

Revamped Juvenile System 'It's A Dream Come True'

By DONNA ESTES
 Herald Staff Writer

"It's a dream come true, a giant step forward in the juvenile justice system. I had given up hope."
 These are the words of Circuit Judge Dominick Salt after he learned from Tallahassee by telephone that a bill he authored, completely revamping the juvenile justice system, passed both Houses of the Legislature Friday, and is on its way to Gov. Reubin Askew for his signature. Sen. Edgar Dunn of Daytona Beach, who Salt called "the workhorse of the Legislature" and the sponsor of the legislation "anticipates the governor will sign the bill."

 "It's a unique idea in the country. If Florida can show some degree of success with the new change, there is a good possibility many states in the nation will adopt these same ideas," he said.
 "The public had perceived the juvenile justice system has been too easy. While judges have been blamed, the main emphasis of the law has been rehabilitation. The law needed to be stronger. It wasn't right to get the courts involved as super social agencies," said Judge Salt.
 Among the principal changes in the law, Salt said, is its stated purpose. The primary purpose in the old law was rehabilitation. In the new law the application of sanctions — punishment — in all cases is recognized, he said.
 The second major change is that the state attorney has the right to the direct information against a juvenile who is 14 years old and above and has committed at least two major offenses, one of which was a felony.
 Under the old method a state attorney would go through a waiver hearing to have a juvenile tried as an adult. The new law provides that a decision on whether or not the juvenile will be punished as an adult will be made at the end of the hearing.
 Under the new law, when the state attorney asks that a juvenile be tried as an adult, that juvenile is given the right of an adult to a jury trial. At the end of the trial, the judge must decide the suitability of juvenile sanctions.

Area Fires Being Probed

By MAX KRILESTIAN

Investigators for the Florida Division of Forestry and the Seminole County Fire Department are probing repeated fires set in the Tuscawilla area over the past three weeks and one set along Lake Mary Boulevard last week.

Sign Warns Of Forest Fire Smoke On Lake Mary Boulevard

Forestry officials, however, they feel there is no connection with the Tuscawilla fire. The Tuscawilla fire is particularly damaging to the ecology of the area, according to Artman.
 "It upsets the whole food chain for animals, there is an erosion factor and it ruins the aesthetic value of the land," said Artman. "That Tuscawilla area used to be a nice place to drive through. Now it isn't."
 The effects of the Tuscawilla fire might not be felt by area residents for sometime, according to Artman. However, it may lead to flooding in that area they never had before," said Artman. "When they get three inches of rain, where is it going to go? To the lowest point."
 Residents in the area around the Lake Mary Boulevard fire have a more immediate problem — smoke.
 The fire is still smoldering and may continue to burn for a week or more, according to Snyder.
 "It is going to continue to cause a great deal of trouble," he said. "It's burning what we call surface smuck in a swampy area and it is hard to tell how long it will continue to burn."
 The smoke from the Lake Mary Boulevard fire is less, according to Snyder and can cause severe itching. He said the smoke does not present an immediate health hazard to most persons. However, it can be harmful to persons who suffer from respiratory problems.
 The smoke from that fire also poses a driving problem along Lake Mary Boulevard, and can be harmful to persons who suffer from respiratory problems.
 The division of forestry has placed smoke warning signs along the roadway.

hilling fires, and you're not going to have new growth."
 The fire Monday near Lake Mary Boulevard was also an intentional burn, according to Artman. "But these fires now are killing fires, and you're not going to have new growth."
 "This time next year it's going to look like a desert in that area," Artman said of the Tuscawilla fire.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Entertainer Jackie Gleason will undergo open heart surgery at Michael Reese Hospital, where he was admitted a week ago with chest pains. It was reported late Friday.
 WBBM-TV, a CBS affiliate, reported surgeons were scheduled to perform a coronary artery bypass on the comedian today. The station said Gleason's wife, Mary, was with him at the hospital.
 Gleason, 67, has had a long career in show business. He is best known for his role as Morty Snerdson in the television series "The Dick Van Dyke Show." He also starred in the film "The Apartment" and "The Sandlot." He has won several awards, including a Peabody Award and a Grammy Award.
 Gleason was born in New York City and moved to Chicago in 1940. He began his career in radio and then moved to television. He has been married to Mary since 1950. They have three children.
 Gleason has been in poor health for some time. He has had several heart attacks and has been hospitalized several times. He is expected to remain in the hospital for several weeks.
 Gleason's health has been a concern for his fans. He has been a major draw for the television network CBS. His death would be a significant loss to the entertainment industry.
 Gleason's family has not yet announced a date for his funeral. He is expected to be buried in New York City.
 Gleason's death would be a significant loss to the entertainment industry. He was one of the most popular and successful comedians of his generation. His work has inspired many other comedians and has left a lasting legacy in the world of comedy.

Rocky Horror Fever: BEWARE

By MAX KRILESTIAN

Rice, toast, old newspapers and a deck of cards.
 The ingredients for a strange soup, or a strange movie?
 A strange movie — Rocky Horror Picture Show.
 CAUTION: If you are a strong backer of Anita Bryant, this movie may be hazardous to your mental stability.
 There are people who have seen the movie 30 or more times since it began its weekend midnight run several months ago at the Interstate Mall.
 About 11:30 p.m. lines begin to form. When tickets go on sale, the atmosphere becomes charged with a feeling this reporter has not felt since viewing the chaotic scene of Ben Hur from the third row one Saturday afternoon of his youth.
 Bland banter and whispered "look there's" mix together in joyful anticipation of the 90-min capacity room filling with people and going dark.
 A young man with frizzy hair a few rows down is distributing an undetermined substance to anxious youth.
 "Oh, my God — dope!"
 No, it is rice.
 "Rice. They've found a way to get high on rice."
 No, it is part of the movie.
 Suddenly, a girl, who looks like she has just robbed a news stand for a newspaper into your hand.
 "Take it, you'll need it," she says.
 "Is the movie that boring?"
 Suddenly the light fades and the screen is illuminated.
 Speaking as if with one voice, the audience leans the previous still... the feature attraction begins.
 Old Michael owns a pair of legs, tucked by both. It is a mouth along the introduction to the movie. No face. Just a mouth.
 The audience squeals with delight.

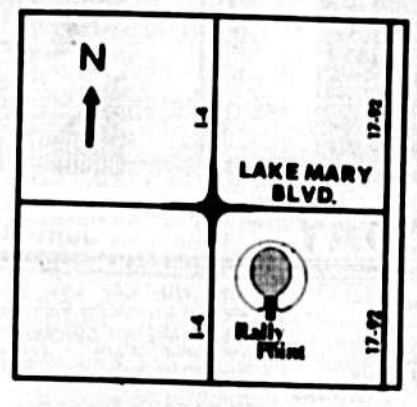

One is struck by the feeling of being at a movie for which the audience has rehearsed. Rocky Horror is, in fact, an audience participation movie. One begins to realize this early on when he is pelted with rice during the wedding scene.
 Your suspicions are confirmed by the time the movie's hero-villain (he can go either way) raises his glass and offers a toast. So does the audience. Pieces of bread, brewed by heat, and thrown through the air.
 The audience joins in other parts of the movie by chanting the chorus to certain songs and doing the "Time Warp," a dance from the movie.
 The audience also throws out certain lines that are answered with humorous results by characters on the silver screen.
 One is pelted. Toward the end of the show, the narrator launches into a monologue about the characters. He poses for dramatic effect, after saying the characters are "lost in time."
 The audience shouts: "what's your favorite TV show?"
 Obviously the narrator replies, "Lost in space."
 Audience participation is taken one step further by a group of Rocky Horror cultists from Orlando. They drive each weekend, two nights a week, to the theater to see the movie and perform.
 That's right, perform.
 Dressed in the garb of the main characters, they act out scenes from the movie in the theater side. These are the true believers in Rocky Horror. The devotees. The cult.
 "You have to be committed to come here every weekend," said Barbarella, who declined to reveal a last name.
 But, it was not always like that. Barbarella did not and the potential of the movie until she saw ROCKY, Page 1A

County's Annexation Lawsuit...Just A Sliver Of A Victory

While the county commission has won its first lawsuit against Seminole County city, challenging the legality of an annexation, the victory accomplished little.
 The bulk of the property affected remains in the city, according to Lake Mary City Attorney Gary Hensley.
 And the court decision by Circuit Judge Dominick Salt did not settle the major point of conflict between the city and the county — the definition of the word "enclave."
 All the mail received, according to Hensley, was to remove a sliver of land from Lake Mary's jurisdiction. The bulk of the 44 acres remains part of the city, he said.
 "The sequence of events are somewhat complicated, but they are as follows:
 — On June 10, 1977, after receiving a petition requesting annexation of a total of 44 acres, the city council adopted two ordinances. One annexed 33 acres west of the railroad tracks and south of Crystal Lake and the second annexed 11 acres east of the railroad tracks and adjacent to the southern portion of Hensley's city limits.
 — The city was notified early in 1977 by a property owner, B.F. Wheeler Jr., that the 1974 annexation ordinance included an erroneous legal description of the property involved in that a sliver of land, about three acres, south of Lake Crystal and west of the railroad tracks had been inadvertently omitted from the annexation.
 — The city on Feb. 17, 1977 adopted a new annexation ordinance which incorporated the property previously omitted and included, in addition, the three-acre sliver left out of the first ordinance.
 — The county commission is challenging the 1977 ordinance and not the validity of the 1974 ordinance.
 The judge ruled on the first contention only, that of the insufficient number of signatures, thus, the question of what an enclave is remains unanswered.
 The county contends an enclave is a county area partially or wholly surrounded by city property while the cities said an enclave is a county area totally surrounded by city property. The creation of an enclave is prohibited in the state annexation law.
 Hensley said he will study the decision and the state law before deciding what recommendation he will make to the Lake Mary City Council.
 But, he said, one thing is clear:
 If the county plans to challenge the original annexation of the 44 acres, it will have to plan an entirely new strategy, according to Hensley. The attorney said the 1974 annexation was accomplished under a different state law.
 The newer law was changed after the annexation was accomplished. The newer law does not allow the county to challenge the county's annexation of land for any urban purpose, and the annexation created an enclave.

 The newer law was changed after the annexation was accomplished. The newer law does not allow the county to challenge the county's annexation of land for any urban purpose, and the annexation created an enclave.
 The judge ruled on the first contention only, that of the insufficient number of signatures, thus, the question of what an enclave is remains unanswered.
 The county contends an enclave is a county area partially or wholly surrounded by city property while the cities said an enclave is a county area totally surrounded by city property. The creation of an enclave is prohibited in the state annexation law.
 Hensley said he will study the decision and the state law before deciding what recommendation he will make to the Lake Mary City Council.
 But, he said, one thing is clear:
 If the county plans to challenge the original annexation of the 44 acres, it will have to plan an entirely new strategy, according to Hensley. The attorney said the 1974 annexation was accomplished under a different state law.

Jail Cost Trimmers: Cut Wing?

By MAX ERKILLETIAN
Herald Staff Writer

After reviewing 23 items that might be trimmed from the county's proposed jail at the Five-Points complex, county officials are still focusing on the idea of eliminating one wing of the facility.

A committee reviewing the jail proposal is trying to find ways of cutting construction costs to bring it in line with the low bid for construction.

Further this month three bids for construction were opened. The lowest of the three, $4,206,000 by Standard Construction Co. of Maitland, was $1.4 million more than had been projected.

By eliminating one wing, the county would be forced to house prisoners of various classifications in the same wings. This would entail a modification of plans for those wings, according to County Planner John Percy.

"When we do something like that we are cutting down on the number of group cells and increasing the number of individual holding facilities," said Percy.

He explained that prisoners must be separated according to sex, age and type of offense. Originally, jail plans called for separating prisoners in different wings of the jail. That idea would be abandoned if the pod is eliminated.

Instead of having a group cell that could house four prisoners of the same age group, sex and accused of the same type of offense; the jail would have more individual cells. More individual cells would allow the jail to house prisoners of differing ages, sex and offenses in the same area, but not in group cells, according to Percy. Group cells cost less than individual cells, he said.

The jail committee will meet again Monday and make a decision on whether the pod should be eliminated or the full jail project should be funded. Their recommendation will be presented to the county commission Tuesday.

Sheriff John Polk, in a position paper issued to the county commission this week, urged the funding of the entire jail complex.

Polk contended the elimination of the pod might jeopardize the county's ability to meet state and federal regulations. He also contended the other pod would have to be built in the future if not now. Inflation, argued Polk, would greatly increase the price of constructing that pod in the future.

The committee rejected the idea of eliminating a lightning protection system for the jail. They also decided not to cut a graphic control panel that would monitor cell doors to show when one is opened.

Now, the city is going to do something about it. It is going to conduct its own census and the University of Florida population center which compiles the state and federal government has agreed to accept Casselberry's figures when compiled.

Bruce M. Furino, planning technician for the city, said he will be receiving assistance with the census from Florida Technological University as part of a community service project.

Included with the July 11 and July 27 billings from the city for water and sewer utility service will be a census card which the city is requesting be filled out and returned to the city.

The census card, Furino said, will not solicit personal information, but will only ask questions concerning population. "The few questions we will be asking will furnish us with the particulars needed to better respond to the people's needs," he said.

Sharing With Sharing Center

Seminole High School Interact Club members Sid Vihlen (left), Charlie Miller (center) and Mike Agee unload newspapers at The Sharing Center on Magnolia Avenue in Sanford. Throughout the school year the club has been collecting newspapers and bringing them to the Sharing Center who in turn sells them to a recycling center in Orlando. The Sharing Center donates the money to charity.

Casselberry Census Set

Furino said he and others working in the census will be contacting "by foot or by phone" those citizens who are not utility customers, including apartment dwellers who do not pay individual utility bills.

"As Casselberry grows, so will its services," said Furino. "To offset these costs, more money will be needed. Rather than increase local taxes, we as a city may qualify for more funds through federal and state revenue sharing.

"Revenue sharing is a system whereby a portion of the money we pay in federal and state taxes are in turn allocated to local government. These funds are based in part upon the city's population. The city of Casselberry has for a number of years been assigned a figure regarding population that is only an estimate and does not truly represent a total picture of our citizens," says a letter the city is sending to its citizens.

"If we can prove that there are more people than the figure which we're assigned, we will then qualify for a larger percentage of revenue sharing money," said Furino. — DIANNA ESTES

Another item the panel is considering is changing the type of locks proposed for cell doors.

Figures on how much might be saved by eliminating the pod and changing some materials will be presented to the committee Monday, according to Percy.

U.S., China And Taiwan

The recent visit in Peking of U.S. National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski may prove to be much more significant than the low-keyed reports about it would indicate.

Primarily, it was a cultivation of U.S. relations with mainland China that have been lying fallow since Secretary of State Cyrus Vance presented the Carter administration's credentials in Peking last August.

With the Panama Canal treaties ratified and the Middle East momentarily quiescent, President Carter is giving timely attention to U.S. interests in Asia.

The result, in the one-issue-at-a-time approach that seems to characterize U.S. foreign policy, is to bring China to the forefront of news and to a greater awareness.

The Chinese seem more amenable to improved relations with the United States; they gave Mr. Brzezinski a warmer reception than that accorded Secretary Vance.

One reason, although not the most important, is that their house, like President Carter's, is in better order now.

Hua Kuo-feng has emerged as the supreme ruler of China, having been named by the National People's Congress in March of this year as premier and also chairman of the Chinese Communist Party.

Already, he is quietly dismantling the radicalism of the Mao era and is leading China along pragmatic paths toward becoming a modern industrial society.

Hua is quick to recognize the tremendous potential that U.S. cooperation has for this development.

Apart from these affirmative auguries, the most influential factor for improving Sino-American relations is the Soviet Union, which is seen as the chief menace to both nations and to world peace.

The bizarre violation of China's border by a small Soviet army group early in May, the stepped-up Soviet-Cuban military involvement in Africa, and the overwhelming Soviet military growth, all combine to make for compatible U.S. - Chinese talks.

Indeed, in his public statements in Peking, Mr. Brzezinski said President Carter is determined to overcome the obstacles to diplomatic recognition of China by the United States.

Because the Chinese have consistently maintained that the chief obstacle to full diplomatic relations was continued U.S. recognition of Taiwan, which they as well as the Taiwanese insist is part of one China, Mr. Brzezinski seemed to be suggesting an abrogation of our formal relationship with the Nationalist Chinese.

Such a move promises to be counterproductive because it is certain to touch off a controversy in Congress to equal or surpass the Panama Canal and Arab-warplanes debates.

This could not but damage the delicately developing relationship with Peking.

In reality, the issue of Taiwan pales for the Chinese beside their fear of Soviet aggression and their need for modern weapons to minimize that threat.

We are warning to the Chinese and they are warning to us because of mutual self-interest.

And, because China's self-interest with respect to the United States and Soviet Union supersedes the Taiwan issue - which can wait, in any event - it would be needless and foolish for the Carter administration to sacrifice a long-time U.S. friend and ally, generating a self-defeating domestic controversy in the bargain.

Summertime. And the living's easy. Maybe.

For what it's worth, it's going to be a long, hot summer.

Although Florida is the winter playground for "rich" northern tourists, many middle-class families with children vacation here in the dead of the summer.

Extensive advertising and colorful brochures are irrefutable to many northerners who have been snowed out all winter.

Many live in high-rise, cramped, expensive quarters. They spend as much as 13 hours (including commuting) to put in an 8-hour workday. Many are in constant fear of getting mugged. Yes, Florida is the ideal vacation spot - and particularly Central Florida.

They tell us how lucky we are that we live here. We agree. We have spent many years with the hassle of the "big city." And we don't want to return.

Sooner or later, Florida residents are bound to get a call or letter from relatives or friends, saying they are coming for a visit.

For many years, I have noticed that first-time Florida tourists appear shocked that we must work for a living the same as they do.

And combining the various attractions with our guest year after year, can become quite boring, as well as expensive.

It's hot down here. But we have air-conditioned homes and automobiles. They do not. It is our experience to keep "our cool" is an expensive comfort.

Touring friends and families may ask advice before pulling the over-loaded family vehicle out of the garage for the big trip south. You lose out a few tips, but they get a traffic citation in Georgia anyhow.

The beach usually takes top priority on the "must" list of things to do in Florida. You warn them to take the Florida sun in small doses. They don't listen, and spend three days nursing severe sunburn.

And the late afternoon picnic that lasts until about dark when the mosquitoes and other insects are in full flight - and hungry - are dreadful. The bites are painful on bare sunburned skin. But you did caution the visitors to wear long pants and a long-sleeved shirt.

The attractions, hostesses and estates are not for free. An average four-member family could nearly face bankruptcy in two weeks time. And in some cases, the vacationers' money runs out before their time does. But they say they will save more money and return next year. And many keep their promise.

We take our related Florida lifestyle for granted. We have been accustomed to the good life. But we also work hard for the luxuries and comforts.

After listening to some of the problems of metropolitan living, in comparison, I will have to agree that living in Central Florida is being on vacation.

Who are the New Reactionaries? Broadly speaking, they are the growing number of people whose self-interest is wrapped up in big government and a brutal public trough.

In California this means those elected officials who have settled into the comfortable routine of voting taxpayer money to special interest groups who will vote for them in turn; powerful public employee unions; the teachers' union; unions (such as consumerists and the more extreme environmentalists) who favor ever greater government regulation; bureaucrats; and the Rhinelanders of coalition, the League of Women Voters.

What the New Reactionaries are for is an endless flow of tax money into the public coffers for them to control. What they are against is C-H-A-N-G-E.

"Jarvis," as the measure is called by Californians (after its crusty author), would change all that. By limiting property taxes to one percent, it would prevent requiring a two-thirds majority vote in state and local governments to enact new taxes, it would force elected officials, from the state legislature down to the local municipal government, to be more adventurous.

That's about the last thing they want to do. Putting a lid on government spending is as much what proposition 13 is about as it is property tax relief.

As if to prove the point, the New Reactionaries are getting more hysterical as election day approaches. Daily, the press carries reports of "doomsday" budgets concocted by public officials. Predictably, these budgets call for increases in police and fire departments, school systems if Proposition 13 passes.

The idea, of course, is to stampede the voters into rejecting it.

In Los Angeles, county school administrators sent notices to parents of the county's 1,000 handicapped students telling them summer session would be cancelled if "Jarvis" passes. Outraged school board members pointed out there would be more than enough money, regardless of the election. But, too late - the notices had already gone out (at taxpayers' expense of course). Such tactics remind one of Cicero's phrase, "the arrogance of officialdom," which they have become routine for the New Reactionaries.

A reading of letters to the editors in major newspapers in the state suggests that the voters aren't buying the scare campaign. The middle class is as close to taking to the streets in revolt against high taxes as it has ever been, and voting for Proposition 13 is the handiest way for them to express it.

If it passes, pro-tax limitation forces in newspapers state that such a move is "a signal to 'The Spenders' everywhere that they have reached 'critical mass' - the point at which their inertia would be unstopable."

U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young also has taken a softer approach to the Soviets and Cubans in Africa, much more in line with the views of the moderate African leaders.

Cartier says he doesn't buy that approach, but concedes Soviet "abuse of human rights" and involvement in Africa could make it more difficult to win ratification of a SALT agreement in the Senate.

In adopting a more realistic approach to the Soviets, Carter appears to be more in step with Americans than with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and other State Department officials who do not believe that the time has come for strong retaliation.

Cartier says he doesn't buy that approach, but concedes Soviet "abuse of human rights" and involvement in Africa could make it more difficult to win ratification of a SALT agreement in the Senate.

In adopting a more realistic approach to the Soviets, Carter appears to be more in step with Americans than with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and other State Department officials who do not believe that the time has come for strong retaliation.

U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young also has taken a softer approach to the Soviets and Cubans in Africa, much more in line with the views of the moderate African leaders.

ANGLE-WALTERS

A 'Civil' Servant Misnomer

WASHINGTON - If the federal government functioned the way it is supposed to, members of Congress could spend their time writing laws. That, after all, is the constitutional role assigned them by the Founding Fathers.

The Founding Fathers, however, never envisioned a bureaucracy so huge and hidebound that it often fails to function at all until and unless some U.S. senator or House member blasts a pathway through barricades which ordinary citizens find insurmountable.

The task of dynamiting a route through governmental red tape is called "case work" on Capitol Hill, and it consumes an inordinate amount of time, energy and taxpayers' money in every congressional office.

What is so aggravating about this case work is the fact that most of it would be unnecessary if civil servants performed their jobs with a modicum of civility, concern and common sense in the first place.

Consider, for instance, the experience of two California schools which applied to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare last fall for a couple of very modest grants.

In the first case, a high school in rural Delano, Calif. (population 15,350) spent months preparing its very first government grant request, in which it asked for $10,000 for a "community education program."

The application was put in the mail and duly postmarked on Nov. 9, 1977 - six days before the deadline for submission. Thanks to the Postal Service's "efficiency," it arrived at HEW on Nov. 17 - two days after the deadline. The bureaucrats promptly rejected it, returning it unopened and unread.

A week earlier, the same HEW office had likewise summarily rejected a $102,000 grant application from San Francisco State University, which hoped to set up a training program for personnel teaching handicapped children.

San Francisco State had the error of entrusting its application to the tender mercies of the Postal Service. To insure that its request reached HEW by the 4 p.m. deadline on Nov. 9, the university sent it by commercial air express.

There was only one problem. During the 3,000-mile trip, an engine on the airplane caught fire, forcing an emergency landing for repairs in El Paso, Texas. The application arrived one and a third business hours late.

Both schools naturally appealed the arbitrary HEW rejection of their applications, and even went to the trouble of providing sworn affidavits from the Delano postmaster and officials of the air express company attesting to the "acts of God" (or the Postal Service) which caused them to miss the deadline.

But their appeals fell on deaf ears. So they enlisted the aid of Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., who happens to be the Senate's majority whip and a very busy legislator as well.

Cranston, after checking the facts in the two cases, fired off an angry letter to HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. last Feb. 27 protesting the "icy blast of federal hardness" the California schools had encountered.

Another militant group, the Americans for Effective Law Enforcement, also echoes Vigore's views of law-and-order. Putting their money where his mouth is, he raised $100,000 for the cause but slipped off 10 percent into his own corporate pocket. The next year, the group raised money without his help and reduced the overhead by 65 percent.

The Fifty-Two Association, a New York veterans group, used RAVCO to raise funds from 1971 through 1974. Vigore's table averaged only 50 percent a year in the group's report. RAVCO and reduced its fund raising costs to 21 percent.

Vigore has helped himself to such a large share of the pie that some states have stopped him from collecting for charities within their borders. Another state has severely limited what he can earn from solicitations.

New York state auditors examined the 1974 books of the Korsan Cultural Freedom Foundation, a Vigore client, which operates under the benediction of the controversial Rev. Sun Myung Moon. The auditors discovered that the foundation raised $1.5 million from charitable Americans who thought they were helping needy Asians. But only a scant 6 percent of the money was distributed to the needy.

Of RAVCO's role, New York Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz said: "The disproportionate and wholly inadequate expenditure for program services was a direct result of the unconscionably high fees of $800,000 deburred to professional fund raiser Vigore."

Another New York audit found Vigore took over the fund raising in February; the auditors found that 94 percent of the money for the full year went to the fund raiser. In 1972, Vigore wound up with 81.4 percent of the money that was raised.

In Ohio, Vigore was banned for a time from soliciting until he registered as a fund raiser. Last November, he signed an agreement with Ohio that limits his take to between 25 and 6 percent.

Government solicitation in Connecticut, New Jersey and Pennsylvania have told us that Vigore is forbidden to solicit in their states.

Fraud Charges Dropped

TUSKEGEE, Ala. (UPI) — Bank fraud indictments against Florida financier E.A. Gregory, his wife and three of his associates were dismissed Friday on the recommendation of District Attorney Tom Young.

Gregory and his wife, Donna Jo, were accused of accepting bank loans within 10 days of the failure of the First Bank of Macon County in Nottasuga. The Gregorlys formerly controlled the bank, which the state Banking Department closed in January.

Circuit Court Judge James A. Avary dismissed a total of 56 counts of bank fraud against the Gregorlys and the other three defendants in the mailroom.

A Look At The Peck (ing) Order Of Writing

Don't Tell A Story; But Show A Story

By JOAN MADISON

On an ordinary school day, they loved coming to this room—the kindergarten through second graders at Lake Mary Elementary School.

But today was a special day.

They filed into the library, wide-eyed with excitement—for today they would meet a "real, live, author."

And there he stood waiting for them.

He looked like a cowboy, some thought. He wore a Western shirt with the collar turned up, leather boots, and perched upon his head was his trademark, a Western hat with a wide trim and deep crown. He had the bluest eyes, like Paul Newman, and he was, Oh, so tall—6'4".

The students looked at him with awe and respect; however, within minutes author Robert Newton Peck, writer of 23 children's books, had struck a responsive chord with them and they were laughing and interacting with him.

As he spoke in glowing, endearing terms of his first grade teacher, Miss Winifred Kelly, many young students smiled with understanding.

To Miss Kelly who taught the 28 first through sixth graders in his little country school, Peck attributes his literary success.

The room was quiet and all listened attentively as Peck recited his first literary creation, "Sarah's Wondrous Thing," a poem about his Tabby cat and her kittens. He had the students in the palm of his hand.

Only 15 minutes of the precious hour were allocated to the younger students and the places where they sat Indian-style on the carpeted floor of the library were now filled with third through fifth graders who inched up to him as they warmed up to his imposing figure.

Again, he couldn't resist talking of the woman who so influenced his life, Miss Kelly.

"My parents were illiterate," he told them, and "Miss Kelly would read to us by the hour—'Wind of the Willow,' 'Lady of the Lake,' 'Franklin,' 'Tom Sawyer,' 'Huckleberry Finn'—of course, the good stuff hadn't been written yet—" he teased, eyes the stack of books bearing his name, his blue eyes sparkling as he winked.

Many of the characters in his books are patterned after his childhood friends—the girl he was "sweet" on, Norma Jean Baseli, the toughest kid in the school—surprise, it was a girl, Janice Riber, and the one loved most by the students—Soup.

Peck wrote three books about Soup. "I had a best pal," he told them. "His name was Luther Westley Vinson. He hated his name. Guess I've never met a kid who didn't hate his name at one time or the other," said the author as many children affirmatively shook their heads.

"So," he continued, "When we were playing, Mrs. Vinson would call, 'Lu, Lu, Lu, Lu' and he wouldn't go home because we didn't want the kids to know his name was Luther. So Mom Vinson started calling 'Soups on' and then just 'Soup.' And so, he continues, that's how we started to calling Soup, Soup."

He talked to the students about the development of characters. "You never plan ahead of time; you never outline. You let your character dictate your plot."

"You know your characters so well, why, sometimes I

Losing Is Winning For Slim Mom Who's 'TOPS' In Florida

By DORIS DIETRICH
OURSELVES Editor

Margaret Mathews of DelBery is wearing a crown these days. And she says she could not feel more queenly.

From more than 400 TOPS (take off pounds sensibly) Clubs in Florida, Margaret was named the 1977 queen at a state convention in Lakeland.

She lost more weight during a designated period than any TOPS member.

Margaret said she had been overweight for 25 years, knew it and hated herself for it. "I bought diet products for 25 years," she said. "My husband got to the point that he could not stand to hear the word 'diet.'"

When Margaret joined TOPS in 1976, she weighed 233 pounds. Fourteen months later, she reached her goal of losing 100 pounds, and had dropped to 133.

Margaret said she had never adhered to a particular diet plan or product for very long, she was near desperation. Her husband, their four children and her sister were deeply concerned over her health and at her sister's suggestion, she discovered TOPS, a non-profit organization.

"My husband was less than enthused over the idea, but finally agreed to let me join. He felt that this was another waste of time and money. I agreed to drop out if I didn't succeed in losing weight," she said.

Margaret continued, "This time it was do or forever be fat!"

Margaret's youngest son, 15, became very ill. He had always wanted a slim, trim mom. "I knew all the pain my son was suffering, I could not suffer for him, but I could do something he wanted me to do—and that was to lose weight," she added.

Rotary Club Reaches Out To Aid Abused Children

Seminole County South Rotary Club members were addressed to learn, through one of their fellow Rotarians, the plight of four abused children—one with a broken arm—who were placed in a local foster home.

The first question asked of their fellow Rotarian was "how can we help?" and their immediate response was to dip into their pocketbooks to contribute over $200 for immediate needs, like shoes for the three girls ages 4, 6 and 8, and the 11-year-old boy.

Members with children supplied clothing; a doctor gave them a physical; a dentist took care of their dental needs—wherever a need arose, there was someone there to respond to it.

The little girls were thrilled to have their own shoes. It seems that they shared one worn pair of shoes. One girl would wear them in the morning to school; her sister got them in the afternoon.

The Rotarian overseeing all this reported to the membership that when he first saw the children they covered like frightened animals, but with just two weeks of love and attention showed upon them, they were friendly and smiling. He called the change in them "miraculous."

This heartwarming response to the children's needs was just one of the many times the members have responded to needs of others in the community.

SKATEBOARDER DEAR SKATEBOARDER: No, he's not being "fair," but I would like to see you help in compensating a book which recalls memories from our parents' first 30 years of marriage. On the enclosed sheet, we ask that you write me a memory or story that you have shared with them, and return it to me by April 28. We believe that the loving memories they have shared with you, their friends, would be the most treasured gift they could receive; therefore, we request that no other gift be sent.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby, 122 Lashy Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Two lucky people in one family are Sarah and Tammy Flores. Sarah (Tammy's mother) won $1,000 in a grocery store bingo contest.

"I was shocked! It was so easy," she said with a big smile. "I was very surprised to have actually won."

Tammy, a freshman at Lake Howell High School, received a merit award for outstanding achievement in physical education. "I didn't realize I'd done anything to earn an award," she said. "I was surprised and happy when they called my name."

The Carr family's visitors from Chicago are Shirley's mother Mary Handford and Pauline Ribbke, Shirley's grandmother.

"I have been really enjoying my grandsons Michael and Joshua," Mary said. "We have spent every day touring, swimming and sunning and having a wonderful time."

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Enjoyed the letter from the doctor's wife who could easily spare a day a week to "help her husband out at the office," but didn't want to appear bossy or nosy.

I've worked in offices for 24 years, and will never take a job where I know the wife "helps out" in the office. If she really wants to work in her husband's office, let her take the full-time. Most of these part-time office wives only want to know what's going on at the office, and they want to be free to go shopping, play tennis, attend clubs, etc.

The boss's wife can't possibly be involved as if she were just another employee in her husband's office.

Invariably the wife carries home bits of office gossip, which usually causes friction. And if the wife does not do something about it, she takes it out on him in bed!

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 16-year-old boy with a problem father. He fell off my skateboard and broke his nose, so he took my skateboard and threw it in the trash!

I was really good at skateboarding and never had a serious accident with one, but my father still won't let me skateboard anymore on account of his accident. All my friends are laughing at me.

On June 20, Registered Nurse Terri Watkins will speak on "Holding, Feeding, Burping, Diaper Changing, etc." and Cathy Jensen of the Seminole County South Library will talk on "Storytelling and Child Crafts."

For the final session, Captain Don Fritz of the Fire Department and Officer Abell will present "Emergency Situations."

If further information is desired, Officer Abell may be reached at 321-5700.

Congratulations to Patti and John Genervina on the birth of their 7th, 14 oz. daughter on May 29.

In And Around Longwood Couple Mark 25th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. William W. (Violet) Segrest were honored with a silver anniversary open house at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cleyon L. Malone of Sweetwater, Ochs.

The Segrests were married May 21, 1953, at the First Methodist Church of Orlando.

Among the 94 guests who shared in the anniversary celebration were the Segrests' three children, daughters Mrs. Paul Ray (Marcia) Hill and Mrs. Brian (Debbie) Grimmer; and son, Bret Segrest, who came from Gainesville where he is attending school.

Other out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wing of Valdosta, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Alwood of Indian Lake, Fla.; and Mr. and Mrs. Lou Strohmeyer of Davis.

Special guests included Mr. and Mrs. Carl Cramer of Leesburg. Mrs. Cramer was one of Mrs. Segrest's high school teachers. There was a bit of nostalgia as Mrs. Cramer showed pictures of Mrs. Segrest from the high school yearbook.

Also attending were several of Mr. Segrest's brothers and sisters. "We find that with the passing of each year, our marriage gets better," say Mr. and Mrs. Segrest. That must be true, because during one photograph session they had to be told to stop laughing.

Wife of the late Miram W. Shannon Sr., she is a member of the Pine Crest Baptist Church. She has 15 children, 20 grandchildren and 18 great grandchildren.

During their Memorial Holiday weekend visit to Florence, S.C., Francis and Catherine Ford enjoyed a "good visit" with their daughter Kitty Lockair and her four children.

The trip was an occasion of "togetherness" when Catherine's sisters and their husbands, Elsie and Lacy Jackson from Rock Hill, S.C., and Terese and Willie Morris from Georgetown, S.C., drove to Florence to visit the Yorks.

"Seeing everyone was so nice," Catherine said. "I was happy that we could all get together. We had a real good time."

Meanwhile Francis, who is a retired Navy Chief and a CBS sport, met a CBS buddy in Florence whom he's been communicating with.

"One day at home Francis heard someone on the CB from Florence and they began keeping in touch via radio. They enjoyed getting acquainted face to face," Catherine said.

Both couples are members of the Seminole County Young Republicans of which Patti is now president.

Sandy said that the Seminole County group won many honors at the convention. "We were very happy when Bobby Bentley was chosen one of the Top Five Young Republicans in the state."

She added that Bobby is a past president of the club and a candidate for the Florida House of Representatives.

For Family Of Nine: Camping Together Caused Closeness

By ELDA NICHOLS Herald Correspondent

The Howard Harrison family, of Sanford, is experiencing a happy, hectic time, with two daughters graduating from two different universities this month.

Colleen, 22, will graduate from law school at the University of Florida, on June 10, with Margie, a year younger, graduating from the University of South Florida, on June 11, she will have an exciting three months ahead of her.

"I'll be going to Istanbul, Turkey on June 26 in a type of foreign students overseas job exchange. The reception committee will help in finding me a place to stay and figure out transportation. I majored in Marketing, and this will be a sort of internship. I'll be working for Beka Ticaret, in the various departments," Margie said.

Margie will receive a weekly stipend for her work. Matched by computers, for training and jobs, Margie said. "I didn't care where they sent me, except I didn't want to go to Africa!"

Her goal is to get into International Marketing. She said, "After returning, I hope to get a job, probably in Tampa, in market analysis."

Margie was vice president of AISECC, an International Club for Business Students, and was "Sweetheart" for the Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity for 1978. She is a member of Delta Delta Delta Sorority.

Colleen, who attended Bishop Moore High School, had an early admission to college and finished in three years.

She said, "I'm so excited over finally getting out of school! Seems like I've been in school forever!"

As a member of the ROTC for four years, while an undergraduate, Colleen will join the Air Force in January, as a Captain, after taking her bar exams.

"I hope to go to California for two years, and then the Philippines," she said.

Law school was Colleen's objective for a long time. "I majored in political science. It's a good field and there's always a challenge," she said.

Plugging her ROTC membership, Colleen admitted, "It was a terrific experience. You learn management, leadership and get in a lot of public speaking. It's all valuable training."

Colleen was on the Dean's List many times

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

Here is a cute idea, I think — and practical, too. I was at a friend's house and admired the holder on her sink in which she had her two sink stoppers, pan scraper and sponge.
 Anyway, she said, "Would you like one?" and proceeded to make me one in less than five minutes.
 She took an empty one-pound coffee can, lined it inside and out with felt, then took one of her plastic, colored scrubbers and unrolled it.

It unrolls to a "tube" and she just slid it over the can, adjusting it to a perfect fit. Then she snipped an artificial flower off a bouquet in her house and attached it with a rubber band, hiding the band under the top roll.
 I got more compliments on it and thought to myself, "Man! I was I able to count my blessings.

 Gave me such a peaceful feeling I must have immediately fallen asleep because that was the last thing I remembered next morning.
 H.B.

DEAR HELOISE:
 I am a teacher and have found cardboard tubes from toilet paper rolls are excellent to use when children carry home papers that they don't want folded.
 Rolled papers that are tied or rubber-banded get very damaged from school to home.

I also use paper towel tubes for storing posters and calendar pictures.
 M.G.

leaving the inner perforated section intact. Took off the handle and patched the two small holes to make them leak-proof, then sprayed with bronze paint.
 The plant has been doing better than ever. I think it fills the air space between the soil and the outer solid wall of the planter.
 Mrs. R.W. Showalter

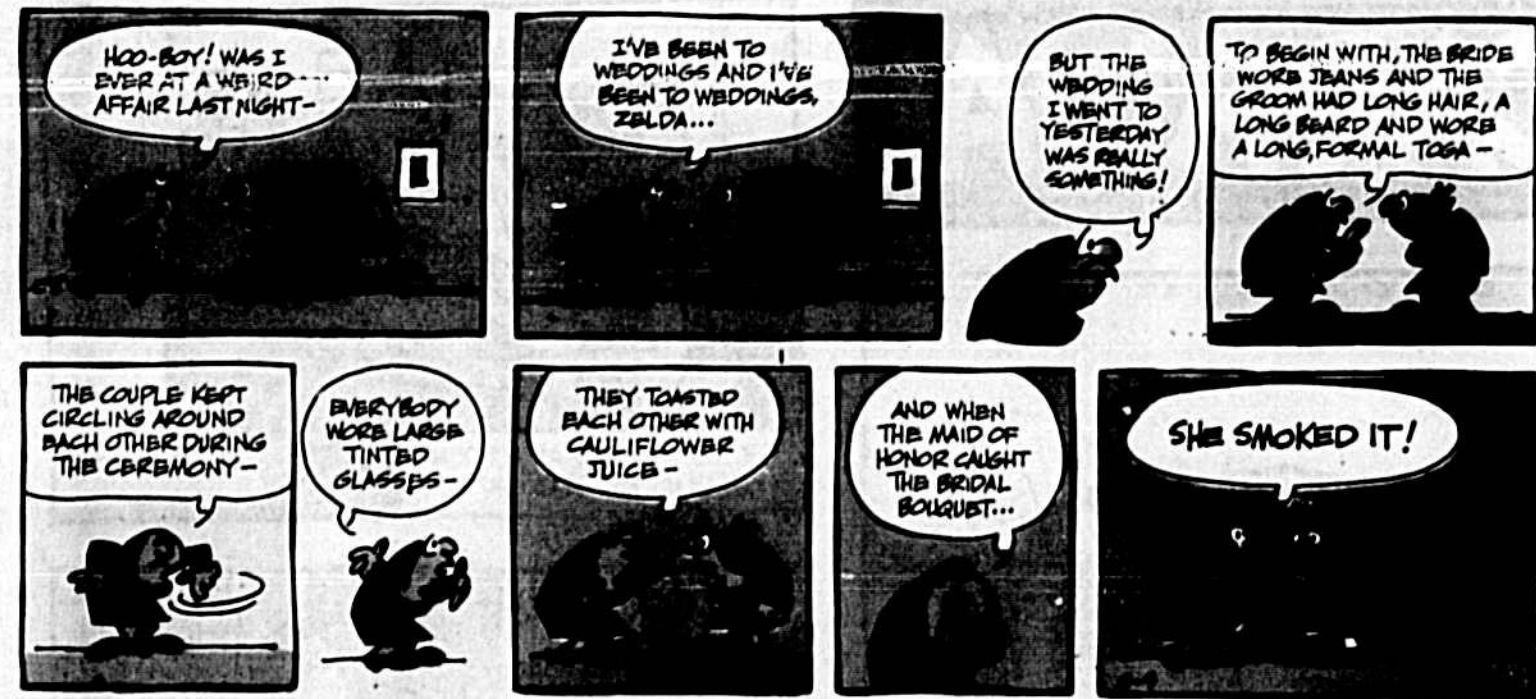

DEAR HELOISE:
 I would like to tell you what I did to organize and utilize better the space under my sink.

I had shelves built along the side of the cabinet wall underneath the sink. The size of the shelves will depend on how much room one has on either side of the plumbing, etc.
 I find mine are so convenient to store long boxes of foil wrap, pet beds, pie pans — the list could go on and on. There is still room underneath the sink for various cleaning products or whatever else we are accustomed to storing there.

Sheriff Polk Undergoes Open Heart Surgery

By DENNIS FEOLA
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County Sheriff John Polk, 46, after undergoing 4½ hours of open heart surgery this morning was resting comfortably in the intensive care unit at North Florida Regional Hospital in Gainesville.

According to Sheriff's department spokesman John Spolski, doctors at the hospital have diagnosed his condition as blockage of two heart arteries.

Dr. Arthur Nesmith, formerly of Sanford, performed the double coronary artery bypass operation which began at 8 a. m. today.

Spolski said this is the first time the sheriff has ever experienced heart trouble. He said Polk wasn't feeling well last week and local doctors suggested he go to the Gainesville Hospital.

"He had no idea it was his heart," Spolski said.

The announcement of Polk's condition came at 12:30 p. m. "The surgery went beautifully and he is doing well," a sheriff's department spokesman said.

The sheriff drove to Gainesville Friday afternoon. Spolski said his entire family is at the hospital today.

Polk will spend about two days in the critical care unit and a total of two or three weeks at the hospital before returning to his Sanford home for a three to four week recovery period, he said in a memo released today to sheriff's department employees.

Polk was a trooper with the Florida Highway Patrol before winning over appointed sheriff Peter Milliot. He has been reelected twice since that initial victory.

Chief Deputy Duane Harrell assumed Polk's duties until the sheriff returns.

SEMINOLE COUNTY SHERIFF JOHN E. POLK

A Last Ditch Pitch Made For New Jail

By MAX ERKLETTIAN
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County Sheriff's officials made a final pitch for full funding of a new jail proposed for construction at the county's Five Points complex today, prior to a county commission decision on the jail set for Tuesday.

When the news conference got underway this morning Sheriff John Polk was undergoing open heart surgery in a Gainesville Hospital.

Chief Deputy Duane Harrell, who will assume the sheriff's duty in Polk's absence, directed the news conference. Also attending the news conference was Jail Consultant George Proudfoot.

Harrell told reporters Polk submitted a memo restating "certain pertinent areas" he had covered in a position paper to the board last week. That position paper and the follow-up memo called for the commission to fund the full jail program.

Standard Construction Co., Maitland, submitted the low bid on the jail project May 3 of $4,798,000. That was about $1.4 million more than county officials had anticipated and $1,066,130 more than federal money provided for the project.

The commission voted last week to study the possibility of trimming the project to cut the cost. The county's jail construction committee has been probing that possibility.

However, no estimate is available of how much could be saved by scaling down the plans, according to Proudfoot. Standard's figures on the bid will hold until June 10, said Proudfoot.

The federal money, provided through Economic Development grants, will be available until June 16, said Proudfoot. At that time, if the county has not committed itself to construction of the jail, the funds could be withdrawn. Originally, the EDA funds were scheduled to run out last Thursday. However, the county was granted an extension.

"Right now we have one-fourth of 'C' pod in a dormitory style to house trustees and work release prisoners," said Proudfoot.

Ex-Sen. Montoya Dies In Hospital

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Former Sen. Joseph Manuel Montoya, a Democrat who worked his way through the political ranks in New Mexico and came to national attention as a member of the Senate Watergate Committee, died today. He was 62.

Montoya had been hospitalized at Georgetown University hospital since early May for treatment of gastro-intestinal bleeding. Two operations failed to reverse the condition. He suffered kidney failure June 3. Montoya's son, Joseph Jr., said his father died this morning.

Montoya launched a four-decade political career in the Great Depression, winning election to the New Mexico House in 1936 while enrolled in law school at Georgetown University, in Washington.

He served two terms in the New Mexico House, three terms in the state senate and four terms as lieutenant governor before winning election to Congress in 1957 at the age of 41.

Montoya won election to the Senate in 1964, defeating four-time New Mexico Gov. Edwin L. Mechem, the man appointed to fill a vacancy created by the death in 1962 of Sen. Dennis Chavez.

Montoya won re-election in 1970, defeating conservative Republican Anderson Carter who enjoyed last-minute campaign help from President Nixon.

DAVID FLINT AND ONE OF HIS STUDENTS

His Students: Parolees, Criminals

By DENNIS FEOLA
Herald Staff Writer

"Whatever The Mind Of Man Can Conceive And Believe — The Mind Can Achieve."

Believe that and you're off and running in the world of positive thinkers. The principles of positive thinking are not all new, how they are being applied in Seminole County, however, is relatively new and experimental.

David Flint is a 30-year-old disciple of positive thinking or positive mental attitude and the Longwood resident is attempting to pass on the philosophy to the people he works with: Those on parole, probation or in a pretrial intervention program.

"What I like to do the first two nights is show them they are where they are because they put themselves there," Flint said. "Then I try to help train their minds to think in a positive way. To set goals, develop self-confidence."

"To tune-in to the positive elements of their surroundings," Flint said. The course is offered for eight weeks at Seminole Community College (SCC). It is co-sponsored by the school and the Sanford office of probation and parole.

A graduate of the most recent course offering — there have been three at SCC with a total of 60 students — 20-year-old John Smith (not his real name) was described by Flint as one of his more successful students. "A completely changed person," he said.

"I used to feel the world owed me something," Smith said. "I thought it was the judge's fault and my lawyer's fault I was in jail."

"They would have never seen me if it wasn't my own fault in the first place," he said. Smith, who is on probation for attempted burglary, said he has quit smoking since taking the course, has developed a more determined attitude at work, gets along better with his parents and even has a new attitude towards policemen.

"I used to give the police a hard time when they stopped me. But, I pay taxes too. It's crazy to give a man money and give him a hard time too," he said.

"I really don't think there's anyone in the world who could take this course and not benefit a little bit," Smith said. "It's sort of like driver's education. It doesn't make you a perfect driver, but it gives you a foundation to work on."

Textbook for the course is "Success

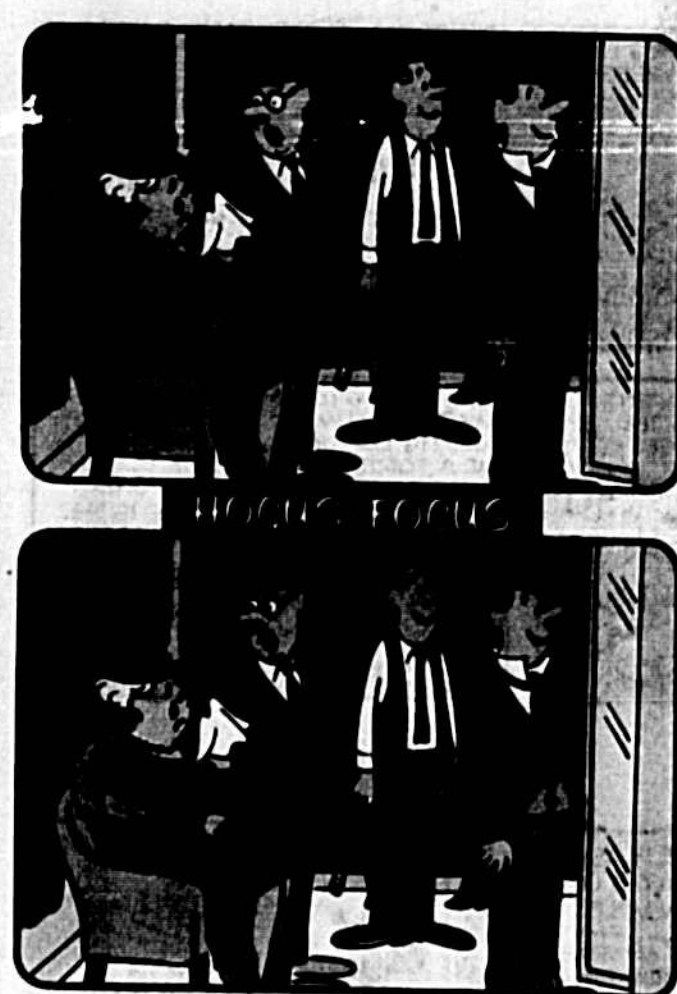

'It lets them get out hostilities and tensions'

Through a Positive Mental Attitude" by Napoleon Hill and W. Clement Stone. Flint said the program stresses daily reading of this and other positive thinking books. The course also features weekly guest speakers, usually someone associated with the criminal justice system such as a public defender or prosecutor, who are questioned by students after a brief presentation.

"It lets them get out hostilities and tensions against the system," Flint said. The program supervisor said about half the students attend classes as a condition of their probation or parole. Flint said a minimum of 75 percent of the students are affected in a positive way by the class.

In fact, Flint said, since he began the program in Deland more than five years ago he knows of only one person who has returned to prison. He said no one who has taken the course in Seminole County has gone back to jail.

"The regional office was getting books for this type of program so I volunteered," Flint said. "We've gotten to the point now where it's made all the difference in the world in my thinking and my success."

COACH RALEY
...taken toll

School Sports Heroes: Then And Now

Most of the coaches in Seminole County disagree. "They say booze and drugs have changed these kids," says Joe Montgomery, football coach at Oviedo High. "I don't believe it. They had booze and drugs when my granddaddy was in high school. Granted, use of them is more widespread today, but the problem deals primarily with discipline. It just isn't what it used to be. Kids have changed. They have so many more distractions than we had."

Jim Raley, who advocates a strong brand of old-fashioned rah-rahism with his Lake Brantley High football squad, also sees a major difference from days past. "Kids still want to be a part of something that is good," he says. "The problem is that parents have changed. So many of them are divorced and mom has to work. It has taken its toll."

I walked the halls of one of our schools the other day and couldn't help remarking to myself that dress and language are most evident changes. Talking to kids, you discover also that they are more open than my classmates were. Perhaps a sign of the times. And you can't always pick out the athletes. Near as I can recall, there was only one boy in my class who didn't utilize his size and athletic abilities, but he was a Future Farmer and hurried home after school to work the family farm.

I drew a zero on my first guess on the pair of muscular youths sprawled out on the bench outside the gym. "Track?," I said, pointing a finger in their direction. "You guys run track, don't you?"

They looked at each other in a puzzled way that instantly told me I was wrong.

"Well, what sport do you guys play?" I prodded.

"Two mickers and a yawn later, one of them informed me they were surfers, not athletes, but that they could do things on a board the best athlete in school couldn't."

"Anyway, man," the taller one added, "surfing is where the chicks are."
