Reyes trial

SANFORD — Expedited Reyes, 16, was scheduled to be sentenced this morning at the courtroom at John E. Folk Correctional Facility. The girl has pleaded no contest to one count of possession of a firearm on school property. The plea stems from an incident on the campus of Lake Howell High School near Cassberry. According to Sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough, Reyes took a handgun to school and while on her way to the school guidance office she accidentally shot herself. Reyes originally told Sheriff's deputies that she had been shot by two hooded men. Reyes has worked out a plea bargain with the Seminole County State Attorney's office. One element of the plea bargain is that her parents repay $4,800 in investigative costs to the Sheriff's office.

Kops Kids Day

SANFORD — The annual Kops & Kids day will be held from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. Saturday at the Seminole County Historical Museum on Five Points. The program is sponsored by the Seminole County Police Athletic League and will feature games, prizes, free refreshments and drawings. All Seminole County youngsters are invited to attend. There will also be law enforcement displays from the Sheriff's office and the various municipal police departments within the county.

Juvenile Justice

TALLAHASSEE — Secretary Calvin Ross of the Florida Department of Juvenile Justice has announced that Mike Wallace will continue as the interim Juvenile Justice Manager for District 7 which includes Seminole, Orange, Osceola and Brevard counties. Although it was announced last week that Russ Schaeffer would assume the position, Schaeffer has declined the position based on personal reasons. According to Ross, Even though I am disappointed that Mr. Schaeffer has declined the manager position, I respect his decision. The department will continue in its search for a manager who can meet the needs of the district.

Marine Corps copters collide

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. — Two Marine Corps helicopters collided in the dark early today during the largest U.S. British war games in decades, apparently killing 14 people, the Pentagon said. Two Marines were rescued. The two were taken to the hospital at Camp Lejeune in critical condition, the Pentagon said. The collision involved a CH-46 Sea Knight and an AH-1 Cobra assault helicopter and happened at about 2 a.m. in a wooded, swampy area at the Camp Lejeune Marine Corps base. There was some confusion about the number of people on board the helicopters. Maj. Steve Little, a spokesman at Camp Lejeune, said the copters were carrying 16 people. A senior official at Marine Corps headquarters at the Pentagon said the number ranged from 14 to 18.

Fireworks dedicated to Jim Carroll

By NICK PFEIFAUER Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Fireworks are expected to be this year. Not in connection with any major political or citizen dispute, but over the death of a boy for a big Fourth of July celebration.

Once again Rod Layer led the organization called Fireworks for Jim Carroll. Sanford has had a tradition of fireworks since the late 1940s. In doing so, he has announced that this year's fireworks will be named in honor of Jim Carroll, who died this Wednesday.

Jim Carroll

Layer estimates he will need to raise at least $15,000 for the display. Thus far he has obtained approximately $2,000. Nearly $1,000 of that amount was left over from last year's display.

City official's status still in limbo

By NICK PFEIFAUER Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Justice will hardly ever be cited for speeding. The wheels of progress in the case of suspended Sanford City Personnel Director Tim McCauley have been moving very slowly.

Director Tim McCauley has been moving very slowly.

McCauley was suspended without pay from his post on April 23 pending the completion of an administrative hearing process. The suspension came as the result of allegations of the use of city time and resources to conduct business for fantasy football league.

At that time McCauley was to have five working days in which to file an appeal. He would be given an appointment with an independent hearing officer. That need be reportedly took place Thursday, May 3 of this morning. City Manager Bill Simmons said he is awaiting the hearing officer's decision.

Pipe bomb thwarted

PANAMA CITY — A homemade pipe bomb was detonated safely in the woods after Panama City Mall security officers found the explosive in their office.

The PVC pipe bomb, approximately 4 1/2 inches long, three fourths of an inch in diameter and filled with black powder, was found Thursday in a zippered blue notebook confiscated by mall security from two teen-agers who had been arrested.

The teen-agers, a 15-year-old and a 16-year-old, were charged Monday with burglarizing cars, Panama City Police Cmdr. Jimmy Stanford said. The 16-year-old also was charged Monday with carrying a concealed weapon, Stanford said.

The teen-agers told police they planned to use the pipe bomb to go flahing. The two now face a charge each of possession of an explosive device, Stanford said.

About 2 p.m. Thursday, mall security officials found a "suspicious package" with a fuse as they looked through a backpack and a satchel they had taken from the teen-agers, Mall Manager Mark Dycus said.

Mall security called police, and then took the notebook outside and placed it in the parking lot between the JC Penney and Sears department stores, facing U.S. 901. The notebook stayed there until Tyndall Air Force Base's Explosive Ordnance Disposal team arrived about 3:30.

Four dead in wreck

FLORIDA CITY — Four people were killed when a dump truck lost control and smashed into an oncoming car traveling on one of two access roads to the Florida Keys.

Card Sound Road was shut for several hours Thursday following the accident, which occurred during the morning rush hour.

Northbound traffic was diverted to U.S. 1, and Card Sound Road was reopened Thursday afternoon, said Ed Munn, Metro-Dade Police spokesman.

Three passengers in the car were killed, and the driver died at Jackson Memorial Hospital in Miami, Munn said. Robert Montezugo, the 53-year-old driver of the dump truck, was in serious but stable condition at Jackson Memorial.

The driver was identified as 22-year-old Carlos Mejia and one of the passengers was identified as 45-year-old Jean Claude Redolins. Police had not released the identities of two other victims until they can notify next of kin.

Authorities were investigating why the truck driver lost control and swerved into the southbound lane, colliding with the car. No charges have been filed.

Military jobs eliminated

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE — Nearly 200 military positions will be eliminated at this Florida Panhandle base by the end of 1987 as part of military budget cutting.

The Air Force announced plans Wednesday to disband the 132-member 87th Electronic Warfare Aggressor Squadron between this October and October of 1987, said Staff Sgt. Carole Inman, a spokeswoman at Eglin.

Another 62 military positions will be lost when five of the 85th Test and Evaluation Squadron's 19 jet fighters are transferred into this year, she said.

The 87th, created only six years ago, travels around the world testing aircraft and crews against electronic threats such as radars and jamming systems. It spent most of its first year, helping crews learn how to shoot down Iraqi air defenses.

Some of its duties will be taken over by Eglin's 15th Test Squadron, which deals with electronic weapons development.

When the 87th was formed, it was hailed as a way to cut costs by sending the evaluators to the home bases of combat units, instead of having them fly to Eglin.

The 85th tests the Air Force's newest bombs, missiles and other weaponry in situations that match real combat. It is losing three F-16 Fighting Falcons and two F-15 Eagles.

Both units are part of the Air Force Air Warfare Center, which last year transferred its headquarters from Eglin to Nellis Air Force Base, Nev.

Florida jet forced to land

LINTHICUM, Md. — A USAir jet from Florida made an emergency landing at the Baltimore-Washington International Airport after crew members became concerned that the plane's wheels wouldn't lock into place.

The Boeing 737 landed safely around 10:50 a.m. Thursday, and none of the 84 passengers and five crew members on board Flight 1668 were injured, said Juliet Wright, an airport spokeswoman.

"They weren't sure it would lock into position, and it did," she said.

The plane was heading for National Airport in suburban Washington after taking off from West Palm Beach, Fla. Electrical lights which indicate whether the landing gear is in place weren't showing, said USAir spokesman Paul Turk.

The plane was diverted to BWI because it has longer runways. The passengers were then bused to National Airport.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Small fly may help poultry producers

GAINESVILLE — A small, shiny fly that feeds on house flies may help Florida's poultry producers save thousands of dollars and help prevent complaints from their neighbors.

By using the black garbage fly to rid poultry houses of the common house fly, Florida's poultry industry could reduce the use of pesticides and help the environment, said Hillsborough County Cooperative Extension Agent Roger Jacobs, a poultry specialist with the University of Florida's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences.

The dump fly is slightly smaller than the house fly. It can be found in garbage dumps and poultry manure like the house fly, but it prefers darker areas like the bottom floors and manure pits. It does not typically enter the upper floors or neighboring homes.

Dump fly larvae are also voracious predators of house fly maggots, making them important biological control agents, said Jerry Hoggett, a USDA research entomologist and UF/IFAS assistant professor.

Unlike the house fly, the dump fly larvae have the ability to paralyze their prey. And the dump fly larvae will kill even more house fly larvae than they will eat.

This is the first time the predator fly has been available to the state's poultry producers. Originally trapped on a poultry farm in Hillsborough County, Hoggett established a colony of the dump flies several years ago at the USDA Medical and Veterinary Entomology Research Laboratory in Gainesville.

Ranked ninth in the nation, Florida's commercial egg production industry provides $100 million in farm value annually to the state. With most of Florida's 10.5 million laying hens on farms located in Central Florida, the state's chicken houses have become prime breeding sites for the common house fly.

They create a nuisance for both producers and their neighbors who spend hundreds of thousands of dollars a year on fly-killing chemicals, Jacobs said.

Residents living near Florida's poultry farms seem to be increasingly concerned with the presence of house flies. Some evidence suggests that house flies may transmit the salmonella bacteria from manure to chickens and potentially to humans, he said.

Many producers now use insecticides sprays in poultry houses or as a larvicide mixed in the feed for house fly control.

Butterfly makes comeback from brink of extinction

MIAMI — There were just 17 wild Schaus swallowtail butterflies in existence, all on a small island, when ecologist Thomas Emmel began actively breeding them in a laboratory and kitchen.

Now, with their numbers soaring, the butterflies are being reintroduced to their native southern Florida habitat and could be off the endangered species list in two years.

The remarkable comeback of the brown-and-yellow insect, speckled with blue and red dots, is more than just a successful science. The delicate but hardy butterflies have survived toxic pesticides, Hurricane Andrew and swarms of predatory birds.

Interior Secretary Bruce

Rabbitt will be on hand Monday when Emmel, of the University of Florida, releases about 350 Schaus swallowtails in a state-owned park south of Miami.

This is the second year Emmel is reintroducing the butterflies into the wild, and it might be the last if another 800 to be released later this spring do well.

"It's a real milestone," said Jane Tuttle, a biologist with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The Schaus could be reclassified as a threatened species or taken off the list altogether by 1988, she said.

In the early part of the century, the Schaus was abundant in the Florida Keys, especially Key Largo where "butterfly collectors could see hundreds in a day," Emmel said Thursday.

Lee named top employee

SANFORD — The Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS) in Sanford has named the employee of the month for the office at the Reflections Center.

Rachel Lee was recognized for her accomplishments by her peers at a recent event at the center.

She has been employed by the department since 1984 in the division of protective services.

She has worked as a case manager, as a group counselor, in the area of volunteer family services and as a family resource service liaison.

She was recognized for the honesty and dedication she displays in helping her clients achieve and become healthier families. And she has earned Rachel Lee high praise from Karen Hubbell, program operations administrator.

Girl, 6, is the first for an experimental HIV vaccine

LAKELAND — A 6-year-old Lakeland girl, infected with HIV at birth, is to be the first child in the nation to receive a candidate for the experimental vaccine immunogen to fight the deadly AIDS-causing virus because she is healthy and her immune system is intact, said Robert Nelson, her doctor at All Children's Hospital in St. Petersburg.

Immunogen differs from other AIDS drugs because it strengthens the immune system instead of attacking the virus.

"This is hope for us," said Lesley's mother Tracey Clement, 38. She tested positive for HIV in 1985 and still shows no symptoms. She was infected by a former husband, who died in 1987. "I'm just grateful that we have this opportunity, because not everyone does."

The vaccine, which has been tested on adults since 1987, was developed by Jonas Balit who also developed the Pelta vaccine.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration recently approved Immunogen's testing in children based on results of the adult tests.

Lesley and her mother are going to the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md., May 22 for the first of a nine-month trial. Lesley will be 7 months old by the time she returns.

"Before it gets too late, we are trying to fight back," said Shuzuko Sei, an HIV expert in pediatrics at the National Cancer Institute, a component of the National Institutes of Health.

Ultimately, researchers hope the vaccine will help the immune system stamp out the HIV.

Lesley was referred to NIH researchers by her doctor at All Children's Hospital. All Children's collaborates with the University of South Florida medical school and NIH on experimental treatments for pediatric AIDS.

Lesley underwent preliminary tests at NIH last summer after Nelson recommended her for another drug. Lesley's immune system was too stable for that drug, Nelson said, but NIH researchers turned to her as soon as immunogen was approved for tests in children.

Judge sides with Volusia County, chides plaintiffs

ORLANDO — Volusia County officials felt vindicated Thursday by a federal judge's ruling that they complied with a court order to protect endangered sea turtles on beach dunes.

U.S. District Judge Anne C. Conway said the county was to be congratulated for its temporary protection efforts. And the judge chastised the plaintiffs who sought a contempt order against county authorities.

"We won a moral victory. A big moral victory," said Assistant County Attorney Jamie Seaman.

"The court finds that, not only has the county fully complied with the court's Aug. 1 order, but that the county efforts to implement an effective strategy for enforcing its zero tolerance policy (toward violators) are to be commended," the judge wrote in a 12-page order issued late Wednesday.

New Smyrna Beach residents Shirley Reynolds and Rita Alexander sued the county last year, claiming it was violating the U.S. Endangered Species Act by allowing traffic on beaches used by nesting sea turtles.

Conway agreed and ordered strict enforcement of the law. But the plaintiffs later filed a motion for contempt of court, claiming the county's efforts were haphazard and inadequate.

The judge disagreed and chided the two women for failing to cooperate with conservation efforts.

"Plaintiffs (also would) be better served in working with the county to educate the public about the damage that violations of the conservation zone cause to the sea turtles and in helping the county to identify the beaches where the most frequent violations occur, in a spirit akin to a neighborhood-watch program," Conway wrote.

Last year's court order prevents driving and parking in conservation zones 30 feet seaward from dunes along 41 miles of county beaches. The order was in effect during the May-through-October nesting season and is being followed again this year.

In their lawsuit scheduled for trial this fall, the women ask for a total ban on beach driving. To counter this, the county has filed a new protection plan with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, which administers the Endangered Species Act.

Lesley Blackner, the plaintiffs' attorney, refused immediate comment on the ruling.

House panel approves gas tax cut; Vote planned before Memorial Day

By W. JAMES HENRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Gasoline tax relief is a step closer to passage in the House, but remains bogged down in the Senate, where Democratic critics say they want to make sure the savings go to consumers, and not oil companies.

The House Ways and Means Committee on Thursday by a 29-13 vote approved legislation that would suspend the three-year-old 4.3-cent-a-gallon surcharge for the rest of the year in hopes of providing relief to motorists from soaring prices at the pump. House GOP leaders predicted a vote to approve the bill before Memorial Day.

But in the Senate, the tax relief effort continued to be embroiled in a dispute over the minimum wage and other labor issues. Attempts to end the logjam were stymied Thursday as Democrats stood firm in their demand for separate and speedy votes on both issues.

President Clinton has said he would sign a gas tax repeal, but only if Congress approves legislation raising the 64.25-an-hour minimum wage as well. Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole of Kansas accused Democrats of creating an impasse.

Moderate House Republicans said Thursday, after meeting with House leaders, that a vote on a minimum wage increase could come within two weeks.

While the politically popular gas tax measure has been gaining bipartisan support, Democratic critics in both the House and Senate expressed growing concern that without specific assurances the tax savings may not be passed on to motorists.

"We must address the issue of who gets the benefit. Will it go to the consumer?" said Sen. Tom Daschle of South Dakota, the Democratic leader.

During a four-hour session of the House Ways and Means panel, a number of lawmakers said they were concerned that all companies would have no reason to pass the savings on to consumers because of high summer gasoline demand and tight supplies.

"There's no assurance consumers will ever see this (savings)," complained Rep. Sander Levin, D-Mich. "Prices are likely to go up."

The House bill would repeal the tax six days after it becomes law. The levy would be reinstated on Jan. 1, 1997. If passed on, the tax cut would save motorists about $15 over the seven months, assuming average travel of 15,000 miles a year in a vehicle that gets 25 miles per gallon.

Levin suggested it might be just as good to give every motorist a $15 check and keep the tax.

D.N.Y., called it "an open invitation" to the oil companies to use the savings to increase profit margins. He offered a provision that would make it unlawful not to pass on the tax savings to motorists, but the amendment was rejected 21-15. Republicans said it would be impossible to enforce and amounted to an attempt by government to fix prices.

"We have in the oil industry a very competitive marketplace," insisted Rep. Jim McCrery, R-La., adding that market pressures would prompt companies to reduce retail gasoline prices. He said the government should not tell oil companies how to price their products.

The tax measure cleared the House committee along generally party lines, 23-13, with all but two Democrats voting against it. The panel's Republican majority was solid in its support. House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., told reporters he expects the full House to vote on it within two weeks.

"We need to roll back this tax," said Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, the panel's chairman, who questioned whether it should have been imposed in the first place in 1993.

The 4.3-cent-a-gallon tax increase was approved in 1993 as part of a broader deficit reduction plan. Scrapping the levy is estimated to cost the government $2.9 billion, but lawmakers are not united on how to recoup the revenue losses — as required by congressional budget rules.

House votes to overhaul public housing law

By CHRISTOPHER GUNDEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The House passed a measure that would erase 60 years of federal public housing law and replace it with a block grant program.

Breaking aside claims by some Democrats that the bill would be a disaster for the poor, the House voted 318-107 on Thursday in favor of the abolishing what one Republican called a "dysfunctional" public housing system. Ninety-one Democrats joined 224 Republicans in voting yes.

The bill would end the current system of federal public housing and replace it with a block grant program.

Opponents said the bill would raise rents for low income people, decrease already meager resources spent on the less fortunate and force many of them into the streets.

The bill would close the nation's 3,400 public housing authorities and replace them with new local agencies that would have more autonomy. The agencies would share $6.3 billion in block grants received from the federal government in each of the next five years.

The bill's primary sponsor, Rep. Rick Lazio, R-N.Y., and fellow Republicans said the shift in power to the local level would help clear America's largest cities of sprawling, crime-ridden public housing projects that have become magnets for violence and drug trafficking.

"Two hundred thousand people live in public housing that is run by corrupt, dysfunctional mismanaged housing authorities," Lazio said from the floor of the House. "The other side defends this. They think that this is acceptable," he said, referring to the Democrats.

After the vote, Lazio said he was gratified by the overwhelming endorsement of the House.

"It really sends a message to our nation's communities that we won't tolerate failure and that we are going to reward work," he said. "It's a huge victory for our nation's communities, and it's a huge victory for work as a principle ... and work as an ethic."

The Clinton administration said it would remain opposed to the bill unless changes were made to ensure that it would not hurt the poor or increase homelessness. Housing Secretary Henry Cisneros commended the House for endorsing change he said President Clinton had put in place, but said the House was "wrong to allow rents to be raised on the working poor and to deny scarce federal housing aid to families most in need."

Several Democratic attempts to reduce the bill were rejected by the House. Democrats led by Sen. Joe Kennedy, D-Mass., said the block grants they would reduce the amount of money spent on the poor and diminish the federal control needed to ensure that basic management standards are met.

James Richmond Whitlock, 33, 480 Randon Terrace, Lake Mary, was arrested by Lake Mary police Wednesday. A Lake Mary man phoned from his vehicle that he had been involved in a dispute with the driver of a 1990 Toyota on Interstate-6 just south of Lake Mary Blvd., and told officers the driver pointed a small handgun at him.

The Toyota was located near Colonial Drive and Hughey Street in Orlando and stopped by Orange County deputies who called for Lake Mary police. Officers said they found a .22 caliber handgun in the vehicle.

Whitlock was charged with aggravated assault with a firearm.

Drug arrest

Rodney Lavonn Grant, 38, 1004 Cedar Creek Circle, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police Wednesday. Officers said they first saw Grant in a vehicle on Payne Avenue near West Street, involved in what they thought might be some type of drug activity. They followed his vehicle and stopped it on Southwest Road near Roosevelt Avenue. Grant was charged with possession of under 30 grams of marijuana and possession of crack cocaine.

Traffic stop

Tabitha LeShawn Marshall, 18, of 1805 W. 35th Street, Sanford, was stopped by Sanford police on 35th Street near Geneva Gardens Wednesday. She was charged with driving with a suspended/restricted license.

Robert A. Green, 54, who officers said refused to give a local address, was stopped by deputies on SR-40 Wednesday. He was charged with driving under the influence, possession of a concealed weapon, unlawful use of a firearm, resisting a law enforcement officer without violence, and failure to sign/accept a summons.

'Megan's Law' bill sent to president

By CHRISTOPHER GUNDEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — A bill to create a national database of sex offenders known as "Megan's Law" was sent to President Clinton Thursday by Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole.

The measure, which would require states to notify local law enforcement officials when a convicted sex offender enters an area but did not require that officials make that information public.

"We have an obligation to ensure that those who have committed such crimes will not be able to do so again," said Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole.

The measure was sponsored by Rep. Dick Zimmer, a New Jersey Republican responding to the 1994 rape and murder of a 7-year-old New Jersey girl, Megan Kanka. After a convicted sex offender was charged with her murder, "Megan's Law" measures were passed in most states, although notification practices have differed widely.

"We are going to be saving many young lives and providing a legacy for Megan Kanka," Zimmer said after the Senate action.

States that fail to comply with notification requirements could lose federal aid under the bill.

The bill would require notification, although it would still let states decide how dangerous an offender is and what type of notification was required.

Megan's Law has faced a court challenge in New Jersey, where a U.S. District Court judge in Newark barred community notification while granting class-action status to some 1,000 released sex offenders. They sought notification and additional punishment and therefore unconstitutional.

Fifteen states already require community notification when dangerous child molesters are released, Zimmerman said.

The House this week passed several other criminal justice measures, including legislation to toughen conviction by witness tampering and for violent criminals who violate probation, the study said.

The study said the bill would be disabled and in certain federal anti-stalking provisions. The House has not taken up these bills.

This year's fireworks

Seeing as how this is only May, we may have more to say on this subject before early July. But early or not, it's fund-raising time for the annual fireworks display for the Fourth of July.

We believe it is very fitting that this year's fireworks event is being named in honor of Jim Carroll. Jim was very active in not only helping the fund-raising campaign last year, but helping in other ways. There are many things which need to be done in setting up such a display and arranging for the many aspects which are involved. Jim was the kind of person who could be relied on to get these jobs done.

Most people recall the disappointment several years ago when the fireworks campaign failed to obtain sufficient funding and lacked support on the part of people who would have helped arrange it.

Red Leyer, at that time, president of SHDWA, and Sanford Historic Downtown Waterfront Association, pledged not to allow that to happen again. SHDWA has become history since merging with Main Street, and Leyer has formed a separate organization known as Promoting Sanford. Through it, he has organized the effort which not only provided for an excellent fireworks show last July, but was able to net almost $1,000 in donations to be held over for this year's program.

The Fourth of July is many things to many people. It is the 220th anniversary of our nation's independence, (as well as the 220th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.)

It is a day for picnics, barbecues, pool parties, room and outdoor activities. But at night, and for the youngsters, it means only one thing - fireworks.

This year's display will be the preceding night, on July 3rd. Hopefully more people will turn out as it won't interfere with family plans for the official holiday.

We don't want to see anyone disappointed this year. We want to have the best fireworks possible flying through the skies over Sanford and its lakefront.

Make a donation, large or small. Everything will help.

Send contributions to Fourth of July Fireworks, P.O. Box 4156, Sanford, FL 32772.

The bishop and the buzzsaw

By now you have probably seen in the papers or watched on television at least one issue of the great brochure leaked up recently by the Right Reverend Fabian Bruskewitz, the Roman Catholic bishop of Lincoln, Neb. Although I am not myself a Roman Catholic, I found myself sympathizing with the bishop's plea as our liberal media found him (figuratively speaking) to a chair, piled branding around it, and grating out its shavings. There are lessons here for those of all faiths and none.

Bishop Bruskewitz's effort was to publish a list of 15 organizations that he believed promote ideas that are contrary to the teachings of the Roman Catholic Church. He believes that it is morally and theologically wrong for members of the church to belong to such organizations.

The organizations on the list include Planned Parenthood (which is loudly and powerfully pro-abortion), the Finnish Society (which advocates the right of a person to commit suicide), Call to Action (which favors the ordination of women as priests, something Pope John Paul II has officially proclaimed out of the question) and the Freemasons. The latter is a worldwide organization several centuries old which has located a large number of distinguished members (George Washington, for one) but which is an abject foe of Christianity.

The Encyclopedia Britannica notes that "Generally, Freemasonry is Latin Catholic but Anglo-American Masonry is Protestant."

It is not clear why Bishop Bruskewitz has an objection to anyone belonging to any of these organizations, or for that matter to all of them, but he doesn't believe a person can do this and simultaneously be a good Catholic. So he has ordered that, in his diocese, Catholics who persist in belonging to such groups after May 15 will be "excommunicated" -- which is to say, they will not be allowed to participate in the Catholic sacraments, including Holy Communion.

Now, this is a serious step, and one may legitimately wonder whether the bishop was wise to bring down on his head the uproar that has ensued. For of course the media found the story in a breath of offense against what the bishop meant in the democracy that he, of course, is not, in the church. The bishop was all about "splitting the church apart," which means "etc."

But I am indebted to the Washington-based Media Research Center (full disclosure: I sit on its board) for pointing out a most interesting analogy about which the media haven't uttered a word.

The American Civil Liberties Union is a great foe of liberalism, one of whose principles is to support abortion. Nat Hentoff is a distinguished and impeccably liberal writer who was at one time on the ACLU's national board of directors.

From the "Encyclopedia Britannica": "Generally, Freemasonry is Latin Catholic but Anglo-American Masonry is Protestant."

CUT THAT OUT! I WANT TO BE YOUR FRIEND - NOT YOUR MISTRESS OR YOUR ENEMY!

The evolution of devolution

"I'm from Washington and I'm here to help you" wasn't always a gag line.

Back in 1988, Americans were asked "Which do you favor - concentration of power in the federal government or in the state government?" By a 56 percent to 44 percent margin, they favored the federal government (Gallup). A 1994 poll shows respondents voting 68 percent to 32 percent that state government does a "better job of running things" than do the Feds (ABC News/Washington Post).

And so, the issue of "devolution" will be tested in the 1998 election in a way that may permanently change the American political landscape, and perhaps the American way of life.

One presidential candidate says he wants to "return government" and that "the era of big government is over." That's Bill Clinton, the candidate of the Democratic Party, the very party that in recent decades has supported centralized federal government.

Republican candidate Bob Dole says a good deal of what is wrong in the country is due to the federal government, which says that all power not granted to the federal government by the Constitution are to be reserved to the states or to the people. Dole says, "The federal today is not whether power should be shifted out of Washington, it's how far we should do it."

The argument about states' rights began before the ink was dry on the Tenth Amendment. And it is clear who has been winning. Imagine a graph. It spans more than 200 years ago with the ratification of the U.S. Constitution. A horizontal line labeled "federal power" traverses the graph. There are some particularly noticeable spikes in the line: post-Civil War amendments, which federally guarantee individuals due process and equal protection of the law; the constitutional amendments in 1913 allowing for a federal income tax; the great federal energy during our world wars; and the New Deal, which created the Federal Reserve, Social Security, and the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The line has undulations, dips, and fluctuations -- but it marches ever upward and ever forward.

Until today. American government in the future are seen on the graph as the line of dotted lines. Our government's growth and power is slowing and, in some ways, reversing.

Could it be that the federal government is being dismantled? The answer is yes. Power is being

On a broader scale, the elimination of "unfunded mandates" by the Gingrich Congress also showed the trend. If the Feds have to pay for what they do, they will do less.

What's going on? A confluence of many things.

The Feds gobbled up the spending power. Back in 1980, fully 68 percent of all tax revenue went to state and local governments and 30 percent to the Feds. By 1994, 70 percent of tax revenues went to the Feds and only 30 percent to state and local governments.

The power to tax is the power to alienate. The power to tax greatly is the power to run up great deficits, which limits the power to tax.

Meanwhile, the state governments have (apparently) become more efficient and less corrupt. They are now called "laboratories of democracy." With the passage of the civil rights laws, the states have been better able to make their own and the opponents of state power lost a potent weapon.

This may all sound like a dialogue for policy wonks. It is. It is important what level of government -- federal, state or local -- sets the speed limits, issues the taxes, issues the drivers' licenses, determines the criteria for voters' ballots, what restrictions there should be on abortion.

Apparently so. Over the years that recently passed, government has led to death, disease, and suffering. It is time to re-examine the way we do things. Our federal government is too big, too expensive, too corrupt, and too inefficient. It is time to re-examine the level of government that is best.

The issue of federalism is about liberty. Devolution is not a simple central government versus state-by-state restriction on power.

The issue of federalism is about liberty. Devolution is not a simple central government versus state-by-state restriction on power. It is about the power of the federal government. It is about the power of the state government. It is about the power of the local government. It is about the power of the people.

The argument about states' rights began before the ink was dry on the Tenth Amendment.

What are the drug warlords smoking?

Think of this column as something akin to the red light that flicks on in your dashboard to remind you it's time to service some system. We are rapidly moving into the political season and that means it's time to oil up the cowflap detectors.

Some people refer to these devices as bulletproof alarms. Others call them flapdoodle transponders. They're all the same. Basically, they warn you when it's time to put your boots on.

At the moment, my 1998, hand-held, solar-powered FlapAlert is warning me the polls are opening up to me with the ferocity of their dedication to the war on drugs.

Most of them are liars. The rest of them are dissemblers.

That, I acknowledge, is a fairly broad statement, but I cannot think of a single exception among national politicians. There was once a Congressman from Detroit named George Crockett who told the truth about the drug war, but he retired in 1990.

The truth is, the war on drugs is a $15 billion a year scam for garbage to stand on while they thump their chests and wax indignant and promise you they're going to do something about this evil scourge.

Since Richard Nixon launched the war on drugs two decades ago, we have spent $250 billion fighting it. I'd like just one authority to explain what we accomplished. No bull; just facts.

Here are some more things the polls will not tell you:

1. The war on drugs is unwinnable and has been lost. After all these years and all this money, marijuana use is up; heroin use is up; hallucinogens, stimulants and barbiturates use is up. The only drug that seems to be falling out of favor is cocaine, and that has more to do with fashion than the drug war.

2. Relatively little of the crime associated with drugs -- murder, burglary, robbery -- is caused by drug use. It is caused by drug prohibition, which creates an incredibly profitable black market. Write former Kansas City Police Chief Joseph McNamara in National Review magazine last February:

3. Anti-prohibition -- by which I mean the legalization of soft drugs and the decriminalization of hard drugs with emphasis on treatment and education -- is not simply a crazy notion pushed by wackos and newspaper columnists. Conservative darling William Rusher endorses it. Nobel Prize-winning economist Milton Friedman endorses it. The Mayor of Baltimore, Kurt Schmoke, endorses it. Federal judge Robert Sweet, former Washington, D.C., police chief Jerry Wilson, former New York City police commissioner Patrick Murphy -- all endorse it.

4. The politicians are fond of saying that the drug war is really a holy war. "We must never back down from the moral message," wrote former Vice President Dan Quayle in a recent column. "It is the key to ending a scourge that has turned countless lives into nightmares."

This, too, is a canard. The drug war is a scam for garbage to stand on while they thump their chests and wax indignant and promise you they're going to do something about this evil scourge. It is a $15 billion a year scam for garbage to stand on while they thump their chests and wax indignant and promise you they're going to do something about this evil scourge.

We are rapidly moving into the political season and that means it's time to oil up the cowflap detectors.

Glitzy gun shops give New Yorkers a shot

By ROBERT BLOOM
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK — Shopping for a gun in Manhattan doesn't mean you have to stalk the city's mean streets. Now you can look among the Hermes scarves, Tiffany diamonds and Louis Vuitton luggage in the city's pricier shopping district.

Along Madison Avenue and on 57th Street, upscale gunmakers are moving in, hoping to attract the same clientele that's usually found shopping in the exclusive retailers lining these blocks.

"Before, it was frowned upon to own a gun," said Michael Strano, who owns Downtown Rifle and Pistol, one of the city's premier shooting ranges. "Now it is a chic thing, it's a hobby of the elite."

In addition to New Yorkers who hunt, a growing number of city folk are dabbling in other shooting sports, whether it be target practice at a local firing range or clay pigeon shooting in the countryside, gun experts said.

Beretta SpA of Italy opened last June on Madison Avenue, near Barney's and Calvin Klein. And next week, London-based Holland & Holland, which is owned by Chanel, will unveil its new U.S. headquarters on 57th Street, right across from the glamorous Four Seasons Hotel.

At Holland & Holland, sleek, silver rifles and shotguns line the walls, with price tags ranging from $65,000 to $100,000. Every gun is made to order and takes a minimum of 600 hours to make, the company said.

The store is also filled with sporting attire and accessories, from the prominent head stock pin for $770 to the men's shooting jacket for $710. Ninety-five percent of all the products in the store are manufactured in Britain.

Beretta has had stronger-than-expected sales at its New York store, where guns start at about $1,300 each and go as high as $75,000. It also sells clothes and accessories.

While gun enthusiasts are cheering the arrival of such stores, others believe their presence glamorizes gun use. Gun-control groups claim the shops are luring people in with fashionable clothing and other products.

"The gun industry likes to make believe their product doesn't kill," said Josh Sugarman, executive director of the Violence Policy Center, a Washington-based gun-control group. Through stores like these, "they are trying to pretty it up. This is a clear attempt to remove the stigma from guns."

Shoppers agree that the jackets, ties and safari gear may draw them into the stores. "This area is the place to shop now," said Marge Kline, who suggests the shopping district. "The country isn't in, and that's like Nancy J. Crew, so I would check it out."

But as for gun shopping, she'll leave that to her friends who enjoy the sport. "They like the idea that this is classy, really classy," she said.

Researchers find key to cell infection by AIDS virus

By PAUL HENNE
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON — In a discovery that may open a new front in the war on AIDS, government scientists have isolated a protein that the AIDS virus needs to launch its deadly attack on cells.

Writing in today's issue of the journal Science, researchers at the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases say they have found a protein, which they call fusin, that must be present for the AIDS virus to infect white blood cells, the primary target of the virus.

The discovery was said by other scientists to be a significant milestone in AIDS research that eventually could lead to new drugs and vaccines against HIV, the virus that causes AIDS.

Edward A. Berger, leader of the team that made the discovery, said the finding will have no immediate impact on people infected with HIV, but it does answer a question that has confounded researchers for 10 years and slowed the search for a cure.

HIV attacks cells in the bloodstream that have on their surface a molecule called CD4. HIV uses CD4 to fuse with the target cell. But researchers discovered that CD4, by itself, was not enough. Some other receptor on the cell surface had to be present for the HIV infection to occur.

Fusin is that second receptor, Berger said. He said the finding was "a major new insight into how HIV gets into cells and suggests some things we weren't even considering about how HIV causes disease."

"This is very significant basic research that helps to solve the puzzle of how HIV gets into cells," said John Moore, an AIDS researcher at the Aaron Diamond AIDS Research Center in New York. "There has been very intensive efforts by many labs to find this. Many people have given up."

Robert Gallo of the University of Maryland, the co-discoverer of the HIV virus, said the research represented "one of the milestones in AIDS research. This opens new doors for therapy and for developing vaccines."

Other labs have confirmed the finding, but their work has not yet been published.

Berger and his colleagues found fusin by genetically altering a laboratory virus, called vaccinia, to resemble HIV and to cause a cell to turn blue if it fuses with the virus.

They then exposed this laboratory virus to cultured mouse cells that had been altered to include the human CD4 gene, along with selected genes for other molecules found on the surface of human cells.

Through a painstaking process of elimination, the researchers eventually isolated fusin and identified it as the protein that is a co-factor with CD4 in the HIV infection process.

To prove the role of the protein, CD4 cells with and without fusin were exposed to HIV from blood samples. Only the cells with fusin became infected. Researchers then developed an antibody against fusin and found that laboratory cultures protected by the antibody could not be infected by HIV.

Berger said fusin also may play a role in the HIV infection of macrophages, another type of blood cell also attacked by HIV. This suggests, he said, that there is a separate molecular co-factor for the macrophage infection.

A major contribution from the discovery may be the development of animals that can get human AIDS. Animal cells normally do not become infected with HIV and, hence, there are no laboratory animal models for testing of AIDS drugs.

"His sole purpose is to determine if there is just cause for the complaints which have been filed against McCauley, or possibly if the discipline was perhaps in need of being reduced."

"If, after hearing the determination from this hearing officer, Mr. McCauley is still dissatisfied," Simmons continued, "he will have 10 days in which to make another appeal, and that would take the matter before the Civil Service Commission."

It would reportedly be up to the Civil Service board to determine if McCauley should be formally fired from his position with the city.

Simmons indicated that the clock on the 10-day time had not yet started.

In addition to the shows and exhibits, visitors will have the opportunity to give their mothers an animal of her own. While she can't take the creature home, she can know that her adoption fee will help pay for the care and feeding of one of the residents at the zoo.

When an animal is adopted in mom's name for $55, she'll receive a 3-by-5 inch photo of her animal, an adoption certificate and some educational information about the animal.

The Central Florida Zoo opens at 9 a.m. on Mother's Day and the festivities kick off at 11 o'clock.

The zoo is located on the shores of Lake Monroe on U.S. Highway 17-92. For more information on Mother's Day activities at the zoo, call 328-2440.

During the period prior to the selection, the pickup truck appeared to be the favorite among most of the youngsters. Sarah Bittel of Lake Mary High School ended up with the 1996 Nissan pickup truck.

Other winners were: Patti Hopkins of Lake Howell who obtained the 1996 Isuzu; Layla

Ballew of Lyman who selected the 1997 Oldsmobile; and Erika Bearup of Lake Brantley who received a 1996 Ford.

The youngsters will be able to obtain the vehicles after clear titles have been obtained and all paperwork has been finished.

Several Donor's Choice vehicles were selected as a way of promoting good driving habits among the youngsters. Many of the vehicles had been confiscated through crime fighting operations.

AROUND THE STATE

Panthers tie series

MIAMI — Florida's Dave Lowry scored 4:06 into overtime to give the Panthers a 4-3 win over Philadelphia and knot their best-of-7 Eastern Conference semifinal series at 2-2.

Game 5 will be Sunday in Philadelphia. Lowry deflected a wrist shot by defenseman Ed Jovanovski past Flyers goaltender Ron Hextall for the winner. It was his sixth goal of the playoffs.

The goal went under video review because the net was moved off its mooring, but was allowed to stand.

It was the first overtime victory for Florida in the last 36 games the Panthers have played past regulation.

Marlins win fourth straight

MIAMI — Rookie Kurt Miller pitched eight strong innings in his first start since 1994, and the Florida Marlins extended their winning streak to four games by beating the Colorado Rockies 6-2 Thursday night.

Miller (1-0) was recalled Sunday from Triple-A Charlotte to replace struggling left-hander Chris Hammond, in the Marlins' rotation. A 21-year-old right-hander, Miller allowed five hits, walked four and hit two batters en route to his second major-league victory.

The 6-foot-5 rookie helped himself with five assists, including one to start a double play and another on a pickoff.

The Rockies' losing streak reached four games, their longest of the season. Colorado swept a three-game series against Florida last weekend in Denver.

Devon White went 4-for-5, scored twice and drove in a run for Florida. Gary Sheffield drove in two runs and scored once.

Marlins lose middle infield

MIAMI — The Florida Marlins placed shortstop Kurt Abbot and second baseman Quilvio Vera on the 15-day disabled list late Thursday and recalled shortstop Edgar Renteria from Triple-A Charlotte.

Vera strained his left hamstring scoring from first base on Devon White's triple in the eighth inning of Wednesday's 6-2 victory over Colorado.

Abbot was placed on the disabled list retroactive to Monday. He has been bothered by dizziness and is undergoing a series of tests. He'll next visit a neurologist and then undergo allergy testing.

The 20-year-old Renteria, one of the Marlins' top prospects, will join the team before Friday's game against Colorado.

Klingbell has surgery

Doctors operated on the shoulder to clean out excess tissue.

Klingbell, 6-1, 288 pounds, is expected to be ready for the start of training camp in July.

The six-year Dolphin played in all 16 regular season games last year with 15 starts. The 30-year-old registered 59 tackles in 1995.

Suns down O'Cubs

JACKSONVILLE — Scott Makarewicz hit a grand slam homerun with two outs in the ninth inning to lead the Jacksonville Suns past the Orlando Cubs 7-4 Thursday night.

The Suns had been trailing by a run when a two-out rally was started with a two-strike single by Terrell Hansen. Suns pitcher Sean Whiteside (1-0) got the win while Matt Connolly (1-1) took the loss.

Orlando led Jacksonville 4-1 after six innings, but the Suns rallied for six runs in the final three, including the grand slam.

Seminole intersquad game won by Orange

By GARY COATMAN
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Orange team got a scare late in Thursday's Seminole High School intersquad varsity football scrimmage before holding on to beat the Black 17-15 at Thomas E. Whigham field.

Tracy Bass intercepted Orange quarterback Shawn Eason to give the Black the ball at its own 42 with just over five minutes remaining in the game. Eason, who saw time at quarterback for both sides, then led the Black to the Orange 21-yard line in nine plays. The senior signal-caller gained 28 yards on four carries during the drive, and found Bass for a 6-yard pass play.

Eason's efforts helped get Black placekicker Joe Battista a 37-yard field goal attempt to win the

...with 24 seconds remaining. Batten stepped wide to the left, and Eason crossed the ball for the Orange to end the game.

"This wasn't bad for an intrasquad game," said Seminole coach Eric McPherson. "The guys played well, and I was really pleased by what I saw. This was a good, exciting game, and it gets us ready for the jamboree."

The Black drove 65 yards in 13 plays to open the game. The drive started 10:54 off the clock, and Stephen Brown led the attack by guiding 57 yards on five carries. Eason connected with wide receiver Don Howard on a 23-yard pass play during the drive, and scored on a 3-yard run with 1:35 left in the first quarter. Batten missed the extra point and the Black had a 6-0 lead.

The Orange responded by driving to the Black 20-yard line in 10 plays before failing to convert on fourth and five. The Eddie Key then recovered a Black fumble on the next play to give the Orange the ball at the Black 18. Jason Armstrong capped the drive with a 26-yard field goal to pull the Orange within 6-3 with 4:34 left in the second quarter.

Hawks ponder ways to defend Shaq

By PHIL CHODALA AP Sports Writer

ORLANDO — Discussion of what Atlanta has to do to get back into the NBA playoff series against Orlando begins and ends with Shaquille O'Neal.

The Hawks must find a way to contain the All-Star center, whose 34.5 percent possession record (41 points) helped him lead in a 1-0 lead in the second round of playoffs.

Game 3 is tonight at Orlando Arena, where the Hawks have lost six consecutive times. The third and fourth games of the Eastern Conference semifinal series will be played Sunday and Monday in Atlanta.

"We have to come out and establish we can do a better job ... and I feel like we will," said Atlanta coach Larry Williams.

O'Neal dominated the game, starting at will against overwhelmed defender Christian Lattin and Ben Smith. But the Hawks' 117-point effort was cut short when they were far from a comeback.

Atlanta's shooting guard, Reggie Miller, said he was "not going to let Shaq get away with it."

playoff best of 50 points after averaging just 18 on 25 percent shooting in four regular-season games against the Hawks.

Dennis Scott, who had the most prolific 3-point shooting season in NBA history this year, only had five points. But Nick Anderson scored 21 and Horace Grant contributed 17 points and 10 rebounds.

"I'm not going to let Shaq get away with it," said Scott. "When he makes a jump shot, you have to worry about Shaq finding the open man. You have to involve Dennis and Nick. And Horace is shooting the ball really well too."

To have a chance to even the series, the Hawks will have to find a way to neutralize O'Neal, who made 18 of 38 shots — more of them more than eight feet from the basket.

Defeating him 1-0-1 with either the 6-foot-11 Lattin or 6-10 Smith wasn't the answer in the opener.

What do today's children eat?

WASHINGTON - More of the nation's children are eating away from home during the mid-1980's than in the late 1970's. They're also consuming more beverages and grain-based snacks, such as cereals, than in the late 1970's. They're eating less fat and drinking less milk, according to data from the first year of the current three-year U.S. Department of Agriculture nationwide food consumption survey-What We Eat in America.

BARBARA HUGHES/GREGG

contributes an average 30 percent of total calories for this age group.

"Parents want to know what their children are eating when they don't eat meals with the family, and everyone wants to know how they can make healthier food choices," said Agriculture Secretary Don Oldham.

"The first-year survey results show us our kids in 1984, nearly half of 18-to-24-year olds consumed more fat or drink provided outside the home, compared to one-third in the 1977-78 survey," said Deputy Under Secretary for Research, Education, and Economics, Celia Wright. "Food eaten away from home now among teenage boys whose daily intake nearly tripled between 1977-78 and 1984.

Milk consumption, on the other hand, dropped markedly across all ages and gender groups, as it has since the late 1970's. A little more than half of teens drank milk in 1984, compared to some three-fourths in the late 1970's. Intake two years ago ranged from 13 ounces for preschoolers and school-age girls to around 16 ounces for school-age boys.

Other trends identified in the first year of the ongoing survey: American children reflected the national trend in consumption of crackers, popcorn, pretzels, and corn chips.

"Grain-based combinations, such as pasta with meat, rice dishes and pizza, also were more popular in 1984. About 45 percent of children and teens ate at least one of these combinations on a given day versus about 25 percent in the late 1970's. "Pasta is the most frequently reported grain combination food among school-age kids," said Wright. "Fruit consumption declines as children get older.

"Low on the vegetable hit parade are green beans, corn, green peas, and lima beans, with less than 10 percent of children or teens reporting having eaten them on a given day," she said. And the percentage was even lower for the nutrient-packed dark greens or deep yellow vegetables.

"Today's kids are consuming less fat as a percentage of total calories, reflecting the trend for the population as a whole. In 1984, fat intake ranged from an average of 28 percent for teen girls to 34 percent for preschoolers. That's compared to the 27 to 40 percent range in the late 1970's. The Dietary Guidelines for Americans, which provide guidance for maintaining a nutritional diet, recommends 25 percent or less of calories from fat.

Chorus tops in contest

ORLANDO - Against very stiff competition from 17 other choruses from all over the state of Florida, Master Director Nancy Lewis led the 108 members of the Central Florida chorus to the top prize. The gold medal entitles the chorus to represent Region 9 at the International Convention in November 1987 in Salt Lake City, Utah. The chorus, dressed in hot pink cocktail length gowns trimmed with black sequins, performed one up-tempo song, "After You've Gone" and one ballad, "All By Myself."

Brady 'n Brass and Tuxedo, placed in the top 10. Tuxedo was also the recipient of the Novice Award.

On Saturday evening, after the chorus competition, the Show of Champions was held with the top three quartets and choruses entertaining the audience. Sound of Sunshine drew a standing ovation for their performance and left them all laughing uproariously at a rendition of Sousa songs that has to be seen to be believed.

Sound of Sunshine, chartered in 1977, is a group that any community would be proud to call its own. From very small beginnings they've grown to become one of the largest and most respected choruses in the world. They sing at Walt Disney World various times during the year and have been honored recently by Guest Admires International who asked the chorus to entertain at the Showcase at this year's International Convention in Ft. Lauderdale in November. They will share the program with two championship quartets and Mr. Ed Terme. Quite a coup for them!

The Sound of Sunshine will now begin preparing for its annual show to be held on November 5. They rehearse every Thursday night at 7:00 p.m. at the Winter Park Arts Hall and visitors and prospective members are always welcome.

Nancy Lewis, director, and Martha Williams, president, of Sound of Sunshine Chorus, show trophy and plaque the chorus won.

Please call 322-0117 for further information.

Teen responsible for own life

DEAR MARY: I'm 18 years old and will be starting college in the fall. I want to move into an apartment as soon as I graduate from high school and start living my own life, but my parents say they won't pay for college if I move out. I have a part-time job and can pay for my own car and probably even an apartment too, if I get a roommate, but I can't do all that and still pay for college. I think my parents are being unfair and trying to hold me to me. After all, legally I'm an adult and should be able to live wherever I want to. How can I convince them to stop holding me out?
18 and An Adult

MARY BALK

DEAR 18: You're right-legally you are an adult and can make your own decisions. However, your parents are also adults and are also entitled to make their own decisions. They can't make you live at home while you're going to college, but they have every right to decide how they will spend their money. If they decide that they do not want to pay your college expenses unless you live at home, you can either go along with their wishes, get some loans, or save the money to pay for it yourself.

The often-overlooked reality of being 18 and legally an adult, is that you are also legally responsible for your own life. Give your parents the same respect for their decisions that you want them to give to you.

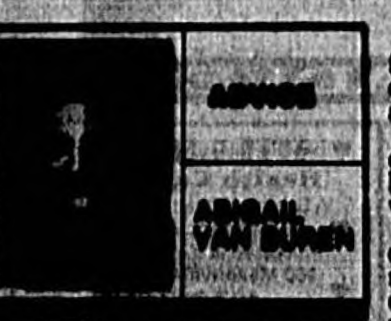

You may want to go to the Student Financial Aid Office of the college you'll be attending and ask for information on student loans, grants and scholarships. After you've gathered all your information, you can make an informed decision on whether you're better off living with your parents, getting financial aid and moving out, or postponing college until you can finance it yourself. Freedom without responsibility, spontaneity or any other way, is a myth.

Eye program focuses on low-income seniors

DEAR ABBY: Recently you published some important information for low-income workers and their families regarding free eye examinations through Vision USA.

ARISAK VAN BUREN

Another public service program, the National Eye Care Project (NECP), has offered medical eye care to American low-income under 65-year-olds for the past 10 years. Nearly 200,000 patients have received care, at an out-of-pocket cost to them.

The program is simple. Referrals are provided to an ophthalmologist (a physician trained in the medical and surgical treatment of eye disease) for those who are blind and over 65 and who otherwise have access to medical eye care. We encourage better citizens, or anyone with knowledge of a person, over 65, who has been blind, to contact our office for help. Referrals are provided to call the hotline (800) 335-5222 (NECP). Blind citizens will receive a referral to an ophthalmologist in their community.

Referrals to the Foundation of the American Society of Ophthalmology and the National Eye Care Project are provided to the NECP. It is important to note that NECP is not a medical program. It is a social program that provides eye care to those who are blind and over 65 and who otherwise have access to medical eye care. We encourage better citizens, or anyone with knowledge of a person, over 65, who has been blind, to contact our office for help. Referrals are provided to call the hotline (800) 335-5222 (NECP). Blind citizens will receive a referral to an ophthalmologist in their community.

DEAR ABBY: My longtime fiancé, "Abe," had planned a large check wedding, and asked me and my other fiancé to be bridesmaids.

Well, two weeks before the wedding, Abe informed us that she had been hit by a car on the way to the wedding.

Abe, who had already received our betrothal gifts, and I had mine stored, so there was no way I could return it and get my money refunded. Unfortunately, all the bridesmaids were stuck with a $100 gown.

The bride made an effort to reimburse us, she just announced that the wedding was off.

Don't you think Abe should have offered to reimburse her bridesmaids for their gowns? Or should I have paid and delivered the gowns to New Jersey?

DEAR FRUSTRATED: If I were you, I would just consider the $100 as a gift. Abe has caused a lot of trouble for the bride.

DEAR ABBY: I will get right to the point. I have fallen in love with my first cousin. His mother and my mother are sisters, but I grew up in New York and he was raised in California, so we didn't see each other very often. However, we both got a definite physical attraction to each other when we met.

We would like to be married. We are both 25, and we are both single (I have had a fiancée, but we never got married), but we need to know for which state the closest law is.

DEAR COUSINS: First cousins may marry in Alabama, Alaska, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Idaho, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, and Virginia. And in Wisconsin, first cousins may marry if the woman is 18 years or older.

Good luck, and may you forever be happily married.

Musician/author speaks at two-day conference

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

LAKE MARY — "What on earth is God doing for heaven's sake?" is the title of a two-day conference with Fr. Terry Pulliam, beginning Friday evening May 17 at the Courtyard Inn in Lake Mary.

Pulliam, recognized around the world as an outstanding Bible teacher, is also a gifted musician and author of six books. Before making himself available full-time for itinerant teaching, he was rector for 17 years of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Darien, Conn. The remarkable changes that occurred during his time there are described in a book, "Miracle in Darien," by Bob Stinner, which is still used as a handbook on the principles of church renewal.

Abundant Life Presbyterian Church pastor Robert Wilber is hosting the conference with a view to bringing spiritual hope and encouragement to his church's own members and visitors from the community. The Courtyard Inn is located at the intersection of Interstate-6 and Lake Mary Boulevard. Meeting times are Friday, 7-9 p.m., and Saturday, 1-5 p.m.

Part-time attendance is definitely permissible. There is no registration fee. More information can be obtained by calling 330-7355.

Fr. Terry Pulliam

Pastor shares thoughts on Mother's Day

SANFORD — Parents do an awful lot of things for their children that they don't realize. I am reminded that all these mothers and fathers are right when they tell us that Christianity is a way of life and children must see us as parents living it and not just saying it. What an awesome responsibility.

As we celebrate a day Sunday to remember our mothers may we all realize the gift of life she gave us and show a little kindness. I would like to insert a little thank-you today for my own mother.

Parents, mothers and fathers, deserve our respect and honor. And days like Mother's Day provide an opportunity to verbalize our feelings. We can complain about the commercialization of such days, but we have to admit that the thought behind the day is certainly honorable.

She was a mother and father to me for many years when I was growing up. To this day I still send her a Mother's Day card to show my appreciation for her dual role.

may be long upon the land when the Lord thy God grows thee" (Numbers 20:12).

Pastor Wesley Baker
Sanford Church of God

Thank you to my mother, moms everywhere

Mother's Day...a humbling experience, a full-time job, a joy, a burden, all-consuming yet totally fulfilling. Sound like some words you've used to describe being a mother?

As much as I have longed for years to be a stay-at-home mom, finances have negotiated other arrangements.

I truly have been blessed and shouldn't complain because my job has the flexibility of allowing my children to participate frequently and spend time with me. Yet, in the midst of the activity I long for free-time. No rushing, juggling but spending uninterrupted time playing as long as my children desire, with no time restraints, sharing God's wonderful word and creation at length.

A tinge of guilt crosses my heart at times when I reflect on the scriptures in the Bible that deal with God speaking to his people about their responsibility to the training of their offspring. He tells them in Deuteronomy 11:18, 20 "to teach...your children...when they sit at the table, when they walk by the way, when they lie down and when they rise up. And these shall write them upon the door posts of their house and upon the gates."

My mother has taught Sunday school for over 50 years. Unfortunately due to health problems in the past few years she has had to take a leave for her teaching but her heart longs to return.

She stood steadfast while I rebelled in the teen years. Her prayers and concern for my spiritual welfare paid off. I now serve the Lord with my husband and children and continually pray for her and thank God for sending me a Christian mother, Clodene Richards.

WHAT IS A MOTHER

It takes a Mother's LOVE to make a house a home, A place to be remembered, no matter where you roam ...

It takes a Mother's PATIENCE to bring a child up right.

And her COURAGE and her CHEERFULNESS to make a dark day bright ...

It takes a Mother's THOUGHTFULNESS to mend little socks and shirts ...

It takes a Mother's KINDNESS to forgive us when we err. To sympathize in trouble and bow her head in prayer ...

It takes a Mother's WISDOM to recognize our needs And to give us reassurance by her loving word and deeds

It takes a Mother's ENDLESS FAITH, her CONFIDENCE and TRUST

To guide us through the pitfalls of selfishness and lust ... and that is why in all this world there could not be Another who could fulfill God's purpose as completely as A Mother!

A Parent's Prayer

O Master, make me a better parent. Teach me to understand my children, to listen patiently to what they say, and to answer all their questions kindly. Keep me from interrupting them, talking back to them, and contradicting them. Make me as courteous to them as I want them to be to me. Give me the courage to confess my sins against my children and to ask their forgiveness when I know that I have wronged them.

May I not hurt the feelings of my children, forbid that I should laugh at their mistakes or ridicule them as punishment. Let me not tempt them to lie and steal. Guide me hour by hour that I may demonstrate by all I say and do that honesty produces happiness.

Blind me to the little errors of my children, and help me to see the good things that they do. Give me a ready word for honest praise when they do right.

Help me to grow up with my children, to treat them as children not as adults. Let me not judge them according to the standards of adult behavior. Do not allow me to rob them of the opportunity to suit themselves, to think, to choose, and to make decisions.

Forbid that I should ever punish them for my own selfish satisfaction. May I grant them all their wishes that are reasonable and have the courage shown to withhold a privilege which I know will harm them.

Help me to fair and just, so considerate and merciful as to be a parent that they will love & obey me. Help me to be a parent that they will love & obey me.

Charm is deceptive, and beauty is fleeting; but a woman who fears the Lord is to be praised. Give her the reward she has earned, and let her works bring her praise at the city gate. Proverbs 31:30 & 31

Does caffeine worsen breast pain?

DEAR DR. GOTT: Does drinking regular coffee or products that contain caffeine cause VERY sore breasts? I find yearly examinations by a trained technician or my doctor very painful.

DEAR READER: For reasons that are not understood, some women are extremely sensitive to caffeine. Their breasts become quite tender and lumpy when they eat chocolate or drink caffeine-containing beverages. Also, the drug seems to worsen fibrocystic disease (lumpy, sore breast masses).

I suspect that your body is giving you an unmistakable message: Avoid caffeine. Of course, you should continue to have periodic (hopefully less uncomfortable) breast examinations by a trained professional.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Breast Cancer and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $8 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 9817, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10108. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: In 1992 my daughter had surgery for a ruptured appendix. She's now 13 and still isn't menstruating. After the surgery, we were told the might be at high risk for possible infertility. Do you have any information on this subject?

DEAR READER: If an inflamed appendix is not treated with antibiotics or surgery, it can rupture, spreading intestinal contents into the abdominal cavity. Called "peritonitis," this infection may affect organs in the pelvic, including the Fallopian tubes through which the fertilized egg passes on its way to the uterus. Peritonitis is one cause of infertility, when it produces scar tissue in the Fallopian tubes.

However, this scar tissue should not permanently affect ovulation or menstruation. Your daughter apparently developed a serious situation at the time of her appendicitis. At this point, I believe that she needs the services of a gynecologist. Her lack of menstruation could be the result of a hormonal imbalance that is common to young teen-age girls.

DEAR DR. GOTT: When people are admitted to the hospital for surgery, they have a blood work-up. Is this simply to find the patient's blood type or to test for hepatitis, AIDS and other infectious diseases to protect the staff?

DEAR READER: Routine, pre-operative blood studies vary from hospital to hospital but the basic series usually includes a blood count, and tests of glucose, and kidney efficiency.

PETER GOTT, M.D.

If blood tests during surgery are anticipated, the patient's blood type is also determined. As a general rule, HIV is not tested, nor are specific tests performed to document hepatitis.

DEAR DR. GOTT: A close friend has been diagnosed with Raynaud's phenomenon. Please address this in your column.

DEAR READER: This disorder refers to the constricting of certain arterial vessels. First the affected part turns white, then blue, then red, as the vessels relax.

Raynaud's phenomenon is common in women and is also associated with many disorders, including connective tissue diseases (scleroderma, lupus and others), obstructive arterial disease, nerve damage, an obstructive thyroid gland, drug intoxication, trauma, and so forth.

Occasionally, the arterial spasms can be followed by ulcers. Sometimes, bloodclots to avoid. Also, certain chemical irritants, such as nicotine, may help prevent Raynaud's phenomenon. Obviously, any underlying condition must be addressed and treated; thus, in a sense, the affliction is a symptom, not a disease.

Given a reprieve

By Phillip Alder

As you will presumably have gathered, I have been drawing this week's column from a press release about the 1986 Cavendish Invitational Pairs. This year's event begins tomorrow at the Lorne Hotel in New York City. The bundle contained many excellent deals, but I think I have spotted an analytical oversight.

In this deal, East opened with a weak two-bid, showing a decent six-card suit and some 8-10 high-card points. North bid five diamonds as an each-way bet: Maybe it would make, or it might be a good sacrifice.

West led a low spade. After winning with his ace, East switched to the heart eight, dealer winning with the ace. South, P.G. Eliassen from Sweden, saw that if the clubs were breaking 3-2, he could draw trumps and duck a club, making exactly. But what if the clubs were 4-1?

At trick three, Eliassen cashed the diamond jack. Then he played a club to dummy's ace and a club back toward his king. If everyone followed, dealer was going to give up a club trick and claim. And when East discarded, Eliassen was still all right. He won with the king and conceded a club to West. Back came a heart, but dealer won with his king, played a trump to dummy, ruffed a club, returned to dummy with another trump and discarded his heart loser on the established club eight.

Looks good, but did anything strike you?

Right; East must ruff the second club and return a trump. Declarer doesn't have the entries to unblock the club king, establish dummy's fifth club and enjoy it. He must lose three tricks: one spade, one heart and one ruff.
