Lundquist Beats Spencer in Hard Fought Battle

(Continued From Page One) Green of that match Sunday, for it promises to be as interesting as the final. The winner will meet Lawrence Lundquist for championship honors for 1931.

The Spencer-Lundquist match was a nip and tuck struggle from the start. That they were both not up to their usual game was revealed by their scores of 85 each, Mr. Spencer having a card of 41 out and 42 in, while Mr. Lundquist had a card of 40 out, and 39 in. At the end of the first nine, Mr. Spencer was one up. He made it two up by scoring a birdie four on the tenth hole, but Mr. Lundquist evened the match again by taking the eleventh and twelfth holes. The next two holes were halved, and, for the first time during the round, Mr. Lundquist forged ahead by taking the fifteenth hole.

A lucky break aided Mr. Lundquist in winning that hole. His approach shot went over the green only to strike the back wall of a trap and bounce back to the green. Mr. Spencer's approach was just the opposite, the ball landing on the green and rolling into a trap. The sixteenth and seventeenth holes were halved, and Mr. Spencer had the last chance to even up the match on the eighteenth and last hole. He was unable to do so, but his opponent's four score, and took a five to lose the match, and the chance to play in the finals.

Both players scored long drives and exact putts, and there was little to choose from in picking the winner. Mr. Lundquist's victory was well-earned and Mr. Spencer went down before a worthy opponent. Play during the last six holes was tight to be sure, and on the last hole was dramatic, both players played silently and seriously.

Up To The People

I leave the American people to judge as to whether General Butler and myself. And I am satisfied to leave it to their verdict." Thus spoke Al Capone, Chicago's winter resident of Miami Beach, Florida. Thus spoke the Chicago racketeer, fall-bird, now under indictment and charged with violating income tax laws, listed Number One among Chicago's twenty-six "public enemies".

General Butler, the man between whom and Capone the American public is asked to choose, is the General Butler who has won such fame in the service of his country on a score of different battlefields that he has twice been awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor as well as the Distinguished Service Medal and, when he was sent to China during troublous times, a few years ago, so handled the situation that the Navy Department recently issued a book praising him for his peace-making efforts.

General Butler, who has a flare for saying things which provoke a retort, remarked in a speech in South Bend, Indiana, the other night that Capone and others of his type would be deported from this country whenever public opinion became sufficiently aroused against them. To this Capone replies that he is an American citizen and can't be deported, and then goes on to point out what a really excellent citizen he is. Daily he says in the streets of Chicago, he feeds between twenty and thirty thousand persons.

Granting that Butler is right, and that there is no reason to believe that it is his money that the charitable expenditure makes up for the illegal and immoral acquisition of his funds. Every cent of the money which Capone has made illegally, not alone in the operation of the biggest bootlegging ring in the history of this country but also in a vicious and demoralizing traffic in dope, women, and other peculiar rackets which compel dyers, tailors, laundries and other legitimate enterprises to contribute to his income at the risk of being bombed.

It may be, as Capone says, impossible to deport him since unfortunately he is an American citizen, but he will be placed in prison where he belongs, just as soon as the American public insists upon honest and efficient public officers, unless some rival gangster gets him first.

The Ninety Day Divorce Law

The coming session of the Florida Legislature will have many difficult problems to solve and we hope its members will not waste much time on the bill which Representative Bledsoe threatens to introduce and which would render Florida a mecca for divorce hunters. His plan would make it possible for non-residents to obtain a legal separation after living within the limits of the state for a period of ninety days. Most states, like Florida today, require two years. Only Nevada, with its ninety day law, requires less than one year.

The adoption of a divorce law similar to the Nevada legislation by Florida, the Tampa Tribune declares, "would be posting over its gates an invitation, confessedly mercenary in conception and design, to come here and obtain immunity from sane and protective statutes obtaining in other states. It would be saying virtually that Florida's attractions of climate, location, natural beauty, convenience, accessibility, hospitality, are not sufficient to draw to it visitors or residents from other states and sections—that it must resort to this illicit bait to catch the covetous and allure the immoral."

A confession which Florida is not willing or ready to make!

"Bona fide citizens of Florida may now obtain divorce on generally accepted grounds by due and decent process of law; and, when there is mutual consent, can obtain it expeditiously and without scandal mongering sensationalism. That is as far as our divorce law should go. We should not attempt to make easy and quick divorce one of the 'attractions' of this state. For one who would be attracted by this lure, thousands would be repulsed by its unavoidably offensive smell and its manifestly avaricious intent."

"Florida once figured in the divorce news of the nation to its everlasting discredit when its Legislature, upon motives which have always been subject to question, permitted, by special statute, a multi-millionaire to rid himself of the life-partner of his struggles to riches, because she had been the victim of misfortune and become insane. That incident brought to Florida a national obloquy which shamed the state for years. We want no more of that kind of notoriety."

"We hope Mr. Bledsoe will reconsider his intention. We feel confident that his bill would not be passed by a decent Legislature—and we believe the present Legislature is a decent one. If, however, it should be passed, and the inevitable should happen in its approval by the Governor, it would subject Florida to a disgrace which would harm the state immeasurably in the estimation of right-thinking people of all the world."

The divorce law has drawn to Reno mostly the scoundrel, the immoral, the criminal and the scandalously degenerate elements of society.

Nevada exchanged its pride, its decency, its self-respect, for this squalorous mess of phony and rotten divorce. Florida should not—and will not—lower itself to such depth of degradation."

TELLING THE WORLD

(In this week's chapter on etiquette, J. Herman Selditz answers questions from correspondents. Mr. Selditz is the male Really Post, by heredity. Sir Walter Raleigh was the man who took off his coat. So Queen Elizabeth stepped on. But Selditz was the first man to use a raccoon coat for a carolus rug. An ancestor of Mr. Truman B. Selditz was also the first man to offer his seat to a lady when he was in the electric chair. Another relative, Mrs. Minnie Selditz, was the first woman to change her name to Pallman to correspond with her great idea. So Mr. J. Herman Selditz is America's favorite expert by common and professional consent. He was the original man to bring down from an ancient book and demystify the meaning of the word 'etiquette' and was the first to clear up the confusion that came through my brain. Every question of propriety is unanswerable. Now if there are any other questions, I shall go on with the solutions.

"Dear Mr. Selditz—before reading your article on the wearing of etiquette. Now I am as much as you. Please explain the order of precedence in getting into lifts when a lady is waiting. I am thinking of going to Europe when I have my next eight coupons.

HERBERT COTTELL, Pleasanton, Nev.

In reply to Mr. Cotte I would say the correct order of getting into lifts is woman and child first, then the man, and lastly the porter. This is the correct order and is the only one that is correct. I am sure you will find this information of interest.

JOHN D. LIND, Pleasanton, Nev.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

The term "public enemy" has been applied to Al Capone, racketeer, who is now under indictment and charged with violating income tax laws, listed Number One among Chicago's twenty-six "public enemies".

Yet, merely calling the racketeer a "public enemy" seems inadequate. A thoroughly distinguished man might be called a "public enemy" if he were to apply to it the term "public enemy" of Wisconsin.

Certain it is, he is the "Old Man of Congress," an epithet have called him. There were genuine sentiment back of the distinction accorded him in the House a few days ago when he pleaded successfully to have a broad, city street in Washington designated "Constitution Avenue."

Mr. Cooper has been in Congress for thirty-four years. His service has not been continuous. He was one of those who opposed American participation in the World War. His Wisconsin constituency disapproved of him in 1918. He was out of the House for but one term.

As he is observed strolling about Washington, ever immaculate in a cutaway coat, he gives no surface indication of the firebrand he has been in American politics. He resides quietly in a room at a downtown hotel opposite the Treasurer Building. More often than not he walks to the Capitol. Going along with his head down, sometimes he talks with himself and shakes his head in emphasis of his meditative debates.

When he stood on the floor of the House in support of the McLeary resolution to warrant American agents against traveling on armed merchantmen in 1917 he was called for alleged pro-Germanism. He was the same man who presented, under the Kleig lights of the Republican national convention at Cleveland, the platform of Old Bob La Follette in 1924. Fighting the losing fight of which he was aware, he won the applause of the hard-boiled, hand-picked delegates who backed everything he advocated.

There were few among those Republican delegates who thought that Cooper was the same man who, with George Norris of Nebraska, had overthrown "Camp McKinley" in the House of Representatives fifteen years before. Neither Cooper nor Norris had permitted advancing years to dull their intelligence. Both are still as militant as ever. Both are still alive in contending for the things they believe to be right in government.

On one of the birthday celebrations they had for Uncle Joe Cannon in the House, Champ Clark of Missouri, then Speaker, did a graceful act. Clark called to the Speaker's rostrum and handed the gavel to Henry Allen Cooper as Speaker pro tempore for the exercises. The man most touched by it was Cannon, whom Cooper had dethroned.

It almost seemed that even as hardened a scrapper as Mr. Cannon would burst into tears when Cooper handed the gavel and an honored.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Illinois, the honored Mr. Cannon.

Mr. Cooper apparently has succeeded in his purpose to have a new street extending from the name of the Capitol to the approaches to the new Lincoln Memorial Bridge traversing the row of lately new Federal office buildings called "Constitution Avenue."

His plan for such a name has not survived of course. It was never in Congress could say what he said and not be accused of a political gesture.

"I believe" the crowd, long-voiced veteran told a congressional committee, "from a tradition of history that, next to the establishment of the Christian religion, the establishment of the United States is the most important event in the history of the world."

Yes, you're right. The crowd, long-voiced veteran told a congressional committee, "from a tradition of history that, next to the establishment of the Christian religion, the establishment of the United States is the most important event in the history of the world."

SENATE FOREIGN RELATIONS COMMITTEE

There was a little proposal to call the new street "Independence Avenue." That was a touch-off for the veteran, Bill, state leader.

"No one has a higher appreciation than I have for that great man," Mr. Cooper thought.

KATHERINE AND BILL—what fun it is to know them! They seem to get so much out of living. You met them just a little over a year ago—the week before they were married. Ten days later it gave you a pleasant glow of anticipation to receive the trim card telling you when they'd be "at home."

And today you got another card headed "Now we are three!" Bill's signature comes first, then Katherine's, and then—the guided, chubby

Papers Credited For Cigarette Sale Jump

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—The P. Lorillard Company profit of over 500 percent, registered during the depression year, is largely due, according to Lorillard officials, to greatly increased sales of their leading brand, Old Gold cigarettes. The Company reports that Old Gold sales showed an increase each successive month, throughout 1930. Old Golds are becoming a leading contender for first place in cigarette sales. Lorillard officials attribute the increasing sales to the continuous and large scale use of newspaper advertising.

While the tobacco industry fared better than others last year, the Lorillard sale represents the largest percentage increase in net earnings among the major tobacco companies; and this gain was accompanied by a three million dollar increase in sales and six million in cash on hand. Inventories were reduced by four million, and there was a million and a quarter reduction in bonded indebtedness.

Fashions in Women.. have changed

It used to be fashionable to be rapid about money matters. Women especially weren't supposed to understand them. Those who did pretended not to know or to get a husband's advice.

But the city little thing that was once the talk of the town a few years ago is now a common sight. The modern woman takes pride in getting her money's worth.

The fashionable women of today is a keen, shrewd buyer. She can pick a good bargain in a grocery store or her husband's car in his office. She's in the business of keeping house... And, more than that, she's a steady A & P customer.
