Passes Away Following Illness of Five Days

Struggle Residents' Son Monday Night 0:30 o'clock of Burial Announced

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Calvin Coolidge, Jr., the 16-year-old son of the President, passed away at 0:30 o'clock Monday night after a struggle with illness of five days. The death occurred at the home of the President's wife, Mrs. Coolidge, in the White House.

Calvin was born April 13, 1908, at Northampton, Mass., and went through the grade schools of that city and then entered the high school, completing the first year after his father had come to Washington as vice-president in 1923. He had his brother, John, who is 17 years of age, the next year entered Mercersburg Academy at Mercersburg, Penn., John having graduated last month while Calvin had another year before him. John is to enter Amherst the President's alma mater, this fall and Calvin was to have followed him.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, July 8.—Begin- ning of the slide of Ralston of Indiana shook up the long deadlock today in the convention.

In succession, the Indiana Senator picked up the solid votes of Oklahoma, Missouri, Nevada and Kansas, besides various smaller groups raising his total to a point approaching that of the two leaders. Meantime the McAdoo strength has been pounded to a new low level and Smith is about holding his own.

 dates in signing.
 "Respectfully yours,
 (Signed) William G. McAdoo."
 Text of Agreement
 Here follows the text of the agreement proposed by Mr. McAdoo:
 "We, the undersigned, agree that the unit rule in this convention shall be abrogated and that only a majority vote shall be required to nominate candidates for president and vice-president.
 "The undersigned further agree that after the next ballot and after each succeeding ballot among the candidates formally placed before this convention the one receiving the lowest number of votes shall be dropped until a nomination is made.
 "The undersigned do further agree that each of the delegates present from each state shall be permitted to cast his pro-vice vote of the delegates from such states as are absent from the convention.
 "The undersigned do hereby release each and every delegate from any pledge, instruction or obligation of any nature whatsoever insofar as their candidacy for the Democratic nomination for president is concerned as completely as if their names had been withdrawn from this convention.
 "This statement has been submitted to each candidate whose name has been placed in nomination and has been accepted by those whose names are subscribed hereto either in person or by duly authorized representatives."
 Halt for Conference
 Efforts of the representatives of the various constituents for the Democratic presidential nomination to break the convention's deadlock was halted temporarily early last night by a recess of three hours to allow the McAdoo managers time for a conference.
 The McAdoo leaders asked for the three hours recess after the conference had recessed previously for an hour, declaring they needed time to confer not only with their principal but with the delegates who have been supporting Mr. McAdoo. When the recess was taken, Cordell Hull, chairman of the national committee, and authorized spokesman for the conference, confined his statement practically to the fact that adjournment had been taken until 10 p. m.
 "The matters pending at the time of adjournment are privileged under the rules of the conference and I cannot disclose them," he said. "I hope to be able to do so after the 10 o'clock meeting."
 The chairman said the committee yesterday was "showing the same good temper and was earnestly considering suggestions relative to steps and policies which might help in solving problems of the convention."
 "The conference has nothing to do with individual candidates or what they may do as to their candidacies," he added, "but is striving by means of these mutual conferences toward the reaching of a conclusion."
 The Smith leaders in considering the proposal to release the delegates expressed the view after the recess was taken that it offered a fair opportunity to the convention to express its convictions and that as a result of the proposal a nomination would be brought nearer to realization.
 McAdoo At Disadvantage
 Observers of the move made to obtain an agreement to release all delegates were of the general opinion that it put McAdoo at a disadvantage regardless of whatever way he stood on it. It was asserted that if McAdoo accepted it would doubtless mean the loss of some delegates who have been voting for him, as even the most optimistic McAdoo supporters admit. Smith supporters openly boasted that their candidate could take at least 150 votes away from McAdoo if he released all. The McAdoo people admit that the number would be this large, and countered with the declaration that even though they lost some of their voting strength of last week they would gain new recruits from the favorable non states.
 Opponents of McAdoo also declared that if he refused to go along with the minority proposal it would injure him with delegates who are on the fence, tired and broke, they are certain to take a refusal by McAdoo as a lack of good sportsmanship, his opposition declared and vote against him. The Smith followers were in high glee over the situation because they insisted that the governor's official release of delegates would not cause many votes to shift away from him.
 Not a Thrill
 The various conferences and their recesses were anything but thrilling. It was a muggy day and neither the conferences nor the hundred or so persons who waited for the completion of the conference outside Chairman Hull's rooms appeared able to get much enthusiasm from the happenings.
 The initial meeting got under way around 1 o'clock in the afternoon with Thomas Taggart of Indiana, taking a leading role. He took the floor and declared bluntly that the delegates were going broke and that if something were not done to relieve the situation "Chaos will reign" at the convention.
 As he talked, Taggart became more enthusiastic, and as he urged the need for all favorite sons to set aside personal ambition, his voice rose in such a high pitch that he could be heard plainly in the hall through closed doors.
 After Taggart finished there was desultory discussions for a few minutes, and then the proposal was adopted.
 There was a long discussion in the conference Sunday as well as Saturday night over proposals that both the two-third rule and the unit rule be done away with to expedite a nomination. The McAdoo forces sought every suggestion of the kind advanced.

Folks Back Home Supply Candidates With Needed Funds

 bought millions of dollars worth of goods from New York merchants annually for years and they never expected to have their women jeered at because they were from the South.
 "Our delegation is on one of the back tiers of seats and the language hurled at us could not have come from any other than a tough element. New York delegates had no part in this."
 Governor Morrison said the North Carolina delegates are able to defray their own expenses as long as the convention lasts.
 Col. Leroy Springs, a millionaire cotton manufacturer of South Carolina, declared no one on his delegation needs funds that he or she cannot get with a personal check.
 "The Georgia delegation is good for weeks, if necessary, to nominate a progressive candidate for the presidency," said Hollins N. Randolph, chairman of the Georgia delegation.
 "We came here for a definite purpose and will stay until we have accomplished it if that be possible. For 77 ballots we have voted for William G. McAdoo. We are ready to go that many more. Our people like New York; we trade here. No jeers or wordy attacks can frighten us."
 "Ohio delegates are in fine shape," said former Senator Atlas Pomeroy of that state. "Of course they would like to go home and attend to domestic affairs, but they are well provided with funds."
 "I am sure no delegate from Texas would accept any money from any one to defray his expenses here," said Governor Neff. "Texans travel a great deal and I never heard of one being stranded at a political convention."
 Carter's Statement
 "I am the poorest man in the Florida delegation," said Jerry W. Carter of Tallahassee. "I have wife and seven children. When I realized that we might be here longer than I expected I wrote home and asked Mrs. Carter to look into my bank account and see just what sort of siege it will stand. I came here to put McAdoo over and am doing my best to that end."
 Southern states are better off than those of the grain and livestock sections of the West, delegates assert.
 E. Goltra of Missouri said members of his delegation are in need of immediate funds but will draw on their bank accounts back home.
 "Oregon came here to nominate a candidate for president," said Mrs. Alexander Thompson, a delegate at large. "I did not come prepared for such a long drawn out convention. But I am drawing on my little bank account for money, and when that runs low I will turn to my husband's. If all my funds are expended, I will sleep in the city parks, I am not going home until it is over."

Bar Association Wants Enactment Regulations Bill

TALAHASSEE, Fla., July 7.—The Florida State Bar Association will make another effort, at the legislative session of 1925, to bring about enactment of a law to regulate the bar of the state. The draft of the proposed act probably will be submitted in substantially the same form as that which passed the senate at the 1921 and 1922 sessions of the legislature, but which never reached the house.
 In an effort, however, to determine whether or not this draft meets the approval of members of the bar, a copy has been sent to each member with the request that he submit his views on any changes deemed advisable.
 No attempt is made by the bar association to prescribe the qualifications for the admission to the bar, educational or otherwise, it is pointed out. It merely aims to place the matter of admission and disbarment in the hands of the lawyers themselves as has been done in many other states.
 Under provisions of the proposed act, the state bar would be governed by a board of governors composed of nine members appointed by the governor of the state from members in good standing, two from each congressional district as now or may be hereafter constituted and one from the state at large. Members of the board would be recommended by the bar association, but such recommendations would not be binding upon the state executive.
 Announce Change In Training Camp Plans
 Notice was received here today from Major B. C. Riley, civilian aide to the Secretary of War for Florida, to the effect that all Florida boys who applied and were accepted for Citizens Military Training Camps and who are ordered to Camp McClellan, Anniston, Ala., if they report there Monday, July 7, or Tuesday, July 8, provided they pay their own way and are reimbursed on arrival at camp at the rate of five cents a mile to cover all travel expenses.
 According to this notice boys are hereby authorized to proceed to camp on the first train available with their original orders. This change in plans was made, it is said, after a reconsideration on the part of the War Department.

Revolutionists Are Still Holding Sao Paulo, Brazil City

BUENOS AIRES, July 7.—Sao Paulo, second largest city in Brazil, and capital of the country's wealthiest state, is reported early today to be still in the hands of insurrectionary forces which took possession of government buildings during Friday night and Saturday morning. The sudden uprising was marked by street fighting.
 The coup d'etat is reported to have begun about 10 o'clock Friday night; it reached its climax at 8 o'clock Saturday morning and was completed by noon. The revolutionists gained control of the federal buildings after considerable fighting. The federal government at Rio Janeiro is reported to have dispatched war vessels to Santos, which is the port for Sao Paulo, together with troops to suppress the movement.
 A Rio Janeiro dispatch to La Nacion says the Brazilian congress enacted a government bill putting under a state of siege the states of Rio Janeiro and San Paulo for sixty days. This period the government will extend if necessary.
 Owing to censorship at Rio, and the seizure of the telegraph offices by the revolutionists in San Paulo, few details are coming through.
 A veiled private message from Rio Janeiro received by the Associated Press indicated an effort to communicate that there had been occurrences comparable in seriousness with the revolutionary outbreak in Rio Janeiro in 1922.

Glass Begins To Gain Strength In Today's Balloting of cheering delegates of the Democratic National Convention Sunday night that he did not even contemplate withdrawing from the race for the presidential nomination.

 "Do not for a minute think I will withdraw," he said. "I would feel like the most contemptible traitor alive if I deserted you at this time."
 "No man with so fine and wonderful a body of supporters in this convention and in this country," he added, "could fail to expend every drop of blood in his veins to stand with them until the end."
 "Let us continue to fight in this convention with the music of victory in our hearts and the love of God and of righteousness in our souls; then victory is inevitable."
 Governor Fields of Kentucky, who presided, urged the delegates to appeal to other representatives in the convention "in the interest of the Democratic party to join hands with the forces of America who want a progressive government and to get behind William Gibbs McAdoo."
 Frequently the Kentucky executive brought his audience to their feet with cheers. He declared there could be "no surrender."
 "I know we are tired," he said. "I know that our bank accounts may be running low, but this government was not established without sacrifice and effort."
 "Texas will cast 40 votes for McAdoo until hell freezes over," shouted one delegate from that state. His sentiment was echoed by another delegate from Georgia.

 four days, and the boy's constitution was about exhausted tonight.
 Extreme Remedy Tried
 It was understood that an extreme remedy was attempted tonight but official confirmation was lacking of reports that a blood transfusion had been made. Late in the evening John Coolidge and Secretary Clark returned to the White House but whether in the belief that the most critical moments would not be reached for some time was not indicated.
 Almost immediately, however, they were summoned to the hospital again.
 Arriving there Secretary Clark said that the fact that they were back showed that "things were very serious."
 THE PROMISSORY LIFE
 (From the Washington Star)
 "It used to be regarded as the privilege of the politician to promise anything."
 "Those days have passed," sighed Senator Borah. "The facilities for communication are now such that if you promise a group of men something this afternoon there's a delegation waiting on you next morning to make you promise to take your promise back."

 gested a near-by policeman. "Because" was the reply. "I am not a delegate, and I am not going to lie about it." "My Lord, you are an honest man. Go in by all means," and he was permitted to enter.
 Today's New York newspapers carry an interview with Bryan Mack, editor of the "Pnacola Journal," denying the rumor that McAdoo, if nominated, will be indicted within two weeks.
 "If this rumor does not cease," says Mr. Mack, "I will move to exclude all save delegates, alternates, convention officers and press from Madison Square Garden."

Will it be a Glass? Sitting around is the best thing some people do.

Sanford needs less talk about improvements that are to be made and more action.

Coolidge and LaFollette are alike in at least one respect, each held a convention all of his own.

"Shot In Ambush By Man," reads a headline in the New York Times. Must be a vital spot.

At any rate, Florida is attending the convention and everyone everywhere knows it.

It is hard to understand why the Smith forces failed to include the Wall Street explosion in their McCadoo charges.

The bobbed hair craze has given the silk industry in Switzerland a hard blow. The American girl now wears fewer hair ribbons.

The only time a man has a chance to win an argument with a woman is when she tells her that she is the prettiest one in the world.

The little girl down the street wants to know whether a dead dog is the name of a new hold which Stranger Lewis has adopted.

According to the Tampa Observer Florida showed up with ten true and faithful delegates and a couple of nincompoops.

Sanford could get along better if some of the people who fail to pay their bills would leave town. They are a liability.

Sturcoling some of the brick buildings in the business section of the city would add greatly to the appearance of the downtown section.

The Ocala Star says one difference between a young lady and Tom Appleyard is that the young lady is a flapper and Appleyard is a flopper.

The entire country is shocked today with the news of the death of Calvin Coolidge, Junior. Death seems to be talking around the White House entirely too much.

The Wulsen expedition sent out by the National Geographical Society to the northwestern region of China reports finding a blond, curly-haired Chinese people.

On busy days the traffic situation on Magnolia Avenue and on Park Avenue between First and Second Streets is a serious one. Little time should be wasted in making these avenues wider.

About ten million people in this country listen in over their radio sets to entertainments. In all probability they are all cursing the static caused by the racket at New York.

The city of Lima, Peru, has a earthquake about once a week, but in ten years there has been no loss of life or property. Eight jars and heavy rumblings are the chief characteristics. Which reminds us of Madison Square Garden.

A German university is offering the degree of B.D. which is known as the "Doctor of Beer" degree. It is conferred upon the completion of a course in beer making. American moonshiners will please take note.

The Sanford Herald contains almost every day some account of new developments for the coming months. Those persons who intend going away for vacations can easily keep posted on what is happening here some. Phone The Herald office and order the paper sent to your address.

Without work bees and other similar insects, according to a German entomologist, a bee must have companionship or he will die within five days. No matter how much honey he may have on hand, no states. The same thing holds true for man. Regardless of how much money he may have, without companionship or something to do he will soon pass out.

An Important But Unpleasant Job

How would you like to be a bill collector? His is an unpleasant task but a decidedly important one. Dependent upon his success in bringing in the money rears the life of the business he represents. Lack of ability to collect money has been the cause of many financial failures in the business world. Many business institutions are always bordering on the verge of bankruptcy through their inability to collect outstanding accounts from supposedly reliable people.

But just think for a time about the job of a bill collector. Then perhaps when he calls to see you tomorrow or the day after he will receive a better reception and more courteous treatment. Few people think of the influence held by a bill collector. The reports he gives to his employer have much to do with the credit standing of business men.

It is a pleasure for him to make collections from some people. There are people who pay promptly and who value the friendship of the bill collector as well as good credit standing. The man who is man enough to come out in the open and tell the collector that he cannot pay his bill for lack of funds but will make it a point to do so on such and such a day and then lives up to his promise, has the respect of the man trying to get the account straightened. Dealings with people like this are pleasant. But is there any man more disgusting than the fellow who thinks it is smart to keep a bill collector trotting back and forth for some small account that is long past due and which can easily be paid?

It is indeed surprising to know just who comprise the more reliable business men of a community. Some people holding rather conspicuous places in the life of a city are the poorest pay and have the worst credit.

There are right here in Sanford a few business men who are lacking in principle when it comes to paying their just debts. Perhaps they are the exceptions but the fact remains they are here and are in business.

You have met the man who for some unknown reason fails to pay his little bill. You have seen him run when he sees a bill collector come around. You have heard him promise every conceivable kind of excuse. You have heard him promise and promise with no intention of living up to his word. And then you wonder how a man like this, posing as honest, upright and a good citizen, "gets by." You then wake up to find that he doesn't "get by" but is known as nothing but a despicable deadbeat.

Just how do you stand in the eyes of the man who tries to collect bills from you? Is it a pleasure for him to call on you or is it necessary for him to try to figure out some scheme to get the money out of you which belongs to someone else. Just what would you see if you were in the bill collector's place?

How would you like to change places with him?

Just A Beginning

Last week there was inaugurated thirty-six hour night air-mail service across the Continent. Flying according to schedule the new postal service is proving entirely satisfactory and is opening new fields for transportation development.

The trip from New York to San Francisco carrying the mail requires thirty-four hours and forty-five minutes flying, while the voyage eastward is made in thirty-two hours and five minutes. The discrepancy is due partly to helpful winds on the return trip.

Red, white and blue mail boxes have been placed at many important points in New York City and at various stopping places along the route. Mail under fifty pounds in weight and forty-eight inches in girth will be carried. The rates are eight cents an ounce for any one zone and twenty-four cents an ounce for the entire trip. The country is divided into three zones. The first is between New York and Chicago, the second between Chicago and Cheyenne, and the third between Cheyenne and San Francisco.

For the purpose of guiding the night flyers the airway is illuminated in a manner considered a marvel of engineering. Lighthouses and beacons are placed along the way and the combined candle power of all of them will be 5,179,000,000. At the main lighting stations of Chicago, Iowa City, Omaha, North Platte and Cheyenne, there are towers which will carry electric light beacons of five hundred million candle power and visible for one hundred and fifty miles, being placed slightly above the horizon so as to meet the eye of the pilot in the sky. These lights flash around a circle three times each minute. Incandescent acetylene lights of five million candle power will flash at intermediate points, twenty-two miles apart. Every field will have all obstacles illuminated, floodlights for the landing places and illuminated wind vanes. The planes themselves will be lighted at tip and base.

The inauguration of the new air mail delivery between New York and San Francisco suggests that before long it will be possible not only to dispatch letters in that manner but to send larger shipments. The next few years will see freight and passenger service a regular thing and we will think little of jumping from one side of the country to the other in a few hours.

Development of the airship has hardly begun. It is just beginning to take its place as a necessity in this fast age.

"THE NEW YORK World thinks a man a Statesman if his car is trained to catch the slightest pulsations of a pocketbook, and it regards as a 'demagogue' anyone who dares to listen to the 'heartbeats of humanity.'"—William Jennings Bryan.

A MEAN RAILROAD crossing is the one across First Street down by the freight station. If you don't think so cry it and see.

FRONT BALTIMORE SUN

Observe the front teeth. They glisten. They glisten because they have been scrubbed with a brush anointed with some paste or powder. They redeem a homely face. They are social and commercial assets. Now observe the back teeth. Do they glisten? They do not; they are nothing to brag about. They are commonplace workers doomed to remain in the background. They get a lick and a promise instead of a thorough scrubbing fore and aft—partly, of course, because they are not easy to get at, but chiefly because they do not show. If every smile revealed them to the public, they would receive a grooming no less thorough than that given the boys out in front. Years ago a cynic remarked that clothes make the man. The moderns, being enamored of democracy, have rejected this doctrine and insist with Burns that a man is a man for a' that. But even while insisting that a man must be judged by what he does, they continue to judge him by the way he looks; and in this they are in no way at fault, for the human race learned to accept the testimony of its senses long before it learned to think, and the habit of respecting

As Brisbane Sees It

Self-Government. Good Jobs. McCadoo Is No Quitter. The President's Son.

WHAT WE CALL self-government is not so much a thing as it is at least amusing. Statesmen of the political boss type, spent yesterday "conferring," which means discussing various deals, to decide on a Democratic candidate. After they decide, you will have the pleasure of getting excited about the man who has been chosen and will vote for him—unless you happen to belong to another party.

WHAT THE PEOPLE want means nothing. The insiders ask: "Upon whom can we agree? What man is sufficiently eligible to save us from being ridiculous will suit us all and those for whom we work?" Nobody asks in that inside conference "Whom do the voters want?" or "What candidate has the largest support?" It is purely a question of political expediency and agreement among bosses. If they can find a man that will stand hitched, keep his promises to the men that name him, regardless of platform promises, that is the man you will get for a candidate.

OCCASIONALLY AS IN 1906, when Bryan nominated himself, a man not selected by the insiders gets the nomination. But that happens rarely, and when it does happens to the boss on both sides unite to beat such an upstart.

IN THIS CASE just one thing seems agreed upon. McCadoo, who came to the convention with the highest support, preferably a patch of delegates, must get out. All bosses and the big men they work for are agreed on that. Whether they can put the program through you will know perhaps today or tomorrow. The suggestion that McCadoo "quit for the sake of party harmony" is interestingly preposterous. McCadoo, of course, will not do anything as yellow as that. His men may quit him—if they are yellow. But he will stick. Newspapers that watched him fighting high finance when he forced through the Hudson tunnels and when he ran the railroads and regulated bond interest rates against Wall Street's mandate, knew that he is no quitter.

McCadoo HAS doubled his strength throughout the country since the convention began. Those that know him only by dim hearsay know one definite thing now. They know that the whole gang of financial and corporation lickspillers hate him and want him beaten, no matter who else may be chosen, and that about as good a recommendation as they would make for any candidate. It is the recommendation to which LaFollette owes his influence, and to which he will owe a big vote, without the help of any party.

ALL FATHERS AND mothers should be put on their guard by the illness of the President's son. The boy is on and is left in that condition as thousands of boys and girls do every day in summer. That is most dangerous.

THE EARTH EVERYWHERE is impregnated with dangerous germs, including the germ of lock-jaw and innumerable other germs that may cause blood poisoning if a slight wound is neglected. The feet and especially the toes, are more readily infected than any other external part of the body. Cramped for generations in shoes, deprived of their natural blood supply, very often the toes lose their power of resistance to germ attack. Constantly you read of blood poisoning that starts in the foot.

WEARING SHOES without stockings, neglecting a cut or blister, as children often do, any germs accumulated are persistent and continuously rubbed into the tissues and into the blood circulation with no protecting stockings between the foot and the leather. The pluckier the child, the more probability of a neglected wound and boyish courage, unfortunately, is no protection against germ attacks. Children with feet completely bare are in less danger. The sole of the foot becomes hardened. There is no chafing of the skin, no rubbing of germs into and through the cuticle. Feet bare, come out from in walking and running and from a bare foot, rushing through grass and weeds, germs are rubbed away, not held and rubbed in.

HOW DO THE English hold their great empire together? How do they keep three hundred million Asiatics in order with only one hundred thousand Britons in all India? You get an answer in the death in China of Edwin C. Hawley, and the action taken by the commander of His British Majesty's ship Cock Chafer.

HAWLEY, MURDERED by Chinese junk men—which means pirates, not dealers in junk—was not even a British subject. He was "only" an American. But he was employed by a British firm and that was enough for the British sea captain. He landed his men and compelled the Chinese authorities to execute two of the Chinese junk men as a little lesson to the others. And then he compelled every one of the high Chinese officials of the Sechwan province to walk humbly behind the bier at the murdered American's funeral. The Chinese authorities "protest" against such rudeness by the commander of the British gunboat, but that won't do any good. Our State Department makes representations about the murder of an American citizen and that won't bother China. What impresses the Chinese and others scattered around the world is the simple directness of a Briton when he thinks his national flag has been insulted.

HOW CAN THEY PUT ON A GOOD FIGHT?

THE PICNICKING SEASON PALM BEACH POST

Picnicking time from coast to coast is abroad in the great American country. From one year to the other "spots" are picked out and chartered to be used by merry folk—every convenient nook where shrubs and trees and vine canopy a shade; every little stream or stretch of water, preferably a patch of green by the shore, overshadowed by great, tall oaks or sycamores, with green fields running to the higher woodland slope; the bend of the river, the dead end of a rural line, all because the Ultima Thule of the automobile picnicking party. And then, like as not, the picnic becomes desecrated when the picnic is on and is left in that condition. Perhaps the owner of the property must clean it up himself, and then he will put up great signs "No trespassing," so that the next stranger is warned and sent away with the feeling that "these farmers are stingy and crabbed and unreasonable."

MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S CAPES ARE FAIRYLIKE

QUEEN Titania herself might design to wear this fairy-like cape of rose colored chiffon, which is eminently worthy of having in a midsummer night's dream. The great queen of children and Oberon's favorite, says Henri Creange, Parvian fashion Authority, creates charming capes of this airy character. The superposition of several gathered flounces render them warm and fluff. They must of necessity be generously full, but the fullness is confined by gentle rows of corded shirring. Each fairy layer of the chiffon is dotted and fullers freely.

These delicate capes are quite easy to make, but of course all the work should be done by hand, as machine stitching would spoil the soft effect. Nothing is more charming for summer evenings than these capacious wraps, which, laid around the shoulders are as light as a feather, yet have sufficient weight to be a real protection against warm summer breezes. For a dress often made such wraps, and if it is desired to use them late into the season, they may be lined with velvet.

The cape shown here is rose pink and by the way, pink stands high on the list of colors favored by people for summer, according to the Cheney color analysis of colors and materials recently issued. This is welcome news, for rose colored dresses like rose shaded blouses and a long-sleeved blouse to meet women. The fur collar of this pink chiffon cape is a very desirable, and the slippers are of rose satin.
