Hottfooting it in Bithlo

Seminole County residents posted some of the top elapsed times and speeds during the trial run session this past Wednesday night at the Orlando Speedworld Dragway. See Page 1B

Signs stolen, vandalized

APOPKA — Seminole County commission candidate Robert Webster reported he was nearly struck by the vehicle of a man stealing his campaign signs Monday evening. Webster, 68, reported to Seminole County deputies he approached a man removing one of his signs while driving along Bear Lake Road at 6:30 p.m. When confronted, the man became angry and drove off, narrowly missing Webster. A number of campaign signs were in the car, reported Webster. Earlier in the day, Webster said he saw the same man driving a red sports car. Deputies have identified a suspect from a tag number given by Webster. Webster has said several dozen of his signs have been vandalized or stolen from area roadways. Seventeen of them were collected by county Public Works crews for being in road right-of-ways.

School budget approved

The School Board of Seminole County gave the public a final opportunity to discuss the annual budget before putting their final stamp of approval on the proposal.

No one took them up on the offer. With no discussion from the public on Thursday evening, the board approved the 1994-95 budget.

At two public hearings already this summer, public response was minimal and the board, as expected, approved the proposal without changes.

The approved budget will give the owner of a $100,000 house with a $25,000 homestead exemption a $756.98 school taxes bill for the next year.

The $3.75 increase over last year's taxes is state-mandated.

Longwood races

LONGWOOD — Mayor Steve Miller qualified as a candidate for reelection this morning, seeking his second term as city commissioner from district 3.

Miller, who ran unopposed for his first term, is seeking reelection for a three year term. City commissioners now serve three year rather than the two year terms previously in place.

Commission seats in district 3 and 5 are up for election Nov. 8. Incumbent commissioner Paul Lovstrand has not announced whether he will seek reelection.

Qualifying for the two city commission seats continues until Sept. 16.

Mental Health reopening

SANFORD — The Seminole Community Mental Health Center, Inc., will be reopening its offices at 2462 Park Avenue this Thursday. The facility has been closed since a devastating fire last December caused extensive damage to the building's interior.

Since the fire, the center has been operating in temporary facilities.

According to the center's Associate Director Debbie R. Driakell, "We won't be holding any official reopening observance. There is so much to do, we will just be going to work as usual, back at our original location."

TO-DO Guide

Saturday, Sept. 10 — The Grace Brewer Past Presidents' organization of Evergreen Temple, Daughters of Elks, is having a community free breakfast from 8:30 a.m. until 11 a.m., at the lodge home, Cypress Avenue at Seventh Street. Grace Melton and Katie Burke are chairpersons. The breakfast is free, and offered to persons throughout the community.

2 come from behind in county races

By A. BARK SANFORD

SANFORD — Winfield Adams and Adrienne Perry demonstrated big dollar campaigns don't automatically translate to big wins.

The two come-from-behind candidates edged ahead of confident front-runners last night, one to primary victory and the other to an Oct. 4 runoff. With a 289-vote margin, Adams slipped ahead on Dennison to capture the District 4 GOP nomination. Adams now moves on to face Democrat Larry Furlong, who staged a similar upset over Sandra Glenn nearly four years ago.

With a 105-vote edge, Adrienne Perry slipped ahead of District 2 incumbent Carlton Henley, but not enough for the Democratic shoulder tap. Third-place Robert Webster carved enough votes from the pair to assure neither would win. Perry and Henley will face again in October to determine who will face Republican Randall Morris in November.

With 100 percent of the vote counted, Adams received 10,056 votes to Dennison's 9,787, a 50.7 to 49.3-percent edge. Perry received 4,035 votes, 43.3 percent; Henley received 3,930 votes, 42.2 percent; and Webster received 1,352 votes or 14.5 percent.

Cut from the jaws of twisted steel

Kenneth Lloyd Finney, center, had to be cut from his Mustang Thursday shortly before noon. The Florida Highway Patrol said he collided with a pickup truck stopped in traffic at a construction area on E. S.R. 46, east of C.R. 415. Members of Seminole County and City of Sanford fire and rescue units helped remove Finney from his vehicle. He was airlifted to Orlando Regional Medical Center for treatment of his injuries. While the investigation continues, an FHP spokesman says Finney is expected to be charged.

Kmart cuts back

County loses one store

FERN PARK — One Kmart store in Seminole County will close early next year in a corporate cutback that includes 110 closures across the country.

Kevin Boyrig at the Troy, Michigan Kmart headquarters said only five stores in Florida are to be closed, including the Fern Park location on U.S. Highway 17-92.

"The Fern Park store is the only one in your area," she told the Herald Thursday. "The closure date has been set for Feb. 12, 1995. She explained that the store has 103 associates, 91 hourly employees and 12 in management level.

The other Florida stores to be closed include one in Melbourne, one in Tallahassee, one on Atlantic Blvd. in Jacksonville, and on Nebraska Avenue in Tampa.

The Kmart store in Sanford will continue operating, having been completely remodeled and doubled in size this past year. Lake Mary and Altamonte Springs both have

Lake Mary OKs budget, millage rate

By NICK PFEIFFER
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary City Commission set millage and passed its 1994/95 budget Wednesday night. Both items were approved on first reading with no last-minute changes.

City Manager John Litton led the budget presentation during the mid-week commission meeting. "First of all," he said, "I want the taxpayers to fully understand, the city has nothing to do with setting property values."

Litton then read various items pertaining to the city's budget, including expected income, planned expenses, and proposed increases in expenditures for this coming year.

He explained that while some citizens had urged the city to specifically budget money for beautification of Phase II of the East Lake Mary Boulevard, the work would be financed through other means. He also remarked that money originally allocated for a rest room facility at the new sports complex would be returned to the general fund for other uses.

Under major expenses planned for this new fiscal year, Litton listed $124,000 for the principal portion of the Sun Drive pavement debt, $73,000 for computer and telephone upgrading.

The future of research is now at SHS

By VICKI DeGONNER

SANFORD — There'll be no more long nights of sifting through shelves of periodicals and reference materials for Seminole High School students working on a term paper.

The media center, no longer a mere library of books and periodicals, has taken the next step into the future of research.

A bank of 10 CD-ROM computers with the capacity to store the equivalent of many shelves of dusty papers and books sits in the media center ready for students.

"We're very excited about this," media specialist Lynn Cullum said. "The kids haven't had the opportunity to use it yet, but the teachers have been in here to take advantage of it."

When the time for doing research papers comes (and it will come sooner than they think), the students will have a chance to experience the cutting edge of technology.

Seminole High senior Michelle Winkle takes a look at the new CD-ROM research network available in the school's media center. Media specialist Lynn Cullum and Charlie Schomer are excited about the possibilities the high tech equipment will offer the students at the school.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Ship captain surrenders license

MIAMI — The captain of a research ship that ran aground in the Florida Keys has surrendered his captain's license. Michael Dick was at the wheel of the 170-foot Columbus Iselin Aug. 10 when it hit the preserved Looe Key reef in the Florida Keys National Marine Sanctuary after oceanographers aboard deployed high-tech water thermometers. The scientists told the captain their equipment failed and he was about to make another sweep when the ship grounded that night. "What happened, happened," Dick said from his Bremerton, Wash., home shortly after turning in his license Wednesday to the Coast Guard in Seattle. "You can't turn back the clock," he said. "In the end, for my own peace of mind and for other reasons, I made the decision I did." Witnesses told investigators the night was clear and a nearby warning light was visible when the ship rammed four coral formations. Dick was charged by the Coast Guard with negligence and violating a regulation barring contact with reefs. He faced potential loss of his license for four months to a life.

Motorists sue Volusia sheriff

ORLANDO — Two motorists are suing the Volusia County Sheriff saying deputies illegally stopped and searched their cars in separate instances using a race-based profile. Victor J. Evans, of Miami, and Francisco Javier Muriel, of Elizabeth, N.J., filed a discrimination lawsuit Wednesday against Sheriff Bob Vogel, alleging they were stopped along Interstate 95 three years ago because they are members of minorities. Evans, who is black, was carrying $5,000 stuffed in his pants pockets when he was stopped May 30, 1991. He said deputies claimed that the cash was drug money and seized it, even though they found no drugs and did not charge him with a crime. Three months later, Vogel returned $3,000 after Evans' lawyer protested. Muriel, who is Hispanic, did not lose any money when he was pulled over Feb. 4, 1991, but said he was stopped and searched without legal justification. Both men said Vogel violated their right to be free from unreasonable searches and seizures. They have asked that the suit be declared a class action so that they can represent all African-Americans and Hispanics who were stopped and searched on I-95 without being arrested.

Navy must pay $4.1 million

JACKSONVILLE — The Navy must pay $4.1 million to a civilian worker disfigured and disabled when he was hit with 26,000 volts of electricity in a 1991 accident at Mayport Naval Station, a federal judge says. Jeffrey Hamilton, 32, formerly of St. Marys, Ga., received second- and third-degree burns over 70 percent of his body and was hospitalized in a coma for 57 days after the March 28, 1991 accident. "He will never be able to work full-time again. The only job he can ever have is health-maintenance, just working to keep his body and mind together for the rest of his life," Hamilton's attorney, S. Perry Penland Jr. of Jacksonville, said Wednesday. Hamilton's medical bills were more than $650,000, he said. U.S. District Judge Harvey E. Schwabauer ordered the Navy to pay $4,108,990. The judge, who held a three-day non-jury trial that ended Sept. 2, said Hamilton's injuries and disfigurement were the most horrible that he had seen on a human being.

Woman with AIDS charged with murder

WEST PALM BEACH — A woman carrying the AIDS virus has been charged with attempted murder for allegedly biting a man while panhandling. The 90-year-old victim told investigators that Naomi K. Morrison, 21, flagged down his car and asked for money for food Aug. 24. While distracted by another man asking for a cigarette, the motorist said the woman climbed into his car and grabbed for his wallet. The man and woman struggled, and she bit him on his left hand, left arm and right leg — hard enough to draw blood, he told police. Pursuing the charges filed by police may be difficult because prosecutors must show an intent to kill by transmitting the virus, said state attorney's office spokesman Michael Edmondson. "Just because someone is HIV-positive and they bite you, it doesn't necessarily mean they're trying to give you the disease," Edmondson said. Morrison is HIV-positive and has been arrested twice by West Palm Beach police on prostitution charges.

Brown sued over agency proceeds

By CASSANDRA BURRELL
Associated Press Writer

It's a contractual dispute about losses and funds owed

-attorney Gregory

WASHINGTON — A lawsuit filed against Rep. Corrine Brown, D-Fla., claims her failed travel agency still owes airlines nearly $65,000 in proceeds from ticket sales. Airlines Reporting Corp. — which collects ticket revenues from travel agents for the airlines — sued Brown in federal court Thursday, the day her name appeared on the ballot in Florida's Democratic primary. Brown's lawyer called the move a "lucky political maneuver" designed to embarrass her on Election Day. Brown and ARC officials now are negotiating over the finances of the agency, Gator Travel, which has closed its doors, said attorney Rodney Gregory of Jacksonville, Fla. "It's a contractual dispute about losses and funds owed," he said. "There have been discussions about resolving this in a professional manner, however, counsel for ARC apparently has chosen to issue the release of these contested allegations to her rejection."

Brown, a first-term incumbent, was challenged for the Democratic nomination by former White House staffer Alvin Brown. Both Browns are from Jacksonville, but aren't related. In the suit, ARC accused Brown of failing to accurately report the activities of her agency and failing to pass along all of the airlines' share of sales proceeds. "Defendant Gator Travel has failed to report all of its sales, falsely reported certain transactions and has failed to reimburse ARC for sales in an amount at least equal to $64,279.81," said the suit, which was filed in U.S. District Court in Washington. The suit asks the court to order Brown to pay the money and pay attorneys' fees. Travel agents book flights through ARC's computer system, collect fares from customers and reimburse the airlines' share of the revenues through the corporation. ARC gain access to the computer system, travel agents are required to post a surety bond and a letter of credit to protect ARC and the airlines from financial loss. The suit said Brown agreed to abide by the rules of the company in an agreement signed in October 1993, after defaulting on previous agreement. She also agreed to pay off her company's debts in a personal guarantee signed in May 1992, the suit said. Under the agreement, Gator Travel was required to prepare weekly sales reports containing all ARC travel documents issued to its clients. ARC used the reports to generate drafts that were presented to the agent's bank for payment. ARC declared Gator Travel in default of its agreement in 1993 partly because the bank did not honor some drafts, the suit said. After an audit, the company asked Brown to pay any money owed and return all blank ARC travel documents. "Defendant, however, refused to comply with ARC's requests," the suit said.

Family shaken by crash of plane bound for Florida

By BOB BOWMAN
Associated Press Writer

WEST PALM BEACH — Howard Kennedy was sure his wife Patricia was killed in the USAir jetliner crash near Pittsburgh. "I was glued to the television set," Kennedy said. "I didn't know what else to do." Mrs. Kennedy was to fly from Pittsburgh to West Palm Beach on USAir Flight 8961 — which initial reports said had crashed, killing all people on board. "When they came back on and the announcer said they were wrong, then I knew she wasn't on the plane," Kennedy said. Pittsburgh-bound Flight 427 from Chicago nose-dived into a ravine while trying to land Thursday. It was continue to West Palm Beach as Flight 8961. All 126 passengers and five crew members on board were killed in what has become the deadliest crash in the United States in seven years and USAir's fifth fatal crash in as many years. Kennedy and his daughter Kathy Cimino drove from their Port St. Lucie home to West Palm Beach International Airport. Though they were certain Mrs. Kennedy was alive, they were still a little nervous. "It felt like three hours," Howard said of the half hour drive to the airport. "We were both afraid to start talking for fear that we'd break down emotionally — we had to make it to the airport." Mrs. Kennedy was on another USAir jetliner that arrived safely in West Palm Beach. As Mrs. Kennedy walked off the plane, her daughter and husband clutched her tight, crying. Mrs. Kennedy was shocked; she hadn't heard of the plane crash. Neither had many of her fellow passengers. None of the dozen or so people waiting outside gate B-5 at the airport received bad news — the people they were waiting for arrived safe.

U.S., Cuba officials remain hopeful after talks

By GEORGE SEDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — After one week of migration talks with Cuba, U.S. officials remain hopeful an agreement can be reached. One reason: The continuing exodus of boat people benefits neither side. The dramatic televised scenes of Cubans desperate to escape is an open-ended embarrassment for Fidel Castro, who still insists communism is the only system capable of meeting basic human needs. For the Clinton administration, the outflow has meant a substantial mobilization of military resources to protect south Florida shores from hordes of migrants. It is also potential political dynamite for President Clinton in that key swing state. Thus, the common interest of both sides in ending the exodus keeps the talks alive, though an agreement is far from certain. "They know where we stand. Unless we have common ground, there's not going to be an agreement," a State Department official said Thursday. The chief Cuban delegate to the talks left for Havana on Wednesday to consult with Castro. At issue is a U.S. proposal to guarantee a minimum of 20,000 legal immigrants per year from Cuba in exchange for an end to the exodus. Cuba has been pushing for a U.S. crackdown on anti-Castro broadcasts by private radio stations in Miami. The 20,000 figure had been alluded to in a 1984 migration agreement but the number of immigrants has fallen far short of that, leading Cuban officials to believe the United States has been acting in bad faith. Under the new U.S. proposal, the 20,000 figure has been converted from an immigrant "ceiling" to a "floor." In effect, the United States is telling Cuba: "There were only 2,700 legal immigrants last year. We're guaranteeing an additional 17,300 if you'll rein in the rafters, and a minimum of 20,000 immigrants annually after that." There have been reports that Cuba wants to hold the United States to its 1984 agreement and admit more than 100,000, thus eliminating the "backlog" Cuba says has been built up over the past decade. Given a choice between the exodus and allowing 100,000 legal immigrants, the Clinton administration clearly would prefer the former.

The United States sought the migration talks, mindful of the social disruptions and political costs incurred by the Mariel boat lift of 1980 when 125,000 Cubans fled over a five-month period. When the talks began a week ago, they were portrayed in some accounts as being a one-sided affair, with Cuba having nothing to gain by giving in to U.S. demands for a halt to the illegal migration. But the cost of the exodus to Cuba's image has been astronomical. Thousands of fleeing people do not evoke a contented population. Cuba, of course, sees the talks as a lever for opening negotiations on broader issues, such as an end to the 30-year-old embargo.

POLICE STOPS

Shoplifting charged

Sanford police arrested Booker T. Barriner, 32, 2001 Crawford Road, Sanford, on a shoplifting charge Wednesday. An employee of the Winn-Dixie store on Airport Boulevard reported seeing Barriner leave the store without paying for nearly $37 in merchandise in his pockets.

Burglary arrests

Two DeLtona men were arrested Wednesday in the burglary of Florida Auto Sound and Security near Longwood Aug. 3. Seminole County sheriff's investigators report Brent Allen Lebo, 20, and Jon Paul Reed, 30, first broke into a car at the North U.S. Highway 17-92 business, then broke into the office. When the building's alarm sounded they fled, Lebo grabbing a large speaker as he left. Investigators report when the speaker wouldn't fit in his car, he threw it to the ground and drove away. Both were arrested on charges of burglary, vehicle burglary and grand theft.

Theft, forgery charged

Kathryn A. Boswell, 29, 172 E. Evergreen Ave., Longwood, was arrested Wednesday, charged with theft and forgery of checks. Longwood police report Boswell used a check stolen in August from a co-worker to obtain a painkiller from a Longwood dentist. Boswell was held on two forgery charges, petty theft and obtaining a prescription drug by fraud.

Cigarettes in pocket

Kenneth McGill, 29, 2081 Airport Blvd., Sanford, was arrested on a shoplifting charge by Sanford police Wednesday. An employee of Rite Aid on French Avenue reported McGill attempted to leave the store without paying for two packages of cigarettes in his pockets.

Drug delivery

Gerald Eugene Tillman, 33, Osteen, was arrested on a drug delivery charge by City County Investigative Bureau agents Wednesday afternoon. Undercover agents report Tillman gave them four tablets he said were Percocet and two tablets of Promethazin to calm their stomachs after taking the other drug.

Aggravated battery

Ruben Perez, 41, 5 Shemandoah Village, Sanford, was arrested on two aggravated battery charges Wednesday afternoon. A Shemandoah woman reported Perez threatened her with an eight-inch steak knife, then went to her apartment and threatened her husband with the knife. Police report recovering a knife from a basket on Perez' bicycle.

Woman reports eye punched

Johnny Earl Beveritt, 20, 1108 W. 10th St., Sanford, was arrested on an aggravated battery domestic violence charge by Sanford police early Wednesday morning. A woman reported Beveritt punched her eye when she said she didn't think he would go to work after he got out of bed.

Warrant arrests

The following wanted persons were arrested:
 • Arthur Valentine Gamba, 353 E. Magnolia Ave., Longwood, on a battery probation violation charge.
 • Rosa Lee Holiday, 36, 921 Locust Ave., Sanford, on a cocaine possession probation violation charge.
 • Gerald J. Cooper, 27, 3260 Midway Ave., Midway, on a worthless check probation violation charge and an insurance fraud charge.
 • Lucious Willes, 15, 66 Lake Monroe Terrace, Sanford, on two battery charges.
 • Karen Yolanda Moore, 24, 1317 Douglas St., Sanford, on charges of theft and failure to appear in court to answer to a previous charge of failure to pay a fine for theft conviction.
 • Laura Lee Stephens, 29, 321 N. Jungle Road, Geneva, on a worthless check charge.

Domestic cases

• Ernest B. Sanders, 62, of 1311 Pine Avenue, Sanford, was arrested at his residence Tuesday by police following a reported altercation with his wife. He was charged with battery (domestic violence) and resisting an officer without violence.
 • Mamie Lois Moore, 61, 1921 Waters Street, was arrested by deputies at her residence Monday. Deputies said the woman told them she had shot a man in her apartment. The man was not critically injured. Moore was charged with aggravated battery (domestic violence) with a handgun.
 • Barbara Ann Young, 18, 1116 W. 14th Street, was arrested at her residence Tuesday by Sanford police, following a reported dispute with her sister. She was charged with aggravated battery (domestic violence) and aggravated assault (domestic violence).
 • Christopher Shane Phillips, 21, 459 Sand Cove Drive, Sanford, was arrested by police at his residence Wednesday following a reported fight with two people. He was charged with aggravated battery (domestic violence) and aggravated battery. He was also found to be wanted on an outstanding warrant for failing to appear on a charge of uttering a forgery.
 • Dexter Leon Graham, 18, 122 Academy Drive, was arrested by deputies Tuesday. Deputies said he had become involved in an altercation with a female on Pine View Drive, and had reportedly taken the woman's car. He was located at his residence and charged with aggravated battery (domestic violence) and grand theft.
 • Charlie Jones Hollis, 35, and Sherree Denise Hollis, 32, both of 2210 Hawkins Avenue, were both arrested by deputies at their residence Tuesday following a fight. Each was charged with assault (domestic violence).
 • Antonio Orocco, 23, 4220 S. Orlando Drive, was arrested at his residence by Sanford police Tuesday following a reported fight with a female. He was charged with domestic violence.

Traffic stops

• Sherron L. Leonard, 23, 2241 Granby Street, Sanford, was stopped at Fifth Street and Lake Mary Boulevard by Lake Mary police Tuesday. She was charged with driving with a suspended/revoked license, and resisting an officer without violence.
 • Albert Leon Sontag, 45, of DeBary, was stopped by Lake Mary police Tuesday on Interstate-4. He was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol.
 • Mary Baker Shupe, 48, of Geneva, was reportedly involved in an accident on Sanford Avenue Tuesday. Sanford police charged her with driving under the influence of alcohol.
 • Kristoffer Morgan Buchanan, 18, 2595 Richmond Ave., Sanford, was arrested by Lake Mary police Tuesday following a traffic stop. He was found to be wanted on an Orange County warrant.

Florida political primary, 1994

Bush soars; meets Smith in runoff

Chiles says GOP full of it, he'll whip 'em

By GERRY KALLISTAD
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — Jeb Bush won nearly every vote, but couldn't win everything. In his first bid for public office, the former president's son crushed six other hopefuls in Thursday's Republican primary but narrowly missed the majority needed to avoid a runoff against Secretary of State Jim Smith.

Bush took 46 percent of the Republican vote and won handily in all parts of the state, except for Duval County, where Jacksonville hometown favorite Ander Crenshaw carried the day.

Bush did "much better than people thought he would," said Richard Scher, a political science professor at the University of Florida. "He can claim a significant victory. It looks like a lot of undecideds might have shifted in the final days."

Without taking a breather, Bush lined up news conferences today in Miami and Jacksonville to push ahead with what he expects to be two more elections in the next two months.

The hunt for endorsements was on, but Crenshaw's campaign planned no commitment for several days.

The winner of the GOP runoff Oct. 4 will face incumbent Gov. Lawton Chiles, who remained unbeaten in seven statewide elections with an easy victory over anti-government activist Jack Gargan in the Democratic primary.

With 99 percent of the precincts counted, Chiles had 72 percent, or 599,633, to Gargan's 28 percent, or 229,488 votes.

Gargan said he was done with politics. "I'm no damn fool," he said. "I gave the people of Florida an opportunity for real change and apparently they're not ready for it."

At 41, Bush was the youngest Republican candidate. Aside from two years as Florida's commerce secretary in the Bob Martinez administration, his life has been spent in the private sector.

Bush, a Miami developer, overwhelmed the seven-man GOP field where Smith struck into the runoff with 18 percent.

With 99 percent of the vote counted, Bush had 408,593 votes and Smith 185,014. Smith will be in his second runoff for governor. He lost in 1986 in a tumultuous Democratic runoff and switched to the Republican Party five months later.

In his victory speech, Bush ignored Smith. "I don't have the luxury to engage a guy who got 18 percent of the vote," said Bush. "We need to begin the process of uniting the party and focusing on the general election."

The race for second never materialized in the GOP race where Insurance Commissioner Tom Gallagher and former Senate President Ander Crenshaw conceded early.

Crenshaw and Gallagher received most of the night but out of the running. Gallagher had 13 percent, or 116,575 votes, to 12 percent, or 107,778 votes, for Crenshaw.

"I'm impressed but I can't say I'm surprised," Gallagher said about Bush's impressive showing. "They put together a very good organization no doubt about it over the past two years."

Bush swamped Gallagher by better than a

Gallagher, like Smith, had surrendered a safe Cabinet seat to seek the GOP nomination.

Tallahassee trial attorney Ken Connor was fifth with 9 percent, or 83,340 votes. Dr. Jo Arnold of Largo and Miami attorney Bob Bell had 1 percent apiece.

Chiles said he expects to retire undefeated when he makes his final political race in November.

"If the Republicans think they can hold us back, they're just full of it," Chiles told about 150 supporters crowded into a non-air conditioned room at his campaign headquarters in Tallahassee. "We're going to whip 'em."

State Senate upset

Longwood lawmaker ousted by diamond importer

By BILL BENDISMAN
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Republicans lined up a Jacksonville accountant, a former Palm Beach County state attorney and a former Ringling Museum chairwoman to try to grab their first state Senate majority since the post-Civil War era.

But while most primary races pitted contenders for November, one prominent freshman lawmaker — Sen. Gary Siegel, R-Longwood — was ousted Thursday by Windsor, a diamond importer John Ostalikiewicz.

Ostalikiewicz gained notice six years ago by founding a group to challenge the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services' authority to remove children from their parents. He stressed crime-fighting in a television and billboard advertising blitz.

Though Siegel had only served since 1992, the Longwood attorney drew attention for an unsuccessful proposal in 1993 to tax cigarettes to build prisons and for chairing the panel this year that crafted Senate juvenile justice reform proposals.

Ostalikiewicz faces no Democratic opposition.

The GOP is also determined to hold onto seats vacated by former Senate President Ander Crenshaw, R-Jacksonville, to run for governor; Sen. Curt Kiser, R-Palm Harbor, to run for lieutenant governor, and Sen. Mark Foley, R-West Palm Beach, to run for Congress.

In the GOP race for Crenshaw's seat, with 96 percent of the precincts reporting, Orange Park certified public accountant Jim Horne had 60 percent of the votes to Jacksonville city councilwoman Ginny Myrick's 40 percent.

The Democrats have unopposed Jacksonville City Councilman Matthew Carlucci awaiting the general election. He is the son of the late Sen. Joe Carlucci, whom Crenshaw succeeded in the office.

In the race for Kiser's post, Jamie Wilson of Clearwater, real estate agent and former aide to U.S. Sen. Connie Mack, faces a Republican runoff with direct-mail businessman Jack Latvala of Palm Harbor.

Wilson captured 38 percent of the vote, Latvala had 33 percent, and former Dunedin Mayor Manny Koutsouras had 29 percent.

The winner will run against Democrat Chuck Lehr, co-owner of Tarpon Sports & Scuba, in November.

Former Palm Beach County state attorney David Bludworth is the GOP contender for Foley's seat after beating Anthony R. Martin of West Palm Beach 64 percent-36 percent.

Bludworth faces Democrat Tom Rossin, former president of Flieger National Bank. In the Democratic primary, Rossin won 77 percent to 23 percent for Nick Rodriguez of West Palm Beach.

Another Republican target was a seat snatched from GOP ranks in 1992 by Democratic Sen. Jim Bocar of Sarasota. Bocar didn't draw Democratic primary opposition.

In the GOP race to challenge him, former Ringling Museum chairwoman Katherine Harris edged out Dr. Bob Windom of Sarasota, an assistant Health and Human Services secretary in the Reagan administration, 55 percent to 45 percent.

Several incumbents easily shook off primary challengers and face no November foes:

—Sen. Betty Holzendorf, D-Jacksonville, got 78 percent, compared to 22 percent for Phillip Brown of Jacksonville.

—Sen. Charles Williams, D-Tallahassee, got 51 percent, while Bob Glynn of Lee got 23 percent. Glenn Jones of Tallahassee 16 percent, and Lamar "Pom" Lee of Live Oak with 11 percent.

—Sen. Howard Forman, D-Fort Lauderdale, captured 78 percent. Paul Karasov of Hollywood got 15 percent and Juan Ramirez of Miami, 7 percent.

—Sen. Virginia Brown-Walke, R-Spring Hill, beat Deborah Lyons of Spring Hill 71 percent to 29 percent.

Incumbent Sens. Al Gutman, R-Miami, William Turner, D-Miami, Ron Silver, D-North Miami Beach, and Daryl Jones, D-Miami, drew no primary or general election opposition.

Parents, kids: Can we talk?

Let's face it. We have spare time these days, more than we've had for a long time. TV shows are mostly in re-runs, the baseball strike is keeping sports fans from watching the games by the hour, and it's still too hot to do much out doors.

As Joan Rivers would ask, "Can we talk?"

Rather than watching the fifteenth rerun of Gilligan's Island or a documentary on watching paint dry, why not sit down with the entire family and talk.

Not argue, not question about homework, girlfriends, boyfriends, or things parents and their children generally do, but talk about life.

If more parents and their children start exchanging points of view on the various qualities of life, they may be better able to understand each other. The tendency to argue over a misinterpretation may diminish. We may finally acknowledge the fact that one age group is also human, and as a result, is just as vulnerable and knowledgeable about life as the other age group.

There are many things being discussed world wide these days. The pros and cons of abortion, fighting crime, use of condoms, gay rights, elections, and what to do with the Cubans flooding into the country.

We believe a lot more can be learned by discussing some of these points among members of the family, instead of just talking about lawn mowing, homework, curfews, or what went wrong at the office or school that day.

By talking, and especially listening, ...that is, paying attention to what someone else has to say and accepting other people's opinions, we can have a most enjoyable time.

When those children are grown and gone from the nest, there is a good chance one of their fondest recollections of growing up will be those family discussions.

Turn off the TV, and don't worry as much about the family chores in this heat. Sit down with the members of your family and talk, talk, talk.

Jefferson offers key insight on Cuba

Thomas Jefferson despised newspapers. But an effusive presidential compliment deserves to be read in the context of the Cuba embargo debate.

"Were it left for me to decide whether we should have a government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate a moment to prefer the latter," wrote Jefferson.

In the formation of foreign policy, Jefferson's preference could be dangerous to the national health. But thoughtful newspaper editorials about the Cuba embargo raise an interesting question: Who is more in touch with the American people - President Clinton or the editorial writers?

Four of the country's largest and most respected newspapers have called for America to go beyond its current anti-Castro hysteria and begin communicating with the transcribable dictator.

When one of them, the "we yield to no one as an opponent of communist dictatorships" Wall Street Journal declares, "Lift the embargo," heads start to turn.

But the Journal's lead editorial, like the lead editorials in The New York Times, USA Today and The Washington Post, achieves a goal that eludes our Rhodes Scholar president: It forms a logical Cuban policy.

Government is not required to think logically - or to be consistent. But it must use rational arguments to inspire the basis for a dialogue. And that's what these newspaper editorials do, by brilliantly marshaling irrefutable facts. Jefferson would have felt vindicated.

"If Clinton can invite PLO chairman Yasser Arafat to the White House in the hopes of making the Middle East a little more peaceful," reasoned USA Today, "then he certainly could allow his emissaries to sit across the negotiating table from Castro in the hopes of making life a little easier for Cubans."

Argued The Washington Post, "This country is willing to trade (on a huge scale) with China and to offer recognition even in North Korea. Why not Cuba?"

In the formation of foreign policy, Jefferson's preference could be dangerous to the national health.

The answer may lie in Castro's 35-year despotism as both a dictator and a communist. The quality is important because the United States has always pursued the John Foster Dulles-Jeanne Kirkpatrick policy of "we can do business with any dictator as long as he's not a communist."

By pursuing that logic, argued the Times, "Washington would never have been able to reach out to Mao's China or Kim Il Sung's North Korea."

The Journal, as did USA Today columnist Al Neuharth, made a distinction between Castro's Cuba and the Cuban people. "The whole point," the Journal wrote, "is to continue to oppose Castro's government while allowing success for Cuba's people."

Neuharth tied ending the embargo to stopping the flood of Cuban refugees. "If Cuba's 11 million people see the benefits of freedom, they're more likely to stay home and make it work there."

Neuharth goes one step further: Establish full diplomatic relations, he advises.

Today, his position is not as controversial as it would have been 29 years ago, when Harlem Rep. Adam Clayton Powell Jr. called for full diplomatic relations with Cuba.

Special interests take aim at congressman

WASHINGTON — It's been a brutal summer for Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., who's on the "Most Wanted" list of nearly every special interest group in America.

After slugging it out as one of the main players in round the clock negotiations over the crime bill, Synar is now fighting for his political life back home. Various special interests have bludgeoned the 16-year House veteran to the point that he was recently forced into a run-off for the Democratic nomination against a political unknown.

Even if Synar wins that contest on Sept. 20, he faces a well-funded Republican challenger in November.

As he trotted for votes last week in Oklahoma, Synar was inspired by a constituent who ran across the street, grasped his hand and told him: "You don't know who I am, I don't really care that you do. But I've watched your career and I've always admired you and I want you to know one thing. Go out on your legs, not your knees. Fight them."

In this case, the fight is against a veritable army: The National Rifle Association, the American Medical Association, tobacco companies, the radical right, the oil lobby and ranchers are all gunning for Synar. Back in 1992, he barely escaped defeat because these special interests bankrolled attacks against the crusades Synar has waged on behalf of taxpayers.

Even though Synar moves easily in the corridors of power as a member of the Democratic leadership, he has a freshman's fearlessness when it comes to confronting the status quo. Unlike most incumbents, Synar refuses to accept PAC contributions — even though they would make his re-election fights much easier — and he advocates severe restrictions on such contributions.

Synar supports raising fees for ranchers who graze their herds on public lands, calling the current rates a government giveaway. He also wants to ban all tobacco company advertising and promotions, and broke with many of his constituents when he voted in favor of the Brady Bill and the assault weapons ban.

"If you don't like fighting fires, don't be a fireman," explains Synar. "And if you don't like voting, don't be a congressman."

Last election, the NRA spent nearly $200,000 to unseat Synar. During a recent radio debate with a senior NRA official, Synar asked the official during a commercial break how much money they intend to spend trying to defeat him this time. "He looked at me without hesitation and said, 'As much as we can raise,'" recalled Synar.

"If we save one law enforcement person's life because of the Brady Bill or because of the assault weapons ban, even if I get beat I will be able to rest at night knowing I did it," says Synar.

That willingness to put principle above politics may be his greatest asset as well as liability. "Let's start off with an old-fashioned word — guts," one House Democratic leadership source told us. "In any given election, he will have taken at least one stand on principle that is to his detriment electorally. There is the type (in Congress) that before they make a decision they wet a finger. He would be more inclined to raise a fist."

UNDER THE DOME — Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., thinks the daily grind — not gridlock — is the enemy. After the battle over the crime bill, Pressler told us it's time for his colleagues to get a life.

"I think the problem in the Senate is that it is run by a group of people who have nothing else to do in life," Pressler said.

Slap in face

I felt as if I had been slapped in the face when I read in the Sanford Herald recently that Cmdr. Larry Monti had been recognized by Police Chief Ralph Russell as the outstanding law enforcement officer for Sanford Police Department. Monti was chosen for this honor for "doing his job" and for "saving the city money" (which is doing his job). Big Deal! If I were Larry Monti, I would be embarrassed to be recognized for such feeble reasons.

Ralph Russell needs to have his eyesight examined. In case he hasn't noticed, there are about 79 other Sanford police officers out there who are doing real police work, putting their lives on the line to help rid this community of drugs, violence and crime and going above and beyond the call of duty to help the citizens of Sanford. This to me is what being a police officer is all about, not sitting in an office juggling figures. We as officers don't expect to be honored for "doing our job" but it is nice when we receive some hard-earned recognition. Russell needs to step outside and look a little further than his administrative walls.

I think the bottom line here is Ralph Russell is running low on people to recognize and promote who are not Fraternal Order of Police members. I request that my name be withheld.

A Sanford Police Officer

Officer response

As a Sanford police officer and a member of the Fraternal Order of Police, I read Cmdr. Whitmire's letter of Aug. 31 with great interest. After his personal biography nearly lulled me to sleep, I continued to read for I had never heard the story of the three blind men and the elephant.

I must take exception with a few of the 21 changes that he credits Chief Russell with:

Item #1. The East and West Side Community Policing Team program was an outstanding program. Especially, on the west side where it proved to be an effective aid in keeping crime down in the city's numerous housing projects.

When this program was operating, one would see less of the "bad elements" in the streets, and more "good" family activities, i.e., parents actually outside with their children. However, this program no longer exists. Scratch it off the list.

Item #2. The "K-9 Policy." Sanford Police "award winning" K-9 teams were brought into existence by the former administration of Chief Harriett. This administration only made changes to an existing policy.

Item #3. Bloodborne Pathogen Policy. This was mandated by OSHA. The police administration had no choice.

Item #7. Changing of Department Uniforms. Yes, I have received "one" pair of dark blue uniform pants. They are the correct size, which is more than some other officers can say.

Item #10. Upgraded Inventory System for Supplies? Give me a break, my mace which I may have to use to defend myself or a citizen has an expiration date of 1987. I was told that there was not a replacement available. (I hope it works!)

Items 10&17. Bingo and Adult Entertainment Ordinances. Police departments do not pass ordinances, city commissions do, however, the administration may have had some input.

Item #18. Bicycle Patrols. See Item #1. The bikes are parked and no one has been on them since the East and West Side Community Policing program ended.

Despite Cmdr. Whitmire's well polished letter, the problems within the department do exist. Low morale is only a visible symptom of a deep-rooted illness within the agency. You cannot solve the problems by passing "bingo ordinances." You solve it by treating the people who work for you as human beings; this means from city hall on down.

In closing, I wish to thank the city of Sanford and the current administration for causing the need for the Fraternal Order of Police Union. The union is here to stay. The "three blind men" (Russell, Dillard, Whitmire) just can't see that maybe it is because of all those trees Cmdr. Whitmire was talking about.

Cop's wife speaks

As the proud wife of a seasoned Sanford Police officer, I have come to the place in my life that leaves me with no alternative than to speak out, loud and clear, on the travesties within the department and, under the new police administration, the puppets therein.

Let's start off by taking a brief look at the "Who's Who" list where promotions are concerned. If you didn't vote for the union then you have, by now, been promoted. Next in line for promotion is the "favor doers" and then of course with those people in place maybe, just maybe, a thought can be given to an officer who has worked and earned the right for promotion.

And how about recognition for exemplary performance? For doing his job (handling the department's budget) Larry Monti gets a commendation of "Officer of the Year." If you notice the write ups on all of the other officers receiving this award from several different agencies, it was for actual "in the line of duty" work. You know, meaningless things like capturing a bank robber, saving a life or holding a suspected murderer at bay. So Russell, tell us all, when was the vote for this award held? And, in your infinite wisdom, please tell us how you arrived at the decision that out of all of the officers at that department, Larry Monti was the best and only choice to be made.

Now, how about another "Officer of the Year" whom I might also add, received that honor right around the time you, Russell, had him promoted. You know, one of the three who didn't vote union.

And on to Dennis Whitmire: (I know that I spelled your name correctly as I copied it from your letter to the Sanford Herald that was printed Aug. 31 as in Russell, Dillard and Whitmire). I was wondering, are you one of the three blind men or are you just the elephant. We can't let your recent letter in the Herald go by Dennis without setting a few facts straight. First, it looks to me like you had a lot of help in composing this letter. No matter, as usual, you are out to lunch. Community policing team program: Dennis, look around you, your illustrious Chief Russell has fired the great majority of these people. K-9 policy: Wrong again, Dennis. Russell won't even approve the much needed equipment for the K-9 unit. Here's a good one. Reclassification of parking enforcement position: So, the parking enforcement person for several years has now become a sworn officer, making more money, but still doing the same job. Boy, that's some kind of great strategy on Russell's part. But, no one can fool you now, can they Dennis? Bingo ordinance: I can't believe that Sanford has its very own prostitute ring known by the department as well as many downtown merchants, however, you give praise to Russell because he got an ordinance passed for bingo! Boy, I bet he lost some sleep over that one. Anyway, your worthless list just goes on and on filled with nothing more than propaganda. However, those of us who share at least a modicum of decorum as well as a little bit of sense, know the real reasons and people behind your letter. And, by the way, wasn't it you, Dennis, and "Officer of the Year" Monti, the very same two men that headed up the movement for a union back in the '70s? Well, we'll just wait with baited breath for you, Dennis, to write another heartfelt letter and let us know.

In conclusion, I would just like to say, and I know you love this line: I request my name be withheld as I fear certain retribution by the administration toward my husband.

Name withheld

Sanford

P.S. Wives: If you know it to be true and factual and you just can't keep it inside yourselves any longer as many of us have, then it's time to get your typewriter out and stand up for your husband.

Wholesale prices: Biggest jump in four years

By JAMES H. RUSSELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON — Wholesale prices surged 0.6 percent in August, the biggest jump in nearly four years, the government said today. The August advance in the Producer Price Index was broad-based and was led by higher prices for food, gasoline, automobiles and tobacco, the Labor Department said.

The rise in the index, which measures inflation pressures before they reach the consumer, exceeded analysts' predictions and was the largest since it shot up 1.1 percent in October 1990. The increase could renew fears that the Federal Reserve, seeking to check accelerating inflation, will boost short-term interest rates again. The Fed has boosted rates five times since February.

Economists said they anticipated wholesale prices are rising, following the lead of commodities. "Basic materials prices have been rising fairly rapidly," said economist Frantz Price of the WEPA Group, a forecasting firm in Bala Cynwyd, Pa. "It's happening basically in all the key areas." Those include chemicals and plastics, paper products and particularly metals such as copper and aluminum, he said.

Car prices climbed 0.7 percent. Analysts said automakers are cutting discounts as demand for cars increases. Gasoline prices soared 6.8 percent, after rising 8 percent in July. Prices for all energy goods advanced 1.7 percent last month following a 2.5 percent jump in July.

By comparison, Dennison raised $33,860 to Adams' $1,644 up to two weeks prior to the election. Perry raised $2,253 to Henley's $44,230. Webster raised $700.

Dennison blamed the defeat on weather and what she said was Adams' misrepresentation of her record.

"It was the muddiest campaign I've ever seen," Dennison said.

Adams linked a Dennison campaign contribution to the adult entertainment industry. Dennison said she was unaware of any links between Time Travelers and adult business owners. Dennison said she would have refused the money if she had known a connection.

Dennison said the campaign will be her last and Adams will not receive her support against a strong Furlong.

"I took an oath not to support a Democrat," she said. "In this case, I'll remain mute. I will not support someone with such a lack of ethics."

Dennison had accepted a $500 contribution from a bottle club located at Rachel's World Class Men's Club in Casselberry, an adult entertainment establishment. In literature, Adams said the contribution was contradictory to Dennison's public stance against adults' establishments.

Although Wright said Adams wasn't strong enough to beat Furlong, Adams said he can do it.

"It will be a tough race, a real

Andrea Dennison (R) waits for results with friends Ellen Williams and Sylvia Bauer.

tough race," admitted Adams. "By bringing the Republican Party together, we can do it."

District 2 Democratic front-runner Perry said she was still in shock when reached after final results were announced.

"I'm not sure what to attribute this to," she said. "I haven't been sitting at home, though. I've been going out and meeting people. I had over 2,000 people sign my petition and I told each one of them, 'You get out and vote for me.' Henley's been courting people with the $500 checks."

Perry said she also visited most churches in north Seminole County, with both black and white congregations.

Henley said he suspected he'd be in a runoff and he wasn't too concerned about his second-place showing. Henley acknowledged his strongest support may be Republicans — unable to help in his primary race.

"That's why if the Democrats want to keep a Democrat in office, they'll vote for Carlton Henley," said Henley. "We can win in the countywide race because I can draw that cross-over vote. I don't think she can."

Both said they were ready for a runoff.

"We're ready to go," said Henley. "We have the money and the materials. We were always targeting November all along."

Carlton Henley flanked by wife, Peggy and daughter Lisa Votolino, thanked supporters at a party held at the Ramada Inn in Longwood.

Adrienne Perry, who faces incumbent Henley in a runoff, celebrated at home with husband E.C., friends and campaign workers.

Judge

John Galluzzo for the job of judge.

Eriksson, 41, will take office in January in the new court created in the last legislative session. Over 28,000 votes were cast in the contest with the 20-year employee in the state attorney's office getting 17,787 votes or 63 percent compared with 10,455 votes (37 percent) for Galluzzo. Eriksson resigned from the state attorney's office in July to run for judge.

In the five-man contest for Seminole circuit court judge, the top two vote-getters in Thursday's primary, Carmine Bravo and Gene Stephenson will face off in the Nov. 8 general election. The men are vying to replace retiring Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr.

Bravo received 21,907 votes (24 percent) to Stephenson's 19,664 (22 percent). The remaining three candidates each received about 18 percent of the vote: Robert Miller, 16,480; Ken Beane, 16,452 and Dean Mosley, 15,879.

Voters in both Seminole and Brevard counties, which comprise the Eighteenth Judicial Circuit, voted for circuit court judge candidates.

Warren Burk and Bruce Jacobus will meet again in the general election for a circuit court judgeship in Brevard County. Burk received 27,945 votes. Jacobus, 22,947; MaryEllen McDonald, 19,899 and Valerie Brown, 17,330.

Both Bravo and Stephenson were pleased with the primary outcome and are planning their general election campaigns.

"We are just going to do more of the same," Bravo said of his campaign strategy. "We have a lot of people who have benefited from the type of practice I have had over the years," referring to mediation and alternative dispute resolution.

During the campaign, Bravo said, he heard members of the community ask what the judges are going to do to help them stay safe. Bravo said he will use the skills he has developed, in evaluating personalities and people as criminal court judge.

"The skills will let me be more astute or discerning, with the help of the prosecutor, the victims and the police," Bravo said. "In assessing which are those bad type of people that may never be contributing members of society. Those are the ones we need to be protected from. There are others, however, who have, by victim of circumstance, misbehavior, mistake, with some attitude adjustment, through some creativity in meeting with them, we can mainstream them back into the community, with certain other types of sanctions."

Jail overcrowding might also be reduced through the use of diversion programs, he added.

"I'm doing great!" Stephenson said enthusiastically this morning, about the primary outcome. "I'm just encouraged. We did everything we could do." He noted he and Bravo polled almost exactly the same total of votes in Brevard County. Only 159 votes separated the two with Bravo getting 12,705 to Stephenson's 12,546. In Seminole County, Bravo received 9,202 votes to Stephenson's 7,118 votes in the unofficial totals.

"I feel very confident the other candidates will be throwing their support to me. We're right in there. The race has just begun," Stephenson added.

Stephenson said he and his family are going to try to "low-key it" for two or three days to get their energy back, then get charged up again to campaign for the general election.

The man elected to replace Judge Mize will serve in the criminal division from January until July, when new assignments are made. Then the newly elected judge may be posted in the family court division.

new Kmart stores, which will also not be affected by the cutbacks.

Nationwide, Kmart will be eliminating 6,000 jobs and trimming its management ranks by 10 percent as it struggles to strengthen its place in the fiercely competitive world of discount retailing.

It was believed that employees at stores not scheduled to be closed until early next year, may be offered some type of incentive to keep them on the job through the upcoming holiday season.

There were also indications that some of the managers of stores to be closed may replace managers at stores which will remain open, but where management difficulties have been noted.

"Kmart conducted an assessment of our core discount stores to identify which stores were not meeting our return-on-investment requirements," Chairman Joseph Antonini said in an announcement broadcast to its discount stores nationwide Thursday.

"Going forward with our renewal, we will insist that our stores fully meet our return-on-investment requirements," Antonini said.

The stores — 4.7 percent of Kmart's 2,350 discount stores nationwide — are in 30 states. Information from Associated Press is contained in this report.

By simply entering a single word, the user can call up a list of articles available on the subject. If necessary they can narrow the list to more specific categories and a smaller list of articles.

In some cases, the full article is available in the system and can be simply printed out. In others, the publication title, the title of the article and the date of publication. In those cases a trip to the periodicals shelves is in order.

"A teacher came in here looking for a Reader's Digest article," Cullum said. "She kinda knew what the title was and about when it ran. With a couple of quick searches, she had the information to write to them and get a reprint."

Cullum thinks the teachers and students will find the new technology will make the research aspect of a research paper a more efficient process.

"They'll still have to organize and write the paper the way they always have," she said. "This doesn't make it any easier. It just makes it more efficient."

The school has also purchased a mobile computer lab that can be rolled from classroom to classroom, Cullum said.

A gaggle of laptop computers and a printer are in a lockbox on wheels which teachers can check out of the media center for a class period or longer.

In the classroom, the students can write stories, produce newspapers or booklets, or work on research papers which can then be printed out right in the classroom.

"The kids are already having fun with that," she said. "The possibilities are limitless."

Budget

$15,000 for a capital improvement plan, $30,000 to upgrade the public safety radio system, $10,845 for a basketball court, and other items which totaled an increase in expenditures of $637,020 for fiscal 1994/95.

With the aid of Finance Director Randy Knight, Litton presented graphic displays indicating where money would come, and how it would be spent. The graphs indicated that 37.9 percent of the city's general revenue will come from ad valorem taxes.

In expenses, the graphs indicated the police department would use 33.5 percent, general government 18.4 percent, the fire department 12.6 percent, parks and recreation 10.3 percent.

"I would like to announce that under this budget," Litton reported, "there will be no increase in water and sewer rates for this coming year, and there will be no increase in garbage or recycling costs during 1995."

Litton explained how the entire budget was planned around the proposed rate of 3.7648 mills, an increase of 3.09 percent from the rolled-back rate certified by the Seminole County Property Appraiser.

"While this will be announced as a 3.09 percent tax increase," Litton explained, "it doesn't mean people will pay that much more in taxes. It means the city will obtain that much additional ad valorem tax money. The actual 3.09 percent will mean an additional $58,083 in tax money coming to the city," he added.

Following the budget report and commission discussion, City Commissioner George Duryea, who has been a staunch advocate of reducing budgets and lowering millage rates, commented, "This will be only the second time in my six years on the commission that I will have voted in favor of the proposed millage, but I'll move to accept the proposal."

Both the setting of the millage and fiscal 1994/95 budget passed with unanimous votes from the commission.

The second and final reading of the two items has been scheduled for the next commission meeting scheduled for Tuesday, Sept. 20th.

IN BRIEF

LOCALLY

No-Tap at Bowl America

SANFORD — Bowl America-Sanford will conduct its weekly No-Tap Tournament this evening beginning at 9:30 p.m.

Strikes are awarded when a bowler knocks down nine or 10 pins. Play is handicapped as follows: bowlers with averages under 140 begin each game with strikes in the first three frames; 140-159, strikes in the first two frames; 160-179, a strike in the first frame; 180 and over, no handicap strikes.

All players bowl three games of qualifying, the top 50 percent bowling a fourth game to decide the cash winners (hopefully down to six places), including the top three bowlers who will compete in a TV-style roll-off for the top money.

The entry fee is $15. Two strikepots also will be awarded during the course of the evening. For more information, call 322-7542.

AROUND THE NATION

Jordan will take hardwood

CHICAGO — Michael Jordan said he's going to play one last game in Chicago Stadium. Jordan will play in a charity basketball game tonight hosted by former Bulls teammate Scottie Pippen. It will be the final game at Chicago Stadium, which opened in 1929 and has been replaced by the United Center across the street.

Manning now a Sun

PHOENIX — Danny Manning signed a one-year, $1 million contract with the Phoenix Suns, accepting 20 percent of his market value to join one of the NBA's highest-profile organizations. Manning had said that he wanted to play in Phoenix and would not talk to any other teams. Manning made $3.5 million last year when he played for Atlanta and the Los Angeles Clippers.

Men's, Open semifinals set

NEW YORK — Karel Novacek served 27 aces against Jaime Yzaga at the U.S. Open to reach a Grand Slam semifinal for the first time. Novacek scored a 6-2, 6-7 (7-9), 6-1, 5-7, 6-3 victory over Yzaga, who upset top-seeded Pete Sampras in the fourth round. Novacek will meet No. 4 Michael Stich, the highest remaining seed, defeated James Blake.

Kudelski back with Panthers

PETERBOROUGH, Ontario — Free agent right wing Bob Kudelski, an All-Star last season for the Florida Panthers, agreed to terms on a new contract with the team Thursday. The 30-year-old Kudelski will join the Panthers at their training camp in Peterborough. Kudelski was acquired in a trade last January with the Ottawa Senators. He had 40 goals and 30 assists last season, including 14 goals and 15 assists in 44 games with Florida.

Lead-footed locals County residents highlight Dragway testing

By AARON GREEN
Special to the Herald

INTILO — Seminole County residents continue to shine at Orlando Speed World Dragway as two of the top three elapsed times and speeds turned in during Wednesday night's testing runs were posted by local racers.

Gary Clark from Winter Garden had the best performance among all of the competitors as he turned an 8.28-second elapsed time at 160.68 miles per hour to pace the Top Eliminator class.

But Clark's run was more than a second and 25 miles per hour faster than any of the other cars who turned out for the testing, leaving the rest of the quick runs to the motorcycles.

Sanford's Hubert Martin made the second-quickest and second-fastest run of the evening as he took his two-wheeled speedster through the traps at an elapsed time of 9.01 seconds at 142.61 miles per hour. Oviedo rider Tim Titus was the third quickest on the evening, rolling through the lights with an E.T. of 9.16 at 134.16 miles per hour.

A third Seminole County pilot, Cassiberry's Alan Llewellyn, turned just the fifth quickest run in the motorcycles class with an elapsed time of 9.85 seconds, but his speed was the third fastest of the evening, as he blasted through the traps at 139.49 miles per hour.

The third quickest run of the evening in the motorcycles class was turned in by Orlando's Joe Kasper, who covered the quarter-mile in 9.43 seconds at 138.05 miles per hour, while the fourth quickest bike was ridden by Winter Park's Larry Garner in a time of 9.69 at 135.17 miles per hour.

Trailing Clark in the Top Eliminator runs were Port Orange's Charlie Gambino in 9.58 seconds at 135.70 miles per hour; Corcoran's John Joiner in with a time of 9.79 at 136.15 miles per hour; Tim Irwin from Lakeland with a run of 9.86 seconds at 133.55 miles per hour; and Scott Newberry of Orlando who made his run in 9.91 seconds at 135.31 miles per hour.

Wednesday's test session was in preparation for tomorrow night's Sears Craftsmen Racing Series event.

Many of Florida's finest drag racers will be in action during this Sears Craftsmen Racing Series matchup, which features races for Super Pro, Pro, Sportsman and Pro Cycle eliminators.

Gates open at 4 p.m. this Saturday (Sept. 10), with time trials starting at 4:30 p.m. and final eliminations scheduled to begin at 6 p.m.

Orlando Speed World Dragway is located 12 miles east of Orlando on Highway 50.

Players make pitch that might end strike

By RONALD BLUM
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — With the World Series just a day away from being wiped out, striking baseball players delivered a "taxation" plan to owners Thursday and hoped it would be accepted in place of a salary cap.

Owners said they will study the plan and respond on Friday, the deadline for canceling the rest of the season.

The plan calls for a 2 percent payroll tax and for clubs to split 25 percent of gate receipts, according to sources, speaking on the condition that they not be identified.

Sixteen clubs would contribute revenue to the other 12, sources said. The union suggested that clubs be required to maintain minimum payroll levels and that teams be prohibited from receiving money for more than three consecutive years.

Union head Donald Fuld said players wouldn't agree to any large tax that might be "inhibiting" in the free agent market. He said the plan didn't alter the basic structure of free agency and salary arbitration, making it unlikely a deal can be agreed to on Friday.

Acting commissioner Bud Selig said his deadline for calling off the remainder of the season "still applies." If so, it would cancel the World Series for the first time since 1904.

"Everything is as it's been all along," Selig said in a telephone interview from his Milwaukee office.

However, if there is a deal Friday, players probably would return to the field on Sept. 16 or Sept. 19, depending on how many days of workouts the sides agree to.

"We'll be in touch with the union in the morning," management negotiator Richard Ravitch said.

Boston Red Sox chief executive officer John Harrington said after the players' 30-minute presentation that he hopes the proposal "will lead to more progress."

Players hoped Selig would reconsider Friday's deadline and allow talks to continue.

Both sides expected to have a formal bargaining session on Thursday, but it never developed.

Players met with their lawyers for most of the day at the union office in Manhattan as owners gave their views by telephone. A delegation then walked three blocks to the commissioner's office where three union lawyers delivered the plan.

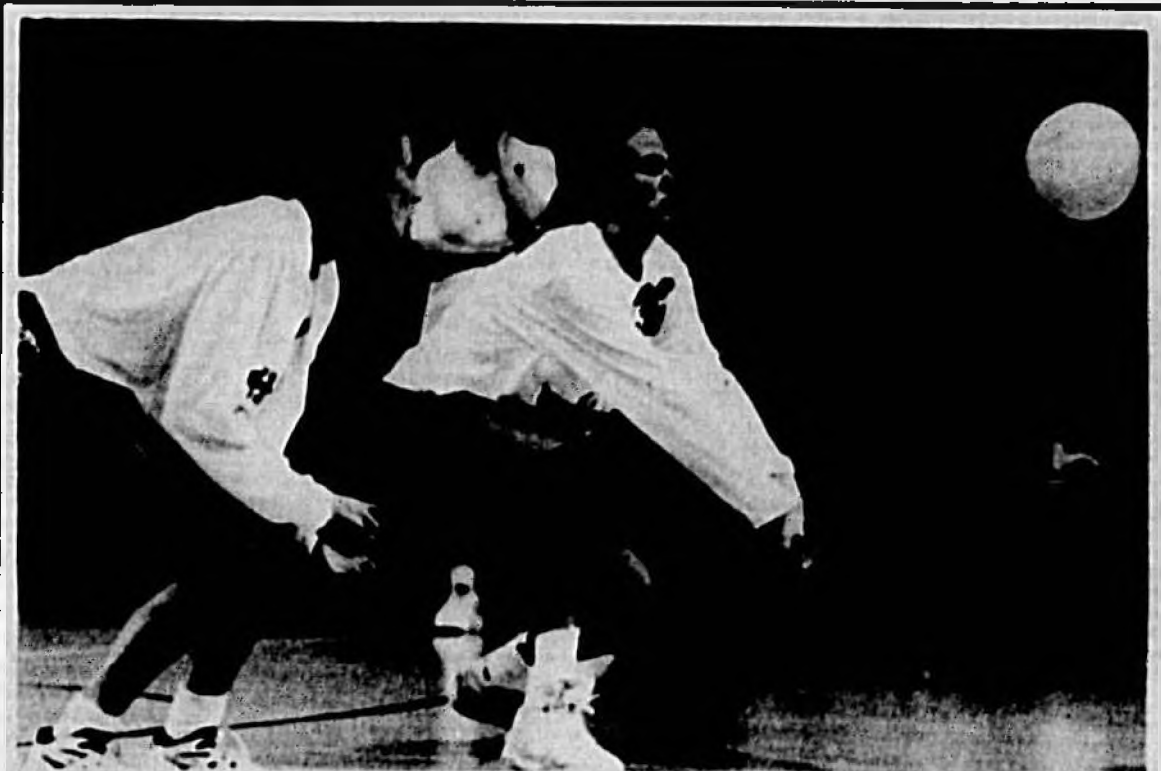

The proposal, according to the union, is based on a framework similar to the revenue-sharing agreement owners adopted last January. Instead of a salary cap, however, it includes a taxation concept in which clubs could have any payroll they wanted, but would be forced to share a larger amount of locally generated revenue as their payrolls increased.

Both the Seminole High School varsity boys' and girls' volleyball teams were the victims of sweeps by the Bishop Moore Hornets Thursday night. Playing at Bishop Moore, the Tribe boys fell 15-3, 15-10 while Aubrey Nelson (No. 32) and the Seminole girls suffered a 15-4, 15-8 setback.

NCAA warns FSU not to play Foot Locker 5 too soon

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Florida State would violate NCAA rules if several suspended football players are allowed to play while the group's legal challenge of a state law remains unresolved, the NCAA told the school.

A federal court hearing is scheduled Tuesday in the NCAA's lawsuit to overturn the state's so-called "due process" law that has prevented the NCAA from acting on the eligibility of a handful of Florida State players who took part in an illegal shopping spree in November 1993.

NCAA enforcement chief David Berst acknowledged the school has attempted to comply with eligibility rules by suspending the players. But Berst wouldn't say the penalties were adequate until the legal challenge has been decided.

"The university would be operating its program contrary to NCAA legislation if any ineligible student-athlete is permitted to compete," Berst told university president Talbot "Sandy" D'Alemberte in a letter Wednesday.

The school suspended five players for their actions related to the shopping spree at a Foot Locker store in Tallahassee.

All-American linebacker Derrick Brooks, tailback Tiger McMillon and guard Marcus Long were suspended for two games, guard Patrick McNeil for three games and offensive tackle Forrest Conolly for four games.

Brooks, McMillon and Long will be eligible to play in the game at Wake Forest on Sept. 17.

McNeil was suspended Thursday for the Seminoles' fourth game against North Carolina for an unspecified violation of team policy.

Defensive tackle Rhodney Williams, who was already suspended for the first two games for a violation of academic policy and reporting late for fall practice, will be held out of the Wake Forest game for a second violation of academic policy.

D'Alemberte said he was encouraged by Berst's letter, although it didn't give the assurances the school was seeking.

"We hope for a court resolution of these matters very soon," he said in a statement Thursday.

Health reform: Long term care

Florida has largest population of older Americans

Growth of older population. Florida has the largest state population of people 60 and over in the United States. This age group is expected to increase 300 percent by the year 2020. Most of the increase will be among those over 75 and the largest increase will be among those over 85. People in these age groups are most likely to have physical problems and to need assistance.

Florida's community care problems. Bentley Lipcomb, secretary of the Florida Department of Elder Affairs, considers long term care the top priority for older adults in Florida. He says, "If community based options are not developed by the year 2000, we will spend two to three times the one billion dollars we now spend on Medicaid nursing home care."

Since 1987, Florida funds for Community Care for the Elderly (CCE) have declined. Under current funding levels, only half of those who apply for these programs can be served. Because of funding cuts in community-based services, many who need home care remain on long waiting lists.

Professionals who work with the state's elderly want to help them to live at home as long as possible. Not only do elders prefer to remain in their own residences, but living at home is less costly to the individual and to the state. The state is currently taking steps that would provide funding for community care programs to help elders "age in place" by providing care at home. In Jan. 1994, Gov. Chiles issued a statement on his priorities for the legislative session and identified long term care funding as one of the main issues the legislators need to address.

Nursing homes. Many people think of nursing homes as the main providers of long term care, but only 5 percent of those over 65 will stay in a nursing home for five years or more. However, 44 percent will need nursing home care sometime in their lives. The cost of nursing home care averages $26,000 yearly and is subsidized only for those who qualify for Medicaid. Many low income people in Florida do not qualify for Medicaid because their income is still higher than the federal poverty levels or they have assets over $2,000.

Even though these elders are not living in poverty, they still cannot afford nursing home care. Some try to cover their costs with private policies. They purchase expensive long term care policies but due to the cost have to cancel them before they are needed. Or, the policy restricts the type and site of care and does not provide what the elder needs. Medigap policies usually do not provide for long term care.

Medicare also has limitations. It only pays for short term care — 20 days of skilled care and a part of the cost up to 90 days. Most patients are only eligible for 30 days because their condition improves. In 1987, Medicaid paid only 2 percent of care nationally.

Florida 1994 health care reforms. The National Alliance for Health Reform recently called Florida's plan a model for the nation. Florida's "Health Homes" plan explores various options for providing and funding long term care.

If Florida obtains federal waivers that allow more flexibility, Medicare and Medicaid recipients will have the option to join community health purchasing alliances (CHPAs). Some health plans offered to the CHPAs by 53 insurance companies statewide include long term care options.

In addition, the Florida plan would establish Rural Health Care Networks to place more professionals and services in underserved rural areas. For example, in rural counties without nursing homes, empty rural hospital beds might be converted for short term nursing home care.

In the next few months we will see more reports of the development of Florida's health care reform plan. We also will see the results of legislative efforts to increase funding for community-based care. Older adults will be watching for how these policies address their long term care needs.

Adult reaps benefits from girls' program

By SUEAN WESSER
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Cynthia Corless has been a strong believer in the benefits of girl scouting. She desired to pass on some of the good qualities of the organization to her own daughter and others.

Corless and her husband, Gary, have been married for 14 years. They have two children, Tara, third grade, and Ross, second grade. The family came to Sanford two years ago and have attended the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer in Sanford since their move here. "We just fell in love with Sanford," she said. "It had a real small town feel. I'm excited about the main stream activity."

Corless has worked several years with a Brownie troop in Sanford that meets in the afternoons at All Souls Catholic Church. "My experience has been with the Brownie troops," she said. I was an assistant my first year and last year I was a leader. I'm also a service coordinator for the area. My co-leader, Betsy, and I organize troops for service." Pinecrest, Idylwild, Hamilton and Sanford Middle Schools were among the few she mentioned that she and her assistant organize for helpful events.

Corless spoke proudly of her troop, Troop 379. "Last year we went to Pizza Hut and they made pizzas. We worked with a program for migrant children that gives filled boxes to the children with things like toothpaste, cards, hairbrushes and other personal items. I have about 10 to 13 girls in my troop. We did great with our cookie sales. The girls discussed how they'd like to spend the money earned. Each girl averaged about 100 boxes in sales. We went for a camp-out at the science center. The troops' funds also paid half off Sea World Scout Days' admission."

Corless also commented about the camping and Outreach

adventures for the scouts. "Camporee is one thing the girls would like to attend. The Cadette troop from Sanford Middle organized it. Camp Mah-Kah-Wee is another camp we hope to attend. We would like to do more community outreach, like work with the nursing homes or something like that. It's still in the organizational stages." She spoke of why she felt scouting was so important. "I firmly believe that the things children are lacking at home and at school can be enhanced in scouting. I think it's important to do Girl Scout things by Girl Scout ways. Caring is sharing. Seeing the kids at public schools, I've noticed they don't have the value system they need. Scouting helps instill the values they're lacking. I think in a small way I'm helping develop a better value system and a better self esteem."

Corless has proven that she is very devoted to helping the children of today to prepare for tomorrow by her volunteer work but she has been very modest about her labors. "I'm just a typical mom trying to find balance," she said. "I want to help my family and give them and others a better quality of life." Corless holds a position on the PTA board at Hamilton Elementary School and the school advisory council as well as Dividend work. "I've been a Dividend and room mom at Hamilton. A lot of my Dividend hours were spent working with the Math Superstar program." In addition, she has been the secretary for her church council since January. "The job secretary seems to be my niche," she said. A sorority group takes much of her attention. "We are a philanthropic group. We get involved in helping women further their education. There are chapters all across the nation. There is a lot of delightful southern ladies in the group." Corless has also been pursuing her real estate license. "I do hope to further my real estate career on a part-time basis," she said.

She discussed the different categories and age and grade levels for each group. "Daisies are made up of kindergartners and first graders from the ages of 5 and 6 years old. Brownies are first, second and third graders and the ages of 6, 7, and 8 are involved in this group. Juniors are fourth, fifth and sixth graders, ages 8, 9 and 10. Cadettes are seventh, eighth and ninth graders, ages 11, 12 and 13. Seniors are the top group with girls tenth grade and up and ages 14 and up."

The only negative side of volunteer work Corless mentioned was the lack of help. "The down side of volunteer work is that at times you feel a lot like Chicken Little trying to find people to help you have the 'bread.'" With that in mind, Corless encourages anyone interested in becoming involved in scouting may call her at 321-4727 or Betsy Lieble at 322-2205.

Regardless of form, alcohol is a drug

DEAR MARY: My elementary school-age kids are coming home from school giving me a hard time because I like a beer every now and then. They say I'm taking drugs because of the alcohol. It seems to me that they're stretching things a bit to put this stuff in kids' heads. I don't want them to drink until they're 21 because it's illegal, but to say that I'm taking drugs because I have a beer every now and then seems like it's going too far. For the record, I'm well over 21 years old. I enjoy my beer when I drink it, and I don't have any intention of giving it up, whether someone at my kids' school calls it a drug or not.

nervous system it causes slowed reactions, slurred speech, and even unconsciousness when used in excess. Everyone knows someone who, when they drink, lose their inhibitions, get loud, rowdy or mean, and do things they're sorry for later. None of this even addresses the problems of alcohol-related car crashes, suicides and drownings, nor the damage to the liver, pancreas, and kidneys that can occur over time.

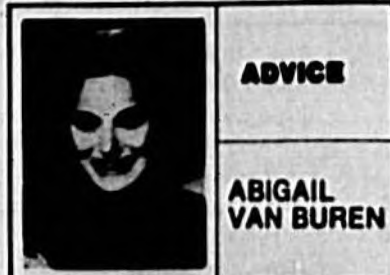

Well, Dad, those are some pretty persuasive reasons that your kids are learning that alcohol is indeed a drug; but as long as you are controlling your legal use, instead of it controlling you — enjoy!

(Mary Balk is a Certified Addiction Prevention Professional and a counselor at Pine Crest Elementary School. Contact her at the Sanford Herald, or call 322-1711.)

DEAR DAD: Everybody is right. Your kids (and their teachers) are right in saying that alcohol, whether it's in beer, wine coolers, wine or "hard liquor," is indeed a drug. And you are right in feeling that you have no reason to give up an occasional beer, because for you it is legal and you enjoy it. However, let's briefly review why alcohol is certainly a drug, regardless of the form in which it is consumed. It can alter a person's mood; it can cause damaging changes in the body, and it can become addictive. Since it depresses the central

Aunt who gets no thanks considers giving no gifts

DEAR ABBY: I finally worked up the courage to ask my sister why her three school-age children never write thank-you notes for the gifts I have given them.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

I do it because I want to — not because I want anything in return. I realize that not everyone cares about written thank-you but I do, and they know it. All it would take is 10 minutes and a postage stamp. I try hard to give her kids gifts that matter to them. Why can't they do something simple that matters to me?

I'm steamed enough to stop giving them gifts altogether. It's too bad my relationship with my sister has soured over something that would have been so easy to fix.

SAD AUNTIE: Children cannot be expected to know what they have not been taught. I have always emphatically stressed the importance of writing thank-you notes — promptly — but I now realize that not everyone shares my opinion.

DEAR ABBY: I never thought of myself as a prude until now, but I suppose that is exactly what I am.

A divorced woman moved into our lovely little neighborhood last year. All was fine until recently. Now a lover has moved in with her. They are both in their mid-40s.

My question: What do I tell my children? I wouldn't think of telling them the truth in this situation. Could I be forgiven if I said the man is renting a room in her house? Thank you.

DEAR PRUDE: Don't lie. Your children will probably assume that the couple is married; then you won't have to tell them anything. You're welcome.

DC Talk, Headliners at Disney

By DEBBIE WOODS
Herald Correspondent

LAKE BUENA VISTA - Walt Disney World is the site of the 11th annual "Night of Joy" beginning this evening, with concerts starting at 8:30 p.m. Friday evening will serve as the kick-off for nine days named as Contemporary Christian Music Week.

Some of the biggest names in contemporary Christian music are scheduled to perform. The line-up includes DC Talk, Geoff Moore & The Distance, Point of Grace, Dove Female Artist of the Year, Twila Paris, the Richard Smallwood Singers and White Heart.

Each morning following the first two Night of Joy shows, Olympian Dave Johnson and musician Gery Chapman help lead a worship service at the Port Wilderness Pavilion. DC Talk will follow with a service on Sept. 17 and 18.

The America's Contemporary Christian Music Awards debuts at 9 p.m. on Monday, Sept. 12, in the MOM Epic Stage Theater. DC Talk and Michael W. Smith will be the hosts of the show. The program will air at 9 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 18 on the Family Channel.

With DC Talk in the limelight it seemed appropriate to share some history of their beginnings. Since their self-titled debut album in 1989, Grammy Award Winner DC Talk has redefined the boundaries of popular music. Today DC Talk stands at the top as "one of the hottest groups in the country" according to Tonight Show host Jay Leno. Critics agree.

For 34 weeks DC Talk was #1 on Billboard's Contemporary Christian sales chart. Their current album, "Free at Last" won the Grammy for Rock Gospel Album and was certified Gold by RIAA only 10 months after the release. Many other awards in the music industry have been presented to this outstanding group. They have been featured on the cover of 24 magazines, not to mention People magazine.

DC Talk headlines a strict lineup for the 11th anniversary Night of Joy, Sept. 8, 10, 16 and 17 in the Walt Disney World Magic Kingdom, celebrating Contemporary Christian Music Week.

Despite their celebrity status, DC Talk has remained three very likeable guys from Waahington, D.C. DC Talk is Toby McKeehan, Michael Tait and Kevin Smith. Their music is cutting edge and trend setting, but the threesome maintain values and lifestyles which remain solid as their commitment to the timeless faith of their fathers. McKeehan spoke of their group and their ministry. "People are tired of being preached at. We know a God that loves us as we are, not as we should be. We never want to come across as 'holier than thou' because we're not. We're three guys that stumble and fall every day. We make mistakes and a lot of the things we stumble with, we write songs about. All we're trying to do is shed a little bit of light on these issues. We're getting our answer from God's word, the Holy Bible, but we're not shoving it down anybody's throat. If we try to force it on them no one's going to listen."

DC Talk will share Cinderella's Castle Stage with Twila Paris. DC Talk will perform at 8:30 p.m. and 9:45 p.m. Twila Paris will sing at 11 p.m. and 12:15 a.m. Night of Joy tickets are $25 (plus tax per person per night) in advance. Tickets at the gate on concert nights are $28 plus tax, if available.

For further information about Night of Joy, including Contemporary Christian Music Week, call (407)827-7200.

Methodist youth mission team returns

SANFORD - The youth mission team from First United Methodist Church of Sanford has arrived home from Grundy County, Tennessee. The group participated in a week long service project for the people there. Projects were organized by Mountain T.O.P. (Tennessee Outreach Project), which has offered service project camps in areas of great need throughout the Cumberland Mountains since 1975.

During the week at Mountain T.O.P., youth and adults did many types of jobs, including painting, yard work, building porches, and outhouses, and fixing roofs. The participants also experience a very unique Christian community as they make new friends from other churches and gain leadership skills.

This is the 9th year that First United Methodist Church has participated in Mountain T.O.P. The mission team has returned to their families, friends and church to share their experiences and continue service in the local community.

Two adults and thirteen youth return from their mission work in Tennessee.

Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you: But rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings; that, when his glory shall be revealed, ye may be glad also with exceeding joy. 1 Peter 4:12, 13

Alcohol affects male sexuality

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is there a connection between impotence and drinking bourbon? My ex-husband and current male friend suffer from this problem and both drink bourbon and cola.

DEAR READER: Yes, yes and yes. Alcohol has a direct effect on potency, which can be markedly diminished in heavy drinkers. Also, by poisoning the liver, alcohol leads to a hormone imbalance that can reduce a man's interest in sex as well as his ability to perform.

The deleterious effects of alcohol are unrelated to the drink of choice: beer, wine and spirits in sufficient quantity will definitely affect a man's sexuality. To prove my point, your male friend ought to stop drinking for awhile - or seek help from his family doctor.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Impotence." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Does caffeine negate the effects of minor and major tranquilizers? Would four liters of cola counter a nominal maintenance dosage?

DEAR READER: People respond differently to caffeine-containing beverages, but - in most cases - moderate amounts of coffee or cola will not neutralize the effects of a minor tranquilizer (such as Valium), much less a major one (such as Haldol). Although four liters of cola is one heck of a lot of beverage (and far exceeds what would be considered a reasonable amount), I doubt that it would compensate for a maintenance dose of tranquilizer.

However, as I said, people do vary in their reactions to caffeine. I know adults who are "wired" after two cups of coffee in the morning. Conversely, some folks can drink cola or iced tea all day and not be jittery. So, I suppose that it's possible, in selected cases, to overcome the sedative effects of a tranquilizer using a caffeine-containing beverage.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Today's deal is another from the Ninth Worldwide Bridge Contest, held last June and sponsored by Sotko Epsom Corporation and France Telecom. It features opportunities for both sides. How do you think play should proceed in five hearts?

East has what I call an "eau de cologne." It is named after the 47-11 cologne.

Even though it might work out badly, East's four-spade overall is reasonable. And South has an automatic bid of five hearts. West leads his singleton spade, of course. After East wins with the ace, which card should South play? If the two, it is easy for East to give his partner a spade ruff. And East's heart ace defeats the contract.

But what happens if South drops the spade king at trick one? As South knows West must have led a singleton, this gambit cannot cost.

East is likely to switch to the club three. After winning West's king with dummy's ace, South starts cashing dummy's diamonds. East ruffs the second with his heart ace while South discards his last club. But how does East know which black-suit queen to cash? If he gets it wrong, leading the club queen, South makes his contract. He ruffs, draws trumps ending in the dummy and discards his spade loser on dummy's third top diamond.

West must help his partner. While declarer is playing dummy's ace and king of diamonds, West must drop two high diamonds, say the jack and eight, as suit-preference signals for spades.

Defense often requires careful cooperation, especially when declarer makes a well-timed falsecard.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Osof
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Sept. 10, 1994

In the year ahead, you might do more traveling than you have done for quite some time. These trips may not be of long duration, but they could be adventurous and fun, as well as profitable.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Attitude is extremely important today, especially if you have to deal with something that is complex and distasteful. The secret to your success is to remember that all tasks are enduring. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Lady Luck continues to hover about you where your financial and commercial interests are concerned. Don't think in petty terms. Envision winning on a large scale.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It pays to be a good listener today.

because you have the ability to analyze information quickly, and to take what you hear and turn it to your personal advantage.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Financial tides are beginning to trend in your favor, so be doubly alert for unusual types of opportunities today. One or more might develop.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Whether involved with a large or small group, your natural leadership inclinations will come to the fore today. Others will look to you to handle anything unexpected that occurs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your resourceful and progressive contacts will be the persons who'll be best able to help you the most today. Don't waste time conferring with others who are too steeped in tradition.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your commercial instincts are rather acute today. There's a possibility you'll conceive something that could be profitable, not for now, but for the very near future.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

Someone whose knowledge and experience you desperately need might come to your assistance today, enabling you to accomplish something you've been unable to do on your own thus far.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're a quick thinker today and your immediate responses are apt to be your best. Companions will appreciate their value perhaps even more than you do.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) New ways and methods can be found at this time to enhance your productivity where your work is concerned. Experiment with new ideas and concepts and let go of the old.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't reject any social invitations you get today, because you might meet someone extremely interesting who will introduce you to a fascinating new group.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Pay heed to any flashes of inspiration today that could improve your basic lifestyle. Your intuition may be trying to put you on the track to self-improvement.
