Blood Injections Can Aid You, Baby

DEAR DR. LAMB — Two years ago when I had only been married a matter of weeks, I became pregnant. For financial and personal reasons my husband and I decided to terminate the pregnancy.

At that time I discovered I had a rare blood type: Rh negative group O. I was given an injection of Rh immune globulin.

I would appreciate it greatly if you could explain why I received the above mentioned injection. Will I have to have these shots each time I have a child? When I do become pregnant again will I have to tell my doctor that I have undergone an abortion and have received an Rh immune injection?

DEAR DR. LAMB — I wonder if anything can be done for my husband. For the last year he has yet to finish his evening meal. Each night he starts to hiccup at the table and leaves it for the bathroom where he vomits what he has eaten. He returns but he is no longer able to finish his meal. He's lost a few pounds already.

He is 73 years of age and every afternoon he goes for a walk and before he returns he usually drinks two bottles of beer. I have supper ready when he gets back and the problem begins all over again. What do you suppose can be done?

DEAR DR. LAMB — Hiccups are apparently related to reflex actions. This can be associated with a trigger mechanism in the back of the throat or it's often associated with irritation of the diaphragm. The latter can occur with excessive distention of the stomach.

Your husband should see a doctor to make sure he's not having some problem with swallowing or in food passing through the esophagus (food tube) into the stomach.

If these things are normal I would suggest a change in his habits. He might discontinue the two bottles of beer that apparently precede his evening meal. It could be that the beer is irritating his stomach and contributing to his problem.

one noticed that the hand should have walked in."

Alain: "I take it that South drew trumps before losing the club finesse. He would still get one diamond discard on a good club, but he had only one trump left in dummy to try to ruff ten diamonds."

Oswald: "He just played two rounds of trumps. Then he lost the club finesse, and West led the third trump."

Alain: "Here is the correct play for the benefit of any readers who haven't already seen it. Huff the heart; lead a trump to dummy's king. Finesse the club right then and there. Even West leads a second trump, you will have two trumps left in dummy. You cash your two high clubs to get a diamond discard; cash the high diamonds and crossruff for the rest of the tricks."

Oswald: "Just a comment on the bidding: South's slam bid was a gamble, but the sort of gamble that is worth taking. He knew there could not be a good play for seven since North had merely given a single raise."

Oswald: "When I saw today's hand played, I watched South wind up one trick short. Of course, he was unlucky. Trumps broke 3-0, both minor suits were wrong and diamonds broke 4-2. South compounded. North sympathized with him and no

DOWNTOWN DIMENSIONS

The mural painted on the side of buildings on Magnolia Avenue and First Street in Sanford draws an admiring glance from a woman. The mural, designed and executed by Don Reynolds, Seminole County coordinator for the Council of Arts and Sciences for Central Florida, is to help make the public aware of art in the county and is a bright and colorful addition to downtown Sanford.

Casselberry To Ask Fee At Dog Track

Casselberry Mayor Owen Sheppard has been instructed to go to Tallahassee, if necessary, to lobby through a bill granting his city a 25 cent fee per admission if legislation is approved converting the Seminole Park and Fairgrounds from a harness racetrack to a greyhound racing facility.

The Casselberry City Council in workshop Monday night gave the mayor the instructions after the council was told by Bill Demetree, operator of the horse racing track, that while support from the city is paramount for the conversion to greyhound racing, the city must also support the admissions tax for the city as part of the legislation.

Council Chairman Frank Schutte suggested the 25-cent fee on all admissions - both complimentary and purchased - to defray costs to the city of providing street improvements and other necessities and for the "inconvenience" to be suffered by the citizens by the traffic generated by the expected 300,000 dog racing fans.

Schutte said a 25-cent, across-the-board fee would generate about $75,000 annually and could be used as a hedge as well to guarantee Casselberry citizens their property taxes would not be increased to pay costs to the city from the dog track operations.

Meanwhile, Stanley Kupiszewski, owner of not only the 26-plus acre harness racetrack, but also another 130 acres surrounding the facility, said his family has borne the burden for 30 years of trying to make a success of the harness racing. He told the city council if the legislation permitting the conversion does not pass, he may be forced to develop the property into a subdivision of single-family homes.

Sheppard said today that he has conducted a study on the development of single family homes on that property, noting 700 could be built. "Addressing ourselves to the traffic problem, there would be more traffic generated by 700 homes than by a dog track," Sheppard said today.

Schutte said, however, the 700 new homes would generate more revenue for the city to pay those traffic costs and related costs than the dog track conversion would even if the 25 cent admission were approved. In addition Schutte said traffic from homes would flow at various times throughout the day while track traffic would be compact.

Without the admissions fee, he noted, the property taxes received from the track would be little in comparison to homes. The houses would pay, he said, not only a substantial amount of property taxes - about $56,000 annually - but also franchise taxes and utility taxes.

Sheppard said today, the operators of the harness racetrack have agreed to pay $40,000 for a traffic signal at Seminola Boulevard and Winter Park Drive; $7,000 to outfit extra duty traffic officers; to upgrade water flow system and install additional fire hydrants if necessary after the city's fire chief does an inspection; to pay for two extra firefighters who must be hired at the rate of $10 per hour for four hours per evening and to pay $10 per hour for each of six extra policemen who will have to be hired.

Sheppard said Demetree has agreed to sign an agreement with the city guaranteeing the funding.

NBC Picks Longwood As Key Presidential Precinct

SECRET BALLOT

DEMOCRATIC PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARY
MARCH 11, 1980

When NBC projects the winners of the presidential preference primary in Florida shortly after the polls close at 7 p.m., the views of the voters of Seminole County's precinct 33 in Longwood will be part of that projection.

Laurin Milton of Fern Park was stationed on the front porch at Longwood city hall this morning asking the voters as they came out of the polling place to answer a number of questions on an NBC poll.

Milton said the voters were being very cooperative in filling out the lengthy polling sheet. Milton's responses to questions about the poll were the same: "I don't know."

It was not known why the television network chose precinct 33; how the pollsters were chosen or how the questions were composed and selected.

Carolyn Churchill, a researcher with election headquarters at NBC-Tampa said today the information and the process used in the poll are confidential.

Eligible to cast ballots in precinct 33, which includes most of the old section of Longwood, were 1,481 people, including 886 Democrats, 472 Republicans and 123 from splinter parties.

Poll workers reported a steady flow of voters in that particular precinct.

Only Democrats and Republicans could vote their preference in the respective contests. But all voters were considering two state constitutional amendments - limiting the jurisdiction of the Florida Supreme Court and raising the homestead exemption to $25,000.

Seminole Supervisor of Elections Camilla Bruce's office said the only problem reported from the polls this morning came from Altamonte.

Chappaquiddick; raised my opinion of Senator Kennedy; lowered my opinion of Senator Kennedy; didn't change my opinion of Senator Kennedy; not sure.

The Republican ballot asked: do you think the fact that Ronald Reagan is now 69 years old - makes him more able to handle the duties of the Presidency?

B. C. Makes him less able to handle the duties of the Presidency.

C. C. Makes no difference in his ability to handle the duties of the Presidency.

D. C. Not sure.

Other questions concerned the voters' views of the equal rights amendment, mandatory permits for handguns, nuclear power plants; abortion; reinstatement of the draft; drafting women into the military; federal spending; the defense budget; Middle East peace negotiations; national health insurance; labor unions.

Ken Brown (left), sales manager for the eastern seaboard for NBC News affiliate WESH-TV, Winter Park-Daytona Beach, shakes hands with NBC pollster, Laurin Milton of Fern Park, after turning over to Milton the poll form used in "key" precinct 33, Longwood. Brown is a former mayor of Longwood.

Sanford Police Department Needs Auxiliary Volunteers

By DAVID M. RAZLER
Herald Staff Writer

The Sanford Police Department is looking for about a dozen men and women interested in volunteering their time to help patrol and protect Sanford, says Lt. Mike Rotundo.

"At the moment, the department has only 12 auxiliary officers, down from the 20 to 25 the department usually has on the rolls, he said.

Auxiliary officers are community members who volunteer their time to assist the 30 full-time Sanford patrolmen, Rotundo said.

After undergoing an 80-hour course, the auxiliary officers are considered police officers, with the same rights and responsibilities. The department provides all uniforms and equipment for the volunteers, as well as their training, said Rotundo.

"We call them part-time police," he said, explaining the auxiliary officers must spend a minimum of eight hours a week riding with patrolmen on regular duty.

Volunteers also serve as dispatchers and do other police work when needed, he said.

Rotundo said many of the auxiliary officers are people looking to become full-time officers. By serving as volunteers on the Sanford force while taking the 200 hours of college work mandated under the state's minimum police standards law, the potential officers gain experience which can help them get a full-time job, he said.

Over the past two years, about seven volunteers have become full-time police officers, said Rotundo.

Recent changes and moves have led to the drop in the number of auxiliary officers, said Rotundo, who is looking to bring the force back up to strength.

Applicants must be 21 or older, he said, adding applicants will be screened using the same guidelines applied to police officers. Both men and women are welcomed to volunteer, Rotundo said.

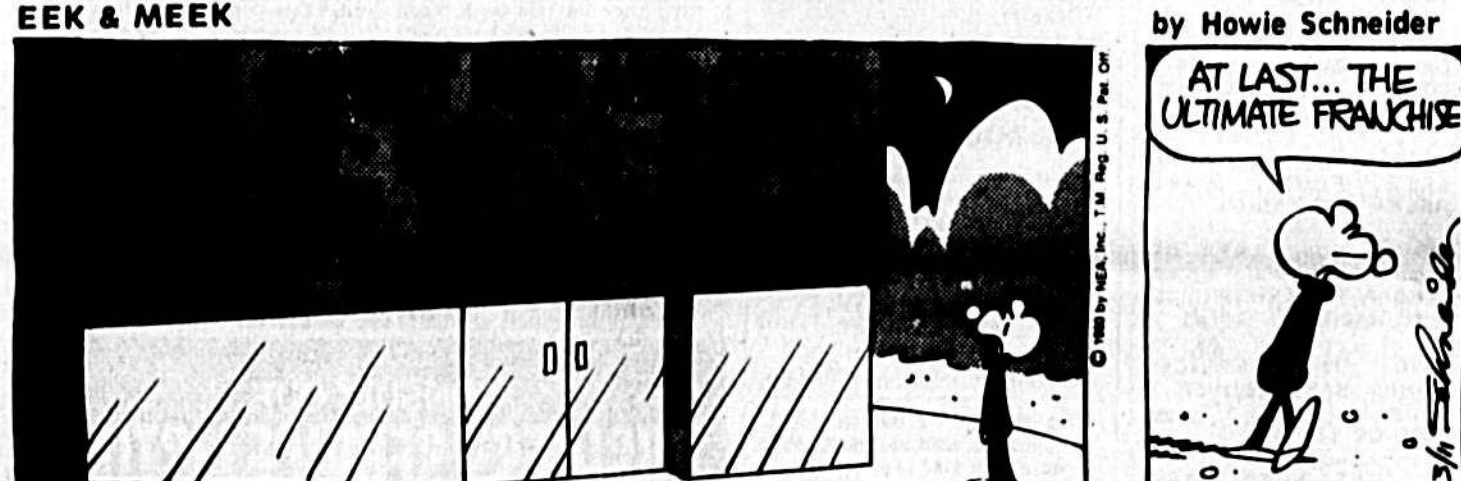

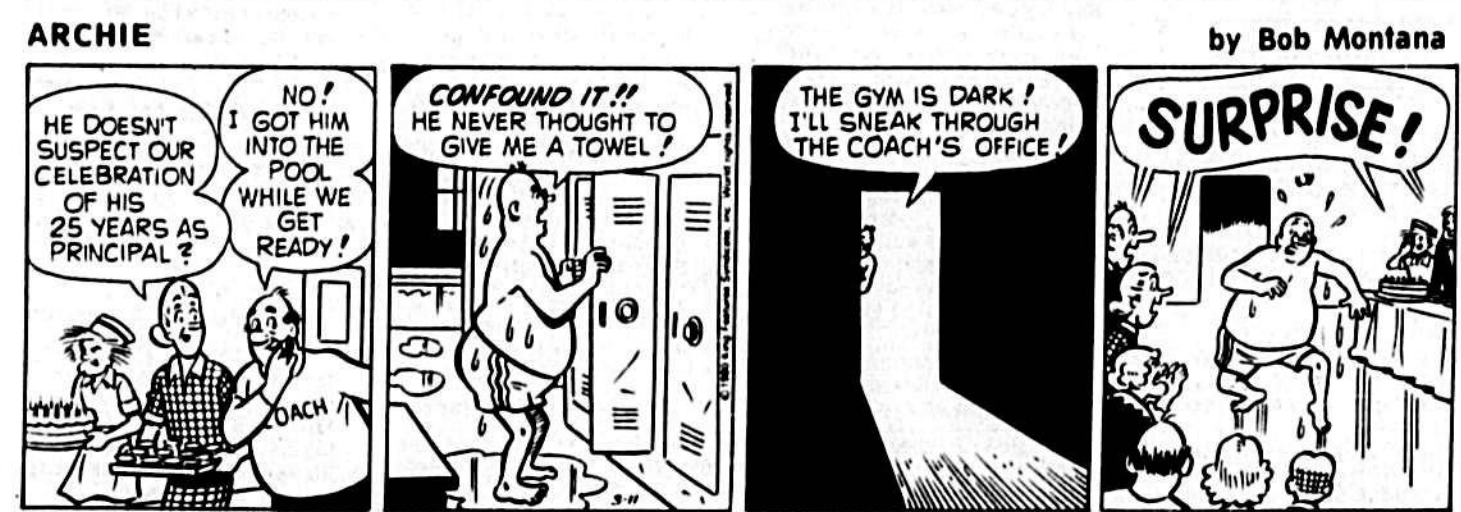

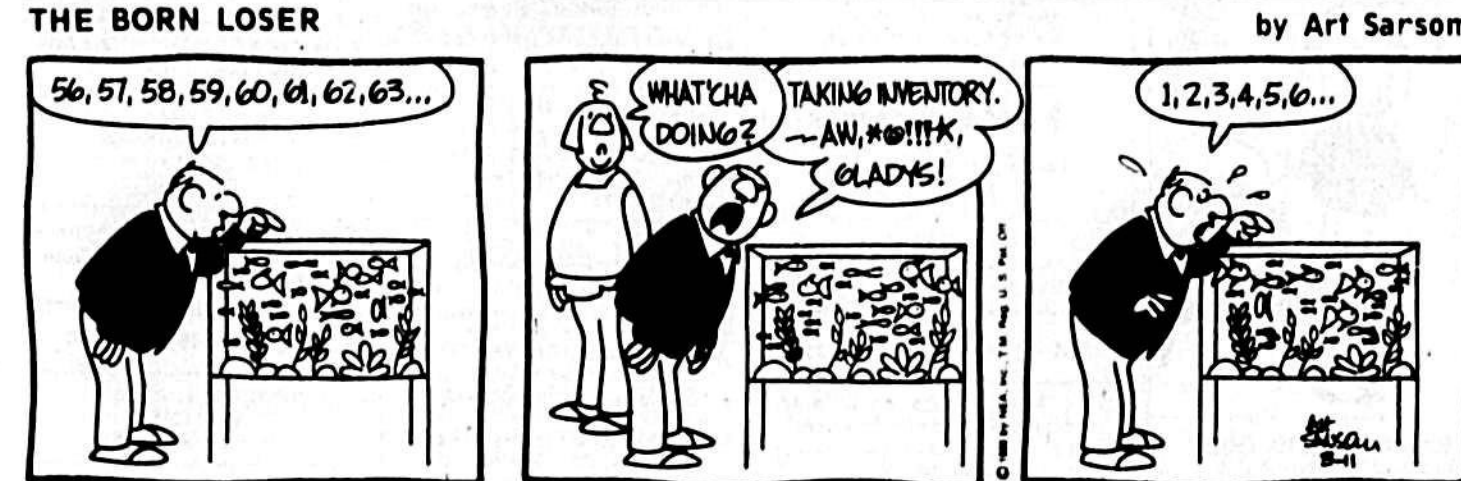

Auxiliary officers donate most of their services to the community, said Rotundo, explaining they are only paid when they provide security for school basketball and football games.

Applications are available from the Sanford Police Department on U.S. Highway 17-92.

Reagan, Carter Greeting Today

By MICHAEL O. FOWLER United Press International. Ronald Reagan's victory in the 1980 Florida presidential primary was total. He not only swamped his closest rival, George Bush, in the popular vote but swept the Republican delegates — the Bush campaign's biggest fear.

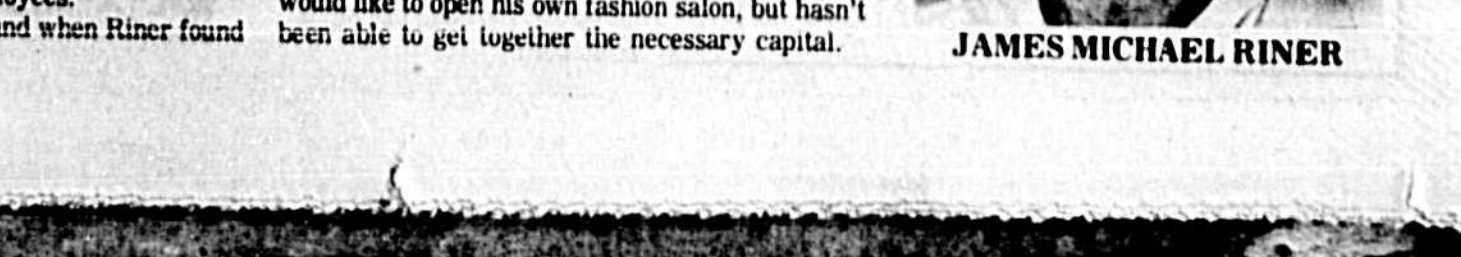

But President Carter's victory over Sen. Edward Kennedy contained elements that may give Kennedy hope as the campaign leaves "Carter country" and moves north.

But in the cosmopolitan congressional districts of South Florida — where the population can hardly be called "southern" — the president drew less than 50 percent of the vote.

But although precinct-by-precinct breakdowns are not yet available, the president's showing in South Florida is undoubtedly more complex than that.

The Kennedy camp saw the no preference vote as an indication of the president's unpopularity. Carter's aides said it meant that even people who didn't like the president couldn't stomach Kennedy.

Iran Oil Sent Here Despite Carter Ban. More Iranian oil was delivered to the United States this January than in January 1979, despite a presidential ban, according to an exclusive NBC news report.
