Tricycle race for kids' lives

By STEVE BARNES
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - It was a race for life Monday as the managers of the Sanford Walmart took to their tricycles to raise money for the Children's Miracle Network.

Spectators cheered as the racers wound their way through several departments along the "action aisles". Racers had to maneuver past a variety of obstacles and complete several tasks, including hula hooping and changing into swimming trunks. At each stop along the way, store associates, who supported their managers with pledges, cheered on their favorites.

According to store manager Gary DeCoeq, Walmart has held several fund-raising events for The Children's Miracle Network this year. He says he tries to keep the events

A special kind of camp

Annual Hog Roast benefits Camp Challenge

By VICKI DeBORNIER

SORRENTO - A little thunderstorm wasn't enough to put much of a damper on the activities at Camp Challenge on Saturday.

The Lake County facility for the physically challenged is both a favorite charity and a favorite destination for many from Sanford so they were out in force last weekend for the annual Hog Roast sponsored by the Fraternal Order of Police and the friends the camp has made over the years.

Camp Challenge offers summer camp and other activities for those who are physically challenged, from teens with debilitating neuromuscular diseases to adult victims of stroke.

"Most of the people we serve are adults," said Stephen Currence "Most people think of camp as being for kids, but we really serve more teens and adults than children."

The camp, with its spacious cabins, vegetable and herb gardens, petting zoo, fishing and swimming facilities and miles of nature trails through untouched Florida pine forest, is completely wheelchair accessible.

"There isn't any place out here that isn't wheelchair accessible or accessible to anyone who is physically challenged," Currence said.

The camp is supported almost completely by pri-

SANFORD — A number of issues pertaining to the Sanford police department were brought up during Monday's Sanford City Commission work session and regular commission meeting.

Police Chief Joe Dillard however, not listed on the agenda, spoke at the conclusion of the meeting, explaining how he was moving toward resolving what have been considered as problems in his department.

Earlier, the commissioners had discussed policies, goals and objectives for both the police and fire departments and continued use of the police facility at the Seminole Towne Center. Those matters were brought up during the work session.

At the regular meeting, items included a request from the police department to apply for a $27,500 state grant for a DUI (driving under the influence) Enforcement Program. The commission immediately gave unanimous approval.

Former mayor honored

From staff reports

SANFORD - Former Sanford Mayor Bettye D. Smith was the 1997 recipient of the Warren E. "Pete" Knowles community service award. The presentation was done Monday night at the beginning of the Sanford City Commission meeting.

The 13th annual award for outstanding service to the city, was presented by Mayor Larry Dale. It is in honor of former Sanford City Manager Warren E. "Pete" Knowles, who was the original recipient.

Mayor Dale explained that the award this year was not only because of former Mayor Smith's service as mayor from December 1994 to January 1997, but for her accomplishments prior to that time and during that time, which were above and beyond her government position.

According to the wording of the proclamation, during the time she served as mayor, Smith effected many initiatives and improvements including enhanced code enforcement, restoration of the Cultural Arts Building, downtown revitalization, the development of

Investment festival

Special to the Herald

The Bahamas American Junkanoo and Goombay Festival Association of Central Florida, Inc. who are members of the Caribbean American Chamber of Commerce of Florida, Inc. are helping host the Trade and Investment Seminar. This will also be hosted by the Summit of The America's Center of Miami. For more information, contact (407)880-6575.

The Trade and Investment Seminar and Exhibition is to share with the Central Florida Business Community the many opportunities for investment that exist in the twin island-state located in the South-eastern Caribbean. This will also strengthen and improve our Central Florida economy by attracting new businesses to the community.

The Honorable Basdeo Panday, Prime Minister of Trinidad and Tobago will give the featured address at the seminar on Wednesday, April 30, 12noon at the Holiday Inn Select, Orlando International Airport.

Accompanying the Prime Minister Panday, will be the Honorable Ralph Maraj, Minister of Foreign Affairs,

The following sectors have been identified as productive areas for investment: agri-Business, entertainment, information, technology, tourism investment, furniture, woodworking, gifts, crafts, plastics and recreational marine services.

This seminar is considered timely since discussions are currently taking place between Walt Disney World Company of Orlando and the International Cricket Council with their objective being to promote the development of cricket by test-playing countries and sending national teams to play at Walt Disney Wide World of Sports facility.

Time for a little bit of jazzy fun

Today is the 80th birthday of Duke Ellington, jazz legend and composer. He was born on April 29, 1899. He is considered one of the most influential individuals in the history of jazz music and is responsible for more than 1,000 musical pieces including the most famous "Mood Indigo." Ellington died in New York City at the age of 75.

Speaking of influential people, today is also the anniversary of the birth of William Randolph Hearst, editor and publisher, who was born in 1863. He died in Beverly Hills, California at the age of 88.

The Herald doesn't publish Mondays, but let's not overlook the anniversary of Lionel Barrymore's birthday on April 28, 1878, and the Fifth U.S. President James Monroe was born April 28, 1758.

Yesterday was Kiss-Your-Mate day. Can you imagine, they have to declare a specific date for that. In my research, I have found that the person who reportedly designated April 28 as Kiss-Your-Mate day many years ago, is now divorced. Seems to me if he only kissed his mate once a year, they didn't belong together in the first place.

On April 28, 1790, a sailor named Fletcher Christian led a mutiny against his sea captain Lt. William Bligh, who history says was not necessarily the kindest person in the British navy at that time. Most of us have read the book or seen the movie "Mutiny on the Bounty." Much of it was true.

Bligh and 18 of his supporters were put on a 23-foot open boat, and after surviving for 47 days and covering 3,600 miles, they landed on the island of Timor. Bligh actually managed to return to Britain.

Christian meanwhile, landed at Pitcairn Island in 1790 where he burned the ship, the HMS Bounty. All but one of Christian's friends was found alive 18 years later when the location was discovered, but by that time, the crew, along with island natives, had produced 194 offspring. Some families, still with the given names of those crewmen, live on Pitcairn today. They're having a pirate festival at Lake Charles, Louisiana today, to celebrate "The Gentleman Pirate" Jean Lafitte.

Today is "Moment of Laughter Day." Laughing is supposed to be one of the best ways to deal with the difficulties of modern living. In case you ever wondered who declares these days, this one came from Izzy Gessell, who calls himself the Head Honcho of Wide Angle Humor, P.O. Box 982, Northampton, MA 01061.

For birthdays, yesterday, actress Ann-Margret turned 56; TV talk show host Jay Leno was 47.

Today, tennis player and recent groom Andre Agassi turns 27; former football coach George Allen is 75; actress Celeste Holm is 78; conductor Zubin Mehta is 61; actress Michelle Pfeiffer is 39; comedian Jerry Seinfeld is 43; and actress Uma Thurman is 27.

Bringing businesses together in Sanford

By VICKI BOGGS
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Businesses in Sanford is still a matter of meeting with people and talking to them on a one-on-one basis.

With that in mind, the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce organized the Business to Business Expo in cooperation with Seminole Towne Center and AT&T. The event took place on Friday, April 25.

The expo brought more than a dozen businesses to the community to talk about their services and to show what they had to offer the people in Sanford.

"We're doing pretty well," said Wanda Kelly, the executive director of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce. "We have lots of people coming through to see what we have in Sanford."

While the Friday midday crowds were slow, there were quite a few people who came to the expo specifically for the expo.

"I heard that a lot of the Sanford businesses would be here and I wanted the chance to talk to them about the business climate here," Karen Lincoln said.

Lincoln owns a small gift business that she runs out of her home south Orlando, she said. She said she was considering a move to the Sanford area when she expands next year.

Wanda Kelly, executive director of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, brought business to business at the expo.

Marina Hotel and Rich Foods, interacted with the customers, answered questions and talked with one another about business.

Starks' tax cut bill passes

TALLAHASSEE, -The Florida Legislature passed legislation that returns a $162 million surplus in unemployment compensation taxes, in the form of lower business tax rates and higher unemployment benefits, back to the employers and employees of Florida. This is the largest tax cut in Florida history.

HB 3, sponsored by Chair of the House Finance and Taxation Rep. Bob Starks (R-Casselberry), reduces the unemployment tax rate paid by Florida employers for one year. The bill also decreases the initial rate charged to new businesses from 2.7% to 2.0%. Only businesses which have paid the maximum rate of 5.4 percent for more than 36 months are excluded from the refund. Rates are determined by employers unemployment benefit record, experience, reporting procedures and other statewide factors.

Special to the Herald

National 4-H Council in Chevy Chase, MD announced recently the awarding of a $1,600 grant to Seminole and Volusia County 4-H to promote sewing education for youth. Despite poor weather conditions on Saturday, there was plenty to do around Sanford. From the Rise Up Sanford gospel festival at Fort Mellon Park, where 2-year old Rachel Valentin enjoyed a snack, to a 5K race along the Lake Monroe waterfront and beyond, there were lots of things to keep locals occupied and healthy.

Multiple charges filed in store robbery

Prosecutor reports

CASSELLBERRY - Casselberry police arrested two persons Sunday following a reported robbery at a store in the area of 15th Street and 4th Street. Officers said they were responding to a burglary-in-progress call from a retail store on SR-438, but before they arrived they said another call came in that the two suspects had left the store in a vehicle.

The officer said he located the vehicle and began to chase it during which time objects were reportedly thrown out on two occasions. During the chase, dispatch again called the officer saying it was a simple shoplifting case rather than a burglary and the officer said he stopped the pursuit, but obtained a license number.

The number was traced to an address in Altonville Springs, and other officers were dispatched to the residence while the Casselberry officer retrieved the two objects thrown from the vehicle. The objects reportedly were packages of meat.

During the shoplifting, officers said the two had become involved in a scuffle with store clerks and one reportedly threatened one of the employees with a knife.

Carroll Kenneth Bland, 30, of Altonville Springs, said to be the driver of the vehicle, was taken into custody at his home, however officers said he broke a window of the police car and escaped. He was apprehended the second time following a first chase.

Bland was charged with armed robbery, escape, aggravated fleeing and attempting to elude officers, three counts of battery on law enforcement officers, resisting with violence, possession of a weapon during the commission of a felony, criminal mischief, four counts of battery, unlawful speed and no headlights. Officers determined him to be a habitual traffic offender.

Health clinic construction

From staff reports

SANFORD - Construction is now under way for the new Central Florida Family Health Center's new medical clinic in Sanford. The start of construction was announced by Charles L. Nichols, rural development manager for the United States Department of Agriculture.

The new facility is to be located on the west side of SR-415, just north of SR-46 (east 25th Street), in the eastern area of Sanford. Construction of the new 20,000 square foot primary care medical facility will take approximately 10 months.

When completed, it is to serve residents of Sanford, Seminole County, Southwest Volusia County, East Orange County, Lake County, and West St. Johns County.

Central Florida Family Health Center, formerly the Central Florida Community Clinic, has reportedly outgrown its present facility on S. Park Avenue in Sanford, and the new facility which will be considerably larger in size, will allow them to provide medical services to a larger number of low income families in Central Florida.

A loan in the amount of $2.25 million was made to finance the construction of the new facility. Also, a guaranteed loan of $570,000 by First Union National Bank of Florida has been approved for the purchase of equipment for the new facility.

USDA Rural Development provides a variety of loans and grants to assist in the development of rural areas. In addition to financing medical centers, Rural Development also finances fire departments, criminal justice facilities, water and wastewater systems and apartment complexes in rural areas.

Idyllwilde students give plenty back to environment

By JEFF BERTHOUD
Herald Staff Writer

The kids at Idyllwilde Elementary certainly seem to love their school, but they aren't so sure about what had to be done to build it.

As part of Earth Day celebrations which took place in schools all over Seminole County, the Idyllwilde kids decided to give something back to the land on which their school stands by planting trees in the area where they once stood but had to be cleared for construction.

They had help from community volunteer Javier Torres, trees were donated and the Idyllwilde kids went to work, digging holes, planting the trees, refilling the holes and caring for the trees once they were in the ground.

They also competed against area schools in a recycling contest and newspaper collecting. In the past week, Idyllwilde collected more aluminum than in any month previous.

Idyllwilde students may be kids, but they understand the meaning behind Earth Day.

"We're going to help the Earth so it stay clean and make up for the plants that were torn down," said Meghan Meyers.

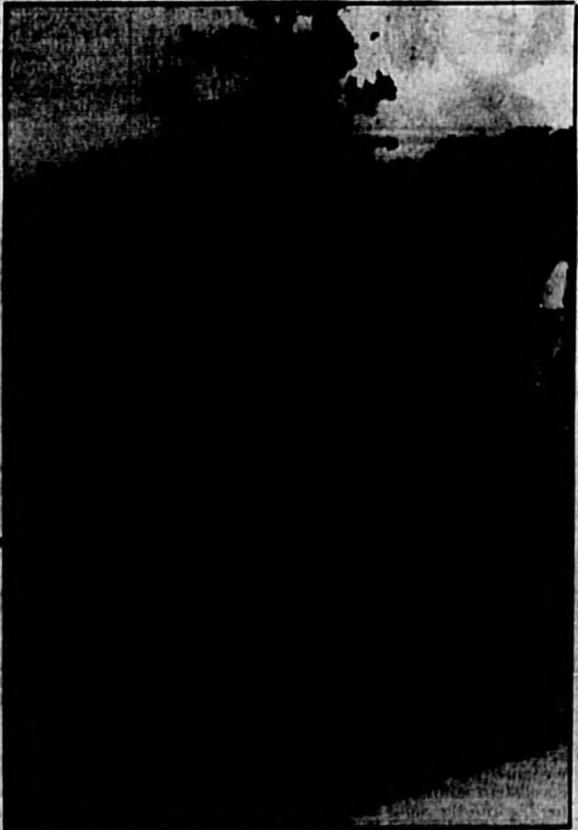

"We need to plant trees because isn't good for the environment and all the other trees got knocked down," said Shaquanda Williams.

"They destroyed all the trees when they built the school," added Chelsea Lahiry.

They are competitive about the contest as well.

"We want to recycle more than anyone else," Kyle Williams said. "We have to do it if we're going to save the environment."

Jonathan Calhoun was appreciative of the help he got

Seasoned citizens

The month of May is fast approaching. Among many other designations, by Presidential Proclamation, it is Older Americans Month. From 1963 to 1973 it was called Senior Citizens Month.

This Thursday evening, at the regular Lake Mary City Commission meeting, a proclamation is to be presented for approval, declaring Older Americans Month in that city.

In the Lake Mary proclamation, it uses the phrase "seasoned citizens." We find this to be extremely appropriate. All too often members of the younger generation fail to acknowledge the seasoning these people have obtained. They have been through many more years of trial and tribulation. They have seen many more successes and failures, joys and heartbreaks.

They have seen great plans formulated only to be passed by the wayside, while others produce great success. If some may not immediately jump up and down with joy every time progress is planned by our local governments or organizations, it is not necessarily because they don't like progress, but it is more often a case of "We've heard this before. We'll wait and see what happens this time."

Because of the life many may have in the advanced years, older Americans may not be able to run as fast or maintain as much energy as younger folks. They may not have taken the time to learn advanced skills such as computer operations or other relatively new-fangled gadgets.

But this doesn't mean their wisdom is less. In earlier times, when people got old, they were discarded. One old folk tells of putting grandma on a rocking chair and letting her float out to sea on a sheet of ice. Another says they are pushed off the top of a mountain once they reach age 60.

We don't do such things today, but in many areas, we are doing just as much in ignoring them.

For the month of May, there may be a number of activities aimed at promoting our older generation. For those already in that age category, we urge you to get involved and attend whenever you can.

For those not yet up in the years, take the time to stop and listen. See what they do, and what they are capable of doing.

Becoming older doesn't have to mean being pushed to the side. The only reason it may seem so is the attitude the younger generations may have.

This year, let's take a better and closer look at this. It may well be beneficial to everyone.

We can all use more good news

WESH-Channel 2 officials want to rid the evening news of hand-cuffs, yellow tape and body bags. In their place, more relevant news. Good news, news that gladdens rather than saddens television viewers.

The station's grand endeavor is risky, and could collapse in the face of Bill Eason, WESH's incoming general manager. WCCO in Minneapolis and WPOR in Miami tried similar approaches but quit. KVUC in Austin, Tex., has kept its plan, however.

Surveys show that thousands of Central Floridians have quit watching the local news - night after night of crime, car wrecks and chaos. The only relief was a weather report or sports segment, which didn't air until the viewer was exposed to 15 minutes of horror.

WESH - if we read this right - intends to accentuate the positive and eliminate some of the negative news, and for that everyone ought to be grateful. "I'm grateful our managers are doing this," says WESH news anchor Wendy Chisj, who called the station's move. "A breath of fresh air."

must have felt a great relief once they were off the air each night - so did the reporters, dispersed from one bad scene to another.

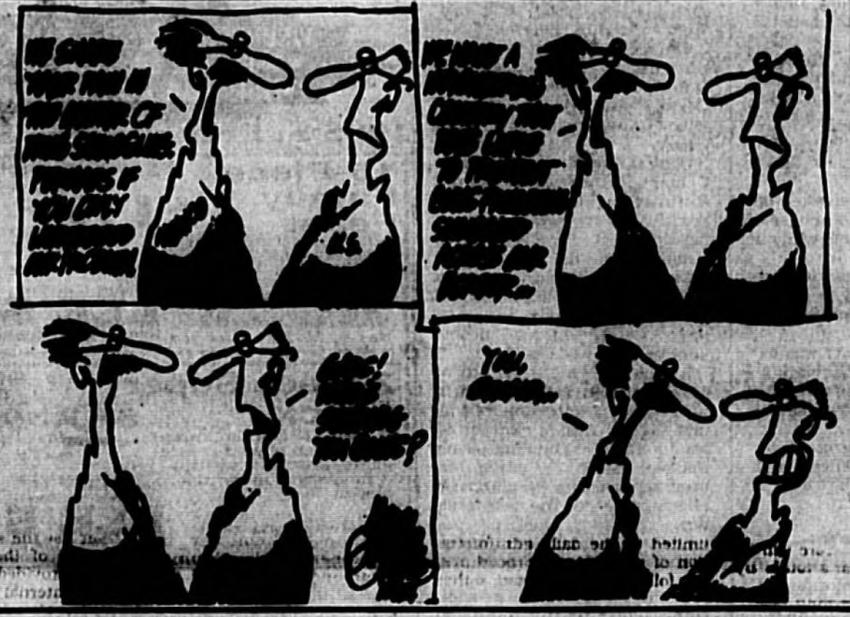

Russ Eilers said Monday that the station's direction isn't to stifle but balance its news programming. "Bad things are going to happen and we'll have to cover them," he said. "What we can do is place a little less emphasis on beat metal on 1-4 and encourage our reporters to find more upbeat stories."

Personally, I don't think there's a more possitive, more entertaining on-air personality than WESH reporter Bill Eason, whose people stories are funny and warm. A minute or two of Bill Eason's folksy bits of the local and state on the evening news. Eilers said WESH's plan was to use at least one Eason story each night on 6 o'clock news.

TV stations and newspapers play significant roles in the quality of life in a community - and take a justified beating from the public when they become too big to make their commitment. Many-spirited newspaper editors who constantly demand cynical, hard-edge stories from their reporters and allow no room for kinder, upbeat features do their reporters a terrible injustice.

There are some wonderful stories awaiting both electronic and print journalists in Central Florida. That WESH's change in direction was the A-1 lead in Saturday's Orlando Sentinel's Good News for everyone. Let's believe it is more than a crucial step toward ending play. Let's consider it a genuine attempt to improve the quality and depth of TV news - and to give the public what it really wants.

JOSEPH SPEAR

Surely a more brazen breed of knave never strode the earth.

Broadcasters 2, People 0

If there is a Scoundrel Hall of Fame somewhere, they are likely preparing a special alcove for the broadcasting industry. Surely a more brazen breed of knave never strode the earth.

For six decades, they used the public's airwaves, free of charge, to generate billions in profits while telling us they were doing it "in the public interest." Now comes new technology that creates more channels that could be worth $70 billion if sold on the open market, and be damned if we haven't handed it to them again. Maybe we deserve to get screwed.

The story goes back a decade, when the government was preparing to assign excess spectrum space for public safety and mobile communications use, and the industry's lobby, the National Association of Broadcasters, said wait a minute, we need that space for, uh, let's see, for High Density Television. Yes, that's it. For HDTV. And so they got a free "second channel," over which they would broadcast the new hi-tech signals that would bring us theater-sharp images and CD sound.

Then scientists discovered that electronic signals could be "digitized" and broadcast in bits like computer codes, and that the same sliver of spectrum that currently carries one "analog" signal can carry half a dozen "digital" signals. Whoo! Suddenly there were six "revenue streams" where there had been one. The extra channels could be used for home-shopping shows, for pay-per-view, for papers, you name it.

The profit potential was enormous. As Federal Communications Commission Chairman Reed Hundt put it, the extra spectrum space was "broadcast property of the Cyber Sea." On Capitol Hill, two busy senators took up the battle. Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., and Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., crusaded for an airwaves auction, similar to others which have raised $30 billion for the national treasury over the past few years.

Wait a minute, said the broadcasters, we've got a God-given right to use these airwaves and all this nonsense about buying it is getting into the realm of socialism. No joke. NBC President Robert Wright actually said that forcing broadcasters to pay would be like "taking the right to build churches."

There was a great public service, they said, providing "free" things like news and weather. They needed the second channel, they said, to simulcast analog and digital while the country was converting to the new technology. And they couldn't afford to pay for spectrum space and modernize at the same time.

They even mounted a multi-million dollar ad campaign. They ran ads claiming that Congress wanted to "tax" free TV. It would be the death of "Seinfeld" and "Letterman," they said.

They also boosted their education and persuasion donations to members of Congress. During the 1985-1986 cycle, the NAB gave $651,716 to various congressional campaigns. Owners and executives of the top four networks reportedly coughed up $2,476,908 in soft money for the two parties. It didn't hurt matters, either, that the president of the NAB, Edward O. Fritts, was a classmate of Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott at Old Miss. Lott has been one of the industry's biggest boosters.

ELLEN GOODMAN

Four Ladies in a Bath Tub?

WASHINGTON--It's a good thing that Adelaide Johnson chose a 13-ton block of marble for her suffragist statue. Anything lighter would have cracked by now under the pressure of so much symbolism.

In 1920, the sculptor's tribute to Lucretia Mott, Elizabeth Cade Stanton and Susan B. Anthony was carved against a rough-hewn background to represent the unfinished nature of the women's rights struggle. As Johnson explained at the time: Women's work is never done. How right she was.

Congress refused to accept this gift until the National Woman's Party president, Alice Paul, had the statue literally dragged by mules to the Capitol steps. Then, after a brief ceremony, Ms. Mott, Ms. Stanton, and Ms. Anthony were promptly put back in their place: a broom closet.

The statue, dubbed irreverently "Three Ladies in a Bath Tub" sat stonily in the Crypt area in the basement until the 1980's when a number of women decided that it was time for the trio to move up in the world. Upstairs that is, and into the Rotunda, the symbolic center of American democracy.

In the Rotunda all marble-and-bronze-to male. Indeed, the only women found here are in paintings that show two Native American maidens covering in front of soldiers, one demure Pocahontas in One-With-The-Wind clothing being baptized, and Martha Washington looking down from a balcony at George.

As Karen Staser, the co-chair of the Woman Suffrage Statue Campaign who has struggled to get some "her" in this history, says, "It reminded me of the first-grade readers: Look Jane, Look. See Dick Run." See him run the democracy.

What followed was a perils of Pauline--not to mention Lucretia, Elizabeth and Susan--age through Congress. Talk about symbolism. The statue was opposed on the grounds that it was ugly. (Subject: The women were not young beauties.) And that moving it was too costly. And that it was a feminist plot anyway.

Finally, and I do mean finally, Congress voted to allow the use of private funds to raise the "Three Ladies in a Bath Tub" for a one-year run in the Rotunda. As Staser put, "It took longer to move the statue than to win the right to vote."

But no sooner were the traveling papers signed than this symbolic target for arguments over feminism, looks-ism and cost-ism was attacked for racism. C. DeLores Tucker, chair of the National Political Congress of Black Women, suddenly mounted a campaign against a statue that didn't include Sojourner Truth. Four Ladies in a Bath Tub?

The move to include women in history, she said, excluded black women. To wit: Sojourner Truth. There were charges that the suffragists and even the statue were tainted by racism.

A three-and-a-half-hour news conference convened by Tucker last week boiled down to a complaint that a statue of three white suffragists was a historic lie because it excluded the black colleague. It boiled down to the demand: No Truth, no move.

This interracial, intergender spat has all sorts of unhappy origins for student feminists. But suffragist historian Ann Gordon runs the idea that "these three women would take the hit for the fact that this has been a racist society. I mean, this is a fight to get a statue into a room full of marble."

Just for the historic record, Mott and Stanton met when they were banished from an anti-slavery conference in London--on account of their sex. They and Anthony began as abolitionists. "Ironically," says Gordon, "the statue would be the most prominent tribute anti-slavery activists in the Capital."

If you dig through Stanton's papers you can find sentiments that ring racist to our ears--especially in her post-Civil War complaint that an alternate male on-slave could vote while women were still disenfranchised. But apparently she didn't offend Sojourner Truth, who stayed at the Stanton home.

As for Truth--with a capital T. She was a powerful figure, a self-made and re-made woman. As a witness star at the Woman's Rights Convention in 1841, she delivered the speech that we know by the line: "Ain't I A Woman?" But her work was only intermittently devoted to suffrage. We don't have to squeeze her life into the same bathtub.

In a symbolic struggle over symbols, there's room for Truth and truth. The statue committee and some black congresswomen are trying to broker a deal that would pave the way for a Truth statue another year.

Meanwhile the three-toners are at long, long last scheduled to be reinstalled from the Crypt next week-end and held in June. Any way you look at it, it's a step, or a light of steps. In the right direction.

This week, a schoolboy passing the three women in the basement asked a nearby guide, "Were these real people?" Adelaide Johnson had it right: The work is unfinished.

Challenge

The 17th annual event has raised more than $80,000 in that time.

This was the first year the event was held at the camp itself. In the past it has been at J.J.'s, a country restaurant owned by Jo and Jerry Messley, two of the biggest supporters of Camp Challenge.

The numbers of people wanting to do their part to support the camp, however, forced the organizers to change the venue this year.

"It's been great," said Linda Moncrief, one of the organizers whose daughter has been attending Camp Challenge for many years. "We've had so many people coming out to show their support."

In addition to the members of the FOP from across the central Florida community roasting pigs, cooking up baked beans and adding rolls and cole slaw to the dishes. There was an auction conducted by the Stiffey family, known for years for their fast talking at auctions throughout Sanford and central Florida. The auction raised several hundred dollars for the camp with items including an autographed Jeff Blake football and merchandise from area businesses.

Smith represented Sanford through her membership and leadership on numerous state, regional and county boards and committees and was active in many civic organizations including the Salvation Army of Seminole County, the Sanford Lions Club and the Sanford Woman's Club.

Smith founded and directed the Seminole County Victim Services and founded the Seminole County Task Force on Domestic Violence. She also taught History at Seminole Community College and contributed to the Seminole County School Volunteer Program.

Previously, Smith was a recipient of the Martin Luther King Humanitarian Award, the State Attorney's Victim Rights Humanitarian Award and was honored by the city of Sanford through the dedication of the Bettye D. Smith Cultural Arts Building in December, 1996.

Smith said she was "greatly honored" to be a recipient of the Knowles Service Award. "I'm probably the only one here who was on hand when that first award was presented to Pete Knowles," she added.

exciting so that employees can have fun while raising money for the charity.

Last year, the store associates produced a music video which won first place in the company wide competition. That year, the store raised a $4,000 contribution to the Children's Miracle Network, bringing the store's total to $7,000 for the year and making them the number one fundraiser in the state.

Patti Srebrnak, who took first place in the race, and the other participants raised $390 in this event alone. DeCoco says he hopes the store will be able to top last year's total by year's end.

Dillard

Dillard's report however, came at the very conclusion of the session as Mayor Larry Dale was starting to adjourn the meeting.

The chief explained that the city had brought up many questions in recent times regarding the operation of the police department, and he wished to make a presentation on the subject. Before a relatively large audience consisting of a number of police officers, Dillard read his report:

"On January 3, 1997, I took over the responsibility of the Sanford Police Department. Current manpower allocated was 80 sworn officer positions and 23 non-sworn positions (civilian).

There was and still is, turmoil within the department. However, I have attempted to alleviate many of the discrepancies that were inherited.

In addition to handling the day to day operations of the department, including, but not limited to the daily administration of police procedures, I have either been addressed or resolved.

An inventory to determine existing problems within the department was taken by polling all departmental employees. Numerous "problems" were found to be bargaining issues that needed to be resolved through the proper forum.

The following is a list of problems that we found not to be directly affected by the bargaining unit: inadequate training, review and update of existing policy manual, input from personnel, lack of trust between management and union members, and negative attitudes of personnel.

After determining the existence of these problems, goals were set to address and resolve these issues.

Inadequate in-service training: The assigned training officer was not only responsible for in-service training, but also had numerous job-related responsibilities. Responsibilities included, but were not limited to, in-service classes, mandatory re-training, community relations, career development, ing officers, school resource officers, neighborhood watch, crime prevention and participation in job interviews. Our goal is to provide sufficient manpower to adequately staff the training division. We have recently assigned an individual to this area in an effort to expedite the filling of vacancies. Once these vacant positions are filled, this person will have more time to develop a more comprehensive training program. However, it is felt that an additional officer is required to properly and effectively carry out the duties required of this position.

Review and update of existing policy manual: We have inquired as to what is needed to become state accredited. We found this to be a very tedious and job specific task. We feel that to obtain such a rating would only make officers of the Sanford Police Department more efficient, effective and professional. We have ordered and are currently reviewing the manuals that list the state requirements. One of these manuals have been provided to the Sheriff's Office for their review and input.

Input from personnel: Our goal is to meet with all employees of the police department to discuss any concerns and suggestions that they might have. All input will be considered. We have met with several employees, however, due to scheduling and unforeseen circumstances, not all employees have been afforded an opportunity to express themselves as of this date. This discrepancy will be rectified in the immediate future.

Lack of trust: One of our goals is to establish a basis of trust and understanding between management and the employees. It is believed that once we have met all of the employees, allowing them an arena to vent their frustrations and make suggestions as well as being informed of management's philosophies, a bridge of trust will be built.

Negative attitudes will be resolved with the building of trust between management and the rank and file.

Labor and management are currently attempting to resolve non-bargaining issues by meeting on a monthly basis.

These are but a few of the goals that the department has addressed, because they are specific problems. I will gladly discuss these and any other goals with the commission at your convenience."

Chief Dillard said he intends to continue responding to a number of questions which remain unresolved.

"The way I see it," responded Mayor Dale, "is that we are beginning to see interest on both sides of the issue toward resolving problems, and I'm pleased with that."

Commissioner Victor Williams also responded. "I believe one of the important needs you have is to keep open communications," she said. "I think it's imperative that both sides in this take a good long look in the mirror before blaming the others."

Dale announced that an RFP (request for proposal) seeking a consultant to study the police department, has a May 15 deadline. Once we receive all the responses," Dale said, "I'll call a special meeting as soon as possible, at which time we can look at the proposals, select the candidate we prefer, and get started with this project."

Sisters take turns with health care

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sisters Betty Tuepker and Thea Moulton have worked out a wonderful volunteer arrangement. They work on a regular basis assisting at Healthcare and Rehab Center of Sanford, formerly known as Hillhaven HealthCare Center.

Tuepker, also known as "Bingo Betty" shared that the duo are also part of the LAFRA (Ladies Auxiliary Fleet Reserve Association), National Order of Alley Cats "a fun organization of DAVA (Disabled American Veterans Association). According to Tuepker "Alley Cats are partners with RATS" which is the male counterpart of Alley Cats within DAVA.

"They give the money for the bingo that we do at the nursing home," she said. "We go to the nursing home two hours each day on Tuesday and Fridays. Even when my sister had a stroke last year she was a resident at the nursing home. As she was recuperating toward the end she tried to help with bingo. We have to straighten up after bingo and get the residents back to their rooms."

Tuepker said, "We have a birthday party at Healthcare every month with cake and punch. We sing. At Christmas time we bring in Mr. and Mrs. Santa. Mrs. Santa has a white poodle."

She added, "I used to feed the residents. I got too attached to

How to renovate existing turfgrass

Many factors can produce a decline in turf quantity and quality. Poor management practices such as improper mowing, irrigation, fertilization and pest controls are often responsible for turfgrass deterioration. Once the turfgrass is damaged, there are only two choices to make, either to replace the turf completely or to renovate the existing turf. Renovation is the improvement of a turfgrass stand without destruction of the old stand. Renovation should only be attempted if the causes of turf decline are properly identified and if more than 60% of the desirable cover is present.

Turf examination: The most important factor in determining if renovation is possible is to examine the turf to be renovated for type, quality in terms of density, color, and weed infestation; thatch thickness and root density. Turf that is spongy but with good color and density and few weeds can be more easily renovated than turf that is thin and contains many weeds. A poor root system can be due to insect and disease damage, improper watering or mowing practices, chemical damage by herbicides or fertilizers, and excessive thatch. A good way to determine the health of a root system is to grab a handful of turf and attempt to pull it out of the soil; the healthier the roots, the more difficult it will be to pull the plants from the soil.

Weed control: Depending on the weeds present, spot treatments with a selective or a non-selective herbicide should be used to reduce competition within the turf and allow a faster recovery from the renovation procedure. This step is very important since this practice may determine the time for the next step in the renovation process.

Vertical mowing: Ideally, soil penetration of 1/4 inch will cultivate and topdress while removing thatch. A heavy duty equipment should be used for areas free from obstructions, and a lightweight unit for more restricted areas. Usually, the area is mowed a second time at right angles to the first mowing for better results. Debris brought to the surface as a result of vertical mowing should be removed each time the area is mowed.

Vacuum sweep: The final step in thatch removal is to vacuum sweep the entire area to remove the remaining debris. Scalping usually follows this practice to smooth the turf surface.

Topdressing: A thin layer of soil is applied to the area to fill small depressions and level the soil surface. This practice is considered one of the best methods of controlling thatch because it provides an ideal medium for soil microorganisms to decompose organic matter. Never bury turf with topsoil when leveling since it will kill the grass, especially St. Augustine grass by providing conditions favorable for disease development. Sterilized topsoil should be used to prevent the introduction of weeds, insects, nematodes or disease organisms in the new rich environment.

Cultivation: Core cultivation or aeration is necessary when compaction of the soil surface is apparent. This procedure will improve aeration and water penetration, and reduce surface layering problems. Core cultivation does not remove excessive thatch and should be used, not as a substitute, but as a complement to vertical mowing.

Turf planting: Planting of seed or vegetative materials can take place after all the above practices are done. The procedures to treat renovated areas are the same as those for new turf areas. Sprigs removed during vertical mowing can be used as a source of vegetative seeds.

Irrigation: Renovated turf should be watered as newly established turf, it should be irrigated two or three times daily until the turf can be maintained with less frequent, but deeper watering. Daily irrigation should be discontinued as soon as the roots grow and support the grass with one morning irrigation. Avoid daytime watering, irrigate on an as-needed basis when the renovated turf is fully established.

Tipping not part of air safety

DEAR ABBY: Last Christmas I was blessed with a visit from my daughter and her family. When it came time for them to leave, however, my granddaughter cried her heart out. I said, "Let's ask Mom if you can spend part of the summer with me." My daughter agreed, but now I am faced with a problem. The trip entails two or three changes of airplanes.

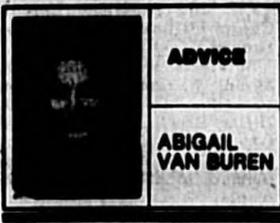

When I discussed my concern with a friend, she told me that her granddaughter had made a plane trip requiring two airplane changes each way. In order to ensure her safety, my friend gave the flight attendant $40 ($20 for each plane the child was taking). This was done for the return trip also. I was surprised that she had tipped the flight staff, but she assured me that this is what is done today.

Is tipping a requirement to guarantee the safety of a child flying alone, or do the airlines still provide personal attention for children without handing gratuities to the flight staff?

GRANDMOTHER JUDITH, LAWTON, OKLA.

DEAR JUDITH: Your friend was misinformed. I checked with three major airlines, and all three had similar policies regarding children traveling alone. None of them allows flight attendants to accept tips.

In order to fly alone, a child must be at least 5 years old. There is an additional fee for an unaccompanied child, but it is part of the cost of the ticket. However, fees vary, depending on the airline and the number of connecting flights.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: To "Concerned Daughter," whose elderly mother is taking medication she got from several doctors and trading pills with friends. I say: Go to Mom's home, collect her pill bottles, write down the names and phone numbers and contents of each. Make a list of medications Mom swigs with her pals. Call all the doctors and tell them exactly what Mom is taking and who is prescribing what. Ask specific questions and ask each if he (or she) is aware that Mom is seeing Doctors So-and-So. Then mail each doctor a note giving the names of all her physicians and the names and dosages of all her medications.

I am a health-care provider who almost lost one of my patients to this same type of drug addiction. Once I recognized there was a problem and spoke with the doctors, they began to consult with one another. The patient had to be hospitalized and evaluated, and go through a drug rehabilitation program.

Abby, in my opinion, it's an honor to become my parents' protector. They protected me when I was young, and now it's my turn to protect them.

"Concerned Daughter," please take my advice immediately — you could be saving your mother's life.

SPOKE UP IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR SPOKE UP: I'm printing your letter for all of the "Concerned Daughters" out there. Your patients are fortunate to have such a caring and preventive health-care provider.

DEAR ABBY: This is for Mavis E. Winter in Laguna Niguel and others who don't have time to brush their teeth before going to the dentist's office. Many years ago, before dentists wore rubber gloves while treating patients, my dentist told me what he did when patients said they didn't have time to brush. He would tell them, "That's OK. I didn't have time to wash my hands either!"

STILL BRUSHING

Prep athletes taking grades seriously? How times have changed

SANFORD — In times when everyone is aware of the special treatment that athletes have gotten in the past, it's refreshing to see changes being made.

Seminole County is certainly not the exception to the rule, but the local school's have really made an impact on putting the student in student athlete before the athlete.

When I was in high school, and that was not that long ago, I remember the football, baseball and basketball players consistently being removed from class and missing tests, yet passing. I remember coaches telling my friends that all that mattered was their sport and that being an athlete was their top priority.

I remember being a peer counselor and trying to tutor athletes that had absolutely no interest in their classes and grades. One athlete who stands out in my mind even told me that it didn't matter whether he passed or not because he didn't need an education to play professional ball.

Times have changed.

The minimum grade point average is strictly enforced these days, with most athletes staying way above the requirement. Kids take more pride in their scholastic achievements than their sporting ones, and are going to college to gain a professional education, even if that means they do not play a sport.

Seminole High School, for instance, has only lost one varsity level athlete to a grade problem this year. That has everything to do with the coaches, teachers, and students working together to accomplish the main goal of the public education system...an education.

Seminole High School volleyball coach Beth Corso said that although she had no problems with her team this year, she would remove her star player from the team if the student's grades were not where they needed to be, even if it meant losses for the team. Grades are what matters, she said, playing volleyball or any other sport is an extracurricular activity and should be treated as such.

Lake Mary High School principal, Raymond Gaines, knows first hand about the importance of grades.

Gaines went to college and played football, although he was in college for an education, an injury in the beginning of his sophomore year ended his athletic career, he said that kids don't realize that with only a small percentage of athletes having the talent to make it onto professional teams, even fewer make it completely through their college careers without injury, or any other factor that could end their career before they even reach that level.

Every coach that I have spoken to this year knows that an education is what will provide a future for their students. Sure, local athletes such as Tim Raines and Jeff Blake have made it out of Sanford and onto a professional team. And they're doing well. But how many athletes have graduated from Seminole High School with the same dreams and not made it?

And even for those who have landed spots on professional teams, the career longevity for an athlete is minimal. If they stay healthy, there is still only so much that a body can take and by the age of 30, the stars of yesterday are considered old and replaceable.

Today's kids are having good values instilled in them by good role models. I believe that teachers and coaches are not in the profession because of the huge paycheck, they are there because they care and they're showing it by trying to give the community's children a future through education.

No upsets in Co-Ed softball

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Dave Coe had a dream game. C & L pulled out a win, and Chang's Car Care won by just showing up to highlight play in the Sanford Recreation Department Co-Ed Spring Slow Pitch Softball League at Pinchurst Park Monday night.

Coe was three-for-three with two grand slams and a two-run double to give him 10 RBI on the night as he helped lead BBM to a 23-3 three inning victory over Maronda Homes.

C & L Timber jumped out to an early 9-1 lead, but had to score a run in the bottom of the seventh inning to tie the score at 11-11 and then had to score two runs in the bottom of the eighth inning to edge Suniland Corporation 13-12 and remain

Weather delays start of tourneys

SANFORD — As if the butterflies weren't big enough. Because of Monday's inclement weather, some of the baseball and softball teams from Seminole County had an extra day to get nervous about the opening game of the district tournaments.

SHS loses coach and friend

By JEFF BERLINCKE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A big man in stature and on the sidelines.

That's how friends and fellow faculty members described longtime Seminole High School assistant football coach Don Carter, who passed away Sunday from a heart attack.

Carter, 55, had coached football at Seminole for many years and this past season was the offensive and defensive line coach for the freshman team of head coach Scott Casko. He also assisted the Seminole baseball teams.

Carter, who played football and graduated from Seminole in the early 60's, came to Seminole from Crooms High School 14 years ago with former head football coach Ernie MacPherson.

"Don and I go back 23 years and you couldn't find a better gentleman than Don Carter," MacPherson said. When it came to helping kids and coaching them, there was no one better. My prayers go out to him."

Carter also taught science at the school. He is survived by his wife, Linda and children Christie, Tammy, Scott and Greg, all graduates of Seminole High.

In a prepared statement, Seminole Principal Gretchen Schapker said, "Over the years he has touched the lives of hundreds/thousands of students and athletes."

Funeral services will be conducted at 4 p.m. Wednesday at the First Church of the Nazarene, 2581 Sanford Avenue, with Reverend John Hinton officiating. Interment will follow at Oaklawn Park Chapel in Lake Mary. The family will receive friends at the Church from 2 p.m. until service time.

It was a big day for Seminole athletes as Sabrena Sapp (seated middle, top photo) with parents Don and Linda Sapp, coach Tony Arena, Athletic Director Jerry Posey, Bob Moon, Principal Gretchen Schapker and

Seminole athletes college bound

SANFORD — It's not too Sappy to say that the Seminole volleyball girls were Traina'd the right way.

Of Corso it wouldn't. While Sabrina Sapp is going off to Alabama to play soccer, Dawn Traina will stay close to home and play volleyball.

"It is really rewarding for a coach to have all six of her seniors go off to college, whether they play sports or not," volleyball head coach Beth Corso said. "Sabrina and Dawn have worked really hard to get to this point."

Sapp, who played on four varsity teams, has decided after a lot of debating to attend Troy State on a scholarship based half on soccer and half on academics. Next year will be the inaugural season for women's soccer at Troy State, and Sapp said that she is excited about starting with the program from the ground floor.

This year, Sapp was also a member of the District Championship volleyball team as well as a member of the golf team and the only female football kicker in Seminole County.

"I'm just relieved that the wait is over," Sapp's mother, Linda said. "I was very worried about the possibility of her playing football in college for safety reasons. I'm glad that she has found a school that she likes and is playing a sport that she likes. Her club soccer coach, Tom Sells, has been a tremendous help to her and has helped her to get to this point."

"Sabrina has been playing soccer her whole life," Sapp's father, Don added. "This is super exciting and we're very happy for and proud of her." Not only an outstanding athlete, Sapp is a superior student. She already has her academic plans laid out.

"I want to major in pre-engineering," Sapp explained. "I will have to transfer to Auburn University in my fifth year to complete a chemical engineering degree, but at Troy State I will do the pre-engineering and couple that with a major in one of the sciences. I really liked the program at Troy and felt that the college was the right size for me."

Traina, also a member of the very successful volleyball team, has decided to stay a little closer to home and attend the University of Central Florida.

A full grant will pay Traina's college expenses while she sort of walks on to the team.

"If I work really hard and apply myself, I can earn a permanent spot on the team at UCF," Traina explained. "Only 12 girls are taken on the road and the coach is just waiting to see the work I do before she makes a decision."

Also an exceptional student, Traina plans to enter the pre-dentistry program in college in addition to juggling college life and playing a college level sport. She has always dreamed of being a part of the astronomical program, and staying in the area will help her to achieve that goal.

Her brother also attends the University of Central Florida and plays on the basketball team. Traina said that it will be nice to again attend the same school as her sibling.

"Having Dawn close will be great because we'll be able to see her play more," Traina's father Bob said. "And it's definitely more convenient to get her home for visits."

Seminole has no returning starters on the volleyball team for next year. The legacy that these two have helped to leave behind will certainly not be topped easily. However, Seminole's loss is definitely Troy State's and UCF's gain.

Tribe boys, Pats girls win SAC track titles

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — The Seminole High School boys won their 12th title in 14 years and the Lake Brantley girls edged Seminole at the Seminole Athletic Conference Track Championships on Buddy Lawson Memorial Track at Thomas E. Whigham Stadium last Wednesday.

The Fighting Seminoles boys got event wins from Gary Rivers (110 High Hurdles), Rod Freeman (100 Meters), Bobby Williams (Triple Jump), the 4X100 Relay team and the 4X800 Relay team to top Lake Howell, 163-115.

Other top performances in the boys' meet were turned in by Lake Howell's Robert Jordan (first places in the Long Jump and 400 Meter run) and Lake Brantley's Daron Herndon (first place in both the discus and shot put).

The Patriots girls only won four events (Shante Gray in High Jump, McMillan in the 400 Meters, as well as the 4X800 and 4X400 Meter Relay teams), compared to six event wins for the Tribe, but the Lake Brantley depth proved to be the difference in winning the team title, 135-129.

Felicia Henderson was the star among the girls, winning five events. She won individual titles in the Triple Jump, Long Jump, 200 Meters and 100 Meters, as well as a member of the victorious 4X100 Relay team.

The district meets will be held this week, with the Seminole hosting the Class 8A-District 6 event on Thursday and Oviedo hosting the Class 8A-District 4 Meet on Friday.

Is epilepsy therapy on track

DEAR DR. GOTT: My son was born with epilepsy after a particularly difficult delivery. For the past 19 years, he has been on Dilantin to prevent seizures. Recently, his doctor increased the dose because the boy is growing so fast and the medicine is prescribed according to body weight. However, we now have to deal with increased nervousness, depression and disorientation. Why do doctors prescribe drugs that do more harm than good?

DEAR READER: Seizures are dangerous. Most prescription drugs have unpleasant side effects. It is the physician's responsibility to balance this benefit/risk ratio. For this reason, doctors usually monitor the drug's effects. Dilantin, for instance, is a wonderful anti-convulsant medication, but can be toxic (causing the very symptoms your son is experiencing) if given in too large a quantity. Also, some children react better to other anti-convulsants, of which there are many.

Your son's doctor should obtain a blood Dilantin level. If the value is high, the dose should be immediately lowered. If the level is within the therapeutic range, the doctor may want to change drugs entirely. Your son should not have to suffer from the side effects of the Dilantin; there are other choices available. To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Epilepsy: The Falling Sickness."

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is a "caval filter"? I've had blood clots in my legs, and my doctor wants to use one.

DEAR READER: Thrombophlebitis (blood clots) in the legs causes swelling and pain. The disorder is customarily treated with anticoagulant medication and elastic support hose. The danger caused by thrombophlebitis in the deep veins of the legs is significant. Without warning, pieces of the clot can break off and be carried in the venous circulation to the lungs (pulmonary embolism), leading to chest pain, breathlessness, cough, blood-spitting, and — in many instances — death. Therefore, doctors take this disorder very seriously.

Although most episodes of thrombophlebitis can be successfully treated using the method I mentioned — and recurrences are unusual — some patients develop repeated attacks. Or the medication may not be effective. Or, for one reason or another (such as a history of bleeding peptic ulcer), a patient may not be able to take anticoagulant drugs.

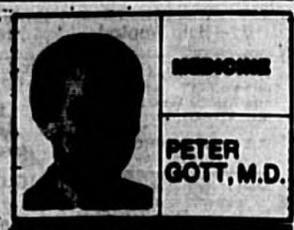

In these instances, physicians consider a caval filter. Designed somewhat like a sieve, the device is surgically inserted into the inferior vena cava, the major vein leading from the lower body to the heart. The filter's mesh traps errant blood clots, thereby preventing them from reaching the lungs. In many cases, the filter is life-saving. I don't know whether you are a candidate for a caval filter. This decision is best left to your family doctor, in consultation with an appropriate surgical specialist.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm an 80-year-old woman with an embarrassing problem: I wet myself whenever I cough, sneeze or strain. I've tried special exercises and hormones to no avail. I must wear a pad all the time. My doctor wants to send me to a urologist for surgery. Is this the only hope?

DEAR READER: Unfortunately, it may be. As women age, the bladder tends to drop out of position, leading to incontinence. Surgical repositioning of the bladder is almost always an effective remedy for such a situation.

I suggest that you be examined by the urologist so that he or she can give you an opinion. Then at least you'll know whether surgery is an option and what the procedure entails. You will be in a better position to make an educated decision about what to do. Obviously, at your age, any surgery carries dangerous risks, so you'll want to have the simplest and safest procedure possible.

Although incontinence is not a hazard to health, it is — as you've discovered — an annoying nuisance. Pads may be one option, but surgery could permanently solve the problem.

The tied to the rescue

By Phillip Alder

Oscar Wilde wrote, "Whenever a man does a thoroughly stupid thing, it is always from the noblest of motives." Well, bridge is a game of mistakes. And experts are especially adept at benefiting from those made by their opponents. In this deal, from the 1987 Maclean International Pairs, Britain's top player, Tony Forrester, took advantage of a blunder by West.

South's one-heart opening perhaps causes you a raised eyebrow or two. However, it is the best choice. The suit is too weak and the side-suit defense too strong for a pre-emptive opening bid. And to pass is foolish. As in chess, it pays to make the first move.

West started the defense on the road to success when he led a diamond. (He selected the six because second-highest from weak suits is popular in Europe. In North America, most would lead the seven, as the top two cards are touching. Leading fourth-highest should promise an honor in the suit.) Declarer had to finesse, and East did the right thing, switching to a spade at trick two. After a second finesse lost, West should have cashed the club ace. Then the heart king defeats the game. But West erred in returning the spade 10.

Forrester won with the spade ace, played a heart to dummy's ace, and called for the spade nine. When East covered with the jack, Forrester ruffed, played a diamond to dummy's ace, and threw the club three on dummy's spade eight.

I doubt East complimented West on his "noblest of motives" in returning the spade 10. He probably made some much less flattering observation.

Your Birthday

Wednesday, April 30, 1987

Family members with whom you have strong emotional bond could be lucky charms for you in the year ahead. Stay in close touch with him and her.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your imagination may play tricks on you today if you're unguarded. Try not to let self-dubious thoughts determine your mode of behavior in worldly affairs. Taurus, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1728, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10108. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In your important involvements today, be optimistic, but also rely upon your common sense and experience. A careful combination will yield the best results.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A close friend might request a loan from you today. If you're in a position to help, do so, but don't let your pal treat it as a gift.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be realistic regarding the objectives you establish for yourself today. If they aren't defined in detail, it could penalize your efforts.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) An important endeavor in the workplace may come to a climax today if you throw yourself into it. You need results, not rationalizations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Be reasonable regarding the demands you may place on a loved one today. She or he should not be required to do things you would not do yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) It could prove wise today not to put yourself in the middle of two friends who have serious differences. They might both turn their guns on you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In order to be truly productive today, you must not take on more than you can handle. Best results stem from prioritizing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You could be very vulnerable to flattery today, and a manipulative associate who is aware of this might use it to get what he or she wants.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Do not fight too hard today for the chairmanship of a committee in which you're involved. Whoever leads this arrangement may regret it later.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) If a friend comes to you for advice today, tell it like it is instead of saying things that will only momentarily soothe his or her ego.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Determine up-front the limits you'll place on recreational expenditures today. Without guidelines, you might go overboard.
