ordinance takes shape

Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD - The review of the proposed adult entertainment ordinance is slated for a third work session by Longwood commissioners who again postponed the ordinance's first reading.

If work on the ordinance is completed, the first reading may be in August. After continuing a page-by-page discussion of the 55-page document, the commissioners agreed adult entertainment businesses will only be allowed in industrial zoned areas (I-1). The ordinance originally proposed adult businesses could be allowed in commercial (C-3) zoned areas as special exceptions.

During the regular meeting, the commissioners agreed to extend the moratorium on granting licenses for adult business for another six months to allow ample time to get the adult entertainment ordinance reviewed and approved.

The first 6-month moratorium has expired and a second ordinance calling for an additional six months is scheduled for public hearing August 1. Commissioner Iris Benson suggested the proposed 90-day moratorium he entended to 180-

Commissioner Paul Lovestrand voted against the 180-day moratorium, speaking in favor of the 90-day period proposed in the ordinance.

Middle school students lament summer's end

By VICKI Desora Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - The bright, sunny morning was just the sort that popped you out of bed at the crack of dawn when you were a kid ready for a day of fishing, swimming, baseball or other summer activity.

But the day held no such prospects for the youngsters dragging themselves into Sanford Middle School Monday morning.

Despite the warm temperatures, clear skies and mid-July date, summer is over for these students (and all the other middle and elementary school students across the county). Monday was the first day of school.

"I don't like it at all," said one young man, who was literally drag-ging his backpack on the ground behind him on the sidewalk leading toward the school. "Man, it's supposed to be summer. We're not supposed to be back. I'm not done with summer yet."

The young man said he attended summer school for two weeks after the close of school last month. "I only had two weeks off," he mouned. "That ain't no vacation." Lawrence Denn said he had the full month off.

"But I don't feel like I had a summer," he said. "I feel like I had a break, but summer is supposed to Denn said, however, that he likes

Three police suspended in shooting

RIVIERA BEACH - Police have shot and killed a 22-year-old man who hacked away at his arm to prove the Jesus Christ heals the faithful.

Three officers Monday fired at least eight times at Gustavaus Jody Francis, who was killed in front of his apartment. Francis earlier lunged at officers while holding an 11-inch knife over his head and disobeyed orders to drop the weapon, said sheriff's office spokesman Bob Ferrell.

Officers Reno Wells, Joel Audate and Cedrick Edwards were put on paid leave pending completion of an investigation. Francis was trying to cut off his hands and was screaming that Jesus would replace them, according to investigators. When officers arrived, Francis was running frantically around the front parking lot, waving the knife, said sheriff's TAMPA — Amid rumblings she will try to regain her former seat in the Legislature, former five-term Democratic lawmaker Mary Figg has resigned from the University of South Florida.

Figs, whose last day as the university's public service director was Friday, hasn't ruled out running for her old seat in the state House.

"It's not outside the realm of possibility," she said Monday.
"But I don't have an announcement to make." Lynn Marvin, a friend and chairwoman of the Hillsborough Democratic Party, said Figg has been encouraged to run but also is evaluating other job offers. "We would work 110 percent for her if she decided to do it,"

Figg has said she wouldn't seek the seat she left in 1992 for an unsuccessful Senate bid.

Figg joined USF last fall. Her $24,000 contract ended in June but President Betty Castor asked her to stay on.

The children's parents were at home at the time and had reported the 3-year-old missing about 90 minutes before he was found.

Searchers found the child unconscious Sunday evening on the front seat of the vehicle parked outside his home in a military housing complex near Mayport Naval Station, Adams

Clinton talks democracy Haitians demand action at Miami conventio

Associated Press Writer

MIAMI BEACH - The response to President Clinton's visit to the Miami Beach Convention Center was the same from the 2,000 Hispanies in the audience and from the Haltian protestors outside: Do some-

The issues between these two large segments of South Florida's population. however, were much wider than the 90 miles of water separating Cuba from Haiti.

"I want him to walk the walk, and talk the talk." Dariene X. Rodriguez, 20, a student coordinator on alcohol, drugs and AIDS at Florida International University, said after Clinton spoke for about 30 minutes to the National Council of La Raza conference.

The president discussed education and welfare reform, but spent most of the time touting his health care and crime bills. Rodriguez was particularly interested in education - she doesn't have the money to continue her education.

"I will do anything. I will scrub bathrooms with a toothbrush," she said.

Humberto Fuentes, the executive director of a group in Caldwell, Idaho, that helps migrant workers, wasn't particularly impressed with Clinton's speech.

'He didn't talk a lot about specifics," Fuentes said. "Rhetoric is one thing, action

Jorge Mas Canosa, director of the extle group the Cuban American National Foundation, was disappointed the president didn't talk about current attacks by Cuban gunboats against Cubans fleeing the com-

But Clinton addressed the Issue before getting on a plane at Miami International Airport after the speech.

"It's basically another example of the brutal conduct of the Castro regime. It's totally unacceptable. ... In the meanwhile, it highlights the importance of the 'Summit of the Americas," and our decision to focus on democracy as well as economic growth."

Clinton was bullish on the upcoming

Western Hemisphere summit in Florida after meeting with organizers, and echoed similar thoughts at the conference of the country's largest organized Hispanic group.

Outside, protesting Haitians found it ironic the president spoke of exporting democracy in the region while they begged him to restore elected President Jean-Bertrand Aristide to power in their troubled homeland.

"Clinton is a liar," said Jean Pierre, one of about 30 protestors - almost all of them Haitians.

They held eigns such as "Clinton Bush"

He was referring to Haitians in ricke boats trying to escape political persecution in their country, many of them drowning before making it to the United States.

Since the United States has increase economic sanctions in an effort to force ou Haiti's military leaders, it has stoppe repatriating refugees and set up a sai haven for them at the U.S. Naval Base is Guantanamo, Cuba.

So far, there are about 16,000 refugees a a makeshift camp on the base, with capacity for 17,500.

One protester said Clinton can easily solve the Haltian problem. "Send troops into Haiti, get (Lt. Gen. Raoul) Cedras out and restore Aristide," said Jean Pierre. "The problems of the refugees will then be gone."

Secretary of State Warren Christopher said Monday he hopes international sanctions will drive Haiti's military dictators from power, but that it still might take a U.S. Invesion.

"I didn't know if she was friendly, was going to run or what. So I stayed back," said Ms. Slappey, 30. "I saw she had a collar, so I started going, 'Here kitty, kitty. Come here, kitty."

It worked. Soon the cougar was close enough for Ms. Slappey to grab her by the collar and slap a least

Jupiter: Black eye, triple whammy

By PAUL RECER AP Science Writer

GREENBELT, Md. — Jupiter, already sporting a black eye and a half dozen other scars, is about to be bruised three more times in the same spot by the comet Shoemaker-Levy 9.

Scientists said Monday that three fragments from the comet will hit Jupiter 10 hours apart at approximately the same loca-

"You'll have three — boom, boom, boom" said Heidi Hammel of the Space Telescope Science Institute, "You are going to have one heck of a mess."

The first of the three fragments, Q, is expected to hit just before 4 a.m. EDT on Wednesday. R follows 10 hours later and 8 will be 10 hours after that. The Jovian rotation is 10 hours, which means the fragments will hit at nearly the same location on the planet.

Two fragments, K and L, are expected to impact today. They will be the eighth and ninth fragments to hit the gas clouds of Jupiter since the cosmic bombardment started Saturday. The last comet shard smashes the planet on Friday.

Hammel said Jupiter was hit Monday by fragment G, the largest yet of the 21 chunks of ice and rock from the broken-up comet. The impact and massive explosion left a distinctive mark in the planetary cloud tops.

"There is now a black eye on Jupiter," said Hammel. Pictures from the Hubble Space Telescope show a circle, with a black center and a smear of gray resembling a bruise.

The circular portion of the mark is 80 percent the size of Earth, proof of the power of the explosion triggered by fragment G.

All of the fragments are hitting the backside of Jupiter, as viewed from Earth, but the fireballs rise so high that the Hubble is able to spot the cloud poking above the horizon.

Eugene Shoemaker, who is a U.S. Geological Survey scientist and co-discoverer of the comet, said the comet fragment released an energy equal to the power of about 6 million megatons of TNT. This explosion is far more potent than all of the world's nuclear weapons set off at once.

Had this comet fragment hit Earth, he said, "the crater would pretty well have covered all of Rhode Island. It would also blanket the Earth with a fine layer of dust that would blacken the sun."

Nonetheless, Shoemaker said the impact from a G-sized fragment would not be as damaging as the asteroid that hit the Earth 65 million years ago and which may have killed much of the planet's life.

"It's a big event, but it's still not a dinosaur killer," he said of the comet fragment's effect.

After G slammed into Jupiter, instruments on Earth, watching from 480 million miles away, were briefly blinded by the intensity. In some wavelengths of light, the explosion was

Shoemaker estimated that fragment G was about two miles

Pulled by Jupiter's immense gravity, the comet fragments strike the top of the planet's atmosphere traveling at about 130,000 miles an hour. They send powerful shock waves through Jupiter's atmosphere, creating instant heat that may reach 50,000 degrees Fahren-

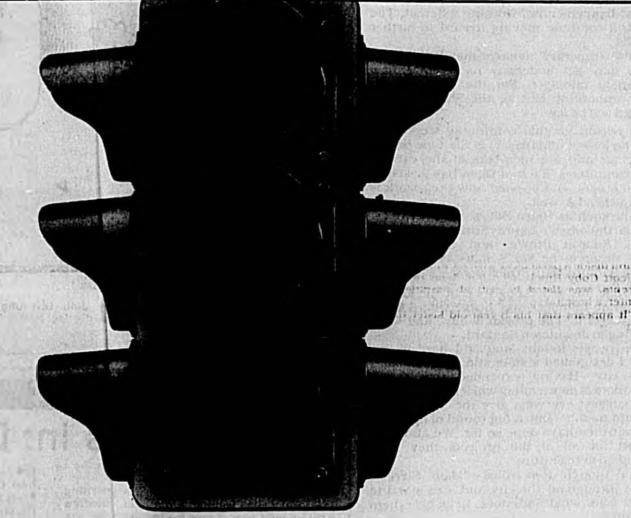

The energy released far exceeds manmade explosives.

Although it is 11 times Earth's diameter. Jupiter is mostly hydrogen gas, probably with a solid core at the center. Beneath an outer gaseous layer perhaps 100 miles thick, there are layers of ammonia and some water.

Main Street will carry on

The sudden loss of the manager of most any business endeavor can be very disastrous. As a result, some operations may find themselves grinding to a screeching hait.
Well-made plans fall by the wayside. People stand around wondering what to do without this leadership, and what will happen next. Some organizations however, have such strong support from others, even a top-level management loss won't slow progress. We have an excellent example in Sanford. The Sanford Main Street (SMS) project's manager has resigned. It wasn't expected, and came before the first full year's contract had ended.

Nevertheless, we wish Faye Fulton well in her next adventure.

What happens now? Nothing different. The SMS will continue moving foward to further its goals.

A new temporary manager may be hired, or efforts may get underway to obtain a new permanent manager. For the SMS project, this is important. But for the SMS progress. changes will be few.

The reason for this continuing work even with the loss of a manager, is the type people who chair and are members of the various SMS committees. Each of them has looked at several others, and boasted how their work is moving ahead so well. People such as Helen Stairs, Chris Cranias, Kay Bartholomew, Laura Straehla, Barbara Farrell, Sharon Brown, and many many others, deserve the lion's share of credit for making Sanford Main Street work.

If anyone has any thoughts that the loss of the program manager may hurt Sanford Main Street, forget it. The project is alive and well, and living in downtown Sanford.

Many people fought long and hard to get Sanford designated a state and national Main Street city. Having expended that much effort, there is no way they will let it die now.

We suggest everyone give the SMS leadership and membership a big round of applause for what they have done so far. We also urge support for all of the projects they have coming up in the future.

Even though it's called "Main Street", people throughout the city and area stand to benefit from what SMS does. Let's give them our support.

Common sense

Recent reports from Washington state that the Federal Drug Administration (FDA) is pushing to classify nicotine as a drug, thus regulating cigarettes. The head of the FDA has asked Congress to consider this issue as such regulation raises major questions of social policy and job dislocation. Or course, Congress has previously funded billions of dollars for cancer research while contemporaneously subsidizing the growing of tobacco. This schizophrenic approach continues as committees in the Senate and House writing health legislation are basing the funding of such legisla-tion on a cigarette tax. Senator Moynihan (D-NY) has recently proposed a $1 a pack tax on cigarettes. If there are no cigarettes to tax, the funding for health care reform collapses. The more cigarettes sold, the more taxes are colected for funding health care. Yet the more cigarettes sold, the street of the street the greater our health costs.

If this was not so serious it would be funny. There appears to be two approaches that Congress could take. If in fact Congress believes that cigarettes are the major health care problem in the packaging. Congress should act to eliminate cigarettes over a period of time. One could argue that while there would be economic problems caused by the acting the packaging of the could be considered by the acting the period of the could be considered by the acting the period of the could be considered by the acting the period of the could be considered by the acting the period of the could be considered by the acting the period of the could be considered by the acting the could be considered by the acting the could be considered by the acting the could be considered by the could b in health care costs. If, on the other hand, the Congress does not believe that cigarettes are any more dangerous than alcohol. Congress should not ban or regulate cigarettes, but continue to hubsidise the growing of tobacco and tax eigerettes at a substantial rate.

While each of us may have our preferences. Congress should take one approach or the other and not adopt two contrary positions. Common sense should not be illegal in government.

Clinton policies not always wrong

The caller was indignant. "Why," she asked me, during a C-SPAN call-in show, "are the media so hard on President Clinton?"

Her sentiments were echoed by several other viewers, who were persuaded that the president's low standing in the polls is a direct result of a smear campaign waged by right-wing "Clinton-haters" and abetted by journalists like

It is understandable that those blindly loyal to the president want to believe this fiction. But the reality is that the president's abysmally low approval rating is attributable to his unpopular domestic policies, his unsteady hand in foreign affairs and lingering questions about his character in the wake of the Whitewater and Paula Jones scandals.

It would be unfair to declare the Clinton presidency a failure after only 17 months. But the president's accomplishments - and he certainly has had a few - are outweighed by his shortcomings, at least in the minds of many Americans.

It must be remembered that Clinton captured the White House with only 43 percent of the popular vote. That means that the majority of the electorate would have preferred someone else in the Oval Office.

pealed to the majority of the population. But, instead, he has spent the first year and a half of his presidency playing to the liberal minority of the electorate. The Clinton supporters ask: "lan't there anything at all the president has done since he took office that is supported by the con-servatives who otherwise disagree with his policies?"

Why yes, there is, in fact, the president has made a few moves that have won high marks from the loyal opposition.

For instance, the one good thing to come out of Clinton might have broadened his base of support by pursuing moderate to conservative policies that apcredit program.

The credit is targeted to America's working poor parents, who toll in full-time jobs, but carn too little income to raise their families above the poverty line.

The credit reduces or eliminates the income tax burden on families bringing home less than $25,300 a year. The biggest beneficiaries are those with annual earnings between $7,750 and $11,000, who are eligible for a credit of $2,528 (for a family of four) this year. The credit increases to $3,370 by 1996.

The beauty of the earned income tax credit is that it rewards poor Americans for working. unlike the present welfare system. Families filing for the credit can receive their payments in a lump sum after the tax deadline or can arrange with their employers to have a portion of it added monthly to their paychecks.

The president's supporters simply are wrong when they suggest that he receives no credit when it is due. In fact, the president has received abundant praise when he has been on the right side of the issues. The problem is that he has not been on the right side of enough of them.

The doctor is in: Dr. Barbie?

WASHINGTON — Let's pretend.

You've just moved to town. One morning, you wake up feeling under the weather. Visiting your new doctor for the first time, you fill out some forms and are led to a waiting room. The doctor enters

She looks about 23. Tall and thin, she has a 36-inch bust. Her cascading hair — a weave?
— is pulled into a ponytail. Besides the traditional lab coat, ahe wears clunky earrings, a tight blue minidress and, at the bottom of her mile-long legs, five-inch high heels.
Her fuschia stethoscope matches her lipstick.

"Hil" she says, smiling, "I'm Dr. Barbie!"

What do you do?

Probably the same thing I did last week when I opened a press package from Mattel Inc. and found Dr. Barbie smiling at me from a hot-pink box: Just stared, slack-mouthed and

Also in the kit: a Mattel-commissioned study on kids' knowledge about diet and nutrition based on interviews with 5- and 6-year-olds. Among the findings: Children whose parents reinforce healthy behavior are more likely to adopt such habits, and kids think the best way to stay healthy is to "eat good food."
As a veteran journalist, I was appalled by the study's obvious purpose: to get reporters to flack Mattel toys under the guise of providing flack Mattel toys under the guise of providing useful info to the public.

I caved in immediately.

Barbie seduced me. Just like she did when I was 6, and all the other girls had Barbies and I got a knockoff. Though my doll's face was different — My mom deemed Barbie "historis" — she had Barbie's showgirl figure and painfully arched feet. But my Brand-X doll lacked the panache, the zing, the crass materialism that makes Barbie, well, Barbie.

Actually she's more than just a great

Actually ahe's more than just a great shopper. Barbie is the perfect American doll. Like much of the great nation of her birth, Barbie has no shame.

Take Dr. Barbie. Dr. Barbie. Note how she Take Dr. Barbie. Dr. Barbie. Note how she combines a slinky minidress, alut shoes and tons of hair with a lab coat and doctor bag, transforming herself into some folks' 90s dream girl: the brilliant bimbo.

And she's holding a baby!!!

Of course. Would Dr. Barbie threaten her manicure with a yucky medical specialty like urology? Would a doll who's never even seen a git become a dermatologist? And while zit become a dermatologist? And while eternal-babe Barbie may appear to use a plastic eternal-babe Barbie may appear to use a plantic surgeon. she could never be one — aging patients would hill her.

What could she be but a pediatrician?
But the real test has to be a genuine child. I recruited recent kindergarten graduate Krystle Garay, of Bilver Spring, Md. Krystle, says her mom. Myrna — who learned about Barbie in her native El Salvador — likes dolls but "lan't into them like girls who drag them around everywhere." She owns two standard-issue Barbies.

For a long moment, Krystle studied the doll, her tiny patient and the powder-blue cardboard "office" both are packaged in. Then she spoke: "Oooooohhhhh."

What I saked, did she love? Krystle pointed at the baby.

Anything elec?
Unhesitatingly, she pointed again — at the stethoscope. Immediately Krystle set to work. First she made Dr. Barble check the baby's heartbeat. which can be heard thump-thumping through the pink stethoscope. Then Krystle checked Barbie's ticker, saying, "Now, I'm the doctor." Watching her, my awed contempt for Dr. Barbie changed to, well, awed emi-contempt.

I thought of all the real-life Dr. Barbies -women whose kick-butt seriousness about their jobs and families appears to clash with their feminine confiding-flirting-shopping-iingerie-wearing selves. Women are many-sided creatures, and I like that Barbie reflects that, however faintly.

Barble seduced me. Just like she did when I was 5, and all the other girls had Barbies and I got a knockoff.

But why can't a doll who helps shape little girls' fantasics be the slightest bit real? I won't deal with Dr. Barbie's idealized body or homogenized looks. Let's talk wardrobe.

Barbie has dozens of froufrou get-ups. Great, so do !. But when she's working, shouldn't her clothes reflect it - stylish slacks and low heels like those worn by real women doctors too weary to go club-hopping after work? With her pre-shaped foot, Barbie is essentially incapable of wearing flats. Who is she supposed to appeal to - litle girls or their daddies?

Miniskirts and matching accessories are still seductive. But Krystle's reaction to Dr. Barble suggests that doing something worthwhile — levingly tending to a helpless baby, assuring another's good health — is appealing too, I bet she'd love Dr. Barbie even if she wasn't dressed like Heather Locklear.

Barbie may be dumb as dirt. But 5-year-olds are smarter than we think.

Surviving those summer get-aways

As I contemplate my upcoming vacation, I've found this thought coming to mind more and more: Do you think if I just told everyone I was going somewhere swell, then contracted with some underpaid secretary at the Chamber of Commerce there to sign my name to some postcards and mail them to my friends. I could just stay home in the air conditioning. order pizza in and read a couple of good

Some people are unlucky in love; I'm unlucky in vacations. One of my problems is that I'm motelimpaired. If there is only one hell-pit among an entire mile-long strip of motels, I will find it. I have stayed in a motel run by a family from a country so foreign I expected to see an aproned goat pushing the maid's cart down the hall the next morning. The smells wafting from their kitchen when I checked in reminded me of the time my dad put all the bagworms off our trees in a big pile and burned them. Twist ties and beer-can tabs held fast to the shag carpeting in my room, where a small boy stood on a kitchen chair trying to get the cable connection to work. As soon as he'd step down, the screen would collapse into snow. "I see if Mom let me stay here a while so you have TV," he offered. I declined. But the worst motel was just outside Dallas, the one with the big neon sign broadcasting "$29.95 for two." When the clerk conducted business through a sheet of builet-proof glass, that should have been my first clue. When I discovered that $29.95 was only for two hours and the entire night would be $80, that should have been my second.

And when I heard cars coming and going more frequently than at the drive-up window at McDonald's, that should have sent me right back into my car and onto the interstate. But nooooooooo. I had to stay until I heard gunshots.

Vacation problem No. 2 is that I can't seem to pass a convenience store without thinking I have to have something to drink, yet I never seem to need to go to the bathroom until I'm on a lonely stretch of road that hasn't seen a gas station in 20 years.

That certainly makes for some big road-trip fun, especially if you're traveling with a man who avails himself of every rest stop in North America (and, by the way, is unfairly equipped by nature to make a discreet pit stop at the side of any road if necessary). You're on the turnpike and he's yelling at you, "You should have thought of this before we started out!" and you're begging toll-booth attendants, "Just let me go wherever it is you guys go! I know you must have a bathroom in there!"

Problem No. 3 is that I'm somewhat deficient in the houseguest department. I don't like having to share anything, much less a bathroom with five other people. Would you like to stay with a person who strings jars of makeup and goober goo on every inch of a vanity, someone who holes up in the only bathroom for an hour and a half every morning? Well, neither do my hosts.

I don't like to hear the shricking of small children before 10 a.m., even if they are my godehildren and there's a smiling photo of me with them on their parents' mantel. I don't like to hear them whining in the shopping malls, no matter how long we've dragged them around by their little arm sockets while we look at clothes.

But perhaps my most damaging problem is that I never leave myself enough time to recuperate before going back to work. I allow just enough time to drive home, catatonic and not speaking to anyone, the day before I'm due back.

Court denies injunction to overturn districts

From Staff and Wire Reports

TALLAHASSEE - Three federal judges refused to overturn - at least for this year's elections - the 3rd Congressional District boundaries they drew after lawmakers deadlocked in

The panel on Monday denied ah order sought by a Jacksonville attorney who said U.S. Supreme Court rulings invalidated the 3rd district boundary that meanders through parts of 14 counties and 39 cities and communities.

District 3 includes the predominately-black Seminole County communities of Midway, Goldsboro, Bookertown and Winwood. It also includes portions of Sanford and the exclusive neighborhoods west of Markham Woods Road.

With primary elections scheduled Sept. 8, said Judge Joseph Hatchett: "We find the public interest to be disserved by granting a preliminary injunction."

Though denying the injunc-tion affecting this year's elections, the judges heard arguments and said they would rule later on attorney Rod Sullivan's claim that the current district boundaries are invalid.

Sullivan said he hadn't decided whether to file an appeal of the injunction denial, which would go directly to the U.S.

Supreme Court. in 1992, Florida's congressional districts were mapped out by the three-judge panel after lawmakers couldn't agree on boundaries to satisfy Republicans, Democrats, and the federal Voting Rights Act.

tiffs including Jacksonville radio talk show host and former congressional candidate Andy Johnson, called the resulting 3rd District an example of "racial gerrymandering."

Johnson objected to combin-ing scattered areas of black strength to form a new district capable of electing a black representative - in this case U.S. Rep. Corinne Brown, D. Jacksonville.

"It has changed the political landscape," he argued.

Sullivan said more minority representatives would mean different votes in Congress on controversial subjects such as gun control, health care and policy toward Haiti.

George Waas, representing the Florida Secretary of State's Of-fice, noted Johnson ran unsuccessfully against Brown in 1992, but isn't a candidate in this current election.

"Presumably he's not satisfied with his congressional representative's votes on some key issues," Waas said.

That doesn't justify changing district maps, Wass said. "No congressional representative, no senator, can ever vote a single vote that satisfies 100 percent of their constituents. It's an impossibility."

"Corinne Brown remains fully qualified to represent any voter in her district," said Rodney Gregory, an attorney for Brown. In a statement released later Monday by her Washington office, Brown said she was "very encouraged" by the U.S. district court's ruling.

Florida Attorney General's efforts to have this case dismissed as groundless and frivolous." Brown said. "The Court's latest ruling demonstrates the weakness of the plaintiff's case." The judges said they would also rule later on a motion by Waas to dismiss the complaint.

Sullivan asked the court to order the districts set saide for the current election and order them redrawn by the state Legislature.

Elaine New, attorney for the Florida House of Representatives, said if the court does strike down the districts. lawmakers want the right to make the first attempt to redraw

The Legislature would be entitled to reopen the battle over reapportionment without court action, New said. But, she said, "no legislation has been filed to do that." Taxpayers had to shell out $1.45 million to lawyers for Republicans, blacks and Hispanics who sued the state in 1992 as lawmakers tried to agree on districts acceptable to the federal courts and U.S. Justice Department.

But they never agreed on the congressional districts.

"They threw it to us," said U.S. District Judge William Stafford. In June, in a case involving districts of Florida's state lawmakers, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that blacks and Hispanics must be able to elect politicians in numbers "roughly proportional" to their share of the population — but shouldn't get special treatment when dis-"I have strongly supported the tricts are drawn.

Consumer prices rise in June

By JAMES N. RUBIM Associated Press Writer

"Goods prices, outside of energy and food, have accelerated and likely will continue due to low inventories for items like automobiles and apparel," he said. "But offsetting that is deceleration in services prices."

The Labor Department said today that energy prices, after declining 1 percent in May, edged up 0.1 percent last month largely because of a turnaround in gasoline prices.

The commissioners also increased the distances adult-type businesses may be from residental areas, churches, schools and similar businesses. The city commissioners designated corridors along U.S. Highway 17-92, Highway 427 and State Road 434.

City attorney Richard S. Taylor repeatedly advised the commissioners an attempt to ban adult businesses by making restrictions so stringent that the business is not allowed or could not operate, would result in a court challenge and the ordinance might overturned.

Final rule released for 'is it American?' label

By LISA ZAGAROLI Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - Consumers confused over the increasingly blurred lines of whether or not a new ear is American will get some help in showrooms beginning Oct. 1.

A new window sticker will list the combined percentage of parts of the vehicle made in the United States or Canada, where the engine and transmission were made, the name of any nation that supplied more than 15 percent of a vehicle's value and the place of final assembly.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration issued its final rule Monday on how manufacturers must calculate the information.

U.S. automakers hope the label, required by a 1992 law, will quash advertising efforts by foreign-owned manufacturers to depict their vehicles as "made in America." But importers, who do build some of their cars in the United States, say the American Automobile Labeling Act will be misleading to consumers.

Foreign automakers say the labels are decelying because the value of labor isn't included in the calculations, U.S. and Canadian parts are grouped together and the same part that comes from an internal supplier could be counted differently if purchased by another manufacturer.

Another contentious point is that all cars with the same nameplate will be counted the same even if they are built in more than one country. In other words, a Toyota Camry built in Japan will have the same statistics as one built in Kentucky.

NHTSA decided to allow manufacturers to add a sentence further explaining the domestic content of the vehicles built in the United States.

"We're in favor of a label that would provide accurate information to consumers, but this label would provide useless information to the consumer," said Morry Markowits, a spokesman for the Association of International Automobile Manufacturers.

Jason Vines, a spokesman for the U.S. Big-Three trade group, the American Automobile Manufacturers Association, said all producers are operating under the same rules.

'it's not misleading: it's the first time we have something that's consistent and uniform for the manufacturers," Vines said. "What's been misleading and confusing are comments made by some of those manufacturers that oppose this law most stridently.

'Up to now, that's all consumers have had to go on is these advertisements. Come Oct. 1, they can look on the window sticker and have five simple pieces of information they can use or they Clearly, the law was meant by Congress to boost sales for U.S. automakers. But consumers might be more surprised to see "assembled in Mexico" on a U.S. nameplate than they would be to see that a Japanese car has Japanese parts, Markowitz said.

"That's true," Vines said, "but then it's your decision."

Manufacturers are free to design the label as part of the price sticker or fuel economy sticker. If separate, the content label must measure at least 3 inches by 5 inches.

NHTSA estimated the cost of the label to be between 6 cents and 11 cents per vehicle for the 14 million vehicles sold each year in the United

While all new cars are expected to have the labels by Oct. 1, NHTSA won't start checking the accuracy of the numbers until June 1995, to give automakers time to get used to the calculations, said Barry Felrice, associate administrator for rule-making at NHTSA.

lower babies' AIDS risk at birth Study suggests Caesareans

By LAURAN NEERGAARD Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - Pregnant women with the AIDS virus who experience complications during delivery may have slightly better chances of delivering healthy babies if they quickly undergo a Caesarean section, a study sugthe greater the risk.

A study in Tuesday's American Journal of Public Health lends credence to that theory and suggests a way to help.

Researcher Louise Kuhn of Columbia University discovered that 632 bables with AIDS in New York were more likely than similar "control" infants to have undergone complicated deliveries, everything from prolonged labor to premature rupture of membranes or excessive bleeding. But HIV-Infected women who underwent a Caesarean with no complications had only a 19 percent chance of passing the fatal virus to their bables, versus a 25 percent chance during a birth canal, exposed to the vaginal delivery with no complications, she found.

The problem: Other studies have suggested Caesarcans actually could spur HIV transmission by exposing the child to more blood than a routine vaginal delivery. And there are no data on how well the mothers, with their weakened immune systems, survive such major surgery. So Kuhn looked at complicated deliveries, where the unborn child is already in danger, and Caesareans posed less risk: 38 percent versus 41 percent.

While one study isn't proof. she concluded that if a woman begins experiencing complications, doctors might protect the unborn child by quickly opting for a Caesarean.

changes in obstetric practice to reduce HIV transmission," agreed Dr. James Goedert of the National Cancer Institute in an editorial accompanying the study.

Doctors now have only one way to protect unborn children. In February, the National Institutes of Health reported that mothers who take the drug AZT during pregnancy and labor greatly reduce the rate of HIV transmission, from 25 percent to 8 percent.

But AZT isn't the whole answer to stopping the tide of AIDS-stricken children that now numbers 5,000 in the United States alone, Goedert said. There are some 80,000 HIV-infected heterosexual women of This knowledge may lead to childbearing age in this country.

Home runs doom Marlins

CINCINNATI - Kevin Mitchell and Reggie Sanders hit consecutive homers in the sixth inning to break a 3-3 tie, powering the Cincinnati Reds over the Florida Mariins, 5-3.

The Reds scored twice in the first on Barry Larkin's triple and Hal Morris' groundout, and Mitchell's RBI double made it 3-1 in the third. The Marins tied it in the sixth on Jeff Conine's 15th homer after Gary Sheffield's 19th homer in the first and Dave Magadan's RBI single in the fourth had made the score 3-2.

Judge agrees with NBA owners

NEW YORK — U.S. District Judge Kevin Duffy declared the NBA's salary cap, college draft and right of first refusal legal and urged the league and its players to stay out of court in the future.

Duffy rejected the NBA Players Association's argument that the salary cap violated antitrust law, saying the NBA was not subject to the law as collective bearing of

Indians' Belie suspended

CLEVELAND — Cleveland Indians outfielder Albert Belle was suspended for 10 days for attempting to use a corked bat following a weekend investigation that included a mysterious switched bat.

Belle appealed the suspension, which will be delayed until his hearing before American League president Bobby Brown on July 29.

The bat, supplied to the league Sunday by the indians after someone in the organization took it from the umpires' dressing room in Chicago's Comiskey Park on Friday, was found to contain cork when it was X-rayed and sawed open.

The Indians have not disclosed who switched bats. The culprit apparently used a ceiling crawispace to get into the locked room.

Baseball fighting begins

NEW YORK — Players rejected the owners' salary cap proposal, moving the sides closer to a confrontation that could interrupt the season.

During a four-hour bargaining session, union head Donald Fehr asked owners to return salary arbitration to two years instead of three and to raise the minimum salary from $109,000 to between $175,000 and $200,000.

From Staff Reports

LONGWOOD - Championship teams make championship plays.

For the first time in the Babe Ruth Baseball Florida State Bambino Major A Tournament at Candyland Park, the host Longwood All-Stars found themselves really pressured as the Latino Americana All-Stars from Miami were on the verge of at least tying up the championship game in the top of the sixth inning Monday morning.

Entering the sixth inning, Latino Americana trailed 5-2, but the visitors scored two runs against Longwood's Kyle Bono and had runners on second and third with only one out.

Longwood manager John Melillo went to the bullpen for ace Mike Pogozalski, who had two wins in the tournament already, to try to secure the state title.

It took "Page" just one pitch to get the job done as third baseman Mike Graves grabbed a one hop shot, held the runner and threw on to first for the second out. The Miami runner on third still thought he could score and broke for the plate, but first baseman Jeff Halbert made a perfect throw to catcher Chris Westervelt, who blocked the runner off the plate for the final out.

Graves was the starting pitcher, but had to leave after the fourth inning with the score tied at 2-2 because he had pitched his limit of innings in the tournament.

Bono came on to retire the side in order in the fifth inning before running into trouble in the sixth and carned his first win of the tournament after his teammates scored three runs in the bottom of the fifth inning. Pagozalski got the

Westview draws even with Premier

SANFORD - Two weeks off did little to dampen the fire of a battle for the top spot in the Sanford Recreation Department Summer Recreational Volleyball League at the Sanford Middle School Gymnatorium Monday

D. @. 40

The league opened its season back on June 27th, then took off for the Fourth of July holiday and then had last week's action postponed.

But the two teams that have gone quickly to the top of the standings, Premier and Westview Baptist Church, picked up right where they left off last month as they again went 9-1 between them.

The only difference this time was that it was Westview Baptist posting the perfect 5-0 week, while Premier went 4-1. Westview, which lost a 15-13 decision to Premier the first week, got a measure of revenge with a 15-12 triumph over Premier this week.

The competition overall in the league this week was very tight as in 11 of the 15 games played both teams scoring at least 10 points. The other teams' records for this week found B & M Lawn, which did not have enough players to field a team the first week, finishing third with a 3-2 mark, while Sanford First Baptist Church; Palmetto Avenue

DAVIE - An amiable Dan Marino waved to fans, signed autographs and slapped paims with a young boy wearing the quarterback's No. 13.

But Marino's mood changed when a reporter suggested he might never fully recover from a ruptured Achilles tendon suffered last October.

"I'll be back," he said. "There's no problem with that.

Then Marino limped to the locker room.

On the opening day of training camp Monday, the quarterback ran every play with the starting unit. Today, he planned to work out in pads for the first time since the first serious injury of his NFL career.

"It's been a long time since I've tried to go full speed," he told a cluster of 30 reporters and cameramen after practice. "I've got a little ways to go. "I don't have to be 100 percent until the season starts."

The 32-year-old Marino's comeback began at a one-week camp in June. Now the pace picks up.

"He had a good practice," coach Don Shula said. "He threw the ball well and seems much more comfortable moving around.

"In the drills we've seen Dan take part in, the arm strength is as good or better than ever. I don't think his arm has ever had as much rest as it had last year. He's eager to give it some brace on his left knee. But it's his right leg that hurts.

"For a long time, there's going to be some pain," he said.

As usual, Marino wore a big on Miami's first day "That's just the way it is. I ji

Marino runs offense

have to accept it." Asked about his limp, Mari said, "I'm not limping." Then smiled.

Two-a-days are scheduled the week, but Marino likely practice only once a day. T first preseason game is July against the Giants in New Yor and it's unknown wheth Marino will see action.

"We're going to pretty muc play it by car." Shula said When we start working in pad we'll gradually ease him into i and then make decisions as t how much he'll play in ou preseason.

'It takes a long time for the Achilles. It's not an injury that you rehab from easily."

Quarterbacks coach Gary Stevens said Marino will need no more preseason action than usual. Marino typically takes fewer than half the snaps in exhibition games.

"He's been in the league for 11 years." Stevens said. "All he needs to do is just get the feel."

Marino will share time during training camp with four other quarterbacks, including new backup Bernie Kosar, who was signed as a free agent during the offseason. The regular season begins Sept. 4.

Last year, the Dolphins were 4-1 in games with Marino and 5-6 without him. A five-game louing streak to end the season kept them out of the playoffs.

"If we depend on one person to take us places, we're in bad shape," Bryan Cox said, "Everybody here wants Dan to be able to play every game, but we can't go to the bank on that. We have to be prepared to do our job with or without him, and that's the same with any player on this team."

In other feature events, Mike Stratton rolled his way into the Sportsolution Winners Circle one more time in the Pro Stocks, newcomer Jimmy Ammons outdistanced a 21 car field in the Hobby Stocks and Lenny Hixson was the Winner in the Mini Stock trophy dash.

After a regular program this Friday night, the speedway will be the site of a special show on Friday and Saturday, July 29-30, as the Bendesen Battle of the Monster Trucks will take center stage. Also on the card will be motorcycle stuntman Sky Lungston, who will attempt to leap 10 cars, a 100-lap Enduro. 30-lapper for Mini Stocks and Hobby Stocks, plus the Daytons Legend cars.

"The car was perfect," Rankin said after the race. "The genie in the bottle is this guy in the checkered shirt (Burton Enterprises) walking up. I've got the easy part, just driving the car."

Hainey was an early challenger, but gave way to Kilpatrick, who chased Rankin to the checkers. Following Kilpatrick were Hainey, Shugart and Showers.

Stratton took the point away from the pole sitter and early leader Stacy Mathen on the 12th lap of the 20-lap Pro Stock feature. As Stratton moved away, Mathen filtered back to sixth behind Stratton, Richard Adams, Tom Low, Scott Hezel and Randy Hecker.

Aromatic crayons make perfect scents

Associated Press Writer

EASTON, Pa. — Color a lime, smell a lime. Color a tree, smell pine. Color the sky, and Crayola says you can even smell fresh air.

Starting today, the nation's premier crayon maker offers a set of 16 new sensations: Scented

The secret is tiny, aroma-filled capsules mixed into the wax. The capsules — smaller than the tiny pellets in cold capsules — burst as the crayon rubs the paper.

The smells are lime, pine, fresh air, cherry, grape, lemon, orange, strawberry, chocolate, licorice, rose, blueberry, coconut, peach, banana and bubble gum. Scents correspond to colors,

The crayons are still nontoxic, and they still have that waxy flavor - at least the bubble gum crayon does.

The scent is slight when the crayons aren't being used, but a smell not unlike fruit salad wafts from a freshly opened box. The scents can be reactivated by scratching the completed artwork.

"This idea smelled like a winner from day one because it brought a whole new dimension to the coloring experience," said Brad Drexler, a spokesman for Crayola owner Binney & Smith

Parents, have no fear.
"It was a concern kids would eat these, but we talked to moms, talked to kids, and based on that feedback we realized there wasn't an increased concern with kids wanting to put them in their mouths," Drexler said.

Binney & Smith expects to sell about 20 million Magic Scent crayons this year, or about 1 percent of its annual production of 2 billion crayons.

The smellies, which went on sale today, cost slightly more than regular Crayola crayons.

Smells that didn't make the cut included blue cheese, leather, coffee, new car, skunk, garlic and hamburger.

A 1986 Yale University study listed crayons as the 18th most recognizable smell in the United States. Coffee was No. 1.

"The scents that we picked were basically the favorite scents of kids," Drexier said, "And skunk didn't make their top picks. But it does have potential for future picks."

How to cope with Crohn's disease

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 46-year-old female recently diagnosed with Crohn's disease. I wasn't told what causes this. It was only suggested that I take Asacol 400 mg four times daily. What's this disease all about?

DEAR READER: Crohn's disease is a chronic inflammation that most commonly affects part of the small intestine, leading to diarrhea, abdominal pain, fever, weight loss, and an abdominal mass. The cause is unknown.

Crohn's disease is associated with intestinal abscesses, occasional obstruction and bleeding. Small bowel tumors may appear. The disorder will also lead to arthritis, eye inflammation, mouth ulcers, rash, and anemia.

Crohn's disease is diagnosed by X-ray and blood tests. There is no specific therapy, although antibiotics and steroids are helpful in treating acute flare-

Asacol (mesalamine) is an anti-inflammatory drug used to combat the chronic inflamma-tion of Crohn's disease; the product must be used cautiously in the presence of kidney disorders.

In my opinion, you should be under the care of a gastroenterologist in order to treat the complications that I mentioned. as well as to monitor for bowel cancer

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 23-year-old daughter has been doctoring for allergies and asthma for years. A recent CT scan of her lungs revealed emphysema in a third of one lung. She's never smoked and has been a gymnast all her life. What can you tell us about this condition and her prognosis?

DEAR READER: Despite the protestations of some lung specialists, I believe that asthma can, in some instances, lead to emphysema, a chronic lung disorder marked by destruction of pulmonary tissue, resulting in pockets of stale air ("dead air space") that may compress a normal lung. This can cause breathlessness. This form of emphysema is not related to air pollution or physical activity.

Watching four strangers play bridge, you will form an opinion about the ability of each. But obviously you should retain some flexibility in your thinking. Maybe you saw someone having an off day. Perhaps he had had a tough time at the office, or his pet salamander had just died.

In today's deal, South's two spades was an intermediate jump overcall, showing a good six-card suit and about a king more than a minimum opening

Obviously, the defenders could have taken the first four tricks. But following his partner's thin opening bid in diamonds, West understandably led that suit.

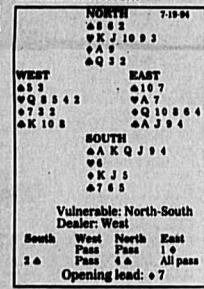

South won East's diamond queen with his king and immediately drew two rounds of trumps. He could no longer make the contract.

The simplest line is to cash the spade ace at trick two, play a diamond to dummy's ace, return to hand with a trump ("Whew -they're 2-2") and to discard one of dummy's club losers on the diamond jack. The later club ruff in the dummy will be South's 10th trick.

Was South a beginner? Far from it. He was playing in the final of the 1992 World Team Olympiad.

Colette recommended: "You will do foolish things, but do them with enthusiasm." However, this declarer wasn't too enthusiastic about his mistake. His only consolation was that his error cost less than it might have. His teammates, sitting East-West at the other table, had climbed to the Everestine heights of five diamonds. South had been happy to double and the contract went five down.

Wednesday, July 30, 1994 In the year ahead, do not throw in the towel regarding an endeavor on which you've in-vested lots of time and tears. Just when it looks like your back is to the wall, the cavalry could come to the rescue.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

Let well enough alone today in situations where associates are trying to do something for your benefit. What you have to add to the mix could sour the deal rather than sweeten it. Cancer, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In your commercial affairs today, don't be so impatient that you take the first proposal that is offered. Your deal can be improved, if you have the courage to wait things out.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Someone who historically has proven to be only a part-time ally might attempt to thwart your progress today. If you're aware of this, you'll find ways to circumvent him/her.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Hostile reactions are a possibility today if co-workers aren't treated with consideration and respect. Try to do unto others as you would have them do unto you.

would have them do unto you.

Calculated risks you take for practical purposes today should pan out. However, gambling just for the sake of gambling could produce undesirable results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In your involvements with outsiders today, you'll behave in outsiders today, you'll behave in a manner that should generate good will. Unfortunately, you might not use these same admi-rable tactics on family members. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan.

19) Today, if you have a poor attitude, it will make everything you attempt to do harder than it should be. This can be reversed. however, and inspire productivity.

AQUÁRIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Situations of a financial or worldly nature might not work out too well for you today, yet you could be very lucky in arrangements you have with persons with whom you have a strong bond.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
Your nobler qualities may be magnified today, but, unfortunately, your less-desirable traits could be as well. Be sure to display more of the former and less of the latter.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Rather than avoid social encounters today, strive to bask in them. You need a sociable sounding board to combat loneliness or despondency. Smile and partake.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Things on which you're depen-ding might be on wobbly legs today and not come through when needed. Conversely, that in which you put little stock could be a winner.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In order for successes to be meaningful for you today, what is achieved must be shared with others. If it isn't, your gratifica-tion may be only nominal. Copyright 1994 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
