Adult sites picked, will clubs follow?

By RUSS WHITE Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - When the decision came in the late afternoon, the Rev. Jimmy Dale Patterson dropped his head. "This is very disappointing." said the pastor of Central Baptist Church in west Sanford.

After six months of skirmishing by the county commissioners and fervent opposition from residents throughout Seminole County, 19 acres at two westside Sanford sites were identified on Tuesday as possible adultentertainment zones.

Both sites are not far from State Road 46, which links Interstate 4 and the Seminole Towne Center with the historic district of the town. Central Baptist Church is on the road as is Page Private School. The church and school people fear what now may become of the area.

By court order the county had to identify locations adult entertainment businesses might relocate by Sept. 30, 1999. Should the commissioners grandfather the current adult businesses now in the Fern Park/Casselberry area, the Sanford sites may never get considered.

That, Sanford Mayor Larry Dale says, is what allows the city to be optimistic about the future. He does not believe any adult clubs will ever come close to the sites that have been designated. He and others feared the worst if the area near the Orlando Sanford Airport had become an adult- entertainment war zone.

Neither of the selected sites in on SR46 itself, nor particularly attractive to adult business owners. Club Juana owner Michael Pinter said Tuesday he wouldn't have the slightest in-

Seminole County commissioners Tuesday officially designated two sites on State Road 46 plus four already existing in Sanford, as suitable for adult entertainment businesses. Above, Sanford Mayor Larry Dale listens to the verdict, with county commission candidate Carlton Henley sitting behind him. City commissioners, cooperating with the county through an interlocal agreement, OK'd the sites at a recent meeting. Protesters along the 46 corridor have opposed the choices with signs and T-shirts, right.

Herald Stall Writer SANFORD - A man selling peanute on Celery Avenue wail robbed Tuesday by a man wielding a razor kniie.

While attending his roadside vending location east of Sanford, Robert Boden was approached by a man, later identified by Seminole County deputies as Douglas L. Spann, who demanded money, according to Lt. Jack Cash, spokesman for the Seminole County Sheriff's Office. Boden received cuts to his hand inflicted by Spann and was transported to Columbia Medical Center for treatment and later released, Cash said.

The guy was swinging out with the knife and Boden was cut seriously enough to go the hospital where they worked on him," he said.

As the suspect fled the acene with $150, Boden recorded the tag number of a white compact vehicle. Deputies recognized the tag rumber and were able to trace it to the owner who said she had loaned the car to Spann, Cash said.

After Boden positively identified the suspect, Spann was charged with armed robbery, Cash said.

Flooding spurs emergency idle speed, no wake law

By MARIA OREM Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Recent area flooding and rising water levels caused by unseasonable rains has spurred an emergency no wake zone ordinance. 🧻

The Seminole County commission on Thesday passed an emergency ordinance providing for a temporary idle speed/no wake zone for certain areas of the St. Johns River and surrounding bodies of water.

Cpt. W.T. Armstrong of the Seminole County Sheriff's Special Operations requested in a Jan. 8 letter to the commission that the area covered by the ordinance run from approximately the Lake Jesup channel to the mouth of Lake Harney.

"We're concentrating on the St. Johns and that covers about eight miles of river," Armstrong said. The ordinance requires boaters to remain idle along that stretch."

Armstrong said his office has conducted aerial and ground reconnaissance while monitoring the situation.

We're concerned because many of the residents already have high waters and have evacuated their homes," he said.

About 17 residents near take Harney have vacated their homes, he said. However, many of those are seasonal residences. Other homes have been flooded inside between 3 and 4 feet. Along the shoreline, rising water levels average between 300 feet and 200 yards, he said, depending on where the home is located.

Armstrong and his staff are notifying residents to prepare to evacuate if necessary. His office will arrange to monitor the homes if necessary, he said.

Another concern is public safety because the flood plain and many of the little islands along the channel have been submerged including trees and small fences. Inexperienced boaters may not realize those are shallow areas and that could lead to accidents, he said. If the rain continues, Armstrong said there could be problems. If there is no relief, low arcas which are usually dry this time of year will See Flood, Page SA

Students receive sobering message

Drunk driving simulator is a taste of reality

By MARIA OREM Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY - Students on Wednesday received a sobering experience on the realities of drunk driving.

A drunk driving simulator car allowed students to experience first hand the effects alcohol has on drivers.

Sophomore Brad Aboff, an event participant and vice president of SADD (Students Against Destructive Decisions, formerly Students Against Drunk Driving) said he watched a videotaped demonstration prior to the event and "it was unbelievable."

The car, provided through the Neon Drunk Driving Simulator National High School Tour, is specially equipped to simulate performance based on the student's weight and the number of drinks. As a result, steering and braking responses are delayed.

The car is in the parking lot and there are cones," Aboff said. The car responds depending on the number of drinks that it's programmed Aboff and a team of students helped coordinate the event, which was open to licensed students from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Those without licenses were invited to participate as passengers. The students also distributed information on Prom Promise Week, which promotes an alcohol-free school prom celebration.

said Janice alcohol. Weitzmann Lovchuk, spokeswoman for Chrysler, the event's sponsor.

With these impaired abilities, the student attempts to negotiate an obstacle course without hitting the orange py-lone or the pedestrian figures that 'pop up' along the way," Lovchuk said.

The driving course is marked over an area of about 150 to 200 feet and is manned at all times by a trained driving in-structor. The goal is to navigate a figure eight obstacle course.

Record number of raptors treated in 1997

9:39 p.m., low: 2:55 a.m., 3:29 Special to the Herald

> Florida Audubon Society's Center for Birds of Prey in Maitland admitted 649 raptors in 1997, breaking its all-time record of 601 birds in 1994, and increasing the previous year's numbers by more than 100. The leading raptor rehabilitation facility in the Southeast specializing in eagles, hawks, falcons, owls and kites, the Center released nearly 40 percent of the treated birds, including 15 Bald Eagles.

This significant increase in rescues comes at a time when the Center has launched Project Wingspread, a redevelopment project which will propel the facility into the 21st century, Project Wingspread will transform the Center into a premier wildlife rehabilitation and environmental education facility by tripling the square footage of rehabilitation enclosures and non-releasable bird exhibits; constructing an urban wetland with native aquatic plants, boardwalk and gazebo; and renovating the historic Audubon House to include a museum on the history of conservation in Florida. "With a 20 percent increase over last yea, a rescues, the need for Project Wingspread has become apparent and timely," said Reese Collins, vice president for Florida Audubon and director of the center. "We believe that loss of habitat and nesting sites will continue this trend," she said. Donations of cash, materials and labor are currently being sought to complete this project, which is set to begin construction this year.

Raptors were received from 24 Florida counties in 1997, as well as three other states. Counties with the highest number of rescues included: Orange (225), Seminole (122), Volusia (108), Lake (35) and Osceola (26). Birds also were sent to the Center for evaluation and treatment from Wisconsin, Maryland and Arizona.

A total of 49 Bald Eagles were rescued in 18 Florida counties, including five from Volusia County who were diagnosed with barbiturate poisoning. The poisoned eagles had fed on improperly disposed carcasses at the county landfill. Fifteen of the eagles admitted in 1997 have been treated and released and five cases are turned to the Center for treatment after becoming re-injured. Joe Bob, a Bald Eagle from Pasco County, was originally treated for a gunshot wound in 1995. It took over a year for Joe Bob to recover from his massive injuries, and he was released close to where he was found. Last October, he was seen in a territorial fight with another eagle, and received minor wounds. This time his recovery was swift and he was returned to his home range in time for the '97 holiday season.

Since 1979, the Center for Birds of Prey has admitted over 7,000 raptors, and has treated and released 180 eagles. The Center played an important role in the recovery of the Bald Eagle at a time when its population was critically low. Today. Florida boasts the largest number of Bald Eagles in the continental United States, with nearly 1,000 nesting pairs.

Program celebrates the 135th anniversary of emancipation was the celebration of being free. The Emancipation Proclamation was issued by Abraham Lincoln on Jan. 1, 1863, declaring all "slaves within any state or designated part of a state, forever free".

Historians regard the Emancipation Proclamation as one of the great state documents of the United States. Issuance of the proclamation marked a radical change in Lincoln's policy of preserving the Union and of confining slavery to its existing area.

Finally, on Sept. 22, 1862, Lincoln issued a proclamation declaring the freeing of the slaves in the states deemed in rebellion at that time. The enactment of the 13th amend-

Drunken scene not unusual in Russia

SARATOV, Russia--On a recent crisp winter day in this industrial city on the Volga River, two angry, unsteady old Russian men were flatling away at each other with fists and a rubber bludgeon. No one bothered to stop them, even though the blows, coming more slowly as the fight dragged on, might have done some fatal damage. And the men would not stop themselves, despite heavy wheezing from age and far too many packs of cheap cigarettes. They were drunk.

The wintry scene is not particularly unusual in Russia-neither in this heartland area, nor in Russia's more European cities further west. It is the result of winter, of depression, and of the exploding national disease of alcoholism.

One of the downsides of communism's demise is that Russians are literally drinking themselves to death. The strongest evidence of this came at a Moscow demographic conference last September. Experts from Russia, Britain and France were alarmed that since 1992 Russia has experienced the sharpest decline in male life expectancy in the world. Whereas a young American boy today has a 90 percent chance of living to age 60, only half of all young Russian men

The team of experts studied the problem closely and came up with a startling conclusion: Alcoholism and alcohol-related diseases and crime are the chief reason for the tragic dein Russian mortality rates. The Russian propensity for drinking their beloved vodka is well-known, and has long been celebrated by their cultural and political icons. Nationalist presidential candidate Vladimir Zhirinovsky markets his own brand of vodka. "It is better to die of vodka than to die of boredom," proclaimed the Russian poet Vladimir Mayakovaky. But it is only recently that a serious problem has reached epidemic proportions. Since former Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev was forced to end his government campaign against alcoholism in 1988, per capita consumption has increased 600 percent. There are several reasons for this:

-- One is a huge increase in black market alcohol, often home-made from poisonous substances such as industrial ethyl solvent. Citizens here cannot afford statemarketed vodka take their chances buying bottles of vodka from dozens of kiosks where the national brand labels are often counterfeit.

-- Russian customs have always contributed to excessive consumption at one sitting. Once a bottle of vodka is opened, it must be finished. A shot of vodka must be drunk in one gulp. Drinking a half-bottle of vodka in 30 minutes is condered "moderate" drinking here. (In 1993, the average man drank the equivalent of a bottle of vodica every two days.)

What is new, now, is the and

"binge drinking" over the weekends. Researchers have confirmed there are more alcoholinduced heart attacks here on Saturdays, Sundays and Mondays as a result of nonstop week-end binges than occurred

-- Winter is always a serious contributing factor. Russians assume that since alcohol makes feel WARTINET one (whereas, in reality the body becomes colder) and the winters are so oppressive here, this season is the best one for drinking.

"The children come out in the summer, and the drunks come out in winter," one resident wryly observed to our correspondent Dylan Van Atta, who routinely, with friends, walked drunks home on freezing winter evenings. But the service is not enough: One recent morning. at the bottom of an apartment building step, he came across the body of a Russian inebriate in his mid-30s who died before making it back home.

-- Finally, a contributing factor to the increase in drinking has been the huge letdown from the promise that perestroka and freedom once offered. Under communism, everyone in Saratov had a job-usually in one of the huge defense industrial plants that manufactured everything from chemical weapons to airplanes. Many of those factories are closed. Efforts to convert them to civilian manufacture has met with some dismal results. Saratov-produced televisions and video recorders have been of poorer quality and more expensive than the Japanese models that fill even some of the poorest apartments in this city.

As a result, Saratov has an official unemployment rate of 25 percent. In reality, it is much higher. Many "employed" Russians spend all day in the factories, even though there is nothing for them to do and they haven't been paid in

"during communism, every-one had money from their jobs but there was nothing to buy," our correspondent observed. "Now, Russians have plenty to buy, but no one has

Squirrel away that resourceful thought

BOSTON--it's 7 a.m. and Hazel is ticked. She stands on my windowsill, front paws against the glass pane, eyes narrowed, hissing: "What the $0& is this?"

I feel her fury even though I refuse to meet her glare, even though I studiously continue reading my paper, even though I do not speak the whiny little Squirrelese that is her native tongue.

The $4& that has prompted her tre, is the new bird feeder, although of course Hazel does not see it that way. Hazel believes deeply in her gut-the primary source of any emotions attributed to her species -- that this is a squirrel feeder.

indeed, why shouldn't she? For 18 months, a daily cache of sunflower seeds flowed from a large plastic cylinder conveniently located a hop, skip and jump from the tree that grows outside my second-story kitchen. The bottom of the container was a wooden platform for my feathered friends.

My aviary invitation list was composed of nuthatches, titmice, chickadees, finches and sparrows. But Hazel regularly crashed this buffet line. She spent long hours sprawled on this wooden lounge dropping sunflower seeds into her mouth, rather like a Roman emperor feasting on grapes.

I watched her dine with a mixture of hostility and admiration. But when the feeder went crashing to the ground one stormy night, I replaced it with one that is, I am told, guaranteed to make life harder for her

Now Hazel is ticked. She turns from me. slaps at the feeder like a punching bag, tries to embrace the swaying cylinder, and falls to the ground, only to scramble up and try again.

Here is the rub. Instead of feeling victorious this morning as my omnivorous nemests stands defeated, I am feeling guilty. And a bit mean-spirited.

I ask Hazel, do you think that Jesse Helms would have trouble evicting a squirrel from his bird feeder? Not on your life.

Would even the environmentally friendly Newt Gingrich have second thoughts that he was committing a kind of species-ism, favoring the feathered over the furry creatures? No way.

Would Rush Limbaugh admit to a gradging admiration for the nerve and gymnastic skill of this second-story burglar? Forget Unaware of my internal diatribe. Hazel tries this time to walk the metal tightrope to the feeder. She slips again. Grimacing with compassion, I remember the day I named her. In the middle of a blizzard, out of seeds by not sympathy, and against my self-interest, I fed her what I had: hazel-

Now, retreating cowardly to the living room where I cannot see her frustration, I know that no right-wing think tanker would feed the enemy. But the mushy-left is cursed with empathy and an ability to see the other side--even of a window pane.

I don't mean to mix politics with sunflower seeds. I have no idea of Hazel's social views, although she has a short agenda and will only grudgingly share her

Nevertheless when I return to the kitchen some hours later this is what I sec: a small gray squirrel dangling upside down, holding the hanger in her hind paws, circling the feeder with her front paws, burrowing her nose into the holes, happily chomping. Around her a chickadee boldly shares the meal.

The long and the short of it is that while I was worrying, she was evolving. While I was analyzing the problem, she was solving it. While I am Progressive, Hazel is pure Darwinian.

This is what we have learned. With my seed money and her resourcefulness, we'll all make it through the winter. Squirrel away that thought.

SANFORD _ There are all kinds of unsung heroes on the fields and courts of Seminole County.

One group, however, is never very popular. No matter what this group does, someone is mad at them and sometimes finds incredibly nasty things to scream at them.

Referees have it tough. What people don't realize, however, is that these men and women are barely compensated for working every night of the week in the high schools of the county. They are out there because they enjoy their jobs and truly love being a part of the kids' activities.

In a perfect world, referees do not choose sides. They are even assigned to different counties and different teams to try and ensure that they are unable to adopt a favorite

They are impartial. They call it as they see it. They are fair.

Yet night after night, one team goes home happy with the refs decisions and policies and the other feels they have legitimate cause for complaint.

There are times when referees make questionable calls. When it does seem as though they weren't actually watching the play or forgot the rules.

This is a rarity, though. Personal feelings aside, many will be forced to admit that for the most part, barring that one truly bad call, the refs are fair, honest and impartial. It is their job to be that way and they take that job seriously.

If, however, an official fails to do his appointed job to the best of his ability, there are routes for bringing those complaints to the proper factions. The Florida High School Athletic Association is always willing to hear complaints and investigate them.

The fact is, however, that many of those complaints seem to go unanswered for one very good reason.

The referee had done nothing wrong There is a very strict training and hiring procedure that each referee must go through in order to be accepted into the FHSAA. Then, the officials are constantly monitored and must fill out lengthy reports about the game's activity, especially if technical fouls and/or ejections have occurred. in all honesty, they take a lot more than they should. Referees range all the way from youth leagues to the State Championships in every sport throughout the state. At every level, they are scrutinized, berated, yelled at, cussed at, called names, told to go home...and that's just in one night. Cut them some slack. They are doing this because they want to. They are not being paid millions of dollars, they are not out to get the kids in the county and they really don't deserve the treatment they take without a single audible complaint.

Try to walk in their shoes and maybe understanding they are doing their jobs to the best of their abilities will quell some of those feeling to yell at them. Everyone is human and humans make mistakes.

Just not on every call.

Unsung Oviedo answers call

Lions rebound from Monday's loss to edge Seminole girls

By JEFF BERLINICKE Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD _ The season, for all intents and purposes, could have been over for the Oviedo girls basketball team last night.

Monday's blowout loss to Lake Mary was devastating enough for a team that was playing as well as any in Central Florida. But it should have been expected.

But last night, the Lady Lions went out to take on a good, but not great, Seminole team and dug deep to escape with a 57-50 Seminole Athletic Conference win on a night when a let down at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium could have been expected.

It wasn't easy, and going into the fourth quarter, Oviedo looked like a team that hadn't yet recovered from the Lake Mary loss.

"The hardest thing in the world was to have to play again tonight (last night)," said Oviedo coach Tom Bieri. "It was so hard after last night, but we got a chance to see what we were made of. Lake Mary played perfect the other night and we wanted to see how we would respond. You work so hard and when we played like we did Monday, I'm proud of the way we responded to the challenge tonight.

One of the Lady Lions who responded was Shakira Hunt. Forget her four points. She was in the face of everyone she defended and Bieri said she was the one responsible for the win.

"I think we were disgusted the way we played the other night." Hunt said. "We didn't give 110 percent like we normally do. We didn't feel like we had to win against Seminole but we needed to want to win and under pressure, we did. All the pieces connected tonight."

Alaqua Lakes eyes September opening for course

By JEFF BERLINICER Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY _ Central Florida's latest golfing jewel is only eight months away from its first Alaqua Lakes Golf Club is now at least 50 percent completed although a tour of the site wouldn't lead you to believe it. Mounds of dirt, pipes and scattered timber dot the course and the greens, although formulated, are still under construction. With seven months until tee off, project director Tom Spence knows he has his work cut out but, with over 100 men on the project each day, Spence said the course will be ready by September.

The actual holes are pretty much finalised.

From the tipe, Alaqua Lakes will play at 7,123 yards with five tees on every hole to meet every tolers level of skell.

yards with five tees on every hole to meet every golfers level of skill.

"We want it tough enough for the best players but challenging for everyone," Spence said.

A trip to what will eventually be Alaqua Lakes requires a vivid imagination. Piles of dirt sit where the entrance will be but it will be a pretty spectacular one once it's ready. It will look, Spence said, like an old estate featuring the cart barns, clubhouse and other maintenance facilities. The clubhouse is barely under con-struction, and no club professional has been brought on, but Adam Feltman, formerly at the Champions at Summerfield, has been brought in to serve as Superintendent.

He'll face a daunting task has things start swinging into high gear for the September

This place will be a madhouse in August," Spence said of the Tom Fasio-designed course. In about two months, Spence said the layout should start looking like a golf course. Sprigging of the greens should start in the first week of March and the small details overlooked by the casual golf fan such as water transfer and underground work is underway.

The recent rains have slowed the pace a bit but the crews are at it six days a week, down see Course, Page 28

Now, it's mostly about details. For instance, filling the ponds that will be placed throughout Alagua Lakes. Spence said he is recycling runoff water that will be diverted from collection areas, then cleaned and released. He said the project has been working closely with many environmental groups as the course will sit on the Wekiva River basin and Alaqua Lakes is taking many extra steps to ensure a proper link with nature. In fact, Alaqua lakes has submitted an application with to be an Audobon Signature Course, the first in Central Florida.

"We're very sensitive to the environment," Spence said. "Everyone is concerned about the environment and so are we. We want to play by the rules so it ten't a problem. Some of the rules are very strict and they come out to inspect but it's going smoothly."

The storm water system cost millions of doilars to the club but Spence said it was worth the cost to recycle the water.

"It's a part of doing the right thing," Spence said. "We're reusing our own water."

There's a pretty good chance that golfers who play the course will experience some of that water themselves. It's going to be tough.

The first hole goes 431 from the tips and features a tee shot of a large waste area to the left and a long second shot to the green, surrounded Gateeu De Pithiviers is a tasty, tradtional bread.

Yield: 8 to 10 servings - Recipe adapted from "French Regional Cooking," by Ann Willan (Hutchison Publishing, 1981)

THREE KING'S BREAD

1 tablespoon finely grated lemon

- peel 1/2 tesepoon selt, preferably see selt 4 to 5 cups unbleeched all-purpose flour, plus extra for the work our-
- Oil, butter or margarine for greesing bowl and other surfaces
 1 cup chopped candled fruit
 2/4 cups raisins
 1/2 cup chopped pecans
 2 tiny percelain or other non-

1 egg, lightly beaten with 1 table-

For topping:

2 cups sifted powdered sugar 1/3 cup medium-dry sherry or

- grange juice 6 sun-dried or candled figs, cut into
- stripe (optional) Stripe of candied orange pool, or other fruits, or nuts (optional)

Put the warm water in a bowl and sprinkle the yeast on top. Let sit until yeast dissolves and puffs up.

Add the melted butter, sugar, egg yolks, eggs, orange blossom water (if using), orange peels, lemon peels and salt. Stir in three cups of the flour and beat well for several minutes. Gradually add the rest of the flour, a handful at a time, until the dough begins to pull away from the side of the bowl and forms a slightly sticky ball.

Turn the dough onto a floured surgeace and kneed. Add more flour, a little at a time, kneading until the dough is smooth and elastic (about 10 minutes).

Remove the dough from the bowl and wash the bowl. Dry. Coat with oil or butter. Place the dough back in the bowl and turn it over so that both sides are coated. Cover with a sheet of oils coated plastic wrap or a clean, damp dish towel, and let rise in a warm place until doubled in volume, about 1-1/2

Coat two baking sheets with oil or butter. Turn the dough out onto a light, by floured surface. Punch down, and divide in half. Add half the candied fruit, raisins and pecans to each piece of dough, and knead only until they are evenly distributed. Form the dough into two long, thick rolls and join the ends together firmly to make two rings. Push one doll into the dough of each circle, far enough so the doll does not show, and place each circle on a baking sheet. To preserve the shape of the bread, butter or oil two 3- or 4inch oven proof bowls or souffle dishes, and place each one into the center of a ring so that each bowl fits snugly. Cover the loaves lightly with a towel, and allow to rise until almost doubled in size (45 to 50 minutes).

Preheat the oven to 375 degrees. Brush the top of the bread with the egg wash. Bake for 25 to 30 minutes. The surface should be golden brown. Remove from the baking sheets and place on racks,

Mix the powdered sugar with the sherry or orange juice and drizzle over the bread white still hot. Garnish with fruit and nuts, as desired, and let cool before eating.

Bride's marriage holds no charm for mom dilemma, My 40-year-old daughter is not speaking to me because I'm trying to provent her from becoming the laughing stock of the century. She's planning to be married for the fourth time. Fier first marriage was to escape her abusive father. The second was to provide a father for her child from the first marriage.

Now she says she wants the wedding she has never had — ivory dress, 6-foot train, and God knows what else. I told her she was creating a circus, a humiliation, the embarrassment of all time. I know the bride should have her wishes carried out to the letter on "her" day -- but she has already had three previous "days" that did not work. My daughter falls in and out of love as the wind changes.

I know I shouldn't throw stones because I have been married three times, but my present marriage to a man I thank the Lord for every day has lasted 17 years. I have talked to her fiance. He weems to be levelheaded, and he, too, would like to avoid a spectacle. I'm sure he didn't win any Brownie points when he sided with me. It's his first mar-

ADVICE ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

OLD-FASHIONED IN SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR OLD-FASHIONED: There's nothing you can do. Since your daughter refuses to listen to you and her flance, I doubt she would be open to any input from me. Of course, you are correct that simplicity should be the keynote for the ceremony and reception, but you can't live your daughter's life for her.

Wish her well and pray that your community has a short memory.

DEAR ABBY: The letter in your column from the reader who thought it would be a good idea to turn closed military bases into jails got me thinking. As a retired military person, I must agree in part with the writer of that letter. The facilities are there, and so is the equipment to train our young people to become goud citizens.

But why use them to warehouse criminals?

Some of them could be converted to campuses for vocational schools around the country to help disadvantaged youth. Not all of our young people are college material — but all of them need to learn how to earn a living. Students could spend part of their day in classroom learning and the rest in a shop, learning a skill. At the completion of their training they could be the people they would like to be.

We taxpayers have hought those bases and equipped them with everything that is needed to run a military installation. If the selected base needs more equipment, some could be moved from other bases that are being closed.
If some of the buildings are substandard, I can't imagine a better place to start training those young people for a trade in the building industry.

A final thought: Most of these young people would rather have a big kug and an "I love you" than parents who let them grow up in the wrong way. Speaking for myself, the return of love from a young person is the greatest gift I ever had. Parents, wake up!

Abby, please do not use my name or location.

RETIRED MILITARY MAN

DEAR MILITARY MAN: You have hit upon a terrific idea, one that is well worth exploring. Such campuses would be a source of pride (and employment) in the surrounding communities. Our children are our most presions resource, and giving them the tools they need to enrich their lives will also enrich our country.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 21-year-old emale student living at home. During my middle and senior school years, I was more than a handful, to put it mildly. I was angry and depressed, and caused my mother and her new husband a lot of problems. I did some horrible things. I got kicked out of several schools. received failing grades and ran with a bad crowd. I am very ashamed of my behavior. I know I have deeply hurt my mother and the rest of my family. I am doing well now, but I don't know how to apologize to them and thank my mother for her support and for all she's done for me. I wake up every morning and thank my lucky stars that I wasn't thrown out on My mother and stepfather have worked diligently to help me turn into the caring young woman I am today. Abby, how can I ever make up for the grief and heartache I caused them? Without them, I would be nothing.

INDEBTED TO THEM. LAKEWOOD, CALIF.

DEAR INDEBTED: Your parents' reward comes from seeis what a fine young woman you have become. Parents are very forgiving. Your present he ior can make up for the par However, it wouldn't hurt to talk to your mother and steple-ther and tell them how you seel. Apologize, and tell them you will spend the rest of your life being a credit to them. Let them know you love them, and con-tinue being the caring, contributing member of your family and community that you have

DEAR ABBY: Some weeks ago, you agreed with a reader that birthday invitations should not include the child's sizes and toy sugges-

Abby, I see nothing wrong with including sizes and toy preferences. The information is helpful in selecting gifts and ensures the clothing will fit. As far as being expected to bring a gift -- duh -- gifta are usu-ally expected at birthday parties. BLANCHE POWELL, DETROIT

DEAR BLANCHE: While gift suggestions and sizes may be handy, it is still considered rude to "tell" people what they should give. If guests want to know sizes and preferences, they should call the host or hestess and ask.

I agree that gifts usually are expected at children's hirthday parties, but whatever happened opening gifts chosen by the givers? That mould be part of the fun of the child's bittlesy.

DEAR ABBY: I read your letter from Luke, the teen-aged skate-boarder who feels akateboarders get. a bad rap from adults. I'm a television news anchor and thought you and Luke would appreciate the fol-lowing story. It led our evening newscast recently.

Several teen agers were skate-boarding in downtown Abilene when they heard acreaming. They found an elderly woman who had been! attacked. A thief had knocked her down and stolen her purse.

The skaters split up. Some took off after the thief. Some stayed to help the woman, and others skate-boarded off to summon the police. When the teens found the thief hiding in a parking garage, he took off-again — and they chased him on their boards until police arrived and arrested him. The elderly womans got her purse back, along with the

Let's hear it for today's teens., With or without skateboards, most of them are on the right track.

LOREN HALIFAX, KTAB-TV,

ABILENE, TEXAS

DEAR LOREN: Thanks for an upper of a letter. It's the first time I've heard that the whoele of justice were attached to a statehood.

Per Abby's feverite femily recipes, send a ling, oil addressed envelops, the check or meany order for $8.05 tj6.00 in Canada) to Dear Abby, Cashinshirt No. 1, P.O. But 447, Mount Marris, St. $1004-0447. (Purings in included.)

Can laser be used for biopsy?

DEAR DR. GOTT: Recently, I required a biopsy. The procedure was painful. Subsequently, I watched a doctor on television perform a biopsy with a laser. It was painless. There was a small flash of light, and in seconds, he got the desired results. Moreover, the patient got the results the same day.

My doctor says this is utter nonsense. DEAR READER: I'm ofraid that you misinterpreted what you saw on

For a biopsy to be successful, the tissue that is removed must be carefully handled. During a traditional biopsy, a portion of tissue is excised with a knife or other nultable instrument, and placed immediately in a preservative solution, it is then transported to the pathology lab and treated with special chemicals and dyes. Once the specimen has been suitably prepared, it is shaved very thin; these sections are then examined under a microscope by a trained pathologist. Sometimes, in the operating room, the specimen is quick-frozen and examined, but - as a general rule pathologists hesitate to make final diagnostic judgments until they have seen the unfrozen sections.

A laser is an intense, focused beam of light that is used for cutting or vaporizing tissue. From a practical standpoint, it takes the place of a scalpel. For this purpose, it has several advantages: It's easier, quicker and causes less bleeding.

Were the biopsy specimen to be vaporized (as seems to be the case in the TV example), there would be nothing left to examine. This is not the purpose of a biopsy. If the surgeon uses a laser to remove tissue (as is often done), the specimen would still have to be prepared and examined in the lab. Therefore, in either case, the results would not be available in a few

I suspect that what you were viewing was a laser biopsy with a frozen section. This technique gives a PRE-LIMINARY answer in a few minutes thereby enabling the surgeon to perform immediate additional surgery, if warranted. But the FINAL word doesn't come until the permanent sections have been analyzed a day or two later.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Are all females born with a hymen? Can the hymen be ruptured by activity other than intercourse? What are the symptoms of a ruptured hymen?

DEAR READER: The hymen consists of a skin-like web of tissue that is present at the vaginal opening.

Sometimes the hymen is relatively thick and covers most of the opening: sometimes it is merely a half-moon of tissue of no importance; often, it is just a thin sheet that only partially blocks the vagina. Most female babies are born with one of these varieties of hymen.

In today's society, girls are far more athletic than they were decades ago. Such activity usually ruptures a filmsy hymen with few, if any, symptoms. Because a rugged hymen may not be broken in the normal course of events and may even impede the menstrual flow -- surgery is sometimes necessary. For obvious reasons, many hymenal ruptures occur during the first sexual experience. Depending on the thickness and extent of the structure, women may experience variable degrees of pain and bleeding.

Similarly, what does CIA stand for? The right approach in this deal is educational. South was careful to spy out the lie of the land before committing himself in clubs. How would you find the club queen of your five diamond contract? West starts with three top hearts. You ruff the last high in the dummy while East discards a showing some 6-10 high-card points and a good six-card suit. True, the oks advise against this bid when you hold four cards in the other major, but this West was a young Turk who liked to play a freewheeling game.

West opened with a weak two-bid,

Over North's takeout double, South's cue-bid showed a strong hand, usually one with at least 12 points.

Declarer set off on a voyage of discovery. He cashed dummy's spade ace, ruffed a spade in hand, drew two rounds of trumps ending in the dummy, took the spade king and, as the queen hadn't dropped, ruffed the spade jack in his hand. What had

South learned? He knew that West had started with four spades, six hearts and two diamonds. So, he had to have begun with only one club. South played a club to dummy's king and finessed on the way back through East. That was a tasty piece of declarer play, worthy of a chef at the Culinary Institute of America.
