County Rejects Proposed Library Sites—For Now

The Seminole County Library Advisory Committee didn't have much luck convincing county commissioners Monday to spend $600,000 for sites for two of the county's planned branch libraries — one in Forest City and another in Casselberry.

Muck on both properties was a major reason for turning both recommendations aside, at least for the time being.

Other sites are going to be looked at before a final decision is made.

A majority of the commission — Bill Kirchhoff, Robert G. "Bud" Feather and Barbara Christensen — rejected a Forest City site, off west state Road 436, known as the "Coulter Property" because of the extensive denuding that would have been required. This property encompasses 4.2 acres and had a sale price of $235,000, about $55,000 per acre.

Instead commissioners said a parcel on Sand Lake Road, near state Road 434, owned by Forest Lake Academy, would be preferred.

Kirchhoff, Feather and Mrs. Christensen instructed staff to negotiate with the academy on a suitable parcel of property it might sell.

And County Administrator T. Duncan Rose III said he was concerned that muck on 24,000 square feet — the actual site of the branch and room for expansion — of the 4.2 acres of land would have to be replaced with fill dirt which is very expensive.

County Librarian Jean Rhein said the administrators of Forest Lake Academy are unwilling to discuss the sale of a parcel of property unless the county commission indicated an interest in it.

To Ms. Rhein's protest that a library on Sand

Lake Road would be within one mile radius of five schools and would become a "baby-sitting service" requiring a security guard to keep order, Kirchhoff said. "As far as students go, we want to encourage their use of libraries. If students are the ones who use the library, we must cater to them."

As far as the other site was concerned, Feather said he found it hard to envision "senior citizens and students crossing busy state Road 436 to get to a library."

And to Ms. Rhein's insistence that the library need exposure on 436 to attract users, Mrs. Christensen disagreed, saying those who want to find a library seem to have no difficulty finding one, even in a neighborhood environment.

Commissioner Robert Sturm said the commission should follow the library advisory committee's recommendation.

The second site recommended, a 5-acre parcel on the Oxford Road extension, north of state Road 436, was also opposed due to swampy conditions. Commission Chairman Sandra Glenn, joining the meeting late, urged that another site be looked for when it was revealed that at least two acres of this tract is wet land.

The asking price is $375,000.

Kirchhoff noted that much of the soil at the site has been moved around and there may be even more muck land there than now believed. He urged that old aerial photos from the 1940's era be examined to determine the composition of the soil there.

Hugh Palm, a member of the advisory committee, said this parcel is owned by a group of developers.

Feds Will Back Loan For L. Mary Water Plant

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

A federal agency has agreed to guarantee a $1.4 million private loan to Lake Mary so the municipality can build a water treatment plant.

In a hand-delivered letter from the Farmers' Home Administration last week, City Manager Kathy Rice was told that, while the government agency would not actually loan the city the money, it would guarantee the loan if the city raised its water rates and could find a private financial institution to loan the city the money.

Lake Mary sought the loan to build a plant by December, 1985, that is capable of serving a population of 7,000. Such a plant, Mrs. Rice said, will allow the city to grow from its present 4,000 residents and wean the city from Sanford which has been supplying the city with water since 1976.

Disagreements between Lake Mary and Sanford about water beginning in 1981 have led both cities to court and Sanford is under an injunction not to turn off water to Lake Mary until its water plant is built. Sanford officials have contended that Lake Mary is growing rapidly and taxing the Sanford water system.

Sanford urged Lake Mary to build its own water treatment plant, but according to Lake Mary Mayor Walter Sorenson, Sanford officials were skeptical that Lake Mary could build the plant and stop using Sanford water.

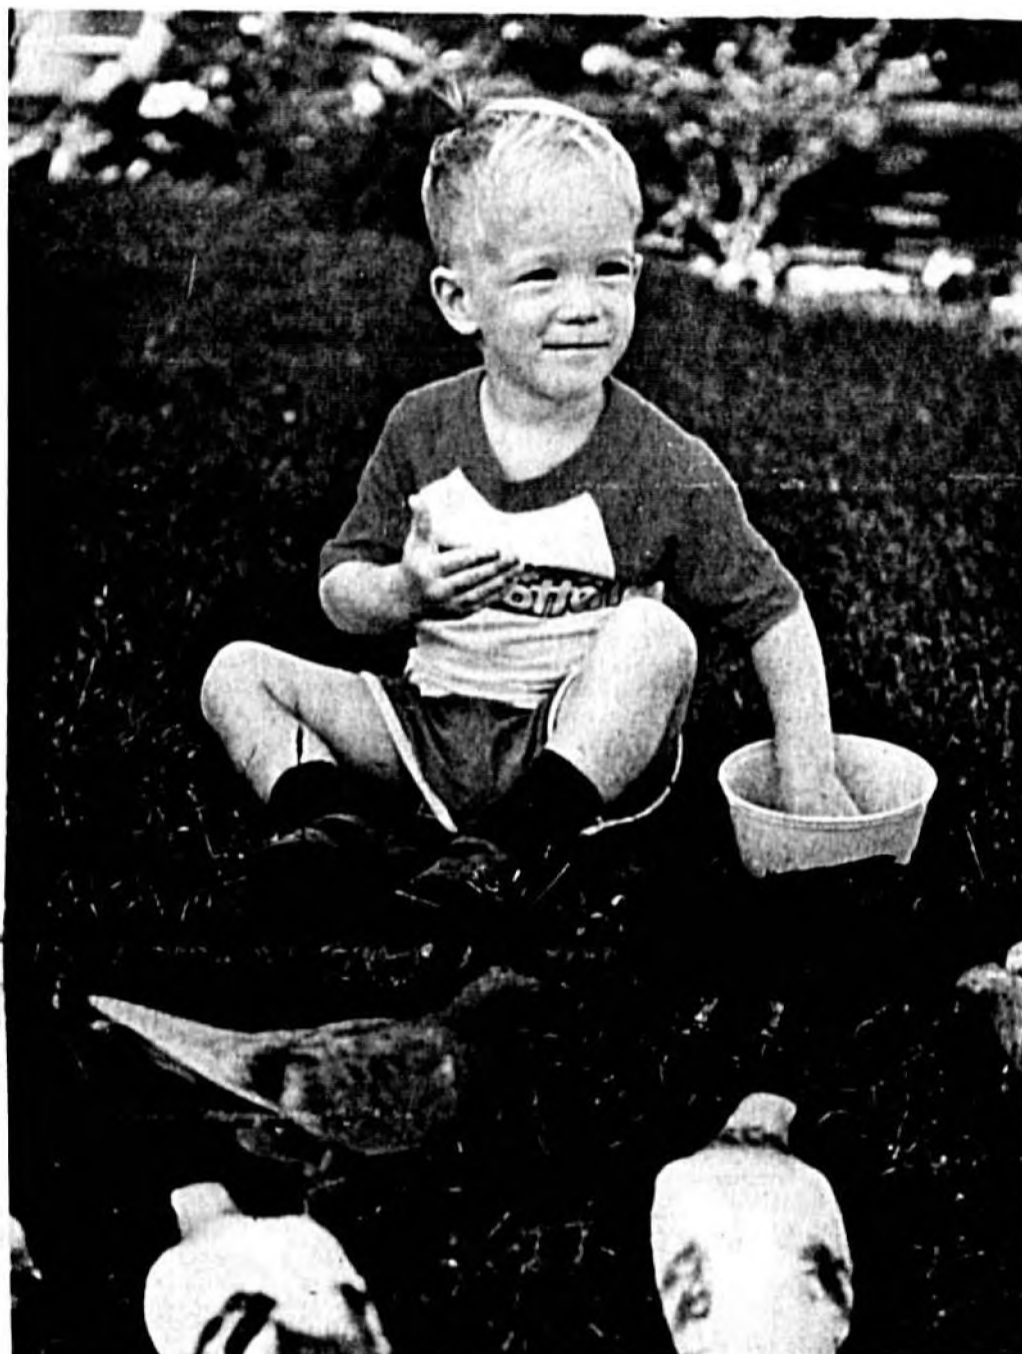

Mrs. Rice said the FmHA agreement should solve what concerns Sanford officials had regarding Lake Mary's ability to get a plant approved, built, and end its dependency on Sanford water.

Mrs. Rice said that if the city commission approves entering the agreement with FmHA, city officials will then seek the $1.4 million dollars needed for construction from a private lending institution, using the federal guarantee of the loan as collateral. After the plant is built with private money, the FmHA will pay off the private institution. The city will then hold a bond referendum to raise the money to pay back the federal agency and then, over a 30-year period, pay off the bonds.

Lake Mary commissioners will have to adopt several conditions, however, before the loan guarantee is approved, Mrs. Rice said.

Among the conditions is that the city raise its water rates to allot money to pay off the bonds. While the FmHA said the city will have to increase its rates — about $9 a month for the home owner — Mrs. Rice said the suggested rate increase did not account for impact fees and since the time the original conditions were set by FmHA the city and the agency have agreed that

Discovery Readied For Launch

Shuttle's 1st Passenger To Be Teacher

By Al Rosalter Jr.
UPI Science Editor
CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — The space agency, preparing to try again Wednesday to launch the new shuttle Discovery, has been directed by President Reagan to select a school teacher to fly aboard a shuttle within 18 months.

Reagan told the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Monday to "choose as the first citizen-passenger in the history of our space program one of America's finest, a teacher."

The first commercial engineer assigned to a spaceflight is a member of Discovery's crew, Charles Walker, who works for McDonnell Douglas Astronauts Corp., will fly with five NASA astronauts to produce large amounts of a secret hormone in a biological processing machine.

Walker and astronauts Henry Hartfield, Michael Coats, Richard Mullane, Steven Hawley and Judy Resnik are scheduled to take off at 8:35 a.m. EDT Wednesday on a mission that had two additional satellites added to its cargo after last June's aborted takeoff.

Engineers planned to shave some weight from the new spaceship Discovery today so it will be able to carry the heaviest shuttle cargo yet into orbit Wednesday morning.

Total cargo weight is 47,682 pounds — a ton heavier than the previous shuttle record set on the sixth mission when the shuttle Challenger carried a big communications and tracking satellite into orbit.

To give Discovery extra weight-carrying margin, project officials decided to allow 450 pounds of frigid liquid oxygen and hydrogen to evaporate. Nearly 3,500 pounds of oxygen and hydrogen were taken on board Monday night for the ship's three fuel cell generators because the tanks cannot be partially filled.

NASA administrator James Beggs said the agency will announce in October how a teacher may apply to make the shuttle flight. Two elementary or secondary school teachers from each state who meet relaxed medical standards will be selected by their peers for more evaluation.

The state winners then will be narrowed down to 10 by a national peer review group. Those 10 teachers will be evaluated by a NASA committee and Beggs will select the winner and his or her backup from the final five candidates.

The space agency said it is not accepting applications at this time.

Beggs said the winner will be ready to fly on an unspecified mission late next year or early in 1986.

Journalists, artists and members of other professions would get a chance to fly aboard a shuttle later, Beggs said.

The teacher — there is no minimum or maximum age — will be given eight weeks of basic training in shuttle procedures and then will be assigned to NASA for one year after the flight to describe the experience to other educators and students. NASA will reimburse the teacher's employer for a year's salary.

"The opportunity implies an obligation," Beggs said. "Under this program, anyone chosen to participate will be expected to communicate the experience, to share it with as wide a segment of the public as possible."

Mortgages At 11% Set For Eligible

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Prospective first-time home buyers in Seminole County who plan to buy a home in the $50,000 price range will have a limited opportunity to get fixed 11 percent, 30-year mortgages.

Some 540 of these mortgages, $27 million worth, are expected to be available from 27 mortgage lenders in Seminole, Orange and Lake counties about Sept. 15.

Those families eligible to get the mortgages must fall within certain income guidelines. Those guidelines are available by calling the Orange County Housing Finance Authority at 423-3865.

As an example of the guidelines, Sam Mazzotta, executive director of the authority, said Monday a couple with two grown working children can have a combined income of not more than $36,450.

While Seminole County missed the July 23 deadline for participating in the Orange County-based program, Mazzotta was successful last Friday in getting approval from the board of the state Housing Finance Agency chaired by Gov. Bob Graham to include both Seminole and Lake residents with those from Orange.

The Orange County authority is authorized by Florida law to issue municipal housing bonds to produce lower interest rate mortgage money for first-time homebuyers in Orange County.

But, Mazzotta argued before the state group Friday that when one talks about Orlando and Orange County they are actually talking about a larger geographic area of influence that crosses political boundary lines.

He told them the impact of Orlando affects Lake and Seminole as well and the need for affordable housing exists in both Seminole and Lake counties just as strongly as it does in Orange.

He said he also told them the Orange County agency has inter-local agreements with both Seminole and Lake, authorizing the program in both counties and the fact Orange County met the deadlines for applications for state approval should be considered as meeting the deadlines for Seminole and Lake as well.

"The board agreed," Mazzotta said.

Today at 3 p.m. in New York Mazzotta and other members of the Orange County Authority were to appear before bond rating agencies.

"Depending on what the rating is, our targeted bond sale date for the mortgage money to Sept. 10. After that we will know what the interest rate is going to be and within five days we should be able to notify lenders who have already indicated an interest in participating in the program," Mazzotta said.

"Sometime after Sept. 15 (the exact date will be announced as well as the names of the 27 lending institutions involved in issuing the mortgages) a prospective homeowner with his contract for purchase in hand will apply for a mortgage," he said.

Mazzotta said the program is not an interest subsidy program. What happens is that the housing agency typically would sell the bonds at 9½ percent interest while charging the homebuyers 11 percent interest for their mortgages.

The housing agency would pay interest payments twice annually to the bondholders (two would be exempt from paying income tax on those earnings) and the principal would be invested to earn more money. The 1½ percent interest it earns on the mortgages plus the interest earned on the principal would pay for the program, he said.

Mazzotta said the average mortgage approved for the first-time homebuyers is about $50,000.

Soviets Bomb Own Soldiers

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Soviet helicopter gunships searching for rebels mistakenly bombed their own troops in a suburb of the Afghan capital of Kabul, killing 200 Russian soldiers, a Western diplomat said today.

The diplomat, who asked not to be identified, said the accidental bombing occurred near the community of Koti Sangi on the western edge of Kabul.

"Two-hundred Soviet troops were apparently killed by Soviet helicopters by mistake on Aug. 23-24 south of Koti Sangi," the diplomat said. He gave no further details.

A second Western diplomat also reported the Soviet bombing but gave no casualty figures.

The reports could not be independently confirmed because Western reporters have been banned from covering the war in Afghanistan since the Soviets invaded Afghanistan in December 1979.

Western observers estimate 105,000 Soviet troops are in Afghanistan.

Altamonte: Best Little Leaguers

The Altamonte Springs Little League Baseball program is no stranger to success. Every year it puts teams into post-season competition and those teams always fair quite well.

The past two years, however, success has been spelled A-L-T-A-M-O-N-T-E when it comes to Little League Baseball. Last year, coaches Terry Hagen and Frank Messina guided a team to second in the Little League Junior World Series at Taylor, Mich.

The 13-year-olds' success merely opened the door. This year, Altamonte incredibly sent two teams to World Series competition. The Seniors, coached by Gene Letterio and Jerry Liale, journeyed to Gary, Ind. and returned with the biggest prize of all — the World Series championship.

The Majors, coached by Jerrey Thurston and Greg Ebbert, just returned from Williamsport, Pa., where they realized every Little Leaguers' dream — a place in the elite eight of the 12-year-old Little League World Series.

The Majors played before 35,000 fans at Lamade Field and a nationwide television audience on ABC television. The Majors lost to a fine Seoul, South Korea team, but second place is no disgrace among the world's best.

All three Altamonte teams were able to claim one distinction. They were all the best team in the United States in their respective tournaments. "I guess you could say we came away with a gold and a silver medal," said Altamonte Springs Mayor Ray Ambrose. "That's pretty good in any Olympic year."

Add to that last year's silver medal and it's no wonder Altamonte's players, parents and fans call the southern Seminole County city, "Little League Baseball's Best Program."

TV's Mud Squad

Talk about bad pennies. Anne Burford has turned up again — this time as the star performer in a television commercial that castigates Democratic vice presidential nominee Geraldine Ferraro.

Mrs. Burford has been hired by the National Conservative Political Action Committee as a member of a "truth squad." Mission: to assail Ferraro for hiding information about family finances.

In the commercial, Mrs. Burford says: "Now there is a real scandal on Capitol Hill, but you don't know about it. ... Geraldine Ferraro refused to disclose her husband's finances. ... Come on, Ms. Ferraro, what are you trying to hide?"

The White House was never consulted about the commercial, and its reaction is one of displeasure. The truth-squad attack could easily backfire, bringing a negative reaction from the public.

Mrs. Burford already has provided a basketful of bad vibrations from the White House. She was connected to two environmental posts and left amid storms of criticism. With friends like Mrs. Burford, the White House doesn't need enemies.

Foreign Debt A Problem

The American economy moved along very nicely this summer. All the domestic indicators pointed to continuing good times. The sudden surge in the stock market certainly was an expression of confidence in the future.

Nevertheless, there are worrisome problems on the horizon. The biggest problem, which the general public isn't paying much attention to, is the foreign debt problem.

Informed observers of the international financial scene express profound concern about the danger of default by debtor nations in Latin America. These countries owe U.S. banks some $51.4 billion. The observers fear that the debtor nations will be unable to pay their debts or will refuse to do so.

One of the most ominous aspects of a Latin "moratorium" on debt payments is that it would lead to a $70 billion decline in the U.S. gross national product and 1.1 million Americans out of work.

One response is to suggest that the United States channel additional billions of dollars into the International Monetary Fund, which, in turn, would send these dollars to Latin nations so that they could keep up interest payments.

The banks, of course, can't forgive scores of billions in loans. For that to happen, Uncle Sam would have to cover their losses in one way or another. As for giving additional billions to the IMF, where would the money come from at a time when the U.S. has a colossal deficit?

A danger in all this is that a year or two from now, the U.S. government may "solve" the money problem by printing the money needed to bail out foreign countries. That would mean inflation with a vengeance. It is a course of action that responsible citizens should oppose with all their might.

The handling of the foreign debt situation isn't a narrow partisan matter. Maintaining strong financial institutions in the United States in the decade ahead requires prudence, good judgment, and a true bi-partisan approach.

Americans also should recognize that the worsening debt situation in Latin America may lead to more hostile regimes in this hemisphere, and in large nations such as Argentina and Brazil. If the U.S. public believes the foreign relations of the United States are difficult now, it should realize that the problems ahead in this area may dwarf anything we know today.

It will be very hard to maintain a good neighbor policy in this hemisphere if the economies of our large Latin neighbors are near exhaustion and they can't pay or refuse to pay what they owe. In sum, the United States is likely to pay heavily for imprudent lending, encouraged by the U.S. government, over a long period of years.

The need now is for true statesmen in both parties to fashion a sensible strategy with respect to the foreign debt problem which menaces America's prosperity.

How To Halt Government Waste

WASHINGTON — Here's dramatic news for taxpayers, who are being told they must ante up still more money to bring down the federal deficit: Enough fat can be squeezed out of the budget, enough extravagance eliminated from government, enough cash saved from going down the drain, that a tax increase shouldn't be necessary.

This word comes from Peter Grace, who should know. He heads the Grace Commission, which spent 18 months scrutinizing the government's books and found 2,478 ways that the federal bureaucracy skins taxpayers. He has shown me evidence that a tax increase won't be needed if Congress will simply cut out the waste and fraud his commission has uncovered.

Grace can point out the waste to Congress; he can explain how to tighten financial controls; he can specify exactly what must be cut to wipe out the deficit. In fact, he has already provided Congress with an array of opportunities to avert the Methodist churches in the DeLand district will get a new superintendent Sept. 1, according to the denomination's Lakeland office. The Rev. William Lee Brackman Jr., senior minister of First United Methodist Church, Bradenton, will fill the vacancy created by the Rev. Ernest Newman, who left after he was elected as a bishop in the church and moved to Nashville.

As superintendent he will oversee the activities of the 48 United Methodist churches in the DeLand district. There are 14 such districts in the Florida Conference of United Methodists.

Brackman is no newcomer to Florida Methodism having been a member of the conference 28 years. He has pastored churches in Orlando, Maitland, Ft. Meade, New Port Richey and Ormond Beach. He has been at the Bradenton church eight years.

He is a Southern Methodist to the core. Born and raised in Georgia, Brackman got holds degrees from Asbury College, Kentucky, and the Candler School of Theology at Emory University, Atlanta. He was a student pastor in Georgia until he moved to Florida in 1956.

His religious ties are also closely related to his family ties. Brackman comes from a long line of ministers, his father serving as a Methodist minister 40 years, and three brothers who are ministers in the denomination.

Most ministers' responsibilities tend to multiply faster than the loaves and fishes. Brackman is no exception. His administrative experience includes serving as chairman of the conference's committees on memoirs, radio and television, doctrine and ministry, missions and church extension, just to name a few.

On the homefront, he is married to the former Doris Dollar of Tucker, Georgia. They have a 20-year-old son, Lee, who is a junior at Florida Southern College.

West Bank Settlement Returning

By Jim Anderson

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Like a nagging backache that comes back at inconvenient moments, the issue of the Israeli settlements in the occupied West Bank and Gaza has returned to plague the bodies politic of Israel and the United States.

The settlements — and their symbolism of the Israeli Likud Party's policy of "creating the fact" of permanent possession of the occupied territory — is one of the main issues dividing Likud from the Labor Party and makes any possibility of a working coalition in Israel remote.

In the U.S. presidential campaign, the settlement issue is like Sherlock Holmes' dog that didn't bark in the night: remarkable because of its silence.

But as Merle Thorpe, a Washington lawyer interested in Middle East affairs, writes in his recent book "Prescription for Conflict," the U.S. policy of ignoring the settlements has become a test of U.S. credibility among the Arabs, and even among some Jews who disagree with the Israeli government's policy of taking over the West Bank by a spreading wave of the settlements.

Thorpe writes: "They (the West Bank Palestinians) are convinced that the United States is indirectly responsible for the occupation and for the denial of their liberties. ... Unfortunately, similar anti-Americanism, stimulated by perceived American biases, has also spread to many other countries in the Middle East."

According to Thorpe's book, a growing number of Israelis (29 percent in 1981, 48.5 percent in 1983) oppose establishment of further settlements.

The former deputy mayor of Jerusalem, Myron Benevisti, head of a landmark study published by the American Enterprise Institute, believes that the West Bank settlement policy set in motion by former Prime Minister Menachem Begin, has now gone so far that the Israeli takeover is irreversible, despite fears in Israel that it means the "Zionist dream will become a nightmare that will destroy the character of a state."

Retired Israeli Maj. Gen. Mattitayahu Peled points out that the settlements are indirectly financed by American economic assistance to Israel, which now approaches $3 billion a year, in various forms.

In an article in The New York Times, Peled asked, "I for one would like to ask the American taxpayer: Why are you giving us the rope with which to hang ourselves?"

Good question. But there are no answers to be found in the platitudes of either U.S. party.

Another possible reason for the silence on an important but complex issue is that neither President Reagan nor Walter Mondale have records on the subject of which they can be terribly proud.

JEFFREY HART

The Ferraro Factor

Well, as Bob Haldeman said, the toothpaste is out of the tube where Geraldine Ferraro is concerned, and the question now is how well she has handled the whole thing. For the past 10 days her problem has been damage control, the facts being what they are.

This "touch prosecutor" professes to have been "surprised" to learn that her husband borrowed $100,000 for their real estate firm of which she is an officer from the estate of an elderly woman which he was managing. Mrs. Ferraro is secretary, treasurer, and vice president of the firm. This financial maneuver is not illegal. The money was repaid to the estate, but it is an unsavory style of operation.

A preliminary scrutiny of Rep. Ferraro's financial disclosure forms has turned up some sleazy things, and her own spokesmen are talking about "technical" violations of the law.

Rep. Ferraro has claimed an exemption from disclosing information about her husband's finances under three sections of the form, but did not appear to be entitled to such an exemption under the law. I myself believe that all of the financial disclosure rigamarole has gone too far. It was a post-Watergate "reform" legislated by the Democrats, designed on the assumption that fat-cat Republican interest groups were buying elections, but Rep. Ferraro knew what the law said. She is also in trouble under a section of the disclosure form which requires that the sources of her husband's income be listed. She did not do so.

Questions continued to be asked about a $130,000 sum in Rep. Ferraro's 1978 congressional campaign. So far as can be ascertained, she borrowed $130,000 from her husband and her children. This turns out to have been illegal. Mr. Zaccaro has affirmed under oath that he had legal advice that it was within the law. The lawyer involved, a former official of the Federal Election Committee, says that he told Zaccaro and Ferraro that it was illegal. The lawyer has volunteered to take a lie-detector test.

But as we move through this quagmire, keep your eye on the handling of this $130,000 loan. In order to repay it, Rep. Ferraro raised $100,000 by selling her interest in a New York real estate property to a Manny Lerman, a business associate of her husband. Mr. Lerman agreed to value this property at $325,000. It had been purchased just five months earlier at $175,000. You can draw your own conclusions. As the Watergate investigators used to say, "Follow the money." Manny Lerman also paid her $30,000 on Oct. 4, 1978, for her interest in another New York property.

Following the money can get a bit boring, but if you pay close attention it also gets interesting. As the treasurer for Ferraro for Congress in 1982, John Zaccaro listed a number of individuals as contributing $250. In a letter to the Clerk of the House of Representatives, Mr. Zaccaro explained that "each partner has a 50 percent interest in the partnership." But Mr. Strawn died in 1946 and Mr. Winston in 1909. The present law firm has a great many officers.

Mr. Mondale's political action committee, which is called the Committee for the Future of America, contributed its $1,000 limit to that Ferraro election campaign. It certainly seems fair to ask whether the contribution made from their graves by Mr. Winston and Mr. Strawn was actually a contribution from the Mondale PAC. We are certainly not going to hear much more in this campaign about Ed Meese's cuff links.

In selecting Mrs. Ferraro, Walter Mondale was desperate and for a short time it worked, boosting him in the polls. She is an attractive and feisty woman, but she is also an affirmative-action candidate, pushed up because she is a woman.

The petition will not be used for partisan purposes; it is circulated by a bipartisan coalition that ranges from the conservative former Treasury Secretary William Simon to the liberal ex-presidential candidate George McGovern.

We ask at least that you sign your name to this protest. But we also urge you to collect the signatures of your friends and neighbors. The petition must have millions of signatures if it is to have any impact on Washington. This is, we believe, an achievable goal. (Include addresses for verification.)

Step Two: We will deliver the petition to the next president and the new congressional leaders in January. I think I can guarantee that a protest, signed by millions of Americans, will get the attention of our elected leaders. For they understand that the people are still the sovereigns of this country and hold the ultimate power. I have no doubt that they will act quickly to slash government waste.

Repeated Probation Violations Net 5-Year Prison Term

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

A Sanford woman has been sentenced to five years in state prison for breaking the law 18 times while serving probation for check forgery.

Gloria Dean Williams, 33, also known as Gloria Burke, of 1809 W. 15th St., was sentenced Thursday by Seminole Circuit Judge Dominick J. Saffi who cited Ms. Williams' extensive criminal record and probation violations. She could have received up to 15 years in prison on the parole violation charge.

Ms. Williams was given credit for 1,643 days already served (effectively leaving her six months still to serve) and ordered to pay the public defender's office $600 for her legal defense.

The latest sentence, according to court records, stemmed from two check forging cases in 1982 for which she received probationary sentences. She also had been convicted for writing fraudulent checks in 1976 and 1980 and served about 4½ years, the records said.

In another case before Saffi Thursday, a DeLand resident was sentenced to 30 months for credit card fraud.

Clive Andrew Williams, 23, received more than the recommended sentence of probation. Williams was also ordered to pay the public defender's office $300.

According to court records, Williams found two Burdines credit cards which had been mistakenly placed in his post office box in November.

Williams, who said he was just released from the hospital when he got the cards and had no money, went to Burdines in the Altamonte Mall Nov. 3 and purchased $209 worth of clothes for his children. When he returned the same day to buy some clothes for himself, store personnel kept the card.

The next day, he tried to use the other card at a Burdines store in the Volusia Mall, Daytona Beach, and was arrested. Williams said he was sentenced to 3½ years probation in Volusia Circuit Court for the attempted use of the card in that county.

Anna Szabo Federer, 32, of 107 Sandlewood Way,

Longwood, was sentenced to two years of community control, a form of in-house arrest, and five years probation by Seminole Circuit Judge Robert G. McGregor for violating her parole by changing price tags on wall paper and then trying to purchase the paper.

Ms. Federer, who switched the prices in March at Home Depot, state Road 436, Altamonte Springs, was on probation at the time for trying to get a refund on luggage she had not purchased.

In the original case, according to court records, she selected two identical sets of luggage in Jefferson Wards, 138 E. state Road 436, Altamonte Springs, on May 13, 1981. She placed one set in the toy department and then purchased the other set. After taking the luggage from the store, she returned 30 minutes later, got the identical set from the toy department, and attempted to get her money back by returning that set. The procedure was witnessed by a store detective who notified police, according to court records.

A Sanford man on probation for burglary in 1979 had his probation changed to in-house arrest to be followed by five years probation for an attempted burglary in February.

Fred Peck, 22, of 17 William Clark Court, was sentenced by McGregor who told Peck not to steal anything while on probation and to remain employed full-time.

Peck was arrested Feb. 6 by Sanford police after Elizabeth Clark, of 2011 Summerlin Ave., Sanford, reported that a man tried to open the front window of her house at about 1 a.m.

A few minutes later, an officer spotted Peck on Summerlin Avenue and arrested him.

A Titusville woman charged with grand theft was sentenced by McGregor to five years probation.

Olivia Harris, 29, was arrested Feb. 23 along with two other people in the parking lot of the Altamonte Mall after an officer reportedly noticed a couple sharing a marijuana cigarette and upon investigation located several shoplifted items in their car.

Deloris Pickens, 19, no address given, who was arrested with Ms. Harris, was fined $100 in county court in April for possession of marijuana. A third defendant, Eugene Robinson, 33, of Mims, is undergoing court-ordered tests to determine if he is competent to stand trial on charges of grand theft, petty theft, possession of marijuana and failure to appear in court.

In other court action, Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. sentenced an Oviedo nurseryman to one year probation for preventing firefighters from entering his property and extinguishing a fire.

Stanley Thomas Lukas, 30, of 1500 E. Red Bug Road, was also fined $250 and ordered to complete 80 hours of community service.

According to court records, Lukas had a bonfire burning to protect plants from a frost at 4:44 a.m. on Dec. 26 and refused to unlock a gate which was blocking firefighters' access to the blaze.

The firemen eventually entered the property through another route off of Red Bug Road and extinguished the fire.

Lukas was arrested for preventing or obstructing extin-guishment of a fire. He pleaded no contest to the charge. He could have received up to a year in the county jail and a $1,000 fine.

In another case before Mize, Ricardo Lopez Johnson, 18, of 1006 Mangoustine Ave., Sanford, received two years probation for using a stolen credit card.

Mize also ordered Johnson to pay a $150 fine and complete 80 hours of community service.

According to court records, Johnson was arrested April 18 by Altamonte Springs police after he was identified as the suspect wanted for charging $101 worth of clothes on a stolen credit card at Robinson's in the Altamonte Mall. The card was stolen Feb. 4 during a robbery at gunpoint of Charles Crittenton Jr., of Orlando, on Wymore Road in Orange County. Crittenton was shot and seriously wounded during the robbery.

Johnson — who was not charged with the theft of the card — told officers he found the card while waiting for a bus on state Road 436 in Seminole County.

Economist Predicts High Interest Rates Through The Decade

NEW YORK (UPI) — Even the more optimistic of two new forecasts for the federal budget deficit will cause real interest rates to remain at sky-high levels through much of the 1980s, Standard & Poor's said Monday.

The Congressional Budget Office forecasts an increasing deficit that will reach $263 billion by 1989. The administration projects only a slow decline in the deficit from $175 billion in the current fiscal year to $139 billion in 1989.

"Neither forecast is attractive," David Blitzer, S&P's chief economist wrote in the firm's CreditWeek publication released Monday. Either eventually, he said, will keep interest rates high through much of the decade.

"For the bond markets, these deficits will be a continuing problem," Blitzer said, since they "put continual upward pressure on yields."

Create Your Own Gifts At TJ's Ceramics And Silks

If you want to give a unique gift to someone special or learn how to make ceramics, TJ's Ceramics and Silks is the place for you. The shop, located at 226 E. First St., Sanford, is named after owners Tracy Schneider and Judy Cox. Together, they produce literally hundreds of ceramic pieces. They have 2,000 different molds in their shop from which they make a multitude of items — from ashtrays to bookends to zany conversation pieces. And they have access to many more molds through other companies. Whether you want a special gift for a wedding, birthday or yourself, Tracy and Judy can design a piece just for you. In addition to ceramic pieces and supplies, they also do silk arrangements. If you want to buy already-poured pieces, called greenware, and work on them yourself, TJ's shelves are lined with many to choose from. For those who want to learn how to make ceramics, TJ's offers individual or group instruction, with class hours that fit any schedule. Tracy says the hallmark of the classes is that students are able to learn and work at their own pace. Judy says ceramics is a "therapeutic" hobby that is relaxing and enjoyable. She also said both women and men come to the shop to work on their ceramics. TJ's Ceramics and Silks is open Monday and Thursday, 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Tuesday, Friday and Saturday, 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.. The shop is closed Wednesday and Sunday. So come by or call at 323-9665.

If You Watch Your Diet, You Can Splurge A Bit

but others, as in your case, do. The pain does respond to some of the medicines used for arthritis — the anti-inflammatory medicines such as Indocin. These medicines do not stop the progression of the disease. Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I never eat the recommended maximum of 300 mg. of cholesterol in a day, so would it be OK to have one glass of regular milk a day?

DEAR READER — The answer depends on your cholesterol level. An individual who has optimal low levels of cholesterol, optimal ratios of "good cholesterol" to total cholesterol and optimal blood pressure need not be so concerned about his or her diet. It is the blood values of cholesterol that correlate with fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries; if the blood levels are optimal, you already have achieved your goal.

Yes, if you limit your cholesterol and fat in other foods, you can splurge a bit and enjoy some of the foods that contain more cholesterol and saturated fat. An 8-ounce glass of milk contains about 25 mg. of cholesterol and 8 grams of fat. Half of its fat is saturated fat. But for people who like to eat meat, chicken and fish (which contain about 70 mg. of cholesterol per 100 grams, or 3-and-a-half ounces), then it is better to use fortified skim milk, which contains no significant amounts of cholesterol.

Another woman wrote to ask me about eggs. She is an 82-year-old "semi-vegetarian," and she wanted to know if she could eat more than three eggs a week. The answer is the same: An individual with optimal low cholesterol levels does not need to be so restrictive, but it is important to keep track of those levels to be sure they don't get high if you do indulge. A single egg yolk contains about 225 mg. of cholesterol.

I have included how to choose foods for your low-fat, low-cholesterol diet in The Health Letter 15-4, Diet to Prevent Heart Attacks and Strokes.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a woman, 62, and in the past year I have experienced bad back pain. A bone scan showed that I have Paget's disease of my skull, pelvic area and spine. My doctor said there is no known cure for it.

Could you give me any information on this? Is there any medication to relieve the pain or slow up the disease's progression?

DEAR READER — Paget's disease of the bone is relatively rare and its cause is not known. It is one of those diseases related to degeneration and regeneration of bone, but the degeneration is predominant. It is often first diagnosed by X-rays taken for some unrelated condition. The X-rays show the areas of dissolving bone and new bone formation. The skull is a favorite place to see it. Many patients have no pain with the disease.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
Here in Dallas I've been playing a little rubber bridge. I was skeptical about any material for the bridge column turning up, but suddenly somebody dealt the diagramed cards. Against four spades, West led a singleton heart. East won the ace and returned the jack. After ruffing, West trusted his partner's jack to be requesting a diamond lead. He played a low diamond, won by the king, and another heart back set the contract.

What this deal tells us is that sometimes scientific bidding is for the birds. Let North simply bid three spades in response to the opening bid. South will carry on to four and West will certainly lead the singleton heart. Without South's heart bid, East may not be so certain that the heart lead is a singleton and he may carelessly shift to a diamond. Even if he returns the jack of hearts, West may be afraid to underlead the diamond ace and the contract will still be made.

As the bidding actually did occur, the right defense was easy to find. The moral of the story? Get to your final contract quickly, without informing the opponents about the distribution in the concealed hand.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Try not to press friends to repay favors today. What you request may be small, but they could find your approach irritating.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In order to get your way today, you may come on too strong with associates. You'll accomplish your objectives, but you won't receive a standing ovation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Do not press your views or opinions on your friends today. They may agree with you externally, but internally they will be seething.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A friend may ask your opinion about something today, but don't take it as an invitation to be too candid. He wants approval, not criticism.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It isn't likely that you and your mate will be in agreement when it comes to money issues today, so why not postpone any such discussions until tomorrow?

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you fail to take your work seriously today, you're sure to arouse the ire of the boss. Don't goof off or spend too much time at the water cooler.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It's extremely important that you be patient in your commercial dealings today. Hasty or impulsive actions could cost you money, as well as time.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) One way to create an unpleasant atmosphere at home today is to hand out directives to everyone while doing nothing yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Sometimes it's better to call in experts, rather than attempt difficult household repairs yourself. Keep this in mind today if something needs mending.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'd better be prepared to justify any expenditures you make today if you are operating on an expense account or using household funds.

where none need exist.

ANNIE

...BUT I HAVE IMPORTANT DUTIES HERE, SIR!

YOUR C.O. WILL HAVE YOUR DUTIES RE-ASSIGNED ENDSIG. THIS IS A PRIORITY MISSION.

...BUT I'M NOT GOOD WITH CHILDREN, SIR!

ENDSIG PHILSTER! I RECOMMENDED YOU FOR THIS ASSIGNMENT!

DEBATING YOUR ORDERS WITH AN ADMIRAL IS MERELY STARK, RAVING MADNESS. BUCHING ME IS SUICIDE. GOT THE PICTURE?
