We applaud not only the courage which these builders displayed in backing up their skills with money, in supporting their confidence in the growth of our area with action, but also the fine manner in which the architects, construction crews and management fulfilled their respective

Already this move by the builders has been successful. On the opening day of the show Sunday, the crowds were exceptional and at least one seeker for this kind of a home in this delightful natural environment was satisfied enough to buy.

Of course we are boosters for Sanford, Of course we are aware of the growth potential which is only now making itself felt.

But above all we would compliment again these builders who turned their vision into reality and afforded an object lesson that all of us in every area of activity can take notice of with
