I-4 closing for tonight

LAKE MARY — The left lane of westbound traffic and the right lane of eastbound traffic on Interstate 4 at Lake Mary Boulevard will be closed tonight from 11 p.m. until 6 a.m. Thursday to allow highway construction crews to place barrier walls and lay striping.

Disney chairman receives bonus

ORLANDO — Michael Eisner, Walt Disney's chairman and chief executive officer, received a $750,000 salary and $10.5 million bonus in 1990, according to a proxy statement mailed to shareholders this week.

That brings Eisner's total compensation to $11.2 million, up from $9.5 million in fiscal year 1989.

In addition to the proxy, shareholders this week were mailed Disney's annual report, which this year did not include a percentage increase or decrease in attendance at its theme parks.

Eisner, in his letter to shareholders, said that while "attendance at theme parks was strong for the fiscal year, our park operations were affected by weakening tourism in the fourth quarter."

Amusement Business, the trade magazine, has estimated that Disney's 1990 attendance fell 5 percent to 28.4 million from about 29.9 million a year earlier.

Good deal gone sour

MIAMI — Martha Williams thought she made a good deal when she paid $500 for a 1978 Cadillac Coupe De Ville. Now she's sorry she ever laid eyes on it.

The blue coupe grabbed the attention of police as it sat for three weeks in the parking lot of an Opa-Locka apartment building while Ms. Williams waited to get the title put in her name.

They thought it was stolen and had it impounded, then used a power jack to cut into the car in search of the vehicle identification number on the body to match the number on the dashboard.

In the process, they pulled apart the dash, leaving wires hanging out, and removed the back seat to get into the trunk that couldn't be opened.

Finally, they acknowledged it wasn't stolen at all.

Charred remains in missing Lake Mary resident's vehicle

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — The charred remains of a person believed by law enforcement to be Beverly Marie Hawkins, 44, of 176 Dublin Dr. in Lake Mary, have been found in a vehicle registered to Hawkins.

Hawkins, a teacher of physically and mentally impaired Pre-Kindergarten students at Winter Springs Elementary School, 701 W. State Road 434 in Winter Springs, is currently listed as missing by the sheriff's office.

Her family is simply waiting to hear what the investigations into the case reveal.

Don Browning, Hawkins' brother, spoke for the family this morning.

"We don't have a lot of facts," he said. "We're just waiting to get more so we know."

At about 5 a.m. on Tuesday Lake County emergency services personnel responded to a call about a vehicle fire on County Road 433, one mile south of State Road 46 in Mt. Plymouth.

The vehicle, an Isuzu pick up truck, was registered in Seminole County so the state fire marshal's office contacted Seminole County sheriff's officials to see if they had any reports of missing persons who drove a vehicle matching the description of the one involved in the fire.

According to George Proechel, public information officer for the Seminole County Sheriff's Office, there had been no such reports.

"But about 45 minutes later we got a missing persons report about Hawkins from her daughter," Proechel said.

Initiated by the city Scenic Improvement Board a couple of years ago, the project will plant a total of 8,558 plants, shrubs and trees in seven State Road 46 medians between Avocado Avenue and the Sydney Chase overpass.

The city received a $43,248 highway beautification grant from the state. Sanford will pay $20,000 for the landscaping project, in addition to providing

'Hellacious' fighting erupts, Marines killed

Associated Press

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia — U.S. Marines fired anti-tank weapons and called in air strikes to repel a three-pronged attack by tank-led Iraqi forces today. Eight to 10 Marines were killed and heavy Iraqi casualties were reported, U.S. military officials said.

The Marines were the first American ground forces to die in battle in the 2-week-old war with Iraq. The clash, which started Tuesday night, was the heaviest ground fighting so far in the Persian Gulf War.

As the ground fighting broke out, air-sea clashes were reported in the gulf, and bomb-laden allied warplanes thundered off runways in Saudi Arabia to strike targets deep in Iraq.

A Pentagon source characterized the Iraqi ground action as a "probing attack" aimed at assessing allied strength and weaknesses — not meant to seize and hold ground.

Reports from Marines on the ground spoke of hand-to-hand combat in the streets of the Saudi border town of Khafji. Marine Lt. Col. Cliff Myers described the fighting as "hellacious" as the LAKE MARY — Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce members last night said goodbye to outgoing president Mike Curasi, welcomed incoming president Kathie Ragan and honored several citizens who have made outstanding contributions to the community.

The chamber's first Awards Banquet, which will become an annual event, was attended by 121 people at Timacuan Country Club.

City Manager John Litton presented marble obelisks in recognition of selfless public service and outstanding accomplishments by six area residents.

"These people give back more than they take," he said.

The Public Service Award was presented to Lake Mary Fire Chief Robert Stoddard, who volunteers about 25 a week to the department.

"He has taken us from a small town fire department to a first class level," Litton said. Teacher of the Year was awarded to Greenwood Lakes Middle School science teacher, Ron Bradley.

"His room might be messy, it's filled with skulls and bones, but if you ask any of his students how they became so interested in science they'll answer 'Mr. Bradley,'" longtime resident Marian Caraway said.

Seminole High School Student of the Year, Steven Wilbur, was honored for academic excellence. He maintains a 4.1 grade point average.

"I didn't know you could go that high, but I guess with the new math, anything is possible," Litton said.

Lake Mary High School Student of the Year is Joe Menello. Flanked by proud parents, Menello thanked chamber members and his parents for their encouragement.

"Joe represents what a student athlete is all about," Litton said.

Citizen of the Year, John Hauck attributed his contributions to his wife of 34 years, Grace, whom he said, "helped, encouraged and pushed

Firm: Recycleables tainted by oil

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — Someone's used oil contaminated two truckloads of materials collected for recycling last week, said the president of the garbage company that had the items taken to the county dump.

"We had no alternative but to take items to the landfill," said John Jennings, Industrial Waste Service president. "The oil particularly ruins aluminum and plastic so they can't be used."

On Jan. 19, two IWS trucks were seen unloading plastic, glass bottles and other items collected for recycling at the county dump where they were pushed into the piles of garbage and covered up.

Recycling uses materials that doesn't foul up the other materials. This couldn't be used.

County officials said three separate trucks were involved, two from Oviedo, and one from Longwood on Jan. 21, were involved in the dumping. Officials have directed dump workers to refuse recycling trucks under any circumstances as a result.

A county investigation suggested the materials had become mixed, but witnesses said the materials were separated in distinct piles and were not mixed.

Jennings said Monday several plastic containers with used motor oil had been included with other plastic bottles when they were picked up by two IWS recycling haulers in Longwood. The containers burst, spreading oil throughout the truck and polluting all of the materials. Jennings said officials at Southeast Recycling, Longwood's recycler, refused to accept the oily items.

Jennings said the materials had

Antique shop was fire trap, owner says

By LACY DOMEN
Herald People Editor

SANFORD — As Sanford firefighters today continue to investigate the blaze which consumed an old warehouse Sunday, its owner and one former tenant said they were not surprised the building caught fire.

Mark Shuttleworth, who housed and sold architectural antiques in the building for almost 10 years, said although the building had historic value, it was full of leaks, holes and rotting wood.

"I woke up in the middle of the night for almost 10 years in fear the place would burn down," he said. Shuttleworth moved his business, Florida Victoriana, to DeLand early last year.

Shuttleworth said he had run vagrants off the property many times.

"Derelicts have lived in the woods across the street from the building for years. I've caught them many times sleeping under the building," he said. "It wouldn't surprise me if someone had been inside."

Owner Wayne Blecha agreed.

"I'm real curious how it started. There was no electricity on in the building, so it wasn't faulty wiring. It's got to be that somebody was in there at 11 o'clock in the morning," he said. "Somebody had to have some kind of fire in there for it to have started."

School district plays role in blueprint future

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The Seminole County school district is playing an important role in the implementation of the state Department of Education's Blueprint for Career Preparation and supporters want the state legislature to know about it.

"The legislature funds these programs," said Sylvester Chang, owner of Sanford Mobile and an active supporter of the project which is designed to prepare vocational students, particularly those in the automotive area, for the challenges of a career in a technological world.

Chang serves on the state automotive industry committee that helps coordinate the blueprint.

"We have to justify the program to the legislature," Chang said. "I think we can do that."

Orlando lawyer imprisoned

ORLANDO — A federal judge has sentenced an Orlando lawyer to five months in prison on a guilty plea to cocaine-conspiracy charges. Scott Richardson, 30, faces automatic suspension for up to three years from the practice of law. He was sentenced Monday. U.S. District Judge George Young also ordered Richardson to serve three years probation after his release and to undergo drug and alcohol treatment. Prosecutors said a telephone wiretap recorded Richardson talking about returning poor-quality drugs to his supplier, James Limotta, 42, of Casselberry. Limotta pleaded guilty in November to related marijuana-conspiracy and distribution charges. He was sentenced Monday to four years in prison. Another key figure in the case, Bruce Costa, 36, of Orlando, was sentenced to eight years and three months in prison.

Victim of plane crash identified

ORLANDO — The pilot of a single-engine plane that crashed in a rural area near Orlando has been identified as Robert Barry, 29, of Miami. Barry worked for Flight Express, an Orlando company that owned the airplane. He was ferrying bank documents from Miami to Orlando Executive Airport, sheriff's officials said. The pilot radioed Orlando International Airport in the pre-dawn hours Monday that he was having mechanical trouble. The National Transportation and Safety Board was investigating the cause of the crash.

Tests begin on Air Force One

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE — A Boeing 747 designated Air Force One when the president is aboard has arrived at this base in the Florida Panhandle for flight tests, officials say. The blue and white plane arrived Sunday, said officials who refused to disclose any details about the testing. Eglin is the nation's largest air base, covering 734 square miles. It is headquarters for the Air Force Development Test Center, which is responsible for developing and testing non-nuclear weapons. Its weapons-testing ranges include equipment that simulates enemy radar to test the electronic countermeasures capabilities of U.S. warplanes.

Mother's dying wish to see daughter

TAMPA — A mother battling cancer says her dying wish is to see her runaway daughter again. The teen-ager ran away last month after being grounded. "I would like to see my daughter before I die," Marcia King said from her bed at St. Joseph's Cancer Institute. "The doctors say I have about two months." Cassandra Eisner, 15, left a note Dec. 30, telling her mother she loved her and would keep in touch. Mrs. King said her daughter "has been left alone a lot because of me being in the hospital so much. She may have felt left out of things." David King said he found two notes from his stepdaughter of 14 years — one to him and one to his wife. A neighbor told the Kings that Cassandra may have left the area with a boyfriend named Henry, an 18- or 19-year-old she met three weeks ago.

Authorities break up cocaine ring

OCALA — Authorities on Tuesday busted a cocaine ring that conducted transactions worth thousands of dollars a week after being infiltrated by an undercover police officer last year. State and federal officers began arresting 31 people just before dawn. Three of the leaders were issued federal indictments for conspiring to sell cocaine and have been transported to Jacksonville. "We've had bigger operations, but this is the first time we've tried to dismantle the whole thing," said Capt. Frank Worley of the Ocala Marion County Narcotics and Vice Task Force. "We didn't get everybody we wanted, but we got most of them."

'Smart' bombs on the move

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE — A more-powerful version of television- and infrared-guided "smart" bombs being used in the Persian Gulf war is scheduled for delivery next month, Air Force officials say. The GBU-15 combines the accuracy of the earlier GBU-15 guided glide bomb with the ability of the "Improved 2000," a one-ton unguided bomb, to penetrate hardened, stationary targets, said Col. Michael R. Harrison. "The GBU-15-1 is a real success story," said Harrison, director of the air-to-surface weapons system program office for the Air Force Aeronautical Systems Division.

'Turkey' reformation proposed

Legislature's leaders demand justification

By CURT ANDERSON Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Special projects, labeled "turkeys" in legislative jargon, will have to be justified in writing before the leadership will consider them under a first-of-its-kind policy. Senate President Gwen Margolis and House Speaker T.K. Wetherell sent a letter this week to all 160 state lawmakers including a form requiring details about every project before it gets a committee hearing.

The letter points out that all the requests will be made public when filed with the appropriations committees in both houses. The two leaders recommend that lawmakers not allow lobbyists or special interest groups to fill out the forms. "This makes the management of such requests unwieldy and may place requests in the files that you would not want to be associated with or defend before a committee," the letter says. "Moreover, it serves to raise expectations in a year of extreme fiscal stress."

Gov. Lawton Chiles, who has pledged to rid the state budget of as many special projects as possible, said a projected deficit of between $1.4 billion and $1.7 billion for the fiscal year that begins July 1 could make it easier to accomplish.

"Not having any money at all, let's cut it off right here," Chiles said. "If everybody goes home and says 'there wasn't anything this year,' I think it will work better."

The new policy clearly defines a special project, sets up a public procedure for its consideration and requires follow-up to make sure any money appropriated is spent properly. No state funds can be spent on lobbying for the projects.

The Legislature has never before required lawmakers to fill out a form to get special projects considered, said Gayle Andrews, spokeswoman for Margolis. Usually, they are tucked away in appropriations bills, out of easy public sight. Wetherell, D-Daytona Beach, and Margolis, D-North Miami, told lawmakers to keep in mind that education and social services are likely to suffer in the current financial climate.

"Please consider the current financial situation and these guidelines which require public hearings in both houses prior to making your request," the letter says. "We strongly suggest that each member limit their appropriations requests to high-priority programs and essential government services."

Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Winston "Bud" Gardner, D-Titusville, has a simpler test.

Gardner has been telling lawmakers to stop and think, first, how the special project would look in their hometown newspaper if education and social services are cut. And second, they should consider how it would look in Gardner's hometown newspaper if such cuts are made.

13-year-old killer gets 55-year term

FORT PIERCE — A 14-year-old youth who pleaded no contest to killing a migrant worker during an alleged drug deal was sentenced Tuesday to a 55-year prison sentence.

Farris Eugene "Buck" Wilson, who was 13 when charged with killing Noel Lopez, told a St. Lucie County judge he was satisfied with the plea deal, which will send him to jail for 17 to 20 years under prison-release formulas.

"Farris was very pleased and relieved when the plea was offered Monday," said Public Defender Phil Yacucci. "He thought it was fair."

Although a grand jury indicted Wilson on a first-degree murder charge, Assistant State Attorney Steve Levin said it might have been tough to prove premeditation because Wilson never said he intended to kill Lopez, 37.

"It's tough to put a value on someone's life and say how many years is enough for murder."

Astronaut's son offers space cards

FORT LAUDERDALE — The son of a former astronaut is hoping his SpaceShots trading cards with vital stats on liftoffs, orbits and moon walks will be as popular as baseball cards one day.

Next shuttle launch delayed

By MARGIA BURN AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — Discovery will lift off on the year's first space shuttle flight nearly a week later than planned so workers can replace three bad steering thrusters, NASA says.

The mission, dedicated to Defense Department work, was scheduled for late February but now is planned for early March. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration will set an official launch date in mid-February.

Two of the 44 thrusters used to steer Discovery in orbit are leaking and another has a bad weld, NASA spokeswoman Lisa Malone said Tuesday. Three new ones will be installed Thursday, 9:17 p.m.; lows, 2:30 a.m.

The mission was scheduled for late February but now is planned for early March.

hook-ups and tests.

Discovery's crew will make frequent use of the steering jets to maneuver the shuttle into unusual positions during the eight-day flight. The spacechip's re-entry engines then will be fired so a satellite temporarily placed in orbit can observe the rocket exhaust plumes.

Military experts plan to use that information to develop technology for better identifying the plumes of missiles aimed against the United States or its allies in future wars.

Also on Tuesday, scientists and astronauts showed off a scientific observatory scheduled to be carried into orbit by the shuttle Atlantis in early April, the year's second mission.

The Gamma Ray Observatory will orbit about 280 miles high for at least two years, measuring high-energy emissions from quasars, pulsars, black holes and other massive stellar objects. It will be 10 times more sensitive to gamma rays than previous spacecraft, said John Hrasnar, the observatory's project manager.

It is the second of NASA's four so-called Great Observatories. The first is the Hubble Space Telescope, which was carried aloft by Discovery in April and later found to have a defective mirror that has limited its usefulness.

POLICE BRIEFS

Aggravated assault charged

Richard Gerald Mobley, 19, of 615 E. 2nd St. in Sanford was arrested on Saturday night and charged with aggravated assault.

According to arrest reports, Mobley entered uninvited into a fight between Bobby Coffield and Latoya Butts outside the Last Stop Bar on Southwest Rd. in Sanford. Coffield allegedly told Mobley to mind his own business and Mobley allegedly rushed at Coffield and a scuffle ensued.

The report said that bystanders broke up the fight and that Mobley allegedly then went to his car and took a gun from under the front seat and, according to witnesses, put the gun to Coffield's head and threatened to kill him.

The report said that he then left the scene as sheriff's officers approached, but he was stopped by Sanford Police shortly thereafter.

The report states that Coffield identified Mobley as the man who assaulted him.

The report also noted that Mobley admitted to all but the incident with the gun.

Mobley is being held in the John E. Polk Correctional Facility on $2,000 bond.

Man tries to stop cocaine use with glass

Frankie Carl Reed, 47, of 819 W. First St. in Sanford, was arrested on Saturday night and charged with aggravated assault.

According to the arrest report, Sanford police officers arrested Reed after he hit Linda Logan over the head with a glass, causing a bump on her head which required medical treatment.

Reed allegedly told police that he had hit Logan, with whom he has lived for three years, over the head with a glass because he did not want her to use crack cocaine.

He is being held in the John E. Polk Correctional Facility on $4,000 bond.

Hit and run suspect arrested

Julia Hopkins Alexander, 31, of 1517 W. 7th St. in Sanford was arrested at her residence on Monday afternoon and charged with leaving the scene of an accident which resulted in injuries.

Alexander, according to the arrest report, was involved in a Nov. 30, 1990 accident at the intersection of French Avenue and 9th Street in Sanford that resulted in injuries to Kelly Grayson and Frank Dimaglio.

According to sheriff's office reports, Alexander left the scene of the accident before law enforcement officers arrived.

She is being held on $5,000 bond at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

Used tires stolen

Gary W. Swaim, 47, of 12973 Lake Mary Jane Road in Orlando, was arrested Monday and charged with breaking a window at Jerry's Cycle and Salvage, 223 Third St. in Sanford and taking six used tires valued at $60.

According to the Sanford Police Department arrest report, Swaim named another individual as having committed the crime.

According to the report, the fingerprints of that individual did not match those taken from the scene while Swaim's fingerprint did match.

Swaim is being held at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Theft from mother charged

John Quincy Reed, 21, of 2450 Granby St. in Sanford was arrested Monday and charged with grand theft and grand theft of a firearm.

According to the sheriff's office report, Reed, who is also known as "Humpty", removed two white gold rings from his mother's dresser on Thursday, Jan. 24 and sold them for $40. It also states that on Friday, Jan. 25, he removed a color television, a 12-gauge pump shotgun and a Seiko wrist watch from his mother's home and sold them for $40.

Reed turned himself into sheriff's officers on Monday and admitted the thefts, according to police.

He is being held at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility on $5,000 bond.

Man charged with loitering

Robert Keith Abel, 28, of 504 E. Graves Ave. in Orange City, was arrested early Tuesday morning and charged with loitering and prowling.

According to the Seminole County Sheriff's Office arrest report, Abel was observed crouching behind bags of cypress mulch at the Starvin' Marvin store at 4730 State Road 48 in Sanford.

The report noted that when Abel spotted law enforcement officers, he ran to the back of the store and jumped over a chain link fence. After he was apprehended by officers, a stocking cap with holes cut out for eyes was discovered on the far side of the fence. Fibers matching those of the stocking cap were discovered on the seat of his pick up truck which was parked at a nearby hotel.

The report states that a razor blade knife was found in Abel's pocket at the time of his arrest.

He is being held at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility without bond.

Strong arm robbery reported

The report noted that there are no suspects in the case.

Suber mulls decision on land-appraisal suit

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County Property Appraiser Bill Suber says he has not yet decided whether to sue members of the county Property Appraisal Adjustment Board over decisions they made last year to allow tax-saving agricultural classifications for seven property owners.

Although he originally thought the PAAB could reverse itself, Suber said he will either have to sue the board to force them to change their decisions or allow the decisions to stand.

"They put the shoes on and now they have to wear them," Suber said.

Based on final tax assessments by the county, cities and water management district, nearly $71,000 in property taxes were lost due to the PAAB decisions last August. The PAAB was comprised of Seminole County Commissioners Jennifer Kelley, Fred Streetman and Pat Warren, Seminole County School Board member Jow Williams and former school board member Larry Betalinger.

Some of the tax savings for the owners were significant. On one property owned by Viola Kastner next to a proposed Interstate 4 interchange, her taxes went from Suber's recommended $17,026 to $1,013, a 94 percent reduction. Another Kastner tax bill was lowered from $384 to $3.59, a 99 percent reduction.

Kastner is the mother of Kelley's former husband, Eoghan Kelley. Kelley voted on the Kastner properties, saying as a result of her divorce, she no longer had any rights to the property.

Earlier this month, the director of the state Department of Revenue determined the PAAB had erred in allowing the agricultural classifications on the properties because the owners failed to prove they were in active use for agriculture.

Suber said he and his staff have received "more than 10, but less than 100" inquiries from residents angered about the PAAB decisions and encouraging him to sue the board. "They were basically mad about the decisions," he said.

"This is more of a principle kind of thing," Suber said. "With a precedent like this, if you don't do something about it, it creates problems across the state."

Amnesty days for waste

SANFORD — Seminole County wants your hazardous waste.

If you don't think you have any, consider this. Paint thinners, pesticides, batteries (both the car and the flashlight kind,) glue, household cleansers and dozens of other things around the house often tossed into garbage cans can pollute drinking water supplies underneath garbage dumps.

To help residents dispose of the poisonous stuff, the county will hold a hazardous waste "Amnesty Day" Saturday, Feb. 9, from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. at the Winn Dixie Plaza on U.S.

Highway 17-92 near State Road 434 in Longwood. Collected materials will be properly discarded by GSX Corp. under a county contract.

At 9:30 a.m., the county Hazardous Materials Team will demonstrate the hazards of mixing common household materials and how to pull out most household fires. The county agriculture department will offer a demonstration on composting lawn clippings and leaves and the county recycling office will distribute t-shirts, key chains, fribees and yo-yos to attendees.

Scholarships offered by garbage firm

By VICKI DESORNER
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Waste Management Inc. will be giving $6,000 in college scholarships to Seminole County high school seniors this spring. One student from each district high school will receive $1,000 toward post-secondary education.

At last night's school board meeting Kyle Adams, marketing development manager for the company, presented the Seminole County School Board with the general criteria for the awards which have been set by Waste Management.

According to Adams, the winners need only be graduating seniors who plan to continue their education.

"It can be either in academics or in vocational studies," he said.

Each of the schools will be allowed to choose students by their own scholarship winners based on academic achievement and financial need.

The scholarship, being given the first time this year, will be called the Award of Excellence.

It is intended, Adams said, to recognize, promote and reward academic achievement among Seminole County school children.

In addition to providing the $1,000 scholarships, Waste Management will provide personalized plaques for each of the winners as well as a permanent plaque for each school on which the annual winners names will be engraved.

Adams said the goal of the Award of Excellence program is to "cultivate and encourage excellence in education among Seminole County students."

Sophisticated and deadly

The videotape released recently by the Pentagon of a bombing mission over Iraq provided a vivid portrayal of the high-tech war that American forces are waging.

As the pilot kept the cross hairs trained on an air vent atop the targeted building, a laser-guided bomb homed in unerringly on that precise spot, inflicting a direct hit on the most vulnerable part of the structure. The scene was graphic evidence that a pilot literally can choose which window of a building he wants his bomb to go through.

During the last decade, the Pentagon has invested hundreds of billions of dollars in a vast array of highly sophisticated weaponry that, until this week, had never been fired in anger. To the surprise of many critics and the relief of American military commanders, most of the hardware appears to be working pretty much as advertised.

Far more important than the lethal precision of the latest generation of arms is that they save lives. Cruise missiles, laser-guided munitions and other "smart" weapons allow American forces to strike targets from stand-off distances, out of the range of the anti-aircraft guns that ring most Iraqi positions. The high degree of accuracy also spares civilian casualties from unintended collateral damage.

During 2,000 combat sorties a day — the heaviest aerial bombardment since World War II — allied losses have been surprisingly light. (By comparison, at the height of the bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong in 1972, U.S. warplanes were flying about 700 sorties a week.) The low casualty rate in Iraq is a testament not only to the advanced weaponry but also the superb level of training, courage and professionalism of American service personnel.

At least in this initial stage of the war, the effectiveness of the air offensive has exceeded the expectations of military planners. From the very outset, allied forces controlled the air, with Iraq mounting only a limited air defense. A key reason for Baghdad's inability to fend off air attacks are the electronic countermeasures applied aggressively by allied forces to jam enemy radars and communications links, rendering Iraq's military partially deaf and blind.

The Navy's Tomahawk land-attack cruise missile epitomizes the integrated high-tech approach of American forces.

The Tomahawk, which hugs the terrain at very low altitudes to avoid radar detection is preprogrammed to fly an evasive path to the target, relying on topographic maps stored in its guidance system. There is virtually no defense against the Tomahawk; it generally is not even detected until it has already struck its target with pinpoint accuracy. Launched from Navy ships in the Persian Gulf, 100 of 100 Tomahawks reportedly destroyed their targets during the first day of the fighting.

Another spectacular success is the downing of Iraqi surface-to-surface missiles. The SCUD missile intercepted by a U.S. Army Patriot missile (made in the Orlando area), marked the first time in combat that a ballistic missile has been destroyed in flight — the equivalent of hitting a bullet with a bullet.

Although the air campaign thus far has been encouraging, the war to liberate Kuwait will not remain a relatively bloodless affair if a major ground assault becomes necessary to dislodge Saddam Hussein's occupation troops. Americans should not count on a quick war decided by air power alone.

Kudos to Lake Mary

As a visiting U.S. citizen I arrived in Orlando-McCoy Dec. 18th, was driven to Lake Mary, and took to the ultra smooth, straight and uncluttered streets, interstates and roadways, the following day. Reconnecting with the centers of Central Florida's Seminole, Volusia and Orange transportation is wonderful!

Thank you for maintaining such excellent roads.

The Strange World of Banking

NEW YORK — "The banks around here are paranoid," said a New England businessman. "They're suspicious of anyone who comes in looking for credit. They make you feel illegitimate, like a holdup man."

The man declined to have his name used because, he said, he had to deal with a certain bank that had the problem he described. He said that already he has had his credit line cut in half, for what reason he doesn't know.

This is a fragment of the bizarre behavior these days of some bankers, members of a profession that makes its money attracting deposits and packaging money to lend. In normal times, a bank's business is lending.

The abnormality of these times is illustrated by the pep talk delivered this week to New England bankers by John LaWare, a governor of the Federal Reserve Board. It was a rare speech for a Fed governor.

"Some bankers at the top have lost their nerve," he said. They have "ordered a retreat from their basic business — lending money." Bankers, he said, must reassume their proper role, which is to help their customers.

Those who have followed the banking situation will recall that over the past few years the Fed has pursued an almost uninterrupted policy of restraint, of warnings, of expressions of fear about inflation getting out of hand.

Now, convinced that the chief enemy is recession rather than inflation, it has relaxed reserve-to-loan requirements for banks, attempted to make funds more available to the economy and forced down interest rates.

In normal times, such moves would be like lifting the starting gate at the race track. It would be a message to banks that the race was on, that the economy would be picking up momentum, that smart lenders should get to work.

This time, however, the Fed has been pushing on the proverbial string, a wet one. Banks in some areas, such as New England, haven't responded. Like the mattress saver afraid of banks, some banks seem afraid of the market.

The lack of response has distressed Alan Greenspan, the Fed chairman, who at first seemed disinclined to believe small-business folks who claimed a credit crunch existed. How could there be? The Fed wouldn't allow it.

Then the Fed's own survey confirmed that there existed at least a regional crunch, an very unusual one. It was a self-imposed crunch by New England banks, rather than one emanating from any overly tight central bank policy.

Nobody can say if the lost-nerve syndrome will become a national epidemic, but symptoms have appeared in widely dispersed areas. New England banks took an unusually hard hit from bad loans — loans of their own choosing — and some are teetering. In other areas, things may not be as bad, so far.

No matter, the banking industry is in for some changes. It means too much to the economy, to government, to national defense, to individual Americans, to allow another performance similar to that of the past decade.

The administration is talking about permitting bank ownership by industrial companies, and probably allowing banks to underwrite.

John Cuniff covers business for the Associated Press.

When 'experts' discuss war

LOS ANGELES — Everyone has an opinion, and the networks appear to be broadcasting all of them.

From Gen. Richard Secord of Iran-Contra note to the ubiquitous Jesse Jackson, television news has held forth with an endless stream of talkers who feel comfortable speculating on everything from the inner thoughts of Saddam Hussein to whether Iraq is torturing its allied POWs.

This unremitting use of on-air speculators provides a revision of Andy Warhol's famous maxim: When it comes to TV experts, anyone can be famous for hours on end.

The speculators fall into two categories: paid consultants and unpaid talking heads.

In the former group, the networks have a total of 15 military consultants, most of them retired generals (no one will say how much they're paid). The Los Angeles Times recently said one unidentified former general was rumored to be receiving $10,000 a month for the duration of the war.

The unpaid category includes an eclectic blend of former advisers, past cabinet members, journalists, politicians and the former Prime Minister of Pakistan, Benazir Ali Bhutto.

But the bottom line is that only one person knows the thoughts of Saddam Hussein. The only people who know whether the allied POWs have been tortured are not available for ABC's "Nightline" or other network shows.

This lack of knowledge has not stopped television from talking ad nauseam. It has, however, generated a mountain of criticism that ranges from the tongue-in-cheek to charges that the experts' pronouncements are biased and one-sided.

Rick Kogan of the Chicago Tribune wrote that TV has shown enough retired military officers to staff a new cable network: "The Old Generals Channel."

Jeff Cohen of the liberal, New York-based watchdog group Fairness & Accuracy in Reporting said: "TV has given us a steady parade of military analysts, but they're also giving us a steady stream of the more hawkish ones."

"Their coverage amounts more to propaganda than it does to unbiased news reporting," he said.

To a network, all defended their use of military and civilian experts as a needed complement to sparse Pentagon reports.

"They are military men. They know what they're talking about," said Suzanne Allen, the senior producer on CBS' war desk.

"I'm curious as to what the alternative is," she said. "Throwing a bunch of stuff on the air and hoping we'll stay out of Iraq?"

Since the Aug. 3 invasion of Kuwait by Iraq, CBS has hired retired Gen. George Crist and Gen. Michael Dugan, who was fired in September for talking too much to reporters, specifically about U.S. contingency plans for war.

When Dugan saw the allied POWs on videotape, he said, "Gee, this is the way I looked when I bailed out over Vietnam." Allen said, "He explained how it is when you're going 600 mph and the canopy comes off and the oxygen mask gets ripped off your face. We went on the air and said that."

ABC and Ted Koppel went on the air with another expert, who said the videotape clearly showed the POWs had been beaten.

"Clearly it's speculation and clearly it's an educated opinion," said ABC news spokeswoman Sherie Rollins. "When Ted Koppel is interviewing a former POW, I think that's of interest. We make it very clear that these are opinions."

CNN, with 24 hours of daily coverage to provide, has the largest number of experts.

Retired Maj. Gen. Perry Smith and James Blackwell of the Center for Strategic and International Studies, a conservative think tank in Washington D.C., are its paid consultants.

CNN's non-paid experts include former National Security Council adviser Bud McParlane, PBS commentator Bill Moyers, former Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger and Richard Nixon's White House chief of staff, Alexander M. Haig Jr.

And if you liked them on CNN, chances are you can see some of them on yet another network. ABC's military consultant, retired Lt. Gen. Bernard Trainor, also can be seen on PBS. Henry Kissinger was on CNN and ABC. Arab analyst Fouad Ajami has appeared on CBS and PBS.

Still want more from the same list of suspects? Turn on National Public Radio.

Gen. Evans, CNN's vice president of booking, said there also are self-promoting analysts who call up and offer their services.

"We said no and they're still out there," she said.

While the networks and ABC, CBS and NBC, Evans occasionally cautions that using analysts and experts gives depth and breadth to news stories. Deborah Hastings covers television for The Associated Press.

Lack of knowledge has not stopped television.

Will Bush deliver Saddam's head?

WASHINGTON — Pentagon spokesmen swear that Saddam Hussein is not one of their targets in Iraq. That's true. The U.S. government would not be so crude as to bomb Saddam into oblivion and make a martyr out of him.

Instead, the current secret U.S. plan is to let Saudi Arabia take care of Saddam — to kidnap him and then lop off his head, according to Islamic law that other Arab nations would find hard to dispute.

Central Intelligence Agency and other Bush administration sources have told us that all the talk about putting Saddam on trial for "war crimes" is not the real plan that has been agreed to by U.S. officials.

The CIA and security services of two friendly Arab countries instead are in the process of planning the kidnapping, which would be followed by a by-the-books trial of Saddam in an Islamic court for crimes against Allah. The penalty is death by beheading.

But first they have to catch him, or hope that he falls into allied hands at the end of the war.

For security reasons, our sources declined to identify the two groups who will, or already have infiltrated Iraq using Iraqi double agents cultivated over the last five months. But a close working relationship between the CIA and the Saudi spy agency is key to the plan.

The plot is not a pipe dream. "We believe we have a better than even chance of succeeding in the next month," one of the key officials knowledgeable about the plan told us.

The groundwork has already been laid publicly, but went largely unnoticed by the Western media. On Jan. 18, the elderly man who is Saudi Arabia's highest religious authority, issued a "fatwa" or religious decree, calling Saddam "an enemy of God."

Sheik Abdulaziz bin Abdullah bin Baz, a blind cleric in his 70s, heads the Council of Ulama. He ruled in the fatwa that "The jihad (holy war) that is taking place today against the enemy of God, Saddam, the ruler of Iraq, is a legitimate jihad on the part of Moslems and those assisting them." In an unusual move, he added a request for Allah's blessings on the non-Moslems involved in the conflict.

Bin Baz further decreed that Saddam has "wrongly transgressed and committed aggression against and invaded a peaceful country." It was not just wartime propaganda, but it was the first step in an Islamic legal process to bring Saddam to trial. The fatwa fell short of calling for Saddam's death, but sources tell us that will be the next step if Saddam is captured.

Under the current plan, the Saudi high court, which operates on Islamic law, would charge Saddam with a capital crime — most likely "waging war with Islam." Witnesses would be called and Saddam would be allowed to mount a defense, but our sources predict the whole show would last only about a week.

If convicted, Saddam would be sentenced to die by beheading in a public square, probably in Riyadh. But if the Saudis wanted to do it up big, they would take him to the holy city of Mecca. Public execution is required by law, but the Saudis probably would prevent crowds from gathering.

To the Saudis, beheadings are neither gruesome nor abhorrent. On the average, over the last several years, they have beheaded about one criminal a week. The executions take place in the city where the crime was committed in the main square next to the chief mosque after Friday prayers.

First, they have to catch him.

According to Browning, Hawkins' older daughter, Julie, made the report. The younger girl, Barbara, a student at Lake Mary High School, did not find her mother was missing until she returned home from classes yesterday afternoon.

The truck, further investigation revealed was registered to Hawkins. That is the only piece of evidence that might conclusively identify the person found in the vehicle.

Autopsy findings were "totally inconclusive," according to Proechel.

"We still do not know who the person in the truck was or anything about how the fire started," Proechel said.

He said that it was not even clear whether the remains were those of a male or female.

"We can only assume that it was Hawkins because it was her truck," he said.

Proechel said that a gasoline container was found on the front seat of the vehicle.

Meanwhile, the family is trying to cope with the crisis and trying, Browning said, "not to let things get out of hand."

Browning said that his brother-in-law believes that his daughters are "at a very sensitive age" and that the support of family and friends is helping the family deal with the waiting and with the situation.

"Everyone, including the police, has been very supportive," Browning said.

While the Hawkins family is staying away from school and work today, the students and faculty at Winter Springs Elementary was told of the situation this morning.

"We will have the crisis team out there at the school tomorrow (Wednesday)," said Dick Hofmann, community relations director for the Seminole County school district.

While Hawkins only taught a few students, she was known as a loyal member of the school's staff and many people may feel the impact of her loss, Hofmann said.

It was that fact that made school officials suspicious of her absence on Tuesday.

"She was someone you could always count on," said Tom McDowell, principal at Winter Springs Elementary, where Hawkins had been employed for two years. Prior to transferring to Winter Springs, Hawkins had worked for 15 years at Rosenwald Exceptional Education Center in Altamonte Springs, Pine Crest Elementary School in Sanford and Longwood Elementary School in Longwood.

McDowell said that the faculty and staff at the school told him in a staff meeting this morning that they still hope that she is found.

"Right now we are treating it as if one of our staff is missing and we are hoping that that person is found," he said.

According to John Reichert, director of personnel for the Seminole County school district, Hawkins was, "from all indications, an exemplary teacher."

He noted that all of her evaluations had consistently rated her performance in the classroom as "commendable" or "satisfactory."

According to personnel records, Hawkins was certified to teach many levels of exceptional students.

"She was one of our better ESE teachers," Reichert said.

Hawkins was last seen Monday night at about 11:30 by her husband Howard Hawkins, a physical education teacher at Crooms School of Choice, 2200 W. 13th St. in Sanford.

Because she often rose early and went to work, he was not alarmed when she was not at home at 6:30 the next morning, according to sheriff's reports.

The parents of all but one of Hawkins' seven students were contacted last night and told of the situation, McDowell said he preferred that the parents handle it in their own way. He believes that most of the students were told of the situation.

"It is a sad and scary thing," he said.

The Seminole County Sheriff's Office, the Lake County Sheriff's Office and the state fire marshal's office are investigating the incident.

ing labor.

The State Road 46 gateway project is scheduled for completion by about Feb. 15, Sanford Public Works Director Jerry Herman said.

Because the project requires blockage of one eastbound lane, Herman said, planning for traffic rerouting caused a slight delay in planting.

The inclined overpass made the traffic situation more difficult because drivers cannot see where the lanes are merged into one until they have driven over the hill, he said.

In spite of the brief delay, traffic is flowing smoothly and the city is receiving few complaints about the project, Herman said.

When completed, the medians will be shaded by 60 eight- to 10-foot crape myrtles and 47 seven- to eight-foot chickenaw plum trees. Dwarf yaupon hollies and a variety of wildflowers will also be planted in the medians.

The gateway project isn't the only planting Sanford has done lately.

About 79 trees that were once a backdrop for traffic jams at Interstate 4 and Lake Mary Boulevard will be used to landscape city properties in Sanford.

Four oaks transplanted from the I-4 interchange in Lake Mary have been planted at the Sanford Police Department headquarters at French Avenue and Ninth Street.

The construction project at I-4 in Lake Mary that will eventually replace the Lake Mary Boulevard overpass and ramps cleared large sections of the northeast and southwest right-of-ways. The contractor, Hubbard Construction of Orlando, donated the trees to the City of Sanford and Seminole County, according to Steve Homan of the state Department of Transportation.

The donation to Sanford is estimated at $23,000, according to the city public works department. The donation included 19 oaks, 10 ligustrum trees and 50 large pittisporum.

Fighting

Marines battled Iraqis in the moonlight.

Marines lost two armored vehicles in the battle, pool reports said. Marine officers said the Iraqis lost 20 T-55 tanks and armored personnel carriers.

The fighting began around midnight and continued into the afternoon hours today, military officials said. The heaviest fighting was right at the Saudi-Kuwait border, according to pool dispatches by reporters in the area.

Fifty Iraq tanks were moving toward the Saudi border and some had even crossed. Allied ground forces, Air Force A-10 attack planes and Marine A-6 bombers and AH-1 Cobra attack helicopters took on the approaching Iraqi armor.

Myra said much of the Iraqi armor was destroyed by TOW anti-tank missiles fired by Marine ground units.

Iraqi radio, monitored by the British Broadcasting Corp., called the strikes a triumph for its forces.

Before the outbreak of fighting, there was talk of finding a way out of war. The United States and the Soviet Union declared Tuesday night that a cease-fire would be possible if Iraq made "an unequivocal commitment" to withdraw all its troops from Kuwait and took "concrete steps" in that direction.

However, the White House said the statement reflected no change in U.S. policy.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has said that Kuwait, seized nearly six months ago, is irrevocably part of Iraq.

The war was the major theme of President Bush's State of the Union speech, delivered Tuesday night to a joint session of Congress. He somberly told the lawmakers — and the nation — that "we will prevail" in the conflict.

"Iraq's capacity to sustain war is being destroyed," he said. "Time will not be Saddam's salvation."

In fighting Tuesday, Royal Navy attack helicopters sank three Iraqi vessels — two patrol boats and a minesweeper — off the Kuwait coast with Sea Skua anti-ship missiles. The Iraqi vessels, armed with machine guns and small arms, were believed to be carrying command troops to stage raids in northeastern Saudi Arabia.

The U.S. military in Saudi Arabia said the fighting on land took place at three different points along the Saudi-Kuwait border. An Iraqi military communique called the Iraqi action a "massive assault ... all through the battlefield with Saudi Arabia."

Sources in Saudi Arabia said the Iraqis entered the abandoned seaside town of Khafji, just south of the Kuwaiti border. The allies had patrols around the town, but did not have troops stationed in it.

The Central Command in Saudi Arabia said preliminary reports indicated "heavy losses of both personnel and equipment on the Iraqi side and light losses to U.S. Marines and other coalition forces."

The Pentagon said several tanks and vehicles were destroyed or damaged. It said the exact size of Iraqi forces was undetermined. But a military source in Washington said the attacks were staged by three Iraqi battalions, probably around 500 men per battalion.

A Marine spokesman said the 1st Marine Division was involved.

Peace

superpowers express the need to tackle long-simmering Arab-Israeli disputes once the war has ended.

Saddam Hussein has tried for months to link the Kuwait crisis with Arab-Israeli issues, but the United States has previously expressed no willingness.

"It is not a linkage at all," said Soviet foreign minister Alexander Bessmertnykh. "... We've just got to think of the future of this important area and what we could do together to promote peace and stability."

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir also said today the U.S.-Soviet stance "has no linkage, they are not adding any principles to what they have said and what was previously known." But he complained that the statement was issued "without consulting with us, without even telling us beforehand."

Linkage or not, it could be a face-saving formula for Saddam. So far, the Iraqi president hasn't shown any inclination to compromise, a fact underscored by today's initial ground raid into Saudi Arabia.

The U.S.-Soviet statement read: "A cessation of hostilities would be possible if Iraq would make an unequivocal commitment to withdrawal from Kuwait." It added the two governments "also believe that such a commitment must be backed by immediate, concrete steps leading to full compliance with the (U.N.) Security Council resolutions."

Many were puzzling over the U.S.-Soviet statement from Secretary of State James A. Baker III and Foreign Minister Alexander A. Bessmertnykh even as Bush was winning congressional applause for his gulf policy.

Blecha admitted he thought the place was a fire hazard, but said there was nothing combustible left in the vacant building, which he was preparing to lease.

Blecha also said he had recently run off people who were camping in the building.

"When it turns cold, I guess any place is better than out on the street. Maybe somebody was cooking dinner," he said.

Shuttleworth said the old citrus packing warehouse was built in 1909 on a spur owned by Seaboard Coastline Railroad. Fruit was hand packed and readied for shipping from November to May. Electricity was added in the 1920s. The building had an unusual sawtooth roof and eight rows of tiny windows for ventilation. Shuttleworth said. A 120-foot porch was torn off in the 1980s. The building was then used as an antique warehouse, retail store and auction house.

"For 30 years it's been an antique kinda place," Blecha said.

But it never will be again. Blecha, who owned the structure, said he wouldn't rebuild on the land owned by Seaboard Coastline.

"I'm cryin' in my beer. I guess I'll give up on it. It wasn't insured," he said.

We are at war: Day 14 of Desert Storm

Piercing chill tests GI endurance

By ROBERT DYORCHAK
Associated Press Writer

IN NORTHERN SAUDI ARABIA — Paratroopers call it "The Hawk," a piercing chill that cuts to the bone with a talon-like grip.

The weather at the northern front has been rainy and cold the past few days, cold enough to coat sleeping blankets with frost and freeze grape drinks into slush.

Air Force meteorologists say the rains have been the worst in years, but aren't bad enough to stall any allied ground attack to drive Iraq from Kuwait.

When soldiers of the 2nd Brigade of the 82nd Airborne Division became the first ground troops to arrive in Saudi Arabia back in August, they were greeted with oven-like blasts of 130-degree temperatures.

"If you had told me in August it would have been this cold, I'd have bet you all the money I owned you were wrong," said Sgt.

1st Class Aubrey Butts, 31, of Elizabeth, N.J., part of the 1st Battalion, 325th Infantry Regiment.

The only protection many soldiers have from the subfreezing temperatures and wind are their fighting holes and sandbag covers.

Butts' advice to beat the chill: "Put on everything you got. Hunker down in the holes. Sleep underground. Live like moles. This is the first time you ain't got to tell anybody to dig."

Soldiers at the front bundle up like mummies, wearing layers of longjohns, sweaters and hooded parkas.

On Saturday, a frigid pelting rain came from the north, making it miserable for anyone who was out in the open. If your sleeping bag got wet it was like sleeping in a bucket of ice water until a sympathetic officer could find you comfort.

"It was one of those nights you just try to survive," said Capt. Brad Nelson, adjutant for the 2nd Brigade.

"But guys adapt," he said. "The other side is going through the same thing we are."

Monday morning there was a chemical attack alert at 6 a.m. Soldiers jumped out of their sleeping bags and slapped cold rubber gas masks to their faces.

Cpl. Frederick Spicer, 22, of Chicago was so bundled up when he went out on patrol that there was only a slit for his eyes.

Pfc. Terrence Knitter, 20, of South Haven, Mich., braved the cold behind the burlap sandbags of his guard post.

"It feels like my feet are going to fall off," he said. "Got to get another set of feet."

Air Force Capt. Ray Clark, 32, of Belton, Mo., a meteorologist deployed with the Army's 2nd Armored Cavalry Regiment, said the rains are "more an inconvenience than a hindrance."

Father: Pilot shot down over Kuwait

Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Okla. — A man identified the Marine pilot shot down this week during a bombing raid over Kuwait as his son.

Loy Berryman said a Marine spokesman contacted the family late Monday about his son, Capt. Craig Berryman.

"He was shot down," Berryman told the Tulsa World in an interview published in today's editions. "They came and talked to us yesterday afternoon."

The Marines said his son's status was unknown, Berryman said.

"The only explosion they saw is when his plane hit the ground," Berryman said. "That gives us hope that maybe he got out of the plane before it crashed."

The Pentagon had not named Berryman as a casualty as of early today.

The Harrier, or AV-8B, is a fighter-bomber capable of vertical takeoffs by directing thrust from its engines downward.

New arrivals rushed off to war

By JOHN KING
Associated Press Writer

EASTERN SAUDI ARABIA — Two weeks into the war with Iraq, U.S. troops are still pouring into Saudi Arabia, bringing the American deployment closer to the 500,000-troop mark.

Some soldiers arrive on 747s that touch down daily. Other newcomers aren't so lucky. They spend their last hours in peace aboard noisy military transports.

For most, a bus awaits for a crowded ride several hours north, perhaps with a stop to hook up with a tank, a truck or a helicopter.

Military officials will give few details about the U.S. buildup, but it appears it is almost completed.

Many of the new arrivals are National Guard and reserves who will round out combat units, work in field hospitals and blood banks and keep supplies moving to troops at the front.

More than 20,000 have been called up since the war began two weeks ago, and they come from every state.

In all, 201,000 Guard and reserve members have been mobilized for the Persian Gulf deployment, including 141,290 by the Army, 22,141 by the Marines, 21,645 by the Air Force and 15,093 by the Navy. Fifteen percent of the troops in Operation Desert Storm are from reserve units.

The biggest group of new troops came from the Army's 7th Corps in Germany, which includes the 1st Armored Division, the 3rd Armored Division, the 2nd Armored Cavalry Regiment and a brigaded-sized unit from the 2nd Armored Division.

Saudi Arabia's major highways are lined with equipment for those troops, including tank transporters pulling M1 tanks, Bradley fighting vehicles and armored ammunition carriers.

The last ground forces to arrive may be among the first to fight. The units in Germany are among the Army's best trained and equipped.

All told, the units from Germany have about 1,000 M1-A1 main battle tanks, hundreds of Bradley fighting vehicles and a large number of AH-40 Apache attack helicopters and Hellfire anti-tank missiles.

These troops appear to be settling in after some quick desert training.

"It's slowing down now," said Sgt. 1st Class Enrique Trevino, who works at the 7th Corps weapons calibration range. "Just about everybody has been through."

Also new to the front is the 1st "Big Red One" Mechanized Infantry Division from Fort Riley in Kansas.

These forces joined up with the armor and other ground forces who came in the first wave of the buildup and now form a powerful line across the northern Saudi desert — from its border with the Persian Gulf just south of Kuwait to well past Kuwait's western border.

At the gulf edge of the deployment are the Marines, including members of the newly arrived 2nd Marine Division which reached Saudi Arabia just a week before the war began.

There was little time to train, but that didn't seem to bother the Marines.

"You're never perfectly ready," said Lt. Col. Andy Mazzara, a battalion commander. "But you have to remember — we didn't start out from scratch. We train all the time at Camp Lejeune. We have units that are constantly ready for contingency operations."

At least the 2nd Marine Division had a week before war.

Pvt. Gregory White of Los Angeles is truly a new arrival — he got to Saudi Arabia after the war started.

We are at war: Day 14 of Desert Storm

GULF BRIEFS

Support group meets tonight

SANFORD — The Operation Desert Storm Support Group will meet tonight at 7 p.m. at the American Legion Hall, 2874 Sanford Ave.

Dave Kuma and Vern Braun, two civilians who have visited Saudi Arabia since U.S. troops were deployed there in August, will speak to the group.

For more information, call Judy Osborn at 323-0105.

Hospital reverses decision

OAKLAND PARK — A local hospital reversed an earlier decision to ban employees from wearing yellow ribbons as a show of support for American troops in the Persian Gulf.

Some employees at North Ridge Medical Center had criticized the policy.

"I think it's terrible. You should be able to express yourself," said one employee who asked that he not be identified Tuesday.

Hospital officials initially said the ribbons would violate the hospital dress code and could offend someone's political point of view.

Instead, the hospital would put large yellow ribbons in hallways and at hospital entrances, Hospital Administrator Don Steigman wrote in a memo to employees dated Jan. 16.

Mock emergency broadcast shocking

ST. LOUIS — Some people listening to a St. Louis radio station got a jolt when they heard a mock emergency broadcast indicating the United States was under nuclear attack.

With the war in the Persian Gulf and Iraqi threats to use nuclear and chemical weapons, some listeners apparently believed Tuesday morning's announcement on KSHE.

John Beck, the station's general manager, said more than 80 listeners called about the fake warning.

Disc jockey John Ulett said he played it to force people to consider the horrors of nuclear war, especially because many callers have suggested the United States drop nuclear bombs on Iraq.

Mothers against Hussein mail goodies

DAYTON — A few members of this farming community's Monday night bowling club gave up their usual routine this week to package cookies and Valentine's Day cards for U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf.

"Operation Love" was the third such mailing from the local chapter of Mothers Against Saddam Hussein, or MASH.

The group was created by two women last September to support hometown soldiers serving in the Persian Gulf. MASH has since grown to include few fathers, nieces and nephews.

MASH has sent letters, beef jerky, Worcestershire sauce and toilet paper — items soldiers say are in short supply in the desert.

Safety program to help ease fears

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Tallahassee police say they are doing their part to help U.S. servicemen and women in operation Desert Storm by conducting "Operation Storm Shelter."

Under the new city program, the families of military personnel now serving in the Persian Gulf can call on the Tallahassee Police Department to check the security of their homes.

"It's a little bit of family protection," Jeff Rioux, a crime prevention specialist with the department, said.

The department knows of no other law enforcement agency with a similar program. Tallahassee police hope the concept will be picked up by other departments, according to Jim White, a criminology professor at Florida State University and reserve Tallahassee police officer who came up with the idea.

Home security checks are available in Tallahassee free of charge year-round, but the department is trying to make military families aware of the offer.

"In a nutshell, what we're trying to do is relieve some of the anxiety that our people overseas might be feeling, considering that they were pulled from their families rather quickly, without being able to tie up loose ends," Rioux said Tuesday at a news conference.

Officers will also give each family a list of services available in the community for things like counseling, temporary financial assistance and child care.

Oil slick and U.S. attack evoke previous war tactics

By JOHN POMFREY
Associated Press Writer

MANAMA, Bahrain — The oil slick floated down the Persian Gulf, unleashed in wartime by the forces of Saddam Hussein.

The year? 1983.

That war matched Iraq and Iran, not Iraq and a worldwide alliance. And the effects of the spill were limited — far from the calamity predicted as a result of the current spill, blamed by U.S. officials on the Iraqis.

Still, the gulf is awash with oil and deja vu. The 1983 spill was the largest in the gulf to that date, surpassed only by this year's spill.

Eight years ago, Iraqi warplanes attacked an offshore Iranian oil installation at Nowruz, allowing thousands of barrels of oil to gurggle into the gulf while the two countries bickered about capping the well.

Iraq stalled because it wanted a cease-fire in its war with Iran. Iran dragged its feet as it sought to separate Iraq from its gulf-state backers, who stood to lose the most from crude washing up on their shores.

By the time Iran stopped the slick in 1985, more than 168 million gallons had poured into the sea.

That is far less than the estimated 460 million gallons of crude that spilled last week when Iraqi forces allegedly opened the valves of a Kuwaiti oil terminal.

Drive underway to collect skin for casualties

By TANARA STARKS
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO — Human skin is as essential as donated blood to doctors trying to save wounded and burned soldiers, especially with Iraq's threat to use chemical weapons, according to the American Red Cross.

Special teams nationwide are harvesting skin from cadavers to be stored to treat soldiers injured in the war in the Persian Gulf, a Red Cross spokeswoman in Washington said Tuesday.

Although blood supplies are sufficient, "there is a national shortage of skin," said spokeswoman Elizabeth Hall.

"We're collecting (skin) for the military to be sent to military hospitals in the United States," she said. "It's also a public education campaign. We want to educate physicians and other medical personnel to make the effort to ask families about possible organ donation when a member dies."

"The public should know about it so they can volunteer on their own before their death," she said.

People can volunteer by signing organ donor cards. The skin of about 90 percent of all people who die is suitable, but only about 1 percent donate, Hall said.

The average cadaver yields about 4 1/2 square feet of skin, said Ricky Roth of the Regional Organ Bank of Illinois. Patients with second- or third-degree burns over about 50 percent of the body would need about 5 square feet of donor skin, Roth said.

"If the burns are less than that, the patient often can provide their own skin grafts," said Roth.

Skin grafts can be used to treat conventional burns and those caused by chemicals.

"(Skin) is really a temporary burn dressing, crucial to treating burn victims," said Dr. Lawrence Gottlieb, a plastic surgeon with the University of Chicago Hospitals. "The burned skin needs to be replaced with something and the donor skin can be used like a dressing to keep fluid in."

Gottlieb said skin harvested from cadavers can be stored under refrigeration for up to a month and frozen for even longer.

Hospitals and organ banks cooperate in gathering skin from cadavers, but usually just keep pace with current needs. The American Red Cross maintains a small reserve for emergencies.

Soviet troops seen leaving Baltic capital

By JOHN DANISZEWSKI
Associated Press Writer

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. — Soviet troops were seen leaving the Lithuanian capital today and the republic's president said a pullout could lead to new talks with Moscow on the Baltic republics' demands for independence.

The Soviet Interior Minister Boris Pugo said in an article published today that all paratroopers have left the Baltic region and two-thirds of the "black beret" Interior Ministry troops had also been withdrawn.

Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis said Kremlin promises to remove troops were a good sign, but that Soviet forces still occupied Lithuanian buildings and a propaganda war was still being waged against the republic.

He said the United States should be wary of Soviet promises.

A Soviet military crackdown in Lithuania and Latvia has killed 19 people.

Government spokesman Adrius Azubalis said two convoys of about 45 military vehicles left Vilnius today, "headed in the direction of Belyorussia." Late Tuesday, 30-40 trucks ferried soldiers to Vilnius airport, he said.

Officials in Latvia and Estonia said there were no immediate signs of troop withdrawals there.

But Pugo, interviewed by the newspaper Robochaya Tribuna, said, "all army paratroop units were withdrawn from the Baltic region by Jan. 28" and only conventional forces remained.

Gene therapy for cancer patients tried

By PAUL REGER
Science Writer

WASHINGTON — Two patients terminally ill with melanoma were said to be "doing fine" after they became the first cancer patients treated with an experimental therapy that uses genetically altered cells to attack their tumors.

"They have tolerated the treatment well and are doing fine," said Dr. Steven Rosenberg, a National Cancer Institute physician who started the treatment Tuesday morning. "It's going to be one to two months before we know if it is helping these patients."

Rosenberg identified the patients only as "a 29-year-old man and a 42-year-old man."

He said the patients were both suffering from advanced melanoma, a vicious type of skin cancer that can cause widespread and rapidly growing tumors. They had not responded to other treatment and normally would have only a short time to live, Rosenberg said.

The patients were administered tumor-fighting blood that had been removed from their bodies, genetically altered and then reinserted.

Rosenberg said the two patients are the first of 50 who will receive trial gene therapy for advanced melanoma over the next year. The technique was approved late last year after it was reviewed by six committees of the National Institutes of Health and by the Food and Drug Administration.

Use of genetically altered cells in patients was vigorously opposed by several groups, primarily on health and safety grounds, and the FDA approval permits only 50 patients to receive the experimental therapy. The results then will be reviewed before more patients are treated.

Rosenberg said other patients with widespread melanoma cancer, have been lined up for the therapy.

"We plan to push ahead vigorously now," he said.

TV ratings show viewers wanted break from war

By DEBORAH HASTINGS
Television Writer

LOS ANGELES — Television viewers sought relief from war news, weekly ratings indicate. All seven entertainment programs in the top 10 were situation comedies, while the nightly news audience declined and prime-time war specials fared poorly.

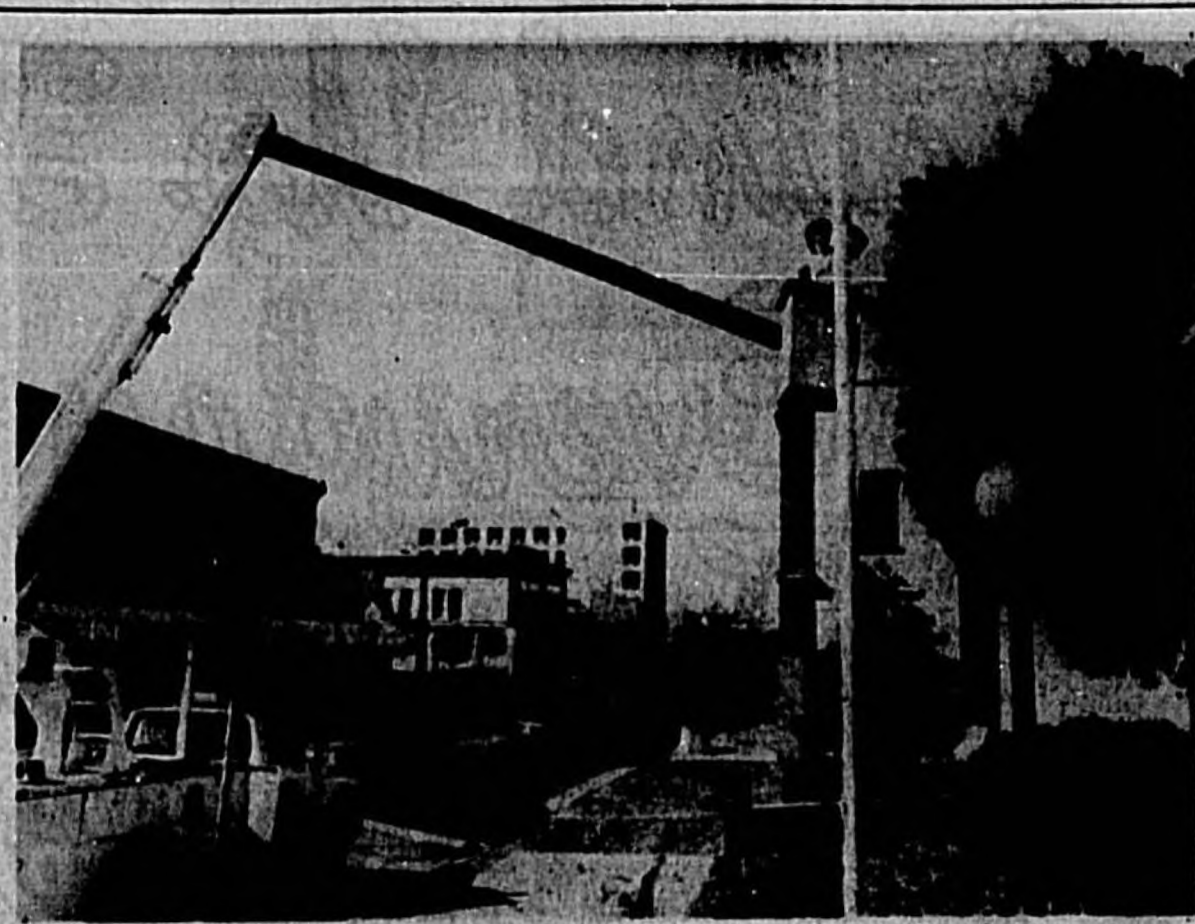

Super Bowl XXV, meanwhile, sacked its competitors for most-watched program in the past week with a 41.8 average for ABC, according to figures released Tuesday by the A.C. Nielsen Co. Each ratings point represent 931,000 homes.

But the New York Giants' one-point victory Sunday over the Buffalo Bills — the closest and possibly best Super Bowl ever — ranked only 17th in the game's ratings history.

The highest rated NFL championship game was 1982's Super Bowl XVI, when the San Francisco 49ers beat the Cincinnati Bengals 26-21 and captured a 49.1 average for CBS.

ABC's pre-game and post-game coverage ranked second and third, respectively.

NBC's beer-drinking bar patrons of "Cheers" were fourth, followed by ABC's gritty, blue-collar family on "Roseanne." CBS' tough-talking TV reporter named "Murphy Brown" was sixth. NBC's "Empty Nest" finished seventh.

IN BRIEF

CRAPPIETHON

Solmonson snags two winners

John Solmonson caught a pair of crappies this past Sunday on the St. John's River that are each worth $1,000 in this year's Crappie Fishing Tournament.

One of the fish was "Beetlespin Sam," sponsored by Johnson Reels.

On Tuesday, Marvin Haling caught "County Mile Cal," a fish worth $2,500. It's sponsor is the North American Fishing Club.

Last Saturday, Annie L. Fincher caught "Candy Man," worth $1,000.

Anglers who bring in big-money fish like these are subject to a polygraph to verify the catch.

The tournament, which began Jan. 19, runs through March 19. For information, call 1-800-759-5174.

JUCO HOOPS

SCC teams in action

SANFORD — The men and women's basketball teams from Seminole Community College will both return to the court to play Mid-Florida Conference games tonight.

The women will play their second to last home game of the season when they host Central Florida Community College of Ocala at the Health and Physical Education Center starting at 7 p.m.

The women (8-8 overall) will be looking to even their conference record at 2-2 after stopping Santa Fe this past Saturday, 71-62. Tina Lester, Pamela Williams and Teresa Martin have been the big offensive threats for the Raiders.

The men (12-10 overall, 2-4 in the MFC) will be looking to break a two-game conference losing streak when they travel to Daytona to play the No. 8 state-ranked Scots of Daytona Beach Community College. Game time is set for 7:30 p.m.

Freshmen Brian Nason and Leale Cephus have been carrying the scoring load for the Raiders.

COLLEGE HOOPS

Leeks leads UCF past FIU

ORLANDO — Ken Leeks scored 24 points and pulled down 14 rebounds Tuesday, leading the University of Central Florida to an 80-60 victory over Florida International.

UCF (7-10) led 80-68 with 3:44 remaining when FIU (13-15) scored nine straight points to pull within 80-75, with 1:19 to go.

The Knights failed to make a field goal in the last five minutes, and the Golden Panthers fouled them in hopes of evening the score, but Anthony Haynes made four of UCF's last eight points, all of which were from the charity stripe, to preserve the victory.

Haynes scored 17 points in all, while Mike Boles made 12 points and 14 rebounds for Central Florida. Sinua Phillips had 14 points and nine assists.

Four of the five starters for the Golden Panthers scored in double figures. Brett Lewis led with 16 points. Ted Guilbeaux and Grady Thompson had 15 points each. Dwight Stewart added 14.

GOLF

Daniel withdraws from event

LAKE WORTH — Beth Daniel, 1990 Rolex LPGA Player of the Year, withdrew on Tuesday from the Oldembell LPGA Classic because of a nagging shoulder injury.

It was the second straight tournament she was forced to drop. She withdrew from the season opener in Jamaica two weeks ago, complaining of pain in the right shoulder, originally diagnosed as a rotator cuff injury.

The Delray Beach resident will be replaced in the Classic by Lori Poling, a second-year player from Baytown, Texas.

PRO BASKETBALL

Heat cooled

LANDOVER, Md. — Bernard King scored 26 points and rookie A.J. English scored four straight points in the final two minutes Tuesday night, lifting the Washington Bullets to a 105-101 victory over the Miami Heat.

Harvey Grant had 24 points for the Bullets, who snapped a three-game losing streak. Grant Long and Glen Rice scored 20 points each for the Heat, which has lost eight straight road games and five in a row overall.

English, who finished with 12 points, scored on a fast break to give Washington a 100-98 lead with 1:40 remaining. After the Heat failed to score, English was fouled and converted a pair of free throws with 1:16 left.

Tribe rallies to pull out overtime win

By TONY DESORMIER
Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD — For Seminole High School, Tuesday night's 61-58 overtime win over the visiting Lake Howell Silver Hawks in Seminole Athletic Conference girls' basketball action was a game of bizarre contrasts.

To begin with, Lake Howell shot 50 percent in the first quarter to take a 24-8 lead. But Seminole came back to trail by just one by halftime and led by as many as eight in the third quarter before Lake Howell rallied in the fourth quarter.

And as Seminole Coach John McNamara said after the game, "Everyone had a part in the win. Then again, everyone had a hand in the ugly parts as well."

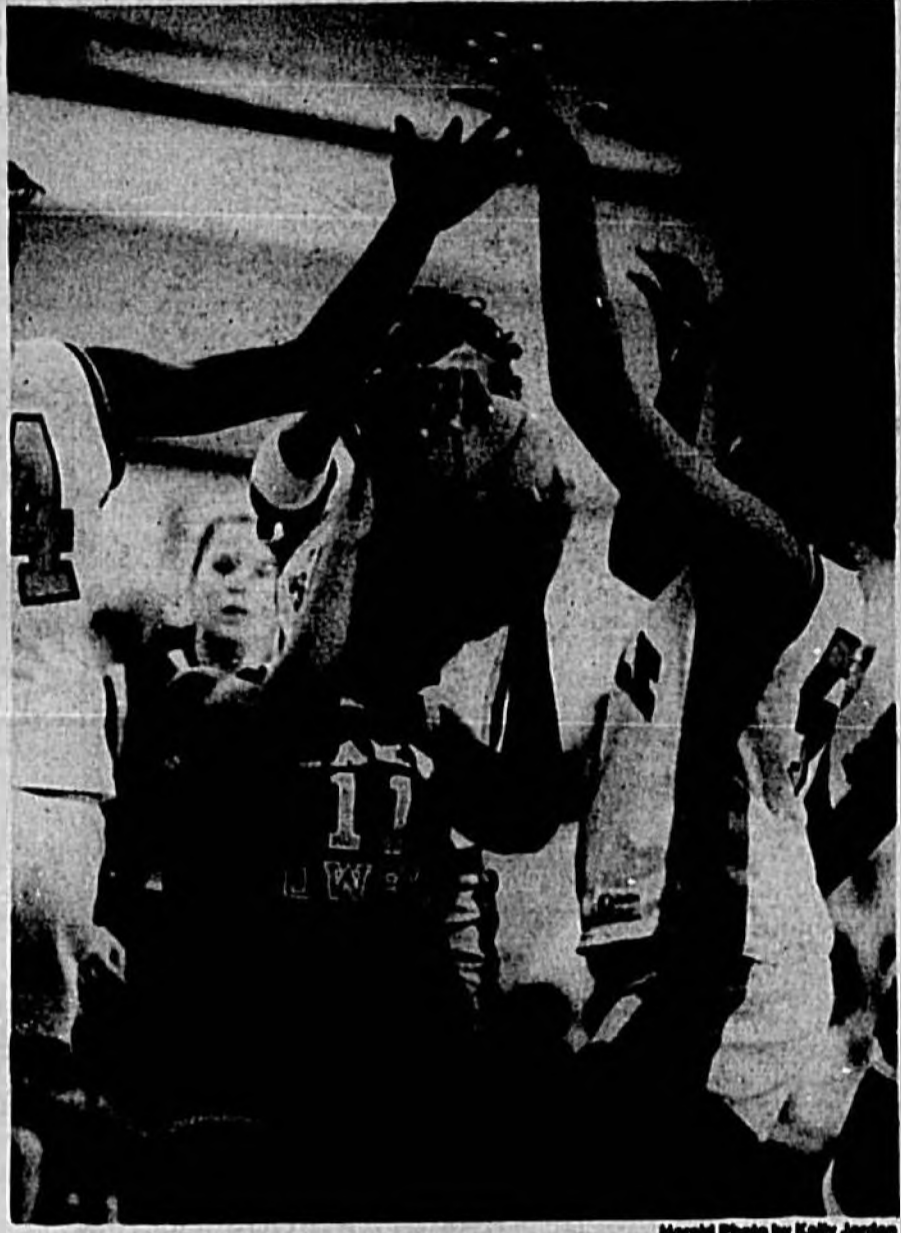

A perfect example was senior guard Koscia Kennon, who made just one of her first 14 shots but came back to sink three of her last four in the final quarter. From the free throw line, Kennon missed her

Rams lose fifth straight

From staff reports

DeLAND — Despite 13 points from Lisa Masilunis and 11 more from Melissa Mau, the Lake Mary Rams lost their fifth consecutive game on Tuesday, falling to DeLand 61-45 in the Seminole Athletic Conference girls' basketball game.

Lake Mary's losing streak coincides with the absence of sophomore Karen Morris, who was a first-team All-Conference selection as a freshman. Morris suffered a bad knee sprain early in a game against Mainland on Jan. 19.

According to Lake Mary Coach Anna Van Landingham, Morris is now walking without crutches and did some light running at practice on Tuesday. There is no target date for her return.

Against DeLand, Lake Mary suffered from poor shooting. Van Landingham estimated the Rams made less than 20 percent of their field goal attempts. At the

Lions stay hot, beat Osceola

From staff reports

When you're on a roll, the best thing to do is ride it out. And that's just what the Oviedo High School wrestling team is doing.

After winning the Seminole Athletic Conference championship and helping the SAC to a win over the Orange Belt Conference in the Tournament of Champions on Saturday, the Lions beat Kissimmee-Osceola 41-28 in a dual meet Tuesday.

Predictably, Oviedo was led by the same young men who were crucial in the Lions' conference-winning performance over the weekend. Nathan Prior (103 pounds), Mike Holland (135), Chris Ison (171) and Kyle Larum (189), all of whom were individual conference champions, won their matches against Osceola.

Other winners for Oviedo on Tuesday were Jeff Messenger (112), Sean Rowell (130), Chris Richardson (160), Brian Black (220) and Brian Sweat (275).

Possibly the biggest performance for Oviedo was turned in by Jimmy Vela (145), who wrestled Osceola's Marvin Haven to a 3-3 tie. Coming into the match, Haven was undefeated.

Smith's last-second tip-in helps Magic end losing skid

Associated Press

ORLANDO — Otis Smith tipped in his own missed shot with three seconds left Tuesday night, giving Orlando a 114-112 victory over Phoenix and snapping the Magic's six-game losing streak.

The Suns, winners of eight of their previous 10 games, trailed 91-75 with 6:30 remaining, but made five 3-pointers in seven possessions to lead 109-108 with 48 seconds left.

After both teams traded baskets, Jerry Reynolds hit a leaning 10-footer to pull Orlando to a 111-110 deficit with 24 seconds remaining.

Scott Skiles then stole the ball from Tom Chambers at halfcourt and was fouled. His two free throws put the Magic ahead 112-111.

Chambers, who scored 30 points, then converted one of two free throws with 10 seconds left for a 112-112 tie.

Smith then attempted a running jumper with four seconds left and missed, but he followed his shot with a tip-in.

Smith scored 24 points and fellow reserve Reynolds had 22 for the Magic.

Orlando led all but 38 seconds of the first half. Dennis Scott, who scored all 12 of his points in the first quarter, hit two 3-pointers in the first five minutes to spark a 14-8 start.

The Magic's extended the margin to 45-36 with 4:59 remaining before halftime, but the Suns responded with a 14-4 run to take 50-49 lead.

Reynolds scored nine points in the last five minutes of the third quarter, keying a 14-1 run that gave the Magic an 80-66 lead going into the fourth period.

Phoenix scored just one point in the last five minutes of the quarter, and finished with 14 in the period to tie an Orlando team record for fewest points allowed in a quarter.

Jeff Hornacek and Dan Majerle each had 20 points for Phoenix. The Suns hit 5-of-6 3-pointers in the fourth period, with the only miss coming at the buzzer by Majerle.

first three shots but she was 2 for 4 in the overtime period.

The game feature some outstanding individual performances. For Lake Howell, Elizabeth Mills scored a game-high 25 points on 11-for-23 shooting while Quiya Hawkins continually burned Seminole's pres on her way to scoring 17 points.

Seminole countered by rotating Andrea Sanders, Ruthann Williams, Kim Jones and Chandrika Newkirk at guard. They combined for 24 points, 19 rebounds, three steals and three assists on offense while continually trying to harass Mills and Tanya Lewis on defense.

Inside, Lake Howell's Lynette Barreras and Cathdra Winston were waging their own war with Seminole's Niki Washington and Kayla Alexander.

Where Lake Howell had the slight edge from outside, Seminole had a narrow edge inside as Alexander had a team-high 14 points and seven rebounds while Washington added 11 points and 18 rebounds. Barreras and Winston, who each had four points, pulled down 13 and 11 rebounds, respectively.

"Once again, we played just good enough to win," said McNamara. "In the first quarter, we were awful. Then the second quarter was one of the best we've played all year."

Now 14-1 overall and 7-0 in the conference, Seminole will host DeLand on Thursday night and Leesburg on Friday night.

Orr out-duels Keene in Orange Blossom 100

Special to the Herald

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — Hailed by the fans as "the best race we've seen in ages," the FASCAR-sanctioned 19th annual Orange Blossom 100 Late Model championship went to Pete Orr.

In the hotly-disputed World Series class event, Orr held off hard-charging Daniel Keene, the race leader for the first 61 laps. Orr scored the victory in the potent Horsen' Around Farms Camaro, a Hamke-built Chevy with power by Dennis Boyd.

"This car is probably the strongest machine we've ever run," Orr said. "It's not only strong with a lot of power, but the handling is perfect."

At the start, Keene blasted up on the point from the outside of the front row. Meanwhile, a terrific early-race battle for fifth was raging between defending champion Jack Cook, Mike Goldberg and Dick Anderson.

On lap 16, Joe Middleton, whose engine became unglued as he was going down the front chute, crashed into the inside rail. On the double-file restart, Keene maintained the lead while second-place runner Greg Froemming was shuffled back to sixth.

In the meantime, there was a wild three-way battle for second between Orr, Bruce Lawrence and Anderson, who remained in the thick of the action and soon moved up into the runner-up spot.

On lap 40, Keene was at least 15 car-lengths ahead, but he soon encountered heavy lapped car traffic. By the halfway mark, Anderson was within a car length of the leader. Orr was right behind him, followed by Lawrence, Cook, Froemming, Goldberg and race car builder John Josey.

On lap 54, Anderson and Keene (who were running wheel-to-wheel by this point) tangled, resulting in a right front flat tire for Anderson, who crashed into the outside retaining wall.

Diving into Cook's pit where power wrenches were available, Anderson's luck ran out as the crew had trouble getting the jack under the car. He went down a lap but stayed in the race until a broken trailing arm sent him in the wall again and out of the race.

During the double-file restart on lap 61, Orr, on the outside of the front row, blasted ahead of Keene and took over the point. Driving a brand-new race car, Keene regained the lead briefly for one lap. But Orr then took the No. 1 spot back for good.

Late in the race, Orr and Keene, running nose to tail, soon came up on a whole mass of lapped cars. They were able to thread their way through.

The Limited Late Model final went to Marc Kinley.

Mike Fitch scored another easy Florida Modified victory over Scott McDade, Wally Patterson and newcomer Louis Bedock.

After wrestling first place away from early leader Buddy Ingersoll, Jerry Symons pulled away and went on to win the Mini Stock final.

Doug Mays bested Dave Savicki and Joey Stutz to win the 20-lap Sportman final.

Cook leaves nuked burgers behind

He cleans, cooks, but he won't grocery shop

By JOAN KING
Herald correspondent

LAKE MARY — Roger Foye, a Lake Mary resident, has been cooking for 12 years. Foye is a self-taught cook and started by nuking burgers in his then new microwave oven.

After mastering that operation, he ventured forth into new cooking dimensions.

His philosophy on men in the home kitchen is, "Be patient and get in there. Just do it."

Since Foye went for it 12 years ago, he now cooks full course meals and bakes pies, cookies and cakes for his family.

The last family gathering where Foye cooked was a feast for the moms on Mother's Day last year. The menu included smoked turkey, sweet potatoes and all the trimmings. Foye smoked the turkey himself and cooked all of the food. The only thing he won't do is grocery shopping.

He said, "I clean house, do dishes, cook and bake, but I don't do grocery shopping."

Foye and his wife, Pat, arrive home at night at about the same time. They don't have any rules about cooking. Whoever feels like doing it starts the meal, the other one helps.

"My mother-in-law, who is staying here, gets home from work after we do and she has a hot meal waiting for her every night. It makes it nice for her," Foye said.

Foye is a hefty looking guy and a man of few words. He gets to the point and stays on target with the subject matter. Questions are answered in a straightforward manner in a calm, clear voice. The man is polite, likeable and considered to be an excellent cook by the couple who nominated him.

Presently, Foye is employed by Central Florida Electric as an apprentice electrician. He is attending Seminole Community College for a degree in electrical technology.

Roger Foye makes himself at home in the kitchen.

data. While on the job, he learns the practical application of electrical and electrical installation.

Foye is a former long haul truck driver who decided to give it up after his last trip.

"I left town on a long haul on July 4 and didn't return until August 13. That's too long to be away from home and family," he said.

The family evening meal on this nippy night was a piping hot, large pot of homemade chicken noodle soup. The tantalizing scent of America's favorite soup set taste buds jumping and digestive juices flowing. The contents of the large pot were reduced to a trickle when the meal ended.

Foye also makes a fire alarm chili. He said he "can't make small batches" and his chili is a two pot deal.

He recreates recipes. When he and Pat eat out, he tries to remember the taste then he tries to duplicate it and then makes changes to his liking the next time he cooks it.

His favorite meal is a recreated recipe he calls eggplant lasagne and offers it along with fried mushrooms.

EGGPLANT LASAGNE

3 eggplant, sliced 1/4 inch thick
16 oz. Ricotta cheese
8 oz. Mozzarella cheese, shredded
Grated Romano cheese
3 eggs

Peel eggplant, place on cookie sheet and lightly brown both sides under broiler. Use your favorite tomato sauce. Mix three Tbsp. Romano cheese, ricotta, three eggs, and Mozzarella for filling.

Use a 13 x 9 x 3" baking pan. Pour enough sauce to cover bottom of pan. Place a layer of sliced eggplant on top of sauce, spoon filling over eggplant, add more sauce. Build up layers until ingredients are used, ending with sauce and Romano cheese on top. Bake at 350° for 35 minutes.

FRIED MUSHROOMS

Fresh whole mushrooms
Batter: Use a medium bowl. Mix two cups all purpose flour, three Tbsp. garlic powder, 1 Tbsp. seasoned salt or your favorite spices. Beat in two eggs. To thin down to desired thickness, add one hot beer.
Heat oil to about 350°. Dip mushrooms in batter and fry in hot oil until they turn medium brown.

Cooking competition is heated between Florida college coaches

Bobby Bowden and Steve Spurrier have a lot in common.

Both head dynamic football programs at Florida's top universities, Bowden at Florida State University in Tallahassee and Spurrier at the University of Florida in Gainesville. Both have earned national reputations for their skills in coaching. And both of them are crazy about barbecued beef.

Bowden claims to love any kind of barbecue, saying it's one of his personal weaknesses. Spurrier seems to feel the same way — he mixes up big batches of his favorite sauce and then stores it in the freezer for frequent use.

So just imagine the two coaches dueling over their favorite recipes instead of with quarterbacks and lumbering linebackers in their annual matchup. And you can be the judge of whose recipe is best — and get a perfect way to entertain friends at a tailgate party before a big game or for a viewing party of your favorite team's television game broadcast.

By adding a tray of condiments — sliced tomatoes and onions, pickles, lettuce — and some cold salads — pasta, potato and cole slaw, you have a veritable feast with a minimum of effort.

STEVE SPURRIER'S FAVORITE BEEF BAR-B-Q SANDWICHES

Marinate a large (6 pounds) boneless sirloin steak for 14 — 48 hours.

Marinade: 3 oz. of liquid smoke garlic cloves
pepper
onion salt
garlic salt
meat tenderizer
Worcestershire sauce
Preheat oven to 275 degrees. Cook for five hours, covered. Refrigerate to cool. Slice right before serving to avoid dryness. Serve on food sandwich rolls with horseradish, lettuce, tomato and mayonnaise...or with this bar-b-q sauce.

Bar-B-Q Sauce: 14 oz. ketchup
12 oz. chili sauce
1/2 cup mustard
1 1/2 cup brown sugar
2 T. pepper
1 1/2 cup wine vinegar

1 cup lemon juice
1/2 cup thick steak sauce
Tabasco (to taste)
1/4 T. soy sauce
2 T. salad oil
1 can of beer
minced garlic (to taste)
Combine & mix ingredients. Pour into pint jars. Store in refrigerator or freeze. Makes 6 pints.

BOBBY BOWDEN'S FAVORITE BARBECUES

Season a large (4-5) beef brisket, after trimming off the fat.

Seasonings: 1/4 bottle liquid smoke

3 T. Worcestershire sauce
Cover with aluminum foil. Cook on medium heat (275°) for 8-9 hours. Open foil for the last 30 minutes. Remove from oven and cover with sauce.

Sauce: 1 1/4 oz. bottle of catsup
2 T. brown sugar
2 oz. vinegar
1/4 bottle Worcestershire sauce
1 T. Tabasco (or to taste)
2 T. margarine
Return brisket to oven for 30 minutes. Slice and serve.

Mild lupus needs to be monitored

DEAR DR. GOTT: My doctor says I have borderline lupus. He didn't tell me what to do for it, and I'm very worried. Can you fill me in?

DEAR READER: Lupus is one of several autoimmune diseases, when, for unknown reasons, people become allergic to their own normal tissues. This causes inflammation in various body organs, including joints, lungs, lymph glands and kidneys.

Like any other disease, lupus can be mild or severe. In the former, there are few if any symptoms. However, blood tests show anti-nucleus antibodies, proteins that indicate the immune system is forming compounds against the body's cells. Severe cases of lupus, on the other hand, are marked by painful arthritis, rash and chest pain, shortness-of-breath, swollen glands and renal malfunction. In its most advanced form, lupus is fatal.

I conclude from your question that you probably have had a positive blood test for lupus, without any symptoms. This situation is quite common and requires no treatment. However, your health should be monitored regularly (with blood tests for worsening kidney function) because your mild form could, in time, progress to a more serious disorder that would require therapy, such as cortisone.

Mild lupus usually remains relatively inactive for years; it can become progressive, however, under three circumstances: pregnancy, infection or reactions to drugs — especially antibiotics. Therefore, pregnant women with mild lupus must have particularly close medical supervision (with cortisone treatment if the condition worsens), and infections must be vigorously treated with care because of the possibility of an allergic reaction to the drugs used.

Your doctor probably failed to inform you more fully of the disease because nothing needs to be done for it at this time. Nevertheless, I think you should return to him (or her) for a more complete explanation of lupus; this information would remove much of the apprehension you are experiencing.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Well-placed confidence in partner's signals is crucial. After South got to four spades, West led the king of diamonds. When East followed with the deuce and declarer won the ace, West could be absolutely certain that his partner had started with a singleton. If East originally held 8-2, he would have played the eight-spot. That's easy enough here, but suppose there had been a different auction, in which West had bid and rebid diamonds. In that situation, imperfect defenders sometimes fail to begin a high-low, since they know partner has at least a six-card suit and they know a second diamond trick will not cash. That's wrong. It is important to be consistent in your discarding, so that partner can depend on getting the correct count. After winning the trump ace, West led a low diamond and East ruffed. A club return now gave the defenders two club tricks to set four spades. Note that it would be a mistake for West to cash the queen of diamonds, even though he knew it would live. Declarer would then have at least one club discard on a good diamond in dummy, enough to make the contract. When South responded one spade to North's opening one-diamond bid, West wanted very much to overcall two diamonds, but he was afraid that East would misinterpret it as a takeout cue-bid. Not so. It is best to agree that on the first round of bidding, when you are between two bidding opponents, your bid of either of the opponents' suits is a natural overcall. ## HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Osof
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Jan. 31, 1991

There are indications you might experience some favorable changes in the year ahead where your finances are concerned. Furthermore, these shifts in conditions will be triggered by unique circumstances.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be doubly careful if you're managing resources or assets for someone else today. Handling your own, as well as others, might not be your cup of tea. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail #2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) One-to-one relationships could be a critical province for you today. Even people with whom you usually get along may be a trifle antagonistic.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Helping someone you like may impel you to accept some additional responsibilities today. Before this arrangement plays itself out, things could get extremely complicated.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There is a possibility you might be an unwise buyer or a poor investor, or perhaps both, today. Strive to make your hard-earned cash work for you, not against you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Drawing a comparison which puts a family member in an unfavorable light when measured against an outsider could create problems today. Don't invite trouble into your household.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) It's best to count to 10 today before making caustic remarks about someone you love. The hurt it could inflict might be something that cannot be readily healed.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You might be inclined to buy on impulse today, but this won't be harmful if you're not too extravagant. However, if you are, you may have regrets.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Discord could arise between you and your mate today if either attempts to accuse the other of not taking care of something the antagonist should have handled.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If something a friend does annoys you today, it is best to bring it out into the open rather than brood about it in silence. Be forthright.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you have to solicit a favor from an associate today, use the gentlest presentation possible. This individual may refuse if you are demanding.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It might be a bit tougher than usual to achieve your objectives today. This is because there may be someone in the wings who secretly opposes your efforts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There is a chance you may ignore a painful lesson learned through experience today. If you are forgetful, it might be forcibly recalled to your attention.
