete ice and cold storage plants in the state. This new addition is made necessary by the fact that Sanford shipped last year some 4000 refrigerator cars from this station loaded with celery and lettuce and Sanford takes the palm for being the greatest winter vegetable section in the world, a claim that is substantiated by actual figures.

Supplementing the business blocks and cold storage plant are smaller buildings going up, all through the celery section among them being two mammoth warehouses for the F. F. Dutton Co., one on the east side and one on the west side to take care of the constantly increasing business of this firm.

The American Agricultural Chemical Co. is also erecting a large brick warehouse on First street at the intersection of Myrtle avenue to be used as a store house for fertilizers and supplies.

In fact, there are business blocks, warehouses and factories and dwellings being erected on all sides and with the prospects good for a new hotel this season and many minor improvements the city is busy indeed.

Aside from the business houses are the three new churches, the Baptist, the Methodist and the Presbyterian, all in the process of being finished at a total cost of about $75,000.

The Elk Club building that will be finished about November first is a beautiful building consisting of a large basement and two other stories that will be most comfortable and complete in every detail and will cost about $25,000 giving the Sanford lodge of Elks, a permanent home that will be a lasting monument to the memory of the builders. It will rank with the similar buildings of this order in any state of the Union and attract many visiting Elks here during the winter season.

Don't forget the Quality Shop will open September 15th.

BRICK ROLLING FOR SEMINOLE ROADS

WORK ON ORLANDO-SANFORD ROADWAY TO START AT ONCE

H. F. Roller, the genial representative of the Southern Clay Manufacturing Company who has charge of the brick road construction between Robinson Springs and the Orange county line is working on the city streets of Sanford this week. This does not mean that Mr. Roller has been sentenced by Mayor Davison to work on the streets but there were several places that needed relaying and Mr. Roller generously donated his force for the work to the city while he was awaiting the shipment of more brick for the county road.

He stated to a representative of The Herald this morning that the bricks were rolling and the teams of the Hand Bros. were piling them up along the road near Altamonte and as soon as sufficient bricks had been placed along the road to begin the work it would start, probably in the next ten days. Mr. Roller also stated that he had a force of men who would make the bricks fly and he expected to make a record for good work and fast work on the Sanford Orlando road. This road will be laid with the Southern Clay dun lug brick cement grouted and having a cement curbing and when finished will be one of the hand-somest bits of road construction in the county.

The bricks for the other road are also rolling and the road work all over the county will begin in a few days which will be good news to those who have waited so long for good roads.

MAE MARSH, IN NEW TRIANGLE PLAY, "A CHILD OF THE PARIS STREETS."

At Lyric Theatre Wednesday.

Paris Apaches, pleads with a judge for leniency for her son, who is charged with theft—but the judge is adamant and condemns the Apache to the galleys. Heartbroken, Mlle. Dufrane, who loves this boy better than her own life, retired to the den of the Apaches by the walls of Paris, waiting with a grim resolve to avenge herself. Later, with the assistance of her older boy, Mlle. Dufrane gains access to the home of the judge, kidnaps the judge's child, Julie, and escapes with it to the hang-out of the Apaches.

Years elapse and Julie has grown up in the environment of crime and squalor, a full fledged child of the Apaches. Mlle. Dufrane and her son devote their their to educating Julie in all the arts of the Apache gang. She is taught to steal with such expertness as to escape the shrewdness of the police. Always in Julie's criminal life, Mlle. Dufrane sees a living reminder of the revenge that she is perpetrating upon the judge.

Julie, with the instinctive refinement of the noble blood from which she comes rebels against the life that she is leading, and refuses to steal. For this she is severely beaten by Mlle. Dufrane, and threatened with the dire punishment which all traitorous Apaches receive, viz: death by strangulation. Made desperate by frequent beatings at the hands of Mlle. Dufrane, Julie packs her few belongings and runs away.

Having met a young artist of the Latin Quarter Julie goes to him for refuge. Returning from the carnival late at night, the young artist discovers Julie asleep in his room. From this time on, the artist attempts to protect and safeguard Julie, but she ventures out on the streets, and the Apache seizes and carries her back to their den. Mlle. Dufrane, her hatred aroused orders her band to strangle Julie.

Meanwhile, Julie's old nurse, who has been reduced to selling trinkets on the streets has seen Julie carried into the Apache den and warns the judge. Also the young artist learns of her danger, and rushes off with the gendarmes to the stronghold, where Julie is rescued just as the death.

Julie and the artist are united in marriage, with the blessing of the judge.

Pauline Frederick Superb in a New Role at Star

Stars as devoted mother in Famous Players adaptation of Henry Arthur Jones' "Lydia Gilmore."

If the impression has ever been gained that Pauline Frederick's interpretations of the great villainesses in "Zaza" and "Bella Donna," the Famous Players' Film Company's productions in which she scored such great personal triumphs, represent her only type of screen characterization, it will be dispelled when this Company's next Paramount Picture, "Lydia Gilmore," appears at the Star Thursday.

In this adaptation of the powerful dramatic successes by Henry Arthur Jones, Miss Frederick plays an entirely different type of woman—the loyal wife and devoted mother who goes through the mental tortures of the damned to save the name of her little boy from disgrace at the hands of his father. It is a tremendous role with compelling forcefulness with its every moment. Mrs. Gilmore is a sensitive, high-strung woman who is passionately devoted to her little son, Ned. The gradual cooling off of her husband's affections has slowly alienated Mrs.

Gilmore's love for him, and this pent-up emotion has been poured out in her adoration of the boy.

When the infidelity of her husband and his cowardly murder of the man he has wronged become known to her, Mrs. Gilmore, instead of giving way to her natural feelings of revenge and hatred for the man is overwhelmed by the one great desire to shield the name of her son from disgrace. So, for the sake of little Ned the mother perjures herself on the witness stand and wracks herself into total exhaustion while fighting to keep the name of Gilmore clean.

Wm. S. Hart in Play of the Great Northwest

William S. Hart, admittedly America's premier interpreter of rugged frontier types has the leading role in "The Primal Lure," Triangle Ince production of Vingie E. Roe's celebrated novel of the same name, adapted for the screen by J. G. Hawks of the Ince staff. It will be seen at the Lyric Theatre Friday.

"The Primal Lure" is an absorbing drama of life in the great Canadian north-east. It recited the stirring romance of Angus McConnell, a young Scotch Canadian factor, and Lois Le Moynes, daughter of a French settler at the post. It is replete with thrilling encounters with the Blackfeet Indians, and teams with a love interest rivaled in its appeal only by the picturesque beauty of the story's background.

Hart has the role of McConnell and he has invested it, it is declared with rare power. While the part is unlike that of "Blaze," Tracy in "Hell's Hinges" of Steve Denton in "The Aryan," it has provided the noted actor with the same opportunities for forceful characterization.

A small, though strong cast appears in support of Hart. It includes Margery Wilson as Lois Le Moynes and Robert McKim as Richard Sylvester, the villain of the story. The production was directed by Hart, under the Ince supervision.

Lyric, Friday.

MARGERY WILSON, IN NEW TRIANGLE PLAY, "THE PRIMAL LURE" At the Lyric Wednesday.

Lionel Barrymore in "The Quitter" Feature at the Star Tonight

In "The Quitter," the new five-act screen masterpiece produced by Metro Rolfe Photoplays, Inc., the eminent star, Lionel Barrymore has a totally different part from that of his previous picture, "Dorian's Divorce." Mr. Barrymore's wonderful versatility finds its fullest expression in "The Quitter" and his role has demanded of him a delineation that ranges from pathos to humor, with frequent touches of supreme drama.

"The Quitter," which was written by Izola Forrester, and directed by Charles Heran is a play of western ranch life, and Mr. Barrymore's character in it presents a decided contrast to the polished gentleman of affairs of his former production. Rough and ready, willing to fight a foe or give away every cent he owns to help a friend, "Happy Jack" Lewis is a part for the great delineator of character to reveal in. As Mr. Barrymore's opposite in this colorful picture of Paradise Gulch is pretty Marguerite Skirvin, a dainty actress new to Metro audiences, who will be remembered for many successes on the speaking stage.

The story of "The Quitter" sets forth how the miners of Paradise Gulch decide that some one must marry to relieve the monotony of the camp, so they make Happy

Jack the victim, and make him advertise for a wife who must be a blonde. Among the many answers one beautiful face glows like a star among the ugly ones—Glad Mason, whose life is being burdened by the obnoxious attentions of her employer, a mining promoter.

Glad goes to Paradise Gulch, but Happy Jack, making over to her his mine—and all his belongings, leaves in haste, the boys having told him an old hag has sent the picture.

How "the quitter" and the girl meet in spite of all handicaps, how his fortunes, completely depleted are restored in surprising fashion by Glad is told in a story which for atmosphere and swiftness of movement has seldom been matched. "The Quitter" has a smile and a tear for all.

Mae Marsh sets a new and amazing fashion in hair dressing in the Triangle play, "A Child of the Paris Streets," in which she plays the star parts.

Unusual Cast at the Star Friday

"The Victory of Conscience" has been selected as the title for the thrilling drama in which Lou-elle Gen, the distinguished dramatic will make his next appearance for the Jesse L. Lasky Company, at the Star on Friday, Sept. 8th. He is supported by Cleo Ridgley and an all star Lasky cast.

The Lasky Company considers "The Victory of Conscience" one of the most unusual photodramas that it has ever presented to the public. It tells a tense dramatic story in a most realistic way, of how two loving souls are brought together when they are separated by their religious vows.

Many scenes are laid in the prominent cafes of Paris.

"I Don't Want to Look Like An Esquimaux"

So declared Margery Wilson, but when she saw herself in New Triangle Hart play, she changed her mind.

Lyric, Friday.

Margaret Wilson who plays the leading feminine role in "The Primal Lure," Ince's Triangle Kay Bee feature, in which William S. Hart is starred, had but one worry during the production. This was due to the fact that she was called upon to don a suit of heavy furs, such as are worn by inhabitants of the Hudson Bay country. Her fear was that she would appear awkward and ungainly in the cumbersome attire. However, she persevered and found the furs warm and comfortable amid the icy blasts of the Santa Clara Mountains.

Each day the film exposed in making the scenes was shipped to Los Angeles and Miss Wilson had no opportunity to see how she looked. She considered her fears to Hart, but he reassured her. It was not until she arrived in Southern California and was admitted to the projection room at Inceville that she saw herself on the screen. As her companions uttered words of praise, she exclaimed, "Is that really me?"

Now she wears furs even on warm days and regrets that she is not an Esquimaux.

A MATTER OF TEETH

By HELEN MERRITT.

Miss Arabella was all in a flutter. When a woman, having attained the age of forty-five, unmarried and uncourted, suddenly begins to receive marked attentions from an eligible man, she may be pardoned for getting a little bit excited.

And Miss Arabella's life had contained so little love, so little personal interest, that the fact that someone thought enough of her to show her little attentions, bring her little gifts and defer to her timidly expressed opinions seemed to bring the dawn of a new existence.

Mr. Jenkins had come unostentatiously into his place at Miss Cross' boarding house two months before. At first, he had attended strictly to his own affairs, but as he was a gentleman of leisure, this soon grew monotonous. Then, in casting about for human companionship, he passed over the younger women and the girls and began to cultivate an acquaintance with Miss Arabella. First it was just short conversations in the parlor of evenings. Then it blossomed into offerings of a new magazine, a bunch of violets, or a box of candy. From this was a short step to an invitation to go occasionally to the picture show in the evening or for a walk in the nearby park on Sunday afternoon.

And now it was June, and the day after tomorrow would be Mr. Jenkins' birthday. And he had invited Miss Arabella, with an air which there was no mistaking, to motor with him to the beach for an evening dinner. The middle-aged wooper had not yet declared himself, but Arabella was morally certain that she would come back from the beach trip an engaged woman. Her heart—even at forty-five—thrilled at the prospect.

Alas for human hopes. On the very morning of the birthday, after Miss Arabella had timidly presented the gift she worked for her admirer with her own fair hands, she bites into a piece of hard candy taken from a box which Mr. Jenkins had brought her the evening before, and snapt went the plate of her upper teeth. They were beautiful, but deceitful teeth. Without them, Miss Arabella looked every one of her forty-five years.

Miss Arabella was in despair. But she did not ponder long over the situation. Stealing out of the house unseen, she hastened to the dentist who had made the teeth. He agreed to send the teeth before he closed up that night. Miss Arabella went back to Miss Cross.

Miss Arabella put in the afternoon watching the clock and praying that the dentist would not fall her. At 6:30, the automobile would be at the door.

At six o'clock, in the tasty new gown and hat reserved for the occasion, she heard a knock. She opened the door just enough to permit the dentist's boy to thrust in a small box. Then Miss Arabella breathed again. She hastily undid the paper, opened the box, took out the teeth—and almost collapsed on the spot.

They were not her teeth! They belonged to a much larger mouth evidently than Miss Arabella's. She gazed at them horror-stricken. Then she burst into tears.

Strange to say, in Mr. Jenkins' room a similar scene—minus the weeping and plus a few harsher words than Mr. Jenkins usually used—was being enacted. That very morning, Mr. Jenkins had broken off a front tooth. He had persuaded—not without difficulty—his dentist to repair the damage and deliver the teeth that night.

But they were not his teeth. Mr. Jenkins gave himself up to despair. And just at that moment the chambermaid knocked at his door and handed him a note.

It was from Miss Arabella. In terms of the utmost regret it announced that the writer, for reasons she could not explain, would be unable to help him celebrate his birthday that evening.

Mr. Jenkins spent a sleepless night, and the next morning he slipped out early to the dentist, with something little short of murder in his heart.

With the little box which had caused all his troubles clasped in his hand, Mr. Jenkins was laying down the law at a great rate when the door behind him opened. He turned—and confronted Miss Arabella.

A little box, the exact counterpart of the one he held, was clasped in her neatly gloved hand. She gave one despairing look at Mr. Jenkins. Then, faint for want of the food she had missed at dinner and breakfast, she sank helplessly into a chair.

Explanations followed, of course. Miss Arabella and Mr. Jenkins walked home together, both with their well-fitting teeth in place. The dinner was then and there declared postponed until the coming evening.

And that evening, when the bright moon revealed an automobile speeding over the road cityward, it also disclosed, on the back seat, a masculine form around a feminine waist and a feminine head on a masculine shoulder.

And suddenly Mr. Jenkins said fondly: "How foolish we were! Knowing we were going to live together all our lives, what did it matter?"

Miss Arabella did not reply. For the first time in all her starved and stunted forty-five years, she was tearing what it meant to be really happy.

FRANK HARRIS PROPHET

We would almost be willing to wager as much as a nickel that hereafter Brother Sidney J. Catts will cut out that part of his speech referring to Florida's "young girl graduates, with their clothes cut low at the top and high at the bottom, hanging around soda water establishments, trying to catch joy rides with society swells with little regard to whether they are single or married men."

You are a good prophet, Frank. He has already toned down his speeches and his friends here had him change his tactics considerably before he spoke here Saturday night. He not only failed to bring out his unjust criticism of the high school girls but said that you newspaper men who had so reported him on that speech were liars.

THE CRISIS HAS PASSED

The people of the United States breathed a sigh of relief on Sunday morning when the news was flashed over the wires that the great railroad strike had been called off. Such a catastrophe would have paralyzed the business of the nation and worked untold hardships upon all parties concerned.

And in the interim let us all rejoice that the crisis has passed. Let us all rejoice that a man like Woodrow Wilson is guiding the ship of state for we can rest assured that it will be guided safely through the shoals and despite the storms that seem to brew and break from all points of the world's compass.

WHAT IS A STANDARD WEEKLY?

What is a standard weekly? Practically all the weekly papers of the state come to this office and many of them do not contain a line of national or worldwide news. They are exclusively local and some of them models for papers of this character.

of you want a good subject on which to write, so try your hand on this—Arcadia News.

The Herald can best answer the question by referring to the make-up of the paper of each issue. The Herald is published in a community that wants national news, state news and local news and we are also obliged to give the farmers something good from time to time.

FLORIDA IS SAFEGUARDED

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH WATCHING OVER THE CITIZENS

Never before in the history of the state has the health of Florida's citizens been guarded with greater watchfulness than during the summer now drawing to a close.

Never before have the health boards, state and local, been more alert and never before have they had so fully the active and intelligent cooperation of physicians everywhere.

So far as is positively known at the present writing, not a single case of the disease has entered the state during the summer.

In the large centers of population in the state the general health of citizens appears to be quite up to the average for the season, and probably somewhat above the average in many communities.

Such conditions are particularly desirable at this season of the year which marks the near approach of the opening of the schools of the state, urban and rural.

The State Board of Health being in close touch with conditions in every part of infected centers and with the United States Public Health Service knows of no reason for postponing the opening of the schools beyond the usual date, in any city or community in Florida.

While it is probable that the danger of infection of infantile paralysis being spread from New York or other infected points may be slightly less than it was a month or six weeks ago, it is still an actual possibility.

The annual opening of the schools usually brings some slight increase in a few of the children's diseases, notably diphtheria, but this condition the doctors expect and prepare accordingly.

for not opening the schools at the customary times.

Florida has the reputation of being a state of abounding healthfulness. The reputation has been maintained, even enhanced, during the most trying period of 1916.

GREAT TIMES IN SANFORD LABOR DAY

TWO BALL GAMES ATTRACTED AN IMMENSE CROWD

Labor Day was a big day in Sanford and was celebrated in a most fitting manner. There were no parades or demonstrations but everyone celebrated just the same.

THE ORANGE

By LOUISE OLIVER.

Lucia stopped at Tony's fruit stand on her way home and bought a dozen oranges.

Gradually the bag softened with the dampness and clung like a plaster to the round, yellow spheres within.

Mike Kubelik, carter for Sellem & Hatch, was hauling a wagonload of oranges from the Bay street market to a West end branch.

Now when Lucia's bag broke, she, too, was crossing South avenue, and, moreover, it was at the same instant that Mike lost a wheel.

Already half a dozen urchins had gathered around and were filling jacket pockets as fast as they could.

Lucia, seeing no chance of reviving her bag into a semblance of use, decided to use her umbrella as a receptacle and closed it. Then she stooped and started deliberately to count a dozen oranges into its silk recesses.

"Hi there!" Mike came up bellicently flourishing his weapon. "You putta dem down."

"Let the lady alone," he said quietly. At the tone of authority Mike stepped back without another word and his whip fell.

"Go and attend to those boys and I'll get a policeman to help you," the newcomer said, and to Lucia, "Have you got all your property? If so, I'll help you out of this."

"I think I have. It was hard counting with that man shaking his fist under my nose," she laughed. "The oranges are all here in my umbrella."

"I've no other place to put them." "What's the matter with these deep pockets in my coat?"

"But you mustn't go home with me. I live—oh, ever so far."

"So much the better. There, and there, and there! I guess I've got them all," raising the umbrella.

At the door the oranges had to be transferred. "Won't you come in?" asked Lucia. "I'll get a dish for them."

"Thirteen!" he exclaimed. "By Jove, we've cheated the dogo."

PRES. WILSON CALLS TIME ON THE STRIKE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5.—The Adamson bill, giving the railroad men what they had asked for in the way of an eight-hour day, was signed by President Wilson in his private car at the union depot Sunday as he passed through Washington on his way to Hodgenville, Ky., to attend the Lincoln day celebration.

SIGNED EIGHT HOUR BILL ON TRAIN SUNDAY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5.—The Adamson bill, giving the railroad men what they had asked for in the way of an eight-hour day, was signed by President Wilson in his private car at the union depot Sunday as he passed through Washington on his way to Hodgenville, Ky., to attend the Lincoln day celebration.

None of the 'brotherhood leaders' witnessed the signing of the bill. They had expected to be present, but the President decided to attend to the business at the railroad station, and newspaper correspondents gave them their first information about it.

The district attorney heard the story, Mike was sent for and added his share to the testimony. Then John Emerson was allowed to depart.

The St. Louis Cardinals have offered to purchase or take in trade the great Ping Hodge, now with Harry Wolverton's San Francisco Coast leaguers.

Lee Fohl, as a cure for wildness, recommends glasses for Loudermilk. Yet many of the pitcher who has suffered because of too many glasses.

Larry Lajole is the only member of the tall-end Athletics who looks like a major league ball player, according to some of the critics in St. Louis.

Clark Griffith, manager of the Washington Senators, is chuckling to himself every time he thinks of how he was stopped from getting Joe Gedeon last fall. The Yanks' second baseman has proved a fiasco as a hitter.

To the great disappointment of every American league member, Tyrus R. Cobb is not a member of the National Guard of Georgia.

Somebody will wear out a warrant for those Cub pitchers pretty soon on a charge of vagrancy, since they have no visible support.

No; the leading professions won't be overcrowded with new college graduates as long as Conno Mack is trying to build a team.

Perhaps it was just common sense that enabled the Cleveland club to land Fred Beebe at the time they needed him so much.

In spite of the fact that Tillie Walker is hitting and fielding well, it is impossible for the Boston fans to forget Tris Speaker.

Centimey paid $11,000 for Eddie Murphy to Mack and $6,000 for Nemo Leibold to the Cleveland. Both are beach warmers now.

Colonel Ebbets declares that if Rube Marquard can hold his own in future the pennant chance of the Brooklyn team will be increased 25 per cent.

John McGraw, the Glavin boss, employs an effective though heuristics method to make his pastimers behave. He threatens to trade 'em to St. Louis.

It is ordained by the mayor and city council of the city of Sanford, Florida:
Section 1. That no person or persons shall park any motor vehicle on any street within the corporate limits of the city of Sanford any broken glass, nails, tacks, wire, gravel, granite, rocks, brick bats or other material that may cause damage to any way or any passing person or vehicle, or which may injure or damage the tires of any automobile.

An Ordinance Providing for the Working of Streets and Roads by Certain Persons

It is ordained by the mayor and city council of Sanford, Florida:
Section 1. That every able bodied man person over the age of sixteen years, and under the age of fifty years, who has been a resident of the city of Sanford, Florida, for a period of thirty days shall be subject and liable to work on the streets, roads and alleys in said city, as hereinafter provided.

Later the President and Mrs. Wilson took an automobile ride about the city.

It developed that the brotherhoods before being summoned to Washington by President Wilson, three weeks ago had agreed to call a strike effective August 20.

The orders they drafted were used when the strike was set for Labor Day. After having been printed in preparation for the proposed strike on August 20 they were locked in a vault in New York.

Hundreds of telegrams came to the brotherhood leaders at their hotel. Most of them were congratulatory, one or two were from locals who had received no notice that the strike was off, so in some far away sections of the country there may be temporary difficulties.

Morning Bridge Party

Among the many pleasant mid-summer social affairs was that of Mrs. R. J. Holly who entertained at bridge last Friday morning in honor of two visiting ladies of Tampa, both of them former residents of Sanford, Mrs. E. B. Brown and Mrs. Harry P. Driver. There were six tables for the players and as the sun was reaching the meridian the bell rang for cessation of play. In counting up it was found that Mrs. C. O. Old Favorite Returns

For several weeks it has been rumored among theatre circles and among the music lovers of Sanford that Al Witherington would return to Sanford and have charge of the orchestra at the Star. These rumors materialized into facts the other day when he really did come back. After a successful tour through the north and east that old homesick feeling came over him and that mad desire to come back and be among old friends again. He brought many copies of the latest music and with the assistance of Mrs. Houser they will furnish musical selections for the patrons of the Star through the winter.

Two Good Testimonials The following from "Thorn" in the Palm Beach Post is good dope on some of the patent medicines that are now filling the newspapers with testimonials: Perpetrators of Lantac: "Gentlemen: Your medicine was recommended to me through various ads telling how much had been gained by long, slim people throughout the state by a dozen bottles of your lankness exterminator. Being desirous of gaining I subscribed for twelve bottles of the liquid; but before I had absorbed the first six I found that I had gained 241 votes on the re-count! I am still swallowing the remaining six and anticipate that before they are extinct I shall have the extreme pleasure of gaining my nomination certificate. I certainly express (collect) my sincere thanks for the efficacy of your great reliever. W. V. Knott.

Compilers of the Great Lantac: In the name of Florida, Amen! Behold I was sick at heart and I was devoid of the coin of the realm! One of those who believe me to be the right bower, as well as game, presented me ten bottles (count them—ten) of your ever working dope—and advised me to shake and take. At once I shook and took—and look! Have I not gained that for which many have sought? And do I not yet have several bottles remaining? But a short time elapsed before I had gained a certificate of nomination; I had gained a large following; and the last two bottles brought forth a Ford! Kindly forward me one case (I presume the cases are the usual size—twenty-four bottles?) because I fancy I see on the horizon a cloud about as large as a ballot box which is blowing my way—and I desire to give it the high-ball. Yours with faith, Sidney J. Catz.

Billy Sullivan who is with the Detroit Tigers as instructor of pitchers, intends to make a star out of George Boehler.

Ed Reulbach failed to come to terms with the Pittsburgh Pirates and it is now announced that the Boston Braves will take him on.

No matter what is said of Roger Bfenanhan, no one can accuse him of overlooking a bet when in comes to getting the coin on his contracts.

The Washington club has another pitching prospect signed. He is Kenneth McGovern, a southpaw, who is now going to school at Knox college, in Illinois.

Helnie Zimmerman has cut out all of the frivolous mannerisms of the past and is going to get down to real ball playing from the very start of the year, he says.

Fritz Malsel, generally rated by the critics last season as the most valuable third baseman in baseball, has settled down to the task of developing into an outfielder.

Torty Turner, the low-headed veteran of the Indians' infield, is starting on his fourteenth season with the Cleveland club this year. He has outlived all his mates that started with him.

The Athletics this season may present Myers and Meyers as a battery. Myers is a pitcher recruited from the North Carolina league, while Meyers, the catcher, comes from the Three-I league.

Pitcher Stanley Dougan of the Cincinnati Reds is a protege of "Old Cy" Young. Dougan was a student at Ohio university, where Young is coaching, and Herzog has great hopes of his making good.

Cy Pieh was telling the boys about his first experience as a golfer. "I was up at Van Cortlandt Park," said Cy, "and I did so well that I surprised myself. It was the first time I ever had a cue in my hand."

Farmers and Fruit Growers

How About a Home Strawberry Patch?

No farmer lives as well as he should unless he raises all the fruit possible. That is why C. K. McQuarrie, state agent for the University of Florida Extension Division urges every farmer to have a strawberry patch for home use. About the first of the year newspapers will report the sale of the first ripe berries. The buyer will pay a handsome price for them, but the farmer can have some of the same kind for the trouble of raising them.

Plants set out during September or October will produce fruit early in January. If two or three varieties are planted and if the runners are kept pruned after the pickings, berries may be had until the first of June. Think of it, strawberries during five months of the year!

Mr. McQuarrie thinks that the Lady Thompson is probably the best variety for home use. The Klondike and Missionary are good also.

Kennard Believes in Purebred Cattle

G. T. Kennard, a farmer living in the Newberry section of Alachua county, pins his faith to purebred Angus cattle. A year ago he purchased five head of these animals. Now he has $200 in the bank and five head left. Is it any wonder that he believes in purebred stock? The young bull which is to head his herd took several prizes last winter at fairs and from his present promise he will repeat his record again this year.

Mr. Kennard was formerly a mule and horse dealer. He has been farming only a year or two, but he is one of the best farmers in central Florida. He has more than 300 acres of land and is acquiring more as he needs it. His plan is to make his cattle pay or his farm and thus far he has succeeded. Here is his plan. He buys a tract of cutover land and plants forage crops among the remaining timber. When the crops are ripe he turns his cattle in to harvest them. The following year he takes off the timber and plants other crops. Eventually the field is cleared of stumps as he has opportunity to do the work. Last year from all his operations he cleared more than $1,500. If present prospects materialize he expects to clear $3,000 or more. Of course he has more land in cultivation this year than last.

Concrete Tile Satisfactory When Properly Made Concrete tile may or may not be good. In most cases it probably is not good. This is not a fault of the material but of the making. There is a temptation in all sections where clay products are not available to substitute concrete. Making tile on the farm or purchasing it from some local concern seems attractive because either course eliminates freight charges and breakage which are incurred by importing clay tiles.

C. L. Willoughby, professor of animal husbandry in the University of Florida College of Agriculture, who has recently visited sections of South Florida report that farmers are interested in concrete tile. Some have tried concrete and have found that it disintegrates rapidly. This experience duplicates the investigations of the Michigan Experiment Station. Most concrete tile is not made so that it will withstand the percolating soil water. Soil water dissolves the cement and leaves the walls to crumble.

Reports of the Michigan investigations will be found in special Bulletin 75, Durability of Concrete Drain Tile, Michigan Experiment Station, East Lansing, Mich. The workers found that the walls of concrete tile must be practically impervious to water to be lasting. The trouble with such tile has been the fault of the manufacturer in not using good materials, in making porous tile and in not properly hardening the product. Specifications for making durable tile and for the quality of material will be found in the bulletin previously mentioned.

If a farmer buys manufactured tile he should demand an unqualified guarantee that it will endure and that the manufacturer will pay the expense of laying it if it proves defective.

CURE FOR AUGUSTINE GRASS

Fine Lawns are Being Destroyed by the Cinch Bugs in Florida

So many inquiries have come to this office regarding the ravages of an insect that is killing out the fine lawns in this city where the beautiful St. Augustine grass has been planted that we take pleasure in publishing the information below, obtained from the U. S. Bureau of Entomology: Cinch bugs have damaged St. Augustine grass so much in some sections that people are abandoning it as a lawn grass. The damage to which this pest causes amounts to thousands of dollars annually. In some parts of the state large areas have been wiped out in comparatively short periods. St. Augustine grass is one of the most valuable lawn grasses for Florida because it stays green the whole year, but it cannot withstand cinch bugs.

Control of these insects is cheap and easily effected by the use of contact insecticides. In a recent letter to a county agent, R. N. Wilson, of the United States Bureau of Entomology, gives the following methods of control: Spray or sprinkle the affected areas with a mixture of one part tobacco solution containing 40 per cent nicotine and 800 parts water. A little soap should be added as a spreader. Common laundry or high oil soap, 1 pound to 4 gallons of water also will control the insects.

Either of these mixtures may be applied with an ordinary sprinkling or watering pot or with a sprayer. The most important recommendation is that the mixture be applied thoroughly by dropping the infested sod heavily. It will be found advantageous to apply water before spraying. The bugs will not be found on the dead grass, and it is useless to make application there. Treatment will be effective only on dying grass and adjacent areas. Cinch bugs are sucking insects and consequently poisons intended for their consumption are useless. Contact insecticides only are effective.

Just recently the Pictorial Review conducted a contest on its magazine on "Who Gets the Most Out of Marriage." Following are a few extracts from the winning letter:
 "Matrimony is the greatest game of life. Most of us, in our gamble for happiness take a hand in it. Some few hold a royal flush—most of us do, not—but to win, one must play a poor hand well. History shows that all men were trapped into matrimony. There was Solomon with his eight hundred wives. They could not all have had pretty faces—surely there was a scarcity of stunning gowns in those days—certainly not all of the eight hundred cooked him a square meal. Why, then did he marry so many times? The eternal question—why? . . . Some men would like their wives to live by a new creed, based on the following ten commandments:

 "Remember the wedding anniversary to keep it—some way.
 "Thou shalt not forget that the faith cure is the only cure for jealousy.
 "Thou shalt not nag; Reno is not so far away, and the path thereto is well trodden.
 "Thou shalt not ask him, when he gets home late at nights, any whys or wherefores; you'll have all you can do to believe all he tells voluntarily.
 "Thou shalt go, if thou wilt, to the florist, the jeweler, the modiste for thy love, but not to the devil.
 "Thou shalt play the game of love as the game of cards; it is not the kind of a hand you hold, but the way that play it that counts.
 "Thou shalt remember that love is no century plant—but is like unto the fragile poppy in the wheat.
 "Thou shalt not forget that matrimony is the next longest thing to being dead.
 "Thou shalt not forget that the original commandment is—to love one another."

My old friend Thorndyke of the Palm Beach Post is willing to tackle anything one time and the following letter from "Annie" at Jensen is a fair sample of his wit and wisdom all slung together at one fell blow:
 "To the Man-in-the-Hole: Will you kindly tell me and other female women why MUST a man fib to us? Once a man said he believed God would forgive a man for a million lies told to the women to whom he was making love; and a married man once told me that he just HAD to lie to his wife—because she wouldn't believe him if he told her the truth! Now isn't that dreadful? Please tell me why."

 Most editors would have dumped "Dear Annie's" epistle in the waste basket, but not Thorndyke—he'll tackle anything—for he replies thusly:
 "See here, Annie, you dear girl—no one who really loved me would ask questions like that—for they are bound to lead me into trouble! I've had lots of these troublesome queries handed to me in times past—but those were days when I was charming and I didn't care. Of course there are a few of us who do not lie to our wives—but only a few. We know, and so do you know, how foolishly jealous women are—and why say anything that will stir the durn mess up?
 "If there is anything on earth that a married woman won't get jealous about—why lead me to it! I know a woman who was jealous because her husband named his auto "Nellie"—and she made him change it to Bill—when it wasn't that sort of a car at all. She wasn't going to have him come home at so much o'clock and gloat over the fact that "he'd been out with Nellie!" Not if she knew herself as she thought she did. Nossir! I actually knew a woman in Colorado who cried herself almost into a sick fitness because her hubby who was some play-er told in his sleep one night that "Kitty" had cost him the night before some eighteen dollars! I really hope Annie that you can catch the drift of this; if not, please call at my office."
 "When a man is "making love" to a woman—either married or unmarried—he doesn't have to lie; because if he's good at the business he can tell the truth even, so it will listen good. Of course I never was good at it because I was so timid—but I had a brother that could cut some wide swath with his noise—and he's told me how. It's after he gets his love all made that he has to make most of his trips with dimmers—you know what I mean, Annie.
 "Take a man when his wife's gone to the country and he's staying home and working and toiling and trying to make at least one end meet. If he should write to the aforesaid sharer of his board and pillow that he was "having the time of his life"—which he usually does until the neighbors get on to it—well, she'd coming home at a speed that would make a hundred miles an hour auto look as if it was backing into the garage. It would make her so unhappy and peevish that hubby would have to go out in the back yard every time he had to blow his nose lest he should disturb her train of thought and language! That is one of the reasons why a man lies to his wife. There are six hundred and fifty four others—but, really, I have not the time.

 "While this is no beauty column, Annie, I am always glad to offer any pointers which may happen to come to me regarding the fair sex. And right now I would suggest that a good way to avoid sun burn is to keep your son away from the fire."
 The Daytona News recently preached a little editorial sermon on the poverty of old age and quoted J. S. Knox of Cleveland, as saying that 97 per cent of the people of the United States are dependent on their friends, relatives or charity at the age of 65 years, that in other words only three per cent are secure when they grow old.
 According to the News the reason given for all this is that the people of the country squander too much money. Tobacco, drinks, movies, jewelry, automobiles and over-dressing cost around five billion dollars a year, to say nothing of chewing gum at thirteen millions and candy at two hundred millions.
 While it is undoubtedly true that far too many people are dependent in their old age and that some of this may be due to extravagance, yet the statements made above are undoubtedly overdrawn, and aside from all that, the great majority of the people who reach the age of sixty-five without enough of their own to keep them in ease and comfort are not required to be ashamed of this fact. In many cases they have performed more real service to their country than those who have accumulated enough stocks and bonds to make age a pleasure.
 Confirmed bachelors and spinsters are much more apt to have snug bank accounts in their old age than people who have married and reared families. And those who raise respectable families certainly have something coming to them in the way of comfort and esteem in their declining years.
 The man who works six or seven days a week at a modest wage to rear and educate his family may not lay up a big bank account, even in these days of temporary war prosperity, but he is a valuable citizen just the same. And the same thing is true of the mother who suffers, and epeaks, and sews, and performs other deadening household duties that this same family may come into the world and increase the sum total of the world's wealth and the world's energy.
 People like this do not spend billions in the aggregate in automobiles, high balls, Havana tobacco and over dressing and yet they are apt to come into old age depending on the loved ones whom they have reared. Usually this dependence is not in vain; when the call of filial gratitude remains unheard the fact is a blot on modern civilization.
 Nobody will dispute the fact that wasting money on booze, an excess of tobacco, too many fine clothes, and too many automobiles is a bad thing, but this will not explain away the fact that so many people are not self supporting in old age, as the world commonly views the term self supporting; although as we have just seen most of those wanting sufficient bank accounts have earned their support in a hundred priceless ways in earlier years.
 Economy is of course to be practiced, but this does not mean that we are to go back to pioneer ways or pioneer ways of living. The time of coal oil lamps and corduroy roads has gone never to return.
 There will always be old age poverty in the world for the reason that some are reckless and extravagant and that still more lack the keen business acumen which spells success. No scheme has ever been or ever will be devised to make a man opulent in spite of himself. The best that can be done to give every man, in his best years, the opportunity of making a living, not only a living, but a chance at that extra dollar which is to grow until it forms a bulwark against the rainy day. Until every man is assured, that chance, and until the service of rearing strong sons and daughters is justly realized as an important service rendered the state we shall probably hear a great deal about poverty in old age being due to the extravagance in youth. In many instances this will of course be true, but in a great many more instances we will have to search deeper for the cause.
 And above all let it be remembered that it avails little to advise a man to save his money unless we give something more than a mere living wage. He must be regarded as something more than a consumer.

His Future Home Apparent.
 The man who says he was never married, all his life ought to begin right now to be afraid of what eternity holds for those who do not tell the truth.
 Nell, Gwyn's Choice.
 An old friend was being shown over a country seat in North Wales which is famous for its fine pictures. One of these was a portrait of "Nell Gwyn, after Sir Peter Lely." The old dame gazed at this picture with marked interest. "So that's the hussey, is it?" she remarked presently; "but I always thought it was King Charles II who was after."—Cardiff Western Mail.

SOME CROWD AT GAMES--1,000 PEOPLE

$5000.00 ALREADY BEEN USED BY ORLANDO CLUB

"MUTT" WILSON TWIRLS NO-HIT NO-RUN GAME, ONLY FIVE MEN REACHED FIRST BASE--"HOME RUN" BELL GETS HIS USUAL HOMER--MOSLEY IN FORM ALSO

In one of the greatest pitching battles ever witnessed this season Orlando went down in defeat to the tune of 3 to 0. To "MUTT" WILSON goes the credit. To twirl a no hit game and only allow five men to reach first base is what we call PITCHING BALL. Up until the eighth inning only two Orlando men had reached the initial sack. In the eighth round with three errors made, the Orlando club filled the bases and with only one down SCHUYLER hit into the PRETTIEST DOUBLE PLAY you would have ever cared to see. Brinson handled the ball in a Chase, and relayed it to Chapman ending up the only bad whole that Wilson was in. "MUTT" deserves a whole lot of credit for his brilliant work in the box. The first four innings was one, two, three and in the fifth inning the Orlando club was retied on four pitched balls. The game could have been a little better from a fielding standpoint as Sanford piled up five errors behind their NO HIT PITCHER, while Mosley had to be contented to see his boys blow three. What looked like a MERKLE to the writer was when Robinson was on third. Taylor in making an attempt to catch Moore threw wild and Robinson scored, BUT ROBINSON could have shaken hands with Taylor when he threw the ball. But that's good work on the part of Honest John. Third base looked twenty miles away from the Orlando boys, for they never knew it was ever a third sack laid out on a ball diamond until the eighth inning. When the Sanford boys through generosity allowed three men to get on errors. An extraordinary catch by Paul Cobb in deep right center was the fielding feature of the game. It was the best seen this season without any flowers attached to either. Chapman also starred behind bat. This boy gets very little credit from any source whatsoever, but day in and day out he's the same steady player all the time Chapman's plays is uncomparable. He gets them off the Orlando grandstand and picks them off the Sanford walls, very seldom ever missing a foul fly. Who won the game? Why Home Run Bell did. He hit one over the AUTOMATIC fence that caused a couple of ladies sitting near to the writer to go into hysterics. She says that it is absolutely outrageous for the Sanford players to hit home runs over that fence and that the last time she saw a home run hit by an Orlando player was back on July 8th when Dillinger secured one. She can't understand why Sanford hits so many home runs over the fence. Well, our boys hit 'em where they AIN'T, while the Orlando boys hit 'em where they are. That makes a big difference. Brinson scooped up several out of the dirt and so did Obst. But the playmate fool of the whole lot was "Dutch" Spitznagle, the star second sacker of the Orlando club. Spitz made several good stops that broke up one or two started rallies. Spitz grabbed one in the fourth that looked impossible to get, but he got the ball and threw his man out in plenty of time. Below is the box score of the NO HIT AFFAIR:

Score by Innings

LABOR DAY GAMES WERE VERY CLOSE

GREAT CROWD WAS OUT ROOTING ON FIRST BASE LINE BY SANFORD'S "MILLIONAIRE SPORTS" FEATURED

Orlando defeated Sanford in the morning game by a score of 6 to 5. Sanford citizens had the pleasure of seeing the Orlando pitching staff work in this game, in order to stop the onslaught of the Sanford hitters. Manager Schuyler sent in Cox to start off with. He had to retire in the 4th inning on account of a sore arm (SO THEY SAY). Decatur then grazed the mound with his smiling countenance, but as the game gradually went his smile vanished for after "Home Run" Bell and "Slugging" Jim Moore had secured homers off his delivery he was then yanked in favor of the wonderful BURMEISTER. Then Burmy worked the eighth and ninth innings, and as the game was tied when he went in, he gets credit for winning the game. In the ninth Gooch reached first, was sacrificed to second, and was later scored by a long double by "Dad" Chambers, in sliding into third while trying to stretch his double into a three bagger. "Dad" sprained his ankle. It is to be hoped that he will be back in the game in the near future. Palmer worked for Sanford but his delivery was somewhat solved by the Orange county boys, though he is to be blamed a little for the defeat. His support was also a little off. Bell, Moore and Dillinger led the hitters, the two former players securing home runs as was mentioned before. A good sized crowd witnessed the morning game. Below is the box score:

WILSON-BURMEISTER ENGAGE IN PITCHERS DUEL HONORS EVEN

The second game was played before a record breaking crowd, the largest that has witnessed any game this season. Orlando pinned their hopes of winning the game on their highly priced star, Burmeister, while the Sanford management always sticking by the post and to hell with the high priced stars sent in "Mutt" Wilson to look after the interests of Seminole county. Did he do it? Well, he so far outshined his opponent that there was no comparison between the two boys' work. In the fourth inning Orlando scored four runs and from then on they were absolutely helpless.

For seven long innings "Mutt" Sidekick of Jeff was invincible. His team mates accorded him air-tight support from the seventh inning on. Burmeister started off like a house afire with no water in sight to put it out but along about the fourth inning the Sanford Sluggers got busy and sent the "Emery Ball" pitcher's curves to all corners of the lot. The Sanford boys gradually made runs one at a time until the seventh inning arrived, then unstepped the star left fielder of the Sanford club, better known as "Buddie" Burdick, who connected with one of Burmeister's emery balls and sent it sailing over the left field fence. Bob Schuyler, manager and left fielder of the Orlando club cussed and was very much dissatisfied with the short fence and to see the ball go over and tie up the score was too much for the fleet footed Bob to take. The Sanford infield worked very well after the fifth inning and it was a case of death with any player who hit a ball in the direction.

Below is the way it happened.

ORLANDO HAS SURE SPENT THE MONEY

FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS SPENT IN TRYING TO GET A WINNER EVERY PLAYER IS UNDER ESTIMATED--18 MEN THROWN IN AT $680.00

After working several days on compiling figures we find that the Orlando Base Ball Association has spent nearly $4,000 in their vain attempt to get a winning team, or rather a team that would be able to defeat Sanford. Of course it does not reach quite the $4,000 mark but by Sept. 15th it will soar over that figure, for by the time the Orlando club purchases Filligrim, and a couple of other South Atlantic Leaguers it will reach the $50,000 mark. It doesn't seem possible for a club not in organized base ball to spend such a large amount of money all in the course of three months' playing, but such is the case. In looking over the figures compiled, the writer has estimated the players on a basis of $5.00 less than they are actually receiving for their work. This was done so as not to cause any come back from the Orlando papers. Look carefully over the salaries and you will very readily agree that the players were underestimated. The time the players started playing up to their release is also compiled:

Below is the way it happened.

Player	Start	End	Salary
Peral	June 13	to Sep. 15	$40.00 for three months, total $160.00

This item includes telegrams which was spent in trying to get the players to come to terms. Base ball used for the season, two new balls a game used. League balls are worth $10.00 a dozen, total $85.00. In conclusion there has not been a dance, tag day or anything else that has helped the Sanford Association out. And still Sanford has always been able to handle Orlando pretty damn well when it comes to this base ball question.

to see his teammates make seventeen errors behind him. Pope and Cecil worked in the box for Orlando; both had plenty of speed and good control. They also received pretty good support. Only four errors were made by the Tigers. This boy QUINA secured four hits out of four trips to the plate. Hudson also had a good day at the bat, getting two hits out of as many trips to the plate. His tree bagger to the fence was an awful good hit. The Sanford infield gave Bob Jr. very poor support. Faratus on third made four errors in one inning. Moyer behind the bat also made five errors, while Bob himself had five to his credit. Parrish on short made two errors, so all Orlando scored two earned runs.

DECATUR HAS GOOD RECORD THIS SEASON

SINCE LEAVING THE SOUTH ATLANTIC--ORLANDO STAR HAS TWIRLED EXCELLENT BALL ONLY SIX PASSES ISSUED

Below is a record of Arthur Decatur, star pitcher of the Orlando club. One of his most noticeable features of his record is his control. Only six men were given free transportation out of 10 games pitched. It is a little over 10 games for Decatur has worked in four extra inning games. One 11 inning game, one 13 inning game, one 12 inning game and a 10 inning game. All totaled up gives him 11 games 6 innings. He has struck out 71 men and average of 7 men a game, while he has allowed 83 hits, an average of 7 hits a game. All in all his record since leaving the South Atlantic League has been a very good one. Since leaving the South Atlantic League his one weakness which was control, has been greatly improved on. Below is his complete record compiled by the Herald writer up until Sept. 1st:

The feature of the game was the infelding of McLucas of the White Sox and Sydney on first for the Tigers. McLucas also led the CROOKS in stealing bases. This kid stole five bases second and third twice.
