SAY BODEOS ARE EQUALLY SAVAGE AS BULLFIGHTING

Committee Appointed By American Humane Association Eliminate Practice; Is Declared To Be "Useless"

CHICAGO, Mar. 31.—The only reason or excuse for the rodeo is crowd indifference to anything except being entertained and, when aroused, a bloodthirsty one," said a statement of E. K. Whitehead, of the Colorado bureau of child and animal protection, issued here today by George A. H. Scott, chairman of a committee named by the American Humane Association to study ways and means of eliminating the practice. For the brute "there is nothing except unwillingness, force fear, suffering and often death."

"Every spectator at a rodeo is the worse for being one," declared the statement, "as he is a little harder, a little more ruthless, a little more indifferent to the suffering of other creatures, a little more reconciled to injustice, to cruelty, to the pain and blood of helpless creatures."

The need of rough riding and bucking horses has gone, and the need of catching and holding cattle has been developed far beyond the requirements of its original usefulness, continued the statement which pointed out that most of the stunts of the rodeo today were never performed on the old cattle ranges, and many never at all.

In some of the other features of the average rodeo there is less chance for suffering or injury, but in none of it is there anything but fear and pain and sometimes death for the unfortunate dumb animals," said Mr. Whitehead.

"Men also are often injured in the violence between man and beast. But the man can choose, can do as he likes and is not forced in any way. He has, beside, the pleasure of exhibiting his skill, his chance at the prize offered."

"It is our American analogue of the bullfight, also with its eager, bloodthirsty crowds, its tantalized and tortured bulls, its old helpless horses disemboweled on the bull's horns."

HAWIANS TO ASK GODDESS OF FIRE TO AID IN PARTY

Will Ask "Pele to Stir Herself From Her Present Condition of Sloth and Laziness" As Honor For American Tars

HILO, T. H., Mar. 26.—In an attempt to propitiate Madame Pele, the Hawaiian goddess of fire, into activity at her home, the Halemau-mau pit "House of Everlasting Fire," of the Kilauea volcano on this island, ancient Hawaiian ceremonies and rites in honor of the old gods will be carried out at the pit mouth on Sunday, March 29, according to announcement of Mr. P. C. Benner, an authority on Hawaiian ceremonies and legends, who will direct the affair.

The purpose is to persuade Pele to stir herself from her present condition of sloth and laziness, which has persisted since the last great eruption and explosion in May, 1924, in which one person was killed and several others injured, and to exhibit some of her ancient activity for the benefit of the personnel of the United States fleet which will visit the islands this summer.

There will be no lights at the pit on the night of the ceremonies save the flaming torches of ancient pagentry which will be used in the exercises. All the old Hawaiians of the island will be invited to participate in the rites, which will be an elaborate reproduction of those used in the past to honor the goddess.

M. Luahiwa, of Waianaka, Hawaii who was master of chants under the monarchy, will arrange chants and dances which are seldom seen in modern days. He will also prepare the offering of awa root, which is said to be one of Pele's most cherished delicacies.

An old Hawaiian now living at Waimea, who participated in similar rites long ago.

LAMB SENTENCED TO LIFE

BRADENTON, Mar. 31.—In Circuit Court this morning, Judge W. T. Harrison denied a motion of the attorneys for John J. Lamb, for a new trial and their client was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Light Sought On Benefit Of Foreign Language Studies

NEW YORK, Apr. 1.—The initial step in a three years' nationwide study, aiming to make the teaching of foreign languages more effective in the United States, has been taken by a special investigating committee of the American Council of Education.

Questionnaires mailed to 20,000 secondary schools, asking for statistics on the study of French, German, Italian and Spanish will be followed by an investigation in more than 700 colleges and normal institutions in an effort to learn how far the average American needs foreign language as a help toward understanding the English language, and whether modern language, pupils use English more correctly than others.

An interesting feature of the study will be the use of delicate instruments to measure the movement of the eyes in reading foreign texts. Mechanical devices also will be tested as aids in the study of French, German and Spanish.

A new kind of Pie

HIS favorite dessert? At any age sixteen or sixty—the chance are he'll firmly answer, "Pie!" Here a delicious new kind, with all the refreshing grapefruit flavor plus the smoothness of rich custard. And course it's nourishing, because it's made with Borden's Evaporated Milk. The only drawback—everybody'll want a second helping.

- GRAPEFRUIT CREAM PIE
- 3/4 cup grapefruit juice
  - 1/2 teaspoonful grated lemon rind
  - 4 tablespoonfuls flour
  - 3/4 teaspoonful salt
  - 1 tablespoonful lemon juice
  - 1 1/2 cups sugar
  - 3 eggs
  - 1/2 tablespoonful butter
  - 3/4 cup Borden's Evaporated Milk
  - 3/4 cup water
  - 1/2 tablespoonful sugar

Beat egg yolks. Mix thoroughly and mix again. Beat one and a fourth cups sugar. Beat into the egg yolks gradually. Dilute milk with water, bring to boiling point, and pour slowly over the egg-yolk mixture. Cook in a double boiler until it thickens, stirring constantly. Cook three minutes longer. Add butter, fruit juice, and rind. Mix well. Cool and fill baked pastry shell. Beat five tablespoonfuls sugar gradually into the stiffly-beaten whites of eggs. Cover top of pie with meringue; brown lightly in a slow oven. This will make one large pie or two small ones.

Paying Your Own Way

The cost of a college education is steadily increasing year by year, according to figures which the Tampa Tribune has collected and presented in a well written editorial of a few days ago. Though these figures at first may appear discouraging to a poor boy seeking higher learning, still the increase is scarcely larger proportionally than the general increase in the cost of living.

The student at the University of Kansas, according to the figures, is put to an annual expense of $327, while at the University of Illinois he must pay out $900 each year. At some of the eastern colleges the necessary expenses run as high as eleven and twelve hundred dollars.

However, generally speaking, there is no reason why anyone, regardless of his financial status, cannot get a college education if he wants it and if he is willing to work for it. The self-help bureaus in practically all of the larger colleges make it possible for students to earn part, and in many cases all, of their expenses while going through college.

At the Kansas state agriculture college last year, it is said that forty-five per cent of the student body were entirely self supporting; eleven per cent paid part of their own expenses; while only thirty-three per cent earned no part of their expenses at all. From a recent vote taken in the senior class at Yale, it was found that nearly half were working for part of their expenses, and a large proportion paid their own way entirely.

How the students are enabled to do this, to work a sufficient number of hours to earn eleven or twelve hundred dollars a year, and yet keep up with their classes, is explained by the self-help bureaus. These bureaus are responsible in large measure for the placing of students in positions where they can earn the greatest amount of money in the shortest time. They get jobs for the students in eating houses, in cleaning and pressing establishments, in laundries, in wood services, in tutoring school, in the offices of the universities, and in a thousand and one odd jobs where they can make enough to make both ends meet.

So the time has past when only a rich man can continue in school. Were Abraham Lincoln alive today, he would not walk fifteen or twenty miles to borrow a book in which to glean knowledge, he would be doing out hash in the Commons of some big university in order that he might more readily have access to thousands of books in the library about which the university is built.

IN THE LIMELIGHT

The fire upon the hearth is low,
 And there is stillness everywhere,
 And, like winged spirits, here and there
 The firelight shadows fluttering go.
 And as the shadows round me creep
 A childish treble breaks the gloom.
 And softly from a farther room
 Comes: "Now I lay me down to sleep,"
 And, somehow, with that little prayer,
 And that sweet treble in my ears,
 My thought goes back to distant years,
 And lingers with a dear one there;
 And as I hear my child's amen,
 My mother's faith comes back to me
 Couched at her side I seem to be,
 And mother holds my hands again,
 Oh, for an hour in that dear place
 Oh, for the peace of that dear time—
 Oh, for that childish trust sublimed
 Oh, for a glimpse of mother's face!
 Yet, as the shadows round me creep,
 I do not seem to be alone—
 Sweet magic of that treble tone
 And "Now I lay me down to sleep!"
 —Eugene Field.

The Ten Commandments

Now that practically everyone in Sanford has become a real estate agent, or is working for someone who is, the matter of salesmanship is doubtless uppermost in the minds of all. The paramount question of the hour is, "How can I make him buy?" And everyone is asking that question, while, needless to say, quite a few have found the answer.

At the same time the ten commandments are being overworked. We do not mean the Ten Commandments, as Moses read them to his people, but the "ten commandments" of good health, the "ten commandments" of safety first, the "ten commandments" of etiquette, and the "ten commandments" of "How to be happy, though married." Now comes forth the Success magazine with the "ten commandments" of salesmanship.

So, while everyone is bored to death with commandments of one kind or another, it might not be amiss at this time when everyone is so tremendously interested in closing some sale, or other to list these few commandments on salesmanship. They might help in swinging that deal. Here they are: Thou shalt be a man first of all. Thou shalt be all there. Thou shalt smile even tho there is pain in thy heart. Thou shalt not radiate thy doubts to thy prospect's mind. Thou shalt not talk down, nor speak disparagingly of a competitor.

Thou shalt size up thy prospect and adapt thyself to his mood. Thou shalt have confidence in thyself and in what thou art selling.

Thou shalt always approach thy prospect like a conqueror, like a man in the habit of winning.

Thou shalt know thy goods and be able to speak convincingly about them.

Thou shalt keep thyself fit every day to tackle the most difficult prospect, to do the biggest thing possible to thee.

MY FAVORITE STORIES

BY IRVIN S. COBB

The original of Peter Dunne's immortal character, "Mr. Dooley," was a saloon in Chicago much frequented by newspaper men. He was a born wit, and in his way—and a very good way it was, too—a philosopher and a student of human nature in its varying aspects.

One wintry evening as he perched behind his bar in friendly conversation with two of his regular patrons there entered a so-called journalist whose reputation as a ready borrower and a poor payer was more than citywide.

"Uncle John," he said briskly, "I'm detailed to an out-of-town assignment and I'm a little short for cash—need some coin for traveling expenses. Slip me a ten-spot, will you? I'll hand it back to you sure on pay night along with the rest of the small loans I've had off of you lately."

The old man's face gave no sign of his feelings. He lifted his broad bulk, waddled to the damper, extracted from the till a bill and, without a word passed it across the bar to the promising man.

The latter, murmuring his thanks started to cram it in his pocket but took a second glance at the greenback.

"Hold on here, Uncle John," he said. "I need ten bones and this bill is only a five."

"That's all right, my son," said Uncle John; "it makes the thing come out even."

"What do you mean, makes the thing come out even?"

"Why, five I lose and five you lose," said Uncle John.

WHO CAN OWN A HOME?

KANSAS CITY TIMES

Perhaps the average American family figures that owning a home is almost an impossible undertaking. It is an enterprise that seems to involve a heavy expense and considerable responsibility. "We are not able to own a home," is a common statement. There is a belief also that it usually is cheaper to rent than to possess property, and a frequent feeling that only when a family is "settled" should the owning of a home be attempted.

As a result of this situation home owners, particularly in the cities, are in a minority. A recent statement shows that about 80 per cent of the families of Chicago are tenants. The percentage is higher in some cities and lower in others. In some of the smaller cities and towns as high as 40 to 50 per cent of the families own their homes. That condition is unfortunate. Secretary Hoover states that "families which own their homes maintain them in better condition and the transactions between tenants and landlords are dispensed with the result that waste is eliminated and the standards of living raised." President Coolidge declared recently that "no greater contribution could be made to assure the stability of the nation and the advancement of its ideals than to increase the number of home-possessing citizens."

Good Friends With Canada.
 Roosevelt's Plain Talk.
 You are 90 Per Cent Good.
 Air Travel 1 Cent a Mile.
 BY ARTHUR BRISBANE
 (Copyright 1924)

SOME OF Canada's able men suggest getting out of the League of Nations, which they call unnecessary expense and a dangerous entanglement for their country.

The fact that this country stays out of the league has some weight with our neighbors in the north.

A GOOD League of Nations might be constructed on this continent with Canada and the United States as foundation members. A league to take care of America, North and South, leaving Europe to look after Europe, would be popular and useful.

Close and friendly relations between Canada and this country over especially important. Our interests manner and standards of living are practically the same and this country could learn several things from Canadians.

THE LATE Theodore Roosevelt's letters to his friend, Cabot Lodge and his remarks to others are interesting. W. J. Bryan he called a "Small miltary and demagogue," and of Woodrow Wilson, he said to a naval official, "The man (Wilson) is a physical coward."

Theodore Roosevelt spoke plainly, especially in these private letters, published after his death with the consent of his family.

WHAT YOU are at birth limits definitely your future possibilities. Your surroundings and education may enable you fully to develop all that you have in you. But nothing can be added to the limits that are fixed with your first breath of life.

THEREFORE it is a comfort to hear from Professor T. H. Morgan, eminent biologist of Columbia University, that every one of us has, from an ancestor, a mental and physical inheritance at least 90 per cent good.

Had the percentage been lower, the ancestors would not have survived and would have no descendants.

WHY A BLUE-EYED man and woman never have brown-eyed children. How it happens that a taste for drugs or drink is never inherited and many other interesting things Professor Morgan can tell you. But the most important is this:

Ninety per cent of the hereditary forces within you are working on the side of virtue and success.

NEWS FROM Paris will interest railroad men of the kind that think. For the cheapest airplane trips from Paris to Rouen, a distance of 80 miles, a 50,000 franc prize was offered. Brouhin, a French flier, made the trip at a total cost of 80 cents, one cent a mile for gas and oil. And he won the prize.

Up in the air there are no roadblocks or rails to be kept up, no friction or bumping, wearing out rolling stock. Before the Ford gets through with their airplane building, they will carry ten passengers from Detroit to Florida for one-quarter of the present fare, in one-third of today's running time.

ALLA BUX WAZIR, aged uncle of the beautiful Nautch girl Mumtaz Begum, tells how the girl's new "protector," a rich merchant having taken the dark-skinned Mumtaz from her rightful "owner" the Maharajah of Indore, was murdered for his audacity.

IT IS THE old story of Troy, with Mumtaz Begum in place of Helen, and with conspiracies, high officials paid to plan to murder and other details to warm the heart of any magazine editor, looking for an exciting story.

Could you imagine better names, ready made for romance than Mumtaz Begum, Alla Wazir, and the Maharajah of Indore.

Poor little Mumtaz, with the slim ankles, sold and delivered had her delicate brown face slashed with the knife of hired murderers, told to disfigure her, that no other man might own her beauty. That is the sad part of the story.

SECRETARY WILBUR, according to a dispatch to the New York Times is worried. It seems that eleven warships, with all their anti-aircraft guns, blazing away to the limit, at an aircraft target, were unable to score even one single hit.

THE SECRETARY has demanded a report, and that is a good idea. A better idea would be to build about 4,000 fast fighting airplanes.

What do you think a half dozen bombing airplanes would have done to those 11 warships while they were shooting off their comic-opera anti-aircraft guns.

Warships are obsolete. Battleships are merely big humors, easy targets for aerial bombs. If the nation must support the battleship builders, why not subsidize them, and teach them to build airplanes.

A REAL PROBLEM
 ST. PETERSBURG INDEPENDENT

Largely because of the attitude of her dominions, Great Britain stands today in respect to the Geneva protocol much as the United States did on the League of Nations. The protocol is a rewriting of the covenant specifying how the league members should proceed against recalcitrant members. The United States kept out of the league largely because of the fear that it would embroil her in quarrels in which she had no interest.

British dominions now oppose the protocol because they do not want to enter commitments for the security of various European boundaries.

The Geneva protocol therefore will not be supported by Great Britain, despite the fact that it is the product chiefly of Ramsey MacDonald and M. Herriot. Some other way to assure the security of Europe will have to be worked out, and it is the particulars on this question which are agitating Europe today.

Germany has made advances for the formation of a European peace association to include England, France, Belgium, Germany and possibly Poland; England appears favorably disposed to accept Germany in a new partnership of concord, but French suspicion presents a barrier.

ABOUT READING THE NEWSPAPERS
 FLORIDA TIMES-UNION

The Spartanburg Journal recently said: In this day and time there is a vast difference between reading the daily newspapers and reading it intelligently. Its printed pages should and does contain something more than the funny features, the sport page, the society column and the latest on current crimes, court litigations and politics. However important any of these features may seem, they are but incidents after all in the getting up of a paper.

Chronicling current events is recording history while it happens. Intelligent comment on these events is helpful to the reading public. There is room for improvement in the secular press, as elsewhere, and Prof. Grant M. Hyde, of the University of Wisconsin says: "If we are to have better newspapers, a better community, a better government, we must train a generation of young people to demand better newspapers and to read them intelligently," and adds that such a training is the job for high school and college teachers.

He emphasizes the necessity of the newspaper as follows: "Without the newspaper, our social system would be inarticulate, our democratic government impossible, modern business could not exist. But its influence is only partly effective because the American public, while buying millions of newspapers, does not read the important things in them."

Publishers of American newspapers are today undertaking to make them accurate, interesting, entertaining and useful, and feel that they have an important work in this offering and proposing a matter of intelligence and advice. As has often been said, and with full truth, the accuracy of the news printed is of first consideration. This must be maintained if a newspaper is expected to continue its clientele and it is the number of readers that determines the newspaper's capacity to make a living for the army of workers employed.

The world is not ready to reduce its mental expository to the first or second grade understanding and profit. There is, however, the certainty of children hearing a great deal that is beyond their comprehension and the newspaper can hardly injure the prospect of the youngest readers. It can often add to their progress. Newspapers in school is not altogether a new proposition, but it is not nearly so general as it could be, with the average modern American general advantage.

DISTANT STARS SURPASS SUN IN SIZE AND HEAT

One Star With Three Times Heat of Sun Is Found By Scientist of Smithsonian
WASHINGTON, Mar. 30.—Estimating the diameters of 10 of the brighter stars by separating their heat into a long spectrum and measuring the heat of the different colors and then calculating the probable temperatures of each of these heavenly bodies, was the work of Dr. C. G. Abbot, director of the Astrophysical Observatory of the Smithsonian Institution, during a recent series of field experiments, whose results have just been made public.
A star, having nearly three times the heat of the sun, was among those observed by Dr. Abbot. This was Beta, Rigel, having an estimated absolute temperature of 16,000 degrees centigrade, compared with the sun's 6,000 degrees centigrade. Other stars observed with a greater temperature than that of the sun were: Vega, absolute temperature, 14,000 degrees centigrade; Sirius, the brightest star in the heavens, 11,000; Procyon, 8,000. The other stars were Capella, 5,800; Aldebaran, 3,000; Reta Pegasi 2,850; Betelgeuse, 2,600, and Alpha Herculis, 2,600. The last two have an estimated diameter 500 times greater than that of the sun.
Dr. Abbot used in this work a radio-meter, constructed under the direction of Dr. F. F. Nichols, pioneer in measuring the heat of the stars. Utilizing the giant telescope at the Mount Wilson Observatory in California, with its 100 inch reflecting lens, Dr. Abbot was enabled to obtain fairly accurate measurements of the heat of the different colors, even far into the infra-red. Curves were drawn, indicating the spectral distribution in the radiation of blue, white, yellow and red stars, and estimates of their probable temperatures were made.

Big Prizes Offered To Cattle Breeders

CHICAGO, Apr. 1.—Agricultural fairs and dairy cattle shows having district, state-wide, regional and national prominence will share in the $25,000.00 in cash, and other awards offered by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America this year as special prizes for the showing of Holsteins. These awards are made in addition to the regular prize offerings of each fair and dairy cattle show.
A new feature this year is to be provided in the prize awards for Holstein herds at the National Dairy Show. The rule requiring the appearance of not less than five entries in the judging ring to fill this class has been revised and the following sliding scale of prizes is now effective: One herd $75; two herds, $100 and $75; three herds, $125, $100 and $75; four herds, $150, $125, $100 and $75; and for five or more herds, the regular prizes, $250, $150, $125, $100, $75 and $50.
In addition, special prizes totaling $500 are offered on Holstein herds in this class by the Holstein Association.
