

The Rich Beggar

Detroit police picked up a man for begging on the streets the other day. The man had $279 in his pocket and a bank book with a balance of $7,000. When the judge gave him a choice between paying a hundred-dollar fine or taking 90 days in jail, he chose the 90 days. After all, he had a lot of food and shelter at no cost, wouldn't he? He ought to know—it's his 49th term.

It's a kind of instinctive reaction of the citizen to say, on reading this: "Hmph! But

A-Bill Provides For Modernizing

WASHINGTON.—Time has ridden like a hog on the back of the Eisenhower administration's efforts to make broad changes in the atomic law, first passed in 1946, covering the development and use of atomic energy.

The Republicans were trying to put these changes through in Congress last week when they were also rushing to get finished with other major legislation so Congress in this election year could finish by July 31.

But the changes proposed were far-reaching. And the objections to them by a group of Democrats and some others were so strong that they said in effect to the administration: "Why not wait until next year? They were sore about the timing."

Sen. Knowland of California, Senate Republican leader, was conspicuous of the time. For months he had had his eyes set on that July 31 target date.

So he began driving the Senate to finish with the atomic bill and go on with the rest of the bills still awaiting Senate action. The Democrats, aided by Senators Langer (R-ND) and Morse (Ind-Ore), wouldn't be rushed.

Actually, work on the atomic changes began last year when the Joint Atomic Energy Committee, made up of Democrats and Republicans from House and Senate, began considering bringing the 1946 atomic law up to date.

In 1946 the United States alone had the secret of the bomb. Now more than 20 countries—including Russia, Britain and Canada—have worked in the atomic field, Russia with extraordinary success.

In 1946 no one knew how much progress might be made in developing atomic energy for peaceful purposes. So everything connected with this country's atomic work was clothed in secrecy by the law of 1946.

But there has been progress, technologically, which could be pushed for making the atom do peaceful work, in providing power, for instance. And there have been changes in foreign relations. The United States now, through President Eisenhower, has proposed a world pooling of non-military atomic information for peaceful purposes. And there is the problem of sharing some atomic information with this country's allies.

Yet, it wasn't until July 13 that the joint committee's report, explaining the changes in existing law which would be made by the bill it produced after all its examination, was given to the senators to study. The bill reached the Senate floor the next day.

Sen. Lehman (D-Ill-N.Y.), one of the leaders in the fight against the bill, complained that the changes it would make were too deep and significant to be studied on such short notice.

Some of these changes would let private industry into the development of atomic energy for private profit. Whatever work big companies have done since 1946 has been for the government.

Democrats protested the bill was written that a few companies, which already had know-how from their work with the government, could get a monopoly.

Atomic energy could be used for power—electricity—although turning it out that way won't be economical for years yet. And the Democrats argued atomic power was something the public, which paid for atomic research, had a big claim on.

In addition, the bill would loosen up on some of the atomic secrecy. For example, U. S. allies would be let in on some military atomic information.

Knowland determined to get the atomic bill through, ordered the Senate into round-the-clock sessions. This made the opposition madder. Knowland tried some usual moves to cut off debate. He failed, and now says Congress can't quit before Aug. 1.

Last night both sides yielded a bill and maybe the Senate will vote on the bill this week. But it will be a bill changed from the one offered in mid-July.

he makes more begging than I do at the job. Guess I'll try begging for a change."

But the citizen won't beg. That's merely "conversation". And with what seems to him a small salary and a huge income tax, he is still far richer than the man with the big bank balance. He's got two things the beggar never will have: He's got a good reputation in his community for being able to stand on his own feet, and he has in his own heart a well-earned sense of self-respect.

A Fourth Expedition

Few men past sixty-five look forward to strenuous adventures. Many of them are already retired and enjoying a rest after their years of labor. No so with Admiral Richard E. Byrd, born in 1888, pioneer in aviation and explorer of the Arctic regions. He said recently that he plans to return to the Antarctic as soon as he can get an expedition together.

In speaking of his reasons for wanting to go back, the Admiral cites the vast resources of coal, uranium, oil and minerals which can be found in the vast, unexplored Antarctic. He said that he would like to get into that unexplored area and discover and claim parts of it for the United States.

Admiral Byrd flew over the north pole in 1926 and in 1929 and 1934 he led expeditions into the frozen lands. His books "Little America" and "Alone" thrilled millions of people who shared his adventures vicariously. A new Byrd expedition, with the growing importance of the polar regions, would claim the attention of the world.

Hug Stamp—Latest suggestion for a postage stamp? Two intonologists (they study insects) at the University of Florida persuaded Congressman Billie Matheba to turn in a suggestion to the Post Office Department for a 3c postage stamp honoring the 100th birthday of the profession of entomology. The professor, John T. Creighton and Archie N. Tinsol, didn't give "Mr. Billy" any ideas for the stamp design. So, this being a free country, here's my suggestion: A picture of a mosquito (New Jersey—not Florida) being chased across a field of mud by a fly gun.

He said he'd take it—Congressman Jim Haley has been subpoenaed. In this case, he was glad to accept the subpoena because he will appear as a friendly witness in a case involving a hospital bond issue in Sarasota. But, willing as he may have been to appear and to help, it was necessary for the House of Representatives to approve his appearance. Even though he was wanted to be a witness, he himself could not waive the immunity of the House—he had to get the consent of his fellow members before he could accept the subpoena.

Yo ho ho and a bottle—Have you read any good pirate stories lately? Right now, tales about Happy Stewart are the favorite reading matter of Senators George Smathers and Dick Russell who have been examining books about the old pirate. At lunch the other day, Senator Smathers confided this interest to Honor Don Roberto M. Hertenstein, Ambassador from Panama. The Ambassador said that he also has always been interested in Morgan: "I've sacked the city of Porto Bello, you know. Some books call him a hero—others a scoundrel—it all depends on your point of view. The English liked him—the Spanish hated him. But that was a long time ago. And the gold of Porto Bello lies in the most part on the bottom of the Caribbean."

Floridian promoted—Named last week to a new high position with the State Department department "A" Secretary in the Diplomatic Service, was Lucius D.

Actress Tires Of 'Cheesecake'

NEW YORK.—Denise Darcel, who once sold Camembert on the streets of Paris, is now weary of American cheesecake.

Not cheesecake, the food—but cheesecake, the art form. She says she positively no longer will pose in the cheap postures that first won her attention when she arrived here in 1936, billed as "the most beautiful girl in France."

Denise thinks that kind of publicity almost busted up her career. She feels there are at least 1,000 girls in America who could match her by drawing a deep breath.

"I'm tired of it because they told me to, and I didn't know better," she said. "Now I know better."

"I have something else. I have talent. I want to be the dramatic actress and to do the comedy. When you can make the people to laugh, you can also make them to cry."

Denise has proved her point. After flapping in Hollywood initially, she got a job behind a sales counter in Beverly Hills and started working her way up in show business all over again.

Today she gets up to $3,000 a week in night clubs, co-starred recently in the film, "Vera Cruz," and now has a top spot in the Friday night Du Mont TV network show, "Gambles on Love."

Disease of Lymph Glands

By HERMAN H. BUNDESEN, M.D.

AM itch that cannot be controlled, with no visible sign of any skin disturbance, may possibly be the first sign of Hodgkin's disease.

This is a chronic, steadily progressive disease in which there is a growing, painless enlargement of the lymph glands throughout the body. The spleen and liver may also become greatly enlarged because they contain lymph tissue.

Cause Unknown

The cause is unknown, although Hodgkin's disease is more prevalent among males than females. It can occur at any age, although its years of greatest occurrence are between the third and fourth decades.

The lymph glands of the neck are usually the earliest to be involved, hard on one side, then on the other. The disease, however, can start anywhere in the body. If the lymph glands around the lungs are affected, the breathing mechanism may be compressed. If the disease becomes very severe, there may be high fever, serious anemia and much wasting of the body. An exact diagnosis can be made by removing a gland and examining it under the microscope.

At present there is no known cure, although life may be greatly prolonged with proper treatment. High voltage X-ray treatment, removing glands that press on a vital structure, and using nitrogen mustard, all have proven helpful to patients who suffer from this disease.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

T. W. X.: Can the use of streptomycin cause deafness?

Answer: Yes, if used over prolonged periods of time, this antibiotic can cause deafness. However, recently, combinations of streptomycin with a newer form of the drug known as dihydrostreptomycin have diminished the occurrence of deafness.

Escape Reality From Magazines Of Latest Fashions

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

Let the kids have their comic books, the gentlemen their science fiction, westerns and adventure stories; I escape reality through the fashion magazines.

The gent at the desk next to mine undoubtedly has a fine time vicariously riding a spaceship to Mars, saving the ranch for the murdered cattleman's daughter and swashbuckling all over the Spanish Main, but I find my kicks—sometimes in full color—dreaming myself into the costumes and personalities of the ladies who model the high style clothes.

In these halcyon moments, I'm about 20 years old, and I'm currently a tawny blonde with piquant features, cropped hair, do heavily made up around the eyes, enormous earrings, and gaudy jewelry—summing the most bizarre and bone-deepening stances to show off my size 10 figure and chic clothes.

Fipping through the pages, I lead the most glamorous existence. Sometimes, in the most enchanting little dressmaker cut and woven under-waist Panama, I feed the pigeons in the park, paying laughing attention to a distinguished banker type in horn-rimmed glasses who is slightly out of focus but obviously very interested in my whim. Or, in chalk white silk grandeur with a skirt spread like a calla lily and rounded capote neckline, I'm a femme fatale in a Louis XVI salon, rimped by admirers—slightly out of focus—tasting me gaily in champagne.

Perhaps I'm having a country weekend in silk slacks and the most amusing blouse, with an assortment of gleaming garden tools neatly spread out around me, tenderly offering a perfect rose to the faintly photocopied but so hard-some young man in perfectly tailored young clothes nearby.

I have fun dreaming my way through the home magazines, too, with their pictures of neat as a pin living rooms, bedrooms and gorgeously decorated kitchens, in which there is never an unimpeded path, an ash tray, cigarette stubs in an unmade bed or an unmade dish. But the fashion magazines, peopled by women with infinitesimal waists, smart and apparently terribly rich, are where I do my best escaping.

Reality, after these exciting excursions into a dreamworld of complete elegance, is rather bitter. For one thing, it's disheartening to look around at the gentlemen in your life, who are in focus, instead of slim, sophisticated custom-made men, most of them are fighting the old battle of the hairline, midriff, and sashies account. They're interested in the National League standings, the regulations and the children's grades—not in feeding pigeons, frolicking in champagne or being tossed perfect roses.

And finally I'm forced to take a look at me. This 28-year-old dress, a calot when it should be a wide-brimmed job, a hairdresser's appointment, a darn in my glove, oh, let's say 35 pounds overweight and three more payments to go on the refrigerator.

But we can have our harmless dreams can't we?

Watch that vacuum bottle you take along on picnics! Keep it clean! Ever so often pour a solution of baking soda and warm water into the bottle and shake, rinse a few times with clean water and invert to dry.

Summer Is Time For Twinkling Toes

By VIVIAN HIRSH

This is the season for twinkling toes. Pretty toenails and not-so-pretty toenails spend cooler months in anonymity. But now they may kick off their shoes and traipse gaily on sands, grass and terraces.

Tired feet will get a lift from a pedicure. But you can't really afford a pedicure, neglect in a few seconds. A quick coat of a bright nail polish can't cover up ragged cuticle, uneven edges of nail and rough tell-tale spots on feet and heels.

If you want to walk fancy-free with the sunshine, perk up your feet now. Set yourself a schedule of one pedicure a week for a month, then follow with one every 10 days or so. You can do a good professional pedicure in 20 or 30 minutes. Here are steps used by salons:

1. Remove old polish with oily polish remover. Moisten a ball of cotton, press it against the nail for a few seconds. Wipe down with a single stroke towards the nail tip. This will keep old polish from running into the cuticle. New cream polish removers help condition the cuticle as they remove polish.
2. File straight across the nail

Wives Can Aid In Industrial Safety, Nurse Asserts

Safety engineers are missing a good bet in failing to enlist the American housewife in their program to reduce the staggering toll taken each year in on-the-job accidents and injuries.

One woman—who should know what she's talking about—thinks the wives and mothers of industrial workers could become the safety man's strongest ally in his war on accidents. She is Joanna M. Johnson, director of the industrial nursing division of the Employers Mutuals of Wausau, a post she created and has filled for the last 25 years.

She thinks that strong appeals can be made directly to the workers' homes through a powerful direct mail campaign which would be designed specifically to catch the eye of the lady of the house. She makes a pretty good case for herself, too.

"If the manufacturers and sellers of home furnishings, appliances, and even automobiles, are smart enough to appeal directly to women, why can't the sellers of safety do the same thing, with the same good results, Miss Johnson asks.

"Messages mailed directly to the wives of workers would be read and discussed in the home," Miss Johnson contends. "They would influence safety of the job as well as on the job. Why not take some of the many fine visual education programs which are being used in plants to promote safety and re-write them into dramatic stories and colorful accounts of what is being done in industrial plants to make them safer places for husbands, brothers and sons to work?"

Miss Johnson, who was the first industrial nurse ever employed by a casualty insurance firm, feels that precedent is on her side in trying to appeal directly to women in an active phase of industrial safety programs. She maintains that women are naturally interested in this kind of activity and have a sort of natural instinct for it.

She points to the active role played by mothers in many cities in the organization and operation of school safety patrol units—like the 132 women in Milwaukee, Wis., who are currently engaged in just such a program.

But, she continues, women can't get into a safety program until they know something about it. Someone must actually go out after them, tell them what the problem is, how important it is to them and their families. Once she has the facts, the housewife and mother will support any program which tends to keep the wage-earner in the family safe, happy and productive, Miss Johnson insists.

Hollywood Stars Often Forget Lines In Middle Of Film

By HUBBARD KEAVY (For BOB THOMAS)

HOLLYWOOD'S stars said they couldn't write this one—what actors say when they forget their lines is not always amusing. Oh, I've heard horrible words come from beautiful throats. We won't mention those girls, can't shatter illusions.

But I've been watching movies in the making for a long time and what the players say when they forget is not always amusing. Oh, I've heard horrible words come from beautiful throats. We won't mention those girls, can't shatter illusions.

The other day it was Humphrey Bogart. He was to say to another player, "and then after that we will forget. He grinned sheepishly and turned to the script girl, saying, "And then after that we will what? My mind's a blank."

In the same scene, the impeccable Basil Rathbone missed the same line three times. Each time he said, "Sorry x x x x."

Most actors use the same excuse over and over and here are some of them:

Teresa Wright: "Oh, golly I did it again."

Alan Ladd: "Hell everything I lost my script."

Guy Madison: "I can talk plain or than that."

Clifton Webb: you might know says with that one."

Marilyn Monroe: "Calm, calm, calm calm."

Robert Taylor: "Okay, let's try it again."

Debbie Reynolds: "Wait till I file down my little pointed head."

Charles White: "punching his jaw, exclaims, "Get with it, man!"

And when Jean Hersholt forgets, he goes completely out of character, he says, "Tennis, anybody?"

To hide her embarrassment, Barbara Hale usually says, "To Hale with that one."

And Zsa Zsa Gabor says among other things, "Take back my diamonds—my everyday ones."

After blowing his lines six consecutive times in one scene, Richard Burton walked to a wall and smashed his head against it. But it was only a movie, and he was wearing plaster and his head went through it. He apologized for his display of temper and the damage and then did his part perfectly.

Special Services Will Be Conducted By Rev. Gustafson

The Rev. Ed Gustafson will conduct a special service at the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church. The church is located at Park Ave. and 14th St. in Superior.

The service will be held on Thursday night, July 29 and will begin at 7:45 o'clock.

A cordial invitation is extended by the pastor to all who are interested in Christian missions to attend and he states that this is an unequalled opportunity to get first hand information and to know the up-to-the-minute facts about conditions in Indochina. Mr. Gustafson has spent the last seven years in Laos. He is well acquainted with the desperate situation in that country and will relate some of the effect of Communism there on Christian missionary enterprises.

The station at Luang Prabang where Mr. Gustafson was working had to be abandoned last year because of the advancing Reds. On one occasion he was cut off in the jungles of Indochina by the Communists for three days in Indochina. The missionaries' work on the field will be shown.

Before going to Indochina as a missionary under the Christian and Missionary Alliance, Mr. Gustafson served as a Chaplain with a United States Army Infantry Division. The service is open to the public.

Turn Good Eggs Into Tastier Ones

There's many a way to turn a good egg into a better one, as every good cook knows.

Jessie Cartwright, director of the Noyes Home Institute in Chicago dips into her store of recipes to come up with four ways with eggs she favors to cause these different results:

TINY EGG BALLS

She likes to add tiny egg balls to soups to give it a company air. Here's how to make the balls:

1. 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1 egg white
- 1 tablespoon flour

Whisk together egg yolks with 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, and enough egg white to moisten. Shape the mixture into small balls. Roll them in flour and saute them in tallow until the balls are lightly browned. You'll have 10 small balls to add to soup just before you serve it.

EGGS STUFFED WITH MUSHROOMS

Another favorite is eggs stuffed with mushrooms and flavored with almonds.

- 1/2 pound fresh or 1/2 cup canned mushrooms, drained
- 2 tablespoons tablefat
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1 cup evaporated milk
- 1/2 cup almonds, blanched and chopped
- 2 tablespoons evaporated milk
- Salt, Pepper

Buttered bread crumbs.

Clean mushrooms. Chop stems but leave each whole. Saute in tablefat. Remove mushrooms. Blend flour and salt with remaining fat in pan, and add boiling water. Cook until sauce begins to thicken, then add one cup of milk. Cut eggs into halves. Mash the egg yolks and mix them with the chopped mushroom, almonds, and evaporated milk.

Refill egg whites with the mixture. Place them in a greased baking dish with mushroom sauce. Bake in a 350 degree oven.

CHEESE AND OLIVE CUSTARD

Olives and cheese go into a special custard Mrs. Cartwright recommends:

- 1/2 dozen hard-boiled eggs
- 2 tablespoons tablefat
- 1 cup grated cheese
- 1 cup stuffed olives, sliced
- 3 eggs
- 1/2 teaspoon prepared mustard
- 1/2 cup olive liquor
- 2 cups milk, scalded

Remove crusts from bread and spread slices with one tablespoon of tablefat. Slice the bread, and mix one-third of it in a greased casserole. Cover with one-third of the cheese and one-half of the olives. Repeat, having cheese on top. Dot with remaining butter. Bake in a 350 degree oven for one hour until firm. You'll have servings for six.

DUTCH EGGS

Dutch eggs combine hard-boiled eggs and shrimp in a tasty casserole.

- 2 hard-boiled eggs
- 2 tablespoons tablefat, melted
- 1 teaspoon minced chervil
- 1 teaspoon minced parsley
- 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
- Salt and Pepper
- 1/2 cup chopped cleaned shrimp
- 1 cup cream or evaporated milk
- Grated cheese, tablefat

Chop eggs. Add tablefat, seasonings, shrimp, and cream or milk, and mix thoroughly. Pour the mixture into a greased baking dish. Sprinkle the top with grated cheese and dot with bits of tablefat. Bake in a hot oven about 10 minutes until these meats and begins to brown.

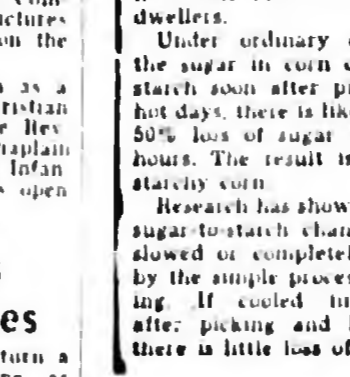

"Frostbitten" Ears Taste Better!

"Delicious! Haven't tasted corn like that since I was a boy on the farm," was the comment at the dinner table it was a typical reaction to corn on the cob brought to market by the new "frostbitten" method.

Corn can now come to the table with every bit of that "field fresh" flavor 24 hours after it's been picked. It's a new taste thrill for most city dwellers.

Under ordinary conditions, the sugar in corn changes to starch soon after picking. On hot days, there is likely to be a 50% loss of sugar in just 24 hours. The result is tasteless, starchy corn.

Research has shown that this sugar-to-starch change can be slowed or completely stopped by the simple process of chilling. If cooled immediately after picking and kept cold, there is little loss of flavor.

after it's been picked. It's a new taste thrill for most city dwellers.

Meat-Carving Is Ancient Art, Takes Practice

As with the other arts, perfection lies in practice and one good way to approach carving is to put together several loaves of bread—tale hot and cold—and practice slicing them, according to an article in the recent issue of Practical Housewife. Bread in different conditions presents the closest substitute for varying consistencies of meat.

First in importance when approaching carving is to make sure you have the essential tools—knife and steel. Improvised tools such as a bread knife and cooking fork point the way to disaster, while a good unit actually helps you do the job right. An efficient set may be purchased for as little as four dollars, and whatever the investment it's a long range one that any habitual meat carver will never regret. The blade should be long, the fork times fixed.

When you have your tools assembled begin by attempting to cut uniform and even slices. Start with a bread knife and cooking fork for thinness. When your slices are almost transparent and still even you are on your way.

Next, you are ready to come to the real thing. Stand at the side of the platter, looking down at the level of the blade so that you will have no difficulty in obtaining leverage. When you actually begin to carve, remember that with the exception of steak you always cut across the grain of the meat. And with all meats, avoid the nerve and the gristle, which usually comes about from indigestion, despair or lack of experience with the bread. When you make the first incision, be careful not to alter the direction of the blade and draw the knife the full length of the blade when cutting each slice.

Here are Practical's step-by-step instructions on how to go about carving these four popular meats:

PORTERHOUSE STEAK

1. Remove bone and lift to one side of the platter.
2. Cut with the grain.
3. To save your knife-blade, carve your steak on a board cut in half the platter.

STANDING RIB ROAST

1. Have the butcher separate the backbone from the ribs.
2. Slice from the far outside, across the grain, cut along ribs with tip of knife to separate each slice.
3. Slices should be 1/2" to 3/4" thick.

BAKED WHOLE HAM

1. Place shank end of ham at carver's right. Make first slice lengthwise from the thin side.
2. Now turn ham so it rests on its side. Then cut parallel slices down to the bone.
3. Release slices by cutting along the bone at a right angle to the slices.

PORK LOIN ROAST

1. Have the butcher saw across backbone to loosen ribs.
2. Before serving, remove the backbone by cutting between it and the ribs.
3. With rib side facing you, cut alternate slices with and without rib for serving.

Star Vichyssoise for Summer Meals

Do you long to have friends in for luncheon, yet wince at the idea of menu planning during hot weather? Then why not consider this new economical recipe for Cold Vichyssoise to start the luncheon? It's made with instant powdered cream, thereby reducing the cost of this fine French soup considerably. Yet, because Pream is an all-day product, it provides the true cream flavor that is characteristic of vichyssoise.

By serving this appetizing cold soup, you can forget about too much emphasis on a main dish. With your favorite salad, a cold beverage, rolls and dessert, you can have a perfect hot-weather luncheon with little effort.

Try Pream in this recipe for vichyssoise—its low cost as an ingredient makes it possible for you to serve this soup often. And remember always to keep Pream on hand for coffee.

Stop Order Issued On City Contract 3

Engineer Halts Work on Project Because Of Type Of Water Mains

A stop-work order has been issued by David Newman, field representative of Robert M. Angus and Associates, consulting engineers for Sanford's water and sewer program on contract No. 3, which is held by E. H. Holcombe, Clearwater.

The City manager, Warren Knowles, revealed this action today and cited the reason behind Newman's order. The pipe which is being used in the project, laying of water main extensions, is of an inferior quality, he said, and does not meet contract specifications.

Court Says Stamp Sufficient To Bring Gambling Charge

TALLAHASSEE—Possession of a federal stamp sufficient to bring indictment of holder on charges of state gambling law violation, the Florida state supreme court has ruled.

The decision upsets the Duval County Circuit Court's ruling in the case of Amos Jefferson who was arrested in August on gambling charges.

Jefferson's case has not come to trial so there was no ruling on the section of the law making proof of possession of a stamp evidence sufficient to conflict for gambling law violation.

Jefferson had appealed from a Circuit Court ruling remanding him to the sheriff's custody.

Mrs. Petty says that she and her husband saw Miller circle the block several times before parking some 100 yards down the street. They watched him as he searched the clothes lines and then peer into the window of a room which the Petty's two children occupy. "He then came and looked into our room," Mrs. Petty said, "and then I called the police."

Apparently leaving being caught she went on, he ran for his car. "But Mr. Petty took off after him and eventually stopped him at the Motor Inn," she said.

Commanding Officers C. C. Dickson and J. H. Patterson who answered her police summons, Mrs. Petty said, "They arrived quickly and upon learning that my husband was chasing the man they promptly went searching for them."

When caught, Miller had several towels and undergarments in his possession.

After his arrest, Miller told a story of his wife having committed suicide a year or more ago and produced newspaper clipping purporting his own attempts to take his life. Called today from his newspaper to the DeLand Police Dept. Volusia County Sheriff's Office failed to substantiate either of these accounts.

Asked if either she or her husband knew Miller, Mrs. Petty said that neither had even seen him before, but she added that this wasn't the first time there had been a prowler at their residence.

"Whether or not this is the same person, of course we don't know," she said, concluding, "but he might well be."

Miller is slated for appearance Friday in City Court.

The contract, let at a cost of $66,442.21, calls for a covering which will prevent rust, whereas the materials which Holcombe is using does not have the proper covering and will rust in a relatively short time, he said.

Holcombe, Knowles said, according to his Clearwater office, is vacationing in California, while the chief superintendent had not been contacted. "We have been attempting to reach someone authority since Mr. Newman made his report, some 24-hours ago. There is only a foreman in charge here and of course, he can do little to rectify the problem," the City manager stated.

The work, which began last Saturday and was supposed to be completed within 60 working days, is currently halted just north of Everett Dr. on Summerlin Ave.

Knowles pointed out that the penalty clause of the contract calls for payment of $50 for each extra day before the work is completed.

Ike Declares United States Intends To Defend Its Rights

Rhee Proposes Making Attack On Red China

WASHINGTON—South Korean President Syngman Rhee proposed today that an Asian army of more than two million men, backed by U.S. jets, planes and ships, launch a counterattack on Communist China.

In a speech prepared for delivery before a joint session of Congress, the 79-year-old Korean leader said:

"Let us remember that peace cannot be restored in the world until Communist and half-democratic forces are eliminated."

"Your momentous decision is needed now to make Asia safe for freedom, for that will automatically settle the world Communist problem in Europe, Africa and America."

He told Congress the essence of Soviet strategy for world conquest is to lure Americans into a sleep by talking peace and to then strike with enough hydrogen bombs and incendiary bombers to pulverize the airfields and productive centers of the United States by sneak attack.

Rhee has long advocated reuniting hostilities in Korea to drive the Communists out of the northern half of the divided land. But this appeared to be the first time he proposed an all-out attack on the Chinese mainland itself.

He did not call for the use of U. S. foot soldiers.

Rhee's call to arms ran counter to U. S. policy, expressed by both President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles. Both said publicly last week the United States does not favor resumption of the Korea War.

The American Air Force, as well as the Navy would be needed to insure the success of the counterattack on the Red Chinese regime," Rhee said adding: "But (Continued On Page Three)

Nuts Cause Sad Experience For Three Workers At NAAS

Three civilian employees at the Sanford Naval Auxiliary Air Station underwent an experience this week with some nuts they ate at the base, which they won't forget in a hurry.

John J. Nettles, R. D. Hunter and Milton Smith, all of Sanford, were dismissed from the Fernald-Laughton Hospital yesterday after being confined overnight because of effects of the nuts.

According to a station spokesman, the nuts were identified by Dr. R. W. Ruppert of the Central Florida Experiment Station as Jatropha Curcas nuts, commonly known as the barbatim nut.

Dr. Ruppert said today that not many of the trees bearing the nuts are growing in Sanford.

The nut, he explained, is similar to that of the tung oil tree. It is brown in color, and has four segments, each about three-fourths of an inch long, to a pod, and each segment is shaped something like that of an orange.

The reaction to the nut is similar to that to the tung oil nut of castor oil. Dr. Ruppert said that all people are not affected the same way after eating the nut.

He said that some people, if you're eating, don't eat it. The Navy, meanwhile, is not taking any chances. It cut down all the nut trees on the station.

Rainfall Raises Lake 48 Inches Within 48 Hours

A four-inch rise in the level of Lake Monroe within the last 48 hours, attributed to a rainfall of 7.26 inches since Saturday, has brought the level one foot higher than it was a year ago today.

The rainfall, 2.71 inches Saturday, 2.41 Monday, and 2.08 inches Tuesday, brought the total for this month to 10.39 inches. The July normal is 7.03 inches, though through July 27 a year ago 12.75 inches had been recorded.

According to E. J. Moughton, local weather observer, the rainfall record at the Central Florida Experiment Station reads 11.4 inches over his family home, which is gauged which is stationed at 16th St. and Sanford Ave. There was no reading on Sunday. Moughton said.

Commenting, Moughton would only call attention to the fact "that's all right with me."

FATALITY SHOT

Vet Attempts To Raise Funds To Return To Family Abroad

BALTIMORE—A 29-year-old North Carolina veteran, forced by red tape to leave the girl he loves and his baby son behind him in Germany, sought today to raise enough money he can return them.

Leroy F. Harris poured out his story here today in a letter to the Baltimore Sun asking for "advice, publicity or help of any other kind."

Harris was discharged from the Army last November after three years of occupation duty in Germany. There, he met and fell in love with Barbara, a Hungarian girl who with her family had been evacuated from their Budapest home by the Russians in 1940 and sent to West Germany.

Several months after their meeting in 1950, Harris applied for military permission to marry Barbara. He volunteered for a one-year extension of his overseas tour of duty. Then he discovered that his application to marry could be submitted no earlier than nine months prior to his discharge.

He resiggned and was told his fiancée must submit a birth certificate signed, sealed and issued by the proper authorities in the place or city of her birth. Requests to officials of Hungary, now a satellite country, went unanswered.

Harris said he filed a statement of paternity with the U. S. consul after the child was born in February 1953 and began looking for civilian employment. But arrangements to receive his discharge in Germany were rejected.

Back in the United States, he decided to wait until he had earned enough to take him to Germany and establish him in a job there. But, having no work skills, he found job scarce. His present work nets him $33.45 a week.

"I seem as far from it as I was when I came to Baltimore," he said.

Accused Prowler Released On Bond Following Arrest

Free on a bond of $202 is Lowry B. Miller, a 27-year-old DeLand resident who was booked Monday night by City police on a charge of vagrancy as a common night walker and pilferer after being accused of taking undergarments from a clothes line at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley H. Petty, 111 Cedar Ave.

Mrs. Petty says that she and her husband saw Miller circle the block several times before parking some 100 yards down the street. They watched him as he searched the clothes lines and then peer into the window of a room which the Petty's two children occupy. "He then came and looked into our room," Mrs. Petty said, "and then I called the police."

Korean Vets Face Deadline For GI Bill

The Korean GI Bill deadline faces all veterans separated from active service before Aug. 20, 1952. Those who left active service after August 20 have two years from that date in which to begin VA vocational counseling before they were allowed to begin training under the Korean GI program.

Reason was to find out whether they were eligible for training under another law created specifically for disabled veterans—Public Law 16, the Vocational Rehabilitation Act.

Under the new system, these veterans will be permitted to start Korean GI Bill training before they undergo counseling, rather than wait until after it has been completed.

This procedure, says the VA, eliminates any chance of delay that might prevent veterans from getting started before the cut-off date.

At the same time the VA sends a veteran his certificate of eligibility—authorizing him to begin Korean GI training—it will also mail him a notice of a specified date for vocational counseling. Meanwhile, he will be able to start his training before the GI cut-off date.

If he reports on schedule and if counseling discloses a need for public law 16 training, he will be given the chance to enter training under that law.

If he decides to do so, the training he already has had under the Korean GI Bill will not count against him. He still will receive the full amount of Public Law 16 training necessary to restore his employability.

But if for any reason he does not report for VA counseling, and later decides he would like to switch from Korean GI Bill to Public Law 16 training, a different system will be specified in computing how much time he will be allowed to train under Public Law 16.

Under this system, the Korean GI Bill he already has had will be subtracted either from (1) the time he would normally have coming to him under Public Law 16, or (2) the time he originally was allotted to under the Korean GI Bill.

Whichever of those computations is the greater would be the maximum training time allowed the veteran under Public Law 16. Additional information may be secured by contacting Karlisle Householder, veterans service officer; Fred Murray, County director of adult and vocational education, located at the Court House; or William B. West, veterans agricultural instructor at Semole High School.

Strolling In Sanford

June E. McGill, Geneva, has been named on the latest Dean's list at the Florida State University, Tallahassee, according to Dr. Doak S. Campbell, university president.

To make the Dean's list an undergraduate student must maintain a B average or better for a semester and must take at least 12 hours of work. A graduate must maintain at least a B-plus average.

Thomas E. Rumbley, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Rumbley, Sanford, recently was processed through the Orlando Air Force recruiting office and sent to the recruiting main station in Jacksonville, where he received the oath of enlistment in the U. S. Air Force.

It was announced today by Mrs. Carolyn McCoy that her pupil, Miss Allison Lee, gifted young pianist daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John I. Lee, will leave tomorrow for Baltimore, Md. after being invited by Mrs. Carlotta Heller of the piano department of Peabody Conservatory, to play for her in order that she might evaluate Allison's progress in the study of piano.

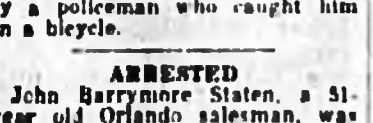

Mrs. Heller two years ago and made such a favorable impression that Mrs. Heller became very interested and invited her to return this summer. She will be accompanied by her parents and sister, Jonelle. They will visit in Washington, D. C. and New York City also, before returning to Sanford.

Mary Ann Bukur, Herald society editor, saw this one on TV last night. An elderly man appeared on the program "I've Got a Secret," who said he got the first traffic ticket issued in the United States. He was arrested in Dayton, O., in 1904 for going 12 miles per hour in an automobile by a policeman who caught him on a bicycle.
