Did He Rat On Competitor? Only Collins Knows For Sure

Herald Staff Writer

Does Jerry Collins, the 73-year-old self-professed granddaddy of Florida greyhound racing, have a hand in a state investigation into activities at the Super Seminole Greyhound Park?

Some officials of the Casselberry track think so. But Collins - owner of the Sanford-Orlando and Surasota kennel clubs -- vehemently denies

The Collins connection surfaced Thursday following a news report that state Division of Pari-mutuel Wagering investigators are looking into the possible link between Super Seminole and John Newton Fountain Jr., a convicted felon who played a major role in the design and construction of the track.

Some Super Seminole personnel claimed Collins leaked the story to the press.

"That's all bullchips," Collins snapped. "I don't tip nobody off. I say what I think, I don't sneak around and do It."

The antipathy between Collins and Super Seminole dates back more than a year when he, along with owners of the Daytona Beach Kennel Club, filed a lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of a 1980 law allowing Super Seminole to convert from a horse racing facility to a greybound track. If the suit is successful, it could force the Casselberry track to close.

The conversion law was attacked as unconstitutional on several legal fronts. On June 18, Seminole Circuit Judge Kenneth Leffler agreed and ordered the track to shut down. The state, seeking to protect its multimillion dollar taxing stake in Super Seminole's continued operation, appealed to the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals. The move, in essence, suspended Leffler's order to rease operations.

The case is still pending before the Daytona Beach-based appellate three miles away) run winter races. If state investigators find serious improprieties at Super Seminole, the track could loss its racing permit, a possibility Collins said he would welcome as "justice".

"That track is not supposed to be running. They're illegal. But I'm not going to stoop to behind-the-scenes shenanigans to get them closed," he

But that's just what Super Seminole publicity director Jim Haynes hinted Collins has done with the supposed John Fountain leak.

Pari-mutuel division officials have confirmed part of their probe involves a possible link between Fountain and the track, but that's all they will say.

Sources claim investigators want to know exactly what role Fountain played in the track's development, whether he has any financial interest in the facility, and what part, if any, he plays in the on-going operation of the track.

Fountain, 49, was convicted in 1972 of federal conspiracy and gambling law violations and has been banned by the state from all pari-mutuel operations in Plorida. He was sentenced to three years in federal prison and spent five months in 1976 at the federal penitentary at Eglin Air Force Base near Ft. Walton Beach on the Gulf Coast,

Following publication of the story, Haynes issued a statement defending Fountain, his relationship with Super Seminole, and hurling a thinly-disguised barb at Collins. The statement read:

"John Fountain was highly instrumental in the design, construction, and work leading up to the opening of Super Seminole. He acted on behalf of Demetree Industries (Jack and Bill Demetree are principal owners of the track) and we feel he did a remarkable job in converting a drab horse track into a showplace.

"He is not presently licensed, employed or otherwise retained in any manner in the operation of the track. His job was finished the morning we opened, May 4. In fact, he has not been at the track since racing commenced.

"We have heard various rumors, but we regard them as having originated from those who have cherished their monopolistic stance in greyhound racing and are legends in their own minds."

Haynes also wondered aloud if it was Collins who conxed, ca joled, or pressured the pari-mutuel division into launching its investigation. Division director Gary Rutledge termed such musing "ridiculous." And Collins vowed he "had no hand

"I have no information to give them," Collins said. "I haven't been asked to testify, I don't know what's going on out there (Super Seminole) and I don't care."

Collins also denied reports that he is trying to undermine Super Seminole by informing greyhound owners if they run their dogs at the Casselberry track, they will not be allowed to race at his tracks in Longwood and Sarasota.

"I didn't tell nobody nothing like that," he said. "I've got 25-30 kennels waiting to get in my place. I don't need to try and strong-arm people into racing with me."

City's Hospital Hopes Conflict With Bed Need

By JANE CASSELBERRY And DIANE PETRYK Herald Staff Writers

Longwood's desire for a hospital notwithstanding, a health advisory group says all of Seminole County will need only 56 more medical-surgical hospital beds by 1986.

Those beds and 22 psychiatric beds will be needed in the county in the next five years, according to an amendment to the regional Health Systems Plan approved Thursday night by the Health Systems Agency of East Central Florida. (HSA-ECF).

The amendment may impede two independent proposals to construct a hospital in Longwood since the proposals call for two and three times the number of medical-surgical beds deemed necessary by the group.

update the Health Systems Plan in response to the new census, said Kim Beaton, HSA-ECF executive director.

The HSA-ECF is part of a nationwide network of federally mandated health advisory groups serving Seminole, Orange, Brevard and Osceola countles. HSAs are charged with determining needs for health facilities, and making recommendations to the state to assure cost containment, accessibility of health care to all and to prevent duplication of services and expensive equipment.

Here's how the HSA's recommendation affects Longwood:

Two hospital groups are proposing to construct a hospital in the city if they can convince the state to allot the beds. To do that they must first convince the HSA, which makes its recommendations to the state.

Longwood residents and the city commission have expressed a desire for a hospital to be built in their city. Hospital Affiliates International (HAI) of Nashville, Tenn., is proposing to build a $22 million, 150-bed hospital in Longwood. Hospital Management Association (HMA) of Fort Myers has applied to build a $10 million, 100-bed facility. In addition, Florida Hospital-Altamonte in Altamonte Springs is seeking permission to construct a 50-bed addition.

All three requests will go through the regular "HSA cycle", according to HSA spokesperson Susan Hering.

A public hearing will be held on the proposals 7 p.m. Wednesday at Lyman High School 1141 S.E. Lake Ave., Longwood.

The Seminole County Council of the HSA will consider the proposals and public comment from the hearing at an evening meeting Sept. 14 and will make a recommendation to the HSA Project Review Committee. The committee will meet Sept. 17 and in turn make its recommendation to be made to the state. The state Office of Community Medical Facilities has final say in the matter.

After hearing presentations from HAI, HMA and Florida Hospital Monday, the Longwood city commission declined to single one out for

They did express, however, objection to Florida Hospital obtaining permission to construct additional beds in neighboring Altamonte if that would preclude construction of a hospital in Longwood.

what type facility would be best for the city and if that particular company fits the particular plan best for Longwood," he said. HAI was represented at the meeting by Jim

Ryan, a development and planning consultant who told the commission it was not necessary to formally endorse one group, but said they should attend and express their feelings at the public hearing. City Commissioner J.R. Grant said he did not think he should vote on a proposed endorsement resolution since he owns 250 shares of stock in Hospital Corp. of America which is in the process of acquiring Hospital Affiliates International. HCA is operating Seminola Memorial Hospital and building its replacement, a new regional hospital, in Sanford.

Ryan said HAI has an option on a site on Warren Street in Longwood on 26.8 acres on State Road 434 adjacent to W. Lake Avenue. He said construction would be completed in 18 months following approval.

Jim Ward, representing HMA, said his firm recommendation to the regional HSA board. has an option on property on Warren Street The regional board will then vote on a west of the city fire station.

Casselberry Seeks Paramedic Program

By TENI YARBOROUGH Herald Staff Writer

Should you happen to see Casselberry firefighters and other Casselberry citizens knocking on doors this weekend, they're not collecting for the fireman's ball.

What they are doing is soliciting signatures of registered voters in support of an advanced life support (paramedic) program Casselberry.
"We're hoping to get 1,000 signatures - a little over 10 percent of the population which is needed to have the petition submitted to the City Council," Firefighter Frank Stone

Stone, who has been with the fire department for 3 years, said while the petition drive is independent of the fire department, Fire Chief Kenneth Gaines and other firefighters are supporting the effort.

According to Stone, implementation costs for the program would be approximately $150,000. That would cover the training and salaries for six paramedic-firefighters and equipment costs. Second year operating costs would be about the same or slightly less due to the one-time purchase costs of equipment and cost of living salary increases for paramedics, Stone said. To cover the cost of such a program Stone said an additional tax of $1.25 per $1,000 would be levied against property owners. For example, the owner of a $50,000 home could expect to pay an additional $5.21 per month, or $62.50 per year more in taxes.

15 percent of the population, Stone

Stone added that if the City Council disapproves the program, the committee for a paramedic program will ask that a referendum be added to the next election ballot in December.

"We'll call on the voters to decide for themselves if they would like to have an advanced life support paramedic program," Stone said.

Love's Labor Lost

SEATTLE (UPI) - Ten years ago a man wrote a love poem to his wife, slipped it into a bottle and dropped it into the Pacific Ocean halfway between Seattle and Hawaii,

Chris Wille, an employee of the National Wildlife Federation, found the bottle recently while jogging on a beach in Guam. After replacing the envelope — the 10-cent stamp was a bit behind the times - he dutifully mailed the letter to Seattle. When it was returned with "no longer at this address," Wille sent it to a Seattle newspaper and left it at that,

The printed note was unabashed, old-fashloned roman-

"If, by the time this letter reaches you, I am old and gray, I know that our love will be as fresh as it is today. "It may take a week or it may take years for this note to find you. Whatever the case may be, it shall have traveled by a strange and unpredictable mesrenger - the sea. "If this should never reach you, it will still be written in my heart that I will go to extreme means to prove my love for you. Your husband, Bob." The woman to whom the letter was addressed was contacted by phone and listened as the note was read. She burst out laughing — and the more she heard the harder she laughed. We're divorced," she said, slamming down the phone,

Vancouver's 'Atlanta' Nightmare: 9 Slain Children

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (UPI) - Police found the decomposed remains of four more children, the latest of nine bodies recovered in a grim year-long series of a dozen child disappearances.

Police pressed their search for the three remaining missing children in southwestern British Columbia in a case which recalled the child slayings that terrorized Atlanta for the past two years.

The latest remains found in the most intense murder investigation in provincial history were not positively identified but police said they held little hope any of the 12 children were alive.

"If it gives the community any comfort, a suspect is in custody," Royal Canadian Mounted Police Supt. Bruce Northorp said, his voice quavering.

A construction worker was charged earlier this month with the murder of one of the children, Clifford Olson, 41, of nearby Coquitiam, was ordered last week to undergo a 30-day psychiatric examination.

Unemployed Teens Kill Selves

WARRINGTON, England (UPI) - Two teenagers, lifelong friends who were despondent because they were unemployed, decided to die together.

"What have we left to live for now there is no work for anyone?" said Graeme Rathbone, 19, in a note found after he and Sean Grant, 18, killed themselves.

The two drove a stolen car down a lonely road, led a hose from the exhaust to the interior of the vehicle. rolled up the windows and died together, it was learned at an inquest Thursday.

The inquest into their May 6 deaths was told Rathbone lost his job as a fork-lift driver last year and Grant, a laborer, was laid off in April, three weeks before he died. "All teenagers have to do is hang around street corners, getting moved on by police who think you are up to something," the note said.

"We have not got much time to live now, But whatever happens to us it doesn't matter. It is the rest of you we feel sorry for. The earth is going to end with a very big bang."

County's Metals Law Gets First Test

Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County's eight-month-old precious metals law got Its first test in court this week when a Fern Park metals dealer pleaded no contest to a charge of violating the ordinance. Darrell Coker, 32, of 218 Wade St., Winter Springs, entered his plea Wednesday and was fined $35 by Seminole County Judge Alan Dickey.

Coker, operator of Cash Jewelers, 1740 U.S. Highway 17-92, was accused of failing to keep in a register which is examined by sheriff's deputies a description of the seller of a piece of broken jewelry on May 15. He also allegedly did not timely report the purchase, and failed to attatch a copy of the bill of sale to the item-all in violation of the ordinance.

The precious metals statute, adopted by the county commission Jan. 20, was an effort to discourage residential burglaries which have become epidemic since the price of gold, silver and platinum akyrocketed. County officials also hoped the law would dissuade dealers from buying what could be stolen goods.

Judge Imposes Gag Order In Child Murders Case

ATLANTA (UPI) — An angry judge has slapped a gag order on attorneys and law enforcement authorities involved in the forthcoming trial of Wayne B. Williams, accused of two of 28 slayings of Atlanta

Fulton County Superior Court Judge Clarence Cooper, who will preside over the October trial of Williams, issued the order Thursday following identification in Atlanta newspapers of two possible wit-

The Atlanta Constitution and Atlanta Journal published the names Thursday of a mother and daughter who told authorities they saw Williams with 27-year-old Nathaniel Cater, one of two victims he is accused of killing.

Williams was indicted by a grand jury in Cater's death and that of 21-year-old Jimmy Ray Payne. Cater was the 28th and oldest victim while Payne was the 26th to die in the string of slayings that terrorized Atlanta for almost two years. Williams' trial has been tentatively set for Oct. 5.

Voyager Heads For Uranus

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) - Voyager 2 rattled and popped its way through a band of microscopic dust or ice particles on the far side of Saturn where its camera platform stuck, a Jet Propulsion Laboratory scientist

Scientists could not tell whether the strange encounter was connected to the malfunction or not, but both occurred during the 92-minute period Tuesday night when the spacecraft was out of radio contact on the far side of the ringed planet.

Voyager 2 continued on course outbound from Saturn, settling into a five-year cruise to Uranus, while engineers continued trying to work the kinks out of its partially crippled camera-pointing mechanism.

Lake Mary Budget Has Tax Increase

Thursday night tentatively approved a $792,448 total budget for fiscal 1981-82, calling for a property tax increase of 50 cents per $1,000 assessed valuation. The budget includes a 10-percent cost-of-living pay raise for all city employees.

The tentative property tax rate set was $4.35 per $1,000 assessed valuation, up from the current year's $3.85.

An ordinance setting the budget will not be adopted until after public hearings are held at 7:30 p.m., on Sept. 10 and 24. The budget includes $580,543 for general operation of city government and $211,905 for water and sewer utilities.

Anticipated revenues are to come from: property taxes $336,529; up from the current year's $251,592; road and bridge tax $1,527, down from $2,859; cigarette taxes $11,200, same as the current year; occupational licenses $8,500, up from $8,232; telephone franchise $3,000, up from $2,100; electric power franchise $55,000, up from $44,800; cable television $1,100, none was received from that source this year; building permits $10,200, same as this year; electrical permits $1,600, same as this year; plumbing permits $1,550, same as this year; mechanical permits $1,550, same as this year; state revenue sharing $60,039, up from $53,193; federal revenue sharing $19,179, up from $12,000; zoning fees $2,850, down from $4,000; board of adjustment fees $4,000, same as this year; fines and forfeitures $54,000, up from $52,000; interest earned $10,000, up from $7,000 this year; miscellaneous $1,000, same as this year; gasoline pour-over tax $500, same as this year and alcoholic beverage licenses $320, same as this year.

Allocations to various departments also totaled $580,543. The departments are to be funded as follows: public works $62,965, up from $56,576; fire department $49,142, up from $34,526; communications $44,026, up from $38,184; building and zoning $5,850, up from $5,125; parks and summer recreation $22,729, up from $14,152; administration $110,850, up from $93,752; central services $46,431, down from $86,195; police $202,632, up from $166,971; and transfer to public projects fund (a contingency fund of 7 percent of the budget) $35,918, up from

During the three-hour budget session, the city council cut $5,400 in proposed expenditures from the budget while adding $11,060 in other expenditures. The major part of the new expenditures was a $7,360 increase over previously approved funds for the reserve account for contingencies.

Councilman Ray Fox said the council will have to look at building permit fees and site plan review fees to determine whether these fees should be adjusted. "Engineering and legal coats are going to continue going up," he said. "I see no way to avoid it and everything has got to pay its own freight."

City Manager Phil Kulbes said the costs may be increasing because the city's planning and zoning board want more detailed plans or possibly because builders are submitting

Fox said plans appear to be incomplete rather than poor. "The people should not pay for developer costs in their taxes,"

The four members of the council present - Vic Olvers, Richard Fess, Fox and Kenneth King - were unanimous in their approval of the budget calling for the tax increase.

Fess said with the budget calling for the tax increase.

Fess said with the budget cuts proposed by the federal government the city is going to need the additional money. Fox predicted the city will lose 10 percent-to-15 percent of its property tax base when homestead exemptions rise next year to $25,000.

Housing Authority Lowers Man's Rent

Herald Staff Writer

The Sanford Housing Authority Board of Commissioners has reduced the rent charged an emergency maintenance employee, at Castle Brewer Court by 20 percent.

The commissioners Wednesday night authorized a reduction in John Ashford's monthly rental charge from $104 monthly to $83.20, after Interim Executive Director Linda Williams noted a gap between the fee Ashford pays and that paid by the resident manager at Redding Gardens.

Mrs. Williams said Bonnie Johnson, the Redding Gardens resident manager, is paying a monthly rental charge of only $40.

Ashford, who provides emergency maintenance at the housing authority's six projects after regular business hours receives an annual salary of $13,270. Mrs. Johnson's annual salary is $8,100.

Mrs. Williams also reported to the board that the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development management survey recommended that emergency maintenance requests be redefined and normal maintenance be postponed to the following workday activity. And the report said tenants should be charged for the emergency calls if damages are caused by the tenants.

The report instructed the housing authority. to update its maintenance repair and replacement charges for tenant-caused damages with frequent repairs. And the report said charges to the tenants for these calls should include the authority's cost of materials, labor and fringe benefits and 15 percent for administrative processing if the damage is done by the tenants.

The report also said that emergency calls appeared to be excessive. Such services called for by tenants as emergencies, the report noted were: having their doors opened, ranges looked into; refrigerators checked, kitchen lights worked on, kitchen sinks unstopped, etc. all after normal working hours.

In other business, Mrs. Williams told the commissioners that the authority has received a Low Income Energy Assistance Program grant from the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services to install energy savings measures in 382 of the authority's 480 housing units.

She said it was found that 382 families in the six public housing projects qualified under low income guidelines.

Mrs Williams said holes and other crevices through which cold air from the outside can leak into apartments will be filled with caulking. The average cost per apartment of doing the work will be from $30-to-$39, she

She said from the funding, a part-time employee can be hired to work with the maintenance staff on the project. The purpose, she said, is to conserve energy during the

OPEC In Disarray

$30.00; Year, $57.00.

The OPEC ministers have gone home from Geneva in a huff, failing to agree on a unified price structure for their oil.

This may not be the beginning of the end for the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, but it is becoming harder to fit OPEC into the classic mold of an international cartel controlling the price and supply of a commodity.

Saudi Arabia, the biggest OPEC producer and hence its most powerful member, is willing to leave the scene in disarray rather than give ground on its efforts to set the benchmark price of crude no higher than $34 a barrel.

The price-hawks in OPEC are willing to do the same rather than accept the $34 figure.

For the time being, this leaves the Saudi price at $32 and its production high enough to sustain the present oversupply of oil on the world market.

It leaves the other members to sell their oil for as much as they can get, which is likely to be something less than the $40 or $41 top price which some have been asking.

The oil-importing countries can take atisfaction in the prospect that oil prices will remain soft and probably decline on the average at least until the end of the year.

The few cents that may be shaved off the price of a gallon of gasoline are less significant than the act that we will be spared the inflationary effect that results from any increase in the basic cost of

While the Saudis may have had political reasons of their own for their stance at Geneva, their irgument for moderation" in price has always nade more sense than the pleas from the OPEC nard-liners that they need more revenue from their oil.

As Sheik Yamani tirelessly points out, already OPEC price increases are having bad economic consequences for the importers and spurring theirsearch for alternative energy sources.

The problems within OPEC are no reason to relax that search. The more the industrial countries can hitch their economies to nonpetroleum energy sources, and the more they can stimulate oil production outside the OPEC sphere, the harder it will be for OPEC to get back into the position of dictating prices and limiting production to sustain them.

Oil ministers from Libya, Algeria and other price-hawks did not conceal their displeasure loward Saudi Arabia as they left Geneva.

What the stubborn policy of the Saudis has cost hem in the esteem of their OPEC brethren may be balanced, however, by what the Saudis will gain in the eyes of the Western nations sensitive to he price of oil.

The Saudis have proved that their role in OPEC s powerful enough to turn back a concerted drive or a benchmark price higher than what they were willing to accept.

And their willingness to gamble with the future of OPEC for the sake of this "moderation" will be seld forth as a further sign of their concern for the velfare of the Western democracies.

Although the OPEC ministers did not leave Geneva with a price agreement, Mr Yamani carried with him another reason why the U.S. government will find it hard to deny Saudi Arabia's bid to add the AWACS reconnaissance lystem to its air force - no matter how much the Israelis object.

Normally, when your car won't run, the thing to do is call a wrecker and have your heap towed to a garage for a check-up. It naturally follows then, that when your wrecker won't run, you call another wrecker.

That's what my mechanic did.

Anyway, there was one wrecker pulling another wrecker. And the driver of the first wrecker (not my mechanic) got alightly behind in his guiding.

He lost control, left the road, and ended up with both wreckers upside down in a pasture down around Chuluota.

The next day, the driver of the first wrecker hobbled back to his job at the service station on crutches, a cast covering his left leg, ankle to

The Fkrida Highway Patrol has a rather gloomy prognostication for state motorists planning on traveling the Labor Day weekend, and there's every reason to believe it's true. In fact, things could be even worse than the FHP

Based on studies of past holiday traffic patterns. FHP expects 35 persons to die in traffic accidents during the 78-hour Labor Day weekend. The official count will be taken between 6 p.m. Sept. 4 and midnight Sept. 7.

In announcing the macabre forecast, Col. Eldrige Beach, Patrol director, said, "the last real holiday of the summer will find a tremendous number of families on streets and highways traveling to weekend vacation spots, beaches, and parks. Past experience indicates that some of these people will not return from their outing of fun. The Patrol's record in predicting these sort of things is gruesomely accurate. The agency's prediction last year that 188 people would die in vehicle crashes over the six holiday weekends of 1980 was off by only 5. A total of 193 persons wound up dead.

The Patrol's biggest miss, however, came on Labor Day weekend 1980. The planners figured 23 persons would die on the road, when in fact, almost twice as many did so.

So, the l'atrol's guess of 35 fatalities next weekend may be conservative.

personnel-without success. His alma mater, the University of Delaware, couldn't produce the quality of workers he sought. The results were equally disappointing at Delaware Tech, a community college.

The state's employment service provided virtually no help. Classified advertisements in local newspapers produced scores of applicants, but few were suitable for the jobs to be filled at the factory in this Wilmington, Del., suburb.

Finally, Levitsky turned to Jobs for Delaware Graduates, a unique experiment that holds the promise of alleviating one of the nation's most intractable problemsinordinately high unemployment rates among recent high school graduates.

"The kids always seemed to fit the job," says a satisfied Levitsky. "We're planning to start a whole new plant and expect to staff it on a regular basis with JDG graduates."

Conceived less than three years ago by Delaware Gov. Pierre S. "Pete" du Pont IV, JDG siready has been strikingly successful here and the concept now is being tested in four other states-Tennessee, Arizona,

Much of that success can be attributed to the extraordinary degree of initiative, commitment and dedication exhibited by not only JDG's professional staff but also the young people and potential employers involved in the effort.

JDG career specialists go into the state's high schools to identify students who have neither plans to continue their education beyond graduation nor prospects of a job after they complete their senior year.

To qualify for inclusion in the program, the students must receive a high-school diploma-a requirement that encourages potential dropouts to complete their

Eligible seniors are interviewed at least three times and given a battery of tests to ascertain their vocational interests, work aptitude and job skills.

At the same time, JDG job specialists are making thousands of visits to potential employers in the state and adjacent Maryland and Pennsylvania, then following up those contacts with telephone calls and letters.

"We run a job matching program, not a job placement operation," explains one JDG

"This isn't a social program," says another, "It's strictly a business and economic development organization."

Indeed, employers appear to be as delighted with the job operation as are the students who get the jobs. "I can see utilizing the program a lot," says Fran McGuiness, a personnal manager for INA Insurance. "It's going to be a continuing recruiting source for

Something To Be Desired

Jeane J. Kirkpatrick is an individual of "quiet diplomacy," drawing upon the theory definite opinions, frequently vigorously expressed. But the way the United States ampressing them can leave something to be

Such as tact and, on occasion, what might be regarded for a practicing diplomat as elementary prudence. Take, for example, the occasion of her just-completed tour of six Latin American nations, which made quite an impression on some that weren't even in-

Such as Costa Rica, which saw fit to respond officially and in some alarm to a remarks delivered by Kirkpatrick in Peru in which she seemed to be viewing the Costa Ricans as potential recipients of U.S. military aid. President Rodrigo Carazo immediately made it known that his country neither needed nor wanted any.

Costa Rica, by way of instant background, has enjoyed a deserved reputation as Latin America's most stable democracy but of late has fallen on moderately evil times. It has been experiencing some terrorism, minor compared with that afflicting most of its neighbors, but disturbing. Particularly with a presidential election coming up in February that incumbent Carazo is expected to lose.

But both Caraso and the opposition are quick to emphasize that the country's serious problems are not political but economic. Dependent on a few agricultural exports and fluctuating world market prices, Costa Ricans have not been able to earn as much recently as they have been spending on the region's highest standard of living. They are now virtually in receivership to international hankers.

Terrorism they say they can handle. What they need is economic assistance not arms. Besides they have no army to receive them. Deciding after a 1948 revolution that Latin American armies generally served less as protection against external threats than as threats to internal democracy, they abolished theirs. They don't want it back, whatever would-be helpful Americans might think best.

Then there is Chile, where Mrs. Kirkpatrick had an opportunity to practice her preferred of distinctions between authoritarian and totalitarian governments for which she has become semi-celebrated. This holds that authoritarian governments, such as Chile;" just for example, may have their faults but these are primarily limited to the political sphere. Totalitarian regimes, on the other hand, seek to control almost all facets of their people's lives. Example: the Soviet Union.

This makes a difference in how they should be dealt with, even though both types of governments may be given to similar objectionable behavior such as imprisoning, torturing and killing people. Those being imprisoned, tortured and killed might not recognized the distinction, but according to the Kirkpatrick theory it means that authoritarian governments are susceptible to improvement and should be gently perded, not be publicly critized. totalitarians, however, are incorrigible and should be leaned on as heavily as possible. But back to Chile. The ambassador conferred there with Gen. Augusto Pinochet, president under the constitution he largely wrote until 1989 and possibly as long thereafter as he chooses. She wound up the visit with press statements expressing American interest in normalizing relations and working with Chile "in a pleasant way."

Two days later, in what may have been merely coincidental timing, Pinochet's security forces ordered four opposition political leaders out of the country. The expellees don't think it was so coincidental. They say Pinochet took the Kirkpatrick visit and statements as the Reagan administration's approval of his repressive policies and responded in a typically unpleasant fashion.

True, they weren't imprisoned, tortured or killed, which if it was not coincidence says something for quiet diplomacy. On the other hand, political expression in Chile has been further diminished. Which doesn't. It's not all that unlike Soviet behavior, After all, there is a Solzhenitsyn in Vermont.

If Ambassador Kirkpatrick is going to continue to take this act on the road, she at least ought to be fully aware of how it plays to her audiences, American and other.

Blood Machine In Surgery

By BARBARA CANETTI

HOUSTON (UPI) - Doctors are using a laboratory machine that separates blood into its component parts to help Jehovah's Witnesses through cancer surgery they once might have refused.

Members of the Jehovah's Witness faith believe as part of their religious training that their blood should remain in constant contact with their bodies. In the past, that could not be accomplished during operations and many people of that faith have refused necessary surgery and died.

Two staff members at the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Cancer and Tumor Institute came up with the idea of using the blood separator machine in the operating room to help Jehovah's Witnesses circumvent their concerns.

The blood is drawn from patients and then spun or centrifuged quickly to separate it into white cells, platelets and red cells.

Dr. Benjamin Lichtiger, director of the blood bank at M.D. Anderson, noted that the machines remove blood from the body at one rate and simultaneously return it at a different rate, Because of the time lapse in returning the blood into the body, the separator can build up a reservoir outside the patient's body during surgery and reinfuse it as needed.

By utilizing the machine, the blood remains in constant contact with the body, a factor vital to its use in treating Jehovah's Witnesses, doctors said. The machine was first used several weeks ago in an operation performed by gynecologist Jan Seski on a 21-year-old patient who needed to have a tumor removed from her pelvis. "Because she was a Jehoyah's Witness, he was concerned about the potential loss of Dupuis, the anesthesiologist. Dupuis said he wanted to set up a closed loop recirculating system on the patient to pump the patients blood into multiple anticoagulant bags, dilute it and then reinfuse the blood back into the patient.

But, instead Lichtiger suggested the blood separator, which could do what Dupuis wanted, plus had the added abilty to store separately the platelets and plasma, which can be infused after surgery when most

Although there is some risk in using the separator during the operation, Dupuis said it is far less than having the surgery performed if blood transfusions cannot be administered.

"The risks are related directly to the amount of blood lost during surgery," he said.

Lichtiger said the potential use of the blood cell separator is widespread, because 70 percent of the blood banks in the United States have the type of machine in their laboratories.

Doctors at M.D. Anderson have tried the separator in five different operations in recent months. Although the results vary because each patient was at a different phase of cancer treatment, doctors were able to preserve precious blood during the

Can U.S. Match Soviet Mine Warfare?

WASHINGTON - Mines are an effective and relatively cheap means of sealing off an enemy's seaports in time of war. But the Soviet Navy has opened up an impressive "gap" in this bargain-basement area of naval competition with the United States.

According to a recent study by the General Accounting Office, based on reports by the Naval Intelligence Support Center and other agencies, the Soviet Union "has the largest, most diversified mine stockpile and mine warfare force of any of the world's navies."

Meanwhile, the government probers concluded, the U.S. Navy's minelaying and minesweeping capabilities have reached an all-time low. Exacerbating the problem is the fact that the Havy has given low priority to intelligence efforts to determine the exact extent of the Russians' mine warfare ex-

even the most limited type of mining or mine countermeasures operations," the secret GAO report states. "The force is degraded by inadequate number of ships, their age and deteriorating condition, and lack of ex-perienced mine countermeasures personnel."

While U.S. Intelligence agencies agree about the Russians' superiority in mine variare, there is disagreement over the Soviets' intentiors, and thus over the seriousness of the threat opened up by the "mine gap." And because gathering intelligence about Soviet mine warfare advances has been given such a low priority; sources told my associate Lucetta Lagnado, there is really little authoritative information

All of this brought the U.S. overmers back to the sorry state of preparedness they found in the Nuvy's own minelaying and sinesweeping cabability.

Basking in the billions of dollars showered on them by the Reagan administration, the Pentagon's admirals apparently are planning to throw a few bucks toward the mine warfare program. Several new projects are on the drawing board; some are even in the production stage. Unfortunately, the reports predicts, it will take the Navy time to accomplish its mine warfare goals - perhaps as long as five years.

Monthly Utility Rate Boost TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Florida Power and Light Co. residential customers would be hit the hardest under a $381 million rate increase recommended by the Public Service Commission staff.

The average residential customer's bill would increase by $8.14 monthly under the recommended rates, which will be considered by the commission next week.

At a briefing Thursday, staffers said this was because residential customers are subsidized by industrial customers under the current rate structures.

The staff attributed the increase, which would be the largest in the state's history, mainly to the costs of new power plants, greater investment requirements per customer and higher state and federal taxes.

Medfly Spraying Continues

TAMPA (UPI) - Aerial spraying resumes today over a Mediterranean fruit fly infested area as officials continue to battle the elements in their efforts to eradicate the cropdestroying pest.

Just under half of the 24-square-mile spray area was covered with malathion-laced protein bait Thursday morning, but in the pattern that has been the rule for more than a week, heavy rains later moved through the area washing away much of the malathion residue.

Deer Stranded, Starving

MIAMI (UPI) - Hundreds of flood-stranded deer are starving in an area west of Miami and conservation officials say there is nothing they can do for the animals.

"All we can do is keep monitoring the herd," said Lt. Biff Lampton, a spokesman for the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission

Game officials can't take food to the stranded animals, he said, because the deer's digestive system takes time to adapt to a change in food supply, and capturing the animals for relocation could kill them.

High water levels created by tocrential cains from tropical storm Dennis have forced hundreds of deer to leave their regular hunting grounds and search for food on islands of high ground, Lampton said.

according to Alex Senkevich, a DER representative. Last week the DER gave the facility a temporary permit good until Dec. 1, to treat an additional 9,600 gallons of sewage.

"Presently the plant is operating at a 75,000 gallons per day capacity and is currently processing 40,000 gallons of sewage daily," Senkevich said.

The commissioners decided to hold the work session on Tuesday after Lake Monroe area residents expressed concern the expansion of the park would cause waste water pollution and increase industrial traffic in their area.

Lake Monroe citizens were also concerned with the efficiency of the "living filter," the experimental treatment system that handles 50,000 gallons of treated waste water each day.

Gerald Chancellor, a DER waste water engineer, says the living filter, which filters treated sewage through a natural cleansing process made up of grasses and cattails in a pond, does have a limit to how much of the treated sewage that can be absorbed so the DER requires bi-weekly efficiency reports. The treated waste then works its way remaining 25,000 gallons of sewage is treated in spray irrigation fields for more evaporation.

However, Chancellor assures that greater quantities of storm water flowing through the canal is more polluted than the effluent travelling through it.

Any doubt as to the excellent quality Richmond, Cal., 13-3, Tuesday, Coffey's team handed Richmond the game early with several errors, but the accomplishments of these young men should not be tainted by defeat.

"It's something they'll remember all their lives," said Seminole Pony Baseball Association President Bill Reardon at a meeting of the "Dugout Club" last night in Wes Rinker's plush clubroom.

Plans are in the works to have a dinner honoring Five Points finest, which will be hosted by Rinker, tentatively set for Wednesday at 8 p.m. at Sanford Memorial Stadium.

Coffey is a member of Rinker's diehard club and assists Wes during his clinics. Coffey's son, Mark, and catcher Eddie Taubensee have attended Rinker-run schools.

While the Broncos excellent showing was quite a feat, one has to imagine what is going through the minds of the Altamonte Springs Little Leaguers as they watch Belmont Heights march through the competition in William-

Regional in St. Petersburg which the Tampa team won.

Ace righthander Mike Schmit had Maurice Crum in the hole with two strikes when the sweet-swinging lefty stroked a curveball into right field to score the tying run. Belmont added the game-winner moments later on a passed ball.

Tampa's Derrick Bell slugged a bottom of the sixth inning homer the following day to send the Altamonte boys down to their second heartbreaking loss to the perennial powerhouse.

Thursday night, Belmont advanced to the championship game opposite another powerhouse-Tai Chung, Taiwan-by nipping Barrington, Ili., 11-10, Melvin Foster picked up the victory.

Once again, Crum and Bell played the hero's roles. Bell chased home three' runs for the winners and Crum made a fine play at the plate on a throw from Derrick Pedro to nail the tying run.

Barrington had rallied for six runs in the final inning to close an 11-4 Belmont lead before the Heights team regrouped. Tampa will meet Taiwan, a 16-0 conquerer of Trail, British Columbia, for the title.

Taiwan is seeking its 10th championship, having beaten Belmont Heights last year for the crown.

Montreal Expos' left fielder Tim Raines moved within one base of breaking the National League stolen base record for rookies Wednesday when he swiped two to tie the mark of Gene Richards at 56.

Raines, however, sprained his ankle on the second steal and was out of action Thursday night when the Expos bombed the Reds, 12-0. No decision has been made yet on the severity of the

I've felt like someone has cut off my right and left arms this past week. Benton Wood, who's done such an excellent job the past year, went to the University of Florida to begin classes a the Greyhounds. He will write for the school newspaper and will send the Evening Herald weekly reports on the Gators. Remember that byline, I'm sure you'll see it again some day.

My left arm went last week when Scott Smith went to the University of Miami as a walk-on football candidate. Scott did some writing for the Herald, but his main forte was his photography.

He did an outstanding job on baseball coverage in Seminole County. Seminole Community College Manager Jack Pantellas was so impressed by one shot of a play at the plate, he snatched it up for this year's Raider baseball brochure.

Scott attended Lake Howell High School where he was an outstanding wide receiver two years ago. This past year or so he attended SCC. Scott is the Miami varsity this week. The Gators play the Hurricanes Sept. 5.

"It's got to the point where I know the Florida plays better than Miami's." laughed Smith last night from his dorm on the Miami campus.

I'd wish these two guys good luck, but

Raiders Rest On Plunkett's Arm

COACH TOM FLORES: "You can never count us out. That's our style. For the first time we had two No. 1 picks.

We've always had great cornerbacks and offensive linemen. Now we drafted Ted Watts and Curt Marsh in that tradition. Every team wants to win. Every team doesn't know how." OFFENSE

PASSING Comeback hero Jim Plunkett raked in off-season loot, built confidence. Ills arm is not the strongest, but good enough. Still dilemma of what to do with Dan Pastorini, Receivers - Cliff Branch, Bob Chandler, Raymond Chester - are aging; all are past 30. They have to do it again in bomb-oriented Raider attack. Look for Derrick Ramsey to help at TE.

RUNNING II Kenny King stays unnicked, he could go over 1,000 yards. Raiders finally have outside threat. He teams well with steady Mark van Emphan, under-eated pingmer. Both catch well. King gels breather from little swifty Arthur Whittington at acript and he played his role as injured quarterback. But there was a new actor in Vince Ferragamo's role.

Quarterback Jeff Rutledge played Ferragamo to perfection Thursday night, stepping in for Haden just as Ferragamo had done the last two seasons. Haden went down with leg cramps, and Rutledge led the Rams to a 34-31 exhibition victory over the Minnesota Vikings.

The former Alabama signalcaller engineered three secondhalf touchdowns including TD passes of 34 and 22 yards to Preston Dennard. Rutledge, hirmself coming off a collar bone injury, went 7-for-9 for 156 yards. Haden threw four interceptions while completing 13of-25 for 185 yards.

It was the final pre-season game for both clubs. Los Angeles (inished with a 2-2 record while the Vikings were 1-3. "It's pretty hard to play against 12 people," said Rams' Head Coach Ray Malavasi in a scathing attack on the officials. "When you keep getting second down and 20 and third down and 30 situations, it's tough, They dropped the damn' flag all night."

CONTRACTOR

Viking starting quarterback Tommy Krarner also was hurt early in the game, injuring his left knee. He was helped off the field and didn't return and the extent of the injury was not known. Steve Dila finished up for Minnesota

Linebacker Matt Blair had a 99-yard interception return for the Vikings. "If we'd won the game, I'd say I was happy with my performance," he said, "but we still have a long way to go before we develop into a cohesive unit."

In other NFL news, quarterback Matt Robinson, released by the Denver Broncos earlier this week, says he has been picked up on waivers by Buffalo.

Defense Fine, Offense Coming For Cincinnati

COACH FORREST GREGG: "I'm enthused because last year we learned a lot about our people, their strengths and weaknesses. It's obvious we played well enough defensively to be a winner. Offensively we did not, but I have high hopes for our offensive line, which is young and coming."

PASSING On experience, Ken Anderson would rate nod over Jack Thompson, but the accurate-throwing vet has been banged up severely and must now prove himself. Tipoff on receiving corps is that they drafted an entire set - David Verser, Chris Collinaworth, Benjie Pryor - and it's not inconceivable they could all play, though Isaac Curtis is still on hand.

RUNNING Maybe Charles Alexander will get a chance to blossom now that they have definitely settled him at halfback, with bulky Pete Johnson his fullback running mate. That leaves Archie Griffin in backup role. They have hopes for a surprise from Samoa Samos. FAIR

BLOCKING The future belongs to young giants such as Anthony Munoz, a future all-pro; Max Montoya, who's nailed down a guard position; and Mike Wilson, who has looked at home at right tackle. Wilson is the puny one of this lot at 271. Glen Bujnoch and Blair Bush round out the starting unit, with Dave Lapham able to play all five positions in reserve. GOOD

DEFENSE

LINE If all those No. 1 picks ever live up to their promises, there'll be no holding them back. As it is, Eddie Edwards, Wilson Whitley and Ross Browner make up a talented front three in the Bengals' switch to a 3-4 alignment. Gary Burley or Mike St. Clair play in pass spots. GOOD

LINEBACKING Solid quartet of starters, led by old reliable Jim LeClair at left inside, is buttressed by a crew of developing sophomores like Andrew Melontree and Ron Simpkins. Reggie Williams and Bo Harris on the outside are heady vets. Glenn Cameron finally showed he can do the job once he got the chance to play steady in Bengals' new defense. GOOD

SECONDARY Something less than scintillating, although the men available have been around for some time. In fact, Ken Riley, at right corner, starts his 13th year. And Dick Jauron, slated for free safety, is nineyear man if he's physically OK to play. They picked up Shafer Sugge from Jets on chance he has something left. Also rookie John Summons. POOR

SPECIAL TEAMS

KICKING They can't have too much confidence in little Jim Breech, lastminute pickup, as placekicker since they drafted Rex Robinson of Georgia. Pat McInally fulfills punting requirements. FAIR

RETURNS Special teams did not play well last year and must improve. Cleotha Montgomery is holdover return man. Might use Simmons or even Collingworth on punt runbacks. POOR

After disappointments of recent years, despite stockpiling of high draft choices, no one is looking to Bengals as surprise contender in AFC Central. They still seem step behind the other powers in that tough division. PREDICTION Last in AFC Central, lack a spark.

Realstration Set Saturday For Seminole Pony Baseball

The Seminole Pony Bassball Association will hold its fall-winter softball and baseball registration Saturday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Five Points Complex in Winter Springs.

The fee is $20 for the program which had a boys' Bronco team finish second in the world last Tuesday at Lafayette, La.

McEnroe Draws Luiz First

NEW YORK (UPI) - John McEnroe, seeking a third consecutive U.S. Open Championship, appeared to be in for the toughest opening-round match of all the seeded players when the name of Bob Lutz was drawn out of the cup Thursday.

Lutz, a Davis Cup teammate of McEnroe when the United States defeated Czechostovakia last month, is ranked 25th in the world and won a set from McEnroe when they played in Kings Island, Ohio, last month. But shortly after the draw was announced, Lutz withdrew from the Open because of a back injury and was replaced by Juan Nunes of Chile, who should present less of a problem for McEnroe when they meet in the third match on the center court next Tuesday. Bjorn Borg, trying for the 10th time to capture the Open, is seeded second behind McEnroe and also should enjoy an easy opening round against a wild-card opponent. At the time of the draw, the only players who had requested the special exemption were Marcus Gunthardt and Ivan Dupasquier, both members of the

of your most valuable resources to solving landscape problems. Here are some questions recently asked by local residents. hope the answers will help other county residents who may be experiencing similar

Q. What causes the buds to drop on my hibiacus plants? A. The Chinese hibiscus is probably the most popular and widely planted shrub in tropical areas of the world. It is a native of China but came to us by way of Hawaii. There is perhaps no other flowering shrub in existence today that matches it in range, size and shape of flowers and the many combinations of shades of Hibiscus usually have few problems compared to roses. Under certain conditions some varieties of hibiscus either fail to open or drop their flower buds. The degree to which this takes place is quite variable, but at times, it may noticebly reduce the flowering of affected varieties because of insect or nematode attack or a deficiency of one or more of the plant food elements may drop flower buds prematurely. Injury to unopened flower buds by aphids and thrips can cause bud drop.

Poor drainage or excessive drought may cause plants to drop flower buds. Flower bud drop appears to be a decided varietal characteristic; that is, some varieties under the same growing conditions will drop or fall to open flower buds while other varieties growing nearby consistently open their flowers. Many of the double varieties are more susceptible to flower bud drop than the single varieties.

poinsettias and are there any disease problems to watch

A. In order to have a compact poinsettla plant at flowering time, it is necessary to prune the plant several times during the growing season. The new growth, after it is 12 inches long, should be cut back, leaving 4 leaves on each shoot. This operation should be repeated every time the new growths develop until about Sept. 10. Pruning in this manner will produce a nice compact plant with many flowers.

Pruning after Sept. 10, may interfere with flowering, as these plants set their buds soon after Oct. 10. Poinsettia scab seems to be more of a problem this year. It is more commonly found on the double red varieties. Scab appears as conspicuous, raised lesions or cankers on the stem or cane. The lesions are usually circular but in advanced stages they combine to form large, irregular areas. In severe cases the plant will lose its leaves when the stem is girdled by the cankers Cankers may appear also as spots on the leaf petioles. Scab most prevalent in rainy weather and scap-infected branches should be pruned and burned as soon as they ere noted. The plants should sprayed with a copper ie to prevent further oread. The time of bloom of poinsettias is influenced by the length of day. Shorter days initiate blooming. Periods of dark, rainy weather in late September and early October often will shorten the days sufficiently to cause the plants to set buds and flower early.

influence flowering. The best flowers develop when the night temperatures range from 60 to 62 F. during the first two to three weeks of problems in my lawn?

Q. How can I prevent weed

Borticulturist

A. When weeds invade your lawn there is a reason. Before beginning a weed control program, first determine the reason for the presence of weeds and correct this caused by improper watering, incorrect mowing height, improper or inadequate fertilizer, insects, disease, nematodes, excess traffic, poor drainage or improper use of pesticides.

When you have determined the reason for the poor condition of the turf and corrected it, then you may consider the use of herbicides to eliminate the weeds. Next, identify the weed and be sure Plants that are unhealthy you know what kind of grass you have. In selecting the proper herbicide, both the kind of weed and the kind of grass must be considered. The next step is to apply the herbicide property.

The right time to control weeds is when they are young and growing rapidly. Weed and Feed materials which contain atrazine will control most broadleaf and many grassy weeds in St. Augustine grass. When using herbicides be sure to follow good maintenance practices. Most broadleaf weeds in Bahia, Bermuda and centipede grass can be controlled with 2, 4-D. Apply as directed on the thing as a "safe" weed killer. If your lawn is under stress or label directions are not followed carefully you can seriously burn your grass. Be careful, and use good judgement!

Q. Can you tell me something about lawn caterpillars common to this

A. Various lawn caterpillars, primarily the tropical sod webworm and fall armyworm, are important pests of lawns in Florida. This is the time of year their damage is most prevalent.

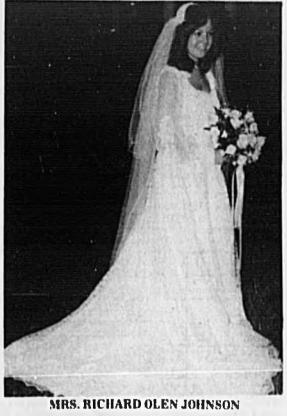

Sod webworms differ from army worms in size and feeding habits. The webworms feed primarily at night and remain in a curled position on or near the soil surface during the day. This habit makes them difficult to find. The newly hatched caterpillars cause very little visible damage to grass. It is not until they are almost full grown worms nearly 🍇 inch long that their feeding becomes very noticeable, and then it appears to show up almost overnight.

This, along with their night feeding habit, explains how extensive damage may occur before it is noticed. Armyworms grow to 14 inches and feed during the day. Injured grass has notches chewed into the sides of the blades and the blades are eaten back unevenly.

The foliage may be almost completely stripped off in patches, and these closecropped areas have a yellowish to brownish appearance. Sevin or duraban are the recommended insecticides for sod webworm and armyworm control. Follow the directions on the

The critical one should be paying attention to the services rather than rubbernecking around to see what others in the congregation are doing. It is entirely possible that the needlework lady is getting more out of the service than her critic who is so easily distracted. (One can knit and still listen to what's being said.)

Moreover, the critic appears to be judging her fellow (or sister) worshiper. It's none of her business what others are doing, so long as there is no audible distraction.

19 Under Consideration For State Supreme Court

host of judges are among the 19 people under consideration for appointment to the Florida Supreme Court.

The seven-member Supreme Court Nominating Committee of the Florida Bar Association trimmed the original list of 38 list Friday.

The seat on the supreme court has been vacant since Justice Arthur England retired screening were Natalie Baskin, a Miami appeals judge; Anne Cawthon Booth, a Tallahassee appeals judge; Ann Loughridge Kerr, a Tampa attorney specializing in domestic law; and C. Bette Wimbish, a Tallahassee attorney and former St. Petersburg city council member.

Other judges on the list include Harry Lee Anstead, John H. Beranek, and George H. Hersey, all appeals judges in West Palm Beach; George N. Diamantis, a Winter Park circuit judge; Stephen H. Grimes, a Bartow

James B. Sanderlin, a St. Petersburg circult judge; Alan R. Schwartz, a Miami appeals judge; William T. Swigert, an Ocala circuit Judge; and Theron A. Yawn Jr., a Gainesville circuit judge.

Other candidates are Jonathan L. Alpert, an assistant professor of law at Stetson College of Law at St. Petersburg; Raymond Ehrlich, a Jacksonville attorney in civil practice; Robert T. Mann, a former appeals judge, Public Service Commission member and state legislator who now is a law professor at the University of Florida; and Wofford H. Stidhad, a Tallahassee attorney.

Nominating committee chairman Charlotte Hubbard said the committee must narrowed the list down to three people, whose names then will be submitted to Gov. Bob Graham and he will select one of them for the bench. She said the committee is acheduled to have the three names to the governor by Sept. 6, but said an additional 30-day period is available if

Graham will have 60 days after receiving the nominations to appoint a successor to

Escapee Picks Wrong Man

SEASIDE, Ore. (UPI) - State Trooper Norm McLaren

thought the man walking up his driveway looked famillar.

Trudging up the walkway was Richard Johnson, 24, who had escaped Friday from the Oregon State Hospital. The offduty trooper remembered his face from photographs he had seen on the bulletin board at police headquarters in Astoria.

"I was a little shocked," McLaren said. "He knocked on my door and said his car had broken down and he wanted to use the phone to call some relatives for help."

The trooper calmly took the phone number and told the man he would place the call for him. Instead, McLaren called police. They arrived and arrested Johnson, who was waiting outside with his wife, Marilyn, 41. She was not arrested. Johnson had escaped from the criminal section of the hospital while walking across the hospital grounds with a supervisor to see the dentist.

It's Time To Start Those Fall Gardens

Herald Feature Writer

Anyone in Seminole County who wishes to can have a lush fall garden which produces plenty of rare, delicious vegetables for table, canning, freezing and sharing with the neighbors. Anyone can, that is, who knows the secret The secret is to ask Tom Davis, Urban Horticulturist with the Seminole County Agriculture Center, how to go about

"Selecting a garden site which is on level ground and receives full sunlight most of the day," Davis says, "is very important. Pre-planting preparation is the next and most important part of vegetable gardening. Most failures can be laid to lack of pre-planting preparation. It is also the most physical part. You almost have it made when the ground is ready to receive the plants and seeds.

Some soil may need extra lime and some may not. Your Urban Horticulturist knows, Fungi, bacteria, nematodes and plant viruses should be taken into account and prevented if you are to be spared blights, wills, plant stanting, rot spots and other vexatious problems which could tempt you to give up gardening altogether.

"We have literature on every aspect of gardening and I will work with any home gardener who needs help," Davis "Because Florida soil is so sandy, it doesn't hold nutrients unless it is built up with fertilizers. Manure, compost and peat moss are all good fertilizers.

Because Davis is interested in getting young people involved in gardening, he has belped set up classroom gardens in the lower grades in the Oviedo schools, giving

"They are popular, not only from the economical standpoint, but for the pleasure of gardening and the better taste of fresh-gathered vegetables."

Alina and Curtis Dunaway, along with Alma's parents. Maggie and Jack S. Bradley, are beginning gardeners who profited well from Tom Davis's help. Curfis is Rightof-Way Agent for Seminole County Public Works, Almaworks at the Naval Training Center. The Bradleys are retired inditary people. Their backyard garden is about 80 x 90 feet and they put in a deep well for irrigation

The Dunaways had never done much gardening Curtis remembers beloing his grandfather when he was a boy Because of the regular moving which went with her father's military career, Alma, too, had little experience

"Fortunately," Alma said, "my father owned a rototiller, which had been absolutely necessary for the hard, clay soil he gardened in Texas. And he enjoys our garden so much, be's over here at the break of day."

'After we had the ground prepared," Curtis said, "we hauled truckload after truckload of chicken manure from a chicken farm down the road. It not only made wonderful fertilizer, it kept the rabbits out of the garden."

Really? Chicken manuse keeps the rabbits out.

Curtis chuckled at the memory, "My neighbor's garden down the road was nearly eaten up by the rabbits. Then be noticed that I wasn't bothered by them. 'Wby?' he asked. "Chicken manure, I told him."

Curtis said as soon as the plants broke through the ground, they began to hand in leaves as mulch. The mulch served to hold the water in and keep the weeds out.

From then on the problem was to harvest and dispose of the earth's bounty. Their own table groaned, two big pressure cookers seldom grew cold and two 13 cubic foot freezers overflowed. Extra shelving had to be built at both homes to hold the glass jars with the richly beautiful vegetables

Often we had too much for the cooker, or the picking didn't fit our schedule, and then we took it to the neighbors." Alma reminisced. "We had okra, squash, tornatoes, three kinds of beans, pole, string and butter, beets, lettuce, radishes and collards. We gave a lot of beans and squash away. They just kept coming And onions-there were enough onions for everyone

We even carried great basketfuls to our relatives in Georgia. We also gave surplus to the crisis center at the church. Tom Davis was always a great belp. Whenever anything came up that we didn't know how to handle, someone always said, 'Call Tom!"

Whether you lay it to dog days or the summer heat, August is too hot and burned to either grow or work in gardens. The Dunaways and the Bradleys have let their garden lay fallow through the summer. There are a few squash vines, a row of elderly collards and two rows of poles with the ghostly vines of long dead bean and tomato

Near the front gate an errant squash vine grows rank and green and flaunts several great yellow blossoms. The garden waits, and the gardeners, remember the relaxing pleasure of working among the bountiful plants plan their fall garden.

But come Sent. I they plan to mow down existing growth and start rototilling

Davis said Sept. I is "the day" to start a fall garden. The list of fall vegetables which grow well here is long-Beans, of course, all three kinds, broccoli, cabbage and celery. Collards grow well into the winter, as do eggplant and turnips, tomatoes and sweet corn, and of course the salad greens.

The Duna ways' garden is now lush with overgrowth. But this week they'll mow it down and start rototilling in preparation for fall planting.

"And," Davis said, "it doesn't take much ground for a small family garden. A 10X10 foot plot can grow all the vegetables needed for a family of five. And if you lack even that modest space, consider container gardening. Tomatoes, peppers, squash, cucumbers, any vining vegetable can be grown in tubs or other containers. Even pumpkins take well to balconies and patios."

The Dunaways' bountiful freezer is proof positive a garden pays off — still packed with frozen vegetables long after harvest of their spring garden. The family is planning on building more shelves for canned vegetables and buying another freezer. Despite giving away loads of produce to friends, neighbors and charity, there was still plenty left over.

Better Half? Who's 'Bewitched'

DEAR DICK: Can you help me solve a small feud? On the older replays of "Bewitched" credit is given to Dick York. When later color segments are shown, they give a Dick Surgent as Elizabeth Montgomery's co-star. Who's who? Did someone have a face lift or are there two different actors? Marjorie Dean, Pima, Ariz.

Two different actors — Dick York played Darrin Stephens on the series from 1964 to 1969 and, when he left, Dick Sargent replaced him and played the part until the series ended in 1972.

DEAR DICK: A friend told me there was a "Grease II" movie. Is that true? If so, when will it be released? K.C.B., Meridian Miss.

I find no record of a "Grease" sequel. Anything is possible, but no plans have been announced for that one

DEAR DICK: I saw a picture from the 1927 movie "The Giri on the Pullman," starring Marie Prevost, Franklin Pangborn and Harrison Ford, Is that Harrison Ford any relation to the Harrison Ford of "Star Wars"? J.M.T.,

Muncy, Pa.

No. I once saked the present Harrison Ford about that, and he hadn't even heard of the earlier one.

DEAR DICK: We just saw the movie "The Lone Ranger" and we would like to know the actor's name who played Butch Cavendish. Is he the same person who plays on "Taxi"? It sure looked and sounded like him. L. Desper, Vancouver, Wash.
Yes, that was Christopher Lloyd, who plays the Rev.

DEAR DICK: Whatever happened to Parker Stevenson, who starred in "The Hardy Boys" series on TV? Kay Kelly, Hermitage, Pa.

Nothing much. He's still around. Actually, he has a contract with ABC to do a couple of TV movies a year, His first under that pact was called "American Gothic" and aired last winter. When he isn't acting, he's big in auto racing these days.

DEAR DICK: I am a TV buff. Love it. Why do stations DEAR DICK: I am a TV buff. Love it. Why do stations have to have the same shows on, year after year, between 5 and 8 p.m.? I have had it with "Wander Woman" and "Starsky and Hutch" and "The Brady Bunch." Why can't they pick up other old shows for rerum, especially an old show like "Rawhide"? For some people, TV is their only friend. Please bring back some of the good old shows. L.M.G., Hacleuda Heights, Calif.

One person's "good old shows" are another person's "yucky shows." If they brought back "Rawhide," some people would clamor for them to bring back "Wonder Woman." The stations are commercial ventures; they make their money through commercials and the sponsors advertise on stations that have the most viewers. So the stations try to program things that the most people want to watch. That's why ratings are important, and obviously you are in the minority.

DEAR DICK: I would like to knew how old Jayne

Mansfield was when she died? Did Jayne make mevics?

Lee, Albuquerque, N.M.

Did Jayne make movies? That's about all she did. Among her major films were "The Girl Can't Help It" (1956); "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter?" (1967); and "Kiss Them for Me" (1967). She was killed in an auto accident when she was 35, back in 1967.

Television Celebrates Its Golden Age Of Drama

By Debra Morgenstern Katz We were in a different era then. We were just discovering the medium," says Sonny Fox, executive producer of "The Golden Age of Television." "There were not that many TV sets around, so you could make mistakes and not find your career in ruins."

That is one reason why, Fox says, the years from 1948 to 1960 became the golden age of television, when young directors, writers and actors - who later became great directors, writers and actors - came together to perform live drama on television.

The original presentations of dramas like "Bang the Drum Slowly" with Paul Newman; "No Time for Sergeants" with Andy Griffith; 'The Days of Wine and Roses" with Cliff Robertson; and "A Doll's House" with Julie Harris, Jason Robards and Eileen Heckart, were only shown once but remain classic performances today.

Eight of those live dramas will be rebroadcast when "The Golden Age of Television" airs on public

televison stations throughout the country. The series was produced by Sonny Fox Productions in association with DCET, Los Angeles; David J. Eagle was the producer. It is being distributed by Interregional Program Service.

The first drama, "Marty," written by Paddy Chavefsky for television in 1953, begins airing this week. (Local times may vary; check listings.) The idea for the series was Fox's, "We keep showing British drama on television. Why not great American Drama?"

Fox looked at many of the dramas that were performed then - although "finding the bloody kinescopes" proved more difficult than he had imagined and many needed extensive cleaning and doctoring — and chose those he felt would still have an impact.

These shows were not to be disregarded. They are still valid today as drama," says Fox. "They will still hold an audience, they still have impact. These are not curiosity pieces."

Television then was different from television now, Fox says. For one thing:economics. Once the amount of money involved escalated, the amount of risk-taking decreased. And the people involved were different, too.

"TV in the '50's was rooted in New York, so the actors and writers were coming off the Broadway stage. In those early days, the writer stayed with his production. He made the changes in the script. . . it was an off-shoot of the drama world.

'There were no story conferences, no meetings, no developmental deals. Things were treated with loving care. That's not done anymore.

"In the late '50s and '60s the industry moved to California and came under the sway of the people in the movie industry. In film, the writer became divorced from the project. He delivered the script and

Fox says he doesn't want to overstate the greatness of television in those days -"there was a lot of bad stuff, then, too" - but it was a sort of Camelot fer TV.

actors, writers and directors who were a part of it then, they react similarly: "The eyes glisten, the excitement creeps up in their voices and they all have the same thing Camelot for TV. to say — It was the most Today, when he speaks to exciting time."

KAZARIAN BEATS THE PRICE!

"IF YOU'RE UNDER 25; if you own a van or a pick-up, or if you just need immediate minimum Auto or Truck insurance coverage—you need to call me." Yes, according to Ralph Kazarlan, "You may be paying too much for your Auto In-

RALPH KAZARIAN

Arr. Karazian is fully aware that we, as drivers, are lired of reading deceptive ads about how we can beat the high cost of our auto insurance, but there is something definite that sets him apart—specialization. He's an unusual man in his line of business, for he is willing to give hard-luck YOUNG DRIVERS a more-then-fair chance on these subspects insurance.

hard-luck YOUNG DRIVERS a more-then-tair chance on their auto or truck insurance.
"I feel that young people, in many cases, are unjustifiably charged high rates, and I know that many may be short on cash. That's why monthly payments are our specialty. Furthermore, there are a large number of drivers under 25 that are paying high rates due simply to their age; others are penalized because of their personal tastes in automobiles. Finally, customers who need minimum insurance coverage are turned away repeatedly. To overcome these situations is my whole reason for being in business.

Yes, this all sounds quite promising, but just how can Raiph Kazarian afford to offer a truly better price to you and me?

"I've shopped for years to find companies who offer the best possible rates for my particular customers. As a result, I broker business with 30-35 Auto, Truck, Motorcycle, Motor Club, Mobile Home & Motor Home Insurance companies that target their effort to my particular customers. This allows me to give my customers the insurance they need at the price they want to pay."

And Mr. Kazarian has proved himself to be quite successful in his approach. After 15 years in the business, he's established himself as an institution within the auto and truck insurance business in Florida.

To prove his ambition and determination he's opened eleven offices in the last two years in the Central Florida area—in addition to his Orlando office which is located in the Bright-BLUE Building at the corner of Mills and Colonial (898-2454).

There are two additional Raiph Kazarian offices located in the Orlando Sanford area:

Altamonte Springs (834-2454) and Sanford (323-2454).

So...if you're really interested in finding out how to get the insurance you need...et the price you want to pay—stop by one of Raiph Kazarian's offices.
