Daddy's Also A Bigamist

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have been in friendship with Debbie, but I living common law with a man don't know how to go about it for 12 years. He pays all the bills and we are just like man and wife. Our kids call him "Daddy" (we have eight). I just found out by accident that he is also "Daddy" to seven other kids, and has been living common-law with another woman 30 miles from here. For years he has left her on Monday morning and come home on Thursday evening. If I can prove that he spends more time with the man than he spends with the woman, is he my common-law husband, or is he her common-law husband, or is he hers? Can a common-law husband be a bigamist? And medical society and where would it leave me if he fell over dead? Thank you.

DEAR ABBY: Debbie and I graduated from college 13 years ago. We were sorority sisters and close friends. I got married first and invited Debbie. She couldn't come, but she sent me a wedding gift. (She lived in San Francisco and I lived in Chicago.) Two years later I got an invitation to Debbie's wedding, and I am ashamed to say I didn't even acknowledge it. I kept meaning to send her a present but I never did. Debbie married a fellow who didn't have anything, but since that time I heard he has made a fantastic success in business. Makarios' Fate Doubtful After Coup

ATHENS (AP) — Greek army officers commanding the Cypriot National Guard have seized control of Cyprus and toppled the government of President Makarios. Radio Cyprus announced today. Reports differed on the fate of Makarios.

Radio Cyprus announced newspaper publisher Nicholas Sampson had been appointed president to succeed Makarios. Sampson explains the newspaper Machi, meaning combat. The radio earlier reported that Makarios had been killed but did not repeat this report in announcing the appointment of Sampson.

A Turkish Cypriot radio monitored in Ankara said Makarios had survived the coup and taken refuge with the United Nations force assigned to keep peace between Greeks and Turks on the island.

The Turkish broadcast said Makarios appealed to "all loyal Cypriots to struggle to end the foreign aggression in our homeland." It said he also sought "United Nations intervention to stop the unnecessary bloodshed among brothers."

In Greece a military source said the Greek army force had been put in a state of alert, and in Premier Premier Ecevit canceled a trip to Turkey's Aegean area and called an extraordinary cabinet meeting.

Ecevit declared Turkey "will not let any alien touch the Turkish community's basic rights on the island."

The Greek officers of the National guard were recently accused by Makarios of supporting the terrorist Eoka-B organization, which seeks to unite Cyprus with Greece.

Union with Greece, or Enosis, had also been an early goal of Makarios, but he gave it up in favor of an independent Cyprus because of bitter opposition to Enosis by the island's large Turkish minority.

Makarios, 60, was the political leader for the island's struggle for independence from Britain in the 1950s and had been president since Cyprus became independent on Aug. 16, 1960. He had been archbishop and head of the Cypriot Orthodox Church since 1960.

Britain's high commissioner to Cyprus, Steven Oliver, reported to London that the presidential palace in Nicosia was under attack, but "there is no confirmation on the whereabouts of President Makarios," a spokesman for the British Foreign Office reported.

Oliver reported that there was fighting in Nicosia, the nation's capital, and in Limassol. He said tanks had surrounded the Nicosia airport, and the rebel forces had taken over Radio Cyprus.

Normal communications with the Mediterranean island off the south coast of Turkey were severed, and the international airport at Nicosia was closed.

A broadcast communique said the National Guard, or army, which has 6,000 troops led by 600 Greek Army officers, was in "full control" and that "anybody who offers any resistance will be shot."

A correspondent for one Cypriot paper on the Greek island of Rhodes said he was told in a telephone call from Cyprus that

"hell has broken loose here; there is shooting and bombs everywhere." Then he said his telephone and telex communications went dead.

Sources at the Beirut airport reported that the international airport at Nicosia, the Cypriot capital, was closed. Telephone and telex communications between Beirut, the capital of Lebanon, and Cyprus were also cut.

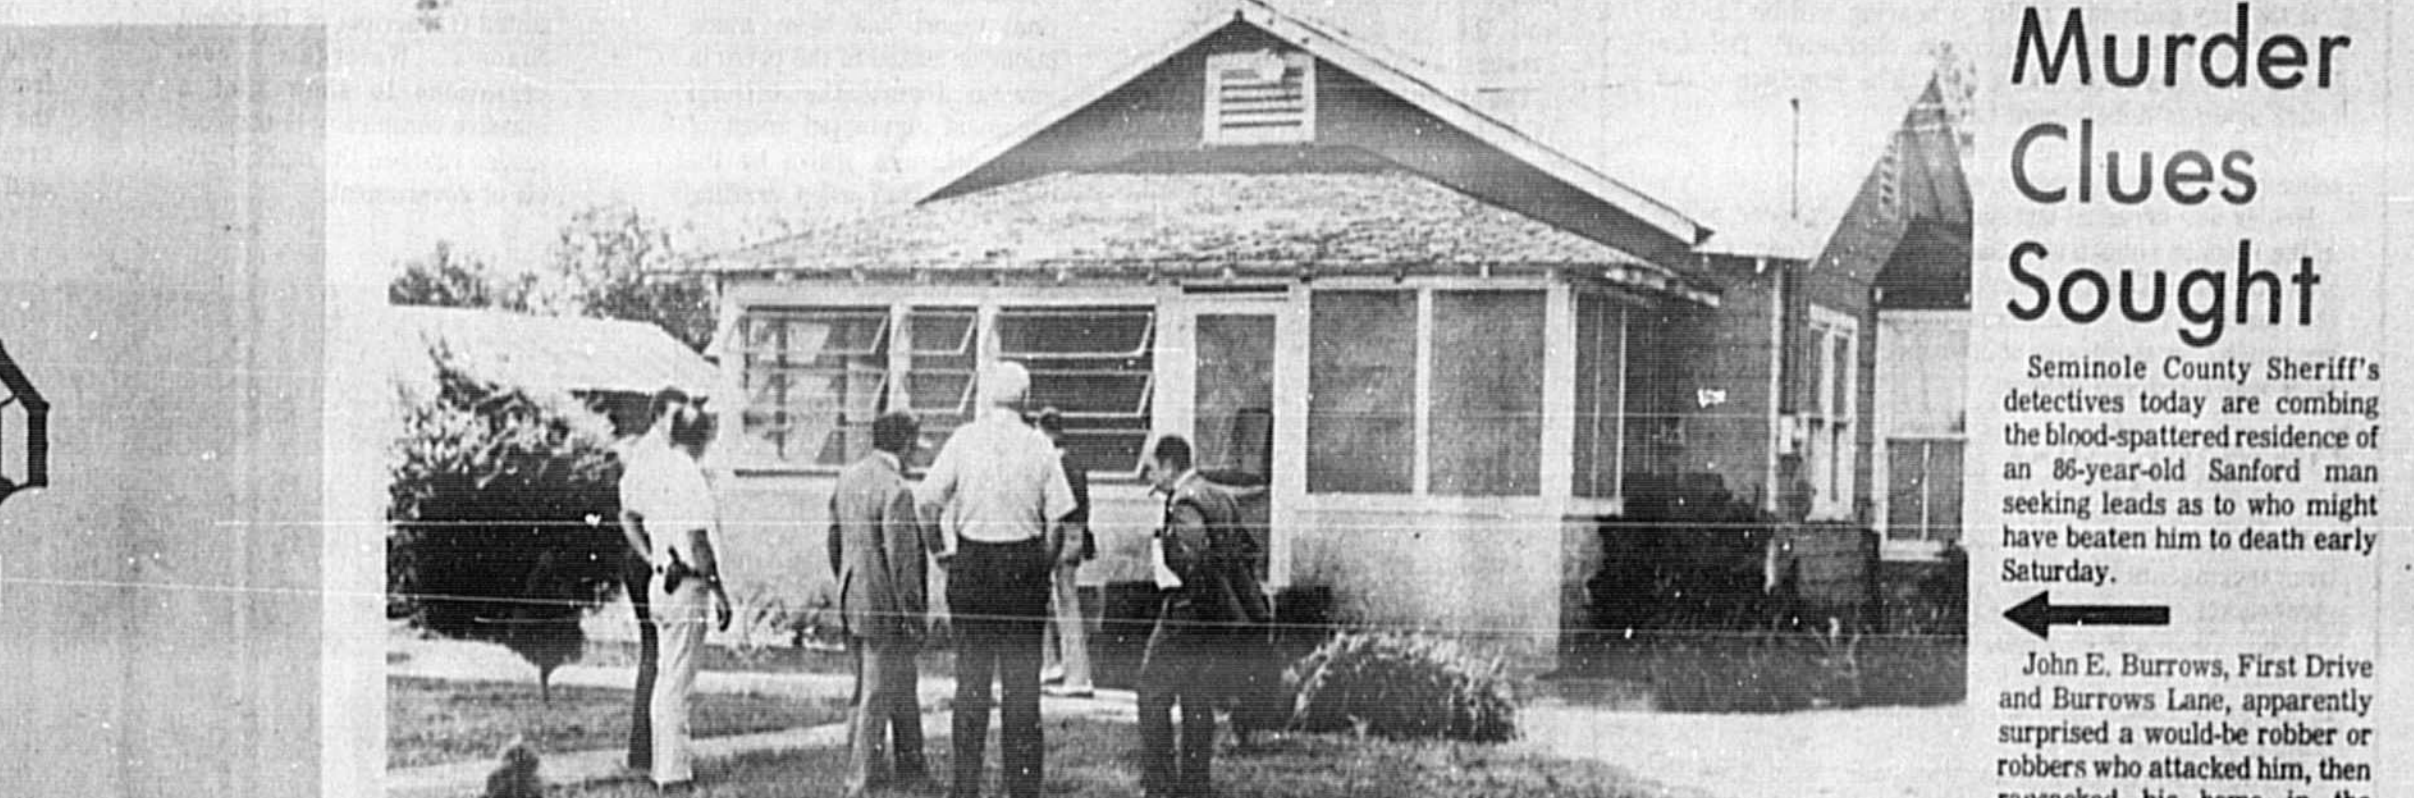

Makarios and his regime had been the target for several years of a terrorist campaign by Eoka-B, an underground army organized by the late Gen. George Grivas to fight for enosis, or union with Greece. Makarios charged at a news conference Friday that following the death of Grivas last Jan. 27, "the National Guard which is controlled by Greek officers has become the mainstay and the supplier of the criminal Eoka-B organization."

Although enosis was the original goal of both Makarios and Grivas during their war against the British, the archbishop later decided that the opposition of the island's large Turkish minority and the threat of war from Turkey made the goal unattainable for the foreseeable future.

ELDERLY MAN SLAIN AT SANFORD HOME
...Deputies seek leads to attacker

Murder Clues Sought

Seminole County Sheriff's detectives today are combing the blood-spattered residence of an 85-year-old Sanford man seeking leads as to who might have beaten him to death early Saturday.

John E. Burrows, First Drive and Burrows Lane, apparently surprised a would-be robber or robbler who attacked him, then ransacked his home in the Roseland Park Subdivision east of Sanford.

No suspects have been announced in the slaying. Detectives said they returned to the three bedroom frame house was apparently gained by cutting through the front porch screen, then breaking a window.

Detectives speculated Burrows may have fought the burglar or burglars, then crawled around the house, leaving a trail of blood before he lost consciousness in the front bedroom.

Burrows, described as a "nice old man," had complained recently to neighbors of several break-ins at his home. He reportedly told them he did not keep money in his home for that reason.

The neighbors said Burrows, who at one time owned most of the surrounding Roseland Park area, was last seen alive in the house where he lived alone at 8 p.m. Friday.

They said he did not own a car, and bicycled to church the next day. He was reportedly grocery store, and to yard work four days a week for a Sanford family.

Around the Clock Airline, Copper Workers Strike

By NICK TATRO
Associated Press Writer
National Airlines and the copper industry were hit by strikes today, but a tentative settlement was reached in the long-walkers strike by garbage-men and other city employees in Baltimore.

A union spokesman said negotiators would recommend approval of the offer to 3,000 striking Baltimore employees, some of whom have been off the job since July 1. A separate dispute involving city police remained unsettled with the issue of reprisals the main stumbling block.

The National Airlines strike involved mechanics. In the copper industry, workers walked out on four major producers in a dispute that threatened to involve 30,000 industry employees.

Prison guards and other workers picked a dozen state facilities in Ohio, with employees at some state liquor stores voting to join the job action.

The dispute between the National Football League Players Association and the NFL management Council involving players' rights entered its third week with no settlement in sight. The College All-Star game already has been canceled due to the dispute and the next casualty could be the July 27 Hall of Fame game in Canton, Ohio, which begins the exhibition season.

In Baltimore, union spokesman Barry Abe said union and city negotiators reached agreement in the municipal employees strike at about 2 a.m. Three hours later he said, both sides in the police dispute reached agreement on economic issues. He said the negotiators would recommend approval of the offer if it included a pledge of no reprisals against striking police, who walked out Thursday night, joining other city workers on the picket line.

Able declined to discuss details of the offer, saying they would first be announced to the union membership.

Elsewhere, shipworkers, miners, autoworkers and bus drivers were involved in labor disputes — most of them centered on monetary issues. Here is a breakdown.

NAPLES, Fla. — About 1,600 mechanics, inspectors, clerks, cleaners and fuel truck drivers of the International Association of Machinists struck National Airlines after an impasse in negotiations over fringe benefits.

The United Steelworkers of America spearheaded talks for a coalition of 26 copper unions. The other two unions urged employees to work. National Guard troops watched over the state's main prison at Lucasville. Courts in several cities have issued orders restricting picket activity.

Strikers are demanding legislative action to provide a 31-cent per hour pay increase. Prison guards start at $3.32 an hour.

Wages are the principal issue. Average salaries are about $4.50 hourly in the industry.

OHIO: Some 2,000 state employees, mostly prison guards and blue-collar workers, are striking at seven penal centers and five mental health hospitals. It began at one prison July 6 and has gradually spread with more walkouts expected. The Teamsters, one of three unions whose members are involved, sanctioned the strike Sunday. The other two unions urged employees to work. National Guard troops watched over the state's main prison at Lucasville. Courts in several cities have issued orders restricting picket activity.

Strikers are demanding legislative action to provide a 31-cent per hour pay increase. Prison guards start at $3.32 an hour.

BALTIMORE, Md. — Police Commissioner Donald D. Pomeroy said Sunday night he fired 82 officers who were on probation when they walked off their jobs in a wage dispute last Thursday. Others were demoted and the remainder will be judged on an individual basis after the strike is settled.

Change In Pound Hours Cuts Dog Fatality Rate

By BILL BELLEVUE
Herald Staff Writer

An English Sheep dog, several German Shepherds, a litter of two puppies, and about 15 assorted mutts of all shapes and sizes were waiting in the Seminole county pound for homes for the younger dogs and the pedigrees, but the older and many ones are usually put to sleep," Fillingier explains.

With the turnover of animals for adoption, and destruction, the average occupancy rate of the pound remains around 30 dogs.

Animals that come in with tags usually stand a better chance of leaving alive, since a grateful owner is re-united with an even more grateful pet, the tail of the latter wagging his appreciation. Or when a youngster or a lonely older finds a pup to be their friend. Occasional phone calls to the pound asking a catcher to come out and pick up a "nuisance" animal sometimes lead a little color to the operation too.

"We get calls to capture squirrels, possums, and raccoons. About all we can do is scare them away, since we have no facilities to keep them here," Fillingier says.

And then there's the duck calls. "We can't do a thing with the ducks," Fillingier admits, "there just aren't any duck ordinances in the county."

Spoke with State Rep. Eugene Starnley (R-Seminole) over the weekend, and although he promised his decision would be firm a week ago on whether to run for reelection, Moon says he has about 14 more days to make up his mind. More than likely, he will utilize that time to reevaluate his current position.

This brings us around to that Jacksonville grand jury report in which Moon's name was included as an "undicted co-conspirator," it is about as low a public statement which the judicial system can make.

Why put out a list of names of persons who were subpoenaed and did no more than offer their testimony, and later insist on calling them "undicted co-conspirators?"

They went in as innocent witnesses. They said what they had to, and came out without any charges against them. So, why not call them what they are — witnesses!

Unfortunately, the general public now has assumed these people are guilty of some crime, which is not the case. As a matter of fact, no one who was investigated by the grand jury is guilty of anything until the charges are proved in court.

It all wreaks of nothing more than dirty politics; not much better than breaking into a place. Here, they're "breaking" the reputation of these individuals, or at least trying to do so, I'd say.

Here is a hand from the World's championship women's pairs that may well be the funniest of the year.

North's opening club bid was designed to stop a club lead against an eventual no trump contract.

West's five heart bid was an effort to disrupt Blackwood, but North and South were playing that a pass showed zero or two aces; a double one or three so when her partner held two aces.

South's six club bid was intended to give North a choice between six spades and six clubs, but by this time North had forgotten that she had opened a club. North decided South was making some sort of

Defense Rests Its Case

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Prosecution and defense lawyers present final arguments today in the Houston mass murders trial of 18-year-old Elmer Wayne Henley.

The case then is expected to go to the six-man, six-woman jury.

Testimony ended Friday after the state presented 25 witnesses over a five-day period. The defense rested without putting a single witness on the stand.

District Judge Preston Dial will instruct the jury, which must decide Henley's culpability in each of the six murders with which he's charged.

If the jury finds him guilty, a hearing will be held to present evidence about Henley's character. Defense lawyers say this could take a week. The jury then would retire again to debate punishment.

Prosecutors will ask that Henley, if found guilty, be sentenced to 99 years in prison on each count.

Henley was arrested last Aug. 8 after he phoned police in the Houston suburb of Pasadena and told them he had shot and killed Dean A. Corll, 33, identified by police as the leader of a homosexual-terrorist ring that was responsible for the deaths of 27 young boys. That shooting later was ruled self defense.

Disability Plot Backfires

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A plot to collect disability insurance backfired with the fatal shooting of a Buffalo steelworker, police say.

Bobby Cunningham, 38, arranged for two teen-agers to "shoot him in the leg" July 6 but a stray bullet struck him in the head, Leo Donovan, homicide bureau chief, said Sunday.

Murphy Davis, 16, Buffalo, who police said fired the fatal shot, has been charged with first-degree manslaughter and possession of a dangerous weapon.

Another Buffalo youth, 15, has been charged with juvenile delinquency and petitioned to Family Court.

Cunningham has been employed at the nearby Lackawanna plant of the Bethlehem Steel Co., and told the youths with whom he plotted he could collect disability insurance if he was wounded in the leg, Donovan said.

Inflation Top Problem

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Forty-eight per cent of the 1,509 Americans interviewed by the Gallup Poll say they think inflation is the nation's most serious problem.

Six per cent of those interviewed May 31-June 3 gave top priority to the energy crisis. Last January, the energy crisis was listed as the No. 1 problem by 46 per cent.

In the January survey, 25 per cent of the respondents named inflation as their chief concern.

Fifteen per cent of the participants in the most recent poll were more concerned with "dissatisfaction with lack of trust in government," 11 per cent listed corruption in government and Watergate "as the nation's most serious problem; "crime-lawlessness" and "moral decline-lack of religion" received 4 per cent each; 3 per cent listed "drugs," 13 per cent listed "other problems" and 4 per cent offered no opinion.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon research specialists are satisfied the United States can adequately test several important new nuclear weapons, including bigger multiple warheads, before a limit on underground nuclear testing takes effect. "We can do what we want to do in that time frame," said one official referring to the more than 30 months remaining of unrestricted nuclear testing below ground.

Final 'Gate Report Advises Reform

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Watergate committee, which exposed the dimensions of the nation's greatest political scandal, is dead.

The seven-man panel — officially named the Senate Select Committee on Presidential Campaign Activities — expired over the weekend with the release of its 2,215-page final report detailing "one of America's most tragic happenings."

The mountains of documentary and testimonial evidence collected during the committee's 16 months of active investigation have been stored on computer tape and will be the panel's principal survivors — the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment inquiry and the Special Watergate Prosecution Force.

The aftermath of the June 17, 1972, break-in at Democratic national headquarters in the Watergate, the committee said, was "characterized by corruption, fraud and abuse of official power."

As preventive medicine, the members unanimously recommended a massive overhaul of federal election laws, creation of a permanent, independent prosecutor's office and specific limits on a president's power to violate a citizen's privacy without due process.

The report summarized the abuses uncovered in nationally televised hearings last year and officially presented the panel's findings in its investigation of various campaign financing activities and misuse of government power for political purposes.

Although virtually all of the final report had been made public or leaked to the press in various forms, the official document eliminated most of the conclusions drawn by the committee staff when drafting the report's 11 separate sections.

"There are two ways to prove a horse is a horse," said the committee chairman, self-styled "old country lawyer" Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C. "One way is to draw a picture of a horse in as much detail as possible. The other is to draw the picture and write under it, 'This is a horse.'"

While leaving it for the House Judiciary Committee and the courts to fill in the names, the committee painted a number of unmistakable portraits.

In the Watergate break-in and cover-up section of the report, the committee wrote together the testimony of John W. Dean III and the White House-edited transcripts of President Nixon's Watergate conversations to show that a massive conspiracy to obstruct justice reached the highest levels of government.

While steering clear of judging allegations that the President raised milk-support prices in exchange for campaign contributions from milk producers, the panel said administration officials "provided circumstances that were ripe for abuse."

And although it charged no illegality in the financial affairs of Nixon friend C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo, the report traced nearly $5,000 in 1968 campaign funds from Rebozo to a New York jeweler who supplied Mrs. Nixon's 60th birthday present from her husband, a pair of diamond earrings.

The committee proposed 37 reforms designed to prevent future Watergates.

"Probably the most significant reform that could emerge from the Watergate scandal," the committee said, would be creation of a nonpartisan Federal Elections Commission with power to investigate campaign abuses and enforce election laws.

The proposed seven-member commission, to be nominated by the President and confirmed by the Senate, would be given authority to levy civil penalties of up to $10,000 for election law violations and could refer apparent criminal acts to the proposed public prosecutor's office.

Noting that special prosecutors were named to investigate both the Teapot Dome and Watergate scandals, the Senate panel suggested that a similar position be created as a permanent deterrent to official misconduct.

The Office of Public Attorney, the report said, would serve not only as a special prosecutor "but an ombudsman having power to inquire into the administration of justice in the executive branch."

Equipment Firms Have Soviet Exhibit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several American firms are going to an international exhibition next month in Moscow with hopes of selling sophisticated police and criminology equipment to the Soviets.

Participation by the U.S. companies came under fire Sunday from Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who said in a televised interview: "Are we getting detente when we are going to sell to the Russians police equipment that will help the KGB to hold the dissidents even under tighter control?"

Voice Identification Inc. of Somerville, N.J., one of the American firms participating Aug. 14-23 in the Soviet-sponsored exhibition, "Krimtehnika '74," manufactures an advanced electronic voiceprint device widely used by law enforcement agencies in the United States.

Voiceprint devices identify individual characteristics in a person's voice.

Alexander I. Solzhentsov's novel "The First Circle" focused on a Stalin-era Soviet inmate where scientist prisoners were under pressure to develop a rudimentary voiceprint machine for pinpointing a political criminal.

Asked if he thought the Soviets might employ his firm's equipment in wiretapping of political dissidents, as well as against ordinary criminals, William Hughes, vice president of Voice Identification, said: "Quite honestly, I am going over there to exhibit equipment. I suppose they'll want to buy it — I certainly hope so, that's the purpose."

Sark Shuns 20th Century Off United Kingdom Coast

SARK, Channel Islands (AP) — Michael Beaumont, the new Seigneur of Sark, pledged today to try to keep his tiny Channel Island a trouble-free 19th century paradise following the death of the Dame of Sark.

"The last thing I want to do is drag the island into the 20th century," he declared.

Beaumont, 47, became the ruler of Britain's smallest and oldest dependency on the death Sunday of his grandmother, the legendary Dame Sybil Hathaway. She was the 21st in the line of seigniors, though being a woman her title was La Dame.

Dame Sybil, 90, ruled the tiny island off the Normandy coast for 47 years, shunning Nazi occupation forces, automobiles, labor unions, divorce and income, cigarette and liquor taxes. She insisted on keeping it "a place of peace and quiet" for the 600-person population and the 50,000 tourists the island attracts annually.

Beaumont said he will quit his $14,400-a-year job as a design engineer with the British Aircraft Corp., and move his family from Bristol, England, to the 13-bedroom Seigneurie on the island.

Sark is 3 1/2 miles long and 1 1/2 miles wide. Queen Elizabeth I granted it to Heller de Carteret, the first seigneur, in 1563 with instructions to populate it. There is a 52-member local legislature called the Chief Pleas. The seigneur is the final local authority and is answerable only to Queen Elizabeth II and her Privy Council.

There is hardly any crime. Divorces are not granted, and the only motorized vehicles are the tractors on some farms and the electric wheelchair the Dame permitted herself in recent years because of arthritis. But there are telephones and electricity.

Only the Dame could keep a hawk that the island would not be overrun by dogs. Only she could milk cows. She also call on every male islander over 16 to work two days a year on the few miles of roads.

"If I'm a dictator, I'm certainly a benevolent one," she once said. "I prefer to regard myself as head of one big happy family with the queen as my overlord."

She was married twice — to Dudley Beaumont, who died in 1918, and in 1929 to Robert Hathaway, an American.

Hijacker Uses Knife
TOKYO (AP) — A young man with a knife hijacked a domestic Japan Airlines flight tonight and demanded the release of a leftist radical and a plane to fly them both to North Korea, police said. They said the hijacker was in control when the plane landed at Tokyo.

The jetliner was commandeered over Nagoya, about 15 minutes after taking off from Osaka. Police said the man took over the plane at 8:25 p.m. EDT — and it landed about 30 minutes later.

Police officials said there seemed to be only one hijacker, but about 400 policemen were put in position around the airport. The airport was closed to all traffic, they said.

Colson Testimony Slated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representatives during discussions about the contribution. President Nixon's closest political advisers, is next to come up for questioning by the House Judiciary Committee impeachment inquiry.

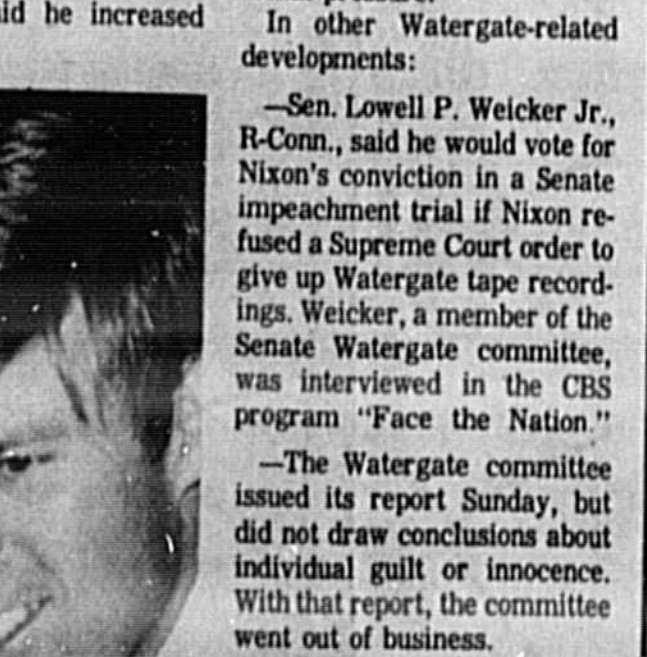

Colson, imprisoned for the part he played in White House efforts to defame Daniel Ellsberg for leaking the Pentagon Papers, appears today as the next to last witness the committee intends to call.

Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's former personal lawyer, is scheduled as a witness Tuesday. The committee's crucial deliberations are to start next Monday. A final recommendation is expected around July 30.

Colson, who held the title special counsel to the President, promised to tell everything he knows when he pleaded guilty June 3.

The committee also will question Colson about his role in helping arrange for a political contribution by the dairy industry to Nixon's 1972 campaign. One of the allegations the committee is investigating is whether Nixon raised the milk support prices in 1971 in exchange for a $2 million campaign pledge.

Colson was the White House contact man for dairy industry

Vietnam Casualties Increase

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Military sources today reported nearly 700 Vietnamese killed, wounded or missing in a sharp increase in Viet Cong and North Vietnamese attacks Sunday which the Saigon government said was intended to sabotage nationwide election of provincial and municipal councils. The government charged the Communists with 276 ceasefire violations, including 112 terrorist attacks. A spokesman said 24 civilians were killed and 120 were wounded in the terrorist attacks, while military sources reported 70 government troops and 181 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese killed, 236 government troops wounded and more than 40 missing. It was the largest number of terrorist attacks reported in one day since the cease-fire 17 1/2 months ago, but the government said 79.3 per cent of the voters cast ballots. President Nguyen Van Thieu's Democracy party is expected to win most of the seats on the councils, which are virtually powerless.

Egyptian Compensation

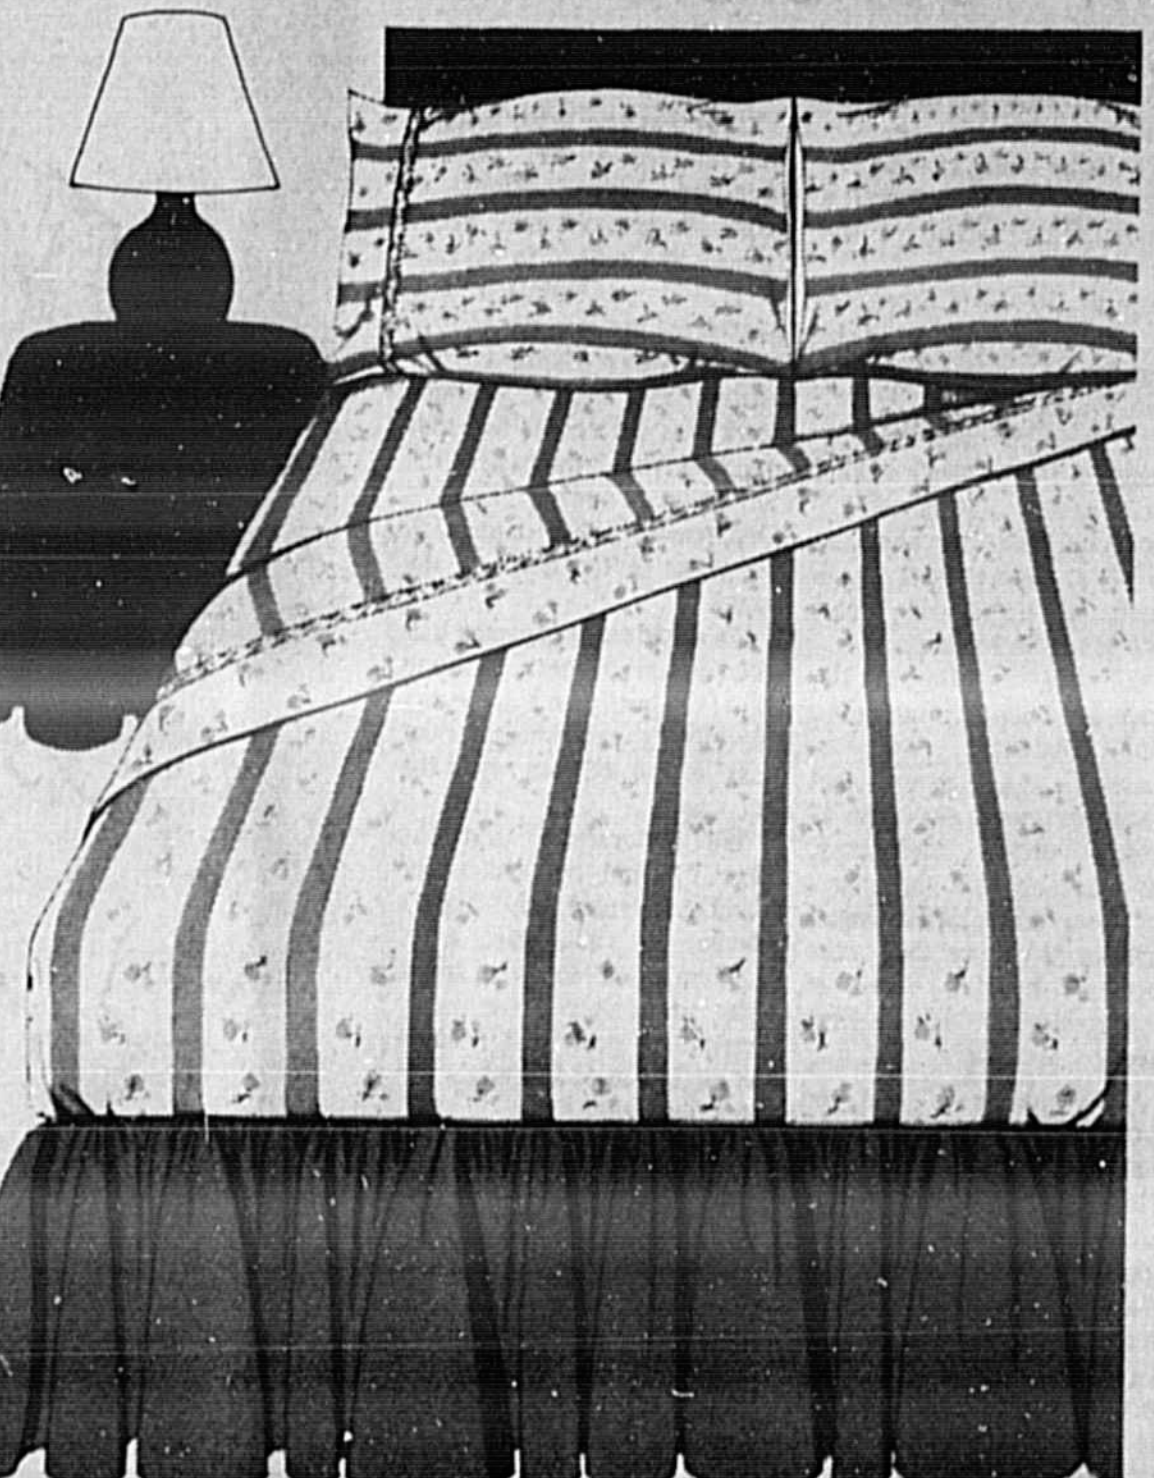

CAIRO (AP) — The Egyptian government's announcement that it is ready to discuss compensation for expropriated American property will encourage new American investment in Egypt, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon says. The Cairo government announced Sunday that it would set up a joint committee with the United States to review compensation claims. Simon, who is meeting with Egyptian officials in Cairo, said about $7.5 million in U.S. claims are in dispute, and most of them date back to 1960 or before. Simon told newsmen Egypt is exploring two oil finds in the Suez Canal area and hopes to produce up to one million barrels of oil a day by 1980. He said Egypt also may be exporting natural gas in $10 to eight years.

Editorial Sheriff's Budget Isn't Sensible

How does it happen that John Polk is in Sanford rather than Washington, D. C.?

What's he doing running the Seminole County Sheriff's Department instead of the Pentagon?

Anyone with so little regard for the taxpayers should be operating at a much higher level of government.

The headline was startling enough in itself: "Polk Asking For Record $2.5 Million." $2.5 million to run the sheriff's department in a county of 125,000-odd souls? He's not to be kidding.

And the details of the proposed budget were even more revealing.

A quick check reveals that the department now has 27 "chiefs"—sheriff, chief deputy, four captains, six lieutenants and 15 sergeants supervising 51 deputies, 10 more than were approved by the Board of Commissioners in the first place.

As a matter of fact the commissioners have questioned that what they approve and what Sheriff Polk does are not necessarily related. The board approved three captains last year and Polk hired four, they approved seven lieutenants and six were appointed, they approved employing 11 sergeants and 15 are on payroll, they approved pay raises for lower paid deputies and Polk spread the goodies among the higher-paid sergeants as well.

Earlier we mentioned that there's no way to justify a $2.5 million budget for a county of 125,000-odd souls. Well, we were being a little kind even then. Actually the sheriff's department's immediate responsibility lies only in the unincorporated areas of the county and the latest figures we have on that portion of the population shows a total of only 69,615 men, women and children.

One of the most revealing items was the line by line money requests. They contained the ritual pay raises, retirement and social security payments, office supplies, etc. One item (supplies and expenses) has nearly doubled last year's figure and one was increased four-fold (communication).

There was one item, though, that showed a very modest increase: Investigations. A police department that would require $2.5 million to operate in 1974 has budgeted only $12,000 for investigations!

We always thought "investigations" were what police work was all about, but that apparently isn't the case in the Seminole County Sheriff's Department where paperwork seems to be the name of the game.

We would earnestly hope that the Commissioners demand that Polk justify each and every increase in expenditures over last year — and then reject the package.

We understand that the sheriff would then have the right to appeal the board's decision to Tallahassee. Fine. Let him appeal. But don't add to the taxpayer's already crushing burden just because he might appeal and might win at Tallahassee.

Every department head has the right to ask whatever sums of money he believes necessary for the efficient conduct of his office.

And it is the responsibility of the Board of Commissioners to go over each request with a fine-toothed comb. Their responsibility is to the county as a whole and not to any particular faction or figure in the Courthouse.

On the evening of Monday, April 29, 1974, President Nixon told the nation that he was releasing the Watergate tape transcripts.

Whatever the other consequences of that unprecedented event, it was to figure out how to control inflation. We were concerned that no one seemed to know what to do next. Well, we were unduly concerned. Malory Horne, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, knows just what's to be done. Or at least that's the impression we get from his latest press release. Horne leads off with the observation that "it costs people too much to live" and then pledges to "work day and night, move heaven and earth to get living costs down...."

Lots of luck, Malory.

Printing The Gate Tapes Had Its Own Hidden Tale

On the evening of Monday, April 29, 1974, President Nixon told the nation that he was releasing the Watergate tape transcripts.

Whatever the other consequences of that unprecedented event, it was to figure out how to control inflation. We were concerned that no one seemed to know what to do next. Well, we were unduly concerned. Malory Horne, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, knows just what's to be done. Or at least that's the impression we get from his latest press release. Horne leads off with the observation that "it costs people too much to live" and then pledges to "work day and night, move heaven and earth to get living costs down...."

Lots of luck, Malory.

That same Thursday afternoon, the 1,300-plus pages of copy arrived at W. T. Hall Printing Co's plant in Chicago. Overnight shifts were scheduled. Equipment was allocated and production time set aside. Delivery dates for the newspapers already in production were pushed back.

By air, Hall got the copy to the typesetter, E. T. Love Publishing Co. in Nashville, by 10 p.m. Thursday. Within an hour it was being set by four tape-driven linetypes and seven manual linetypes. A team of seven proofreaders checked each galley proof twice.

Working around the clock, Love finished setting the transcripts by 4 a.m. Saturday. There was a pause while typesetters waited for the book's introduction and other editorial material, which two Bantam editors delivered from New York at 6 p.m.

Typesetting was completed early Friday morning and by 11 a.m. Love had started making up page forms. The Bantam editors supervised last-minute changes. As soon as the pages were locked up and approved, Love began making the first of 146 six-page booklet molds.

Everything went smoothly and by mid-Saturday it became apparent that Love was going to beat his scheduled Monday deadline by hours. Because the next commercial flight from Nashville to Chicago was not until Monday morning, a private jet was engaged. The jet hurried from Cincinnati to Nashville and left for Chicago about 8 p.m. Sunday with the first load of molds. In Chicago, it turned around for Nashville to pick up the Bantam editors and the remaining molds, arriving in Chicago shortly after midnight.

The molds were rushed to Hall's plant, where technicians turned out the book's rubber plates in eight hours, averaging about 110 plates an hour. The plates were then rushed to another Hall plant in the city and by 8 a.m. Monday, were on the offset presses.

In the meantime, four-color art for the book's cover had arrived at Regenstein Press in Chicago on Saturday. Plates were ready late Sunday and the job began running by 1 a.m. Monday. It was off the press

Congress Careless, Slovenly

By FRANK MILLER
The Herald Staff

WASHINGTON (NEA) — When New York Congressman Mario Biaggi began debating the wisdom of nuclear proliferation the other day, his colleagues on the floor of the House of Representatives responded to the gravity of the subject with characteristic carelessness. They clogged the aisles, turned their backs, laughed, drowsed, or picked their noses while reading from their laps.

The gavel interrupted Biaggi three times for "order in the House," but there was no order nor, perhaps, good sense. In human times past and generously described as uncertain, the Congress of the United States displays little official concern. At the time Biaggi was speaking to the deaf, the Senate chamber across the way was yawning through the business of the day with but 5 of 100 members present.

Veterans here say the situation is not unusual, that the floors are always rowdy and business usually left undone. But precedent does not legitimize sloth; and indeed, what's wrong and risky in times past is even more negligent in the days ahead. What with Watergate, inflation and daily predictions of worldwide doom, a lazy legislature is no longer a luxury but a roadblock to the way out.

"When I'm asked about Congress," says Rep. Ed Koch (D.-N.Y.), "I say it's doing a lousy job." Indeed, And seldom are there any exceptions.

Though some 44 states have passed nearly 70 laws reforming political campaigning, the Congress has done nothing. Though millions realize immediate and long-term need to regulate land use in the nation, Congress collectively is not interested.

Though Rep. Martha Griffiths wants that raise the rise of food prices down, there may be $0 million eligible for welfare by 1976, Congress slumbers over the subject.

Not long ago a bill was introduced to amend the voter registration by mail; it was pure and simple and would have helped the poor, the elderly and eventually the nation, but it went down like a stone in the Potomac.

Although much of this failure is hidden in small paragraphs in the public prints, the public is not unaware. Opinion polls indicate that nearly two of three citizens are negative about Congress. So deep is the resentment, in fact, there is growing talk of a forming voter rebellion.

Several anti-vote and anti-Congress groups have already surfaced in the nation and some politicians are mumbling of the day, perhaps in November, they prevent honest men from running for office.

To carry the fight against corruption to our states, cities and counties, will require a kind of work and a patience which many of us may not relish. It will require a day by day watch on our city councilmen and supervisors as they vote, particularly on rezonings, which enrich some residents and blast the hopes of others whose property was passed over.

We shall have to persist in boring, meticulous, year in and out searches to determine whether these votes were cast in all honesty and in the interests of the community, or in indirect favors exceedingly difficult to prove before a court of law.

We shall have to look, one by one, at the issuing of contracts for the construction of schools and other public buildings and highways.

Clearly, even many of those who do vote are fed up. And if they looked more closely at their Congress, they might throw up, Rep. Charles Wiggins (R-Calif.) was saying here recently that "People's wants are irrational — they want high quality service at no cost." What garbage.

Jack Anderson Colson Was Bugged Too

WASHINGTON — In an ironic twist, the White House's high priest of snooper, Charles Colson, was himself recently bugged as he uttered some of the Watergate scandal's most indiscreet confessions.

Colson, when he was the top White House hatchet man, was fond of flipping a switch and tape recording friends and enemies alike. A few days before he went to prison for obstructing justice, however, he was secretly recorded as he bared his soul to Washington businessman and sometime private eye Richard Bast.

Colson had come to Bast to interest him in investigating the Central Intelligence Agency which Colson felt had set him up for all his troubles with federal prosecutors. We have now heard the taped conversations.

The White House tapes were marred by the clatter of cups, the shuffling of paper and the President whistling jocular tunes. Bast's hidden microphones picked up the buzzing of bees, barking dogs and the clink of glasses filled with Johnnie Walker Black Label.

Unaware of the turning reels, Colson speculated that the Central Intelligence Agency planned a "Seven Days in May" takeover of the government. He also asserted that the Pentagon practiced extortion to keep President Nixon from arresting military men who stole his secrets.

In some times hostile, sometimes contrite language, Colson described President Nixon behind his back as being short on "nuts." Behind Colson's back, Nixon had been equally critical of Colson, the White House tapes show.

Colson complained to Bast that the President was always on the verge of coming down hard on the CIA. But, Colson grouched, Nixon was talked out of it by presidential staff chief Al Haig who feared it would "take down the whole intelligence community."

"That's where I got to be critical of Tricky Dick with this kind of lack of guts here," commented the tough-talking Bast.

Sadly, Colson agreed: "I criticize him along with you. For that reason."

Besides Bast's swimming pool, whose fountain made background water music over a "mike" secreted among poolside flowers, the two men discussed how Nixon could rid himself of CIA and military spying on the White House.

"He's got the message," brooded Colson. "And he's thinking about it. He's got a helluva problem... Nobody understands this... He can't do it himself." Colson explained that Nixon could not fully trust anyone in the White House to carry out his orders and "he can't just sit there with a machine gun."

The skeptical Bast asked why Nixon didn't simply order arrests if his National Security Council was being spied on by the military, as recent testimony has confirmed.

"He's tried to do anything about it," sighed Colson, "they would have disclosed a lot of his documents that he was worried about protecting, that they had been stealing... right from Kissinger's briefcase."

"In other words," replied Bast, "they practiced extortion on him."

"Subtly," agreed Colson.

"And the President let them get away with it?"

"Yeah," the former White House confidant conceded.

As to the CIA, Colson said that one of its former agents, Howard Hunt, while in the White House, was in contact directly or indirectly with CIA clandestine agents.

Colson said he never knew whether the CIA infiltrated the White House "to knock (Nixon) off—figuratively speaking—or whether they were in there just to spy...."

"Maybe they were trying to pull something similar to a 'Seven Days in May' deal (a fictional military coup)," suggested Bast.

"Could have been, could have been," mused Colson. "I can't say there was a conspiracy to do it, but I will say that was the practical consequence of their actions."

Nixon's theory, said Colson, was that the CIA were coming in to spy... Who knows what they want... The whole house of cards collapsed and maybe that's what they wanted.

"Right now the frightening thing is that there is no one controlling the CIA. I mean nobody... Their own file hang them high as a kite."

Colson excitedly rustled a document from his briefcase and said, "Look at this thing." As he described it to Bast, he had a tape recorder slipped under a mullig bag. It was a note he had written after visiting State Watergate cochairman Howard Baker, R-Tenn. Baker had given him names from a secret CIA memo.

According to Colson's notes, the CIA memo admitted CIA involvement in some aspects of Watergate. Colson said he had scarcely believed Baker would let him see it. "I thought it would be Baker was drunk," he marveled—a charge Baker's office hotly dismisses, saying Baker only quoted from the memo while questioning Colson, but did not let him read it.

"Why doesn't Nixon declassify these things?" asked Bast.

"The rationale of Nixon is that if he gives this up, how does he justify not giving up other things he doesn't want to give up?" This, of course, is now the President's dilemma before the Supreme Court.

Another consideration, grumbled Colson, was that Haig (who Colson suspected was the CIA) had convinced the President not to wreck the CIA just "to save himself" from impeachment.

"They play it with violins," observed Bast of such White House intrigues.

"People still dance to it," said Colson.

"And here you have the President of the United States dancing to that," replied Bast acidly.

6 Die In Weekend Wrecks

Traffic accidents on state roads this weekend killed six people, including a 7-year-old Lakeland youth who was thrown from his car when it flipped on a rural road, the Florida Highway Patrol says.

Troopers said Jack Veale was driving his car at a high speed when it turned over on a rural road two miles south of Lakeland on Saturday.

Troopers gave the following accounts of other fatalities: Charles Kaiser, 29, of Jacksonville, died when the car he was driving was struck by a train near his hometown Saturday. He was thrown from the auto.

Larry K. Jones, 27, died after his car ramed into another vehicle at an intersection near his Plant City home Saturday.

Blanche Shields, 29, of Stuart, was killed when she was thrown from her car on the Florida Turnpike near Leesburg Friday night.

A driver died after his car struck a utility pole near Tampa Friday night, and a pedestrian was killed Friday night when he was struck by an auto as he walked down the middle of a road in Ruskin, Fla. Troopers were withholding their identities until relatives could be notified.

Stone: Fuel Charge Is Issue

FORT PIERCE, Fla. (AP) — U.S. Senate candidate Richard Stone called the fuel adjustment charge on utility bills "the angriest, nastiest and most bitter issue" of the political campaign.

Stone said Sunday he sent telegrams to the Federal Energy Office and to the Florida Public Service Commission after completing a six-day swing through 27 Florida counties.

The issue "is number one in the minds of the public," Stone said.

7 Injured In Plane Crash

CEDAR KEY, Fla. (AP) — Seven people from north Florida escaped serious injury when a private plane crash-landed before reaching the airport in this Gulf Coast town, authorities said.

Two County sheriff's deputy Larry Colson said the twin-engine plane drifted off course Sunday after losing an engine enroute from Jacksonville to Lake City, Fla.

The plane's pilot, Louis C. Hollis of Lake City, and passengers Lloyd Mullinax of Jacksonville and Mr. and Mrs. David Paulk of Live Oak, Fla., were treated for minor injuries at a hospital in Gainesville, Colson said.

Three other passengers, Homer and Sharon Radloff of Live Oak and Lucy Hollis of Lake City, were only slightly injured, he said.

Ex-Policeman Sentenced

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — A former Clearwater policeman has been sentenced to five years in prison in the shooting death of a Tampa businessman.

David Hampton Jr. was found guilty of manslaughter in the Feb. 2 death of Frederic J. Wyser Jr., 41, who was shot after receiving a ticket from Hampton for obstructing traffic in downtown Clearwater.

Hampton testified at his trial that he drew his revolver after Wyser allegedly made a derogatory remark.

Candidates Set To Blitz State With Political Ads

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Now that Florida political candidates have qualified to run for office, there's nothing to prevent them from advertising their virtues.

Any day now, names like Askew, Adams, Pettigrew, Horne, Stone, Gunter and Young will appear on bumpers and billboards, and blare forth over the airwaves.

Under Florida law, candidates are not allowed to spend money on advertising — probably the single largest expense in political campaigns — until after they qualify during the two-week period reserved for that purpose.

Statewide candidates could generate a half million dollar bonanza for the state's radio and television stations and newspapers in the first primary. Dozens of other races in the Sept. 10 primary could push total spending above $1 million.

State Sen. Richard Pettigrew, D-Miami, a U.S. Senate candidate, earlier will be one of the biggest spenders or is more candid than his competitors.

"My goal is to raise $300,000 for the primary," Pettigrew said. "We expect approximately $50 to 60 per cent of that to be used for media."

Van Jones, Richard Stone's Democratic U. S. Senate primary campaign manager, wouldn't pinpoint his candidate's advertising goals but said Pettigrew's target is "what it will take to win."

Jim Smith, Gov. Reubin Askew's re-election campaign manager, said the governor plans to spend about $70,000 on advertising in his effort to fend off a primary challenge by Lt. Gov. Tom Adams.

Nick Van Nelson, Rep. Bill Gunter's Democratic U. S. Senate primary campaign manager, estimates his candidate's advertising expenditures at $85,000.

Navy Hiring Civilians In Doctor Shortage

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Facing a shortage of Navy doctors, the Jacksonville Naval Regional Medical Center is asking civilian physicians to join its staff.

The Navy offers civilian doctors $9.17 to $15.51 an hour to help take care of the 30,000 active duty servicemen and 20,000 dependents and retirees in the Jacksonville area.

Doctors are invited to participate full-time, part-time or intermittently. The Pentagon links the shortage of military doctors nationwide to the end of the draft last year. Officials say there are about 11,000 doctors in military service, 1,800 less than needed.

Only 57 Navy doctors are on duty at the Jacksonville medical center.

A few weeks ago, the hospital announced that retirees and their families could no longer be treated as outpatients. But the policy was quickly reversed after Rep. Charles E. Bennett, D-Fla., protested to the Pentagon.

Ford Stakes Out V-P Middle Ground

By JEFFERY ST. JOHN
Capley News Service

WASHINGTON—"I always read the sports page first," Vice President Gerald Ford told this columnist in an exclusive interview, "because you've got a 50-50 chance of being right on the sports page. On the front page and on the editorial page, your odds are a little less than that."

The above example of vice presidential humor surprised even his staff and Secret Service detail. Football enthusiast and former GOP House Minority Leader Ford set in his office and talked about his problems as vice president. Ford, a former athlete and the man who might be our next president, is much more powerful in physical appearance than he seems in his pictures or on TV film interviews.

When the interview began, his attitude and appearance were guarded; however, when I pointed out that some editorialists and commentators suggested he was "zigging and zagging" in his support of President Nixon, the Ford personality began to come through that protective wall.

Let Vigilance Spread To All Government

By RAY CROMLEY
The Herald Staff

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Watergate gives us the opportunity to build a new society. We have learned, as we had not known before, that we are outraged by corruption in politics — corruption we had ignored and lived with unconcerned for decades, except for occasional volcanic eruptions of protest and action which soon die away.

Now the question is whether we will keep our new resolution. The thrillsseekers will buy like so many hounds after a president and a vice president, then live of the chase and reward the corrupt city councilmen, county supervisors and state officials ro up blind.

Corrupt officials, local, state and federal, do more than that. They deprive honest tradesmen and workers of their livelihood and reward the dishonest. They deprive our children of the quality education they deserve and divert the funds to men in back rooms. By providing criminals with protection, they make possible the growth of crime thus endangering our lives and the lives of our families. They make a mockery of justice so that men who cheat us go free and we are left blind. They deprive us of our freedoms and our privacy. They prevent honest men from running for office.

To carry the fight against corruption to our states, cities and counties, will require a kind of work and a patience which many of us may not relish. It will require a day by day watch on our city councilmen and supervisors as they vote, particularly on rezonings, which enrich some residents and blast the hopes of others whose property was passed over.

We shall have to persist in boring, meticulous, year in and out searches to determine whether these votes were cast in all honesty and in the interests of the community, or in indirect favors exceedingly difficult to prove before a court of law.

We shall have to look, one by one, at the issuing of contracts for the construction of schools and other public buildings and highways.

Clearly, even many of those who do vote are fed up. And if they looked more closely at their Congress, they might throw up, Rep. Charles Wiggins (R-Calif.) was saying here recently that "People's wants are irrational — they want high quality service at no cost." What garbage.

Dear Abby Nothing to Offer Except Her Love

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 23, not pretty and don't have a good education. I had to quit school in the sixth grade to work as a car hop to support my mother and two other kids in our family. So you can see, I have nothing to offer a man except love.

A year ago, I started seeing a married man. I call him Jim. I'm not making excuses for myself. I knew it was wrong, but I really cared for him and was too weak to break it off. Jim is 38 and his wife is 27. They've been married for seven years and have been wanting a baby, but couldn't have any. They've been on a waiting list to adopt for two years.

I am pregnant by Jim, and now I am facing a big decision. Jim told his wife all about us, and I even met her. They want to have this baby so they can adopt it. I love Jim and want to do what is right. I'm sure my baby would have a good home with them, but what about me? I'm too far along for abortion now. Please, help me.

DEAR PROBLEM: My advice to you is to end the relationship with Jim now. It's difficult, I know, but you have to do it. You can't provide a home for the child with the names of some unreliable homes for unwed mothers in your area. If you want to give your baby up for adoption, do it through a legitimate agency. I see nothing, but problems (for you and for Jim and his wife) if you let

Seminole 'Y' Has Something For Everyone

By BILL BELLEVUE Herald Staff Writer

Just about anywhere you go in Seminole County, you're bound to run into a YMCA program if you look in the right places.

Seven elementary schools throughout the county host summer enrichment programs and four high schools have athletic clubs. Development

Part Two recreation centers with pools are used for swimming, and SCUBA instruction, playground fields for band twirling and cheerleading, and a wildlife preserve for a summer day camp.

The programs vary from summer to winter to accommodate the changing needs of the 5,000 odd participants. But the emphasis is always on "developing the confidence of the kids," according to Max Clark, executive director of the Seminole 'Y'.

"I may not personally agree with some of the programs like judo and karate," Clark says, "and I don't think that a kid should play football before he's 17. Yet as long as football helmets and shoulder pads are sold, kids are going to be playing. It's better they play with direction in our Pop Warner League than play on the streets."

Basic aims of all the 'Y' courses are to help a child develop his own abilities while doing something he enjoys.

One of the best manifestations of the 'Y's philosophy is its summer day camp for children from 5 to 11 years.

The camp, supervised by 'Y' program director Paul Morgan, is located in an Audubon Wildlife Preserve near Seminole County. School buses bring the children to the camp in the morning and take them home in the afternoon.

There are no air-conditioned buildings, or even crude shelters at the camp. The youngsters spend all their time outside on the banks of a small stream that meanders through the idyllic woodland setting.

The groups in tent under the watchful eye of one of the counselors, they learn about archery, canoeing, hiking, swimming, and enjoying nature.

The counselors, like Morgan, are all young, clean men and women who seem as enthusiastic as the kids with their spontaneity of spending their summer weeks outdoors.

The camp runs in four two-week sessions, with new children coming in for each session, allowing several hundred kids to attend all four sessions.

Other typical summer programs embodying the methodology of the 'Y' are the activities at the Highlands development of SR 434.

Ten swimming courses, in which there are eight classes each to accommodate practically every level of proficiency, are held over four two-week periods. Children are classed from Tadpole 1 (ages 3 to 5 who are afraid of water) to Porpoise (anyone who can do four basic strokes, float 30 minutes and use artificial resuscitation). In between are Tadpole II, Pollworm, Minnow, Fish, Flying Fish, and Shark — in order of progressive development. A child who is successful in one advanced class, is returned for a more advanced lesson.

Diving, as well as Junior and Senior Life Saving and Self-Contained Underwater Breathing Apparatus (SCUBA) diving are offered. In SCUBA, students 15 years and older can earn a Certified Diver's license upon completion of the course. Tanks and regulators are supplied with the lesson and student brings only fins, snorkel and mask.

For the older or more domestically inclined, the Highlands counselors also give instruction in Bridge I and II, Art, Cookery and Guitar.

Programs for couleians '19 and up' include Tennis I and II, Volleyball (coed), Men's and Women's Fitness, Men and Women's Slow Pitch Softball.

One out of the five state A.A.U. tournaments was held recently at Lyman and five boys from Seminole County qualified to compete in the state finals.

Boys in the Athletic clubs are counseled by local high school coaches, and receive the extra benefit of occasional visits from local college coaches and pro athletes.

Winning aside, some youths will naturally exhibit more talent and skill than others. Last year, 12-year-old Lee Baker of Forest City was one of these — he was named over thousands of other players nationally as a Pop Warner All-American.

And the list goes on and on. Countless 'Y' programs, scores of personal triumphs, and endless learning experiences that directly or indirectly involve thousands of Seminole families.

Sanford Pay Cited For Turnover

By BOB LLOYD
City Editor
Sanford City Manager Warren Knowles has informed city commissioners the city is losing key supervisory personnel because salaries are lagging behind those paid by nearby cities.

"These are key people and we've got to do something about salaries," Mayor Lee Moore agreed today.

Moore said commissioners may find a proposed 10 per cent across-the-board wage increase for all city employees won't be enough to prevent the loss of key supervisory personnel in city departments.

Knowles warned commissioners, in a memo released Monday, if supervisory salaries aren't raised the city won't be able to obtain or retain supervisory personnel.

Knowles revealed the city utility plant supervisor with the lowest salary is being paid $13,000 a year, while the highest paid is $23,000.

Moore noted that Sanford proper tax valuation figures released recently by Seminole County Tax Assessor Terry

$3,300 annual pay boost. In Sanford he was paid $9,150 a year.

County Considers Splitting School Budget Tops $50 Million

By JEAN PATTESON
Herald Staff Writer
County commissioners today officially agreed to set up a full time veteran's service office, and to switch the veteran's office's disaster preparedness and civil defense responsibilities to the County Fire Administrator's office.

Acting on a detailed recommendation by Commissioner Greg Drummond, Chairman John Kimbrough said an "informal consensus" to split the veterans-civil defense job has been agreed on, with details to be worked out during the present budget sessions.

Calling the current part-time functions carried out by Civil Defense-Veterans Officer Clinton H. Westbrook "unmanageable," the public can no longer afford to make, Drummond said the civil defense switch should not cost the taxpayers much more money than is presently being spent.

"Should a disaster strike Seminole County at the present time this county government is supremely unprepared," Drummond said.

Most expenses will go toward providing increased fail-safe communications systems which cannot be knocked out by a power failure, Drummond said.

At present, the civil defense office has no radio in his car, Drummond added.

Westbrook was absent on sick leave today, but a spokesman in his office said he had been fighting for a beefed-up disaster capability for three years.

County Budget

MIKE HATTAWAY joined fellow county commissioners Monday in trying to decipher Sheriff John Polk's record $2.5 million budget request for coming year.

Commissioners voted not to fund any new deputies or additional patrol cars but failed to reach agreement on salaries for present deputies. Polk wants to increase road deputies' salaries to $10,000 but has asked $179,000 earmarked for expense at proposed airport jail be deleted from his request and held in a mission contingency fund.

Woodlands School Opening Postponed Until 1st Of Year

It is unlikely the Woodlands Elementary School (formerly Yulee Elementary) will be ready for occupancy much before the first of next year, Sanford architect Eoghan Kelley told the Seminole County School Board Monday.

A public hearing on the budget will be scheduled before that date.

The new budget exceeds by $5 million last year's $28 million which started out at $27 million but was increased to $42 million during the year by addition of $5 million in federal funds.

The new budget has been swelled by a fund balance of $10.8 million brought forward from last year to complete construction projects started during the 1973-74 budget year.

Operating expenses account for approximately $34 million of the total budget. This is 1.2 per cent higher than last year and will be supported by an eight mill tax levy.

"This is the biggest budget we've ever had in Seminole County," commented School Supt. Wm. P. (Bud) Lyster. "The main increase is in the capital outlay budget where we've got additional money from the state, although the operating budget has also gone up. Lyster said an eight per cent salary increase for teachers and non-instructional personnel, an eight per cent salary increase for administrative and supervisory personnel, and a four per cent increase as of Jan. 1 next year on insurance, account for some of the increase in the operational budget.

Lyster said no school programs had been drastically cut or reduced, though some new methods of presenting programs will be used. For example, art in the elementary school may be taught by a class teacher rather than an art specialist.

Researcher Discovers Mosquito-Killing Bacteria

MACOMB, Ill. (AP)—A scientist says he has discovered a type of bacteria that can kill infant mosquitoes by the billions, has no apparent effect on the ecology and could save millions of lives.

The bacteria could be a potent weapon in fighting malaria, said Dr. Samuel Singer, associate professor of biological sciences at Western Illinois University.

Malaria is transmitted by the anopheles mosquito and kills about 10 million persons worldwide each year, Singer said in an interview Monday.

The racket-shaped bacteria attack tiny tadpole-like mosquito larvae growing near the surface of ponds, lakes and other water bodies.

The bacteria, known as bacillus sphaericus, are cultivated in a pale broth, and one cupful would be enough to control mosquitoes in the average farm pond or lake, said Singer.

The approach would also help control yellow fever and other diseases transmitted by mosquitoes, Singer said. "That approach is to use a disease that is likely to kill the insect," he said. "It's not to kill black biting flies and the other nasty insects that transmit parasitic worms."

"It's not as important that we find something to kill mosquitoes as it is that we are starting a kind of approach," said Singer. "That approach is to use a disease that is likely to kill the insect."

In the past several decades, mosquitoes commonly have been controlled by use of chemicals such as DDT. But research in California shows that mosquitoes have developed a resistance to such chemicals, Singer said.

Krogh: Nixon Didn't Order Ellsberg Office Break-In

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Former White House plumber Egil Krogh says President Nixon did not order the Ellsberg break-in but he thought at the time that Nixon would have approved of the operation.

Krogh said that his "general authority came from the Oval Office, but this specific act was not done on orders of the President."

Krogh said in an interview Monday night that his "general authority came from the Oval Office, but this specific act was not done on orders of the President."

"I wouldn't have done it, though, if I hadn't thought he would have approved," Krogh said. "I thought he would have approved."

Krogh, 35, was released from federal prison last month after serving 4 1/2 months of a 6-month sentence for his part in the 1971 burglary of the Los Angeles office of Dr. Lewis Fielding, Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

As head of the plumbers, a White House unit created to plug new leaks, Krogh said Nixon told him of his concern about Ellsberg's release of the Pentagon Papers, but did not authorize the use of illegal means to probe the case.

Compare these two examples and you just have to assume that we here in Florida are being penalized excessively.
