NOTE - Very smart long gloves for young ladies. Are only worn on the arms and hands. Trimmings with buttons.

Two soldiers were walking along the highway leading to the fort. They were talking in low voices. As they passed where I stood, one said, "If a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush, what is Fort Leavenworth?"

It was after the surrender of Yorktown. Two Continental troops were quietly wending their way home after the war. One asked the other, "When Washington and his generals dined together, do you know what Lafayette? Maybe it was Corn, Wallis!

Origin of Automobile.
The word automobile comes from two words, one Greek and the other Latin. The two words are auto and mobile. The former is derived from the Greek autos meaning self and the latter from the Latin mobilis, adverb, movable. This is originally derived from the Latin verb, moveo, movere, movi, motus, meaning to move. We are unable to say who first suggested the name for self-propelled vehicles.

Fish Fatten on Alfalfa.
The unusual size of some game fish caught in irrigation ditches in Washington led to the belief that they had fattened themselves by eating alfalfa and an investigation proved the theory correct.

Today's Short Story

Spirit of the Chamoni

"AND this is the place?"
"It is."
"Where is the ghost?"
"The ghost here is only to be seen by children. They describe it as a woman raking leaves. When she looks up at them they see only a skull instead of a face. She may be raking over there now. Yet we cannot see her."
Annette, who was with me looked at me with a frightened expression. We were in the valley of Chamoni surrounded by snowy peaks, among which Mont Blanc rose highest. Hearing of the legend I had engaged a guide to conduct us to the spot the ghost was said to inhabit.
"Your children are about," I said to the guide, "are doubtless under the influence of the story. Imagination paints the image on the retina of the child's eye."
The guide shook his head negatively. "If here will bring a child here who has never heard of the legend he will know better."
"That is a proposition which meets my concurrence. An American family arrived at the hotel this morning, among them a little girl of seven. What do you say, Annette? Shall we make the test with her?"
"We will bring the child here," I added, then turning to the guide and Herman, if she sees the ghost I will give you an American gold eagle for a memento of the occasion."
"Thanks, merr," I consider myself richer by that amount."
We succeeded in getting permission from the child's parents the next afternoon to take her to walk with us. I felt sure that if spirituality would enable her to discern the ghost she would see it. She was like a wren from spirit and large dreamy eyes, a wonder case. I would call them the face of a child. Madonna sensitive lips, the figure of a sprite. She walked with us in silence, treading the ground so lightly that I sometimes wondered if she touched it at all. Annette could not keep her eyes off her, seemingly enthralled by her, though our quest may have had much to do with that.
As we drew near the spot we sought Annette weakened. I saw in her expression that she feared we would have evidence of the specter's presence. The child was walking before us, and Annette, sidling toward me, laid her hand on my arm, as before this time clutching it in terror.
We stood on the ground we had occupied the day before, looking out on the spot Herman had referred to when he said, "She may be raking over there now, looking at the mountains, the valleys, anything, everything that made up the view."
"Herman has lost his eagle," I said in a low voice to Annette. "She sees nothing unusual."
"Thank heaven!" was the whispered reply.
"What a desolate spot!" I remarked aloud. "Not a living thing here but ourselves."
"Yes, there is," said the child. "There's a woman over there raking dead leaves."
I felt a convulsive grip on my arm. I knew Annette needed support, and I put my arm about her to steady her. I confess I was startled myself.
"Where?" I asked of the child.
"Over there," pointing. "She sees us." "There are only holes where the cars should be."
"Oh, how away!"
It was Annette who wailed the words. But she had no power to go. My plan had worked too well. Its object to excite in her that craving for protection which would throw her into my arms, had succeeded but I feared the shock.
That was a long while ago. Annette is my wife but I have never ceased to regret that I uncovered her heart in a way so dangerous. She was long in recovering from the shock and even now I do not dare refer to the matter. An estimation of the wonder has come to me. I have no theory concerning it and don't wish any. All I am is that I and Annette may forget it.

Drawing Room With Walls Finished In Natural Wood

A NOVEL way of arranging window hangings is illustrated here. The long wide windows have the upper panes of tinted art glass. The lower panes are on a brass rod just below the pane and fall to the floor. Side curtains of silk may be drawn over them. This room is handsomely finished in mahogany. Furniture and walls and ceiling are carried out in this wood.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE PERIL.
I am led to make a few remarks on woman suffrage. It is a beautiful dream that female suffrage will purify politics, but the vital and important thing for us to consider is the effect on women themselves. We had better endure the evils of corruption in politics and the teachers in our government than bring about a condition which will mar the beauty and dim the luster of the glorious womanhood with which we have been furnished. I know the demand for suffrage on the part of women is growing too fast for our legs like me to stop it except possibly in the south and New England where conservatism is more strongly entrenched than anywhere else in the country. I sincerely believe that the usefulness and goodness of woman vary inversely as the extent of her participation in politics. I believe she will improve politics, but ultimately politics will destroy her. And when our good women are no longer to be found the doom of the republic is near. —Senator Ben Tillman

WOULD YOU BE YOUNG AGAIN?
Would you be young again?
So would not I?
One tear to memory given
Onward I'd lie
Life's dark flood forded o'er,
All but at rest on shore
Say, would you plunge once more,
With home so nigh?
If you might woud you now
Retrace your way?
Wander through stormy wilds,
Paint and astray?
Night's gloomy watches fled,
Morning all beaming red,
Hope's smiles around us shed,
Heavenward away?
Where, then, are those dear ones
Our joy and delight?
Dear and more dear, though now
Hidden from sight?
Where they rejoice to be,
There is the land for me
Fly, time, fly speedily!
Come, life and light!
—Lady Salmre.

TENDERNESS.
So soon as one's heart is tender it is weak. When it is beating so warmly against the breast, and the throat is, as it were, tied tightly, and one strives to press the tears from one's eyes and feels an incomprehensible joy as they begin to flow, then we are so weak that we are fettered by chains of flowers, not because they have become strong through any magic chain, but because we tremble lest we should tear them asunder.—Goethe

Join The Herald in building a new hotel.

Now is the accepted time to start that new hotel in order to accommodate the thousands who would like to locate here next winter.

Representative Goldstein wants the state to carry its own insurance and this idea could be followed by a state fire insurance company.

City council is to be congratulated upon the purchase of good paving brick laid down here for $28.00 per thousand. Some saving there.

House in Sanford named the "Kum Inn." Probably the annex is styled "Heeresyore Bill." Palm Beach Post.

The Herald believes that the local school board are doing all in their power to conserve the people's interests and save the taxpayers' money and their plans for the future should receive the careful consideration of the citizens. No need to fly off at a tangent and become hysterical and sentimental. We need more school buildings and as new buildings are impossible at this time it is absolutely necessary to use the buildings that we now possess and utilize all the space.

The Herald hopes to have something tangible to offer in the matter of a new hotel building in the next issue. If there is a chance to have that new hotel we expect every citizen to do his duty and the new hotel will be built. The most important matter that now confronts the people of this city at the present time is the building of a new hotel and this idea is paramount. Let nothing take your mind off the hotel proposition. It must be built and should be started by the first day of June. Are you with us?

Says the Litchfield Hill News Herald. Not long ago a man came into this office and stopped his paper because he said it was always printing a lot of things about the same people and he said he was sick of it. Now when something goes wrong with the country the government appoints a commission to investigate and find out what is the matter, and the first thing a commission investigates is the man who made the holler to see if the holler was a reasonable holler. So we appointed a commission consisting of ourselves, to investigate this man. We just followed the man's career ever since we knew him. The first thing that happened to that man was that he was born, but he had nothing to do with it. However, we mentioned him, although his parents were entitled to the credit. When he was in his early twenties he got married. We mentioned that, including the name of the bride, the preacher, etc., in fact, we mentioned everything but the preacher's fee, which was not worth mentioning. We never mentioned the fact that he never won any premiums at the county fair because he never exhibited anything. We never mentioned his name in the list of committees, because he never attended anything. We never mentioned his name in the list of donors, because he never donated as much as a doughnut. We certainly have been treating this man shamefully, but we will agree to run a nice obituary when the time comes.

TRAIN REDUCTION
Several months ago the Atlantic Coast Line discontinued the local morning train between Sanford and Tampa. This train was the most valuable train, commercially considered, serving Orlando. Orlando merchants lost heavily when the train was taken off. The board of trade was about to take the matter to the railroad commission in protest when the commission forestalled action in this direction by announcing that the railroads had been allowed to reduce train service on account of reduced travel. Now it is announced that the Tampa Special is to be discontinued. It is to be resumed that this further reduction of the train service is done also with the consent and approval of the railroad commission. How far this cutting down of service is to be allowed is a question. The people seem to have nothing to do with it, although the Florida supreme court has held that it is incumbent upon the railroads to give at all times "the maximum" of service. The only earning that a railroad may be permitted is a legitimate percentage on the actual money invested. The net earnings of the Coast Line last year were in excess of fifteen million dollars. This doesn't indicate that the Coast Line is in any immediate danger of being thrown into the hands of a receiver on account of excessive service to its patrons. Reporter-Star.

Dollar Newspapers
A new paper in a neighboring town says a country paper can be published for one dollar per year. This is true, and there are several ways by which it is possible. One is to have a good income independent of the printing business; another is to set a few columns of long primer and fill the balance of the paper with patent medicine ads and boiler plate. There are a few papers in Florida that are not worth one dollar per year; most of them are well worth $1.50 per year and many are worth a great deal more. The newspaper business is much like any other kind of business. A good pair of shoes cost three or four dollars and yet a shoddy pair of shoes can be bought for less than a dollar, but that is no indication that they are really the cheapest. Wauchula Advocate.

More About Unions
Augusta, Me., April 19, 1915. Editor Herald: I have become somewhat interested in the discussion between C. C. Pearson and W. S. Price on organized labor which has appeared in your columns in the last few issues, and if you will grant me a bit of space I would like to add a few words. I am more interested in this because of my past affiliation with the carpenter's union of your city, of which I once had the honor to serve as its financial secretary, and because I expect yet to make Sanford my home. My argument will be both from the standpoint of union carpenter and a contractor. I will say that invariably we find our best mechanics and most thoroughly trained men in the ranks of organized labor. The reason for this is very plain. Before a carpenter can become a member of a union he must have had experience and training to a degree of proficiency that enables him to command a certain established wage. We have an apprentice system whereby an apprentice must work four years before he becomes a journeyman, during which time he is trained and fitted. The card which the union man carries is bona fide evidence that he is trained and that he is in reality a carpenter.

The fundamental principles of unionism are to bring about the general uplift of the great mass of wage-earners. Organized labor has endeavored to lift the workers from life's lower levels to a higher sphere and make them better for better conditions. It has accomplished something along this line in the way of educating them to aspire to something better in life's surroundings. This is why we have asked for a shorter work day that the workers may have more time for thought and study that they may become better and happier citizens. It seems to protect them morally, physically and industrially, by infusing into them the sense of the dignity of labor and encourage them to attain the highest efficiency possible. This is why we find our better men in the union ranks.

How about the non-union man? He builds a barn or shingles a house or works a few months at this or that, then places himself on the market as a full fledged carpenter. With few exceptions he has had neither training or experience. The unsuspecting employer pays him the wage not of the inexperienced man that he is, but the wage of the trained union man, for invariably these men want the union wage. In this respect the non-union man is a parasite. He feeds upon the conditions which unionism has brought about. He is ever ready to accept these conditions yet he is never willing to contribute to the uplift of his fellow workmen. Has he ever made an effort to better the conditions of the laboring masses? No, but he stands idly by, always ready to take a

SANFORD FORTY YEARS AGO

SOME ITEMS TAKEN FROM THE MELONVILLE ADVERTISER PUBLISHED IN 1875

A copy of the Melonville Advertiser loaned to The Herald by Mrs. E. W. Peabody contains some interesting items of the early days. Among them is one that states the Sanford House is about to be constructed.

Mr. Cohen has carried with him to his stores at Maitland and Orlando an splendid stock of goods. No merchant in our county have established a larger or more secure reputation and character for integrity and sagacity than have Cohen Bros.

The hotel at Sanford is an enterprise of such importance to our county at large that we are pleased to refer to it in this place. We have been allowed to see the architect's design for the entire building and it is extremely handsome. It is certain that the principal wing of the main edifice is to be 150x50 feet, will be completed and opened by Christmas. We congratulate Mr. Sanford and the lake neighborhood upon the beginning of the work, and predict a brilliant future for the enterprise.

Count Wassalief sent some bananas, monsters, by far the largest we ever saw, and we have seen them growing in more eligible climes than Florida. One of these the Count sent weighed a pound, six weighed four pounds. They were grown at Villa Sura, Mr. Wassalief's place. We might have spoken of this gentleman before, along with Col. Whitner, Mr. Doyle and Mrs. Dr. Herndon as a successful cultivator of pineapples in a smaller way than that of Mr. Balsley and Mr. Gradick. And now comes Col. Whitner, who left at our house the finest and largest guavas ever grown in Florida, big as good sized apples, with few seeds and less of the peculiar odor of the fruit than we ever before observed. There was a superb sugar loaf pineapple with the guavas, worthy of the Tuxpan Plain.

The Hattie Barker is one of our very best boats. Prompt, reliable, obliging and courteous, her officers have made many friends on the St. Johns. Wednesdays and Saturdays are the Hattie Barker's days of arrival and departure. Apropos to this we hear that the new steamer Tusculwilla is rapidly building, and that the Starlight will resume business in a fortnight.

Some crates of most beautiful lemons, of a rare and superior variety have been brought to Melonville by our friend Gradick of Lake Harney. These lemons equal the best Sicilian fruit and far surpass any other Florida production of the kind we have ever seen.

The public schools of Orange county were opened on Monday last and the session will continue until April 1 1876. It is believed that the public funds will be ample for the sustenance of the schools. It is estimated that we have 1,200 school children. The school at Fort Reid is one of the highest grade in the county. It is desired to establish one of equal grade in Orlando.

There is never a week in which our admiration for the matchless climate of Orange county, its seasons and its vast and multiform adaptability for the perfect growth of plants is not augmented by some new observation. Ourself a newcomer, whose residence here is enforced by disease, we have carefully and cautiously compared Orange county's eligibility as a resort for sick people with the fitness of Madeira, Egypt, the south of France, Bermuda, the southwest part of Texas, Colorado, California, Minnesota and that district of Brazil so warmly recommended by Humboldt. A very extended interchange of opinions and experience with physicians in every part of the world, a personal acquaintance with several of these localities, and a comparison of recorded meteorological data, amply justify and confirm the writer in his belief of the very obvious superiority of Orange county over all the rest of the earth as an asylum for the tuberculous, scrofulous or rheumatic patient. Come and see sweet reader; thousands have come and seen and believed and had their lives prolonged.

DAD KNEW SYMPTOMS
SAW SIGNS OF SPRING IN BEHAVIOR OF SMALL SON.
Robert Might Try to Look Innocent, But Father Could Marshal Altogether Top Much Convincing Circumstantial Evidence.
"Robert!"
"Yes, sir."
"I am rather worried about you lately."
"Worried about me, pop?"
"Yes, worried about you!"
"Why, dad, I haven't done a thing to cause you worry."
"I admit that that fact is enough to worry me, but that is not what is worrying me just at present. It is what you have been doing, not what you have not been doing, that has got me guessing!"
"Has mother been telling you—?"
"No, your mother has been telling me nothing; I have just been noticing things. The other morning I noticed that you washed your neck and ears and combed your hair."
"Did, dad, don't I always do that every morning?"
"Not without being told."
"I don't see why that should worry you!"
"Did Robert, you also shined your shoes twice this last week, and your finger nails have been perfectly manicured during the entire week. Show them to me. There, didn't I tell you?"
"Aw, dad, that's nothing!"
"I am not so sure about that. You have got me to about half promise that I would let you don long pants on your next birthday. Does all this mean nothing?"
"What could it mean, dad?"
"Is it might mean a number of things. Another thing you have done to cause me uneasiness, is to ask me to let you change from your Sunday school to the Presbyterian Sunday school."
"Did, dad, the teacher there—?"
"Now, Robert, look me right in the eyes. Has the teacher got anything to do with it?"
"Aw, dad!"
"Did your mother tell me that this morning you required ten cents for a composition book, and that at noon, when she was over visiting with Mrs. Conklin, Allie came in from school with two perfectly good composition books which could not have cost less than a nickel apiece, and, in response to her mother's inquiries, told her that you gave them to her— Did you get a composition book today?"

"Nuh-uh, dad, I looked in my desk and saw I had a composition book."
"Did you look at Allie and saw she didn't have an orange to her name. Was that it?"
"Aw, how do you know, dad?"
"I bet I know what Sunday school Allie goes to!"
"Go do I, pop!"
"One of the strangest things I have noticed is that you chum with Allie's brother, and you always told me he was a sissy."
"Did I didn't understand him, dad. He is all right when you get to know him."
"I have noticed that having a nice little sister, with blue eyes and frizzly hair, and pink hair ribbons, is enough to make any fellow all right!"
"Is that all, dad?"
"That's all I can think of just at present, my boy, except that those signs of spring certainly do make me want to go fishing!" Houston Post.

When Man "Goes West"
A soldier writing from the front asks what is the meaning of the soldier's curious phrase for death, "Going West." Can any reader suggest an answer to this question? Is "going west" a slang or is it a phrase that has grown up during the present war? If a postcard explanation were possible, the metaphor would be of value. As the sun goes west on the globe to its end, Henry put the thought in some of his finest lines.
Let me be gathered in my grave,
The sundown of my life to be.
Dismissing that soldier's interpretation, one can only guess that the phrase comes from America in the colonies. It is possible that we never heard of it in the eastern part of America, that going West was a slang phrase for dying, but considered from an eastern point of view as an equal misfortune. One who remembers that in this war, Austria, Australia and India are all making contributions of men and also their contributions of ships. Manchester Guardian.

Tinted Face Powders.

Of recent times the Parisiennes seem to have gone mad over tinted face powders and tinted wigs. The very latest idea is a pale lemon yellow face powder, which is supposed to give an extraordinary softness to the skin.

An artistic but highly unnatural eye-eyeliner pink rouge is in conjunction with the pale yellow powder, and the throat and neck are coated with flesh pink and pure white powder.

The lemon yellow and eyeliner pink makeup look effective on a fair haired woman who possesses a pair of dark gray eyes.

Lovely Eyelashes.

To produce sweeping, curling lashes daily attention is necessary. Get a soft brush made for the purpose and gently brush them twice a day. The last thing at night apply this eyelash cream: Sweet oil of almonds, one-half dram, simple tincture of benzoin, one-quarter dram; glycerin, one-half dram; lanolin, one-half dram; atlar of roses, one drop.

Softening Water.

If your skin is delicate and gets rough in the spring keep a fine muslin bag full of oatmeal on your washstand, and whenever you wash dip the bag into the water and squeeze it hard several times.

This is excellent for softening the water and keeps the hands and face smooth.

Far removed from simplicity and rejoicing in picturesque lines and materials are the fashion tendencies that predominate in millinery. Flowers and fruits, ostrich plumes and ribbons in every variety, are assembled and shown on hats large and small.

The supporting wires in the brim and crown are outlined with narrow velvet folds. A narrow velvet-covered bandeau rests on the hair with a small bow of black velvet ribbon nestling against it at the side.

A hat of sand-colored hemp braid and satin is shown at the left, with bow and hanging ends of velvet ribbon at the back and a wreath of bright flowers and foliage about the crown.

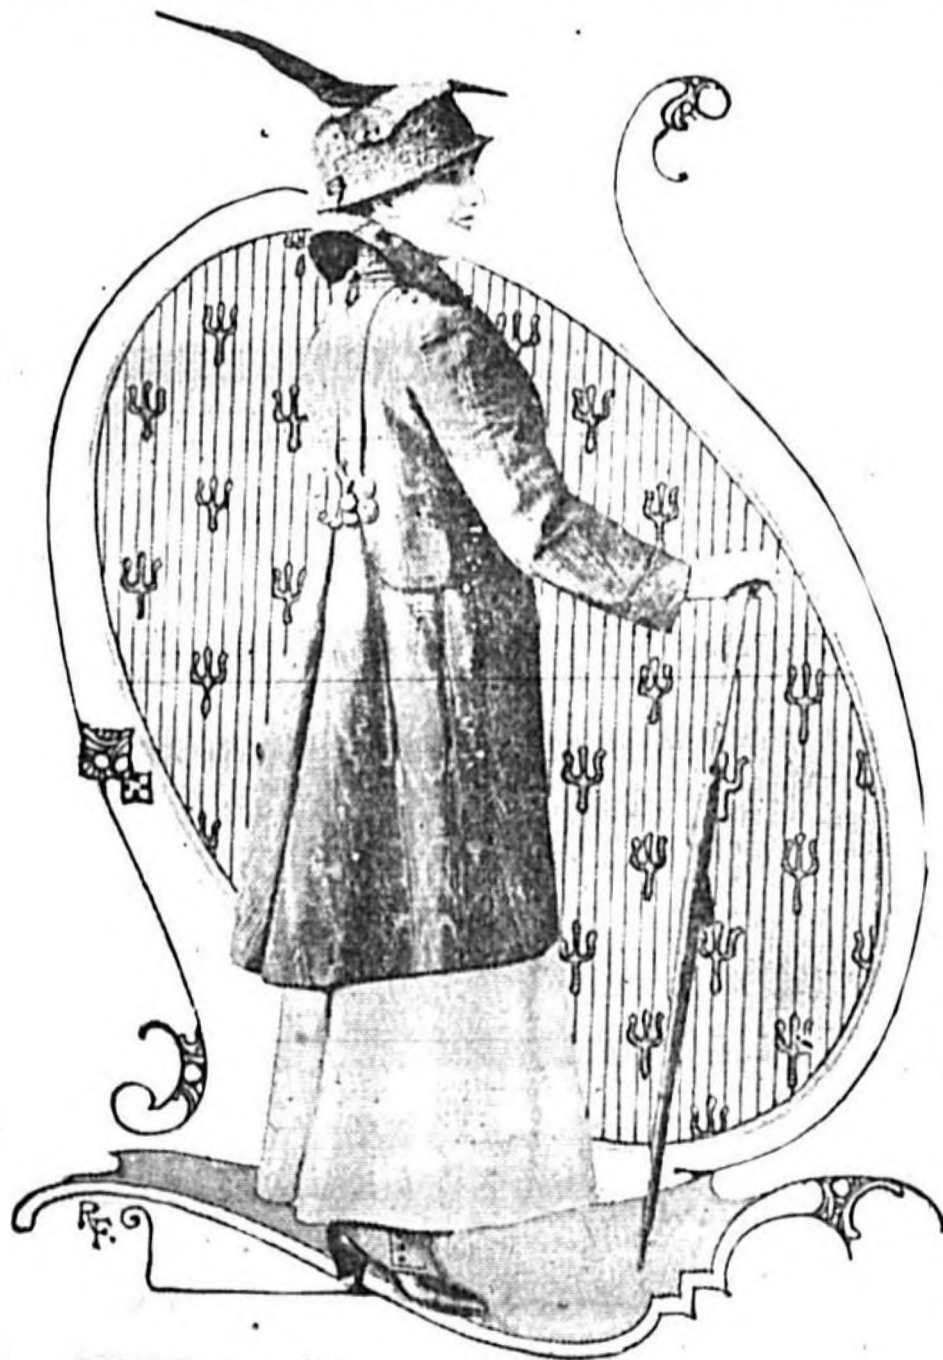

The most noticeable thing in the displays for spring is, in fact, the number of models which appear to have come from designers who dare to be independent of each other.

Three beautiful hats are shown here that illustrate very clearly the vogue of picturesque millinery. At the center is a large hat of black horsehair braided. The supporting wires in the brim and crown are outlined with narrow velvet folds. A narrow velvet-covered bandeau rests on the hair with a small bow of black velvet ribbon nestling against it at the side.

Forecasting Fashionable Separate Coats

Now that Fashion allows us to choose between the coat suit and the frock with separate coat, the separate coat is a matter that must be seriously considered. Hardly any wardrobe but must possess two separate coats of some kind.

The coat of bronze moire pictured here will not answer all the purposes of the cloth coat, but it will be found immensely useful. With nice attention to other details of the toilette it may be used for the dressiest wear.

Some of the separate coats are belted, others begin to flare from the level of the shoulders, and still others widen from the neck down. Nearly all of them are moderately long, and those in the quieter colors are often brilliantly lined.

CUTTING THE SEED CROP.

It is not an uncommon practice for the farmer to allow the seed crop to remain on the fields an excessive period, in order that more of the green pods may develop. In such fields on the same plant are found ripe pods bursting open, as well as fully developed, half grown and newly forming pods.

Observations show that many of the chalcids flies infesting the earlier or first pods have had sufficient time to complete their life development, emerge from the seeds and deposit their eggs into the green pods growing on the same plant upon which they themselves were fostered.

In view of this the seed crop should be so handled that the setting of pods will be as uniform as possible, and the crop should then be harvested as soon as the larger number of the pods are ripe.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLOWING.

Depth Depends Upon Season of the Year and Kind of Soil.

The depth at which land should be plowed depends much upon the season of the year, the kind of soil and the physical condition of the subsoil. Fall plowing, except for fall sown grain, should invariably be deeper than spring plowing, as there is more time for it to become sufficiently settled and compacted. Whenever land is plowed quite deeply and the climatic conditions do not thoroughly settle the furrows it should be thoroughly worked before it is planted.

Heavy soils need to be plowed deeper than the lighter types of soils. Such soils usually have quite compact subsoils, and they are benefited by being brought to the surface. It is also a benefit to heavy soils to bury the vegetable matter at a good depth, as this will assist in keeping the subsoil from becoming too compact.

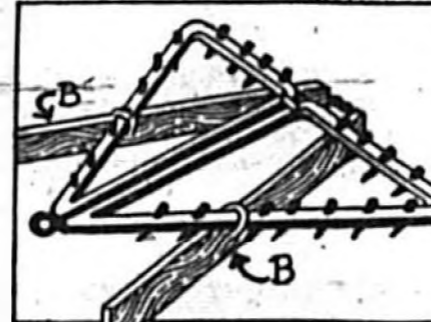

Lighter soils are very much the opposite. Their subsoils are usually not too compact, and it is better to have the vegetable matter mixed with the surface soil. Deep plowing of such soils has a tendency to make them too loose, and care should be taken to thoroughly compact them before they are planted to crops.

Plowing land continuously at the same depth every time has a tendency to form a hard, compact layer in the subsoil at that depth. This is an undesirable condition and can usually be avoided by varying the depth slightly from year to year. New land when first brought under the plow should not be plowed too deeply. While it may be desirable to ultimately have a furrow six or seven inches in depth, it should be brought about gradually by plowing a half inch or so deeper every year.

Filler For Dead Furrows.

To fill the water furrow, or dead furrow, that disfigure the left side of the turning plow, take a peg tooth harrow and two 1 by 6 inch boards four feet long, writes P. P. Parsons of Doris, N. M., in the Mississippi Valley Farmer. Set the boards between the teeth of harrow, starting them a little to the side of the center in front and slanting them so they almost meet at the back. This when drawn over the water furrow from end to end will draw the soil back into the ditch. Reverse the boards to level down the ridges. One section of an adjustable harrow with teeth set straight will do as well as a peg tooth.

SPRING CARE OF BEES.

Now is the time to remove all drone combs from the brood nest and replace them with good worker combs. If worker combs are not available, then use frames with full sheets of foundation in them.

All queenless colonies should be given young queens that can be secured from the queen breeders in the southern states, and if it is not convenient to send for them then give from some strong colony a nice comb of young brood with freshly laid eggs in it, and from these queenless colonies several good queens can be reared and the entire colony regenerated.

It is a mighty good thing to requeen the entire colony every season, for it not only means less swarming, but more bees raised from a vigorous queen and an upbuilding of the stock.

The honey from the early fruit bloom will be the honey on which the early brood is reared, while the main supplies from the early flow will be in June from the clovers.

For this reason it is best not to place supers on the hives until the proper time arrives, though this is not an infallible rule, as one should be governed by the condition of the brood nest.

If the tops of the brood-combs are filled with honey and nicely capped with new caps, then put the supers on for either comb or extracted honey. Farm Journal

Bad Practice Discouraged.

Getting married in Burma is not entirely a pleasant operation. Custom warrants the practice of throwing stones at the house of the newly-wedded, but not blackmail, and when recently a band of Burman youth demanded money before they would depart the law stepped in and sentenced the leaders to heavy imprisonment and corporal punishment.

On a Polished Table.

To prevent scratching of a polished table, attach with glue tiny pieces of white felt to the bottoms of dishes that are to be placed thereon. Common baking soda sprinkled over a grease spot on the floor will remove the spot if boiling water is poured over it.

FOURTH WEEK'S GRIST OF THE LEGISLATIVE MILLS

BILLS KEEP POURING IN AND BOTH HOUSE AND SENATE ARE DOWN TO HARD WORK

The supreme court has rendered an opinion to Governor Trammell in the suspension cases pending before the senate affecting Sheriff George Baker of Palm Beach county and Sheriff W. S. Spencer of Tampa, that makes it imperative for the governor to take action to have them removed immediately.

The opinion is in keeping with the policy adopted when the senate appointed a committee to investigate their duties in the matter, since the suspension was to be made effective at a future date, and so far as is known is the first suspension made under these conditions in history. The opinion in brief is as follows:

"The governor has no power to postpone to a future date the effectiveness of an order of suspension. It must be observed also that the section under discussion makes no provision for any action by the senate whatsoever upon a report of communication by the governor of a simple suspension of an officer without any recommendation for removal."

"Every permanent removal must be accomplished by the joint action of both the governor and the senate. In every case if a suspension from office the governor has the power to appoint some one to perform the duties of the officer."

The governor stated that he would amend his order and call for suspension or removal immediately by the senate, and that he expected to have the senate act at once.

Until the state of Florida does its part in protecting fish after they are planted and removes all interference with the work of the United States government agent engaged in the work, the United States fisheries bureau will not do anything for Florida, is the statement of H. F. Moore, assistant United States commissioner in his address before the Florida legislature at Tallahassee, says the Jacksonville Times Union.

Heretofore the senators and representatives have come to the government for assistance, but would not get it because of existing conditions such as minority and petty law in counties; and there is no adequate law in the state for the protection of the fish natural or planted in the state.

Mr. Moore said the following things must be carried out before the government can take action relative to establishing a fishery: first, the state must do her part in enacting laws for the protection of the fish and shellfish after planting; second the laws must be enforced, and officials required to enforce them must have sufficient funds to employ officers enough to carry out the law; third, the United States government will not tolerate any interference with its agents engaged on the work and until the proper measures are passed in the state the fisheries bureau cannot afford to spend much money in carrying out this work.

When these measures are enacted, he said, the government will render all proper assistance.

He declares that past legislatures have exempted many little creeks and bays from the general law by county act, and no law that can be enforced has ever been passed; for where parts of them could have been enforced otherwise, there was not sufficient money available to hire the officers needed for enforcement.

He declared that double the number now engaged in the Florida fish industry could be employed after a little judicious legislation and enforcement; but if this is not provided for in a few years there will be practically no fishing industry in the state to boast of. Florida's fish laws to the present time, he declared, have gone with the perfume of her flowers, up in the air.

The pending fish bills to control the salt water fish of the state as well as the fresh water fish, with various regulations, licenses, etc., will no doubt be enacted. But with the number of local bills that are now on the calendar applying to individual counties, bills that are being held up to await the passage of the general bill, it appears there will be little left to the general fish water regulations.

Every county has different conditions in water ways, and the only way that the local bills could be made effective is to be enacted after the general bill in order to repeal any parts of the general bill that conflict. Every local bill that conflicts with the general bill will be repealed by the enactment of the state-wide measure.

The Welaka Fishermen's Association has had a representative in the capital for several days in the interests of the fresh water fish bill, which would put a tax on all fresh water fish caught and offered for sale. The committee in the house has amended this bill to reduce the tax to one-twentieth of one cent per pound and it has been agreed to by the association representatives. This was the only serious objection to the measure when presented.

The salt water fisheries will be covered by the Shell Fish Commission when the bill now pending is enacted.

An effort will be made to repeal the law that prohibits railroads issuing mileage to newspapers in return for advertising. Although attacked at every session for some years, all measures introduced to repeal the law have met defeat.

Senator Zim of St. Augustine on Thursday introduced a bill to require railroad companies to publish their passenger train schedules in newspapers and to authorize the payment for same with transportation. What attitude the newspapers will take on the question this year is unknown, but the railroad representatives will fight the bill.

When the question comes up for debate in the senate there will be the usual flow of oratory about allowing the railroads to muzzle the press through this method of advertising exchange. On the other hand the editor of the small town weekly that does not enjoy the railroad advertising because the railroads must pay the cash for the space would be in line to get at least a ticket now and then, and to perambulate over the great state of Florida in search of more things to boast.

Another railroad bill by Mr. Zim authorizes railroads in the state to grant special excursion rates to leagues, or other organizations under certain conditions.

By an overwhelming vote the house passed the Crosby resolution providing for submission a constitutional amendment known as the "grandfather clause." Passage of the resolution by the senate and adoption by the people at the next general election would make thousands unqualified to vote.

The amendment proposes the following:

All male persons over twenty one and United States citizens must be residents of the state one year and of the county six months; must be able to read and write any section of the constitution; applicant must own in his own right property to the value of not less than $500; must not have been convicted prior to the time of application, of larceny, robbery, forgery, perjury or bribery.

The fifth provision follows: "Provided, however, that no person, or such lineal descendant of such person, who was on January 1, 1867, or prior thereto, entitled to vote under constitution and laws of the states or territories, or entitled to vote under any form of government, or any naturalized citizen or his descendants shall be denied the right to register and vote because he shall not be able to read and write as above provided, or because he shall not own property of value above specified. Naturalized citizens of the United States, however, at the time they apply and before they shall be permitted to register, shall present to the registration office certificate of his naturalization or a duly authenticated copy thereof."

The resolution was adopted by a vote of 56 to 6 and was immediately certified to the senate.

SANFORD'S FLOWER SHOW AND PLANT SALE HELD SATURDAY WAS A REAL EVENT OF THE SEASON

MANY HANDSOME YARDS AND PORCHES WERE INSPECTED BY THE JUDGES AND PRIZES AWARDED TO THE SUCCESSFUL CONTESTANTS—THE CLEAN UP CAMPAIGN A BIG SUCCESS

The flower show and plant sale under the auspices of the City Beautiful and civic committees of the Woman's Club Saturday afternoon was a notable event, closing as it did the civic program that began on Wednesday with the reception of the welfare department, followed Thursday by the clean up campaign and on Friday by the inspection of Sanford home grounds and porch displays. The committees of which Mrs. Henry Wight is chairman of one, and Mrs. W. E. Watson the other, have accomplished wonderful results, the flower show being a tangible proof of their labors of the past few months. Credit is due also to the little Junior Civics, for they inaugurated the City Beautiful campaign in the early fall by the sale of seeds, which was the beginning of more than one garden from which flowers were entered for the flower show.

Friday morning four automobiles conveyed the judges, Prof. Henry Nehrling, Mr. T. L. Meade and Mr. Muse and the members of the City Beautiful and Civic committees on a tour of inspection through the streets of Sanford and near in the history of the town had it been more worthy of inspection for Sanford was at its best bedecked in gorgeous array with its beautiful gardens, well kept grounds and attractive porches. The awarding of prizes was difficult to decide, for so many had grown such a variety of blooming plants the town was ablaze with beauty. However, the judges made a second tour of inspection in the afternoon to make their final decisions.

Fruit Trees

To Mrs. S. Runge was awarded the handsome prize of a Foster grape fruit of the finest variety, for having the largest assortment of fruit trees and plants in the home grounds.

Mrs. Runge's garden is unique and interesting containing many unusual plants, some of these from foreign lands. Fruits grown such as oranges and Kumquats, peaches, plums, figs, bananas, pine apple, Chinese cherry, Japan plum, mulberry trees, grapes, guavas, alligator pear and straw cherries. Among other interesting specimens are the cacti, pear tree, cactus, cotton, sugar and Mexican cactus, any one of which is a curiosity in itself. A few feet to three in this wonderful garden, as well as the usual everyday flowers generally found in every little garden plot.

Flower Show

There could be nothing prettier than the gorgeous display of amaryllis, the stately pure white callas and Easter lilies, or the sweet pansy faces and other exquisite blossoms and handsome ferns, palms and pot plants on exhibition at the flower show. At 5 o'clock when the room was thronged with daintily gowned women, it was a scene of rare beauty that greeted one upon entering, for it was indeed a brilliant setting for the eager, enthusiastic spectators and gracious women whose energy and service had made possible such a successful display. To the left of the entrance the tables and shelves were braked with great masses of the brilliant hued amaryllis from the Mead Nurseries; to the right palms and ferns and a fine display of potted geraniums in a variety of colors. In the window off setting the glowing flowers within were the plant prizes contributed by Reasoner Bros. of the Oneco Nurseries, Prof. Henry Nehrling of Palm Cottage Gardens at Gotha, and T. L. Meade of Ovidio and W. Allen Burpee of Philadelphia.

Immediately in front of the entrance was a stand of nasturtiums, and through the center extending to the back of the room were wonderful bowls of roses, baskets of verbenas, red and pink; pansies; daffodils, daisies and lilies; violets, mignonette, geraniums, gladioli and every other flower that can be grown at this season in Florida. Vases of gorgeous blooms of every variety and color stood upon tables and stands placed around the rooms.

Upon one stand was the lovely, demure pansies, entered by Mrs. W. A. Ginn.

Upon another, a huge bowl of delicately tinted sweet peas, the entry of Mrs. Zachary.

Attracting much attention was a tall vase of stately callas and a lower one of Easter lilies, with pansies and violets nestling in the moss at their base. These were arranged with attractive taste and culled from the garden of Mrs. Henry Wight.

Perhaps the loveliest stand of all was that which contained a tall Japanese basket vase of ragged robins in blue and white, the entry of Mrs. B. F. Whitner and surrounded by smaller vases of poppies, sweet peas and white carnations, their delicate beauty enhancing the rare, exquisite loveliness of the ragged robins. The poppies were so lovely, their silken beauty coming in a close second to the first vase prize winner, the ragged robins. They were grown by Mrs. D. L. Thrasher and Mrs. W. E. Watson among their roses. Worthy of especial mention were the bouquets of wild flowers gathered and displayed by the children. This table also contained a bowl of water lilies, lovely in their purity and waxy beauty. Minton Winn entered these in the wild flower contest.

Mrs. A. W. Fitts, Sr., entered a large exhibit of handsome begonias, geraniums and ferns and was awarded the greatest number of prizes.

A rare specimen of the ice plant was placed on exhibition by Mrs. Tynes.

One of the largest tables contained an assortment of a vivid variety of flowers from the garden of Mrs. E. G. Stevens.

Artistic skill and taste was manifested in the arrangement of the various entries, ferns, plants and flowers being shown to the best advantage. The tables and stands were draped with the richest material giving a splendid effect that was altogether lovely.

At 5 o'clock the prizes were awarded by Hon. D. L. Thrasher, who made one of his pleasing little talks, paying a tribute to the women of Sanford for their interest which, he said, had been the uplift of its civic beauty and pride and thanking the committee in behalf of the city for this important and development, culminating in such an exhibition of marvelous beauty.

The garden prizes were awarded with especial reference to the showing of spring blossoms; the object being to encourage the planting of such things as will bloom in winter and early spring. The following gardens from various sections of Sanford were chosen as prize winners. Those of Mrs. Carter, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Minnie Jones, Mrs. G. F. Smith, Dr. Robson, Mrs. Stephens, with favorable mention for Mrs. Meach, Mrs. Harrold, Mrs. Musson, Mrs. Terbeun, Mrs. Herndon, Gate City House, Mrs. Wendt, Mrs. Zachary, Mrs. Davis.

Three special prizes were given, i. e. to Mr. and Mrs. William Bray for the quick and beautiful garden effect around a home newly built within the past year. Six fancy caladiums.

To Mr. and Mrs. Jim Stewart for the spirit shown in beautifying the grounds of a rented home. Six fancy caladiums.

To Mrs. William Leffler for a gorgeous border of amaryllis. Six fancy caladiums.

To Mr. and Mrs. Runge for choice and numerous varieties of fruit trees in their home garden. 1 Foster grapefruit tree.

For attractive veranda effect prizes were awarded Mrs. Dingee, Mrs. Chittenden, Miss Nellie Evans, St. Johns Hotel, Mrs. D. G. Monroe, Mrs. Aylett Fitts.

The garden prizes were palms of the variety Latania Borbonica; the veranda winners will add to their collections, Dracena Terminalis.

At the flower show prizes were awarded as follows:

Best arrangement of pansies, collection of Burpee's Dahlias, Mrs. Ginn.

Prize for Grammar School student, arrangement of wild flowers, fifty cents, Eunice Tyner. Special prize for wild flowers shown by child, fifty cents, Minton Winn.

Best display of sweet peas, collection Burpee's dahlias, Mrs. Zachary. Most artistic vase arrangement, Mrs. B. F. Whitner.

Best display roses from one garden, six hybrid amaryllis, Mrs. Ginn.

Best miscellaneous cut flowers from one garden, six hybrid amaryllis, Mrs. Stephens.

Best palm, specimen palm, Mrs. Minnie Jones.

Best fern, specimen gold fern, Mrs. Fitts.

Best geranium, six fancy caladiums, Mrs. Fitts.

Best odd specimen, three Rex begonias, Mrs. Fitts.

Best begonia, three Rex begonias, Mrs. Jim Stewart.

Best Easter lilies, collection Burpee's dahlias, Mrs. S. O. Chase.

The committee wish to gratefully acknowledge generous donations from Prof. Henry Nehrling of Gotha, Fla., Mr. T. L. Mead, Ovidio, Fla., Reasoner Bros., Oneco, Fla., W. Allen Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa.

Special thanks are due Prof. Nehrling, Mr. Mead and Mr. Muse, who acted as judges in the garden contest, and to Mrs. Berry, Mrs. Buchanan and Mrs. Aizer, who judged for the flower show.

Special courtesies were received from Mr. Hynes, Sanford Electric Co., Sanford Light & Fuel Co., Mr. Long, Mr. Abernathy, Mr. Davison, Mayor Thrasher, Mrs. Meisch, Mr. M. F. Robinson, Hill Hardware Co., Manager Herndon of the Star Theatre, Lernald Hardware Co., and last, but not least The Herald Publishing Co., to whom the committee feel that much of the success of the flower show was due, owing to the generous advertising.

Service at Holy Cross

This Wednesday night's service at Holy Cross Church promises to be of the greatest possible interest and benefit for everybody. The rector has taken for the subject of his address, "Domine Quo Vadis?" the meaning of Jesus and St. Peter on the Appian Way, Rome. The address will be illustrated by the best slides obtained from New York City. It practically covers the subject matter of that great book by Henryk Sienkiewicz, "Quo Vadis?"

There has been a large number of people attending each week, this series of services with the illustrated addresses, and it is expected a larger number will also be present this Wednesday night at 7:30 p. m.

There is no admission, but an offering is asked to help the Brotherhood of S. Andrew to meet the heavy expenses. Everyone is invited.

Many Changes in Star

Sanford claims to have one of the best equipped moving picture houses in the state in the Star Theatre. Manager O. P. Herndon is giving his patrons the best that money can buy in the nature of films and equipment and just now is engaged in decorating the interior of the theatre with water color effects, new lights and a better machine. A few weeks ago a new apparatus was installed that will give the operator an alternating or a direct current and this arrangement gives the clearest of pictures. A new screen will also be placed on the stage this week and the pictures will be constantly improved until the very acme of perfection is reached. The stage has also been done over and the entire interior now presents an effect that is most pleasing to the patrons of this popular place.

In a few weeks the new serial picture "Runaway June" will be presented at the Star and each week the new chapters will be given in the Sanford Herald, thus giving the people the chance to read the story in advance and see the pictures the following night.

The Star will give the people of Sanford some good features and also the regular run of good films all during the summer months and as the theatre building is cool and well ventilated the patrons of the movies are assured of a place to go during the long evenings of the summer time.

FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH DISCOVERED NEAR HERE

ELDER PLACE HAS SPRING THAT CONTAINS THE FINEST WATER IN THE SOUTH

Few people in Sanford are aware of the fact that within a few miles of this city the proverbial Fountain of Youth sought by Ponce de Leon is located but such is the fact. This spring is situated on the magnificent country place of P. M. Elder about five miles from Sanford on the Sanford Orlando road and gushes up from a bed of blue clay in a surging current, coming to the surface as cool and clear as a crystal and the wonder of it is the fact that this water is as soft as a maiden's kiss in the moonlight. Soft water in this part of the peninsula is usually surface water and all other spring water and artesian wells are hard, very hard and usually full of sulphur.

To find a deep and gushing spring that contains no sulphur and that does contain the analysis of the Elder well is a find indeed and this spring in time will make the Elder farm one of the most famous watering places in the state. At present Capt. Elder, with his proverbial good nature and liberality will ask nothing for the water and it is free for the asking. The spring is near the road and is open to the public at all times. On Saturday it was cleaned out and now presents a pretty picture under the shades of the magnificent oaks that grace this fine country home. Upon the advice of some of Capt. Elder's friends he had this water analyzed last week by Dr. Baker, a famous analytical chemist and professor of natural sciences of Rollins College and the following analysis was shown:

Spring Water: color, clear; reaction, neutral, free ammonia, none; albuminoid ammonia, none; chlorine, 6 parts per 1,000,000; total solids, 8 parts per 1,000,000; nitrate, trace; hardness, 38 parts per 1,000,000.

The absence of both free and albuminoid ammonia in the spring water and its very small amount of chlorine indicate its good quality—the indications are that it is of exceptionally good quality.

A very desirable feature of this spring is its softness, containing less than one fourth of the amount of calcium and magnesium carbonates found in many waters of this region, and just about enough, as many authorities think, for supplying the lime and magnesia requirements of the body.

Many people in Sanford are now using this water and make daily pilgrimages to the Elder place to get this panacea for all ills and it is almost certain that some day in the near future this water will make the Elder place so famous that some enterprising firm will buy the farm and make the spring a commercial enterprise. H. B. Cone of Orlando, a son-in-law of Capt. Elder's is very enthusiastic over this spring and has already introduced it into Orlando, where it readily found favor with all the physicians who are recommending it to their patients.

As will be seen from the analysis the water is chemically pure and is probably as good if not better than the famous lithia water that is brought here at a high price. Capt. Elder wants it understood that the water at the present time is free to any one who wishes to get it and this is a great opportunity for those who are troubled with the ills of mortal flesh.

Meantime the people of Sanford can congratulate themselves upon the fact that not only has the city the best water works system, the flowing wells and other good water but they can always take a ten minutes trip to the Elder place and get the water that will enable them to live forever.

Then, Schaaf Improving
Word comes from the hospital at Orlando that Theo. Schaaf is improving and that he will recover from the difficult operation performed a few weeks ago and return to his home and business in a few weeks.

Mr. R. C. Bradshaw and daughter, Mrs. Martha Cust are the first to purchase one of the new model Fords.
