> An assessment team consisting of civil defense and public safety personnel began touring Seminole County about 11 a.m. to determine the over-all structural damage from the hurricane. The team is compiling a list of reported damage estimates on all commercial and residential buildings in Seminole County to turn over to Florida Gov. Bob Graham.

Persons who wish to report damages are asked to call 323-4330, extensions 261,263, or 264. Sanford Public Works Director A.R. Kelly said he was "surprised" by the lack of damage from the storm.

"There was hardly any damage at all," Kelly said. He said there were a number of trees down and a canopy at the Wareco Service Station on French Avenue was damaged. But the

At Hurricane David Some Mad, Glad, Some Indifferent

For reporter J. Paul Wyatt, who leaned against the door of a phone booth to prevent it from flying open as he filed his story, Hurricane David was deadly serious business.

But for a barefoot couple who walked hand-in-hand along the Palm Beach oceanfront snapping Polaroid snapshots of each other after the hurricane swept through it was a social occasion. Some Floridians lost their tempers, others were remarkably good-humored and others just made the best of it as David hopscotched along Florida's southeast coast Monday.

As Wyatt chased the hurricane northward, his pickup truck almost blew off the road, he narrowly avoided becoming a storm casualty when a street light toppled in front of him and he swerved off the road to avoid another falling pole and two lights. Phil Long, the Miami Herald's Vero Beach bureau chief, was relentlessly punching the details of David's sweep through Indian River County into his computer terminal, when a savage gust of wind tore away the door of his office.

The steel superstructure of the Palm Beach jai alai fronton collapsed Monday under the pressure of the winds. The roof of the Ambassador condominum at Cocoa Beach and the Day's Inn motel at Stuart were both carried away by gusts, police said. At Lake Worth, a sudden wind gust clipped off the 75-foot broadcasting tower of WJNO, a West Palm Beach radio station. They planned to use their FM tower to resume broadcasting. Cocoa's WKKO had similar problems at 11:30 p.m. Monday when its 260-foot tower was swept over by high winds. News Director Bob Garret said he expected the station to resume broadcasting within a week. Mostly the hurricane-force winds proved more of a nuisance Much of the damage reported consisted of porch screens ripped away, downed traffic signals and highway litter. Florida's scenic coastal highway, A-1-A, was blocked in spots as sand and debris as well as the overflowing Atlantic settled onto the roadway. Weather-wise pelicans claimed squatters' rights in many spots along the highway, sitting out the bad weather. Gucci, on ritzy Worth Avenue, lost its big decorative bougainvillea bush. And many of the kingly palms along historic Royal Palm Way were chopped off at the ground.

The Ordeal Of A Dancer

Our government was right to insist that a Russian jetliner be held on the ground in New York until we could be sure a Russian woman dancer aboard the plane was not being forced to return to Russia against her wishes.

Her husband, Alexander Godunov, also a dancer had defected from the Bolshoi ballet company, now touring the United States. He said she might want to stay in this country with him.

The circumstances created a reasonable doubt that the woman dancer, Ludmila Vlasova, did in fact want to return to Russia.

It was suspicious when she was not allowed to confer with U.S. authorities to convey her wishes to them. Over that weekend, the Soviet authorities refused to permit such a private conference.

They refused to free her from her government's iron-fisted control. We stood firm. Then they relented. The dancer told the American officials that she really wanted to go home. And she was, of course, permitted to go.

We know now that that was what she really wanted. We had to know. No matter how much the Russians objected, our government was responsible for protecting her human rights while she was present on our soil. There can be no shirking such

A Hero Passes

Anyone setting out to sketch the archetypical 20th-century British hero would likely have ended by describing the remarkable life of Lord Louis Mountbatten. With his murder, apparently at the hands of Irish terrorists, another of World War II's legendary figures passes into history.

Born to royalty and wealth in the twilight of Britain's Victorian age. Lord Mountbatten was always a man of his time whether serving as a sea cadet in World War I, a destroyer captain in the opening battles of World War II, commander of all allied forces in Southeast Asia by war's end. Britain's last viceroy and first governor general of India after independence, first sea lord during the 1950's, and, finally, defense minister in the early Controversial and outspoken as he was, Lord Mountbatten's ability and dedication to the task at hand were never questioned. His personal integrity, like his courage, were unassailable. No doubt these personal qualities contributed to his enduring popularity, even among the severest critics of British royalty.

Historically, Lord Mountbatten's career spanned the decades of Britains's decline from world power to the status of junior partner in the European Community and the American-dominated Atlantic alliance. Not the least of his services to his country was the grace and honesty with which he faced that

Lord Mountbatten was 79 and enjoying a vigorous retirement when he was apparently targeted for assassination by Irish extremists. What they could posibly hope to gain by his death can only be imagined. But neither they nor anyone else can dim the luster of a dramatic life, usefully lived in the kind of tradition that made Britain

Are Into The Birds

By WILLIAM STEIF The office bird-watcher was ecstatic.

Hehad just received a copy of "Migration of. Birds", newly updated from the classic work by Frederick C. Lincoln and first published in 1935. The last time this book was revised and published by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service was in 1950. It sold over 140,000 copies and has been out of print for years. Now the Fish and Wildlife Service has done it again, and the result is one of the handsomest, most interesting publications the U.S. government ever put out. It is a compact 120 pages, including bibliography and a list of nearly 200 birds mentioned in the text. It is beautiful, with fine color illustrations, maps and charts. It is complete, with concise, easily understood explanations of everything you ever wanted to know about bird migrations, It abounds in fascinating details. For example: - A grey-checked thrush captured on the University of Illinois campus had a 2.5-gram transmitter (a penny weighs 3 grams) attached to it and was followed straight across Chicago and up Lake Michigan on a continuous flight of

- V-shaped flocks of Canada geese conserve energy by creating favorable air currents for every flock member but the leader. When the leader tires it often changes place with a goose

- The Arctic tern is the world's champion long-distance flier, breeeding in North America's polar region and turning up months later 11,000 miles away in Antarctica. More than that, it calls for a quick whistle as soon as any loss dropped Houston out of quarterback is in the grasp of his opponent, and basically, what first place, one-half game this means, is you won't see quarterbacks getting their brains scrambled or being drilled into the ground so much anymore by enemy tacklers. SPORTS IN BRIEF

Pearson Ponders Quitting As He Roars To 500 Win

DARLINGTON, S.C. (UPI) - Veteran David Pearson, often called the "Silver Fox" because of his shock of prematurely grey hair and his wily racing tactics, says this may be his final year on the stock car circuit. Pearson posted a two-lap victory Monday in the Southern 500, NASCAR's oldest event, but he said racing is less fun now than it once was. "I don't enjoy it as much as I used to," he said. "Darrell Waltrip was driving a lot harder than I wanted to when he spun out. If I'd run that hard, I probably would have messed up."

It was his ninth career win at Darlington International Raceway and one that saw Pearson use his standard tactics - waiting patiently for three other leaders, including Waltrip, to spin out or develop engine trouble before sliding into the lead.

It first appeared that Waltrip might coast to victory after taking the lead at the 235th lap in the 500-mile event on the 1.366 mile track, but his Chevrolet nicked the wall in the second turn, allowing Pearson to come from a lap behind to claim the lead.

Pearson, averaging 128.269 mph, collected $25,200 from the $250,000 purse for the win, and Bill Elliott, in second place two laps back, claimed $15,440.

Newman Wins Again

LIME ROCK, Conn. (UPI) - Actor Paul Newman stretched a winning streak to eight and wrapped up two divisional road racing championships Monday with a pair of victories in a Sports Car Club of America event at Lime Rock Park.

The performance moved the actor-driver into the SCCA national championships at Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 27-29. Newman scored his eighth consecutive victory in the Budweiser Datsun 200-SX in the B Sedan class and followed with a wireto-wire triumph in a Datsun 280-ZX, a class C Production sports car.

Electrifying Show

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) - Four spectators suffered an electrical shock and minor burns Monday while watching a precision parachute jumping show during a break at the U.S. Nationals drag racing championships.

Steve Earwood of the National Hot Rod Association said the injuries resulted after one spectator lost balance on the top row of the grandstand and grabbed an electrical wire to prevent a fall. The spectator, John Tolleson, suffered shock and burns. The other three persons, including a small girl, suffered burns when Tolleson was grounded to the grandstand seats and the current flowed through the metal structure.

Angels Buy Harper

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) - The California Angels Monday purchased the contract of catcher Brian Harper from their Double A El Paso farm club, boosting their Harper, 19, will play for the Angels behind starter Brian Downing and Tom Donohue.

Vance: Russian Troops In Cuba A Threat

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer

WASHINGTON- Secretary of State Cyrus Vance told the Washington press corps today that the presence of Soviet troops in Cuba may seriously affect U.S.-Soviet

While Vance issued a statement on the Soviet troops, he declined today to issue a position statement, saying he will be conferring with the Russians over the next few days. It had been reported this morning that while no ultimatum would be issued as in previous Cuban-Russian problems, it was expected U. S.-Russian trade agreements might come under scrutiny. Vance today, however, would not be specific in that regard. Here is the statement issued by Vance: "Let me begin with a few comments on the presence of a Soviet combat brigade in Cuba.

"We regard this as a very serious matter affecting our relations with the Soviet Union. The presence of this unit runs counter to long held American policies. "The identification of this unit as a Soviet combat force has recently been confirmed by our intelligence community. They have now concluded that this force has been in Cuba since the mid 1970's. Reanalysis of old fragmentary data in the light of more recently acquired information suggests that elements of a Soviet brigade may have been there since the early 1970's and possibly

"The process of reanalyzing our earlier information

continues. The unit appears to consist of 2,000 to 3,000

personnel and includes motorized rifle batallions, tank and artillery batallions and combat and support elements. "These figures are separate from the Soviet military advisory and technical military personnel in Cuba which we now estimate at between 1,500 and 2,000. The specific mission of the combat unit is unclear. There is no air or sea lift capability associated with the brigade which would give it an assault capability. "Nor is the presence of this unit covered by our bilateral understandings with the Soviets in 1962 or 1970.

"Nonetheless the presence of a Soviet combat unit in Cuba is a matter of serious concern. "I will be pursuing this matter with the Soviets in the coming days. I will be discussing this issue with the Senate foreign relations committee this afternoon and setting forth the approach we plan to take with the Soviets. We will keep the press and the public informed to the fullest extent we can as we proceed."

Mitchell Defeats Goldberg

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer

Political leaders from all parts of Longwood, some from outside the city, plus friends and supporters, gathered at the Winsor Manor home of Bill Mitchell on Tuesday night to celebrate his election win to a city commission seat. Mitchell, in an intensive campaign, especially during the last few days prior to the election, upset two-term commissioner Larry Goldberg for the district five seat

Goldberg only two weeks ago resigned his post on the council on the orders of Circuit Judge Richard Muldrew, who had threatened the official with jail if he failed to

And Mitchell used the issue in his campaign. In a letter to the people, Mitchell, who had supported Goldberg, said. "He (Goldberg) resigned because a judge told him that he had defied the law long enough and he must quit or go to jail. He missed his jail sentence by only seven hours. Sadly, all of the legal expenses incurred by my opponent for the various legal manipulations to delay his resignation until the last minute were paid for with your tax dollars. What a waste of your money. What a deplorable example for a so-called city father to set for Promising "honesty and hard work" on behalf of the people's interests, Mitchell had asked that the residents vote against "politics as usual" on Tuesday. The legal controversy stemmed from Goldberg's remaining in office after he moved out of the district from which he was elected. The former city charter in effect for a decade had required a commissioner to live in the district he represented. The new city charter, promoted by Goldberg and adopted a year ago, also requires a commissioner to live in the district he represents or face removal from office. Goldberg said he moved out of his district either just before or just after the charter election. When City the effective date up two weeks. Mitchell's widespread support was shown at his victory party Tuesday night. Celebrating with him were State Rep. and Mrs. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood; Republican state committeeman, Fred Streetman; Former Mayor Gerard Connell; Barton, City Commissioner J. Russell Grant, Police Chief Greg Manning. Aslo aiding Mitchell in his campaign were past Council Chairmen James Brown and Percy White and former Public Works Director Ralph

Fisher had attributed the loss of his job with the city a public works director to Goldberg. Also dropping in on Mitchell during the victory party was Commissioner Ray Leibensperger, long a Goldberg ally on the city commission. Only 23.4 percent of the city's electors, 725, cast ballots in the election, the first held in the county using the county's new punch card voting system. But City Clerk Linda Martin attributed the low turnout to the stormy weather in the days preceding the election and on the rainy weather on election day itself.

The results were tallied by the county computer at the Seminole County courthouse Tuesday evening. Goldberg campaigned for re-election even on election day when his supporters dropped campaign literature into the mailboxes at many homes.

In delaying his resignation, Goldberg said it was his duty to remain in office while the city commission was thrashing out the 1979-1980 budget. After the judge's order and Goldberg's resignation, the city commission was unable to raise a quorum for the Aug. 27 meeting. Mitchell is to take office at next Monday night's city commission meeting. The fifth city commission seat, the one Goldberg vacated, is to be filled at the regular election
