Are there really bosses like this?

A man came to this newspaper the other day to tell me what had just happened to him. At times, his eyes watered. He did time.

He said he was 51 years old and was having trouble paying his rent. He said he was employed until last week but could no longer work for his boss.

The man said he tried his best to be a good employee, to obey the company's rules and do what his boss told him to do.

But there was more to it than that.

The boss never called this man by his real name. Instead, he called him "Calhoun."

The man said that the boss would call out "Calhoun, get your black over here."

"He mimicked the characters in the old 'Amos n' Andy Show,' the man said of his boss. "He thought that was very funny. It gave him a good laugh. 'Calhoun, do this 'Calhoun, do that,' he'd say."

The insults continued each day.

But again there is more to it than that.

The man said that the boss frequently would dock some of his pay. Over charging him for the T-shirts and shorts he wore on the job. And docking money once when he decided the man had not earned his pay. "Aren't I doing it right, Calhoun?" he'd say when questioned.

Finally, the man could no longer stand the abuse and racial slurs. He left the job.

He's now trying to get help from the Civil Liberties Union and perhaps from an attorney. He says that others who worked at the company would support him. "They know what went on," he said.

I believe the man's telling the truth about a loathsome work situation. It's a sickening thought that something like has occurred and will continue to occur until every ounce of racism is eliminated from society.

The man who came to this newspaper is well-spoken and has a business degree. His resume sheet is impressive.

He was on a bicycle when he arrived at the newspaper. He rides the bike to places off the bus route. He racks the bike on the front of the bus to go longer distances. He hopes to get another job. He looks every day for an opportunity to work.

All I can do is wish him good fortune and to share his story with those who will take the time to read it. I saw the pain in the man's eyes.

Another man was recently tied to a vehicle and dragged to a horrible death in Texas. His crime was having had black skin. One of those who hated enough to kill will die for what he did.

And we're worried about Y2K?

What other musicals featured Shirley Jones?

Q: My wife and I recently watched 'The Music Man' again. We have two questions. In what other musicals was Shirley Jones featured? The writer was listed as Marion Hargrove. During World War II, a hilarious book, 'See Here, Private Hargrove,' written by Marion Hargrove, was published. Were the writers the same or related? — G.B.K., Hot Springs, Ark.

A: Among Shirley Jones's film musicals were two classics, 'Oklahoma' and 'Carousel.' She also appeared in many non-musicals, including her Academy Award-winning performance in 'Elmer Gantry.' And yes, that is the same Marion Hargrove, a professional writer.

Q: I viewed a Fernandel film (subtitled during the 1950s?) about a priest at an inn where the host murdered the guests. I think the film's title was 'Red Inn.' It was hilarious! Do you know the exact title and if that French film is available for VCR? — B.E., Pana, Ill.

A: You have it 99 percent accurate. It was 'The Red Inn,' and it came out in 1951 but there is no video.

Q: I was in Branson, Mo., last week and had the privilege of seeing Andy Williams, Bobby Vinton and Mel Tillis. Would you please tell me how old each one is? — M.J.S., Conroe, Texas.

A: Gladly Williams is 68, Vinton is 63 and Tillis is 66.

Q: I want to know if Ben Stiller is the son of Jerry Stiller and Anne Meara (Stiller and Meara). He certainly looks as if he could be! If this is so, then is Ben & Jerry's ice cream named for them? — C.S., Pittsburgh, Pa.

A: Yes and no. Ben Stiller is the son of Jerry Stiller and Anne Meara but the Ben & Jerry ice cream name is just a coincidence. No relation.

Q: I am interested in the movie star Ann Sheridan of the 1930s and 1940s. Is she still alive and how old is she? She played with Ronald Reagan in 'King of the Bow' and also with the late and wonderful actor Cary Grant in the hilarious 'I Was a Male War Bride.' — V.L.S., Sandy Lake, Pa.

A: Ann Sheridan, the 'Gomph Girl,' died way back in 1967.

Q: A steak dinner bet is riding on the answer to this question: Tom Berenger was the main character in the movie 'Chasers' (1991). My husband swears the female lead was Brooke Shields and I say, "No way!" — D.H., Mountain View, Ark.

A: You say "No way" intelligently. The female lead in that film was Erika Eleniak.

Q: Please tell me the name of the show that Richard Boone was the main character of in the mid-1970s.

DICK & CHICKI KLEINER

It ran along with the mystery series that appeared on Sunday evenings with "Columbo" — "McMillan and Wife" and "McCloud." They featured these on a rotating Sunday. — P.O., Evergreen Park, Ill.

A: Boone's series with that group was called "See Ramsey."

POLICE LOG

The following reports were compiled from the Seminole County Sheriff's Office for incidents recorded through March 11:

Domestic violence:

SANFORD, Chase Avenue, 2400 block. March 9, 11:23 p.m. A 23-year-old man was arrested by Sanford Police for aggravated domestic violence. Police said he and his wife began to argue when he returned home from work. He struck his wife in the face to make a point, he said. She earned a bruised eye from the fight.

DUI:

GENEVA, State Road 46. March 10, 1:41 a.m. A 31-year-old man was charged with driving under the influence by Seminole.

Drugs:

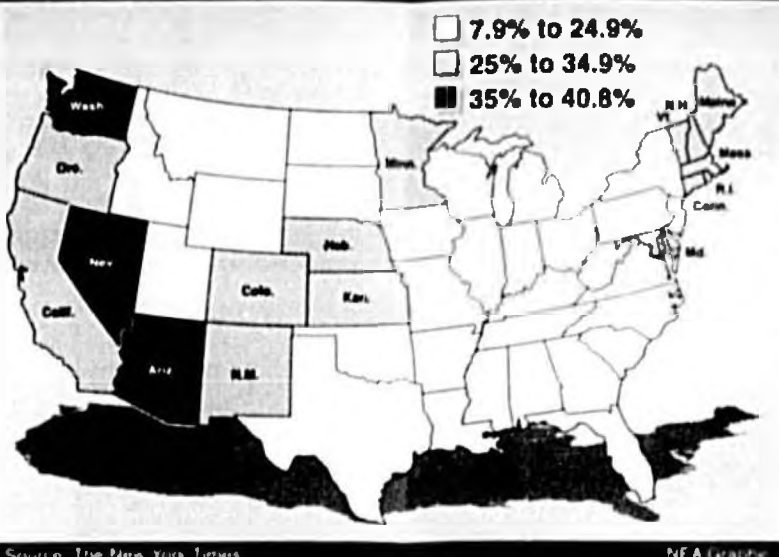

CASSELBERRY, Wilshire Boulevard, 100 block. March 10, 11:10 a.m. A 28-year-old man was arrested for possession of a controlled substance and possession of drug paraphernalia. Seminole County sheriff's deputies said they were arresting him on an active warrant when they noticed him pushing something into the seat cushions of the back of the police car. When they checked the back seat, they found a homemade crack pipe with cocaine residue in it pushed into the seat.

OVIEDO, Lockwood Boulevard, 3200 block. March 10, 8:30 a.m. A 21-year-old man was arrested for possession of a controlled substance and for operating a motor vehicle with a suspended license. Seminole County deputies said they pulled him over for speeding in a school zone. When they asked him for his license, he told them it had been suspended. When he stepped out of the car to be arrested, he dropped a piece of crack and deputies found a crack pipe in his pocket.

SANFORD, Airport Boulevard/Hidden Lake. March 9, 3:14 p.m. A 25-year-old man and a 20-year-old man were arrested for possession of cocaine with the intent to distribute and with possession of 17 grams of crack cocaine by Seminole County sheriff's officers. Deputies said undercover agents, working through an informant, arranged to buy $800 worth of crack from the men. The men met at the arranged place and made the agreed-upon exchange. The men left the sale location but were arrested a short distance later by deputies.

SANFORD, Third Street, 1900 block. March 10, 3:33 a.m. A 34-year-old man was arrested by Sanford Police for possession of drug paraphernalia. Police said he was sitting on the curb when they stopped to talk to him. He tried to hide something under his shoe when they approached. They asked him to move his foot. When he did, they found a small metal pipe used for smoking crack underneath.

Women in the statehouse

The percentage of women in state legislatures has been rising steadily over the last 30 years. The state legislatures of Washington, Nevada and Arizona have the highest percentage (35 to 40.8 percent), followed by the legislatures of Oregon, California, New Mexico, Colorado, Nebraska, Kansas, Minnesota, Maryland, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine (25 to 34.9 percent).

Suber

number of county officials - including a sitting commissioner and an ex-commissioner - made sexual advances toward her.

Suber, 54, testified under oath that when she told former assistant county manager Kevin Grace of her charges while still a county employee, that he advised her not to stir up anything.

Grace, who lives in the county and now works in the private sector, said Suber was lying. Those accused of sexual harassment deny it. He and a number of other county officials or former officials may be subpoenaed. One commissioner said today that Suber's charges were "outrageous."

Orlando attorney Jeff Mandel is defending for the county. He was not available for comment this morning.

The county maintains that Suber's firing was justifiable - that she was insubordinate, accepted gifts and gratuities, turned in wrongful time vouchers and used county time and resources for her own endeavors.

Groot said that County Engineer Jerry McCollum, one of Suber's superiors, will be the county representative at the trial. The public works scandal led to the resignation or firing of other county officials - including former County Manager Ron Rabun and Public Works Director Larry Sellers.

One of the first moves Rabun's successor, Gary Kaiser, made in restructuring the way the county did business was to assign the land acquisition duties to the county attorney's office.

Head said that the case was originally scheduled to be heard by District Court Judge Anne C. Conway but that her work schedule was filled. It was then assigned to visiting judge Doty and moved to Fort Myers. Attorneys on each side said the fact the case would be heard by a man rather than a woman judge should be of no consequence.

"Mrs. Suber is very pleased to be getting on with this," Head said. "She feels very strongly that she was wrongfully terminated."

Luggage that leads the pack

By the Editors of Consumer Reports

As an air traveler with luggage, you face three moments of truth when you're packing (will all this stuff fit in the suitcase?), at the airport (will the suitcase tip over as you pull it between car and airline counter?), and at baggage claim (did the suitcase succumb to the slings and arrows of outrageous handlers?).

We tested 16 large, soft-sided, wheeled suitcases to find answers to these questions. Suitcases resemble peas in a pod. Most are 25 to 27 inches long, stand on two wheels and two feet, open like a book, have a pull handle on top and fixed handles on top and side, and have one or more pockets outside. Yet we found enough performance differences to warrant a wide range of scores.

To evaluate the suitcases, we had eight staffers of various heights and strengths pull each bag - loaded with enough books to bring its total weight to 30 pounds - through an engineer-designed course at our Yonkers, N.Y., testing center. Panelists then filled out questionnaires, which we used to determine the ease of use scores for the bags. Here's what we found:

Bags with small wheels tended to get stuck in ruts.

Bags with large wheels were the easiest to pull on rough surfaces and up and down curbs.

Bags whose handles don't extend very far were awkward for taller panelists to pull.

We gave the bags extra points for having such useful features as internal and external pockets, a pull handle that locks in both extended and retracted positions, internal dividers that keep clothes from shifting, and skids near the wheels that make it easier to drag the bag upstairs.

We also raised a bag's score if it's lightweight yet holds a lot of stuff. Suitcase weight ranged from 11-1/2 to 17 pounds, capacity from 2-1/2 to 3-1/4 cubic feet. That may mean the difference between taking two suitcases or one.

We also put the bags through our fiendish tumbler, which has baffles to knock around the luggage we put inside it. The tumbler lets us locate a bag's weaknesses, as would years of serious abuse by baggage handlers. We filled the suitcases with towels and foam, and started the tumbler. Some suitcases couldn't endure 1,000 cycles, and some that did looked ready for the trash. How did they fail? Let us count the ways:

Zippers tore loose from their cloth backing, became deformed or opened repeatedly.

Protective plastic piping wore through on the corners, exposing its wire core.

Seams came apart, often because they were sewn too close to the fabric's edge.

Plastic feet popped off.

Without actually falling apart, some bags got banged up so severely that you'd be inclined to hide them from view.

Our tumbler test was severe. A suitcase that scored low in durability may not fall apart the first time you use it, it's just likely to fail sooner than one that scored high.

The highest-scoring bag in our tests - both overall and for durability - was the Andiamo Valorosa VJ25. But at $495, it costs more than twice as much as many other fine bags. And it lacks a garment carrier.

If you'd rather spend the extra money on a plane ticket, opt for the Impuls Targa ($230), the Pathfinder by Paragon ($190) or the Ricardo Beverly Hills, which at $160 qualifies as one of our Best Buys.

If you travel a lot, consider a bag that scored high in our durability tests. In addition to the Andiamo and the Impuls, there's the J.C. Penney Protocol 047 5251 ($150).

Virtually all name-brand computers now have more than enough speed for word processing and other basic applications. What differentiates them most is the ability to handle multimedia graphics and sound - the stuff of many games and Web sites.

You can hold down costs without sacrificing essential performance by buying only as much computer as you need now, choosing a design that lets you easily expand and upgrade critical components. Recent changes in the way computers are sold make it easier than ever to buy just what you need.

Use the Web to buy a built-to-order system directly from the manufacturer. Apple, Compaq, Dell, Gateway and Micron now feature a "store" on their Web sites where you can order a computer, adjust the memory, hard drive size, and accessories you want, then have the system shipped to you. No Internet access? Call the companies to place an order.

Use one of the new kiosks at Best Buy, Circuit City, Staples and other major retailers to configure and order a computer from Compaq, Hewlett-Packard, IBM or NEC.

Here's our advice on what to look for and how much to spend to satisfy particular needs:

- For basic applications. These include word processing, personal finance, basic Internet access, e-mail, record keeping, desktop publishing, digital photography, speech recognition, educational software and most games. For a computer that performs these applications, you can expect to spend between $600 and $1,300, excluding monitor. Make sure the computer has at least:
 - 300 to 350 MHz (Windows) or 233 MHz (Macintosh) processor
 - 64 MB of RAM
 - 4 to 8 GB hard drive
 - 56k V.90 fax modem
 - 24 to 32x CD-ROM drive
 - At least one unused PCI slot (the most versatile kind of expansion slot), and one free bay for an additional disk drive
 - A sound system, which may lack the wavetable MIDI (musical instrument digital interface) that provides realistic sound reproduction
 - Speakers, with optional microphone

- For basics, plus hot games and multimedia. These include the basic applications, plus the ability to run performance-oriented action games, access musical entertainment, and surf multimedia Web sites. A computer that can handle these tasks should run between $1,500 and $1,800. Here's what you'll need:

- 350 to 400 MHz (Windows) or 266 MHz (Macintosh) processor
- 64 MB of RAM
- Standard ATX main circuit board, which allows for upgrading
- Accelerated (AGP) graphics, with at least 4 MB of video RAM (Windows)
- 56k V.90 fax modem, which may have voice capability
- DVD-ROM or 32x CD-ROM drive
- Sound system with wavetable MIDI
- Speakers and microphone
- At least two PCI expansion slots and two free bays

3. For cutting-edge challenges. These include the basic applications, plus cutting-edge video-based games, serious music composing, DVD software and movies, programming, developing multimedia Web sites, and video editing. Computers capable of these tasks will run you $2,000 to $3,000, and should include the following:

- 400 to 450 MHz Pentium II (Windows) or 300 MHz PowerPC G3 (Macintosh) processor
- 128 MB of RAM, upgradable
- Standard ATX main circuit board
- 10 to 16 GB hard drive
- Accelerated (AGP) graphics, with 8 MB of video RAM (Windows)
- 56k V.90 fax modem with voice capability
- DVD-ROM drive with hardware-based video decoder
- Sound system with wavetable MIDI
- Speakers with better sound quality, plus microphone
- Three PCI expansion slots and at least two free bays

The computer industry does a great deal of its annual business in the final three months of the year, so technology introductions and the accompanying price cuts are often deferred until after the holiday season. Unless you're buying a computer as a gift, consider postponing a purchase until after mid-January.

residential recreational and business activities are minimal," Ali said in the report.

The midge predatory fish Ali recommends introducing into Lake Monroe are the catfish, bluegill, redear sunfish, and longear sunfish.

The large population of midges in Lake Monroe are a nuisance to residents of the city's Historic District and to downtown businesses.

Adult midges restrict outdoor activities by people and can cause health problems, such as allergies. In extreme cases, midges can cause asphyxia.

Offering comfort in times of grief

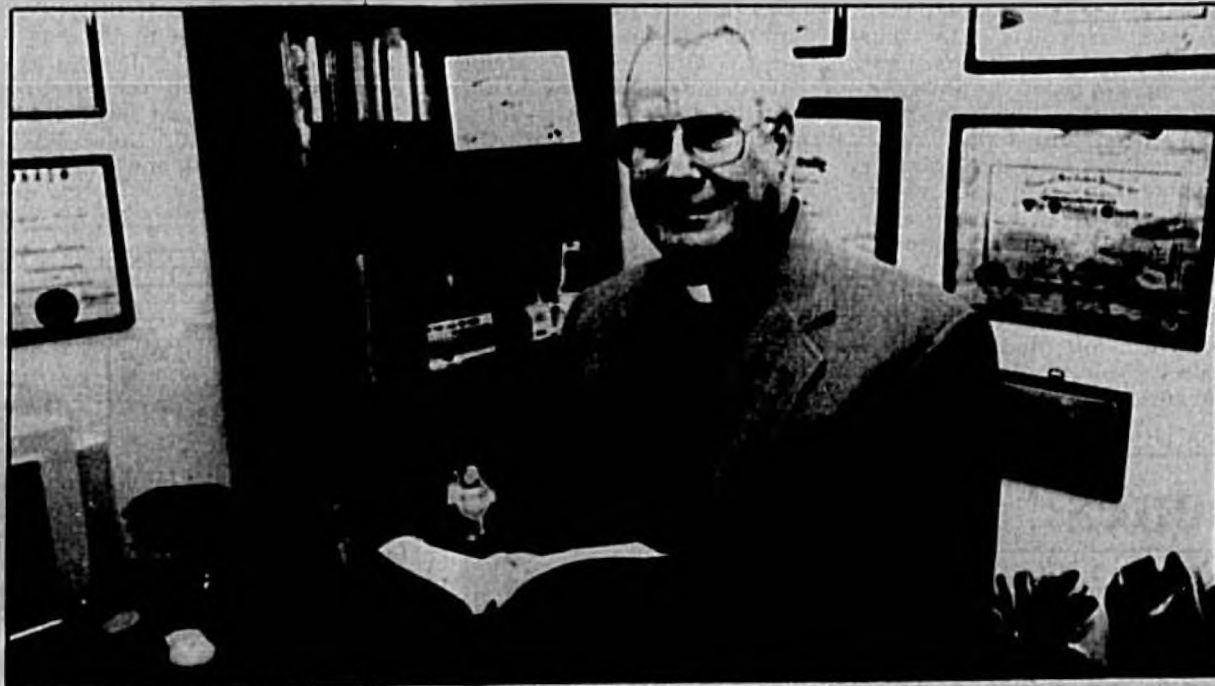

Winter Springs chaplain cares for sick and elderly

By Jeff Bertolotto

ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR
For a man who has spent much of his life working with the dying, Chaplain Brooks Hudson is one who is able to turn his experience into something positive.

An ordained minister, Hudson served the ministry of pastoral care at Northland Community Church in Longwood. Recently, Hudson decided to take some of his experiences and start his own ministry of support and caring to persons in need. Among his services are pastoral visitations, pastoral counseling, weddings, worship services, ministry to staff and consultations, but one of his special strengths is in working with nursing homes and the dying.

"The idea to start this was because there are so many smaller nursing homes that don't have a pastoral care program," Hudson said from his Winter Springs home. "I wanted to offer full-time ministry services with worship and bible study.

Chaplain Brooks Hudson has started a new ministry which will care for the elderly and the dying as well as other pastoral services. He attends Northlands Community Church in Longwood.

Hudson has experience working in funeral homes and tries to make the experience of death as calming as possible for those involved.

"I work with a lot of people who have no church affiliations in the area," Hudson said. "I offer grief counseling and the response has been pretty strong."

He has also contacted several assisted living programs and nursing homes in the area and will be the speaker at the sunrise Easter service at Baldwin-Fairchild Funeral Home in Lake Mary on Easter Sunday.

Hudson has a long career of working with the dying. He holds master's degrees in divinity and social work and received his clinical chaplaincy at Georgia Baptist Medical Center. He has extensive experience in pastoral ministry as well as mental health and substance abuse treatment.

"I served in Mississippi with people dying and from there I decided I wanted to get into the counseling field," he said. "I retired last year, but I think I learned a lot about the experiences of death and dying through the substance abuse programs. The people I worked with had to deal with their impending death with the way their lives were going."

SAINTS AND SINNERS

GEORGE PLAGENZ

Lord's Prayer is a year-round project

If you didn't make a New Year's resolution before the old year expired, there is still time.

Frances Hayward, an octogenarian in my congregation in Boston, coined the adage, "If you can't begin in the beginning, begin in the middle." She would have said that January, or even February, is a perfectly good time to make a New Year's resolution if you let Dec. 31 slip by without getting it done.

If you can't come up with something to resolve for 1999, a good resolution would be to study the Lord's Prayer, that old standby of prayers, as a year-round project.

"Oh, I know the Lord's Prayer backward and forward," you are probably saying, "I can rattle it off without thinking."

Which, of course, is the trouble. I have the feeling that most people, when they stumble the Lord's Prayer in prayer in church, are not trying much, if any, attention.

This does not necessarily mean the recitation of the Lord's Prayer a wholly futile endeavor. For most of us, the prayer has hallowed associations that are evoked whenever we say it. In this respect it is like the cross. The cross speaks no words whatsoever, but, held before our closing eyes, it shines through the gloom and points us to the skies, "in the words of the evening prayer."

Well, if we can find a deeper meaning in the words of the Lord's Prayer, this can make the prayer much more meaningful.

The meditations that follow are not my own. They were written, as I recall, by the Rev. Walter Bowls, rector of Grace Episcopal Church in New York, and the Rev. Theodore Ferris, rector of Trinity Church (Episcopal) in Boston.

OUR FATHER WHO ART IN HEAVEN - Help me to believe this day that there is a Presence to lift me up which is stronger than all the things which hold me down.

HALLOWED BE THY NAME - May I become more aware of the beauty of thy holiness and the holiness of all things that come from thee, by thinking only on such things as are true, honest, pure, lovely and of good report.

THY KINGDOM COME - Help me to be quick to see, and ready to encourage, whatever brings the better meaning of God into that which otherwise might be the common round of the uninspired day.

THY WILL BE DONE ON EARTH AS IT IS IN HEAVEN - Help me to realize that there is a higher will than mine and that my life will never be what I want it to be, or what it can be, until I bring myself to say, "Not my will but thine be done."

GIVE US THIS DAY OUR DAILY BREAD - Open the way for me to earn an honest living without anxiety but help me never to seek to have and to own more than is needful, so that I may never use my gifts as a means of power over others. Make me want only that benefit for myself which will also be their gain.

FORGIVE US OUR TRESPASSES AS WE FORGIVE THOSE WHO TRESPASS AGAINST US - Make us sympathetic and patient with the shortcomings of others, especially of those we love, and keep us sternly watchful only of our own sins. Help us to remember the many blessings of this life which we can never pay for. May we receive them with

Races worship together in Sanford

By Walter Bowls

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

Several Sundays ago I preached this sermon in a joint worship service of our church and the New Life Word Center, a black church in Sanford. This is our ninth consecutive year of worshipping together, alternating at their church and ours. We believe that worshipping together, although only once a year, has brought us better understanding and identification with each other.

The sermon was so well received by members of both churches and it is being reprinted in hope of encouraging reconciliation between the races:

Seldom will we meet someone who has changed the world. But you might be fortunate enough to meet a famous person, a scientist who found a cure for a disease, or a wealthy person who has given millions that other people might have a better life. We don't normally think of regular people like us as people who can change the world. Yet that's exactly what happened to two men—Cornelius and Peter—who changed Christianity and thus the world.

Here is their story as briefly as I can tell it. Peter was a Jew, Cornelius a Gentile. The two groups had little love for each other. In fact, the Jews considered the Gentiles unclean and would associate with them only when absolutely necessary. Cornelius, although a Gentile, was a devout man who prayed to God and gave to the poor. God recognized his devotion and told him in a vision to bring Peter to his home. At about the same time, Peter had a vision of a sheet holding all kinds of animals, all of them forbidden for the Jews to eat, and God told him to kill and eat them. While Peter was wondering about this, Cornelius's men arrived at Peter's house and, in obedience to God, Peter let them spend the night and the next day went with them.

When he arrived at Cornelius's house, Peter found a large group awaiting him, wanting to hear the gospel. Afterward, Peter preached to them, baptized everyone there and even stayed a few days with Cornelius. Later on Peter was called before the church leaders in Jerusalem where they criticized him for associating with a Gentile. But when Peter explained his vision and the results, they approved of his work and even sent Barnabas out to the Gentiles in Antioch where he involved Paul in the work. Later the work with Gentiles grew until great numbers of them were saved.

This story of these two men is remarkable because of the great impact they had in changing Christianity and the world. Had either man disobeyed God, perhaps the gospel would not have gone to Gentiles. Look at the lessons they teach us.

Our Condition: Prejudice and Hatred

Although Peter was a godly man and a Christian, he was prejudiced. Like him, all of us have considered someone unclean, unworthy or less important than ourselves.

So when God told Peter to (10.13) "kill and eat" Peter balked. "Surely not, Lord!" he said (10.14). "I have never eaten anything impure or unclean." The Gentiles ate this kind of food so he might as well have said, "I don't eat anything those Gentiles eat. It's not fit for a Jew." I know how Peter must have felt. I grew up being taught to look down on people who didn't look and talk like us. I've outgrown most of that condition but some of it is still there.

Seldom is prejudice funny but sometimes it backfires. On a British Airways flight from Johannesburg, a middle-aged, well-off white South African woman found herself sitting next to a black man. She called the attendant over to complain about her seating. "What seems to be the problem, Madam?" asked the attendant. "Can't you see?" she said. "You've sat me next to a kaffir. [A kaffir is a very black South African.] I can't possibly sit next to this disgusting human. Find me another seat!" "Please calm down, Madam," the attendant replied. "The flight is full, but I'll see if we have any seats available in club or first class." The woman cocked a snooty look at the outraged black man beside her [not to mention many of the surrounding passengers]. A few minutes later the attendant returned to the woman with the news.

"Madam, economy is full. I've spoken to the cabin services director, and club is also full. However, we do have one seat in first class." Before the woman had a chance to answer, the attendant continued: "It is extraordinary to make this kind of upgrade but I have gotten permission from the captain. He felt that it was outrageous that someone should be forced to sit next to such an obnoxious person." With that, she turned to the black man and said: "So if you'd like to get your things, sir, I have your seat ready for you!"

God's Call: Openness and Love

Peter was surprised when God told him (10.15) "Do not call anything impure that God has made clean." Three times he showed Peter this vision and Peter was faced with the dilemma whether he would keep his prejudice or obey God.

Peter had more to consider when Cornelius's men arrived and God told him (10.20). "Do not hesitate to go with them, for I have sent them." In this crisis of decision, Peter did what God asked of him, went to the man and to Cornelius's house. By the time he arrived there, he had accepted God's way and renounced his own prejudice as he told the crowd awaiting him (10.28,34). "You are well aware that it is against our law for a Jew to associate with a Gentile or visit him. But God has shown me that I should not call any man impure or unclean." ... "I now realize how true it is that God does not show favoritism but accepts men from every nation who fear him and do what is right."

Prejudice is really a simple matter to understand. It is being down on something you're not up on. Ignorance is its father. Hate, separation and resentment are its children. But because God accepts all people, no matter who they are or the color of their skin, we must agree with him and treat all people as God's people. Before we came to Christ, we were unacceptable and unclean but God made us acceptable. And if God has accepted us, how can we deny anyone?

Results: The World Changed
A deplorable incident occurred in the life of Mahatma Gandhi. He said in his autobiography that during his student days he was interested in the Bible. Deeply touched by reading the gospels, he seriously considered becoming a convert. Christianity seemed to offer the real solution to the caste system that was dividing the people of India. One Sunday he went to a church to see the minister and ask for instruction on the way of salvation and other Christian doctrines. But when he entered the sanctuary, the ushers refused him a seat and suggested that he go and worship with his own people. He left and never went back. "If Christians don't want me," he said to himself, "I might as well remain a Hindu."

Our prejudice not only hurts other people; it can also cause them to reject Christ. But look at what God can do when we destroy our prejudice and obey God. Did you notice the results of Peter's change? See Worship, Page 8A of attitude and obedience? This is what happened because he opened himself to the Gentiles. (10:18) Cornelius's household believed in Jesus and was baptized; (11:2) Peter was criticized by his Christian brothers but (11:17-18) after Peter's testimony they agreed with him and obeyed God. (11:18) sending out missionaries to the Gentiles. As a result, (11:21,25) many of the Gentiles believed in Jesus and (11:29) more Christians went out with the gospel. When we obey God and consider everyone as God's children, he blesses our acceptance and obedience.

But, you may still ask, "How can I change the world? I'm only one person. I'm not Peter or Cornelius." Let me tell you about a man who helped change the world for me.

Some years ago I learned about a man for whom I immediately had great respect, James Raford. His ancestors came to Florida in 1820 and were "Florida crackers." He was a farmer and miller in north Florida near where I grew up. He owned and operated a gristmill on what is now Harvey Creek, milling corn for everyone around, he was also a self-taught doctor, having learned medicine through reading books. Near the beginning of the Civil War, when he was about 26 years old, the Confederate States drafted and sent him to military school but, after six weeks, sent him home to raise crops to feed the troops. (I figure he was either a lousy shot or a great farmer!) On his pension application his commanding officer wrote about him: "He always sold his produce to the army for fair prices, unlike many other farmers. He is an honest man." Some of his relatives told me that he was a fun-loving, fair-minded man, interested in helping people.

Now, you might think this story is inappropriate for a congregation in which many of you have good reason to feel at least uncomfortable hearing me glorify a man who contributed to the slavery of some of your ancestors. But I haven't told you the whole story. This same James Raford was also a teacher. In fact, he had his own school for children after the Civil War. And what is remarkable about him and his school is that, in the post war period when relations between blacks and whites were at once of their lowest points and when many blacks lived in fear of losing their lives at the hands of whites, my great-grandfather, James Raford

Harvey, taught both white and black children in his school. He stood against racism and prejudice in the face of many who surely opposed what he did. As his work with both races becomes known, if only to a few, he can change some attitudes and hearts as he has mine.

You see, one person can change the world. You can be that person. In fact, like Peter, God calls you to be that person. As surely as Peter and Cornelius changed the world for Christianity, you and I can change our world. Don't believe the lie that one person can't change things. James Raford Harvey is still remembered, decades after his death, as a man who was a leader in building closer ties between blacks and whites. His example is worth following. More people like him, willing to accept people regardless of color, willing to accept all people as children created by the same God, can change the world. Who knows but that someone will remember you in fifty or a hundred years as a person used by God who changed his world.

Wayne Harvey is Pastor of the First Baptist Church in Sanford.

Playoff looming in Wed. softball

By Dean Smith
SPORTS EDITOR

SANFORD - Wells Contracting did what it had to do and then got some help as the City of Sanford Recreation and Parks Department Men's Thursday Night Polar Bear Slow Pitch Softball League moved closer to a possible playoff at Pinehurst Park.

Wells Contracting coasted in the first game, taking a 10-0 lead in the top of the second inning and going on for a 17-0, five-inning victory over Winless Scientific Glass.

Things got a little more interesting in the second game as ADAPCO and Wells Contracting traded the lead several times over the first four innings.

In fact, the lead either changed hands or was tied in six of the seven innings.

ADAPCO had Wells Contracting on the ropes, scoring three runs in the fourth inning and two runs in the fifth inning to build a 13-10 lead.

Wells Contracting, however, was not ready to give up its championship hopes, scoring three runs in the top of the sixth inning to tie the game at 13-13 to force extra innings.

Ray Hartafield led off the eighth inning for Wells Contracting with a double that opened the floodgates and the hitting did not stop until Hartafield capped the seven-run outburst with an RBI single.

The ADAPCO offense dried up after the two-run fifth inning, only getting a double and two singles, one in each of the final three innings, and not advancing a runner past second as Wells Contracting took the 20-13 victory.

The nightcap also turned into a barn-burner, but not quite the nail-biter of the previous game.

League-leading Nobles Communication took an 8-5 lead in the top of the second inning and could have all but sewed up the championship with a win.

But suddenly hot Pebble Junction continued its outstanding play, scoring 11 runs in the bottom of the second inning to take a 16-8 lead and then scoring 10 runs in the bottom of the fourth inning to close out a 28-17 upset.

Nobles Communication and Wells Contracting are both 7-3 and lead ADAPCO and Pebble Junction (both 6-5) and Scientific Glass (0-10).

The regular season closes next Wednesday night at Pinehurst Park and wins, or losses, by both Nobles Communication and Wells Contracting would force a playoff. In either team wins and the other loses, that team would claim the title.

On next week's schedule, Scientific Glass plays the doubleheader against Nobles Communication at 6:30 p.m. and ADAPCO at 7:30 p.m. Pebble Junction and Wells Contracting meet in a monster matchup at 8:30 p.m.

Providing the offense were:

Wells Contracting: three hits - Rick Wells (two doubles, two runs, three RBI); two hits - Chris Wargo (home run, double, two runs, RBI), Mike McLohan (home run, two runs, three RBI), Ray Hartafield (two triples, three runs, RBI), Tim Cooper (double, two runs, three RBI), Matt Kalasnik (double, two runs, two RBI); one hit - Mark Whitley (two runs, RBI), Ken Brown (two runs), Bob Wells (RBI).

Scientific Glass: three hits - Lou Rodriguez (triple, run, RBI), Robbie Carney

Showdown at Pinehurst

Wilson-Eichelberger, Wolfys set for Thursday men's softball title battle

By Dean Smith
SPORTS EDITOR

SANFORD - Wilson-Eichelberger had to work for it, while Wolfys got a freebie as the top two teams in the City of Sanford Recreation and Parks Department Men's Thursday Night Polar Bear Slow Pitch Softball League continued on a path to a battle for the championship.

None of the games played at Pinehurst Park on Thursday were close, with both Wilson-Eichelberger and the Regulators winning by the score of 22-2 in three innings and Wolfys getting a 7-0 forfeit victory from Headrick Feed.

But the games were interesting because an upset would have made next Thursday's final week of the regular season moot, now the championship trophy is at stake.

Last night's action began with the Regulators, which had suffered several tough losses of late, finally getting to flex their muscles, exploding for 24 hits.

The Regulators showed right off the bat that they meant business. Chris Nickle opened the bottom of the first inning with a triple, his first of two three-baggers in the inning, and the Regulators went on to put nine runs on the board.

The Regulators followed that outburst up with seven runs in the second inning and six runs in the third inning to end the game by the mercy rule.

The Regulators' defense was also good, holding Westview

Baptist Church to only four singles and one earned run.

Wilson-Eichelberger then took the field and got off to a little slower start, only scoring five runs in the top of the first inning on the strength of a two-run home run off the bat of Dale Peters.

But Greg James singled in two runs to key a seven-run second inning and then closed out the game in the third inning, scoring 10 runs, four of which crossed the plate on the most exciting play in stick-and-ball sports, an inside-the-park grand slam off the bat of Myriel Reid.

The Wilson-Eichelberger defense was also strong, holding a usually strong hitting Matthews Associates/Psycho squad to six singles.

With the forfeit Wolfys remains undefeated and improves to 9-0 on the season and just needs a win over Wilson-Eichelberger next Thursday to claim the crown.

Wilson-Eichelberger is just a game back at 8-1 and can force a playoff with a win next week.

Completing the standings are Matthews Associates/Psycho (4-5), Headrick Feed and the Regulators (both 3-6) and Westview Baptist Church (0-9).

OVIDEO - The Lions ran into a tough group of Bulldogs on the Lacrosse field on Thursday.

The Oviedo Lions saw a halftime lead disappear in a disastrous third period and the Bolles School from Jacksonville took advantage, ending the Lions' hopes of an undefeated season, 7-4, at John Courier Field.

Oviedo (4-1) took a 4-2 halftime lead on a pair of goals from star Dave Walsh and single scores from Victor Panos and Manny Morales, but the Bulldogs (5-2) would hold the Lions scoreless for the rest of the contest.

"This was real wake-up call for us," said Oviedo coach Ed Norton. "We only lost to them 10-9 last year. In the second quarter we looked tremendous, but in the third quarter we might as well have not taken the field."

Despite his team's second half let down, Norton had special praise for the play of goalkeeper Mike Sheets, which he described as "outstanding." Sheets turned away an amazing 25 Bulldogs shots.

Doing the scoring for the Bolles School were McGarvey (three goals) and Stapp, Singh, Valango and Chadeayne (one goal each).

The Lions will host West Orange High School from Winter Garden today at 3 p.m. at John Courier Field.

For similar reasons, always take your receipts and carbons with you after using plastic at an ATM, gas station, store, restaurant, or anywhere else. Take them home and keep them in a safe place, at least long enough to make sure your account statements are correct. Then when it comes time to dispose of them, do it the safe way—slice 'em and dice 'em first.

Be extra careful with the checks, credit cards, debit cards, ATM cards, or similar banking items you carry around. Many people think it's no big deal to leave their wallet unattended, even just for a few minutes, inside their car, office or gym locker, or at a store, restaurant, phone booth, or other public place. Unfortunately, wallets and their contents are easy to lose or have stolen. As I've said in the past, never set down your wallet in public unless your hand is attached to it.

Also, don't carry around more blank checks than you really need, just in case you lose your wallet. Likewise, consider canceling any credit cards you don't really need or use, because they're still valuable to a thief.

Closely protect your Social Security number, bank account numbers and other personal information. If you think a crook needs to steal an actual check or bankcard to commit a crime, think again. Just knowing your credit card account number and a little personal information about you (such as your Social Security number, birth date, address, or your mother's maiden name) can be enough for a con artist to make or order new cards in your name, or to simply buy goods and services over the phone.

Don't have your Social Security number pre-printed on your checks. And don't carry personal identification numbers (PINs) for your ATM card or credit card in your wallet, try to memorize them instead.

Thoroughly check out an unsolicited offer before agreeing to anything. Scammers often pose as legitimate business people, charity workers, or law enforcement officers just to convince people to give up cash, checks, credit card numbers, and other valuable information. Unfortunately, too many people fall for a friendly voice, an official-looking document, and a fantastic-sounding sales pitch that's really part of a scam.

Closely review your credit card bills and bank statements. Open this mail as soon as possible after it arrives to make sure that no one else is using your account and to protect yourself from claims that you were in some way negligent (especially important with checking and savings accounts). Compare the list of transactions with your own records and receipts, and generally search for anything that may be questionable. And if your credit card bill or monthly bank statement doesn't arrive as expected, that could be a sign that someone has stolen this important mail or put in a fake change of address as part of a fraud scheme. Call the issuer immediately.

It's also a good idea to periodically review your credit reports, maybe once a year or so, to make sure someone else hasn't used your name to get a credit card or a loan. For a copy of your credit report from the three major credit bureaus, call these special toll-free numbers: Equifax at 800-685-1111, Experian at 800-682-7664, and Trans Union at 800-888-4213. Under 1998 amendments to the Fair Credit Reporting Act, the most you can be charged for your credit report is $8, but you're entitled to a free copy once a year under certain circumstances (including if you've been a fraud victim).

FDIC Consumer News in the past has run several warnings about specific types of crimes and how to guard against them. This time, though, we decided to print this special report on how to fend off practically any financial fraud or theft that may come your way.

I don't want to frighten you. If you're lucky, these crimes will never happen to you or someone you know. But I also think that crime prevention takes more than just luck-it takes knowledge and a willingness to take action, too.

So how can you protect yourself? Start by reading our list of some of the best and easiest approaches that, regrettably, too many consumers have either forgotten, dismissed, or never even knew about.

Protect your incoming and outgoing mail. On any given day, your mail could include checks, credit card applications "loan checks" (typically blank checks you receive from your credit card company with offers to "write yourself a loan") and other items of interest to thieves and fraud artists.

You can help lock postal theft by taking some simple precautions suggested by the U.S. Postal Inspection Service in Washington. Remove your mail from your mailbox as soon as possible after it's delivered. If a check, credit card, or other valuable mail doesn't arrive as expected or if the envelope appears tampered with, notify the sender and a postal inspector at your local post office. Also, never leave outgoing mail containing checks for utility or credit card bills at your doorway or your curbside mailbox. Instead, deposit it into a blue collection box, hand it to a letter carrier or take it to the local post office. "Unfortunately," says Ken Hunter, the Postal Service's Chief Inspector, "putting up the red flag on the curbside mailbox alerts thieves that there may be something of value to steal."

Stop thieves from turning garbage bins into gold mines. Fraud artists know how to recycle trash into cash. How? So-called "dumpster divers" pick through rubbish and find things they can use to counterfeit or order new checks or credit cards. That old saying that "one man's trash is another man's treasure" is certainly true in this case. "says Gene Seitz, a fraud examiner with the FDIC in Washington. So the next time you want to get rid of credit card receipts or applications, old credit cards, canceled checks, monthly statements, or loan checks, tear them up into bits before you put them in the trash. You might even want to scatter the pieces into separate trash bins.

Woman creates bright future to cover dark past

DEAR ABBY: When I read the letter from "Repented in Oregon," I had to write. When I was a teenager in a small town, I, too, was promiscuous - and for basically the same reasons. I wanted attention, and believe me, I got it! It was the wrong kind of attention, and every boyfriend I had left me.

Later in life, I grew accustomed to short-lived romances, and I dumped every love I had before he could dump me. Your advice to relocate was sad, but it was right on. I moved away, changed my name, and moved on with my life. Life hasn't always been easy, but nothing worthwhile ever is.

I have been happily married for 10 years and have two wonderful children. My husband knows all about my rocky past, for we have no secrets between us. I'm active in the school's PTO and am working on my bachelor's degree. I now have love and, finally, respect!

I wish "Repented" the best of luck. It does get better, life does go on, and she will be happy. DEEP IN THE HEART OF TEXAS

DEAR DEEP: You have obviously done a lot of work on your emotional self, and for that I congratulate you. In order to be respected, a person must understand and respect one's self. It's sometimes a painful journey - but it is always worth it. Read on for a letter that illustrates my point:

DEAR ABBY: "Repented in Oregon" has walked in my shoes. I married a young man from my hometown who found out about my past after we were married and had children. It's now 17 years later. We're still married, but he doesn't treat me the same as before he found out. He's not abusive, but he's also not as loving and caring as he was before. That has been painful.

My children now attend school with the children of the people I went to school with, plus all the parents who heard about me through the grapevine. The whispers never stop. I see people looking at me, then looking away. My biggest fear is that my children will find out. I don't volunteer anymore or go to many of my kids' school functions, hoping it will keep the whispers from reaching my children.

Abby, people don't forget or forgive and move on. They still see you as you were when you were a teenager. Please urge "Repented" to move and start over. If I'd done it, I would be a much happier person today, and not so paranoid about who I'll run into at the Little League field or at a school function.

Parents: Talk to your kids. Be involved with them and keep an open mind. If my parents had been there for me, I know I would have been a different person.

IN ENDLESS PAIN, ORLANDO, FLA.

DEAR IN ENDLESS PAIN: I have received a barrage of letters from readers who felt I should have advised "Repented" to stay where she was - and over time, "show" her community by her example that she has changed. Your letter is a poignant illustration that it doesn't always work - and for that, you have my sympathy.

There is no reason why the ugly gossip of small-minded people should force you to hide or refrain from being active in your community. I may sound like a broken record, but counseling can help you rebuild your self-esteem. People have reasons that drive them to do what they do. They sometimes look for love in self-destructive ways. You don't deserve the treatment you're receiving, but before you can expect the community to forgive you, you must first forgive yourself.

DEAR ABBY: I recently attended yet another funeral where several speakers shared reminiscences of the deceased. As charming and comforting as the stories were, it was very frustrating to listen to even the most heartfelt comments when I had no idea who the speakers were or their relationship to the deceased.

Relatives and friends came from hundreds of miles away. The church was packed with schoolmates, neighbors and friends. My family were not the only mourners who had no clue about who these speakers were. A simple, "My name is Bill Smith. Tom and I played football at Granite College together," would have been so considerate. Even the clergy remained anonymous.

One notable exception was a service that Cardinal O'Connor conducted for a longtime friend in Washington, D.C. He didn't presume that everyone knew who he was, and introduced himself and his relationship to the deceased. It made his participation poignant and personal.

MIFFED MOURNER IN DELAWARE

DEAR MIFFED: Your suggestion is one of the ABCs of public speaking that should be remembered by anyone stepping before a microphone. However, most speakers at funerals and memorials are amateurs who are unaccustomed to speaking before an audience (most are emotionally stressed as well). I'm sure the people you heard were speaking from their hearts, so attribute their omissions to inexperience.

DEAR ABBY: I believe your suggestion to the guy who has his name on his ex-girlfriend's posterior could be improved upon. Since everybody in their small town knows about it, why not declare her caboose a public billboard and let other names be tattooed on her backside as they qualify?

I had a shipmate during World War II who had his girl's name tattooed on his thigh. After he got the proverbial "Dear John" letter, a short trip to the tattoo artist resulted in "Patty" becoming "Betty" -

ADVICE COLUMNIST
Dear Abby

which he said he was, to have done it in the first place.

NO NAME IN TEXAS
DEAR NO NAME: Your letter is a hoax. Fortunately, for tattooed ladies and gentlemen who've had a change of heart - or circumstances - laser surgery is an efficient way of erasing the evidence with a minimum of pain.

HOROSCOPES

Saturday, March 13, 1999

The year ahead looks very hopeful for you. You are now likely to fare better in ventures you're engaged in than you have been in the past. Make the most of this good year!

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You could be on a lucky roll today where good things will begin to happen for you. This will be especially true in matters that are meaningful to you financially. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Conditions have turned around in the last couple of days. Those who might have ignored you will now be ready to cooperate with you.

Seek their support today. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Without too much effort, things will go your way today. Instead of coasting, however, consider how much more you can accomplish now if you pull out all the stops. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Use your faculties today to help others sort out their affairs in a manner that could be beneficial to them. You're got the smarts and savvy to understand how they can accomplish this.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Something you accomplish today could have residual benefits attached to it that you may be unaware of at this time. However, it will reveal itself quite soon. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If there is parity in an arrangement that you've been trying to negotiate lately, all parties will do very well. Look for ways today to make this happen, and then put it back on the table.

VIROO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A situation that has already been going smoothly might begin to show additional benefits for you. You could get the first signals today. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Seek out effective allies today for something you're trying to get going. With good partners, you have an excellent chance of accomplishing your goal.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Hold tight today and let events run their natural course today, because the less aggressive you are, the more likely Lady Luck can control situations for you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Because you're a good listener and friends trust you, they are apt to reveal things to you today that they wouldn't to others. What you learn could benefit you in some manner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you handle things properly today, your prospects for enlarging your material base looks quite promising. Look for the profit-side of your ledger to get more muscle.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Have faith in your ideas today, even if they don't sound that good to bystanders. You have the ability to add imaginative touches to enhance whatever you're working on. ©1999 by NEA, Inc.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Keep thinking, be happy

By Phillip Alder

A.A. Milne, the author of "Winnie-the-Pooh," claimed: "The third-rate mind is only happy when it is thinking with the majority. The second-rate mind is only happy when it is thinking with the minority. The first-rate mind is only happy when it is thinking."

It is all right to have the mechanics of the three signals — attitude, count and suit-preference — down pat, but you mustn't stop thinking.

How should the defense proceed against this four-heart contract? Are you thinking that East should make a three-club weak jump overall? I agree that would work better here, leaving South having to bid three hearts, after which North might well drive to the five-level. However, that hand is far too strong for a weak jump overall. As game isn't impossible (give West a decent hand), East is right to bid two clubs. Think game while game is still thinkable.

Playing West for a singleton club, East wins trick one with the ace, then returns the jack, his highest card being a suit-preference signal for spades. Next, after winning trick three with the spade ace, East leads the club two (or six). Leading a losing club forces West to ruff with the heart four, which promotes East's queen as the setting trick.

How does East find this play? Well, as South's two-level response marks him with the missing high cards, this defense is the only chance. Even if West has an unexpected diamond king, declarer will win a diamond switch with his ace, draw trumps, and discard his diamond losers on dummy's spade winners.

ASK DR. GOTT

Let kids go when they gotta go

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a public school teacher of fifth grade students. I am sometimes astounded at the way my colleagues handle children who ask to go to the bathroom during class. Often their requests are refused or the youngsters are made to sit — even though they are uncomfortable. In a few instances, such children have actually been punished.

I consider this unhealthy. In my opinion, children should be allowed to relieve themselves and not to equate urgency with something "bad." Am I over-reacting?

DEAR READER: Not at all. In fact, you raise a very important issue. Too often in a classroom setting, students' requests to go to the bathroom are incorrectly perceived by teachers as being frivolous, disruptive and arbitrary. I agree with you that this attitude is wrong and should be corrected. Moreover, from a medical standpoint, studies have shown that there are serious consequences from this behavior. Girls are far more likely to develop bladder and urinary problems; both boys and girls this age can become constipated, leading to soiling and abnormal dilatation of the lower colon. Finally, children who "have to go" are often so distracted that they are unable to learn.

Most medical specialists rightly condemn the practice of making children wait to relieve themselves. Teachers who embrace this philosophy ought to be ashamed. School is tough enough without this unnecessary physical burden.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Bladder and Urinary Tract Infections." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 1017, Murray Hill Station, New York NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is Graves' disease and how is it treated? DEAR READER: Graves' disease is a form of excess thyroid-hormone production that causes protruding eyes, as well as the usual signs of hyperthyroidism, including nervousness, weight loss, rapid pulse and heat intolerance. It is more common in women and tends to occur between the ages of 30 and 60.

Experts are not certain why this type of hyperthyroidism affects the eyes. In Graves' disease, the excess hormone stimulates the fatty tissue behind one or both eyes to grow. This enlargement pushes the eyes out of their sockets, giving the pop-eyed appearance so characteristic of the disorder.

Treatment with thyroid-suppressing drugs is usually effective, but occasionally, eyelid surgery is necessary to enable the patient to blink, thereby keeping the eyes moist. Thyroid surgery and therapy with radioactive iodine, although appropriate for other types of hyperthyroidism, may worsen the eye symptoms of Graves' disease. Consequently, drug treatment is preferable, because it can be stopped or modified if the eyes become worse.
