Sanford Youth Sues To Get In USAF

When 20-year-old Ronald (Major) Murray of Sanford was seven years old he suffered major burns to his hands, face, chest and thighs in a fire at his Miami area home which claimed the lives of four younger brothers and sisters.

Young Murray's burns were so severe, as a matter of fact, he reportedly sustained third degree burns over 30 percent of his body.

From that point in his life until this day, Murray and his relatives were determined to work hard to rehabilitate the youth so he could lead an active and normal life.

Two prime goals for Murray were graduating from high school and joining the U. S. Air Force over a strong desire to serve his country.

After some grueling years of hard work and physical exercise, it wasn't long before Murray was playing football, running track and lifting weights. In July, 1978, the determined youth achieved the first of his two goals: he was graduated from Seminole High School.

But, unless the federal courts come to his aid, he may never be able to join the Air Force and the U. S. Government of Defense have turned him down.

Since February, 1979 Murray has been trying to enlist in the Air Force, but after a long struggle, many hours of deliberation and congressional intervention, the defense department says he cannot meet the physical requirements for armed services, according to Air Force recruiters.

Today, Murray's stepfather, James Stubbs of 117 Anderson Ave., Sanford, said a prominent Miami lawyer, Ellis Rubin, will file a brief in U. S. District Court, Miami, this afternoon on Murray's behalf, charging the Air Force with racial discrimination. Murray is a black youth.

Stubbs claims during the past several months while young Murray was attempting to enlist in the Air Force, he, Stubbs, spoke with many "persons in the Air Force or who formerly were in the Air Force and they told me the Air Force now has a policy against taking anyone black in June, a black army sergeant recruiter came to my home and asked if Murray might want to join the army. I told him Murray already was trying to enlist in the air force. The sergeant asked me if didn't it seem odd that Murray took his exams in February and he had not been notified yet? He went on to say 'Right now the air force isn't taking blacks.'

The air force, however, has a different view of the situation. Air Force Sergeant Charles B. Russell with the Orlando area's recruiting office, said today he is upset that anyone would slur the air force by charging racial discrimination he denies exists.

"I know for a fact racial discrimination does not exist among our recruiters. If it did, those recruiters would be fired. We've gone for five years without any complaints, and now this."

Sergeant Russell, who said he is thoroughly acquainted with the Murray case, stressed that the air force's hands are tied.

"He (Murray) qualified for the air force through his written tests, mental and moral, and as far as we're concerned, he was also physically capable. However, physical examinations are conducted by and must be approved by the department of defense. In this case, it was their Jacksonville office which handled that aspect of his examination. And it was that office which has permanently disqualified him from entering any part of the armed forces, not just the air force."

Sergeant Russell said the defense department at first turned down Murray based on a doctor's letter describing the youth's physical condition.

"At that point, Mr. Stubbs was beginning to make claims of racial discrimination. So, I advised them to contact their congressman if they wanted to pursue it further."

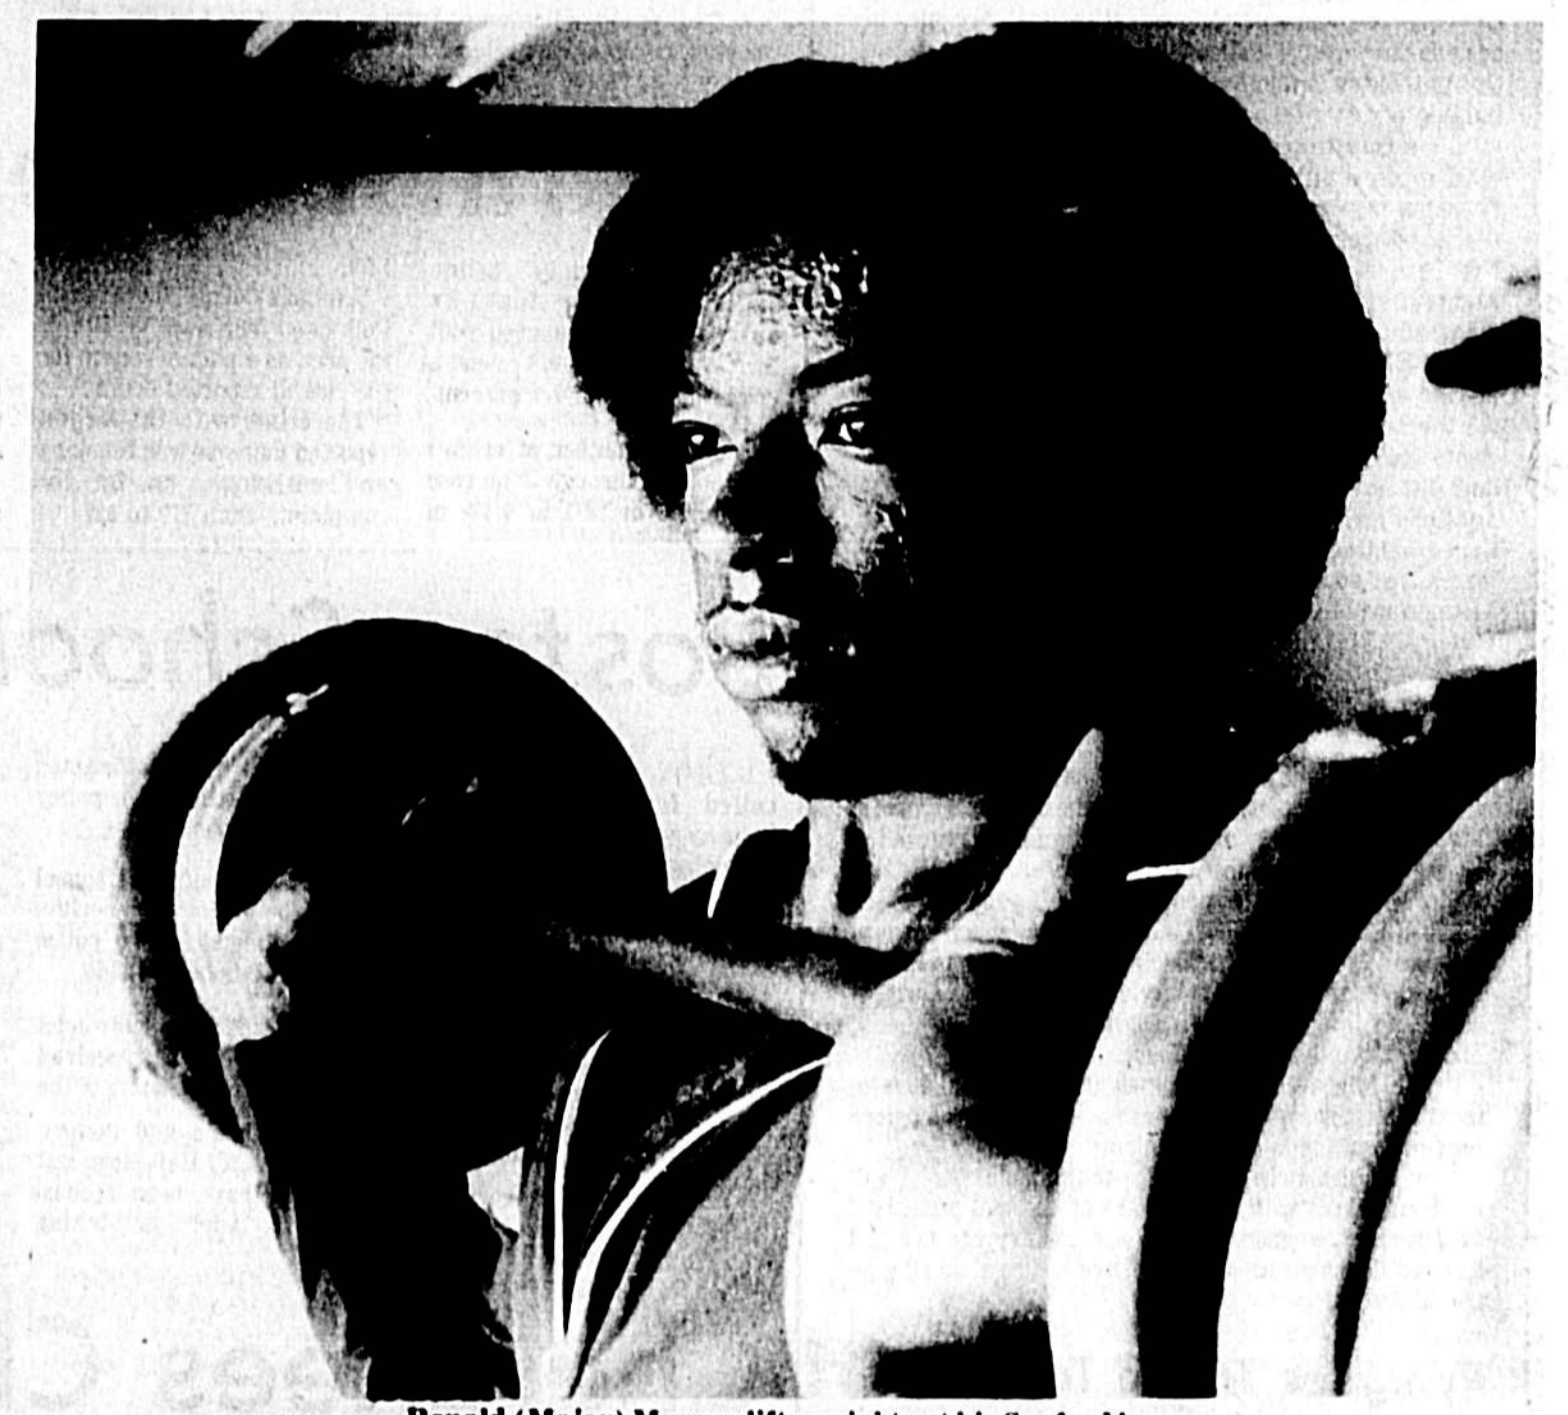

Stubbs said today they did pursue it and contacted U. S. Sen. Richard Stone. "Sen. Stone told me the air force couldn't do that; and that the rejection was illegal," Stubbs said.

Shortly after Sen. Stone got involved, someone in Washington contacted the defense department and ordered them to bring Murray to Jacksonville for a personal physical examination, rather than rely solely on the doctor's letter in deciding to reject him.

Stubbs is using as evidence of Murray's physical capabilities, letters from various doctors he has obtained to permit him to engage in athletics at the high school and for the air force recruiters. The letters, Stubbs said, confirm Murray is not handicapped despite the huge scars left from his burns.

Russell pointed out, however, the defense department may see it differently. "Some of the scar tissue on his arm is so thick, doctors were unable to inject a needle to get a blood sample," Stubbs said when Murray went to Jacksonville for the physical.

Jesse Bishop Goes 'Coolly' To Gas Chamber

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — Jesse W. Bishop, a professional gunman who bragged about his life of fancy cars, beautiful women and drugs, appeared all attempts to save him and coolly went to his death shortly after midnight today in the Nevada gas chamber.

It was disclosed shortly afterwards that Bishop may have been involved in 18 contract killings in addition to the one he was executed for.

Bishop was the second man executed in the United States this year and the third since the Supreme Court ordered stricter capital punishment laws in 1977.

His final words to state Prison Director Charles Wolf Jr. were, "This is one more step down the road of life that I've been heading for all my life."

Wolf called him "The Iceman" who was "tough as nails to the end."

Bishop was pronounced dead at 12:13 a.m. PDT, 15 minutes after the cyanide "leaves" were dropped into the acid causing the deadly fumes to rise under the metal chair he was strapped into at the shoulders, chest and arms.

During the execution, Bishop's body twitched, his head rose and fell several times to his chest, his eyes closed and his mouth came ajar. He took several deep breaths. After several minutes his body was motionless, except for an occasional shudder.

Believe the deadly pellets were dropped, Bishop, dressed in a newly turned white shirt, prison denim pants and white socks, looked each witness in the eye and nodded to his friend, reporter Mike Donahue of Las Vegas. He also waved his finger.

When he got his first whiff of gas, Bishop squinted and shrugged a smile. Rapid breathing followed, and then the body movements started.

"It may one thing for Bishop — he had a lot of guts right down to the end," said Mills Lane, a long-time Nevada prosecutor who witnessed the execution.

"He was cool as could be," said another witness, Tad Dunbar of KOLQ-TV in Reno.

"He looked each one of us in the eye and smiled slightly. Then he made a gesture with his hand as the pellets dropped in the acid. He took deep breaths as though deliberately trying to breathe in the fumes," said another witness.

Outside the prison, about 75 opponents of the death penalty held a candlelight vigil, and recited the Lord's Prayer together when they learned Bishop was dead.

"The state of Nevada has now declared to its own citizens and to the people of this country and of the world that the killing of a human being is an acceptable answer to a social problem," said Henry Schwarzschild, of the American Civil Liberties Union, which tried unsuccessfully right up to the end to win a legal delay of the execution.

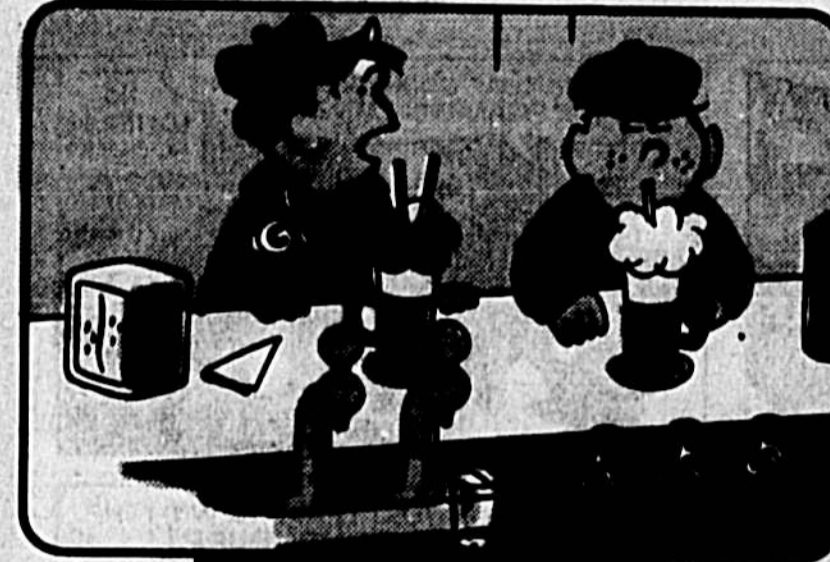

Bishop, who spent 20 of his 46 years in prison, was convicted of the fatal shooting of David Ballard of Baltimore, Md., during a casino robbery in Las Vegas that netted him $278,000.

Shortly after the execution, Nevada District Judge Paul Goldman of Las Vegas, one of the three judges who sentenced Bishop to death, disclosed he had talked to Bishop at the prison in August. He said Bishop then told him he had been involved in 18 contract killings, apparently involving narcotics.

Goldman quoted Bishop as saying 10 of the slayings took place in Southern California and six more in the Northeast.

No details of the alleged killings were immediately available.

Goldman said Bishop "showed some remorse" for the Ballard slaying, saying he had never been involved in anything like that.

● SUM NUMBER! Take a number — any number. Multiply by 3. Add 1. Multiply by 3 again. Add the number you first thought of. Cross out the right hand digit. Result is the number with which you began.

● Find the capital city of a European country in each sentence: 1. Papa Rino darty. 2. Her hero met his match. 3. October never was so pretty.

● Move the letter X to the other end of either group of letters and the other becomes the exact opposite of the other group: XYZ. XZY. Give it a try.

● Write-It-This! What did one hand say to the other? "Count on me." What kinds of desserts are installed by boat? Hum-dingers.

● High-Low T-Totals Five shaded numbers above form a T. Numbers of this five-number total 20. Of the numbers other T-shaped five-number in this diagram, some total more and some less. JERUSALEM (UPI) — Menachem Begin's surprise resignation as Israel's foreign minister threatened to spark a crisis today within Prime Minister Menachem Begin's patchwork coalition government.

Leaders of the opposition Labor Party and of minority parties called on Begin's resignation Sunday and called for the entire government to step down for new elections.

Begin temporarily assumed Begin's post and began efforts to find a successor to the 67-year-old minister, a party underling at last week's cabinet meeting.

Begin, 64, submitted a letter of resignation to the cabinet Sunday evening, but his resignation was not accepted until today.

"I am not doing what I would like to be doing and I don't want to do what I am doing — this is the only way out," Begin said in his resignation letter.

Begin said he was resigning because he was unable to secure the support of the cabinet for his proposal to return to his old post.

Begin's resignation was announced by the cabinet today. He is expected to return to his old post in the next few days.

Mob Prompts Extra Patrol

Sanford Police Chief Ben Butler said today he will "boof-up" patrols to the zone two area. A break-in Thursday night at Richard's Grocery, 1506 W. 13th St., exploded into five Sanford men being arrested and an officer being injured after an angry crowd flooded the business block.

Two burglary suspects, Willie Johnson and Tony Dwight McGill were arrested after leaving the scene along with Albert Thompson, and Edgar Olive Gathers for disorderly conduct and Clarence Noble for disorderly intoxication.

Gathers had charges of resisting arrest with violence and battery on a law enforcement officer added after Darrel Brewer was struck on the head with what Butler thinks was a brick. Brewer had just a headache from the injury Saturday morning, Butler said.

Butler said a hostile crowd scene like what occurred Thursday had happened three times since January in the zone two area, enclosed by Seminole Boulevard to 13th Street and Perimeter Avenue to First Street.

On Friday, Butler assigned five additional cars to the zone and he said there will be added patrols in the future. He said there has been "a lot of complaints from merchants and people who live in the area." Parents are afraid to let their small children out, according to Butler.

The zone has been routinely patrolled but Butler said it is not enough protection. He said Monday he did not know exactly how much increased police work will be concentrated in zone two area but will meet with his officers this week and decide.

Brown Ignoring The Cuba Reality

Whatever else may be said about California Governor Brown's qualifications for the presidency of the United States, to which office he currently aspires, his understanding of foreign affairs has not been considered a strong suit.

Perhaps it was an effort to shore up this deficiency that prompted Mr. Brown's bold lunge into the international thickets during a nationally televised interview recently.

What the United States should do about Cuba, the governor opined, is to restore full diplomatic relations. He criticized the inconsistency of the Carter administration for having ambassadors in China and the Soviet Union but not in Cuba. He questioned why we should sell wheat to the Russians and boycott the Cubans. He said he decided to expound these views, which he held for some time, because of President Fidel Castro's recent visit to the United Nations in New York.

This is vintage Brown: An appealing, readily understood, and seemingly reasonable point of view that neatly undercuts the opposition while conveniently ignoring realities.

The realities are that President Carter, in his futile flirtation with the Third World, offered Cuba the olive branch and went further toward normalization than any U.S. president since diplomatic relations were severed in January, 1961. Havana has rebuffed these overtures with increasingly militant revolutionary programs abroad and stepped-up, anti-American invective.

Actually, it is not well remembered now that Fidel Castro led President Eisenhower little recourse but to break relations. The Castro regime presided over the execution of some 600 political enemies, jailed thousands of others, supported invasions of other Latin American nations, seized all American-owned assets in Cuba and, finally, demanded the U.S. embassy staff be reduced to 11 persons.

During the intervening years, Cuba has moved deeper into the Soviet orbit, as the world knows. It provides a base for Russian submarines, warplanes and combat troops. Moreover, Cuba is the Communist vanguard for subversion and violent revolution throughout the Western Hemisphere.

These adversary aspects with Cuba are particularly appalling for the United States because of the long, historic relationship existing between the two countries and the territorial imperative that Cuba, by its proximity, invokes.

But these important considerations aside, there is an even more compelling reason why the United States should not recognize the Castro government at this time, even though this policy is at dramatic variance with that being followed toward other Communist nations. As President Carter emphasized in an Illinois town meeting recently, Cuban troops are actively engaged in imperialistic adventures in Africa and elsewhere and serve as the cutting edge of the Soviet Union's reach for world dominion.

For the United States to recognize Cuba without any concessions in return, as Gov. Brown suggests, could not but lend American sanction to Cuba's foreign intervention and to the Soviet-Cuban embrace. It would invite world contempt for U.S. foreign policy, already scored for its confusion and weakness.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Do your parents ever sound like Kleesinger and Frost?"

Around

The Clock

By JOE DeSANTIS

Some interesting match-ups loom right around the corner as the Five-Star Conference football season enters the last three weeks of play before the district playoffs.

The Seminoles' Triple faces two of its traditionally toughest rivals.

This Friday Jerry Pomey takes his Fighting Seminoles to the campus of the unpredictable Lake Howell Silver Hawks.

Then after a trip to Winter Haven the Triple returns for a pair of matches that will definitely figure in the outcome of the conference championship.

Seminole's last two games of the year are against explosive Lyman on November 9th and a return grudge match against Lake Brantley on November 16. You may recollect that Brantley whipped the Seminole on the final night of the season last year for the conference crown.

Another interesting clash down the road is the previously undefeated Oviedo Lions match up against Lake Howell on November 2.

There's no love lost between these two back yard rivals and a packed house is expected at the Lions home field.

Couch Don Jones and his fiery understated U.C.F. Knights face their biggest hurdle in chalking up their maiden season this weekend when they meet nationally ranked Presbyterian College on Saturday, October 27.

The contest will be played in Clinton, South Carolina.

The fledgling Knights will have to stop the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletic Conference defending champions who have 14 returning letterman.

Speaking of timely topics, it's difficult to understand why Joe Montgomery's Oviedo Lions are still sitting in the "also receiving votes" of the state class 5A football poll this week.

Monty's troops have run their win streak to 6-0 and averaged over 30 points per game.

That win streak also includes two shutouts but the Lions sit behind two teams with one loss and another team with two losses that are ranked in the top 10.

A good head knocker is on tap tomorrow night when Lyman's undefeated freshman squad pays a visit to Seminole High at 7:30 to tackle once beaten Cronin.

This one should definitely decide the top freshman team in the county.

Pelican State Politics

AMITE, La. (NEA)—With a gubernatorial campaign in its final frenzied weeks Louisiana is once again demonstrating that they prefer their politics the way they take their chiro-based coffee—thick, strong and steamy hot.

First there's the state's unique mosaic of ethnic, religious, racial, political and geographic diversity.

In the bayou country sprawling south of Lafayette to the Gulf of Mexico are the Acadian parishes, where French is spoken almost as frequently as English and virtually all of the residents are Roman Catholic.

At the western end of Acadiana lies the New Orleans metropolitan area, a world apart from Cajun country—and other rural areas of Louisiana—by virtue of its status as the feared (if not despised) "big city."

To the north of the city and Lake Ponchartraine lie the Florida parishes, whose political conservatism stands in contrast to New Orleans' liberalism. Sprawling from Alexandria north to the Arkansas border is heavily Baptist North Louisiana.

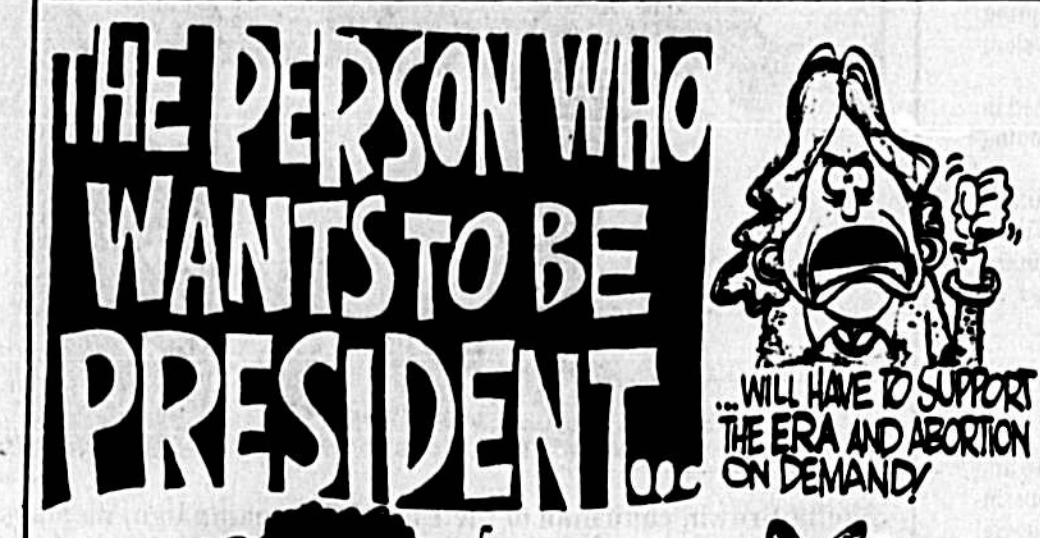

Then there's the state's tradition of playing politics according to rules that never will be enforced by Common Cause or the League of Women Voters.

Former Democratic Rep. Richard A. Torry was packed off to a federal prison two years ago after he pleaded guilty to charges of accepting illegal campaign contributions. Rep. Claude "Buddy" Leach, also a Democrat, faces trial soon on 30 federal charges of vote fraud.

A state senator has just been sentenced to a six-year prison term and is being convicted on extortion charges, a federal grand jury is investigating the state's Agriculture Department and the federal prosecutor in Baton Rouge is probing vote-buying among black groups.

Democratic Gov. Edwin Edwards remains the state's most popular political figure, even though he admitted three years ago that his wife received a $10,000 gift from South Korean rice dealer Tougan Park.

A state senator has just been sentenced to a six-year prison term and is being convicted on extortion charges, a federal grand jury is investigating the state's Agriculture Department and the federal prosecutor in Baton Rouge is probing vote-buying among black groups.

LIGHTER SIDE Best Of Helpful Hints

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Originally published privately, but now available in a commercial edition, a book called "The Best of Helpful Hints" has sold more than a half-million copies.

The success demonstrates how desperate folks are for advice on how to cope with whatever it is they are up against.

Included in the collection are spreads of 1,000 hints and that, mind you, includes only the "best." The number of calls (second-rate, or semi-helpful hints) probably runs into the millions.

The energy field alone generates tips by the hundreds. Hardly a day passes that I don't come across a new list of conservation hints, most recently one compiled by a firm of travel consultants.

It contained 11 energy-saving suggestions of which the most ingenious probably was no. 10: When petting a self-service station, that one advised, "avoid gasoline spillages at the pump."

"How dry isn't I think of that?"

The passage of time has brought two more states into the union and a recent contemporary sophistication to a more-oriented gubernatorial campaign that probably will cost the candidates more than $2 million.

A tip that might give some people the impression that we have reached the other fringe of energy conservation—that there aren't many ways to save fuel that haven't already been published. But such is by no means the case.

America still has vast reserves of fuel-saving tips, though by some estimates to last well into the 21st Century. It's a matter of digging them up and bringing them to public attention.

Here are a couple I recently discovered without even trying hard:

—If you drive to work, or school, or wherever you are going, park the car 400 feet from your destination and walk the rest of the way.

—If your office is on the 10th floor, take the elevator only as far as the 7th floor.

Efficiency is the key. Consumers who tailor their daily lives to make the most of their time also will find it to make more of their time to save energy.

Here are a trio of time-saving tips that can be used to good advantage:

—When writing letters, sign only your first name.

—Save time on your lunch hour. Don't pay the check.

—Once you get into the car, you will find that it is just as easy to do things crisply and with minimum energy expenditure as it is to dawdle in your old sleepy habits pattern, such as spilling gasoline when you stop at a self-service pump.

As you can see, this gets to be big business.

VIEWPOINT

Mint's Retail Aspect

By WILLIAM STEIF

John Wayne died June 11 and Jimmy Carter still owes his family a gold medal.

Shortly before he died Congress ordered that a gold medal, inscribed "John Wayne American," be struck for him. Wayne died before the medal was finished. But the U.S. Mint now has the medal and the president is to present it to Wayne's family, no doubt on a "suitable occasion."

The Mint, meantime, went ahead and created bronze reproductions of Wayne's gold medal in 1/2 inch and one-and-five-sixteenths-inch sizes. They're exact duplicates of the Wayne medal and they're selling like crazy. More than 36,000 of the large bronze medals already have been ordered, more than 35,000 of the small one.

The large medal sells for $2.32 by mail order, the small one for $1.10. The Wayne bestseller is No. 957 on the Mint's list of medals. Once the mail orders are filled you'll be able to buy the Wayne medal over-the-counter at sales offices in the Philadelphia and Denver Mints, in the San Francisco Mint and at the Treasury Department's main building in Washington.

The Wayne medal is only one of hundreds you can buy if you're into medal collecting. There are bronze medals for every president, in large and small sizes, plus a small-sized, gold-washed medal that can be hung on a plain gold necklace or even a charm bracelet.

There are medals for Army and Navy heroes, historic events and buildings, Treasury secretaries, Supreme Court chief justices, evangelists of the Mint. Mail order prices range from $1.10 to $12.32, depending on the metal, size and design.

Normally, says a Mint spokesman, "we'll sell 40,000 large medals a year, 600,000 small ones. But this year will be bigger, thanks to the John Wayne medal."

The medals are the smaller part of the Mint's retail business. The larger chunk is for the nation's several million coin-collectors.

The Mint's San Francisco computer has 11 million names to whom order cards are sent when all ready-made and engraved coins are sold out over-the-counter.

Basically, there are two kinds of offerings: all ready-made and engraved in plastic. Double struck means that each side of the coins is struck twice in the press; that doesn't happen to ordinary circulating coins, but also circulates through dollar stores.

These are single-struck and represent coins offered for circulation during the year.

You can't order either of these sets until the Mint formally announces it's ready to sell them.

Now, late in the year the Mint normally designs a cutoff date after which orders will be accepted. The proof sets "cutoff" usually is the 1st of December. The regular sets are $1 million uncirculated coins set in last approaching. Also $1 million uncirculated coins set in last approaching. Also $1 million uncirculated coins set in last approaching.

As you can see, this gets to be big business.

Did d'Estaing Hush Up Nuns' Murders?

WASHINGTON—French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing is already in "hot spots" over charges that he accepted donations from the Rev. John J. O'Connell, a prominent New York-based cleric who is once again the Central African Republic.

What may get d'Estaing even deeper in the hotspots is his friendly relationship with the Rev. O'Connell, however. The Rev. O'Connell has been covering up the murder of two French nuns by the Soviet police in the military junta that has taken power in the Central African Republic.

One source told me that d'Estaing never made this information to a high Argentine official last June that the two men, who were arrested by Argentine security agents about two years ago, were in fact dead. Yet O'Connell made this information public, despite the fact that the nuns' disappearance was a "mass culture" in the French press.

The Rev. O'Connell and his wife, Marie, were arrested in Argentina last June and were held in a prison in Buenos Aires for about two years. They were then released and returned to the United States. The Rev. O'Connell is now in the Central African Republic, where he is reportedly helping to organize a military government.

It is reported that the Rev. O'Connell is now in the Central African Republic, where he is reportedly helping to organize a military government.

about their missing sons and daughters. Two days later, Sister Lucile was abducted.

Despite repeated inquiries from Catholic church authorities and the French government, there was no word from the Argentine government about the whereabouts of the nuns. The Rev. O'Connell was reported to have been in the Central African Republic, where he is reportedly helping to organize a military government.

Official government records show that from 1960 to 1977, France paid only $90 million in military equipment to Argentina. But from early 1977 to early 1978, French munitions makers sold a total of $400 million worth of armaments to Argentina.

Further, a French Embassy spokesman in Washington told me that Argentine Gen. Gory Olan, a high Argentine official, had informed the French government—officially—that the two nuns were probably dead. But he insisted that he had no evidence to back up his claim.

When it comes to turning a blind eye, after the United States cut off arms shipments to Argentina because of the dictatorship's atrocious record of human rights, France served in the Central African Republic.

Buccaneers Whip Pack 21-3

By United Press International With the NFL's regular season at the halfway mark, it seems some of the perennial playoff representatives may have a more difficult time reaching that post-season goal than originally anticipated.

Take the Minnesota Vikings, who have been the NFC Central champions the past six years. With Fran Tarkenton retired, the Vikings have fallen on trying times.

For another score to help the Buccaneers snap a two-game losing streak, Tampa Bay's defense held Green Bay to just 38 yards rushing in 24 attempts.

Three straight games as the San Diego Chargers cruised to a 46-18 triumph. The Rams, who were barred 30-14 last week by Dallas, committed eight turnovers to make things easy for the explosive Chargers.

100 yards rushing. The Eagles, who dropped a 17-7 decision to Washington Sunday, made the playoffs last year and would like nothing more than to dethrone the Cowboys.

Giants 21, Chiefs 17 All-Pro middle linebacker Harry Carson returned a Mike Williams fumble 23 yards for the winning TD with 1:43 left in the game to give New York its third straight victory, the longest winning streak by the Giants since 1971.

Raiders Look Extra Tough In '79

By JOE DeSANTIS Herald Sports Editor First In A Series

Seminole Community College basketball fans can look forward to a lot of big numbers on the scoreboard this season. The Raiders are loaded with experienced sophomores back from last season's 16-16 squad and pose a very solid threat to another conference championship and possible Junior College State Title.

After averaging just under 10 points a contest as a freshman, 6-4, 170-pound Steve Campbell looks to be one of the Raiders starting wings. The Boone High graduate impressed recruiters last year with his dandy shooting and Sterling feels improved defensive play from Campbell will land the sophomore a scholarship opportunity this year.

Another sophomore who figures to see plenty of action this year is Mike Robertson at 6-4, 167 pounds. The Northside High (Lafayette, La.) graduate played a key role as the Raider's number six man last year and can get things going in a hurry.

Just 18 years old, Sterling feels Robertson will improve a lot this season and could be a real find for a four year school. Another of Sterling's local graduates is 6-4, 162 pound freshman Everett Harner.

Joe Sterling; 29 Years And 613 Career Victories

By JOE DeSANTIS Herald Sports Editor

M. success is measured simply by win-loss records, then Seminole Community College basketball coach Joe Sterling certainly qualifies as a success.

After sitting out last year before enrolling at S.C.C. Harner should give the Raider's good back strength at forward. Local fans will remember David Craig from his Seminole High days.

When you have players for just two years you have to learn things fast, that's a credit to the players.

Philadelphia Woman Beheaded

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Two Philadelphia men are being held without bail for a hearing on charges they beheaded a Philadelphia woman with two swords and a machete.

Police said Sunday that Melvin White, 24, the father of the dead woman's son, and Gregory Tarkenton, 19, were charged with the murder.

White was standing naked on his front porch holding the head of Lynn Smith, 22, in his hand when police arrived there Saturday afternoon, homicide detectives said.

White refused to surrender, police said. He dropped the head on the porch and ran inside. Police entering the house found Ms. Smith's headless body, the left arm partially severed, and the weapons.

Police said White and Tarkenton were arrested without resistance inside the house. They were being held without bail in the Philadelphia Detention Center to await a preliminary hearing Wednesday.

Ms. Smith had gone to the house to retrieve Duane, 2, after a visit with his father. When she walked inside, according to police, Tarkenton allegedly hit her several times with the machete, then used the two swords to sever her head.

Police said the child was not hurt.

Arraignment In Stranglings

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Hillside Strangler who terrorized women in the Hollywood Hills area for five months in 1977 and 1978 allegedly was arraigned today. Buono was told a judge they did.

The two men — Kenneth Bianchi and Angelo Buono — were to be arraigned today on 25 charges of rape, sodomy and murder.

They also faced pimping and pandering charges accusing them of getting into the prostitution business, including selling a girl younger than 18, before turning to sex killings.

Bianchi confessed to two similar killings and five of the 10 stranger slayings in a Bellingham, Wash., courtroom Friday, breaking into sobs and promising to help "get Angelo Buono."

Bianchi was transferred under heavy security to Los Angeles Sunday to be arraigned early today. Buono was to be arraigned in the afternoon.

The killings were called "the hillside stranglings" because most of the bodies were dumped on hillsides in the Hollywood and Glendale areas.

At one point, the strangling victims numbered 13, but police said that since Bianchi began confessing, they discounted three of the deaths as the work of the "Stranglers," and are reopening the hunt for other slayers.

Getting College Education Is Better Late Than Never

DEAR ABBY: For the 34-year-old woman who thought she was "too old" to go back to college: I never had a chance to even start college until I became a widow at 62. I started by taking one course a semester. Now I'm taking four courses! I am always the oldest person in my class, but I don't mind at all. Instead of making fun of me because I'm old enough to be my classmates' grandmothers, they all treat me with respect and make me feel welcome.

I am now starting my second year in college, and hope to graduate when I reach 70.

67 IN MAINE
 DEAR ABBY: Last year at the commencement exercises at Grammont College in La Moine, Calif., my family filled the entire first row of the auditorium. The occasion: my great-nephew Minerva's graduation from junior college! Aunt Minerva was 72—the oldest graduate that school ever had. It was a remarkable feat, considering she had stopped her education in the eighth grade nearly 50 years earlier.

When they called Aunt Minerva's name, the entire audience stood up and applauded her.

Who says you can't go back to school at 35, or even 70? Education is a never-ending process, and if you start late—so what? Better late than never.

KEVIN TVEDT: PROUD NEPHEW

DEAR ABBY: When my grandmother got her B.S. degree two years ago she was 69. Her great-grandson (then 12) said, "Gee, that's a funny thing to get a degree in!"

MINNESOTA READER

DEAR ABBY: I became physically disabled at 46, so I looked around for something I could do at home. I enrolled in college at 46 as a music major, received an associate degree at 48, a bachelor's degree at 50 and made the National Dean's List at 56. I made a 4.0 average in my senior year, and taught myself to play electric bass and pedal steel guitar. I formed a country band and played weekly at rest homes. I write country songs as a hobby, and maybe one of these days I will actually have a song recorded. I strongly refer to "rust out."

LARRY IN KILLEEN, TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: I earned my first college degree at 64, and I'm still going strong. I take as many courses as I think I can handle. The challenge keeps me going and I love to learn. I may never graduate, but I'll continue to learn.

L.M.W. IN FORT MYERS, FLA.

For Tuesday, October 23, 1979

YOUR BIRTHDAY
October 23, 1979

This coming year is an excellent time to acquire new knowledge and expand your creativity because, when you do, lucky things will begin to happen more often than you can believe. You should be afraid to test your mettle.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be sure you look at your problems today as they really are and not through rose-colored glasses. It'll do you more harm than good to kid yourself. Find out more about yourself by sending for our copy of Astro-Crash Letter which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each Astro-Crash, Box 488, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10101. Be sure to specify birth date.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21) It is a time of love, energy and money to overcome. You may be involved in a project today to try to have a good time. Happiness cannot be bought. It can only be won. Using executive salary to win someone over will have an effect opposite to what you expect. Be sure to complete and you'll have a chance.

LEO (July 20-Aug. 23) You need to be somewhat watchful where money is concerned today. Take care that you don't spend needlessly to make an impression.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 19) Don't believe everything you hear today. Other people's comparisons could put you in a depressed mood for no reason.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) If you trust anxiety today you could place yourself in a vulnerable position. Don't comply with just anybody who happens along.

Librium Dependence? See A Psychiatrist

DEAR DR. LAMB—At 33 years of age I run three miles a day, play tennis and am in good health. I'm considered optimistic, enthusiastic and I'm rarely ill. I have a physical every year. I'm 5 foot 9 at 183 pounds and really enjoy life. I hold an executive position of responsibility but for the past 15 years I've been on 25 milligrams of Librium every day. During vague symptoms brought this original prescription on. I've gone without it for a week and the symptoms are accentuated. I have regularly missed taking Librium on two nights a week without any problem. No one can tell outwardly whether I'm taking it or not.

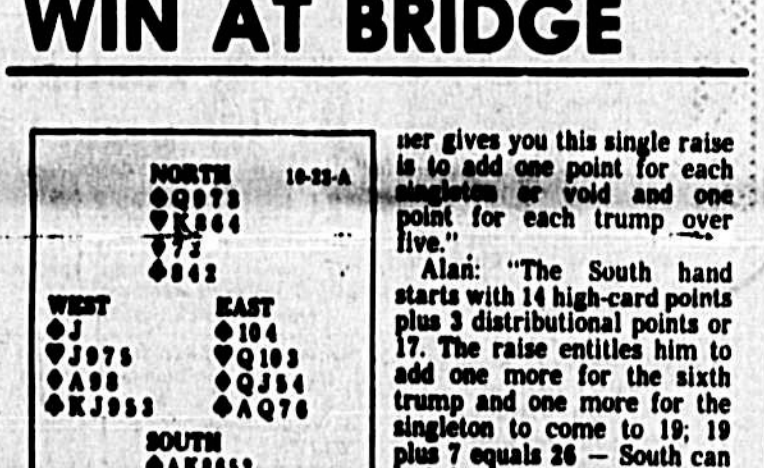

I feel guilty that it's necessary for me to take Librium at all. Each year I ask my doctor and claim it's necessary for me with my daily problems. I'm beginning to believe him but I don't want to. I do not drink or smoke and take care of my body with as much vigor as I can. Obviously, I'm not taking care of my mind in some way and I would love to be relieved of the need to take this Librium. Would you, at this point in time, suggest the involvement of a psychologist? My doctor has never suggested this.

DEAR READER: Why not ask your doctor to refer you to a psychiatrist? People see a best specialist just to make sure their heart functions as well as possible. We have golf pros to test to improve our best game, lawyers to help us with our legal and business problems so why not see a specialist in mental and emotional functions to get the most out of life? A consultation with a psychiatrist certainly isn't going to hurt you and with a few visits he could tell rather clearly whether you really have any problems that warrants any further professional counseling. A person who has been taking Librium for a long time usually will feel some symptoms when he withdraws from it. The severity of the symptoms will depend on a lot of factors, but a person has been taking it, is good medicine for people who need it. There are proper places for use of most of these medicines but I must say that I prefer that these not be used on a long-term basis. It's much better to resolve the problem that requires a tranquilizer rather than try to mask its effect with tranquilizers or other medicines. I'm glad that you're not using alcohol. Most of the tranquilizers and alcohol have an additive effect. The combination can be very dangerous. The other question I'd have about you is how much coffee, tea, cola or any other beverages you use. Many people who have anxiety-type symptoms get them because they use too much coffee. Caffeine is a brain stimulant and has the opposite effect of such tranquilizers as Librium. In a person who has the coffee habit, rather than taking tranquilizers of any kind, it's much better to stop the coffee, tea, colas and any other beverages.

Ex-Shah Of Iran Ill... Cancer Is Suspected

NEW YORK (UPI)—The exiled shah of Iran flew from Mexico to New York City Monday night to undergo "extensive medical examinations" at the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center. A spokesman for the deposed monarch said today. A hospital spokesman said the shah was admitted to the Manhattan hospital at 11 p.m. EDT and was listed in "serious condition." He said the shah was put to bed on arrival at the hospital and would undergo diagnostic tests later today. Appearing ill and having trouble walking, Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi arrived at LaGuardia Airport in a chartered jet at 10:30 p.m. EDT. Accompanied by a woman believed to be his wife, Empress Farah, about a dozen aides and two Doberman pinschers, the shah got into a limousine that was part of a 12-car motorcade and was taken to the hospital.

Private security guards ringed the three rooms that he, his family and his staff members were occupying in the George F. Baker Pavilion that is used for patients paying for private rooms. Robert F. Arno, senior adviser to the shah, said in a statement the shah "has come to the United States to undergo extensive medical examinations at New York Hospital." "The shah and members of his family are optimistic that the outstanding medical care available in the United States will diagnose his ailment and provide a cure." "The shah will not make any public statements, nor will he hold any news conferences," he said. "For now, he has authorized me to say that he is grateful to President Carter and the United States government for making him welcome." The spokesman said the shah will undergo blood and urine tests, X-rays, "everything the hospital lab can test will be."

He declined to identify the name of the hospital's physician who was directing care for the shah "at the request of the family." State Department spokesman David Passage in Washington said the shah was "quite" ill and workers at LaGuardia airport said he "looked weak" and walked in a slow shuffle to a waiting Mercedes at the airport. "I'm under the clear impression," Passage said, "that there's been a significant deterioration in the shah's health in recent days..." The Iranian government has information the exiled shah is suffering from terminal cancer, the Foreign Ministry said today. A shah aide promptly denied the claim. "Ibrahim Mokalla, official spokesman of the ministry, told UPI: "We have information that he (the shah) is suffering from terminal cancer."

He did not say how the government received its information. There was no immediate confirmation from other sources and a spokesman for the shah in New York denied the report. "I can make a safe guess that they have gotten the information from an unreliable source," he said. The shah's light-colored plane, a two-engine Grumman Gulf Stream jet chartered from Avions B.C., an executive charter airline out of Mexico City, landed in the western section of LaGuardia Airport under cover of darkness. Police officials said the arrival was "privately arranged" by the shah. Bill Stauffer, a ramp man for Butler Aviation, which services private jets, directed the plane to the end of "Taxiway Bravo." "He (the shah) got off with what I guess was his wife, a pretty looking lady, smiled and pumped a few hands and spoke in Iranian."

Wants County To Pay

Longwood Sues For Sidewalks

By JANE CASSELLBERRY
Herald Staff Writer
County Commissioner Sandra Glenn went to Longwood Monday night to urge participation in sidewalk construction on County Road 427. When she finished, the City Commission voted 4-1 to build the sidewalks at the city limits and ran along County Road 427 to Milwee, through an unincorporated area.

City residents who pay county taxes aren't. "Can we give back the right-of-way?" asked Commissioner Ray Leibnaperger. "We are entitled to every benefit for those living outside the city," he added in seconding the motion by Commissioner J.R. Grant to build the sidewalks and sue the county. Shaken by the turn of events, City Administrator David Mitchell cautioned, "We are going to have to put out money for sidewalks, not lawsuits—there is no money in the budget for that." Mitchell joined in voting for the motion, while Mayor June Lormann cast the only no vote.

"It is the county policy that the only time it can participate in sidewalk construction is after the school committee of the school board rules that a hazard exists," Mrs. Glenn said. "The school board safety committee has never seen a sidewalk hazard yet," she said, Leibnaperger's response. "Get a definitive cost, determine where the money comes from later," he added, "and have Dave (Chace) get a firm construction estimate."

It has been estimated it will cost approximately $10,000 to build a sidewalk from Lake Avenue to Milwee School, with the exception of the portion in front of Lyman High School. Chace said he would obtain three bids for the project the next council meeting on Nov. 12. Grant said he would like to see if the city could get CETA (Comprehensive Education Training Act) help for the project. "During the budget hearings I was satisfied there was $200,000," pointed out Longwood resident Jimmy Rose. "The money is in the bank. Let's spend the money. I don't think anybody in this county can find a more equitable use of the money than the anticipated daily trip generation of the approved use and will be computed at the rate of $20 per trip generation. For the purpose of this resolution the place where sidewalks are being built for a school."

"The county cannot construct sidewalks on city right-of-way." Commission Caps Hydrants, Tables Bicycle Path Plan

By DONNA REYER
Herald Staff Writer
The feud continues between Seminole County and the city of Sanford over maintenance of fire hydrants connected to city water lines in county territory outside the city limits. The Sanford city commissioners Monday night voted unanimously to remove and cap off a fire hydrant at Sand Avenue and Palmwood after City Engineer-Library Director Mack Lashley reported the hydrant is leaking and needs to be removed or repaired. "It's a tickle situation," said Acting Mayor Julian Armstrong. He said the city had the county some years ago the city would maintain the fire hydrant in county territory for $6 per year per hydrant. "But the county told us to stick it in our ear," he said. "The county said it would do it at that time to keep the hydrants in the county in use as long as they remained in operable condition and to review the situation as such hydrant became unrepairable. Lashley noted that hydrants within the city limits such as the one in Palmwood would be replaced under conditions of a maintenance agreement with the city's fire department. There is no such agreement on the hydrants in county territory. Lashley said there were 19 city fire hydrants in county territory at the time the city asked the county to pay for costs of maintenance. The Sanford hydrant is located so far to be capped off, Lashley said, leaving 16 hydrants connected to city water lines in county territory. The city provides water and sewer service to Sanford Estates. In other business, the city commission tabled consideration of a plan for bicycle paths in the north end of the county. "Farr said in addition to bicycle trails the city ought to think about safety trails along busy thoroughfares. The purpose of the mid-November meeting is for the two governmental bodies to discuss continuation of the Sanford branch library at its current location in the old post office building. The commission approved a lease agreement with the Sanford Housing Authority for a portion of the first floor of the city hall. The city is to pay $4,000 for modifying the first floor for the authority while the authority is to pay $4,000 for its share of the modification. The costs include installation of partitions and doors. Approved amendments to the Sanford Airport Authority budget to increase expenditures by $14,350 for equipment; $10,071 for land acquisition and $138,178 for instrument landing system site preparation for a total of $162,599 in new expenditures. The commission also increased airport revenues by the same amount including $110,540 in federal aid; $13,818 in state aid; $13,818 in airport improvement fund and $14,473 in cash surplus from the previous year. "Decided to seek assistance from the state to pay $4,000 for its share of the modification law requiring elected city officials to participate in the Florida State Retirement System. Commissioners said their inclusion in the system would interfere with their private pension plan arrangements. "Voted on recommendation of Police Chief Ben Butler, to wait until March, 1980 for delivery of new police package vehicles from Jack Proctor, Ford. Assistant City Manager Rich Quigley had urged the city to cancel the order in favor of bids from Marc Slade Chrysler-

Negata Strikes Out In Federal Court:

By JOE DeSANTIS
Herald Sports Editor
Softball player Patty Negata struck out today before U.S. District Court Judge George Young in her attempt to obtain a preliminary injunction that would allow her to play in Seminole County Parks and Recreation's male softball league.

MISS. NEGATA

Negata's attorneys, Willie May and Fred O'Neal, who last week obtained a 10-day restraining order from Tampa judge that allowed Negata to play temporarily argued that Negata was deprived the right to participate despite the fact that Seminole County offers separate but equal softball leagues for men and women. Assistant Seminole County Attorney Robert McMillan contended that the county Parks and Recreation Department was operating within all legal guidelines because it offered men's, women's and a coed league at the beginning of the season. Negata's attorney said, however, due to lack of interest.

Judge Young stated that, "Based on the law as it stands now, the plaintiff (Negata) has been offered the opportunity to play softball." "She has not shown that she will suffer irreparable injury by not being allowed to compete in the men's league," said Judge Young. "In view of the evidence that many of the men's teams may withdraw if females are allowed to play, I don't feel granting an injunction would be in the best public interest. Motion denied."

Negata, who recently filed suit with the State Attorney's office expressed her disappointment at the judge's decision. "I feel disappointed right now. But I'll be there tonight to cheer the team." The Mob is scheduled to play this evening at Red Bug Park. McMillan said he was "Happy that the court upheld the rights of the county league," and added, "Maybe all of this publicity will spark enough interest so in the future the league will have enough interested people to form coed teams."

Impact Fees Okay

By DIANE PETRYK
Herald Staff Writer
The board of county commissioners unanimously passed a resolution setting up procedures to facilitate collection of impact fees from developers who have voluntarily elected to offset the traffic impact on Red Bug-Lake Road, created by their developments. The growth fees will be based on the anticipated daily trip generation of the approved use and will be computed at the rate of $20 per trip generation. For the purpose of this resolution the place where sidewalks are being built for a school."

Construction Co. asked the commissioners why they did not make the resolution an ordinance, mandatory for all. Williams said the voluntary aspect is a stop-gap way of dealing with the problem. Goets said, "Too often we hit on new people moving in. Yes, they are impacting the area, but not to any greater extent than the people already there."

Luddy Goets of Wrenco Homes told the commissioners the resolution is not truly voluntary. "What if someone doesn't volunteer?" he asked. "If the services were not there, zoning would be denied," said Commissioner Richard Williams said. Lester Mandell of Greater

Plymouth, which could provide an earlier delivery, Butler said the Marc Slade-bid cars are "street vehicles" and not heavy duty police packages. "Tabled consideration of a proposal from Hartford
