County enthused by lakefront development

By Russ White
 HERALD STAFF WRITER

SANFORD - "It's a new day," Daryl McLain says. "Sanford is no longer the stepchild of the county. There are great changes in the making, and it's time for people to accept them."

Sanford - less anyone forget - is McLain's kind of town. He lives here, has a business here and is into his second term as Seminole County commissioner for District 1, which includes the city.

McLain supports and has helped shape the Sanford Waterfront Conference Center/Hotel/Boardwalk project at Ft. Mellon Park. This project will be discussed by the county commission at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday. "I'm excited about it," McLain said Friday. "The best thing we can do for Sanford and for the county is put the conference center on the lakefront."

What is being proposed is a $40 to $70 million complex that includes a 100,000 square foot multipurpose conference center, 300-room hotel and possibly an apartment building on the 30-acre of city owned land.

The project would be a public/private partnership. Hotel facilities would be privately financed. The conference center would come from various sources such as tax increment financing, property lease payments and possibly Seminole County tourism development revenues.

Sanford needs the county and the county needs Sanford for everything to work. The worst problem, some believe, is pessimism. "There are some people who don't want anything to change," McLain said. "They're worried about losing a ball field or a park. The fact is nothing is going to be lost and a whole lot gained."

"All I ask for now is that everyone will hold back on the negatives until we've heard all the facts. Heard what it will take to make this happen. What it will cost and what it will bring in," said County Commission Chairman Randy Morris.

"Financing is actually the easiest part," McLain said. He said he figured that the city County Commissioner Daryl McLain and Sanford Mayor Larry Dale review one proposal for development of the lakefront, including a hotel and conference center. The county commissioners will hear more Tuesday.

Has focus changed over the years?

By Nick Pittman
 HERALD STAFF WRITER

SANFORD - Not only for this Monday's observance of Memorial Day, but for all Memorial Days to come, what should be the focus? How should the event be treated?

For many, it is nothing more than an additional holiday; another day off work. Some veterans however, may pause and remember their service years. They may even be among the ever-declining number who will attend Memorial Day parades and observances such as the one in Sanford.

A few of the local veterans were asked about the meaning of Memorial Day and how it should be treated in today's society.

A veteran of the Vietnam War, one who often saw anti-war demonstrations in our nation, said he will ignore the event. "I'd just as soon forget about the whole thing," he

Program expands to keep weapons out of all schools

By David Frazier
 HERALD STAFF WRITER

SEMINOLE COUNTY - Paul Gelpman's daughter saw another student in middle school with a .357 Magnum. He decided at that point to get involved.

"WISE (Weapons in School Eliminated) vehemently supports any program that will remove guns from schools," said Gelpman.

Starting next school term, the program that started in 1 high school will expand to all Seminole County elementary, middle and high schools. It allows students who see a gun or other type of weapon to call the Save a Friend Hotline number (1-800-338-2327) to make a report. The phone call is confidential. If the weapon reported is confiscated, then the person who reported the weapon will be able to go to a bank to pick up a reward of $100 that is donated by the business community.

Federal funding OK'd for St. Johns River bridge

From Staff Reports

SEMINOLE COUNTY - Replacement of the St. Johns River bridge at Interstate-4 tops the list of Seminole County items that received funding Friday by the House-Senate Transportation Conference Committee under the Transportation Efficiency Act of the 21st Century.

The committee, of which U.S. Senator Bob Graham is a member, allocated $10.5 million for the almost-40 year old bridge that spans the river at the Seminole and Volusia county borders. Preliminary designs call for the bridge to be expanded to 8 lanes by 2005.

The bill, passed Friday afternoon by the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives, is expected to be signed by President Bill Clinton. Included in the total $200 billion allocation is more than $2 million for interchange construction at U.S. Highway 17-92 and State Road 436, in Altamonte Springs. $1.125 million for interchange construction at

Family tragedy taught her strength, recent honor adds to her determination

By Michelle S. Fox
 HERALD CORRESPONDENT

OVIEDO - Blessing and inspiration. These are the words that come to mind when those who know Brittany Efin think of her.

Brittany attends Stenstrom Elementary in Oviedo, and was recently chosen to receive the Walt Disney Dreamer and Doer award from among her 5th grade peers. Such a prestigious honor is granted to exceptional children who excel in academics and citizenship. Undoubtedly, even at the young age of 10, Brittany is already a proven champion of remarkable character.

She is the oldest of 4 children. Her brother, Zach, is not yet in school and her little sister, Candace, is a bright ray of sunshine in Stenstrom's special education class.

But her sister, Ashley, is who she credits for giving her the quiet determination that is evident to everyone she meets. Three years ago, when Brittany was in second grade, her sister Ashley was diagnosed with terminal leukemia. The little family was emotionally crushed by the news, and the Oviedo community, including staff from Stenstrom, offered their constant support throughout Ashley's long illness and subsequent death. From that time on, the circumstances cite Brittany's help and encouragement as the foundation to her family's endurance.

"Brittany was a brick through it all," stated Stenstrom's assistant principal, Dr. Jeanne Hoffman. "We are very proud of her accomplishments as both a student and person. She is an inspiration to all of us."

Principal Martin D. Kirach added, "She's an amazing kid, and an excellent example to everyone. She always wears a smile, too."

Brittany said that she loved Ashley very much, and that they had been extremely close. She said that the most important thing her sister taught her was to not give up, adding "She was a real fighter, and that's what she'd want the world to remember about her."

When asked what has helped her family deal with such a loss, she mentioned the support and donations of the community, the wonderful doctors and nurses at Florida South, and the importance of her church. She made it clear that faith is vital in such circumstances, stating, "God was really there for us." She proudly added that her father has been able to write beautiful songs about Ashley and the effect her life had on all of them.

She also wanted everyone to know that the death of her grandmother, William Adams, just prior to Ashley's death, although sad, was a

Getting in shape: Gold's Gym moves to new location

By Jeana Hughes
HERALD STAFF WRITER

SANFORD - Gold's Gym is growing again. The gym has outgrown its home for the second time in its 10 year history. Gold's new quarters will be located at 4050 West State Road 46, at Upsala Road.

"Service has been our reason for growth," explains Rick Friend, Gold's Gym vice president. "This will be our permanent location."

The 14,000 square foot building is currently under construction. According to Friend the gym will be in operation at its new location by July 1.

Catering to the convenience of its members is key to the service Gold's provides. "Our members don't have to wait in lines for the equipment," said Friend. "They can do their work out and go."

Members of the gym will still find the services and equipment they have become accustomed to at Gold's and more. The expansion will allow for the addition of new equipment. Aerobic and Tae Kwon Do classes will no longer have to share one room, allowing classes to be scheduled at more convenient times.

Gold's is proud of the gym's family atmosphere. Membership includes free babysitting, and free aerobics and Tae Kwon Do classes for the kids.

The Planned Exercise Program sets up new members on a personally designed exercise program. Professional trainers assess the member's physical condition and needs, and work with them as they begin their new exercise program.

The new location in Sanford, 2 blocks east of Seminole Towne Center, is only minutes from the gym's present location on East Lake Mary Boulevard.

IN BRIEF

City honors

Longwood resident Ken Francis, right, and Al Larson of Chuluota, right, were honored recently by the City of Orlando, for saving the life of the 15 month old daughter of Orlando Magic guard Derek Harper, who nearly drowned last month in a backyard swimming accident. Francis, a project manager for ABD Development Company, and Larson were each presented with Meritorious Conduct Awards by Orlando Mayor Glenda Hood and City Fire Chief Don Harkins in a public ceremony at Orlando City Hall. Daria, the youngest child of Derek and Shiela Harper, has fully recovered from her ordeal.

Swampy marsh, Longwood's Mud Lake to be revitalized

By Vicki Bellwood
HERALD STAFF WRITER

LONGWOOD - Mud Lake, just off State Road 434 near Devonshire, has never been a pristine body of water, but now, with grasses and sediment clogging it, it's little more than a swampy marsh.

Though caused by the pollution from nearby traffic and surrounding homes, the eutrophication of the lake is a part of the life cycle of a body of water.

"It's the natural life cycle that a lake goes through," Dean Barber, biological administrator with the Florida Department of Aquatic Plant Management, said. "It's a 7-year natural cycle."

But the residents around the lake and the City of Longwood want to clean it up.

The city commission has agreed to look at a plan to dredge the bottom of the lake and make it "the way a lake should look."

Pushed by residents to move quickly, the commission wants to start as soon as possible on the plan which would allow them to dredge the lake, possibly creating an island for wildlife preservation.

While Barber tried to caution the commis-mission to wait until fall when the lake is naturally at a lower level, the commission thought time was of the essence in this matter.

"What does time have to do with this?" Mayor Rusty Miles asked. "We should see about getting this done."

The city is hoping to dredge the lake, put the sediment on land to dry for a day or 2 before hauling it away.

That's where the expense comes in," Barber said. "Hauling it away is expensive."

In the natural life cycle of a lake, the water level lowers and exposes the sediment to the sun during drought times, dries it and compact it. Pulling it out of the lake and taking it away is an unnecessary expense, Barber said.

The commission is hoping to use a piece of property, Harbor Isle, on the north side of the lake as a staging area. There, they hope to dry the material and haul it away.

If they wait until November, however, the land might be sold and built on.

"So we'd better do it now," Miles said.

Another option would be to purchase another piece of property, most of it unbuildable, that is nearby so the city would have future access to the lake for cleaning purposes.

While the city and lake into the matter, the commission hopes to start as quickly as possible.

"Of course, the best thing would be to let it happen naturally," Barber said. "But people who live on a lake, want a lake."

Winter Springs celebrates Cross Seminole Trail opening

By Tony Tiano
HERALD CORRESPONDENT

WINTER SPRINGS - As a follow-up to the May 5 media opening, the City of Winter Springs recently celebrated the public opening for its part of Seminole County's Cross Seminole Trail which links downtown Oviedo and Winter Springs.

Citizens were invited to put on their trail gear, and bring their families as they enjoyed walking, hiking, roller blading, cycling and basically have fun in the great outdoors, as the city celebrated the first phase of the trail.

Several people and organizations set up information booths, including Mike Wilson, (pronounced Mike) Wilson, state president of FORBA (Florida Off Road Bicycling Opportunities) through environmentally and socially responsible use of the land.

The trail that brings together various governments, also brought together various groups, such as the Wee Help Children's Resource Center, which is a computerized resource information service for all physically or mentally disabled children and their families in Central Florida.

A cyclist at the event, Deborah Punsak who works with the disabled in The Seminole Work Opportunities Program (SWOP) commented on the multi-user trail saying, "It's wonderful, a long time coming. It affects everybody."

There were also food vendors and live music which included a performance by Jimette Cook, a Winter Springs code enforcement officer.

The awards ceremony and ribbon cutting were presided over by Winter Springs Mayor Paul Partyka, who thanked everyone in the city who had worked on the trail project. Partyka joked about City Attorney Bob Outsho. "Without his guidance, we might be in trouble. Maybe we still are."

Seminole County Commission Chairman Randy Morris talked about the importance of the project and the municipalities and people who helped. Winter Springs Commissioner and Vice Mayor Cindy Gennell also thanked those who supported the project.

Gennell also said, "This is the first step in providing accessibility to public lands by the citizens and is a major accomplishment in providing education and appreciation in the large tracks of conservation lands. This is the whole reason that people move to Florida in the first place."

In the awards presentation, Kim Doran, chairman of the city's bicycle sub-committee helped give out T-shirts and plaques to several people, including elected officials and members of Seminole County's Trails and Greenway Task Force. A good time was had by all!

On Memorial Day

Monday, the fourth Monday of May, is Memorial Day. It's one of several annual holidays in which the members of our armed forces are given special honors. This particular event, originally known as Decoration Day, was primarily aimed at honoring those who were killed while serving in the military services.

Decoration Day originated following the Civil War, when veterans began gathering to remember those who were at their sides in battle, but didn't return. Remembering fallen ones often brings sadness to individual hearts. But for a moment, let's take a look at how many we have lost since Decoration Day originated.

According to the World Almanac, there were 646,392 fatalities in the Civil War listed for the Union forces. While Confederate deaths were not made official, reports indicate 26,000 to 31,000 southern troops perished in Union prisons before the war ended.

The Almanac lists 4,108 dead as the result of the Spanish-American War slightly over 30 years later. World War I figures show 320,710 fatalities and World War II was the only one with more than a million with 1,078,162 fatalities.

The Korean War resulted in 33,651 battle deaths; we lost 211,471 in the Vietnam War, and 760 in the Persian Gulf.

The figures are strictly for service personnel who died in battle during the actual wars. Hundreds of thousands perished as a result of wounds received during these various wars, and millions have passed away under normal circumstances since that time.

Fallen in battle, as the result of battle or fallen since the conclusion of the service; it should make little difference.

These are the men and women who stepped forward in the nation's time of need and conflict, and helped protect the freedom of the United States of America.

So Monday is no longer Decoration Day. Let's honor it anyway, and give thought to the fallen protectors of liberty. Visit cemeteries, talk to the youngsters about ancestors, attend the Memorial Day events, and get involved.

Hopefully, our nation will not be needing men and women to die into the conflicts of war again, but there is always the question: What generation will appear on a future list of war dead in the World Almanac?

Give it some thought this Monday.

West's candidacy

I wish to say how much I admire Mr. Bob West for having the courage to challenge the incumbent Chairman of the Seminole County Commission in the up-coming election.

I have met Mr. West and found him to be responsive, experienced and concerned regarding local government. His stand on tax relief, voter approval of new debts, and better and more responsible control of growth in Seminole County has convinced me that he is on the correct side of these issues. He will make an excellent county commissioner, and the citizens of Seminole County can be proud to have a man of Bob's character and competency willing to assume the responsibilities of this position.

Mr. Goff runneth at mouth

How Mr. Bob Goff runneth at the mouth in the Sunday, May 10 issue "If politicians could write history." Obviously, he has short term memory loss and is not a student of history. He who destroys bridges sometimes has to retreat, pretty soon he will have nowhere to retreat or go forward. How soon Mr. Goff forgets who helped him solve the Iron Bridge school zone site which was a hazard. Why did he go to Commissioner Win Adams? Couldn't his cronies help him, but one sure did take the credit on radio. Who made the telephone calls to the Health Department? Who met with some of the school board/staff? Who sent out faxes concerning this issue? Who did he thank profusely? Why, Commissioner Win Adams? Now he turns around and implies, or let's use his word, infers that Win Adams insulted the Seminole County School Board and private citizens. Let's get the fact straight: per diem and cash advances are two different items. Per diem, one does not have to show receipts unless one goes over the amount allowed. But one better have receipts for the IRS or the money will be considered taxable income. Cash advances, one always has to show receipts and if one is a government official, it is even more critical to honor taxpayers money. He implies that the business community and government do not respect Win Adams, on the contrary everyone is shaking their heads in disbelief on Dick Van Der Weide's receipt issue. The business community cannot understand anyone not having to show receipts if asked. The community agrees with Win Adams on the receipt issue.

Next issue, attacking Win Adams' mother on Mother's Day. How low can one stoop? He has gone to court countless times to protect his mother. Have you no decency, sir?

As for the Suber's case, it is a sad case. The women of the community are outraged that sexual harassment has been introduced. It is cases like this, which dilute the sexual harassment incidents that women have sacrificed to bring to the attention of the courts. The outlandish statements can only be considered delusional. These make believe remarks have only brought

The $50 check. In an earlier column I stated that I thought this refund from the state to homeowners was a ridiculous idea, that these funds could have been used in a much more productive way. Apparently Gov. Lawton Chiles agrees, because he vetoed the move this past week.

Talk about Sanford

Let's talk about Sanford. Apparently, there isn't much disagreement about the need to create a business atmosphere in Sanford. The only problem seems to be where the proposed hotel and conference center should be built. The problem is that we must consider the desires of those who are willing to invest in the city and where they would like to locate. I think that it is extremely important to have feedback from younger residents. After all, it is they that will inherit the City of Sanford.

One thing is certain, the city can no longer continue on the path that will lead to further decay. The word decay may seem strong but the purpose is to point out clearly that opportunities that can transform Sanford into a competitive city within the county, and Central Florida, should be seized. Progress has eluded this city for far too long. Remember, progress, beautification, opportunity, higher paying jobs and so much more can all be a part of growth. That is why there must be cooperation in this effort.

We must congratulate the city fathers for their progressive approach regarding the Orlando Sanford Airport.

Ernie Hatton II

Ernie Hatton II is a veteran member of numerous government boards and is a civic activist in the interest of good government.

Flags

Here we go again. I said it last week, "government divides people because of poor policy." The City of Orlando should not have given permission to fly the rainbow flags symbolizing gay pride. Why? Because where does it all stop? What other group may want to fly flags. As a practical matter, it is bad policy. The flag of the nation, or state should be policy, or at least something that is not divisive. Would we want Nazi flags flying along Colonial Drive? Some people may want to do that. True, there is certainly a difference and my example is extreme, but none the less, this is what may be created because of shallow thinking by all concerned. The rainbow flags are not the issue. The issue is where may this policy lead? Just start a list of all of those who would, based on this policy, have the right to fly flags. It's pretty frightening, isn't it. There is no ill intent here.

Just a bad idea permitted by a government that doesn't think!

Something pleasant to say

The Honorable John Brogden, a member of the Parliament of New South Wales, Australia was hosted by The International Council of Central Florida located in Seminole County. I had the opportunity to talk at length with Mr. Brogden. He was quite impressed with Central Florida. One of the things that impressed him very much was the landscaping of the roadways. He mentioned how beautiful it was around the Orlando International Airport and the highways in Seminole County. Apparently, he didn't see them all, but the point is that our cities and counties are on the right track and this first impression is very important. I cannot possibly express the importance of the International Council of Central Florida.

Seminole County politics

A warning...do not be taken in by one-liners. When you receive a brochure that states several issues with one line answers, ask for the details. There must be a real debate in the upcoming elections. We need to ask for detailed solutions to accompany those one liners. We need to keep the campaigns focused on the issues before this county.

Congratulations to Chairman Randy Morris and the County Commission for promoting and supporting televised county commission meetings. I can't think of a better way of keeping the public informed in a direct manner.

Having hope

Every once in a while we here at Special People like to delve into the meaning of certain words. We also like to show how these words can be linked to the disability movement. This all leads to mind today's topic, hope.

Simply defined, hope is a feeling that what is wanted will happen. Desire accompanied by expectation. As English poet and satirist Alexander Pope: (1688-1744) once wrote, "hope springs eternal in the human breast, man never is, but always to be blessed."

Part of Special People's interest in the power of hope was an interview on TV a couple of weeks ago with actor Christopher Reeve. You probably know he was paralyzed in a riding accident a few years ago and his activities have been featured in this column.

Reeve talked about how it was hope that had inspired him the most in the last 3 years. No matter how tough things get for him health-wise, it has been the hope for medical science to come up with a cure or solution for spinal cord injuries that has kept him going.

Hope is essential for everyone. It gives us the feeling that no matter how tough things get, there is always a chance that they will get better. This is especially important to the disabled person. No matter how uncontrollable life can be sometimes, there is always something to count on...hope.

I am not just talking about an idealistic view of looking at the world, but more as a goal setting device. It's only logical that if someone hopes for a conclusion to a situation, they also have some idea of what they want the conclusion to be.

Sure, faith and spirituality come into the equation as does the power of one's own mind. There have always been stories about people surviving serious illnesses, even cancer, by determination and will and maybe even a good sense of humor. As Pope also wrote, "People always hope for the best, even in the face of adversity." (From his An Essay on Man.)

Today's disability definition is dyslexia which is confusion in the orientation of letters. This is manifested by reading from right to left, failure to see and sometimes hear similarities or differences in letters or words, or inability to work out the pronunciation of unfamiliar words.

Attempts to read or write are often characterized by letter and word reversal (e.g., "p" for "q", "saw" for "was"). Dyslexia is usually found when a child, usually of average or above average intelligence, is 2 or more years behind his expected grade level in reading.

Being unable to read is inconsistent with achievement in other school subjects such as arithmetic. The child may not be able to determine left from right. The cause of Dyslexia is unknown, but a central nervous system defect in the ability to organize graphic symbols has been suggested.

Writer's Note: The opinions expressed today are solely mine and are achieved through many years of being a disability/human rights advocate.

Remembering Stetson: Cherished grandson leaves legacy of love

During some 40 years as a Boston newspaper reporter and editor, I covered, wrote, assigned and edited many stories about families suffering tragedy and heartbreak when their young children were victims.

It seemed that such stories happened only to others. But in March, 1996 such a story became part of our unbearable sadness when we learned that our youngest grandson, Stetson Laronde, had an inoperable brain tumor.

He died at home on Sept. 17, with his mother, Barbara, and his father, Richard, at his side, as they had been since the day his condition was known.

Two weeks before his 7th birthday on March 16, Stetson complained of double vision. The next day revealed the shattering news. Treatments began at once, and twice a day for several weeks he had radiation. He never complained, even though at times you knew he was a very tired little boy.

On my first trip to the hospital he directed me through a maze of winding corridors to the correct elevator and then to the radiation center. And often on those trips he'd wear his "Bledsoe 11" jersey, because New England Patriots quarterback Drew Bledsoe was his favorite player.

Stetson's few years of life were meaningful and exciting. He could swim before he was 4 and ski quite well at 6. He went to movies, circuses and fairs and attended Patriots, Celtics and Red Sox games.

In mid-July, while he was still able to walk, the family took him to see the Statue of Liberty. That evening he telephoned from his hotel to say that from his bed he could see the top of the Empire State Building.

As the weeks and later the days of his life dwindled, Stetson spent much time at a place he loved, Bear Island in Lake Winnepesaukee, where his parents have a home.

During his last days there, he had to be assisted walking, and sometimes it was necessary to carry him.

July 22 turned out to be a beautiful day at the lake, and Stetson went for a motorboat ride with his parents and a school chum. They joked, laughed and had fun, and for a moment it seemed like old times. That night he telephoned us to tell us of his fun day and how he had won a big green dinosaur at the Wet's arcade. It was to be his last day at Winnepesaukee.

Stetson left us with cherished memories. I remember...

• Sitting next to him as he played his favorite songs on the player piano.

• The sparkle in his eyes when he "surprised" us with his Aladdin costume on Halloween.

• His face, filled with excitement as he would look through the window as he returned home from school to see his grandparents waiting to greet him.

• How he smiled and waved good-bye as he walked into the airport terminal after his visit with us.

William Buchanan

William Buchanan is a 40-year veteran reporter and editor for the Boston Globe. Now retired, he and his wife live in Lake Mary.

• The hugs he'd give us.
• The postcards and school papers he sent to us.

As his final days approached he still enjoyed watching "Power Rangers," "The Lion King," "Beauty and the Beast" and "Home Alone." He also managed to play a few games of Monopoly. But gradually he lost use of his arms and then his hands, and finally he could not speak.

His mother would lie at his side to comfort him, and his father would hold him in his arms on the floor while they watched cartoons. His dad would say, "Remember how we used to sit on the floor like this and watch all your favorite shows?" And Stetson would nod.

When his family and friends were in the depths of depression, we all somehow managed to smile and be cheerful when we were with him. And a moment later we would leave the room and cry.

A day before his birthday he printed: "I want to get well soon." And for his last birthday party his first-grade classmates made a recording in which they told him to get well soon and that they loved him.

At the birthday party, amid all the excitement of cake and ice cream, birthday cards, funny hats and laughing with those who loved him most, he stopped while opening one of his gifts and said, "I'm so lucky."

In late July doctors told his parents the end was near. But, Stetson's heart and spirit kept him with us much longer than doctors thought possible.

The last story I read to him in his bedroom with the Power Rangers wallpaper was "Can't You Sleep, Little Bear?" Before saying goodnight I said, "Stetson, do you know we love you very much?" He thought for a moment and said, "I know, but I still like to hear it."

The last sentence I heard him speak was on the telephone, and he said, "I love you." I have a recording of it.

Stetson loved horses. Those arriving at the funeral home that evening saw two mounted Boston police officers stationed at the entrance. When Stetson died, he did not take leave of us alone; he took part of us with him. But he also left us cherished memories that will be with us always.

Palestinian people paid for Israel's celebration

The celebration of the 50th anniversary of Israel has been paid for by the souls and lives of the Palestinian people.

I was born in 1948 in the heart of Jerusalem. I had no childhood, I had no happiness. I used to think that this was because of my family but I soon discovered that all Palestinian kids felt the same. This was not because our country was poor or that our family was poor because my grandfather told us about the "Good of Days" when my people owned the orange groves, sheep herds and the land of our forefathers. My unhappiness was because of a decision made by total strangers in 1948 that we did not deserve our own state and that our country did not belong to us any longer. I wish that my childhood could have been like the kids in America. I watch my own children and their friends enjoy a life without fear or want. When I think of my childhood, it is like a horror movie in my head.

Vice President Al Gore visited Israel to celebrate the 50th anniversary of a country so far away from his country to praise their accomplishments. (His time could have been spent better viewing and consoling the many victims of the disasters that happen every day here in the United States). President Clinton stated that he is so happy for Israel because of their democracy, their accomplishment over the past 50 years and the fact that they made the desert bloom. Mr. President, I don't mean to contradict you, but there is no democracy in that part of the world.

MOHAMMAD Y. LUTFI

Mohammad Lutfi is a Palestinian born American businessman in Central Florida

The Israelis illegally annexed the Golan Heights and occupy part of Lebanon and created hundreds of thousands of refugees. The Israelis created the "Iron Fist" policy of Rabin against the tortured and innocent natives of that land. And they have refused all United Nation resolutions.

Mr. President, it is not the Israelis that made the desert bloom and they have not accomplished anything on their own. Western Europe and the United States' money and blind support, as well as the thousands of Palestinian lives have made the desert bloom. If you want to talk about accomplishments, why not move our support from Israel and help Zimbabwe and Mozambique (the poorest nations on Earth) then there, deserts might also bloom.

If we look at other countries that have gained their independence over the past 50 years, they have major accomplishments that were of their own making and not that of other countries and outside support. Syria, with twice the population of Israel, after their independence from France has become totally self sufficient with no foreign aid. Iran, with 10 times the population of Israel has no foreign aid and is also totally self sufficient.

A recent poll in Central Florida shows that 74 percent of those responding reject the idea of aid to Israel. These same Americans are tired of the blind support of Israel with no return. Yet 24 percent of Americans support this blind effort and still do not understand the feelings of the Palestinian people. When Vice President Gore commends the accomplishments of Israel, the Palestinian people view it as a celebration of the catastrophes against them, their heritage and their country. This only fuels the tempers of the brave freedom fighters of the Hamas and the Haabula as they defend their way of life as would each and every American if our shores were invaded.

Vice President Gore's visit and remarks gained a vast deposit of hate from the Arab and Islamic world. Someday the 74 percent of the American people that are tired of the blind support of Israel will face the hate that the other 24 percent has cast upon this fine country.

Tour promoted excellent Sanford schools

Tuesday, May 5, I joined the Realtors Tour of the Sanford public schools. The chairman of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce's Education Committee, Mr. Jerry W. Mills, served as our tour leader. The Realtors have a strategic role to play in facilitating where new residents in Central Florida make their home. The tour provided an opportunity for the Realtors to become acquainted with the quality of education taking place and being planned for this community.

The physical plants and the educational offering at Wicklow Elementary School, Sanford Middle School and Seminole High School were the focal points.

The tour began at Wicklow Elementary School which was the closest in proximity to the Orlando Sanford Airport where we assembled at 8:30 a.m. Wicklow is at 100 Placid Lake Drive and is immediately accessible from Airport Boulevard. The school was named Wicklow because of a partnership with our sister county in Wicklow, Ireland. Classes at Wicklow began September of 1997. The student enrollment as of April 24, 1998 was 627. Wicklow has a capacity for 804 students. The school has 37 classrooms, 4 resource rooms and a skills lab. The skills lab is equipped with 30 Dell computers. The Central Media Center has a TV production studio, which is manned by the students. Network wiring exists throughout the school with two computer stations per classroom. An Art Room and Music Suite are equipped to provide learning experiences for the students in these areas. Dr. Fran Duvall is the principal.

Wicklow is one of the four elementary cluster schools, the others are: Pine Crest, Idyllwild and Wilson.

Seminole High School was our next destination. We were welcomed by the principal, Mrs. Gretchen M. Schapler. The school houses a very successful magnet program, Academy of Health Careers, which serves as a model for other school districts nationwide. The International Baccalaureate Diploma Program, which has been available for some time at Winter Park High School in Orange County will be available at Seminole High School beginning in the 1998-99 school year with 9th grade. The program will be phased in by adding a grade each year. Students who began the program during the 1998-99 school year should become the first program graduates in the year 2001-2002.

The International Baccalaureate Diploma Program (i.e. IB) was originally developed to provide worldwide standards of academic excellence for the children of diplomats. It has grown to provide an internationally recognized liberal arts curriculum, incorporating humanities, mathematics and science for the highest motivated college bound student. The home office of the IB program was established in 1968 in Geneva, Switzerland. There are 700 IB programs in 91 countries. The University of Florida has the highest enrollment of IB students of any United States University.

The tour participants were treated to a stellar song and dance performance by students under the direction of Mr. Bob Maguire. We were advised that a new access route to Seminole High School is being planned from Airport Boulevard. This is scheduled to be available later this year.

Our final visit was to Sanford

Middle School, where construction is under way to provide a facility to accommodate the magnet programs, and eliminate the portable classrooms. Sanford Middle School is scheduled to become a math, science and technology magnet as well as a Pre-International Baccalaureate Program site during the 1998-99 school year.

Both the band and a choral group performed for us and the principal, Mr. Bill Moore, had accompanied us on the tour.

The tour was sponsored by PNC Mortgage and Chelsea Title Company and ended with a tour of Historic Downtown Sanford.

Now for the Ernie Hatton statements. Mr. Hatton is a GENTLEMAN. He is civil, and well bred, meaning he has good manners. You Mr. Goff have the reputation of being boorish, uncivil, obnoxious, boudacious, verbose and bordering on misleading statements, actually touching on libel. It is you who needs to learn to write the truth, instead of innerring. Perhaps you should be the one to shut up.

Of course, we the taxpayers, can't wait to fire you at the next election or perhaps a recall should occur. You are a poor example for our students to emulate and that goes for your whole fanatical group who are your associates. We are tired of the mantra of "goody two shoes" when actually your associates take glee in destructive behavior towards others. Rumor mongering is not looked upon as a moral attribute or slanderous sick humor. So we bid you to Si vous plait, fermez la bouche, interpreted in polite society "if you please, close your mouth" or better yet stop writing, a columnist your not.

What do we know?

A 17 year-old kid is in critical condition after plowing his jet-ski into a Bear Lake dock one recent Monday.

This is the third jet-ski accident that has occurred within sight of my house in the past 9 months--since my neighbors and I began pleading with the Seminole County Board of Commissioners, county manager and sheriff to deal with the problem of reckless boaters.

Would this accident have happened if the county manager had installed the "Boating Safety" signs on the access ramps to this lake that were approved by the Board of Commissioners 6 months ago--the signs currently stored at the county Traffic Engineering Division?

Would this accident have happened if the sheriff enforced Seminole County Ordinance 98-20 (No-Wake within 50 yards of shoreline areas) that the Board of Commissioners approved last month?

Would this accident have happened if the Board of Commissioners had paid as much attention to the problem of reckless boaters as they did to girle bars and free, boondoggie trips to Europe?

We don't think so. But what we do know--we are only taxpayers and voters.
Sincerely,

On Fort Mellon Park

After remaining silent for a few months regarding the mayor of Sanford and the city commission covering Sanford's Fort Mellon Park with a hotel and conference center, I would like to speak out about this complex going into the park.

If you look at new communities and small cities, such as Celebration and the development of Orlando Naval Training Center, you will see that they have been and are located around a community park. Folks who are lucky enough to live in these communities can walk into their town and enjoy the use of their park. I am not against the hotel project, but I am AGAINST it going into Fort Mellon Park. Sanford is lucky to have beautiful Lake Monroe and plenty of property going around the lake. Use some of this property for the development of hotels and conference centers.

While it is true that I no longer live in the Sanford city limits, anyone that knows me will tell you that my heart is in Sanford.

We want to keep our Fort Mellon Park! I would encourage all who do not want our park destroyed, please call the city commissioners to let it be known or better yet, write a letter.

I believe that the voters should have their say of the location of this project and not have it crammed down their throats.

CCE: A little daily help is appreciated

By Debra Wood, RN
HERALD CORRESPONDENT

For more than 6 years, 90-year-old Melvin McCauley has taken care of his chairbound wife, Viola, in the couple's Casselberry home, with the help of Community Care for the Elderly (CCE).

"We'd be lost without them. It's good, very good," McCauley said. "I like them coming. It kind of breaks up the monotony a little bit. I couldn't do without them."

A broken hip, followed by double pneumonia, left Viola too weak to walk or take care of herself. Her life-long companion learned how to juggle cooking and household tasks with 24-hour-a-day caregiving. The CCE aide's gentle touch at bath time and the homemaker's thorough house cleaning made the job easier.

Weakened by cancer, Lelei Johnson, another Seminole resident, also relies on the non-profit, state-funded agency for help with housecleaning, bathing and social-service referrals.

For these seniors and more than 2,400 frail, low-income elderly like them, CCE prevents or delays a move to a nursing home.

"Our clients require the assistance of a case manager and are at imminent risk of nursing home placement without Viola and Melvin McCauley rely on the service of CCE personal-care worker and homemakers to continue living at home.

intervention," said Winter Springs resident Marsha Lorenz, executive director of CCE. "We serve low-income seniors with major deficiencies in activities of daily living, such as eating, bathing, dressing and grooming, and those frail elderly with weak support systems, lacking the involvement of friends, family and church."

Case managers tailor the services CCE provides to promote self-sufficiency. They also coordinate with other community agencies to avoid duplications of service. In addition to personal care and homemaking, the agency offers clients respite and private-duty services. In Seminole County, CCE contracts with St. Mary Magdalen Adult Center to provide adult day care, to income-eligible clients, and with Better Living for Seniors for meals and chore services.

Close to 100 volunteers and national-service program members supply the manpower for the CCE's sitter/companion and a friendly visitor programs. Project R.E.L.I.E.F. gives caregivers a break while a volunteer stays with the infirm loved one. Senior Companions run errands, visit, and take clients to medical appointments or out for a breath of fresh air.

This July, marks CCE's 18th year of operation in Orange and Seminole counties, most recently as part of the Orlando Regional Healthcare System. The average cost of care is only $3,000 per client per year. With annual nursing home costs running about $30,000, CCE's services are quite a bargain.

For the McCauleys and Johnson, the services mean more than cost savings. They let the seniors live out their days in the comfort of home.

"I appreciate the help I get from them," Johnson said. "Without them, I couldn't make it."

Simple Cure to Overweight Problems

Lots of people treat being overweight like it is an incurable disease. The truth is, out of all the unfortunate things that could happen, being overweight is the most curable. Taking care of overweight problems could reduce the risk of high blood pressure, stress, back aches, and heart disease. It is never too late to start a simple exercise and nutrition program. Good health is the key to long life.

Medicare help

TAMPA - If you are a Medicare recipient and feel you have received poor medical care, the Federal Government has an agency to assist with your Medicare concerns.

Each state has an agency called a Medicare Peer Review Organization, or PRO. The PRO investigates complaints by Medicare recipients in their state about the quality of care provided by hospitals (both inpatient and outpatient departments), as well as emergency rooms, skilled nursing facilities, home health agencies, ambulatory surgery centers, hospices, Health Maintenance Organizations (HMOs) and Competitive Medical Plans (CMPs), plus HMO/CMP physician office visits. In Florida, the state PRO is called FMQAI.

If you have questions, concerns or complaints about the quality of medical care you received from one of these facilities you or your representative may contact the Florida PRO at:

Florida Medical Quality Assurance, Inc. (FMQAI)
4350 West Cypress St.,
Ste. 900
Tampa, FL 33607-4151
1-800-844-0795

In addition, your Florida PRO, FMQAI, maintains a nationwide access 1-800 hotline for you to call if you have questions about your rights under Medicare. The Answer Hotline can be reached at 1-800-844-0795. Telephones are answered in English and Spanish by trained professionals, Monday through Friday 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

If you have a complaint about your billing, you may call Medicare at 1-800-333-7586.

Celebrate Nat'l Senior Health & Fitness Day with Senior Friends

Special to the Herald

SANFORD - On Wednesday, May 27, older adults will gather at the Seminole Towne Center in Sanford at 7:30 a.m. to participate in the 8th annual National Senior Health & Fitness Day. Central Florida Regional Hospital's Senior Friends program and the Sanford Senior Center is one of the hundreds of organizations participating in this event across the country. National Senior Health and Fitness Day, which encourages all older adults to increase their vitality through regular physical activity, is expected to be the largest fitness event for seniors in the nation.

Participants are invited to begin the festivities by putting on their walking shoes and participating in the Mall Walking program sponsored by the Seminole Towne Center, Sanford Senior Center and Senior Friends in Sanford. The Mall Walking Program has been a wonderful success since its start in January 1998 and enables seniors to exercise and meet new people in an indoor air-conditioned setting.

National Senior Health & Fitness Day, the first such activity of its kind, is always held on the last Wednesday in May as part of Older Americans Month.

"Research shows that exercise is beneficial for even the oldest adult, helping them improve the quality of their lives. Through this event, we want to get older adults excited about physical activity and help them begin to take advantage of the many health and fitness programs available to seniors through our Senior Friends program," says Lis Lawlor, Community Relations Director at Central Florida Regional Hospital.

Day long events include: 7:30 - 9 a.m. Fitness Walk & Health Screenings - Seminole Town Center - Free Complimentary health screenings will be available at 7:30 a.m., and will include the following: Grip Strength Test, Blood Pressure, Arthritis Assessment and Body Fat Testing.

9 a.m. Senior Aerobics - Sanford Civic Center - Free Low Impact aerobics geared specifically for the mature adult.

9:30-10:30 a.m. Health Screenings - Sanford Civic Center - Free All health screenings listed above will be available.

10:00 a.m.-12:00 noon Line Dancing - Sanford Senior Center - 68 Seniors Get in step with Polly Gaudreau for some line dancing fun.

12:30 p.m. Florida Lunch - Sanford Senior Center Court - $8.99 per person Box lunches will be provided by Central Florida Regional Hospital.

and county would need to come up with $10 or $11 million - about the cost of the conference center. CRA has agreed to bonding for the project. The estimated bond size is $6,990,000 for the minimum increment and as much as $7,390,000 for the maximum increment.

Each of the county commissioners has received an economic impact analysis and estimate of tax increment for the Lake Monroe and downtown Sanford Redevelopment area and hotel/convention center plan. The analysis was provided this month by Fishkind & Associates in Orlando.

Estimates are that 1,221 will be employed at the development area, earning $30,188,850 per year.

Joseph Pacitti is the president of PRA, the development company that wants to build the complex. PRA is developing a number of hotels in Connecticut, Pennsylvania and Florida. Doubletree Hotels want to be part of the enterprise.

"Mayor (Larry) Dale is going to say to the commissioners - formally and officially what it's going to take and what it can do for Seminole County," Sanford City Manager Bill Simmons said. "He'll give them facts and answer questions. We've sent out a fact-sheet regarding issues people are asking about."

Morris said the hotel/conference center would revitalize Sanford. "It's the best site for the conference center. You can't walk around I-4 where some people want the center. That isn't pedestrian friendly. In Sanford, you can walk to the shops and restaurants. The Piznall people who did Heathrow even picked it No. 1."

Dale said he wants to assure those residents who are concerned about what is going to happen to the existing facilities at Fort Mellon Park that nothing will be lost.

The Sanford Museum would remain and be integrated into the conference center. The Senior Center, Civic Center and Chamber of Commerce will remain also. The two ballfields will be relocated to Chase Park and other recreation facilities will be relocated to other parks.

The public will always have access to the lakefront. Seminole Boulevard will be redeveloped in the area between the bulkhead and the hotel/conference center complex as an enhanced pedestrian-oriented waterfront amenity.

As a separate project, Sanford has secured a grant from Metropolitan Orlando Florida Department of Transportation to construct a multi-use walkway from Mellonville Ave. to Westside Park and Boat Ramp west of Interstate 4.

"Some say this is a done deal," County Commissioner Grant Maloy said. "I thought we might be better off with a more centralized site - like the one at I-4 and the new 46A interchange. I'd heard, too, we wanted a stand-alone unit for the conference center. I have questions."

Commissioner Win Adams is enthusiastic about the project. "I believe Mayor Dale is on to something. He's a developer and has vision. He's got my respect. This is a good thing."

wonderful source of strength as well. She said it not only prepared her whole family for her sister's passing, but the knowledge that he and Ashley would be together in heaven was a tremendous comfort to them in the midst of their heartache.

Although Brittany humbly accepts praise for her positive attitude, hard work, and caring assistance through Ashley's illness and death, she is quick to honor her sister Candace, who devoted blood and bone marrow in an effort to save Ashley.

Brittany said that there was no way to describe how she felt when Principal Kirach and her teacher, George Gordon, told her that she had won the Dreamer and Doer award. "It was amazing. An awesome feeling," she said.

The medal was presented by Olympic gold-medalist Jackie Joyner Kersey of whom Brittany reveres. "She was so nice, and it was just incredible meeting her. She inspires me because track is one of my favorite sports. She told me to keep up my good attitude and when I told her that I'd like to become a famous track star like her, she said that I could take her place one day if I put my mind to it."

In addition to hopes of joining the track team at Jackson Heights Middle School next year, Brittany wants to be involved in basketball as well. She already enjoys involvement in many other activities including choir and Junior Youth Fellowship at the University of the Holy Spirit Church, as well as private piano lessons, and cheerleading at school. She also notes that her favorite hobby is listening to all kinds of music, with the exception of heavy metal and rap.

Brittany's career interest is to become a 10th grade math teacher; math because it is her favorite and best subject, and 10th grade because she said that her 10th grade friends are so "mature".

"I enjoy figuring problems out" she beamed, "so I want to help others learn how."

And the opinion of Gordon is consistent with her noble goal. "She aims to please and is a hard worker."

Hoffman stated that in the face of hardship, sacrifice, and adversity, many people make excuses and fall apart, but not Brittany. She said that Brittany has a wonderful family and is a blessing who has already made a difference in this life, and who will continue to make her mark in the future.

When asked what message she would like to express to the world Brittany said, "No matter what happens, be strong and believe in what you want to do."

said. "Wars are nothing but useless killings and I don't think we should be out there jumping up and down about something that is nothing." The veteran said he would prefer his name not be used.

Sanford resident Horace Paul gave a different approach. He has been actively involved in various veterans organizations including Sanford's Fleet Reserve, and has been an ardent supporter of all armed forces activities.

"Our country needs a rebirth of the spirit of Memorial Day," he said. "This should be one day in which not only the youngsters but the older generations are made aware of those who fought in World War II and Korea, and what their sacrifice did to help them be in the freedom we have today."

Paul entered the U.S. Coast Guard in 1959 and served during World War II on convoy duty in the North Atlantic. After the war, he joined the Marine Corps, and eventually served in the Navy, for a total of 23 years in military service.

Friday morning, Charles Graham of Lake Mary was involved in preparing for the upcoming weekend's events at the American Legion Post 53 in Sanford. "We have to teach more Americanism courses in our schools," he said. "They teach some of it, but they don't carry it into what actually happened in our wars and why we had to fight, especially for all of the people enjoying our nation and its freedom."

Graham is also a Coast Guard veteran. "Many people don't really know how important the Coast Guard was during our wars," he explained. "We were involved in every invasion and every battle of the war." He served in both the Atlantic and Pacific theaters of operation.

Several other veterans agreed that informing the youth of today regarding what was required and what sacrifices were made in order to maintain the American way of life was one of the important needs of today.

Other than the Persian Gulf War in 1991, the last U.S. war involvement was the Vietnam War from Aug. 1964 to Jan. 1973. Several veterans observed that most of our present college graduates weren't even born when that war ended.

The Memorial Day parade in Sanford will begin shortly after 10:30 a.m. Monday, at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce building on E. First Street. The parade will travel west to Park Avenue, then north to Memorial Park on the lakefront where official services will begin at 11 a.m.

All local military veterans organizations will be participating in the parade as well as the memorial services.

the construction of the Cross Seminole Trail and $1.875 million for a pedestrian overpass from the Florida National Scenic Trail (along Markham Woods Road) over I-4 to Rinehart Road in Lake Mary.

Graham said the bill would go a long way toward addressing some of the state's most pressing infrastructural challenges, such as the I-4 bridge. The site of several tragic accidents of late, the 4-lane bridge daily carries double the 35,000 vehicles it was designed to handle. Florida Department of Transportation spokesman Steve Homan has called the bridge project a "high priority".

Two Volusia County projects, of interest to Seminole County drivers, include $1.6 million allocated to widen State Road 44, from DeLand to New Smyrna Beach (the narrow 2-lane is popular with beachgoers from this area) and $1.35 million earmarked for the widening of U.S. Highway 17-92 from the St. Johns River bridge north to Delary.

Leapin' lizards! Godzilla not much to roar about

Little Dinky. I will help you catch that "leezerd, leezerd". Yes, it's a lizard folks. And despite all the hype and hoopla, it falls short of being exciting or involving. I'll take those tacos Dinky. This Godzilla (**1/2) was made to starve.

Director Roland Emmerich and producer Dean Devlin have absolutely no trouble creating big scale action flicks or sci-fi pics. They just can't develop a story to go with them. Even though Independence Day, the film that put Emmerich and Devlin into the big leagues, survived on its action and humor, its story almost failed to register.

We wanted Will Smith and Jeff Goldblum to smash those nasty aliens who were bent on universal domination. But give the poor nuclear-made lizard in Godzilla a break. The humans in the film want to destroy something that their own ignorance created. (As the song goes: "History shows again and again how nature winds up the folly of man.") Even though the audience is supposed to be happy when Godzilla is hurt, I ended up feeling more sympathy for the monster than happiness for the human lugheads.

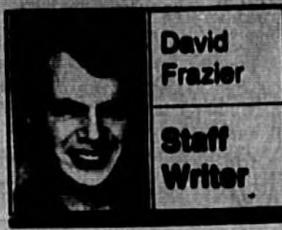

Toho Company Ltd. should be satisfied with the makeover that the star of their schlocky B-movies receives. The 44-year old legend becomes more reptilian and thinner for this big budget event movie. No more Japanese men in rubber suits. He is a remarkable trademark of computer generated effects.

But old Godzilla should contact his agent for getting a hold of this script. Godzilla is a hybrid developed when a nuclear test collides with nature. He goes to the Big Apple, and not to catch the last Seinfeld episode. He (or whatever) is in New York for a different purpose. But, instead of wanting to understand what he is or taking him back to some island as in Last World: Jurassic Park, armies and scientists would rather use Godzilla dead.

Now, there is some talk of acquiescing this new Godzilla. The film's human star, Matthew Broderick, has been rumored to have signed on for two more sequels. Hopefully, enough people will catch on to this film so that these films can be made. I would hate to see Godzilla stop here.

But if the previous bloated bonanza is not what you seek this weekend, you may try out Fear and Loathing in Las Vegas (***). A walk on the wild side? Understatement. This film rings out its viewers with the "trip" at its core. Russell Duke (Johnny Depp) and his trusty lawyer, Dr. Gonzo (Benicio Del Toro), make Jim Morrison's drug use seem tamed.

Duke is the alter ego of writer Hunter S. Thompson, who writes for Rolling Stone magazine. In the film based on

David Frazier

Staff Writer

Thompson's book of the same name, Duke and Gonzo go on an odyssey through the Nevada desert in search of the American Dream. They jump around spot to spot, and they encounter a few sober blokes on their way. But, mostly, the movie focuses on the excessive drug abuse by Duke and Gonzo.

In the trunk of their convertible, they carry a briefcase that would give Eckerds stiff competition. Miraculously, they always seem to end up where they need to be. In this case, a motor bike race called the Mint 400. Frankly, it is blind luck that they get there, and in one piece.

Fear and Loathing in Las Vegas is directed by Terry O'Quinn, the creative director of such eye popping visual films as 12 Monkeys and Brazil. In his new film, he makes sure that we see the world through the narcotics-crazed eyes of our anti-heroes.

What is remarkable is how Duke is conscious enough to remember what his original purpose for coming to Vegas is. Even if he does not handle his assignment in the proper, journalistic way, he still manages to get it done. This "by-the-seat-of-your-pants" approach to reporting is where the phrase "gonzo journalism" was coined.

The press kit describes the theme of Fear and Loathing to be hope. I can't imagine where hope would spawn from with two hopeless wastoids as Duke and Gonzo. The film is set in 1971, a year that, I suppose, meant hopeful change. I guess that is where the "gonzo" comes from. Still, the film is wild, humorous and hallucinatory to an excessive degree. It may not add up to much except being a warning on the use of psychotropic drugs.

Last week, a romance named Deja Vu (***). Last week, a romance named Deja Vu (***). I thought I said that. Anyway, Henry Jaglom presents this overly romantic film that suggests to throw caution to the wind and go with your heart because life is short.

Deja Vu is about a woman from the States on a trip to the Middle East. She meets this man, who she thinks she has met before, and falls madly in love with him even though he is married to another woman and she is engaged to a man in New York.

The film uses an over wrought amount of chance, fate and coincidence. It's starry-eyed fantasy, yet it still manages to be interesting, and it occasionally makes you swoon. My main problem with certain romances is that if two people must be together then logic be damned. In Deja Vu, the characters that are meant to be together seem to just brush aside those who share a commitment with them. I accept that there is a perfect match for everyone, but why can't there be any significant dialogue between the couples? How do those 2 that are being ditched feel? That is never really addressed in Deja Vu.

Cliches and contrivances pepper the new romantic comedy from England, Shooting Fish (**1/2). Three youngsters set about fleeing the well-to-do, and it catches up to them.

Directed by Stefan Schwartz and written by Schwartz and Richard Holmes, Shooting Fish is the story of a smooth talking American (Dan Futterman) and a technically brilliant British orphan (Stuart Townsend) forming an alliance with a pixie-looking med student (Kate Beckinsale) to conduct scams against corporations, upper middle class families and an egotistical millionaire.

Even though films are moments of humor and the three leads are charming, Shooting Fish resembles a washed up sitcom. The premise seems so familiar. Fish shot itself in the foot.

Lastly, there is the animated bore Quest for Camelot (**). Warner Bros. joins the league of studios mounting an offensive against Disney with their own full length animated films. Instead, they end up copying Disney.

You have a hero or heroine. You have a love interest. You have mother or father figures or both. You have the evil villains bent on takeover. Then you have the usual assortment of anthropomorphized animals that make for great toys.

This is all good, but you have to have a story to put all of that together. Quest for Camelot does not.

Buscemi, Cassel named to film festival line-up

From Staff Reports

MAITLAND - Multi-purpose actor Steve Buscemi and veteran actor Seymour Cassel will be hosting a screening of their film, In the Soup at the 1998 Florida Film Festival.

Buscemi is best known for his roles in the Joel and Ethan Coen films such as Fargo, The Big Lebowski, The Hudsucker Proxy and Baron Finck. He has also appeared in Quentin Tarantino's Reservoir Dogs and Pulp Fiction. He has directed and starred in his own film called Trees Lounge. He will star in the upcoming extravaganza, Armageddon, starring Bruce Willis, Billy Bob Thornton and Ben Affleck. He was in last year's Con Air. The Florida Film Festival is planning to award Buscemi with The Enslan Award for Artistic Achievement at the festival's awards gala at Universal Studios Florida.

Actor Seymour Cassel's career began in boyhood as he traveled with a troupe of performers. Cassel has appeared in films with directors like Sam Peckinpah (Convoy), Adrian Lyne (Judgment), Warren Beatty (Dick Tracy), Nicholas Reg (Track 88) and John Cassavetes (The Last Days). Cassel won an award for his role in the film In the Soup at the Sundance Film Seen here in The Big Lebowski, Steve Buscemi will be at the Florida Film Festival.

Festival. Cassel will serve as a juror for shorts at The 1998 Florida Film Festival.

Buscemi and Cassel will appear at the Festival Awards Gala at Universal Studios on Saturday, June 20 at 8 p.m. and will host the screening of In the Soup at the Maitland Theater.

Weapons

The test for the project was initiated at Lake Brantley High School. As a result of this first operation, a weapon was recovered and it increased student awareness. Now, the program is being spread county-wide.

"I definitely applaud this initiative," School Board Chairman Barbara Kuhn said Saturday. "We need to emphasize how the school board is trying so hard to have less government and encourage parent involvement. Some of our best ideas come from parents."

Support for WISE is being given by area civic organizations, school administrations and businesses. Congressman Bill McCollum has also endorsed the program.

A rash of teens on deadly shooting sprees at schools across the United States has dominated the news in recent months. A nationwide report lists Florida as having the second highest juvenile crime rate. In Central Florida, more than 350 guns and other weapons are confiscated each year.

"It isn't just somebody else's problem anymore. It's right here," Gaspman said.

Kuhn said WISE is "one more tool in our toolbox for addressing these problems. We are going to continue to support our kids and our schools."

Johnson sits in Winter Park waiting for the call to return to 'The Show'

SANFORD The best darned manager in all of baseball sits at home in Winter Park while the long circle of life that has been baseball for nearly 150 years continues without him.

Devey Johnson has been one of baseball's best managers for over much of the past decade. He has led three teams to the playoffs and never finished below second place.

But Johnson, who managed the New York Mets to the 1987 World Championship and is a member of the Seminole County Sports Hall of Fame, plays a lot of golf and waits for a phone call that will more likely go to a retreat or an unproven commodity.

Look at some of the managerial hirings since last year and aim right at Baltimore, the team that broke ways with Johnson after he led them to the post-season each year he was there.

Last season, Baltimore won 98 games. The year before, the Orioles advanced to the championship series and were on the verge of going to the World Series before an 11-year-old reached over the fence and turned a probable Derek Jeter fly ball out into a series momentum changing home run.

After battling with Peter Angelos, the owner of the Orioles, Johnson got booted out of Baltimore where he was a golden-glove second baseman during the Orioles' glory years of the late 60s and early 70s.

In his place, the Orioles hired Ray Miller. Miller, who you have probably never heard of, last managed in Minnesota in the mid-1980s. He's adept at handling a pitching staff even though most of the Orioles are well past their prime.

Still, Miller knows how to say yes and Johnson never did unless they were on his terms.

Now, look at the Orioles. Local talk shows are having a field day calling for Johnson's return from exile. Baltimore isn't your typical town where you're a hero one day, a bum the next.

Players like Brooks Robinson, Boog Powell, Jim Palmer and any of the other stars of the glory days ever have to pay for a steamed crab in the city of Baltimore.

Shoot, 15 years after the Colts were stolen from Baltimore, Johnny U. is a bigger legend there than anyone who will ever suit up for the Ravens.

So it has to bring a smile to Johnson's face as he thinks about the plight of the egotistical Angelos who is pillaging his minor league, once the best in all of baseball, as he spends millions for has-beens like Doug Drabek, Joe Carter, Ozzie Guillen and some other players whose primes went out with disco.

It's just another long line in a series where the arrogance of the millionaire owners takes precedence over a knowledgeable baseball veteran.

Now the Orioles are paying the price and Angelos has to look out at empty seats in the Camden Yards while figuring out how to pay the bills with the highest salaried team in all of baseball.

And the guy who could have made it all right attends high school baseball games (he was at the Lyman - Lake Howell game three weeks ago).

He looked happy. But Devey Johnson is a baseball man who isn't managing baseball.

That's too bad. Do owners want a winner or do they want Jack McKeon?

Last Second Shot: The major league draft will be held next week. Seminole County has at least three players who are expected to be taken in the first round. Has that ever happened?

Is it football time already?

Lyman drop Pats, 14-0 in jamboree

Lake Brantley quarterback Regan Russell looks for some running room during last night's 14-0 loss to Lyman in the Spring Jamboree.

By Jeff Berlinicke
ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

It hasn't been easy being a football player at Lyman the past few years.

Typically, the Greyhounds get off to a slow start and the snowball turns into something even worse.

The Greyhounds are trying to stop the series of skids and got off to a strong start with a convincing 14-0 win over Lake Brantley in the Seminole County Football Jamboree at Lake Howell.

The Greyhounds shined on defense and got a big play to give them their first lead of the game.

Lyman coach Larry Baker has been through enough tough years that, much like last year when his team got off to a promising start, better days were ahead.

"We're certainly pleased with our practices and the way the defense played tonight," Baker said. "We just need to get off to a good start this year."

Lake Brantley is coming of a season without making regionals, but was one of the best teams in the county as the Patriots got used to playing for first-year coach George Clayton.

The Patriots brought out their patented option offense and moved the ball early after forcing Lyman to go three-and-out on the opening drive.

Regan Russell, who is taking over for graduated Brian Criswell, got the offense moving, but the drive stalled deep in Lyman territory.

Lyman followed with a fumble of its own and the teams traded possession to end the first half. The teams played a half each last night.

In the second half, Brad Harris took the second play 60 yards down the middle and the extra point made it 7-0, Lyman.

Lake Brantley threatened late, and reached the Lyman 12 with 36 seconds remaining, but a Patriot pass was picked off in the end zone by Ann Cleveland who returned it 101 yards to give Lyman the win.

Clayton said he wasn't concerned with the loss. The Brian (Criswell) and Ryan (Pagan) Show finished out a long run last year, but both were injured at the end of the season and Clayton got to peek at the future. Regan played well down the stretch.

"We won't fall from where we were last year," Clayton said. "Sure we lost 2,000 yards in offense, but we've had a real good spring."

'Noles survive late comeback; spoil Stanton's debut

By Kellie Womser
HERALD STAFF WRITER

Defense has always been a strong suit for the 'Noles.

Last night was no different. At the Seminole County jamboree last night, rivals Seminole and Lake Mary duked it out for a half with the 'Noles pulling out the win, 12-10.

It actually could have been much worse for Seminoles, as Lake Mary played well and the Tribe just couldn't seem to hang on to the ball.

"Usually when you can't hang onto the ball it's a lack of concentration," said Seminole coach Jim Worthington. "Not nerves or excitement or anything like that. We definitely need to work on our ball handling skills."

Lake Mary was forced to punt on its first possession and Seminole answered with a touchdown drive that lasted six plays and was capped by a 40-yard reverse by Mario Frederick. The extra point was blocked and the 'Noles had a 6-0 lead.

All was quiet until the end of the quarter, however two plays into the second, quarterback Garrett Goldsmith scored on a quarterback sneak, putting Seminoles up 13-0.

Lake Mary retaliated thanks to one of four Seminole fumbles and then threatened late in the half when Russ Abrams booted a field goal to put the Pams within two, 12-10.

Seminole fumbled again on the next possession, but regained the driver's seat when Mike Bradley intercepted a pass. Goldsmith downed the ball, running out the clock and securing the Seminole win.

The 'Noles are coming off of an 8-4 season and a conference title but have lost a lot of weapons in the process. While the offense struggled last night, Goldsmith was a bright spot at the quarterback position and having Dean Howard back in the line up is definitely a huge weapon for Seminole. Last night, however, the defense kept Seminole alive.

"The defense did a great job tonight and brought the victory home," Worthington said. "We found out a lot about everyone tonight and now know what work lies ahead of us. We need to focus and take advantage of the summer months to get better and better every day."

Lake Mary, on the other hand, has everything to gain this season and nothing to lose. The Pams are trying to put a winless season behind them and start fresh with a new coach at the helm. Although they did not pull out the win last night, there were definite signs of improvement.

"There were one or two times during the game that the kids could have quit," said Lake Mary coach Greg Stanton. "But they didn't. They hung in there and remained pumped up. All we have asked of them is to fight the fight and they did that for us tonight. I know that if we can hang in there until the final quarter, we will be in better condition than the teams we are playing. This is a great group of kids and I am expecting good things out of next year."

While Seminole has the defense to pull them through tough battles, Lake Mary is also looking for its defense, coupled with a strong hitting game, to make their season a successful one.

Could make for an interesting rematch at the end of the season.

Bears drop varsity debut

By Kellie Womser

Learning. That's what spring football is all about.

And Winter Springs High School got quite an education last night.

At the spring jamboree, hosted by Lake Howell High School, the Bears played the first game against Bishop Moore, losing 20-0.

All was not lost, however, as the learning process allowed the team of juniors, sophomores and freshmen to take a lot away from the field.

"This was our first varsity experience," said Winter Springs coach Mike Harris. "We realized we have a lot of growing up and a lot of work to do. Hopefully, a good summer program will make us stronger and able to play more physically. We were humbled tonight but it was definitely a good learning experience."

Winter Springs was able to put together a mini-drive in the first quarter, but little else came together for the team.

Bishop Moore scored quickly in the first quarter and then again near the end of the period. Winter Springs did block Bishop Moore second extra point attempt which showed the potential of Winter Springs' special teams.

Seems like old times for Hawks

By Jeff Berlinicke
ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

The scene was reminiscent of some of the celebrations in past years at Lake Howell, when the Silver Hawks would holler and mob each other after another conference or district title.

Last night, a similar celebration occurred as the Hawks beat Oviedo, 14-6. The difference was, this happiness was all about a jamboree.

Lake Howell hosted the event this season and the Hawks are coming off one of their worst seasons in years. Meanwhile, Oviedo is trying to keep up the magical run that culminated with a win over state power Dr. Phillips in the first round of regionals last season.

But, in this tense backyard rivalry, it was Lake Howell which made the statement, despite a strong running game from Oviedo back Larry Grayson.

The game was marred by an injury to Oviedo running back Kevin Quintero who was hit hard early in the game and spent at least 10 minutes on the ground before being placed in a neck brace. Quintero walked off the field under his own power, and coach Greg Register said it may have been a cracked collarbone.

Oviedo marched down field on the game's opening possession before Grayson was stopped at the goal line.

Lake Howell mounted an attack of its own as quarterback James Hansen and Christian DeJoux moved the ball well all night. Late in the first half, Hansen found Ricky Brewster over the middle and Brewster went the rest of the way for a 43-yard touchdown.

Oviedo had a chance to tie in the second half when back-to-back personal fouls on the Hawks moved the ball to the one and Grayson ran it in. The extra point was wide and it was 7-6.

Late in the game DeJoux went two yards for a score and the game ended when Larry Cummings picked off an Oviedo pass to seal it for the Hawks.

Lake Howell coach Mike Buscaglia was pleased with his team's spring, especially since he has only two offensive and four defensive starters returning.

"These kids have had a great attitude all spring," he said.

Register was also optimistic. "We're not looking for victories on the board right now," he said. "We're just looking for personal victories."

He found some last night. The Oviedo defense was tough and quarterback Ricky Starling, maybe the only new starting quarterback in Seminole County, was impressive at times in his first real start at Oviedo.

Register said the Lions, like everyone else in the county, have a tough time with the late start to spring football.

"It's tough and it's getting tougher," Register said. "With some of them already out of school, it makes it tough."

Despite last night's loss, the Lions should still battle it out with Lake Howell for the district title, with a challenge from Seminole, which beat Lake Mary, 15-10, for the Seminole County title.

Bears

Several Bears stepped up last night and played well, including Maurice Williams, Ken Meadows, Ramone Raines, Brent Lobo and quarterback Adam Abatar.

Harris was especially impressed with one of his players while remaining very unimpressed with others.

"Adam Sorokness had a really good night out there," Harris said. "He played both ways and played hard in the heat. We had to bench a few players at the start of the game because they were not doing things the way we wanted them done. That probably affected our mind set, but sometimes you just do what you have to."

How will this loss affect the very young Winter Springs squad? Will they remember this as a bad experience or will it serve to inspire them to do better?

"We have not had a bad spring at all," Harris said. "And if the players cannot take something positive away from this then they don't have the right attitude and don't need to return in the fall. These players are young and that's OK. We are playing teams that have already experienced success and now we want to start working toward earning that for ourselves."

There is still a lot of work ahead for the Winter Springs Bears, but they certainly have the right attitude. Don't count the Bears out when speculating about the season. A lot can happen over one short summer.

Raines was 0-for-3 with a walk, but the Yankees still handed the Baltimore Orioles their seventh straight loss, 3-1, Thursday night, completing a sweep of the three-game series between the East Division powers.

Upsets set up yet another showdown in Senior Baseball

From Staff Reports

ORLANDO - Here we go again. A pair of upsets last Sunday in the Orlando Senior Baseball Association Spring League at Edgewater High School has set up yet another showdown between the Cardinals and Yankees for first place.

Probably the biggest upset of the year was recorded by the Braves, who have gotten better and better as the season has progressed, as they handed the league-leading Yankees a 9-7 defeat.

The Braves led 9-6 entering the ninth inning and the Yankees had the bases loaded with no one out. But the leaders could only manage one run as Braves pitcher Doc Manos worked out of the jam.

The other game may have not seemed like an upset as the Cardinals, who had led or had been tied for the league lead every week in the season until two weeks ago, defeated the Mariners 9-4.

But the Mariners had beaten the Cardinals the last two times the teams had met and seemed to hold a spell over the Redbirds.

This time though, the Cardinals erased a 1-0 deficit with two runs in the bottom of the second inning and then tacked on three runs to the lead in the third inning.

The Mariners closed to within 5-3 in the top of the fourth inning, but the Cardinals finished the game by outscoring the Mariners 4-1 over the final 3-1/2 innings.

The Cardinals and Yankees are both 7-3 on the season, while the Mariners are 4-6 and the Braves are 2-8.

The OSBA has this weekend off for the Memorial Day holiday and will return to action at Edgewater High School on Sunday, May 31.

At 10 a.m., the Braves and Mariners will do battle and at 1 p.m., the Cardinals and Yankees will square off for the fourth time this season with first place on the line.

The league will close out the Spring season with a doubleheader on June 7th. The winning pitcher for the Cardinals was Nick Brady, who raised his record to 6-0. The righthander scattered five hits, striking out nine and walking four.

Doing the damage offensively for the Cardinals were Robert

Safe Boating Week; wear a life jacket

SANFORD - "Boat Smart from the Start; Wear Your Life Jacket," was the theme for this year's National Safe Boating Week, May 16-22. The Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission's (GFC's) Law Enforcement Division gears up for the nationwide safe boating campaign every year before Memorial Day weekend.

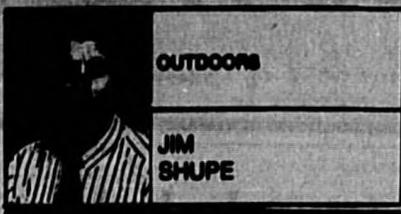

To promote life jacket use, Pennsoil Products Co. teamed up with the GFC by donating 2,000 T-shirts to be given away to children who wear life jackets during the event. The T-shirts will bear the Pennsoil Marine (TM) and the GFC logos and the slogan, "I got caught wearing my life jacket." The idea is to reinforce safe boating practices with a positive reward. This initiative was spearheaded by Pennsoil as part of its Responsible Outdoor Education (TM) campaign.

"Fatalities in Florida would decrease if people would wear life jackets," Capt. Paul Ouellette, the GFC's boating safety coordinator, said. "Sixty-seven people died last year in boating accidents; 63 were not wearing personal flotation devices (PFDs). The leading cause of death was drowning. Many boaters think to have a life jacket close by is safe enough. However, putting a life jacket on in the water is not easy, especially if you're knocked unconscious."

Other boating safety issues include boating while under the influence of alcohol (BUI) or drugs and boating education, Ouellette said.

Florida has 755,276 registered recreational vessels. Last year, there were 1,261 reported boating accidents, with 51 percent of the fatalities alcohol or drug related, according to the GFC 1997 Boating Safety Statistical Report.

"To boat smart from the start requires education and common sense, like wearing a life jacket anytime a vessel is under way, knowing the rules of navigation and boat operator instruction," Ouellette said. "Carelessness and inexperience are the primary causes of nearly all boating accidents."

Ouellette said he hopes the 1998 Safe Boating Campaign will generate a safe boating summer throughout Florida. Boating classes are offered throughout the state, so you can boat smart from the start. Check with your regional GFC office for locations and dates.

Alcohol and water do not mix. Studies have proven that the sun, combined with wave action, actually intensifies the effects of alcohol on the system.

FISHING FORECAST

Bass action in the river will gradually pick up as water levels continue to drop. Fishing will get red hot once the water is finally in the banks. Bass will gorge on grass shrimp and ditch minnows that are forced out of the flooded areas into the main river channel. Tiny Rapalas are absolutely deadly when this happens.

Sebastian Inlet has great snook action for fish to 20 pounds. Large live shrimp fished with a bare lead head is the top offering. Work this rig around the rocky bottom for sure strikes. Also expect flounder, bluefish, redfish and trout.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports fair action in 140 feet of water with dolphin and wahoo. The ocean has been dirty due to big ground seas from a distant low pressure area. Hopefully it will clean up by this weekend and action will pick up closer in. A few tripletail are hitting live shrimp in the buoy line, while flounder and sheepshead are dependable inside the Port. Trout and redfish are rated as good on the flats of the Banana and Indian Rivers.

It's still plenty of bluefish and sheepshead at Ponce Inlet. Live or dead shrimp is the top bait. Drum, redfish, jack crevalle and a few flounder are mixed in with catches. Redfish and trout are rated as good on the flats of Mosquito Lagoon.

SANFORD - Now that's a big fish. Sanford's Edward Jones poses with a huge 17-pound mullet that he caught in Mullet Lake Park Tuesday afternoon.

Pepsi 400 Collectible Pole Night Ticket also allows free admission for Friday

Special to the Herald

DAYTONA BEACH - The first official NASCAR events under the lights at Daytona International Speedway just got brighter. Free admission to the unreserved grandstand for a second day of racing activity is now being offered to all Collectible Pole Night ticket buyers.

"Daytona at the Speed of Light," a three-day Fourth of July celebration culminating with the State of Florida's biggest fireworks show, will mark the inaugural nighttime running of the Pepsi 400 on Saturday, July 4 at 8 p.m.

The Collectible Pole Night ticket, the first such ticket of its kind offered by the Speedway, will provide admission to the historic first nighttime qualifying event on Thursday, July 2 as well as admission to a full afternoon and evening of qualifying and practice on July 3.

"The response from fans to our decision to light the Speedway has been nothing short of phenomenal," said John Graham, president of the Speedway. "Allowing Thursday night's ticket buyers to attend Friday night's practice and qualifying for the Pepsi 400 free of charge is a small way for us to say 'thank you.' Thursday night (pole qualifying) will be a significant day in the history of Daytona and we want as many people as possible to enjoy it with us."

In celebration of America's largest nighttime sporting event and to commemorate NASCAR's 50th Anniversary, the 1998 Pepsi 400 Collectible Pole Night Ticket features Jeff Gordon, the youngest Pepsi 400 champion in the event's rich and colorful history.

"The 1998 Pepsi 400 is a perfect time to introduce the first collectible pole night ticket in the 40-year history of the Speedway," said Graham. "With each passing day, the anticipation surrounding the inaugural nighttime running of the Pepsi 400 grows. This collectible ticket will be just one more way race fans will be able to feel a part of this historic event."

The special, limited-edition ticket is a beautiful four-color design, featuring the No. 24 DuPont Pontiac Chevrolet of the 1998 Pepsi 400 champion in front of a true Daytona icon, a crowd filled Winston Tower grandstand. The ticket, which also displays a NASCAR 50th Anniversary logo, is not only a collectible, but also is good for gate admission for Bud Pole Award Qualifying at 8:15 p.m. on Thursday, July 2, when starting positions 1-25 will be determined for the race.

Gordon's 1998 Pepsi 400 title was his first points-paying NASCAR Winston Cup Series victory at Daytona. He is also the youngest champion in the history of the Daytona 500, winning the "Great American Race" in 1997.

Construction of the world's largest lighting project, which will enable Daytona to host the largest nighttime sporting event in the history of the United States, will be completed by May 27. Musco Lighting has erected more than 170 light poles and 430 light boxes around the massive Speedway.

More than 150 miles of wire, 800 tons of concrete and 2,800 square feet of mirrors have been used in developing the project. Each of the Mirran lighting fixtures on the inside of the Speedway are 118 times brighter than the high beam headlights of an automobile. The entire project will provide the same light produced by the high beam headlights of 67,000 cars.

Speedway officials have rescheduled qualifying for the 1998 Pepsi 400 to Thursday, July 2 at 8:15 p.m. Just as the race itself was moved from its traditional Saturday morning start to Saturday night at the request of fans, so too was Bud Pole Qualifying. Qualifying was originally scheduled for the afternoon of July 3.

"Qualifying at night will be spectacular," said 1997 Pepsi 400 champion John Andretti. "That's when the cars bottom out and the sparks start flying. I love racing at night."

A three-hour practice for the 40th Pepsi 400 will begin at 3 p.m. on July 2. The first 25 starting positions for the July 4 Pepsi 400 will be determined that night at 8:15 p.m.

The July 3 schedule includes practice from 3 p.m.-to-8:30 p.m. with second-round qualifying beginning at 6:30 p.m. and a 7:30 p.m.-to-9 p.m. final practice session under the lights which will prepare the cars and drivers for the July 4 race at 8 p.m.

Not only will the Pepsi 400 be the largest nighttime sporting event in the country, CBS Sports will make it the first live network television broadcast of a motorsports event in prime time.

Almost as anticipated as the race itself, the largest Independence Day fireworks show in the State of Florida will take to the sky high above the 2.5-mile Speedway immediately following the event. The world-famous Fireworks By Santore of Bunnell, will provide a 20-minute show set to music for each of the more than 140,000 spectators in the facility to enjoy.

All reserved seat tickets for the 1998 Pepsi 400 have been sold, however, there are several unreserved general admission opportunities available.

To witness this spectacular lighting system and two nights of NASCAR Winston Cup practice and qualifying for the price of one, Thursday Collectible Pole Night tickets must be purchased in advance for $15. Call the Speedway Ticket Office at (904) 365-7223, or for more information visit <http://www.DAYTONAUSA.com>.

Lawton's Jason Christner believes in himself

It's not tough to get Jason Christner talking. The fifth-grader at Lawton Elementary School was the school's winner of the Disney Dreamer Award. Not only his he an active member of the Oviedo community, but he is also quite confident about himself without sounding conceited.

Start out with Jason's accomplishments. It wasn't hard for the selection committee at Lawton to realize that Jason stands out quite a bit from the rest of his class.

"Well, I'm very active in my church at University Caroline," Jason said, "and I also do a lot with my junior youth fellowship group."

Jason was just getting on a roll.

He's also big in athletics, especially basketball and he plays in the Winter Springs basketball league. He also organizes car washes and food drives for his church.

At school, he has been very involved in the student council at Lawton and organized a fundraiser for leukemia patients.

His competitive side came out when the students at Lawton tried to raise money by competing among classes by placing jars inside the rooms for students to drop off whatever they could afford.

"I told my class that the class next door to us really wanted to win very much," Jason said. "They didn't want us to win so I told everybody they just couldn't beat us."

Jason's class won the contest which raised over $600.

When Jason isn't trying to take over the school, he studies. He's earned all A's on his last two report cards after a disastrous B in science earlier in the school year.

"As long as I'm on the honor roll I get a certificate and I really want those certificates," he said.

In third and fourth grades, Jason won a school academic achievement award, so he's had a lot of time learning how to be successful.

"I'm very confident in myself," he said. "The only times I ever get into any trouble is when I get too enthusiastic."

Being an athlete, it was a special thrill to meet Jackie Joyner-Kersey during the awards presentation. Kersey won the Olympics and Jason just happened to be in Atlanta in 1996 when she won her gold medal. Jason knew the Lawton winner would get to meet the Olympic hero and was thrilled when Mr. Lawton called him to the front office.

"When we were filling out all the forms, they asked us how we thought we could change the world," Jason said. "Then they called me to the office and I was so excited. Then, my mother started screaming and saying she was proud of me."

Jason already has the future figured out. He wants to go to Penn State when he's ready for college. He wants to play basketball when he gets there and is dreaming of an NBA career like his favorites Kobe Bryant of the Los Angeles

Lakers, Stephon Marbury of the Minnesota Timberwolves and Nick Anderson of the Magic.

Jason won't let anyone talk him out of his dreams. He knows he can get them and no one's going to stop him.

Carla Miller is an inspiration at GES

By Michelle Fox
 HERALD CORRESPONDENT

Carla Miller is Geneva Elementary's fifth grade recipient of the Walt Disney Dreamer and Doer award for this school year.

She was among five finalists interviewed by her teacher, Alan Engle and principal, Ms. Phillips. When asked what set Carla apart from the others being considered, Engle said,

"Simply put, Carla embodies everything a student citizen should be. She is consistently an inspiration to her peers and to me."

Engle went on to say that he would feel like he had been a successful parent of his own daughter, who is now in kindergarten, turns out just like Carla when she grows up.

Carla finished in the top five of her class this year and also competed on the Oviedo junior bowling league, which won seven out of nine games. She also participated in track and field, ending up with her best score for the mile run at nine minutes, 18 seconds, in spite of frequently hurting her ankle during practice.

Such determination and excellence is precisely what won her the Dreamer and Doer award.

Carla said that being presented with such a medal was the coolest thing that had ever happened to her because she had never won anything before in her life.

Engle, in collaboration with school administrators, presented Carla of her award by presenting her with a balloon bouquet. They even aired the surprise on the school's own closed circuit television program call the Geneva News Network, or GNN as the kids call it.

Carla excitedly detailed what the award day was like.

"First, Disney had breakfast for us," she explained. "Then we had our two-hour ceremony. Seminole County was the last group to receive their awards and we all lined up in a row. Then Jackie Joyner Kersey gave us our medals. She told me to keep up the good work and to keep smiling."

When asked what it felt like to meet the award winning Olympian, "so cool" was Carla's quick reply.

"Winning a Dreamer and Doer was powerful. It taught me to strive for what I want to do and achieve."

The fifth grader also expressed gratitude toward Engle, who she credits with helping her both academically and emotionally, stating, "He always understands when kids have problems."

She also appreciated her mom and dad's consistent encouragement.

Carla said that she's torn between wanting to be an actress and a lawyer when she grows up. She said that she would love to be a star like Julia Roberts, but that she has always had a fascination for courtroom drama as well. She also added that most people who know her think that she should be a lawyer because they say "she has the mouth for it."

WHAT

The city... of the mermaid

We end our week in Europe with a visit to Copenhagen. The beautiful capital of Denmark is well-known, inter alia, for the statue of the mermaid in the harbor and the Tivoli gardens. Danish is a language I could never master. Even the pronunciation is a mystery. For example, I have a friend whose name is spelled Knud Aage. How do you think that is pronounced? Aage used to partner Peter Schultz, who made a great defensive play on this deal from a mixed-pairs event in Copenhagen in 1972.

That two-club response looks awful, smells awful, and tastes awful! But that's what Europeans used to do in those days. Now the stronger two-over-one has crossed the Atlantic. (East should have raised to two spades, of course.)

West, Gudrun Wille-Jorgensen, started with her three top spades. After ruffing the last, declarer tried to enter the dummy by leading a diamond to the jack. Guessing what was happening, Schultz played low without a tremor. Now declarer confidently took the trump finesse, which lost to West's singleton king. And the diamond ace in a moment spelt one down.

No doubt you have realized that if Schultz wins trick four with the diamond ace, declarer, unable to reach the dummy, will be forced to cash the heart ace, with gratifying results for him.

Declarer probably agreed with Shakespeare's view that "there's no'er a villain dwelling in all Denmark, but he's an arrant knave."

Idyllwilde Elementary 3rd-graders learn that advertising is more than just commercials for cereals and super heroes

By Sheri Beale
HERALD FEATURE EDITOR

SANFORD - Inundated daily with commercials for cereals and super heroes, children are exposed at an early age to the persuasive power of advertising.

Harnessing that power for good is an effort that has been adopted by Scholastic Books, a textbook publisher.

In an effort to find new ways to promote literacy, the company has prepared a unit for kindergarten through 6th grade teachers to expose students to all aspects of advertising and to get the kids to think critically about the subject matter.

The focus of the unit of study is on a mentor, Max Jerome, a fictional art director for an advertising agency.

The students are prompted through several different activities to work as a team, much as they would as part of a creative team in an advertising agency.

One project includes creating a cereal box, based on design ideas they discuss in a brainstorming session.

The 3rd grade team at Idyllwilde Elementary School took their study of the unit one step further. Team leader Julie Berber invited this reporter to come to the school and speak to the 3rd grade classes about newspapers and newspaper advertising.

The students were given the basics of ad layout, focusing on headline and body copy composition and art elements, such as illustrative photographs or line drawings.

The use of mathematics was also discussed. Students were told that ad rates are set according to newspaper column inches and that multiplication is used to figure the size and price of an ad.

Lake Mary Senior Girl Scouts earn gold awards

Troop project earns top award, supports efforts of Safehouse of Seminole

By Mary Howell
HERALD CORRESPONDENT

LAKE MARY - The Gold Award is the highest award a Senior Girl Scout can earn. It requires diligence and a great deal of hard work. The Stardust Service Unit of Girl Scouts in Lake Mary is only about seven years old and has never had a senior earn the Gold Award. Until now.

Troop 145 developed a very special project titled "Old Friends and Safehouse of Seminole County Join Forces to Inform Area High School Students of the Danger of Teen Dating Violence." The three members, Marie Hilde, Melinda Pecher and Leah Ray, worked with Safehouse to develop teen awareness of dating violence. Their first step was to attend a training program at Safehouse. After the training program, the girls compiled a research packet on dating violence. They went to local high schools and administered a protest to teens. The focus of the high school then watched the play "The Yellow Fever." The play is about a teen in an abusive relationship. The girls had one group perform the play at each school. They also had a poster contest and a drawing contest. The girls also had a poster contest and a drawing contest. The girls also had a poster contest and a drawing contest.

The girls also visited a Cadette Girl Scout Troop. They administered the protest, held a peer group discussion and then administered a post test. The post tests from all the groups showed increased awareness of teen violence.

The funding for the project came from a grant received by Safehouse. Without the girls to do all the work for Safehouse, the project would not have been completed. And the girls stayed on task despite changes in staff at Safehouse. (They went through three different coordinators for the project.)

"After the facilitation groups at one of the schools," Hilde said, "I was approached by two different individuals who admitted to having an abusive partner or having a friend in an abusive relationship. This helped me realize how much teen dating violence is a problem in today's society. The most successful aspect of my project was impacting the lives and minds of many teens and also helping Safehouse develop a better teen program."

"I learned to protect myself in a dating relationship," Melinda said. "I now know warning signs of abuse and controlling behavior. I learned to speak up if I have a problem and know where to go for help and support." Melinda was so touched by her project that she is continuing to volunteer at Safehouse.

"I learned," Leah said, "how to lead and feel confident in a group of people. I also learned to communicate, how to work with teens, and how to be a good listener. I am very proud of my group and ourselves."

The leader for Troop 145 is Marie Pecher. She has been the girl's leader for 10 years.

Advertising

The exercise for the students included the creation of their own ad.

Based on the information they were given by this reporter, each student endeavored to create a persuasive ad. (Some of the ads, chosen by the teachers and the editor are included with this story.)

The kids thought it was all just fun. Justin Monett races motorcycles so he created an ad for a motorcycle shop. Oscar Redden had food on his mind and advertised an ice cream shop that sells new rainbow ice cream.

But, the professional implications were not lost on the 8 and 9 year olds. One of the most often asked questions was how much an advertising executive makes. Amber Depew knew the imporance of getting the address and telephone number right.

Lorena Harrell said, "You have to know how to have eye contact."

"I felt that the students got a better understanding of advertising," said Becvar at the completion of the unit. She said she thought her students would be better consumers, if not better readers, because of the unit on advertising.

Editor's note: Shari Brodie has a degree in advertising and public relations and worked for 3 years as an advertising executive for the Seminole Herald. The newspaper is a business partner with the school.

Glenns celebrate 50th anniversary

SENIOR EDITOR
DORIS DIETRICH

Bride and groom Bill and Betty Glenn (center) and Rebecca and Bud Ponder in 1948.

Bill and Betty Glenn celebrated a half-century of togetherness May 17 at a special gathering aboard the Riverahip Romance. Joining the Glenns on their golden anniversary luncheon cruise were 41 relatives and close friends.

"We had a real good time," Betty said. "Our family came from Illinois, Indiana and North Carolina." Betty said she really enjoyed her brother and sister who attended from Illinois.

Arriving from Indiana was the couple's only child, Janet Carpenter, who was accompanied by her three children. Betty swelled with pride as she told about her granddaughter playing the saxophone at the celebration.

The couple were married May 17 at the Sanford home of Rebecca and Bud Ponder. The Rev. W.P. Brooks, pastor of the First Baptist Church, was the officiating clergyman for the traditional ceremony.

Betty came to Sanford in 1946 and was employed by the Seminole County School Board for 36 years. She retired 10 years ago as inventory officer and recalls there were 19 schools in the county when she began her job. Today, there are 52 county schools not including special services.

Betty also remembers Sanford as it was back then, a quiet, peaceful community with a bustling downtown "where you knew everybody. We miss the old Sanford when it was smaller," Betty said. "We miss that."

Bill is a native son and was engaged in the produce business until his retirement. The couple are active in the First United Methodist Church of Sanford.

Life has been good to the Glenns. And just what does Betty contribute to their happiness for 50 years? "Just love each other - that's all," she said.

WOMEN GATHER TO PLAY BRIDGE

The Oak Avenue home of "Dib" McElrath was the relaxed setting for the Sanford Woman's Club's Monthly

Bridge Social. Co-hostesses were Margaret Gross and Thelma Smith who assisted the hostess with the arrangements and delightful refreshments.

Libby Prevatt said, "A wonderful time was had by all and what a great way to spend a beautiful spring afternoon with a truly compatible group of ladies of distinction."

High score for the day was won by Thelma Smith. Second high went to Terri Millikan and Doris Stein was third high.

The players were: Mary Dale Jones, Helen Ernest, Shirley

Millis, Betty Halback, Rose Jacobson, Selma Newman, Alice Potter, Zella Siskind, Frances Webster, Peggy Mergo and Libby Prevatt.

DR. PETERSON HONORED FOR 30 YEARS SERVICE

The business community, patients and friends honored Dr. Ingrid Peterson and Dr. Carol Logan at an appreciation barbecue May 15 on the Linda's theme will be "Five Counties Together in Service."

Williams graduates Magna Cum Laude from Georgia State

Special to the Herald

Williams maintains her professional career as a professional jazz pianist and vocalist in Atlanta. She was recently invited to speak about her ongoing research of jazz pianist and arranger, Mary Lou Williams during the third Annual Mary Lou Williams Women in Jazz Festival at The Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, DC, on May 23.

Williams is an active member of International Association of Jazz Educators and The American Federation of Musicians, Local 148-462. She continues to pursue her performing career with additional focus on representing musicians' marketing and promotional needs. Williams plans to further her studies in law, promotions and jazz.

Tajiri Arts recipient of first bibliotherapy award of excellence

On May 6, at the Omni Rosen Hotel in Orlando, Tajiri Arts School of Performing Arts and Academics was the recipient of the first annual Stephens and Comas Bibliotherapy Award of Excellence. This honor was in recognition of outstanding service and commitment in literature to children and youth. This award was presented to Mrs. Patricia Whatley at the International Reading Conference held May 4-7.

The honor paid to Tajiri Arts was based on documentation of the unique exposure and treatment of literature to children through the performing arts.

Mrs. Peggy Nixon, an artistic director at Tajiri Arts submitted to the University of Maryland, a selection directed by her. This production made use of poetry selections as the literary center. The title "A Celebration Reflecting the Youthful Voices of the Future Through Song, Drama, and Movement," was well received by the wards committee. From that point on Tajiri Arts was being considered along with programs from other countries.

Mrs. Nixon said, "when I received the call telling me Tajiri Arts was in the running, I couldn't sleep that night. They wanted more information about our program." After a week or so had passed, a second call came announcing Tajiri Arts had won.

WALKER ON U.S. STAMP

Of the hundreds of stories told about successful entrepreneurs, few are more powerful than the story of Madam C.J. Walker. The daughter of a slave, she rose from an orphaned cotton picker, a widowed wash woman and cook, into a pioneer in black hair care products who became the country's first self-made female millionaire.

So universally appealing is Madam Walker's story that it stood out from the 40,000 suggestions for stamp subjects submitted annually to the U.S. Postal Service. Landing a commemorative stamp is no small accomplishment. The stamp will be available through 1999.

JUNETEENTH DAY SET

Juneteenth is a day to bring people together. It represents the still practiced celebration of the actual end of slavery.

St. Matthews Missionary Baptist Church invites the community to participate in the first celebration to be held in Sanford, Saturday, June 20. Join the parade, rent a booth to sell your vendor products and be a part of the program and entertainment. For more information call Prince McKinry or Cynthia Oliver at 322-5836. The Rev. L.J. Wilson is pastor.

CORRECTION

Correction! The 1998 King and Queen winners of the Elks Edward C. Wilson purple and white ball for education were William Sands who was crowned by Bro. Jefferies Smith, financial secretary of the Florida State Association of Elks.

Crowned as Queen was Daughter Clemencia Pison. She was crowned by State Daughter President Daisy Branson, President of the Florida State Association of Temple.

ANNIVERSARIES

Samuel and Annie Mae Scott-Williams

Couple renew vows on 40th anniversary

Samuel and Annie Mae Scott-Williams, celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary, Sunday, May 3. The Sanford Garden Club was the site of the renewing of their vows and the celebration of love. The renewing of the sacred Christian vows were performed by the Rev. Emmett S. Thomas, pastor of Providence Missionary Baptist Church where the Williamses are active members.

Musical presentations were rendered by Cynthia Cassanova-Brown and Gerald Cassanova. The songs of love to the couple were: "You Are So Beautiful", "Winds Beneath My Wings", "If This World Were Mine", "One In A Million" and "The Lord's Prayer".

The first lady chose for her escort, her father J. C. Scott, Sr. Her anniversary dress was of white crepe, tea length with a waist length short sleeved jacket trimmed in lace, accented with diamonds and pearls. Her knee length veil of illusion trimmed in lace was accented with pearls, attached to a brocade cap of daisies. Her pearl accessories accented the dress. She carried a bouquet of white and red roses and baby's breath.

Attending her mother as Matron of Honor was Samantha Cleary. She wore an African accented top with a black skirt and hat to match. She carried a lovely bouquet of white and red roses with green ferns.

The bridesmaids were her six sisters and her sister-in-law: Ann Williams, Connie S. Brown, Katie S. Robinson, Maybelle S. King, Gloria S. Cummings, Alvenia S. Brown and Barbara J. Williams. They wore identical dresses to the matron of honor.

Serving the groom as best man was his son Christopher Williams. Groomsmen were L.A. Scott, Ernest Scott, Robert Scott, Johnnie Scott, Terry Terrell, Nathaniel Williams, Angelo DeJesus.

Ushers were Herbert Boston, Reginald Robinson and Robert Scott, Jr.

Flower girl was Eterita Wright. Ring bearer was Eric Cleary, Jr. Bible Carrier was Chris Robinson. Hostesses were Annette DeJesus, Angenique DeJesus, Latrina R. Scott and Eric Martin.

A reception was held at the site of the renewing of their vows. After a brief visit to Georgia, the couple is back

Special thanks go to Beverly Oliver, wedding coordinator; musicians Cassanova and Brown; videographer, Freddie Bush with catering by William Long. Thanks to the family, friends and well wishers on this 40th anniversary occasion.

Heathrow Women's Club dispurses $$ Elected officers welcomed

Special to the Herald

HEATHROW - The final meeting of the year for the Heathrow Women's Club was held on May 8. The highlight of the meeting was the passing of the gavel and the proceeds of the fashion show to the recipients.

Outgoing president Pamela Collins reported that the Heathrow Women's Club annual fashion show "April in Paris" sponsored by Longwood Lincoln-Mercury on April 29 was a whirlwind of activity and a great success. The helping hands of numerous club members earned $11,503.00 for the club's charities.

The proceeds were dispersed as follows: Safehouse of Seminole, presented to Laurie Kemp, $5,800; Lisa Merlin House, presented to Lisa Merlin, $4,350; Diane Glover, Seminole Community College scholarship, $1,000; Lisa Davis, Seminole Community College scholarship, $1,000; Enid Rivera, Seminole Community College scholarship, $1,000; Sanford Middle School presented to Principal Bill Moore, $1,450.

There was also a $2,000 scholarship presented, in memory of Agnes Sance, one of the charter members of HWC. This was made possible by corporate sponsor, Longwood Lincoln-Mercury, to benefit Seminole Community College nursing students.

The club members welcomed

incoming president Claris Koglin; club member Marge Stenstrom, outgoing president Pam Collins.

new president, Claris Koglin and her new board for the coming year. The transitional breakfast will be held on June 8 at the Heathrow Country Club.

Collins was presented with an engraved wall clock as a reminder of the club's appreciation for her leadership, friendship and good humor.

In the afterglow of the successful fashion show, the club members recalled moments from the event.

Peggy Pyle's husband, Terry, sporting a French beret and a lilting French accent, was master of ceremonies for the evening.

Raffle winners were Beth Armbruster who won 2 airline tickets, donated by AAA. Carol Calvi won two season passes to the Mount Dora Theater; Joan Keogh won the great dine-around package and Lynn Shields won a television set. All raffle items were donated by merchants in our area. The HWC is very grateful for their generosity. One of the raffle prizes was "high tea" hosted by club members Claris Koglin and Marge Stenstrom won by Charlene Benner.

Laure Brown of Our Boutique and Carol Audobatoe representing Adriana's narrated while their models showed the latest fashions from their boutiques. Club members Mary Dale, Marion Good and Jackie Godby were models for a night wearing great fashions from both boutiques.

Memorial Day is right time to polish your flag manners

DEAR ABBY: Memorial Day is being observed tomorrow, and it's essential that citizens show our veterans their respect and living. How many young people do you see at the cemeteries?

I have attended services that were held next to parks. The loud radios kept playing and the ball games never stopped when the flag was being raised, the speakers speaking and honors given.

Isn't it time that some history of our past wars be taught in our schools? Then, just maybe, citizens of all ages would begin showing a little respect for their country and fellow men.

I'm enclosing a summary of proper flag etiquette, Abby. You might want to share it with your readers.

BARBARA J. McNEEL, SAN DIEGO

DEAR BARBARA: Your letter is certainly food for thought. And thank you for the rules of proper flag etiquette. I'm happy to pass them along to my readers.

FLAG ETIQUETTE
Our nation's flag is to be respected, never defiled or scorned. There are appropriate ways to show respect in the presence of the flag.

During the ceremony of hoisting or lowering the flag, or when the flag is passing in a parade or review, everyone should face the flag and stand at attention with their right hands over their hearts. Military members who are present and in uniform should render the military salute.

When not in uniform, remove your hat with right hand and hold it at the left shoulder, the hand being over the heart. Citizens of other countries should stand at attention.

The salute to the flag in a moving column (such as a parade) should be rendered at the moment the flag passes. When driving a car on a military installation and "Colors" or "Retreat" (when the national flag is hoisted at 8 a.m. or lowered at sunset) is sounded, stop the car and wait until the ceremony has been completed. If walking, stop, turn toward the flag, and stand at attention with your right hand over your heart.

When the flag is displayed during the playing of the national grounds behind Bayhead Eye Center.

The event was to celebrate Dr. Peterson's 30-year practice in the Sanford-Lake Mary area. She ventured into the optometry field in May 1978 as the first female optometrist in the area and settled in at her office in the former Zayre Plaza. In 1983 she moved to her present location and Dr. Logan joined her in 1982. Today, the two optometrists have a database of 14,000 patients, according to Dawn Whitman, office manager, who added that Dr. Peterson has examined 50,000 patients in the past 20 years.

At the barbecue, Diane Parker, executive director of the Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce, read congratulatory letters to Dr. Peterson from Gov. Lawton Chiles and Sanford Mayor Larry Dale.

Dawn commended the eye center's business associates for donating door prizes and games. Dr. Peterson introduced her staff including an intern, Dr. Rebecca Sims of Walnut Grove, Miss.

Recognized for their charitable endeavors throughout the community, "These doctors give more than any business I have ever worked with. They have never turned anyone away who couldn't pay for the eye exams," Dawn said.

Dr. Peterson works with the Lions Clubs in their sight programs, indigent cases, public schools, health fairs, job fairs and the Seminole SafeHouse for abused spouses.

CLASSMATES RECEIVE DISTRICT VII AWARDS

Several members of the Sanford Woman's Club attended the recent Florida Federation of Women's Clubs District VII meeting at Umatilla. Accompanying President Ruth Gaines were Betty Jack, Betty Colbert, Libby Provatt and DeLores Lash.

Recognition awards for 1987 were presented to clubs from five counties attending. The SWC received awards for: Perfect attendance at all district meetings, donating books last fall, honor roll at the state level, participating in the Christmas crafts decorations, state award for contributing to Special Olympics and a Special Olympics cookbook which contains a recipe from Faye Siler, participating in Hacienda Girls Ranch, and awards for Home Life, Public Affairs, Conservation and Arts Departments.

Libya Pervert is a past District VII arts chairman and dealers Lash is a past district Home Life chairman. In the coming year, Ruth Gaines will serve as chairman of one phase of the FWWC's project and DeLores Lash will serve as District VII education chairman.

Serving as District VII director for the next two years will be Jane Denning of the Oviedo Woman's Club. Using the five-point starfish as her emblem,
