Help for Dade musicians

SANFORD — The 18th annual Seminole County High School Band Festival on Halloween night, resulted in more than competition and entertainment. It also helped aid school music programs in Dade County.

The event was sponsored by the Sanford Optimist Club and the Sanford Herald.

Following the contest, a call went out for donations to help the Dade County Music Relief fund.

"Thanks to the generosity of the people, we were able to obtain $1,100 in donations from the people at the festival," said Peggy Hardin, secretary/treasurer of the Optimists.

"We've already made out a check and had it delivered to Dade County," she added. The check was taken to Dade County by John Blair, a retired Fine Arts Coordinator for the Seminole County school system.

Blair, who helped organize the annual festival, is also a member of the Optimists. He previously served as director of the Lyman High School band for many years.

The money will go to the relief fund, to help pay for the replacement of instruments, music, and other school band equipment and facilities which were wiped out during the ravages of Hurricane Andrew several months ago.

"They lost everything in many schools," Hardin said. "Tens of thousands of dollars in school and privately owned instruments were destroyed, sheet music was washed away, and some of the schools were not able to continue functioning with even a small music program."

The fund is being managed by the Florida Music Education Association.

LWV plans luncheon

The Seminole County League of Women Voters will hold a luncheon Nov. 19 at 11:30 a.m. at Alauqa Country Club. The 1993 Seminole County charter review process will be the topic of discussion.

The luncheon is open to the public. The cost is $6.50. For more information, call Carol Maler at 774-3319.

Heart Center groundbreaking: More jobs, state of the art care

By KELLEY MITCHELL
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — HCA Central Florida Regional Hospital expansion is right on schedule.

Members of the Cardiovascular Surgeons, P.A. team, selected staff and board members gathered for an official groundbreaking of The Heart Center, which has already been under construction since its projected date in October.

The hospital is in the process of adding a new open heart surgical suite and a 12-bed surgical intensive care unit, equipped with state-of-the-art monitors. "These major structural changes have been planned with the help of not only architectural specialists in open heart projects but also with the physicians and surgical team that will be utilizing the facility," according to Gary Scott, director of cardiopulmonary services at the hospital.

High tech additions will include a heart-lung machine, new laboratory equipment, additional radiology equipment and all of the necessary specialty items for the cardiac surgeons.

A welcomed addition to the plan is a new monitor that is able to report immediate lab/blood gas results while the patient is on the heart-lung machine.

"This differs from most hospitals where the blood sample must be sent to the laboratory, resulting in delays for both the results and physician intervention," according to Scott. "The

No contract yet for school employees

By VICKI BOGGS
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The union that represents the employees of the Seminole County school district believes that the district is holding buildings and other systems ahead of the needs of the employees.

And they are not going to stand for it any longer.

Union members, represented by Evan Hughes, a bargaining specialist with the Florida Teaching Profession/National Education Association (FTP/NEA), have asked for a five percent raise.

They claim that the district is sitting on $23 million in operating fund reserves and that the raises could easily be paid from that money.

"The school district is insulting the employees," Nancy Wheeler, executive director of Semco (Seminole County Employees' Union), said. "They have not made the employees their priority and they want to raise their number one priority."

Wheeler said the reserves are three times larger than they are normally.

Hughes said the union has trouble understanding how that could happen.

"I have trouble seeing how, in

Lake Mary says no banner signs

By NICK PFEPAUF
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary City Commission has eased some business sign restrictions to help Lake Mary Boulevard merchants who say stalled construction has hurt business, but the use of banner signs for temporary advertising is not one of them.

At the commission's direction several weeks ago, City Planner Matt West drafted an emergency ordinance to allow temporary banner signs for existing developments along portions of the boulevard in the construction areas.

Several merchants had complained that their regular signs could not be seen by passing motorists, as they were hidden behind construction areas and piles of dirt which remain from the earlier widening work.

West had suggested a limit of one per parcel with a maximum area of 50 square feet. He stipulated that the sign would have to be removed as soon as work on the boulevard is substantially completed.

When it came up for consideration during last week's City Commission meeting however, the suggested ordinance came down faster than the signs.

"We could grant this emergency ordinance," said Mayor Randy Morris, "but the construction project is under a joint agreement between the city and Seminole

Historic Sanford Tour of Homes

Mary Dale and Bob Jones by the fireplace of their historic home.

By DEL FREEMAN

SANFORD — About the only things Bob and Mary Dale Jones could save from their historic home at 161 Park Avenue were some lighting fixtures.

Though Bob moved into the home 15 years ago, he and Mary Dale were only married this past February, after the death of their former mates in 1987. They are diligently preparing for the Sanford Historic Trust Tour of Homes in December at which time they will open their home to the public.

The Joneses combined their furnishings and Mary Dale has added her touches to the upstairs sewing room and the downstairs Florida room, but she's only heard tales of how bad the house was in disrepair when Bob first saw it.

"My wife always wanted one of these old homes in downtown Sanford," he said. A retired Naval Lt. Commander, Bob and his wife had lived in the area while he was active in the service. When they returned to visit her mother, his wife spotted a for sale sign on the house across the street.

"We missed buying that one," he said. "Someone beat us to it by about an hour. When this one came on the market the following year, my wife wanted it but I couldn't figure out why," he said. Even though Jones is only the third owner, the second had been an absentee owner, and the

Employees want review of promotion

By GEORGE DUNGAN
Herald Staff Writer

WINTER SPRINGS — Approximately two dozen members of the Seminole County School Board's maintenance department met Thursday in Winter Springs to again charge favoritism in hiring and promotion policies in the department.

Several employees also called for the ouster of Maintenance Director Don Nicholas and one of his division supervisors, Rick Thompson.

"I really feel that would make the department run a lot better, it would run smoother," said Todd Metta.

The employees said the favoritism in the department was evident in a recent landscaping foreman promotion.

"What we have is favoritism. There were seven people more qualified (for the post)," Metta told the crowd.

Nicholas has denied the charge of favoritism and has said he promoted the most qualified person.

David Graham, a representative of UniServ, the umbrella group of four school system unions, said Personnel Director John Reichert had agreed to review the applications for the post. Calls to Reichert were not returned before deadline this morning.

Although there are approximately 160 employees in the department, Graham said he was not disappointed with the turnout because of the quick scheduling of the meeting. A scheduled Wednesday meeting should be better attended, he said.

"This was very short notice. We'll do the follow-up and more and more people will come in. The test will be next Wednesday. We should get 40

Fireman, girlfriend charged in arson plot

FORT MYERS — A Charlotte County Fire Rescue lieutenant and his girlfriend were arrested on arson conspiracy charges, and his brothers were charged with an Englewood bank robbery the couple is accused of helping plan.

Lt. Nicholas Godwin, 32, a four-year veteran of the Charlotte County Fire Rescue Unit, and Mable Neff, 52, were charged with conspiring to set a fire in order to steal $100,000 from an Englewood home.

County, and the county says it is not in favor of banner signs, even on a temporary basis.

City Attorney Ned Julian commented, "In my opinion, without approval of the county, if the city approved it, we might be in violation of the inter-local agreement."

The suggested banner sign proposal was defeated by a unanimous vote of the commission.

Lake Mary already has approved the easing of some sign restrictions along the boulevard. "We have an ordinance dealing with existing non-conforming signs," West explained. "The city adopted some restrictions in 1987, which dealt with height restrictions, then the boulevard standards ordinance was adopted in 1989 which dealt with such matters as planters, landscaping and decor."

He said, "We have a number of business signs that are already in existence that no longer meet these code standards, but we are holding off asking for any changes or compliance until the boulevard construction project is completed."

Efforts continue by Seminole County and the bonding company, toward obtaining a new prime contractor for the widening project, to replace Mahoney Construction Co., which was forced to stop work in July, due to financial problems.

County officials expect the widening work may be able to get back underway by shortly after the first of the new year.

analyzer will yield immediate results.

The addition of the center will have an impact on virtually every department in the hospital.

"Many of the departments have already instituted changes in preparation for the program," according to Scott. "Other departments will be expanding services that are already in place.

Stress tests, EKGs, and cardiac ultrasound procedures have already increased this year, Scott said. Utilization of the cardiac rehabilitation program by patients post myocardial infarction (MI), post coronary artery bypass graft (CABG) or diagnosed with angina has also dramatically increased.

In addition to the Cardiovascular Surgeons, PA, who currently perform over 2,500 open heart procedures each year, the center will bring many new staff members to the facility.

"Perfusionists will manage the heart-lung machine and the cardiac surgeons will bring their physician assistants to assist with surgery," Scott said. "There are more Board Certified Cardiologists on staff at HCA Central Florida Regional Hospital than ever before and these numbers are also likely to grow."

The completion of the $4.5 million expansion is set for October of 1993. But that will not end the ever changing face of the hospital. A second Cardiac Catheterization Laboratory, with a price tag of $3 million and the Radiology Department expansion at $6 million are both set to begin in December of '93. The total renovation package will end in May of '95 with the $3 million parking deck to finish the $22.1 million expansion.

these very tough economic times that we are all experiencing, the fund has tripled in size," he said.

District officials argue that the reserve fund is much smaller than Hughes claims. According to school board chairman Nancy Warren, the union used figures that were several months old when making their calculations.

"To my knowledge they never asked for the most up-to-date figures," Warren said.

According to Warren, revised figures show that the reserve amount is likely closer to $16 million. She said that about $10 million has already been committed to other projects.

In addition, the district overestimated the number of students who would be enrolled in the district this year by about 2,000. Warren said the district could lose as much as $5.4 million as a result of that.

"That would leave us with less than $1 million in reserves," she said. "That would not be enough to pay for raises for the employees."

Wheeler said that the employees whose salaries have been frozen for the second year in a row were "totally disheartened" by the district's attitude.

Warren said she hopes the special master who heard the case will understand that the district would do anything within their power to pay the employees more.

"We just can't do it," she said. Negotiations between the district and the unions began in June and reached an impasse in August.

Nathan Kazan, the special master who heard the case for the non-instructional employees last week, declined to discuss it. He said that his decision would be made by Nov. 24.

The teachers' union will present its case to special master Frances Barstow on Nov. 18.

"We hope to have all the issues resolved by the end of the year," Wheeler said.

Toy drive, jazz and blues show set pace for holidays

By NICK PFEBAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The final toy drive before the holidays will be held tomorrow night at the National Guard Armory. It's the Jimi Brooks Spirit for Kids Toy Drive.

The event will be a jazz and blues show. Organizer Chris Cranias said, "We will have three bands performing throughout the evening, and while it's top-notch entertainment, our main purpose is to obtain toys for the children who would otherwise have a very bleak Christmas."

Admission for the event is $10 at the door, plus an unwrapped children's gift. The admission price includes beverages and door prizes. Food will also be available.

"The bands we have," Cranias said, "include the Hoo Doo Child, Mike Galloway and the Midnight Creepers, and the All Star Blues-Jam."

"Their specialties range from jazz to blues," he said, "but they do plenty of swing and other types of music. They are each excellent entertainment groups and I'm sure people will enjoy their performances."

The event is named in honor of Jimi Brooks, who died Aug. 22. He had been involved in the project for many years.

Toys obtained at tomorrow night's party, as well as during two previous drives this year will be distributed to needy children through First Impressions Early Childhood Development Center. Brooks' wife, Meta, owns and operates the Center.

"There are other toy drives each year," Cranias said, "but in most of the cases, the toys end up going through a distributor in the Orlando area, and very few Sanford area children are helped. This toy drive is strictly local people helping local children."

The first toy-gathering drive of this year was held at Cristo's Classics restaurant in July. At that time, enough toys to fill 15 large boxes were obtained.

The second toy event on Sept. 25, also held at Cristo's, drew a similar number of toys. For that drive, the name of the event was changed to the "Jimi Brooks Spirit for Kids Toy Drive." "We will continue to call it that," Cranias said. "Jimi really loved the kids, and all of us need to follow his example in doing whatever possible to help those who need us."

The party tomorrow night will be held from 7 p.m. until midnight, at the Florida National Guard Armory building, 915 E. First St. in Sanford.

"Remember to bring a toy," Cranias added.

news had been vacant for a long period.

"The kitchen had an old double sink with cracked enamel and a metal drawer, and one light and one outlet. There were only parts of three chandeliers in the downstairs," he said. Bob combined the three to make one whole historic chandelier, which he hung in the dining room. Some of the light fixtures from upstairs were saved, and a small wall light or two, and all else had to be gutted.

"This house was owned by the Bols family originally," he said. "They came down from Massachusetts and must have had money because Mr. Bols never worked. We've met people here and there who knew the family, and learned that Mrs. Bols always called the living room her music room because she was an accomplished pianist and had a grand piano in here."

The home was built in 1925, and is not historical like many built in 1894, Mary Dale said, and the Jones' have done nothing to preserve the old homestead, but have concentrated instead on comfort and convenience.

Two downstairs brick fireplaces were in working order, Bob said, but made such a mess when used that he opted for gas logs the second winter. "They only warmed the room they were in, but I imagine that must have been the case in winters when the house was built," he said.

Double hung windows originally installed in the house are still in evidence, but little else is as it was. An old city map depicts the rear door of the home on the right side of the house, Mary Dale said, but it is actually located at the rear. Bob said the area contained a lavatory and space to hang wet outerwear, and was sealed off from the kitchen when he moved in. He speculates it was originally relegated to use by outside help hired by the original owners. He tore out the wall and expanded the kitchen, updating the half bath.

Today, the house contains a living room, Florida room, and large bath to the left of the foyer, and a dining room, kitchen and office area to the left. Upstairs are three bedrooms and the sewing room which Mary Dale has converted to an office/dressing area, since it's off the master bedroom.

And one bedroom upstairs has been designated to hold all the Christmas decorations the Jones' expect to use for decorating prior to the home tour. Mary Dale said she and her daughter have been shopping and planning for it, and Bob said a neighbor whose home was on the tour last year has agreed to help him this year in return for Bob's help last year.

For Mary Dale's part, it has given her a good excuse to add to her collection of Christmas decorations. "It's a lot of fun," Mary Dale said. "It's our first Christmas together, and it's nice to have new Christmas decorations."

people," he said.

Graham told employees they needed to document any alleged cases of favoritism or harassment. Such documentation would be used to spur the system to develop a system of fair promotion practices, he said.

Although most of the employees at the meeting were from the landscaping division, several said employees from other divisions would attend the Wednesday meeting.

Superintendent Paul Hagerty would also be invited, Graham said.

Although several employees did not want to be quoted, some expressed their dissatisfaction with the department openly.

"I used to like to come to work in the morning but not since he's (Nicholas) has been there," James Bradwell Jr. said. "There is favoritism and discrimination. He needs to be replaced."

Graham said the group remains committed to a freeze on the assistant foreman job until applications are reviewed, an overall administrative review of hiring and promotion practices and a mandated employee relations course for Nicholas and Thompson.

Welcome silence falls over county

The anti-noise ordinance passed this week by the Seminole County Commission was a good idea.

The law basically prohibits all loud man-made sounds in or near residential areas. A perfectly sound law. After all, people do want peace and quiet when they're at home.

With the ordinance, people can no longer use such things as power tools, lawn mowers, log chippers or edgers from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m.

Also, the ordinance states there will be no repeated firearm shooting within 500 feet of a house.

The ordinance doesn't mention airplanes but does prohibit all watercraft sounds in excess of 90 decibels at a distance of 80 feet. Property so. A maximum of 90 decibels should be enough for anyone, even the most avid airplane owner.

All in all, this was a sound, sensible response to some legitimate complaints about excessive noise on both air and water. All parties should be satisfied with this ordinance.

It's time for change

It's time for a change! This phrase has been echoed by political candidates of every persuasion. They all look forward to making these "changes" when the elections are over. Now, that the people "have spoken," the winners have a responsibility to assure their promises are kept, and changes made in the best interests of the American people.

Two contrasting holidays in November also speak of change in American history when... "It was time for a change!" The early colonists lived a frugal existence, with starvation but a step away, and native enemies threatening their existence. Eventually, as they were blessed by a bountiful harvest, they knew it... was time for a change! They extended the hand of peace and friendship to the neighboring Indians, inviting them to a harvest feast. This was the beginning of a new era of peace and cooperation between the two peoples.

Another November holiday is Veterans Day, a reminder of those in the life of the American nation when... "It was time for a change." Values, crises, and struggles which threatened to destroy the life of the nation. The men and women of the American Revolution changed the direction, thinking, and spirit of the nation. Veterans became a symbol of the courage, sacrifice, and loyalty which helped the nation to survive, and to change direction in her thinking, goals, and achievements.

With the elections over, the most important change is to return to the basic and essential in the national foundation of the country. Promises made to win the "war" against crime, drugs, and poverty, economic uncertainty. This can only be done when "God" is given priority in our planning.

Many of our problems have become God, and morality, have been abandoned from "public" activity. The values which are the basis of "Christianity" in American politics which underpin the Constitution. When it is true that no organized religion should control the state, neither should "the state" control or dictate religious attitudes and thinking.

On the first Thanksgiving Day the Pilgrims established a "public" holiday recognizing God and his place in our lives. Let's keep the heritage God and peace. God is still part of American life. Moral values are still the basis for personal and national conduct. Veterans Day reminds us that it takes faith, courage and sacrifice to make the changes necessary to solve the problems which plague America.

America has its problems. Change needs to be made. Veterans Day and Thanksgiving give us the foundation for a starting point in "changing America!"

America has turned a corner

RALEIGH, N.C. — This 1992 election reminded me of a delicious line from "Cyrano de Bergerac," where Valvert pokes fun at Cyrano's grotesque nose with the politician insult, "Ah, your nose, sir, your nose... is rather large."

The eloquently poetic Cyrano is hurt. "No, kind sir! You are too simple. Why you might have said — oh, a great many things!"

That was the 1992 election — "a great many things." This nation has already crossed so many historic Rubicons that Bill Clinton will be more than halfway through his first term before the full measure of its sociological fallout is felt.

Arkansas' most charismatic Public made triadic history — the first Rhodes Scholar to be elected president, the seventh president to be elected with a minority of the popular vote and the first president since well before the Civil War to be part of an all-Southern winning ticket.

After Clinton inscribed his name in the history books, members of the House and Senate took over.

As a result of the sexist and racist inquisition of Anita Hill, many women felt dehumanized. But they didn't get mad. They got even. For the first time ever, two women senators were elected from the same state (California), the first African-American woman senator was elected (from Illinois) and the largest number of women ever (six) will be seated in the Senate.

Over in the House as well, the largest number ever of women members (47) was elected. Two black women, one in Florida and one in North Carolina, broke the good of boy hold on the South and were elected, as were blacks from six of the 11 Southern states. The Congressional Black Caucus now numbers a whopping 40.

Do these demographics, moving in the direction of parity, represent change? Of course. The questions is what kind of change?

The key is what Clinton does with his presidency. Under Reagan and Bush, the Emersonian, "An institution is the lengthened shadow of one man," meant a contempt for poor people, a disdain for blacks, a laissez-faire approach toward the budget deficit and a special solitude for the rich.

That was the 1992 election 'a great many things.'

Clinton has two worthy models from which to inaugurate his presidency — Franklin D. Roosevelt and John F. Kennedy. I can remember freezing outside Kennedy's Georgetown home in December and January while Kennedy (costless) would announce some dramatic appointment or issue a public policy statement.

He set an immediate tone of authority for his presidency. You knew this guy was in charge.

In Roosevelt's first 100 days, he proposed so many legislative innovations that the phrase "100 days" came to symbolize presidential initiative.

More important is the meaning of Clinton's election for the Democratic Party's future as exemplified in a Southerner's victory statement.

On election night, North Carolina Governor-elect Jim Hunt was a model of humility as he celebrated his third-time victory for the governorship. "I've been given a rare opportunity," he said with courtly geniality. "I have been given a second chance."

Clinton's electoral college win is the Democratic Party's second chance. Democrats haven't elected and re-elected a president since Roosevelt.

But Clinton must begin by convincing the majority of voters, including the alienated Perotistas, that he deserves their confidence.

The roadshow that was the campaign

WASHINGTON — If the 1992 political campaign were on Broadway, it would have closed after opening night. The U.S. Constitution, however, required us to sit through it until the bitter end.

The plot and performance of the actors and actresses in this national drama ranged from the sublime to the ridiculous, punctuated by doublepeak and distortion. It was long on pathos and short on poignancy.

But rather than tar all of the candidates with the same brush, we've singled out some of the most egregious examples of absurdity.

FAMILY VALUES: If there was one narrative that animated the election, it was the mantra "family values." In fact, sometimes it was unclear whether Republicans sought the presidency or the priesthood.

Attorney General William F. Barr, the nation's top law enforcement officer, even took to the pulpit to pillory movie director Woody Allen's sex life. In a speech to a Roman Catholic group last month, Barr took Dan Quayle's sniper attacks against Hollywood a step further. Barr said that Allen's explanation of his affair with Mia Farrow's adopted daughter was a graphic illustration of the rampant permissiveness that he said is weakening the country's moral fiber.

If so, then Barr wins honorable mention because — as long as we're speaking of moral fiber — he's currently embroiled in the Innagate cover-up scandal.

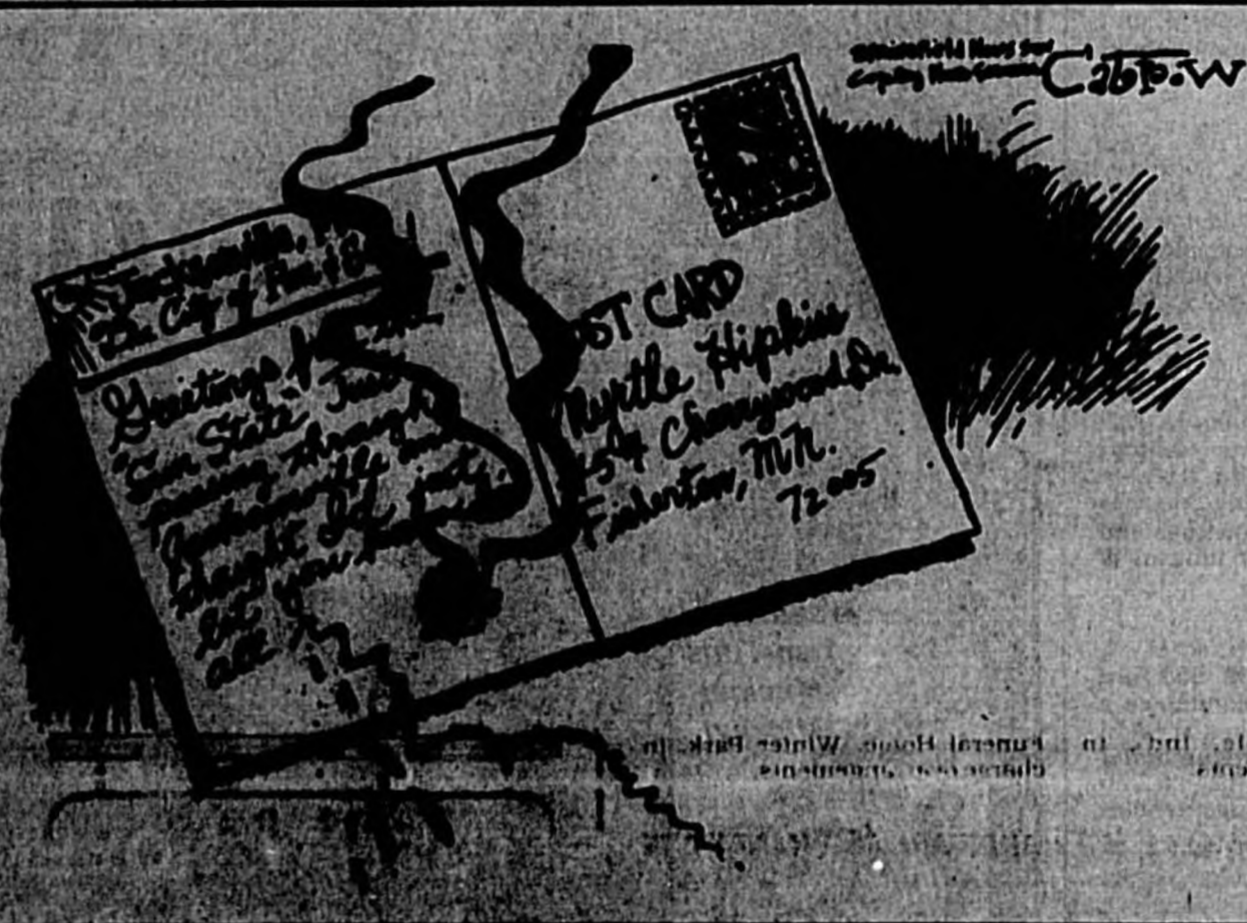

Even Vice President Dan Quayle dragged Allen into this religious/moral war. Quayle spent most of the campaign waging an Operation Desert Storm of sorts against Hollywood, styling himself as the Stormin' Norman of the battle. During the Republican National Convention, Quayle's top aide described Allen as a "good Democrat" when asked about the family values implications regarding the actor's messy personal life.

BACK-STABBING: Sen. Fritz Hollings, D-S.C., eluded re-election after a robust Republican challenge. In an act of senatorial courtesy, South Carolina's Republican Sen. Strom Thurmond declined last summer to campaign for Hollings' foe, Tommy Hartnett, explaining that he had to stay on friendly terms with his Senate colleague.

Hollings, however, was not as courteous. He told reporters that he expects Thurmond to stay in the Senate until he dies. "He's the cock of the walk," Hollings said. "He's got a chauffeur... and a car. He'd be totally lost if he got out at his age."

If Thurmond retired, Hollings said, the 90-year-old senator would not "have a home, a hometown, and would quickly discover he doesn't have any real friends."

CHUTEPA: Rep. James P. Moran Jr., D-Va., disclosed that he twice tried marijuana as a young man, so great revision in fact. But his disclosure came less than a day after he sneared his Republican challenger for using pot and cocaine as a teen-ager. Moran made a distinction between himself and Kyle E. McMillon, saying that cocaine is a more serious narcotic. Trying to put out the fire, Moran later explained: "In the first place, it wasn't as a teen-ager, but I'm not going to get into that, because it shouldn't be a major issue in this campaign." By the time this flap had subsided, there was no doubt that Moran — unlike President-elect Clinton, had actually inhaled.

Final days of 'just lie' campaign

WASHINGTON — In the final days of Campaign '92, a staple of George Bush's stump speech became his cry that a lie should not be elected president. He meant Bill Clinton, but judging the standards of the Bush campaign over its last days, the final result was lying. Over its final days the Bush campaign resorted to lying, and it did so in a very calculated manner.

In late September, when poll numbers showed Bush as the leader, he called the lie that he would carry a single state except Utah, a call even cut from Bush's own handbooks to Britain's Conservative Party. In April, the Conservative and Frank Miller, John Major came from far behind in the final weeks of the campaign to hold onto a Parliamentary majority. How did they do it? The Bush-Quayle team took notice.

In response, Conservative Party political operative Kenneth Clarke, in a quick trip to Washington, D.C., met with Bush's chief of staff, Mark Foxworth, and discussed the plan. The plan was to have a "just lie" campaign. The plan was to have a "just lie" campaign. The plan was to have a "just lie" campaign.

According to sources who attended the meetings, the British strategy was simple: Go consistently negative in the campaign's final weeks. The only way to win is to attack the opponent. If you can't win, you can't win.

How to do it? Here the British conservative operative showed some insight. In the last 10 days of the campaign, the British will attack Clinton. If you can't win, you can't win.

This is exactly what the Bush campaign did in its final days. The Bush campaign did in its final days. The Bush campaign did in its final days.

The Bush campaign did in its final days. The Bush campaign did in its final days. The Bush campaign did in its final days. The Bush campaign did in its final days. The Bush campaign did in its final days.

Another tactic was to do highly questionable partisan attacks. In another tactic of the Bush campaign said: "What Bill Clinton calls change, Jerry Rubin (Chic, Madison, etc.) would call an attack and lie." A comparative study says his economic plans could put 2,400 (10,000, 12,000, etc.) people out of work." The study was prepared by the Republican staff of the Joint Economic Committee and is a totally partisan campaign document of extremely dubious merit.

Another tactic was to make charges based on spurious logic. For instance, one series of ads, which ran in states where exports form a valuable part of the economy, said: "the Washington Post has called Bill Clinton protectionist." This stumped the Post, which had already endorsed Clinton, so it asked the Bush camp for its source. Here was the reply.

In 1988 the Post, in an editorial, called a portion of a pending bill protectionist.

Clinton, as governor of Arkansas supported a portion of the bill that would have had trade jobs in the United States. Therefore, if he supported a portion of a bill, a portion of which the Post had called protectionist, the campaign was justified in saying the newspaper had called the governor protectionist.

In the final days of the campaign, Republican operatives were furiously spreading rumors that Clinton intended to raise taxes on 10 people with incomes above $500,000 but only "raised" at more than $200,000. An attempt of this was that he planned to lower the maximum tax rate on the current year's income. A source that would not be named on the record said, Clinton's major problem, but it became a staple of GOP press books in the final days of the campaign.

Bush himself was not above trying to a national audience. On the Friday before the election, GOP's Larry King asked him about his bridge partnership that showed that he was at a lay cooking in February 1988 while he has maintained he did not realize that area was being tested for hepatitis until he was checked by the Tower Commission in December 1988.

The response: He never said he did not know about area going to Iran. Just that he did not know that the money from the sale was going to the Contras.

Over its final days the Bush campaign resorted to flat-out lying.

If the 1992 political campaign were on Broadway, it would have closed after opening night.

Dance hall approved

By MICK PFENFAUP
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Sanford City Commission this week cautiously approved the establishment of a dance hall club at 420 S. Sanford Avenue. The request narrowly passed with a three to two vote with concerns voiced over the club creating possible problems.

A request for the club, to be called Love Track, was first presented on Sept. 18, and was scheduled on the commission's agenda for meetings on Oct. 12 and 26. Each time however, additional information was presented and the commission voted to table any decision.

Questions had been raised regarding the use of alcohol on the property, hours of operation, noise levels, capacity, and other factors.

An anonymous letter sent to the city by a person identified as "a business owner," was also included in the information supplied to the members of the commission during the Oct. 26 meeting, and again this past Monday. It said in part, "All I can see for this particular area is more drug dealing and more prostitution for this area."

The writer, signing his or her name as "A Tax Payer" suggested the club should seek out other properties.

Ronald Thompson, who would operate the club, had at one time told the commissioners that while no alcohol would be served, customers might bring their own into the facility during certain functions. The city code however, prohibits what are called "bottle clubs."

Last week, Thompson met with City Manager Bill Simmons and agreed to conditions of approval required by the codes and as the result of previous commission discussion. Monday night, Thompson acknowledged that he had agreed to all of the conditions.

The stipulations call for no alcoholic beverages to be sold, provided, dispensed or brought in to the facility.

Operating hours are to be limited to only Friday and Saturday nights from 10 p.m. until 2 a.m.

City Commissioner A.A. McClanahan questioned the hours provision, "I question why they would start that late," he said. "And where will the people be before they go to this club, and what condition might they be in by that time in the evening?"

Thompson had previously said his membership would be required to agree to rules and bylaws that are designed to insure safe and courteous conduct by the members.

Other points in the agreement between Simmons and Thompson included a maximum occupancy not to exceed 51 persons, because of the fire regulations.

Outside each door a sign prohibiting loitering is to be posted, and Thompson is to authorize the Sanford Police Department to enforce loitering codes on the property.

Commissioner Lon Howell cast one of the two dissenting votes. "I want to be certain you understand the warnings in this," he told Thompson. "And I want any resident in that area who has any problems, to call me or the police right away."

Mayor Bettye Smith, who cast the other negative vote, stressed that the agreement also states, "any instances of non-compliance may result in the withdrawal of the commission's approval." She added, "I just want to be sure Mr. Thompson understands this part."

Thompson had previously indicated the club will not only feature dancing, but have presentations of cultural, educational and entertainment nature. "It's a private club," he said, "and it will only be open to our membership, 21 years old and older, who agree to our by-laws."

IN BRIEF

LOCALLY

Bullets can't stop Shaq

ORLANDO — Washington tried Charles Jones and he didn't work. Neither did Pervis Ellison or Tom Gugliotta or any combination of the three. When it came to stopping Orlando rookie Shaquille O'Neal, the Bullets had no answers. O'Neal punished Washington with 31 points and 21 rebounds in a 127-100 Orlando victory. He hit 12 of 19 shots and blocked four shots to completely shut off the middle on both ends. Almost lost in O'Neal's night were the performances of Scott Skiles, Dennis Scott and Nick Anderson. Skiles had 14 points, 12 rebounds and 11 assists, while Scott was good on 11 of 20 attempts, including four 3-pointers, for 27 points, and Anderson scored 25 points, including a pair of 3-pointers.

AROUND THE STATE

Gators sign two hoopsters

GAINESVILLE — University of Florida basketball coach Lon Kruger has signed two players to national letters-of-intent. Kruger signed Greg Williams, a 6-3, 185-pound point guard from Woodson High School in Fairfax, Va., and Tony Mickens, a 6-5, 220-pound guard-forward from Northern Oklahoma College and Memphis, Tenn. Williams, who chose Florida over Indiana, averaged 20 points per game and is rated among the top 75 high school players in the nation. Mickens, who also considered Oklahoma, averaged 17 points per game last year en route to All-State and All-Conference honors. He led Northern Oklahoma to a 25-8 record last year and scored 27 in the opener this season.

AROUND THE WORLD

Maldonado likes Marlins

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — Free-agent outfielder Candy Maldonado, who helped power the Toronto Blue Jays to the World Series championship, said Thursday he hoped he would end up with the expansion Florida Marlins. "I would like to play in Miami, because I'm closer to home and I believe they would be able to obtain my contract in the free-agent draft," said Maldonado, a Puerto Rican native who made $1.6 million last season, in which he batted .272, hit 20 home runs and drove in 66.

4A-7 title on the line

By TONY DeBORNIER
 Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD — Can the Seminole High School defense stop Leesburg's Oran Singleton? Or is the question: Can Oran Singleton stay away from the Seminole defense?

This evening at 7:30 p.m., the Seminole Fighting Seminoles and Leesburg Yellow Jackets will meet in Leesburg to decide the 4A-District 7 football championship. Seminole (6-2) and Leesburg (7-1) are both 2-0 in the district.

In other contests tonight, Lake Mary will celebrate its homecoming with a game against Lyman. Oviedo visits Mainland and Lake Howell travels to DeLand. All three games are scheduled to kick off at 7:30 p.m.

Lake Brantley is idle this week. The Seminole-Leesburg matchup is an intriguing one, especially the confrontation of Singleton, who leads the state in rushing with 1,627 yards, and the Seminole defense, which thwarted two third-and-goal attempts from the 1-yard line by Lake Brantley last week.

While waiting for his offense to get untracked, Seminole coach Emory Blake has employed an unusual but effective combination of the skills of placekicker Jason Walraven and the Tribe defense.

Given the choice, Seminole will opt to let Walraven kick off, have the defense pin the opponents deep in their territory and give the Tribe offense good field position. Given that Walraven has a range of about 45 yards on field goal attempts, the offense generally doesn't need to move the ball far to create a scoring opportunity.

Last week against a very strong Lake Brantley defense, the Seminole offense showed that it may be ready to start making regular contributions, rolling up 220 yards of offense that included a 78-yard Travis Perkins to Tony Duncan touchdown strike.

With Mainland having clinched the 5A-District

4 championship, the other Seminole County schools are reduced to battling for the Seminole Athletic Conference championship and a berth in this year's Rotary Bowl against Freedom High School of Bethlehem, Penn.

Currently, Seminole leads the SAC chase at 3-1, a half-game ahead of Lyman (5-3, 2-1 in the Seminole Athletic Conference). But because Lyman beat Seminole earlier this season, the Greyhounds will wear the SAC crown if they can win their last two games (at Lake Mary and at Lake Brantley).

Following Seminole and Lyman in the SAC standings are Lake Brantley (5-4, 2-2 SAC), Oviedo (5-4, 2-3 SAC), Lake Howell (3-6, 2-3 SAC) and Lake Mary (5-3, 1-2 SAC).

There are only two games scheduled for next week. Seminole hosting Lake Mary and Lyman traveling to Lake Brantley to provide the opposition for the Patriots' homecoming game.

The Rotary Bowl is scheduled for Thanksgiving morning, Nov. 26, at Lymam High School.

Rams hope to exact revenge

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald Sports Writer

LAKE MARY — Will turnaround be fair play?

A year ago, the Lake Mary High School girls' volleyball team rode into the 4A-Section III championship match in Boca Raton with a 33-1 record and a long winning streak, only to suffer a heart-breaking 12-15, 15-10, 15-4 loss.

As the Rams wondered what might have been, the Spanish River Sharks rode the momentum from that match and carried it through to the state championship the next weekend.

This afternoon at the Lake Mary High School gymnasium, the Rams of head coach Cindy Henry get a shot at revenge as they host the Sharks in a rematch of last year's 4A-Section III matchup with a berth in next week's state tournament at stake. Spanish River will be looking for its sixth straight sectional title and sixth straight state tournament appearance.

The match will start at 4 p.m., prior to the varsity football team's homecoming matchup with Lyman, which will start at 7:30 p.m. at Don T. Reynolds Stadium.

Florida Sports Wear, Gator's force playoff

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Different routes, same results.

Gator's rallied from behind three times to win in eight innings while Florida Sportswear won handily as the two teams finished the regular season in a tie for first and forced a playoff next week for the championship of the Sanford Recreation Department Men's Thursday Night Fall Slowpitch Softball League.

Gator's had to come back from an 8-1 deficit early in the game to tie the score at 8-8, only to fall behind 10-8 entering the bottom of the seventh inning. An RBI single by Scott Page and a fielders choice forced extra innings and Bobby Sanders singled in Mark Clatterback with no one out in the bottom of the eighth to clinch a tie.

Florida Sportswear then used a five run inning and three, three-run innings in crushing Mobil Tech 14-0 in six innings to force the playoff.

In the other game at Chase Park, Myers Tree Service outslugged Bamboo Cafe 25-18 to conclude the regular season.

The final standings show Gator's and Florida Sportswear tied with

Monroe Harbour Marina	266	620	86	- 10	17
Gator's	163	220	21	- 11	16
Florida Sportswear	205	263	- 14	20
Mobil Tech	000	000	- 0	7
Bamboo Cafe	204	740	8	- 18	19
Myers Tree Service	272	326	2	- 25	20

9-1 records. Following the leaders were Monroe Harbour Marina (5-5), Bamboo Cafe and Myers Tree Service (both 3-7) and Mobil Tech (1-9).

A decision as to when the playoff game would be will be announced tomorrow and will appear in the Herald on Sunday.

Pacing Gator's to the win were Wil Bland (triple, two singles, two runs, two RBI), Chris Wire (three singles, run), Page (triple, single, two runs, two RBI), Terry Russi (triple, single, run, RBI), Sanders (two singles, two RBI) and Micky West (two singles, RBI).

Also, Terrell Ervin (single, run, RBI), Clatterback (single, two runs), Mike McLohon (single, run), Mark Aten (single) and Tom Bledsoe (run).

Providing the offense for Monroe Harbour Marina were Mike Fulton (triple, double, two singles, run, two RBI), Sam Raines (four singles, two

□ See Softball, Page 2B

Gator's Terrell Ervin somehow managed to avoid the tag of Monroe Harbour Marina catcher Ray Vermilio (No. 22) and scored on this play, helping rally Gator's to an 11-10 come-from-behind win and a share of first place.

Spurned Tampa Bay group starts to 'get even'

By FRED GOODALL
 AP Sports Writer

TAMPA — One broken promise deserves another.

That's the gist of a lawsuit filed by the city of St. Petersburg and the ownership group that tried and failed to move the San Francisco Giants to Florida.

Now, Vincent J. Naimoli and his Tampa Bay partners want the court to invalidate letters they signed promising not to sue major league baseball, its clubs and employees.

"This is just the beginning," Naimoli vowed. "There's an old saying, 'Don't get mad, get even.'"

The suit, filed Thursday in Circuit Court in Pinellas County, is the first of what officials say will be several major lawsuits in response to the National League's decision to block the proposed relocation of the Giants.

Meanwhile, Florida attorney general Bob Butterworth said his office and lawyers for St. Petersburg have begun a fact-finding mission that will remove the "cloak of secrecy" surrounding the area's seventh unsuccessful attempt to acquire a team.

"The facts we heard are much more egregious than what we've heard about or read about in the newspapers," Butterworth said after meeting several hours Thursday with Naimoli and others plotting legal strategy.

The initial Tampa Bay suit named the National League, NL president Bill White, executive council chairman Bud Selig, the commissioner's office, major league baseball and all NL clubs except the Giants as defendants.

"I assume in the appropriate period of time counsel for the various defendants will deal with it," deputy commissioner Steve Greenberg said. "It's not entirely unexpected."

The action came two days after San Francisco investors, who bid $100 million to keep the Giants from moving, sued the city of St. Petersburg. That lawsuit asks the courts to declare that they didn't interfere with the Florida offer.

The Rams' hopes will be based on an aggressive, hard-hitting, well-balanced attack led by junior middle blocker Diane Diller and setter sister, Loretta Sager. Other important members of the Lady Rams team are Angie Snow, Jennifer Gramling, Sarah Moore, Nikki Proce, Jennie Langstaff, Lindy Langstaff, Karen Placenty and Joyce Cops.

Haimol's suit accused husband of not dealing in good faith with the Tampa Bay Group, saying husband failed to give "full and honest" consideration to Tampa Bay's offer.

How to keep contamination from meals-to-go

(Editor's note: This is the conclusion of a 3-part series.)

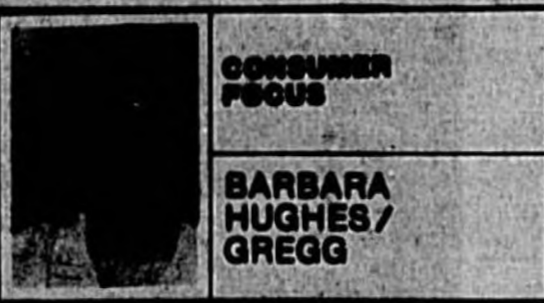

How can you keep bacterial contamination out of your group's well-intentioned efforts? Here are answers to some group meal questions people have asked this office.

Q: I have to roast several turkeys in cooking bags to take to church tomorrow. To save time, can I partially cook the birds today and refrigerate them overnight in the bags? I could finish cooking them and take them to church warm tomorrow.

A: No, it's never safe to partially cook anything. Any bacteria present will just warm up to temperatures when they can start growing. They may not be killed by partial cooking.

Second, refrigerating the whole birds — especially since the bags would insulate and cause them to take longer to cool down — gives bacteria another period in which to grow. Completing the cooking the next day might not kill the total bacteria or bacterial poisons that present. Many common food-borne bacteria can double in number every 20 minutes at temperatures between 40° and 140°F.

Completely cook the turkeys in the bags. Debone them and refrigerate the meat overnight in smaller containers. Reheat for serving the following day.

CONSUMER FOCUS

BARBARA HUGHES/GREGG

Q: My Women's Circle is doing a cookbook to raise money for the new daycare center. Many of our favorite recipes use raw eggs. How can we update them?

A: You are right to be concerned. The bacteria Salmonella enteritidis can make you sick if you use a contaminated raw egg.

Generally, we advise people now to use a cooked base for ice creams and custards. The base should reach 160°F and coat a spoon. You can substitute commercial pasteurized egg mixes or egg substitutes in recipes where cooking won't work. ALWAYS keep eggs refrigerated and cook eggs until both yolk and white are firm. For more details, write for a free copy of the FSIS-Egg Handling Handbook, Rm. 1165-South Bldg., Wash., D.C. 20250.

Q: My men's group at the Temple is baking chicken parts for a homeless shelter. The shelter can't take the food until late in the day, but people drop the prepared chicken at the Temple on their way to work in the morning. Our refrigerator is often too full to hold everything. What can I do?

A: This is a common problem. Any cooked perishable food should only remain at room temperature 2 hours: 1 hour in hot weather. Therefore, the men can either refrigerate the chicken at work and drop it off on their way home or leave early, take the chicken from home refrigerators and then to the Temple.

Q: Our Neighborhood Watch group throws an annual chili supper. We cook the chili the day before and refrigerate it overnight in the aluminum cooking pots. What about Alzheimer's and aluminum?

A: There is no proof that aluminum cookware contributes to Alzheimer's disease. But unpleasant taste changes can occur when food is stored in metal cookware. Plus, there is the real safety problem of slow cool-down when food is refrigerated in over-large containers. Large portions of food should be divided into smaller containers for quick cooling.

Q: I think our lodge cooks are doing pretty well handling perishable foods. But what about the raw vegetables for salads and desserts that sit out?

A: Good question. Many people who are concerned about raw meat and poultry today forget that everything in the kitchen must be handled properly to avoid foodborne illness.

'Over-the-hill' fete surprises honoree on 40th birthday

By SARABOSHA ROSSER
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Mary Ward was the surprised guest of honor at an "over the hill" party on Oct. 30 when she celebrated her 40th birthday at Deerpath Lane.

Her sister, Pat Pauka, thought up the idea and with the help of Mary's husband, Roy, they invited "40" guests and Roy called on Charlene Caterers for the chicken, ribs, coleslaw and beans (which were delicious). The swimming pool had black bubbles (black balloons) and there were black balloons and other over-the-hill decorations all around. Roy and Pat had all guests park at neighbors' homes.

When Mary returned from her day's outing with friend Karen Rabun, the house was quiet and the pool area was relatively hushed. Mary and Karen entered the house and Mary must have heard something and came out to the darkened pool area where lights and yells of "Surprise, Surprises!" rang out in the quiet country setting.

Mary was indeed surprised — almost speechless for a few seconds. Mary and Roy's 15-year-old son, Brad, was at a school dance and 8-year-old Bryan was on hand. Mary said to Bryan, "I didn't know 8-year-olds could keep such good secrets" to which Bryan beamed. He certainly was proud of how he carried that one off. Karen Rabun commented, "I had such a nervous stomach when I was out with Mary, afraid I'd somehow give it away."

It was Roy's 44th birthday on Nov. 1 so there were gifts and cards for both. Most guests were dressed in casual black attire as requested in the invitation.

Bride fears child will ruin her day

DEAR ABBY: You have covered this topic numerous times in your column, but it just happened to me and I am stuck for a solution.

Our wedding is coming up soon, and we just received a response card on which the couple had penciled in "_____ and child."

Abby, their child is under 2 years old and the father is a colleague of my fiancé. We both fear it would be rude if we asked the couple to please leave their child at home.

On the other hand, we do not want a crying child to ruin our formal church wedding. What other course of action can we take?

Alcoholism on increase among elderly Americans

DEAR MARY: I'm worried about my dad. He retired at 65 after a career as an aerospace engineer. He was always a social drinker, but after Mom died, he began drinking heavily. When he drinks, he becomes disoriented and his speech and judgment become impaired. He seems depressed and doesn't seem to care about any of the activities he used to love to do. Instead of playing golf now, he just goes to his club and drinks with his former golf buddies.

I don't know how much I should say. My husband says it's his life and if this is the way he wants to live, maybe we should just leave him alone. I'm confused and don't know what, if anything, I should do.

DEAR DAUGHTER: No one can tell what you should do, but I certainly hope you will get a professional opinion. Encourage your dad to let you accompany him to a doctor or other professional skilled in recognizing the signs and symptoms of alcoholism in the elderly.

In the past decade, aging Americans have become the newest group at high risk for alcoholism. There are several reasons for the startling increase in the number of older people needing treatment. Two of these are:

Loneliness. Alcohol can be an anesthetic when people find themselves alone for long periods of time. It's difficult to watch friends and spouses die and it's tempting to seek solace in a bottle.

Denial. Many older people see alcoholism as a moral weakness instead of a disease and will vehemently deny that they might have the problem.

Additionally, physiological changes lower tolerance to alcohol. Both the metabolism and ability of the liver to detoxify slow down.

Now, in "the quiet years," he has a chance to put the finishing touches on that schooner. When a man is working, he has time for thinking ... time for looking back. Our aged friend has a good many years to look back over - some of them good, some bad. But, through all of them, there's been one steady, continuing force, like a thread of steel woven through the pattern of his life. This force has been the thread of faith. A faith that is sustained and strengthened when a man devotes great time and energy to God's house and his mission. Now, in "the quiet years," he can look back over what has been. He can rejoice because he is able to review a life full of devotion. You see, it is all important to be able to review the right kind of life. Don't wait. Worship God this week.

Teaching hospital best for diagnosis

DEAR DR. GOTT: What could cause chronic knee pain and stiffness in a 27-year-old male for nine long months? There is no history of injury or rheumatic fever. X-rays and an MRI were negative; blood analyses, including a Lyme test, were negative. Prescribed medications for a possible virus were useless. This is horribly frustrating and limiting. Any advice?

DEAR READER: Although I empathize with your frustration, you seem to have had many of the tests used to diagnose arthritis; therefore, yours must be a unique case of arthritis.

I believe your best bet would be to make an appointment in the orthopedic clinic at a teaching hospital, where specialists have the experience and sophisticated testing to diagnose unusual cases.

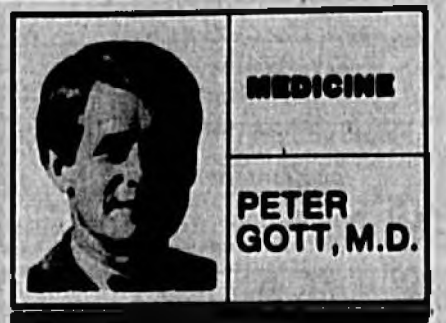

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Help I -- Physical Illness." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 4-year-old granddaughter visited me for a weekend after having been exposed to chicken pox. She never got them; however, a few days after she left, I developed shingles. Could I have gotten them from her?

DEAR READER: The viruses causing chicken pox and shingles (herpes zoster) are probably the same: People who develop shingles always have had past chicken pox infection, and the pox virus often triggers a shingles reaction. Thus, your granddaughter could have carried the virus to you, without experiencing illness herself. The reason for this is not known. The treatment for both conditions is identical: the anti-virus drug Zovirax.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please advise if ginseng-containing capsules are effective as "energizers."

DEAR READER: They are not. However, ginseng has anti-inflammatory properties that may, in some cases, reduce the pain of certain disorders, such as mild arthritis. Therefore, this anti-inflammatory effect could, I suppose, "energize" someone with chronic pain.

MEDICINE

The computer industry has progressed more than any other in the last 10 years. The latest gizmo is called a Personal Digital Assistant (PDA), which is due to be marketed by Apple early next year under the code-name of Newton. Presumably this is a tribute to Sir Isaac rather than Wayne or Fig.

It would be useful to have your own programmed PDA at the bridge table. If you weren't sure of the relative odds of two plays, you could look them up. Take today's deal. You reach four hearts and West leads the club king. Which is the best line of play?

You are faced with three losers: one spade and two clubs. If you lose a trump trick as well, you will go down, of course. The percentage play to avoid a heart loser is to cash the ace, allowing for West's having a singleton queen, and then to finesse twice through East. I am no great mathematician, but I make your chances in the heart suit alone just under 51 percent.

However, there's an alternative plan. You could cash the A-K of hearts and then play on diamonds. The contract will make if either opponent has a singleton or doubleton heart queen, or if the opponent with queen-third of hearts has at least two diamonds. (If an opponent holds queen-fourth in hearts, you can wave goodbye to your contract with this line.)

I calculate the probability of success to be almost 57 percent. It is clear which is the better line of play, but it would have been much easier if I had had a PDA at my fingertips.

What do you think is my middle initial?
