Citizens Should Voluntarily Remove Obstructions To Curb Accidents

Tragedy struck Sanford yesterday and the entire community is saddened. Two children, innocently playing behind the shadows of a hedge too tall to reveal their activities, swished out into the path of an automobile. From time to time it has been pointed out, very emphatically, that children can be hurt, innocently—and automobile drivers involved in accidents, innocently. Children, in their innocent search for pleasant recreation, follow the paths of least resistance—and without attention to pitfalls and dangers participate in pastimes dangerous to themselves and others. It was heartbreaking yesterday to tell of the events which occurred when two children, as they played in their wagon, dashed into the path of an oncoming car. Had it been a speeding automobile recklessly making its way down a residential street—the whole tone of the accident would be changed. The hearts of many have been broken—and with the parents we sympathize and offer our condolences. With the young lady who was taking several children swimming, among them her own, we sympathize, for she had no control over the happenings. Much can be done to relieve the burden from the shoulders of others who might also be involved in such an accident—with their children and with their automobiles.

Vacant Lots Can Be Income Source

Parks and vacant property look good along the countryside where there is little use for land but to farm, raise cattle, plant groves and have spacious areas of lawn and surroundings. To be sure, there must be certain parks and areas set aside for recreation and Sanford has its goodly share. The only fallacy is that most of them are not being used, even for show places. Livelihood for the thousands of citizens in a community comes from homes and industry, from commercial establishments that offer services and goods to those round about. There have been commercial establishments in Sanford, searching for good locations for their business—none were to be found and where land has been available its cash value has been tripled and quadrupled. Recently, Seminole County Commissioners were asked to place eleven lots on the market—vacant, unsightly, useless lots to the county—so that some commercial establishments in Sanford searching for good locations for their business—none were to be found and where land has been available its cash value has been tripled and quadrupled.

What To Do If Insects Get Into Your Pantry

By HERMAN N. BUNBISIN, M.D.

FEW things are more annoying than a meticulous homemaker than your food shelves. Rather, use a fine sand in the pantry, 3 per cent powder or 2 per cent Antic. It's, meal worms, weevil spray solution and apply it to the area where the ants enter the thousands of tons of food each year.

From a health standpoint as well as from one of economy, you've got to protect your home from these pests.

Ants Like Sweets
While ants especially like sweets, such as spilled syrup, the weevils, beetles and moths seem to prefer grains and flour.

Once they enter a pantry, they spread like an army through crackers, nuts, cereals, flour, spaghetti and macaroni products. Chocolate is enticing, too, especially to flies.

The best way of protecting your pantry or food cabinets from these hordes is to keep the shelves clean. If food is accidentally spilled, wipe it up right away, paying particular attention to cracks and corners.

To Clean Shelves
If, unfortunately, some of these insects do attack your food shelves, here's what to do:
Remove all food from the shelves and place it where the insecticide you must use can't reach it. Carefully vacuum or brush the shelves clean. Then wash and dry them and, finally, spray them with a 5 per cent DDT solution. For ants, one of the most effective insecticides is chloroform.

Don't, however, place this on to a meticulous homemaker than your food shelves. Rather, use a fine sand in the pantry, 3 per cent powder or 2 per cent Antic. It's, meal worms, weevil spray solution and apply it to the area where the ants enter the thousands of tons of food each year.

Household Enemy
The common housefly probably spreads more disease than any other insect. He's your enemy no matter where he is, inside or out. Kill every one you find, no matter how you do it.

Again, use a DDT solution to keep these pests from your home. Spray or brush a 5 per cent solution on all window and door screens. Gradually, however, flies are becoming immune to our most potent insecticides. Scientists are even now trying to develop new ones.

Insects in some foods do not necessarily mean foods are spoiled. Most dry foods, for instance, can be sterilized by placing them for half an hour in a 140-degree oven. If you are in doubt, however, throw the infested food away.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
A Reader: Is it possible for a pest to become malignant?
Answer: There is a great tendency for some pests to become dangerous, depending on their location.
You should have an examination made by your physician to determine whether or not the pest should be removed.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

"Add this to his command, that we should hit him in the name of his son Jesus Christ, and love one another, even as he gave us commandment."

The city can begin immediately to remove such hazards as trees, shrubbery, signs, and obstructions that might be the cause of this same type of accident in the future. Members of the Sanford Police Department can point out to the city where such hazards exist and follow through on the enforcement of such ordinances that might control such hazards. Children respect policemen, too, and they might help in sending children to parks and playgrounds to play in complete safety. Yes, there's much that can be done to eliminate the hazards now existing. Too many have been apathetic toward the probability or possibility of accidents involving children—and it is the preventative enforcement that pays off, for lives can be saved and suffering eliminated.

The Jaycees have already voiced their opinion at a meeting of its Board of Directors last night, and action from that organization will come before the Board of Sanford City Commissioners. A community bands itself together for protection, and protection is well defined as that action and cooperation taken by the individuals within the community. Today, voluntarily, from citizens throughout Sanford and its surrounding area should come action as shrubs, trees, signs and other obstructions are removed without the necessity of legal and police action.

Too Late To Classify

By RUSSELL KAY

There is some monkey business going on in Florida and unless I miss my guess the fine Italian hand of one John Dillin, secretary of the Lake Wales Chamber of Commerce is mixed up in it. Anyhow, I understand that the famed chimp farm which has been operating at Dania for some time is moving to Lake Wales. It will be expanded in its new location to become an outstanding Florida attraction, a sort of glorified zoo and botanical garden all in one. John Dillin is an attraction minded and a go-getter and if we don't watch out we will wake up some morning and find that he has moved both Silver Springs and Cypress Gardens to Lake Wales. According to John, Mr. and Mrs. John Ash, owners of the chimpanzee farm are planning big things when they move to Lake Wales. They will add a zoological park that they hope to make the best of its kind in the state and on top of that will develop a huge botanical garden. The chimp farm has been working for years with the John Hopkins School of Medicine providing chimps for study and experimental work in an effort to develop new techniques in the treatment of many human diseases. This important phase of the work will be continued but when the move to Lake Wales is made the farm will blossom out as an attraction rather than an experimental laboratory as it has been in Dania.

OFF AND RUNNING
IDA GROVE, Iowa — Harold Hughes, 35, Ida Grove, has a running start in his campaign for a seat on the Iowa Commerce Commission. Hughes filed nomination papers for the Democratic primary Monday. The election isn't until next June.

SAVED BY A HARE
CHICAGO — The luck of twenty rabbit's feet worked for a group of babies Monday. Five baby rabbits, washed from their flooded hutch over the week end, were picked up and revived by Mrs. George Lester, who nursed them with a doll's baby bottle.

CHECKING ON THE 'FALL OUT'

Health Hints

By DR. A. W. WOODBALL
OLD AT 40 OR YOUNG AT WHICH?

Some people are old at 40. Others are young at 60. You have known both kinds. They live on opposite sides of the "Street of Life." Those on the sunny side seem never to grow old. In spite of the passing years, while those on the dark side lose the fire of youth early and are bowed down by the weight of the same years borne so lightly by their more fortunate neighbors across the street. What is the mysterious something that makes the clock faster for one group of people, causing them to grow old before their time, while others retain their vigor and productiveness as the years roll by?

The answer to these questions is that there are a number of factors which determine whether a person is to be old at 40 or young at 60.

The first is nutrition. There have probably been as many fads and theories about diet as about any other subject under the sun. In this field, charlatans and quacks have duped thousands of honest people in search of facts. Some of these pretenders have grown rich from teaching theories and selling dietaries that have little, if any, scientific basis. In fact, even the best teaching we have had on nutrition has been somewhat defective from lack of full scientific knowledge.

But today we can substitute knowledge for guesswork. We know that food serves the body in three distinct ways: (1) by supplying fuel for body energy; (2) by providing material for the building and upkeep of body organs and tissues; (3) by furnishing protective materials—vitamins and minerals—which regulate body functions, aid in utilizing other foods, and enable the body to manufacture substances of its own.

The average American diet provides an abundance of proteins, sugars, starches, and fats—foods for the first two purposes mentioned above. According to Government surveys, however, three out of every four of us are subsisting on diets deficient in the amounts of minerals and vitamins required to build robust, vigorous health.

The second factor is posture. Have you observed that people who have lived long and are still active and productive usually stand, sit, and walk erect? And has it occurred to you that these young people have retained their vigor largely because of their good posture?

Bad posture means the cramping of important organs, blood vessels, and nerves so that they cannot do their normal work. When such a condition develops, old age begins to set in, however slowly, whether one has lived many years or few.

Conversely, good posture contributes to good health and the prolongation of a youthful body. When one carries himself erect, his organs, blood vessels, and nerves are free from the pressure that results from bad posture.

France is engaged in a civil rights battle which could cause the fall of the cabinet this week. Premier Maurice Bourges-Maunoury is trying to get the National Assembly, the controlling house of parliament, to give his government special powers to suppress terrorism by Algerian nationalist rebels.

The trouble is that the special powers would be operative not only in Algeria but in France itself, where 400,000 Algerians live. Members of parliament are afraid that if a tough government got into office the special powers might be used against Frenchmen as well as Algerians.

Nearly every party represented in parliament is against the special powers bill for that reason. A two-day debate on the measure opened today in the National Assembly. Bourges-Maunoury is expected to follow up the debate by demanding a vote of confidence on it. The vote would be taken Friday.

It is being predicted freely that unless Bourges-Maunoury agrees to amend the bill radically, he will fail to win his confidence.

means too late to move across to the sunny side. If your posture is not what it should be, improvement will depend on your effort. It is not easy to straighten up a body that has slumped for years, but determined persistent effort can do more, possibly, than you think.

vote. That would mean he would have to resign. Behind the government's request of special powers lies the belief that the terrorism which has kept Algeria in turmoil since Nov. 1, 1954, is going to be extended to France.

Police estimate that there are 2,000 active Algerian rebel agents in France. They force their fellow Algerian residents, under threat of death, to contribute to rebel funds. It is indicated that the police have reason to believe that the rebels may open a big campaign of terrorism in France in an attempt to force the government to give Algeria independence. There have been many incidents of terrorism so far. So far, however, only Algerians have been the victims.

Hospital Auxiliary Has General Meeting Tuesday Afternoon

A meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of Seminoles Memorial Hospital was held Tuesday at the Jewish Community Center. Presiding was Mrs. F. E. Rumlatt Sr., president of the Auxiliary. The meeting opened with a hilarious skit on the "Don'ts" of an Auxiliary member. Acting the part of a patient was Mrs. G. J. Kessenich, while the errand girl was portrayed and most convincingly by Mrs. Richard Bauer.

Mrs. Charles Bowes, secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting. It was announced that the hospital administrator has cards for well wishers who want to pay for a day in the hospital in lieu of flowers or other gifts. During the past year the Woman's Auxiliary has purchased for the hospital, through such projects as the High Fever Folios and the Hospitality shop, a flower cart, an orthopedic operating table, a formula refrigerator, a bottle washer for the surgery counter stools for the shop, as well as the adding machine and typewriter. A committee is now working on the rejuvenation of the old, or purchase of a new refrigerator for the Hospitality shop. The old one is very poor, and does not give proper service.

Another addition to the Hospitality Shop will be that of current magazines. There will be a rack just outside the shop in order that purchasers may browse before they buy.

Reports from various committees included one from Mrs. Lowell Oiler, who wished to impress on members that they must get their own substitutes, and to remind them that NO ONE may go upstairs in the hospital with out a visitors card. There has been much misunderstanding about this subject, but it is a very strict hospital rule, and as such must be obeyed.

It was decided at the meeting that members who had "pink lady" uniforms for sale should bring them to the nurses lounge, plainly marked with the size, price and name of the seller. The Hospitality Shop will take the money until it is picked up by the seller.

Mrs. W. E. Gray reported that her Sunshine Committee has been on a six day 9 to 1:30 basis for some time now. Mrs. Ralph Wight, chairman of the library committee is reportedly working on scrap books for the pediatric patients. The first of these is a book entitled "People and Animals", with the bright picture on one side of the large page, and a story on the other. Mrs. J. N. Azaroff is assisting in this project.

Mrs. Richard Bauer is head of a committee for the baby pictures. These will be kept in a large leather portfolio in the fathers room. To keep their chins up, no doubt. Postcards of the hospital are now on sale in the Hospitality Shop.

Mrs. Charles Cole spoke this morning on WTRR, when she was a guest of Mrs. Ruth Gallagher on the latter's Newcomers Program. Mrs. Cole is the Parliamentarian, although her subject Tuesday morning was the history of the old hospital.

The Auxiliary will send letters in the fall to patrons of last year's High Fever Folios to last the response to another performance. The chairman has not yet been announced.

A new nominating committee was selected and voted in for the coming year. The committee will be headed by Mrs. R. N. Blackwelder. Also on the committee will be Mrs. Philip Kessler, Miss Doris Cline, Mrs. W. J. Toll, and Mrs. Peter Donahue. Delegates and alternates were chosen for the State Association meeting at Fort Pierce in September and also the 10th annual convention of American Auxiliaries to be held in Atlantic City.

Mrs. Blackwelder received special thanks for compiling the Hospital Auxiliary yearbook. A copy has been given to every member and sent to various officials throughout the state, where it has received much acclaim. Letters of praise have been received from officials of the Association of Florida Hospital Auxiliaries, and from the head of the board of trustees at the Seminoles Memorial Hospital, Mr. A. B. Peterson Sr.

Pauley Speaks On Watch Elegance

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Watch styles follow other fashion trends, says Betty Miller, a pretty brunette with time on her hands.

Miss Miller, 29, believes she is the only woman watch designer in the nation. She is staff designer for the Hamilton Watch Co., Lancaster, Pa., and helped on the final sketches for the first electric wrist watch which the firm recently introduced.

"Watch design follows fashion, but not fast," said Miss Miller on a visit to Manhattan. "A watch must be new enough to make people buy, but at the same time lasting. A woman won't change watches the way she changes hats."

Where Ideas Originate
Design ideas may come from a sleek new household appliance, a perfume sflacon, or from a new car—"all industrial design is closely related," she explained. Those fancy new tail fin designs on automobiles were reflected in watch cases too. "We just picked up the same sweep, the same curve," said Miss Miller.

She designs watches for both men and women. Women are demanding smaller watches each season, she said. Now she has done one with a dial about the size of a match head.

Men want watches paper thin, with no ornamentation, and dials which can be read rapidly.

Oklahoma City Native
The designer was born in Oklahoma City. Full name: Eleanor Betty Jean Miller. "Every girl in Oklahoma is named Betty something-or-other," she said. "That's why I spell my name with the 'ye'... makes it a little different anyway."

Miss Miller studied industrial art and design at Pratt Institute New York, and Moore Institute of Art, Philadelphia.

Her favorite design won her the Diamonds U. S. A. annual award for creativity in the jewelry field. It was a lapel watch, shaped like a tiny globe, with the continents done in polished platinum, roundstones forming the Equator, and baguette diamonds marking latitude and longitude. It cost $5,000.

PGA DEFENDER By Alan Maver

JACK BURKE, JR.
HAVING LOST HIS MASTERS TITLE EARLY THIS YEAR WILL TRY TO HOLD ON TO HIS CROWN IN THE TOURNEY AT DAYTON, OHIO JULY 17-21.

IT'S BEEN 20 YEARS SINCE THIS TITLE WAS SUCCESSFULLY DEFENDED. CHAMPS FREQUENTLY GET KNOCKED OFF IN THE EARLY ROUNDS OF THIS MATCH PLAY AFFAIR.

THE PGA BRINGS OUT THE LITTLE KNOWN STAY-AT-HOME TEACHING PROS WHO ARE USUALLY GOOD FOR A FEW UPSETS AT THE EXPENSE OF GLAMOR-BOY TOURING STARS.

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Wally Burkemo, one of the toughest little men in the history of match play, analyzed the PGA golf championship as the toughest tournament in the world "any way you look at it."

Burkemo, the big-eyed blonde from Franklin, Mich., should know about how tough things can be. He discovered that much as a twice-wounded infantry sergeant with the 7th Armored Division in Normandy and as a three-time finalist in this fairway rat race which opens Wednesday at Miami Valley Country Club.

"Physically, mentally or any way you want to look at it, this is the toughest tournament in the world because you have to play a scheduled 162 holes in five days to hit the jackpot," he explained.

There is a great difference between medal play—the mere matching of total scores for 72 holes as most tournaments are played—and the man-to-man PGA championship.

Two Different Tendencies
"The greatest difference is that in match play there is the need to think on every hole and there is pressure on every hole," he asserted. "In medal play, the tendency is, if you aren't going right and you hear about the 68s and 69s the early starters turned in, to lose your incentive when you have one or two bad holes."

"But in match play," he added, "you can lose one hole with a big fat six or seven and bounce right back."

Burkemo took his first crack at the PGA in 1951 going all the way to the finals against Sam Snead at Oakmont.

"I learned then that you have to fight all the way in everything," he says with a grim grin. "Sam holed out from the rough to beat me on the first hole and had me six down at the end of seven holes. At the end of 18 holes I was only three down. But starting the final 18 holes of the 36-hole finals he knocked in an 80-foot putt and I was 'down' he beat me 7 and 6."

Squares Around
Two years later, Wally squared accounts with the fates as he beat Felice Torsa in the finals and the next year he proved his match play qualities again by going all the way to the finals

BILLY ON BEAM By Alan Maver

Wilson-Maier Furniture Company took a firmer hold on its lead in the citywide recreation department's soft ball league last night when they defeated Robson Sporting Goods 10-7.

The furniture men collected 9 hits off of Neill Wallace pitching for the sporting goods men. However, Robson Sporting Goods took Larry Chusat for 8 hits but could not get the men around the bases to defeat their opponents.

It was a nip and tuck soft ball game with no home runs or heavy hitters displaying the long ball talent that would bring in the extra runs.

Wilson-Maier did rack up two three-base blows with Fenwick and Butler going to the keystone plate, Fenwick in the first frame and Butler in the fourth.

Batteries for Wilson Maier were Chaunat and Jones; for Robson Sporting Goods Wallace and Jones.

Move Is Underway To Elevate Atlanta To International

ATLANTA (AP)—The Atlanta Journal said in a copyright dispatch that a move is under way to elevate the Atlanta Crackers to the International Baseball league to replace Havana, Cuba.

The newspaper, in a story by Sports Editor Furman Bisher from Nashville, Tenn., quoted a baseball official of high rank as saying "Atlanta is the next team in the International League. It may take a month or two to work out the details, but Atlanta will be in the International League next season."

The Journal said authoritative baseball sources told Bisher that "should a movement now under way" materialize, Atlanta would replace the Havana club in the AAA league which stretches from Canada to Cuba.

Should that deal not materialize, the Journal said, Atlanta might replace Wichita, Kan., in the American Association, where the paper said the Milwaukee Braves were reported to have lost $100,000 last year.

Earl Mann, president of the Crackers, would continue to run the club under AAA franchise, the Journal said.

"Of course, I'm interested in giving Atlanta AAA baseball," Mann was quoted. "Atlanta is one of the nation's major cities and the people deserve AAA ball. But we're still a member of the Southern Association and that's the way we're doing business today."

Atlanta is a charter member of the AA Southern Association which was started in 1901.

Bisher quoted an official in Nashville for the Southern All-for the second year in a row before losing to Chick Harbert with the little on the line.

"I like medal play tournaments better," Burkemo says, which is a surprise considering his match play record. "I think they are a more fair test because everybody gets to go the same distance and, more or less, under the same circumstances. Then, too, I'm 38 years old and at the end of a week of this stuff I'm bushed."

But when they go at it Wednesday, the little man will be one of the top favorites in the field. A brassie bulldog, he has shown them too many times that head-to-head he's about as tough as they come.

Voting System Will Be Used To Select All-Star Team

MONTREAL (AP)—The International League will employ a unique voting system in selecting its 1956 All-Star team, which will meet the Brooklyn Dodgers here Aug. 19.

In an obvious attempt to avoid a landslide vote for players on a single team, league President Frank Shaughnessy announced today the "city unit" system of voting will be used.

Under this plan, each league city will select a team based on the balloting of fans. The players selected will receive one vote from each city. Thus, a unanimous nominee will wind up with eight votes.

Star game Wednesday night as saying, "If Atlanta goes, then I think the league will fall apart. The Southern can't go on without Atlanta."

In addition to Havana, clubs in the International are Montreal, Toronto, Buffalo, Rochester, Richmond, Miami and Columbus.

Pro Golf Assn. Tourney Starts

By LEO H. PETERSEN
United Press Sports Editor
DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—The Professional Golfers Assn. Tournament begins today with a new format, but with the same old pros rated as the ones to beat.

Although they lowered the bars to let in their most promising newcomers, it still was the established players like Doug Ford and Sammy Snead in the favored roles.

The early line from the oddsmakers, a day before the five-day match play grind starts, had Ford favored at 5-1. But right behind him came Snead, defending champion Jackie Burke and Walter Burkemo, who won it in 1953, at 10-1.

There weren't any of the newcomers in the list of favorites. For behind those four came Ted Kroll, who lost to Burke in last year's finals and who holds the present world's championship, and veterans Ed Furgol, the 1954 U. S. Open champion, and former runner-up Johnny Palmer at 15-1. U. S. Open champion Dick Mayer was no better than a 20-1 shot-along with Chick Harbert, another former PGA winner, and Dow Finsterwald.

Finsterwald is one of those who got in the tournament because the PGA lowered its bars. It used to be that no pro could compete in this tournament unless he had been a PGA member for five years. But because of declining attendance, and golfers make their living on gate receipts, the PGA voted to allow its most promising youngsters to compete on special invitation. That still left on the sidelines such promising newcomers as George Bayer, winner of last week's Canadian Open.

Even Gene Littler, who would not have been eligible for two more years, got in on a pass when veteran Jimmy Clark of Studio City, Calif., withdrew because of illness and Littler was substituted Monday. That put Lilly Casper of Chula Vista, Calif., as the next alternate and Bayer was behind him. It did not seem likely that there would be any more withdrawals before play starts.

VAH-11 had a cocktail party recently to bid farewell to Don and Polly Brubaker, who have gone to the HAWING Staff, and Bob and Bonnie Grandy, who are going to Naples. They presented engraved silver cigarette boxes. Lew and Joan Felini were given a silver baby cup. Cocktails and hot d'oeuvres were served in the T.V. room at the B.O.Q.

Tom Blackburn may now have visitors at the Orlando Air Force Base hospital. Visiting hours are 1:30 until 2:30 and 6 to 8 P.M. His room is No. 3, in ward 4. Tom may have only two visitors in his room at one time, and friends are asked to adhere to this rule, as an infraction is neither good for Tom nor the hospital. In fact, violation may result in his visiting hours being eliminated. Tom is feeling very well and has enjoyed the many cards and letters he has received. Cartie Stribling especially brightened his drab wall in the hospital with a classic portrait of a refreshing landscape.

Members of The Brownlee Bible Class are having a barbecue at Bob and Fred Ganas' home on Golden Lake. The party starts at 7:00, but fishing, swimming, or cooling off in boats may be enjoyed at any previous time. This is one time when to bring a child would be a boo-boo, since there are about 70 members in the Brownlee Bible Class and Bob and Fred are exposed to the little ones all day with their Golden Lake Day Camp.

Bob and Dot Heid returned to Jacksonville Sunday, after enjoying visits with old friends and neighbors. This column inadvertently reunited Bob with an old friend who has recently come to Sanford, and bless his heart, reads the paper. So, it pays to put names in print.

Paul and Punkin O'Dea will take Garry and Barbara Jacobson's house on Catalina Drive, when the Jacobsons leave the first of August.

Jo and Roy Syms are staying at the Schuyler in Spartanburg, S. C. for the summer, with their two children Sonny and Becky. While Jo's mother was in California, I understand that the children had a grand time trying to beat the elevator to the first floor by way of the fire escape. This develops muscles since they live on the eleventh floor. When Grandmother returned the axe fell and all is once more quiet in Spartanburg.

All this information was gleaned from Cile Heard, who must be the best correspondent in town. She also had a letter from Ida B. Wilson, who misses Sanford terribly. Ida B. and Russ are in Long Beach, Calif., which lacks both the friendliness and simplicity of Sanford life.

Mary Mann has recovered enough from her recent operation to return to her home Tuesday afternoon. In the past few days so many people have praised Mary and the quiet, kind way she calls on others and makes them feel welcome in Sanford. All her friends are delighted that her illness was as brief as it was and that following a recuperation she will be out and around again.

Dornell and Tom Killeline went to Pensacola last week to attend Hank White's funeral. They report that Nita is in good spirits and will stay with her parents. Mr. and Mrs. Pine until she finds a home of her own. Her address is 1024 East Strong St., Pensacola, Fla.

A social column is not the place perhaps to dwell on serious subjects, but recent tragedies have erupted into every corner of local activities. We see how futile it is to worry about planes falling from the sky when those very same fliers lose their lives in an automobile accident. A fine man who has been trained to fly and command, to protect his country from invasion, to lead and organize, has been snuffed out by the very same instrument that cuts down more Americans every year than have been lost in war. We cannot remove the automobiles from the streets as we remove the alligator from his hiding places. The automobile in educated hands is a useful, necessary tool of our civilization. Without it we would be lost. But in the hands of a reckless driver the automobile becomes a dangerous weapon. Even in the hands of a good driver a moment's carelessness may result in disaster. A plane crash, a hurricane, a flash fire may frequently be considered an act of God. But an automobile accident is an act of man. The tragic death of John Bear has left his wife and three children asking forever "Why did it have to happen?" They were prepared, as all flier's families are prepared with, in the limits of human endurance, to bear the sorrow of a death while performing duty. They were not prepared for the horrible termination of a pleasure ride.

If only Florida cities authorities could impose the same penalty on traffic offenders as that of many cities. A night spent in the emergency room of a large hospital would make many drivers remember for the rest of their lives the broken bodies and pitiful groans.

It is of course, not for me to say who is to blame in any accident. Many are unavoidable, but I do know that to drive a car takes absolute concentration and observance of laws and signs. And no matter what we may say, nothing will replace the life of one who is already gone. It is now up to us to protect the lives of those who are left.

Herald Receives Letter From Korea

The Sanford Herald received a letter recently from a local man who is serving in Seoul, Korea. The young man is Michael Rotundo, of Sanford, and now a sergeant with the 30th Signal Battalion in Korea. Sgt. Rotundo wrote the letter on behalf of an orphanage in Seoul, which is supported by his company. There are 150 children in the orphanage, whose ages run from 6 months to 16 years. They need clothing, food, pencils and paper. Sgt. Rotundo is asking the people of Sanford to help in any way possible. The children are war orphans, and as such receive meager support from their country.

Packages may be mailed to — Sgt. Michael Rotundo RA 24 632 802 HQ CO 3045 Signal Battalion (ap) APO 301, San Francisco, Cal. Sgt. Rotundo is a graduate of Seminole High School. The company in which he is serving just completed a building for the orphanage, which is being used for a school.

Here are authoritative answers in 36 monthly installments. But from the Veterans Administration she does have the right to choose any other installment option of payment. She cannot, however, receive the money in one lump sum.

Q. My husband, a World War Two veteran, bought a house with a GI loan. Shortly afterward, he died of a service-connected condition. As an unmarried widow, would I still be entitled to a GI loan, even though he used it before his death?

A. Yes. The service-connected death of your husband would entitle you to a GI loan, even though he obtained one before he died.

Q. A friend of mine died without choosing a method of settlement of his GI insurance policy. But he did name his wife as beneficiary. How will she receive the insurance proceeds?

A. She will receive the proceeds in 36 monthly installments.

Best Way To Relax Is To Bask In Sun

By HERMAN M. MOORE, M.D.
SUN bathing is not merely a matter of getting a suntan, nor should it be confined exclusively to the female sex.
You will spoil the whole idea, though, if you take your problems and worries along.
If you plan to read, make sure it is for pleasure. Do not plan to relax in the sun with business papers, it is virtually impossible.
The quieter your surroundings, the better. You will not be able to relax much if the kids are whirling about you and yelling at each other.
However, even if everything is just as I have suggested, there is still one problem you might encounter in your sun bathing.
Think, of course, is the matter of perspiration. I can help you there.
QUESTION AND ANSWER
Miss D. M.: I have poor circulation. Could this be caused by a thyroid condition?
Answer: Sometimes a lack of thyroid hormone may be at fault in circulatory difficulties. However, this is not often the case.

JACKY FENWICK

Spent part of yesterday, from 11:30 A.M. to 3:00 P. M., relaxing at the pool and I mean relaxing! No lunch to fix, (bless that "snack bar"), no dishes to wash, etc. Even got my husband to eat "lunch under the trees!" Got to admit it was housework, or any kind of work, "beat"! But just so you won't think I completely wasted the day, I did get the names of quite a few more couples for my P.O. Club list! It's coming along quite well, but the more, the merrier!!! I would LOVE to have a real know, impressive list, and who knows, it just might help us get the club that much sooner! And I've even got my husband working on behalf of it now. I probably have every one bored "silly" with my constant repetition and pleading on behalf of the club, but I think it's important, (though not a matter of "life or death" to be sure, and it's my only means of reaching you at this time. So, all those of you who are interested, please call me and add your name to the list.

Two brothers, THEIR Maxey, and Schnappoxy, with them, and you will never see a street so full of Dachshunds again! We had them running in every which direction, and all "yiping and yapping" at the same time! Can't say I blame Alieq for missing them so while they were on leave. Think I'd take Maxey along rather than leave him behind! We're trying to teach him to sit up, and if you think it's easy, just stop to think of how a Dachshund is shaped! If since my "better half" (?), Ed Gold, and Cliff Williams were all playing softball on Monday night, Jimi, Joyce and I decided "to heck with sewing!" We were at Jimi's, so she called Rosemary Enneagan, who "tore over" and we had a Canada game going in nothing flat! (Guess any one of us would "tear over" at the drop of a card!) Sat and drank ice tea, and then Jimi put out plates of all kinds of good things for sandwiches, so we proceeded to make ourselves "Dagwood Specials" and played on from there! When the fellows finally came in, we sent them off again, and kept right on playing! Richards all

CATCHES UP WITH LUNCH

The longest beaded belt in the world—75 feet—is one of the exhibits on display at the Six Nations Indian Museum near Lake Kushquaga N. Y.

Joyce is still waiting! Gave us a scare yesterday when Cliff called Jimi, and she dashed wildly by the pool to leave little Eddie with me, and "accused" off to they were on leave. Think I'd take Maxey along rather than leave him behind! We're trying to teach him to sit up, and if you think it's easy, just stop to think of how a Dachshund is shaped! THE OLD HOME TOWN By STANLEY

FIRST SO EASIEST—CENTRAL CITY, Iowa — Mrs. Stella Sawyer, who celebrated her 50th wedding anniversary last April, filed for divorce on grounds her husband, Clyde, made her "nervous and impaired her health." Mrs. Sawyer said her husband struck her, threatened to take her life and used profane language.

HEADY SMOKE—CHICAGO — Three Chicago area Marines lit up some marijuana today while police looked on. They were burning a four-acre plot of the narcotic with Marine Corps flame throwers.

FIGURES OUT THE SAME—HOLLYWOOD — Reporters looked forward with interest to meeting Valeria Fabrizi, Miss Italy of the Miss Universe beauty contest. After all, it wasn't every girl whose measurements had been listed as 38-56-34. After reporters discovered the figures were in centimeters, they agreed the revised set—34 1/2-33-34 1/2—didn't lose anything in translation.

"Square Dancing under the Stars" was the order of the evening on Monday, when the chiefs and their wives gathered at the Lake Golden Recreation Area. They had enough for three full squares, and one extra! Joe Greene couldn't make it, so Vera and Sharon were there just to watch for a while. She even got to dance, some, when one of the girls didn't feel well. The others there were: Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Stephenson, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Brinn, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Higgenbotham, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Higgenbotham, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Sundvall, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Clark, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Bone, and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Johnson.

Want to fill in on those details about the dance Friday night at the Chief's Club. It's being given by the Chief's Wives Club, and will get under way at 9:00 p. m., and last until 12:30 A. M. Tickets will be $7.50 per person, or $15.00 per couple. There will be "snacks" door-prizes, and the wonderful music of Sidney Vihlen's orchestra. Sounds real good, so plan to be there. Items appropriate to add just one more reminder to the Chief's Wives to be sure and attend tomorrow night's meeting at the Chief's Club, starting at 8:00 p. m., because all the last minute details about the dance will have to be "ironed out" at that time.

Chief Tanner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Tanner Sr., of Miami, are paying a visit to Bill and Clara. They're my next-door neighbors, and I stuck my head out of the door to talk to Bill, and didn't even have enough sense to eat how long they'll be staying with them! Speaking of the Tanner's they have a pretty Colie named Rusty who is about ten months old, though just about full-grown. And of course we have Maxey. Rusty is a very gentle dog, and plays with Maxey all the time. One of the funniest nights to see is the two of them chasing all over the place, with Maxey, on his little short legs, trying desperately to keep up with her! (Maxey is a Dachshund, to those who may not have read about him!) It only follows that the neighborhood "kids" have "nick-named" the two of them "Tanner" and "Pokey", after two canine characters on a well-known television show! Of course, the real "Pokey" is a Bassett hound, but do "kids" ever let little details like that bother them? I wish I'm on the subject of Maxey, (and sure, I'm on it, it's hard to get me off it!) Alieq and Tom Deak stopped over on Monday night to see him. Hal Maxey's mother, their Shobo, and his

Cure For Strange Disease Found

By DELOS SMITH
United Press Science Editor
NEW YORK 23 — Medical science has succeeded, at last, in deliberately curing one case of an exceedingly strange disease. But the victory is rather embarrassing—because science isn't sure how it was done.

The disease is compulsive swearing which, scientifically, is "Gilles de la Tourette's disease." Some people who are forever making the atmosphere blue with their cursing, are not victims of this disease. They're victims, rather, of habit.

The real victims have absolutely no choice about it. When an attack comes, they spout obscenities—loudly and clearly.

Georges Gilles de la Tourette, distinguished French neurologist, 1857-1904 got his name attached to it because he was the first to describe it scientifically, although not the first to observe it.
Cliff's Classic Case

The classic case was that of a woman who was seven when she fell victim to it, spent a life-time isolated from society because she couldn't control it, and still had it when she died at 85.

Most authorities consider it a prelude to frank insanity. And all authorities are gloomy about the future of the victims, considering it more or less incurable. That is why the deliberate cure of just one case is quite big news in medical science.

The cure was brought about by Dr. Richard P. Michael in a London hospital and reported in full detail to the British Medical Assn. The victim was 28 and the disease had been building up since childhood. When he came to treatment he was utterly unacceptable in business, in social life, even in the family circle.

The reason was that compulsive swearing overtook him 10 to 40 times an hour. He was free of it only while asleep. The most thorough physical examinations and all possible laboratory tests failed to reveal a physical cause. The man was given psycho-therapy, that is, an effort was made to doctor his mind. It was completely unsuccessful.

Uses Carbon Dioxide
So Dr. Michael set out to treat the physical tension which seemed to be behind the spasmodic twitching which accompanied the swearing. He did so by having the man inhale an atmosphere that was 70 per cent carbon dioxide, which is the sparkle and bubble of soda water.

This was repeated 30 times, over two months. Gradually the twitching—and swearing—diminished in frequency until it was no longer present. The man has been out of the hospital for 14 months, is a success in business, well-liked by friends and family, and is free of the disease.

Michael thought that, perhaps, the carbon-dioxide had changed chemical balances of the blood. Suppose, he said, that the twitching and "repetitive speed disturbance" was due to a "self-perpetuating process" of muscular and vocal discharges. Then anything which interrupted the process—such as carbon dioxide—would also stop it.

GUNLOCK by the prize-winning western novelist WAYNE D. OVERHOLSER

CHAPTER 34
CURRY KING, Gene Dillingham and I were squatted in the brush among the boulders, with Easter Creek rolling along within ten feet of us, gathering momentum, it seemed, for the headlong rush it would make down the canyon. Daylight had thickened until we could see the curve at the end of the quarter-mile stretch of road below us.

Silence except for a jay that was squawking in the timber behind us. Then Dillingham said, "Will, I told you a while ago what Joe Pardoe would have done about them colonists. Now I'll tell you what I'm going to do. You're aiming to throw a little lead and scare 'em, but you ain't aiming to drill nobody. That right?"

"That's right," I said. "Won't work. I tell you there's only one way to do it. Hit 'em hard. Hit some of 'em and you've got 'em stopped. I'm going to ride along the east rim of the canyon. I'll wait till the first wagon is below me, then I'll roll a few rocks down on 'em. I'll smash that wagon up and bust the horses. Then I'll shoot the driver of the second wagon, and his horses will get boogered and get tangled up in their harness. By that time the rest of 'em will be backing down the grade as fast as they can roll, and they'll all get into a mess they'll never get out of."

"Sure, it would work. If the pilgrims ever did get back to the river with their wagons, they'd have their bellies full and then some. I looked at him, his face shaded because his back was to the sun, but I could see his expression pretty well, the brutality that was there, the anticipation. I thought, 'This is what he's been waiting for all this time.'"

"No, Gene." I thought my rifle around so that it covered him. "Joe's dead. There's only one thing that counts with me. That's protecting the Box P. The easiest way to do that is to keep these pilgrims out of the valley. If it doesn't work, we'll fight later, when the first settler rolls his wagon onto Box P again."

"The devil with it. You think Dodson will turn a hand to help us? He won't, and I don't intend to help him."

"You're trying to make me kill you?" I asked. "By God, I will, if you keep pushing me!"

DISSPIRITED DISCUSSION
LOMA LINDA, Calif. — Mrs. David Conly, of Winnipeg, Canada, told a meeting of Scientific Studies for the Prevention of Alcoholism here Monday that pink tea would be a suitable replacement for martinis at cocktail parties.

me, as if trying to decide whether he had a chance if he jumped me. Curly King was below us. He held up a hand in a silencing gesture. He said, "Listen."

Dillingham swung away from me. I relaxed, sensing that, for the moment at least, he was willing to let our personal differences stand. Then I heard the horses coming. An instant later half a dozen of them rounded the turn below us. John Mathers in the lead.

"I'll do the shooting," I said. Outraged, Dillingham cursed me. "They'll run us down. You're yellow!"

"If Gene makes a wrong move, Curly," I said, "plug him." I brought my rifle to my shoulder and squeezed off three shots, the first one close enough to Mathers' head for him to hear it whisper as it went by, the second and third kicking up dust in the road in front of them. Mathers and his men were off the road in a fraction of a minute, seeking shelter in the scrub oak and brush that grew in a jungle-like mass between the road and the steep hill west of the creek.

As I lowered my Winchester, Dillingham said harshly: "You could have got all of 'em. Now they'll get us."

We waited about fifteen minutes, my imagination running wild as I considered the various maneuvers Mathers might try. Then he stepped out of the brush waving a white rag tied to the end of a stick.

I heard Dillingham cack his ride. I said, "Ease your hammer down, Gene," and waited until he had; then I shouted at Mathers, "Come on!"

He walked up the middle of the road to us, shoulders back, head high. He showed ribs, all right. If I hadn't been there, Gene Dillingham would have cut him down.

"I don't figure on you winning," I said. "Take your men back to the river and there will be no more trouble. We could have killed you a while ago, all of you."

His gaze shuttled to Dillingham and back to me. "I'm a little curious why you ain't feeling the way you do about this."

"I don't want any killing if I can help it," I said. "Those shots were warnings. Now you know what will happen if you bring your wagons up the canyon."

Mathers shook his head. "I have Mrs. Pardoe's word that we will not be molested. We were on our way to see her when you shot at us. Does she know you're here?"

"No. This is a man's job." "Man's?" Mathers said scornfully. "You mean a fool's job. Because, listen to me. First, you can't hold us off. If we have to use force, we will. Fifty wagons mean fifty families, some with boys old enough to fight. Most of our men have had war experience. We would be hard to whip even if there were a hundred of you. If I am forced to go back and bring my men up here, I'll put some on each rim and others in the road, and we'll sweep the canyon clean. You'll die, every one of you, and no law officer will touch us because you have no authority or legal right on your side." He shook his head. "No, this is not a man's job you're trying to do. I say you're a fool because you're trying to walk in the steps of a man who was a maniacal killer."

Dillingham straightened, throwing out a big hand toward Mathers. "What are you waiting on, Will? Kill him!"

"Let him talk," I said. "You may be honest, Beeson," said Mathers, "but you're not smart. So you'll stay here and die." He raked his lips, and his gaze fixed to the slope behind me. It occurred to me he didn't believe there were just three of us. Now he was wondering how many men were hidden among the boulders and scrub oak.

Will Beeson is outmaneuvered by a girl, and Gene Dillingham gets his walking papers as "Gunlock" continues tomorrow in this paper.

JACKSON, Tenn. — J. F. Eppinger spent several weeks building an air-tight prison box for his own execution chamber, police said. Eppinger's body was found Tuesday night in the "coffin" after he had climbed in, wired down the lid from the inside and tripped the catches on three carbon dioxide fire extinguishers. Lie Detector Shows Wedler Told Truth

Some Details Debatable

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The court of last resort advised Gov. C. William O'Neill today that a preliminary lie detector test showed that Joseph Wedler told the truth in a Florida prison when he said he may have killed Marilyn Sheppard.

Wedler, a convict, told authorities in DeLand, Fla., he killed a woman in the Cleveland area on July 4, 1934, the night Mrs. Sheppard was killed. He did not mention Mrs. Sheppard by name in the statement he gave to Florida authorities.

The Ohio governor said he received a telegram from Eric Stanley Gardner, a writer of mystery stories, who conducts the Court of Last Resort for a magazine.

Text of the telegram received by O'Neill:

"Alex Gregory completed preliminary tests at 1 a. m. Thursday, Florida time, after three-hour interview. So far polygraph tests given no indication of falsehood.

"However, there are certain minor details in Wedler's story which do not agree with known facts. There is possibility these are due to the fact that Wedler admits being under influence of drugs at the time of the crime.

"While Gregory has so far found no indication of falsehood in repeated tests, he desires continued examination when the subject has been given a night of rest."
