Sluggish Circulation

Although bank deposits in Orange county are about seven times as much today as they were 26 years ago, according to the figures which we quoted yesterday from Mr. W. R. O'Neal, there is as he says less confidence, greater anxiety, less satisfaction, and more unemployment.

And yet what Mr. O'Neal says is true that today everybody is depressed, talking hard times, and thoroughly dissatisfied with existing conditions. There is a great deal of unemployment, a large amount of relief and aid to the poor is necessary, and the outlook for the future is not encouraging.

Everyone probably has his own idea as to why, with more money on hand, with everyone better off as far as his cash balances are concerned, business is bad and everyone is hard up. Probably there is a wide difference in the opinions which each of us holds.

However, it seems to us that the real reason lies in the fact that business is not generated by bank deposits, by cash on hand, or the amount of money which each individual has, but rather by the velocity of circulation which this money develops. In other words, it is the turnover, or the speed with which money is spent, or circulates, which produces business.

Today the average person in Sanford has $185 in the bank. He may have some more in his sock, or safety deposit box, but we know he has that much in the bank. However, he is not spending it. He is hanging on to it. In 1913 the average person had only $106, but he was spending it. He had confidence in the future, in his ability to get some more money after he had spent what he had. Therefore he was willing to spend it.

Just what this means to business can be better understood if we reduce the problem to the old chamber of commerce stunt of circulating a $10 bill. If the secretary, for instance, takes $10 and spends it with the grocer who then puts it in his safe for the rest of the day, that $10 has generated only $10 worth of business.

But if the secretary, after spending the money with the grocer, gets him to take the same $10 and spend it with the druggist, who buys $10 worth of clothing from the merchant who pays a $10 doctor's bill with it, and the doctor then takes the money and spends it at the furniture store, that same $10 bill has not produced just $10 worth of business that day but $50.

And so it is with a million dollars worth of bank deposits. If the money stays in the bank and does not circulate, it will do nobody any good, and business will be bad. But if the money circulates, if people paint and repair their houses, build new ones, renovate their stores, buy new clothing, furniture, hardware, and keep the money everlastingly turning over, that same million dollars can produce an enormous amount of business.

And so it seems to us, that is our problem, not only in Sanford, but in the whole country. We don't need more money, we need to make it circulate. We need to revive confidence, to make people believe in the future of themselves and their country. We need to know down deep in our souls that if we spend some money, it will not be the last that we will ever see, that some how or other more of it will come back to us.

Money And Love Found At Core Of Mass Murder Ring

Crime Syndicate Was Careful In Varying "Accident" Methods

PHILADELPHIA, May 25—(AP)—Money and love are at the core of the grim story being unfolded here—the story of what may be the greatest mass murder ring in history.

It was for love, or money, or both, investigators say, that 50 persons—maybe 100—have been killed within the last 10 years.

The money came from insurance—$100,000 carried on the lives of persons killed by the poison ring. But, sometimes the insured seems to have been interested only in making way for a new love, or even in stimulating the affections of the victim.

Many victims, New Yorkers, were killed last October with the touch of a WPA worker. Where it will end, authorities aren't ready to say. The trials alone, some assert, may take all summer.

Poison was by no means the only murder-for-profit weapon. Authorities say men were drowned in rivers or on fishing trips off the Atlantic coast; they were killed with automobiles; heads were crushed with sand bags and the victims thrown overboard—all ways in which it would seem that death had been accidental.

All the victims had been inured. One poison often used was known as "witch's brew". Another was the same henlock the Philosopher Socrates drank when condemned to death. The medicine collected all, or a share of the insurance on the victims.

Here's an idea—heretofore one-way—the scheme was worked: A plotter became acquainted with a relative of a possible victim. If the insured man had no insurance, a policy would be taken out with a policy issued for him with the relative as beneficiary.

This followed a period of waiting. Eventually, the insured man fell ill of some natural ailment and a doctor was called. The doctor would prescribe a medicine and into that medicine the conspirators dropped their poison.

The poison concocted was those difficult to detect. They left hardly a trace in the victim's body.

A plan like that killed the WPA man, one Ferdinand Alfonso. Herman Petrillo worked that one. But he made a mistake in his choice of "friends" to help him carry out the scheme. The friends were two secret service operatives who had been trying to connect Petrillo to counterfeiting activities.

Bodies Are Examined. Alfonso's wife, Stella, arrested along with Petrillo, is awaiting trial. Petrillo, once a spaghetti salesman, has been convicted of murder, with the death penalty mandatory.

By this time bodies of other suspected victims had been exhumed and traces of poison were found in some of them. A 200-pound woman, Mrs. Carina Favato, was put on trial. The proceedings had not gone far when she startled the court by pleading guilty, not only in the killing of her husband, but also in the killing of a son and a neighbor.

The 20 some others arrested have protested they are innocent. But some, Police Captain James Kelly says, have signed statements implicating themselves and others. Philadelphia papers call it one of the biggest murder plots in criminal history.

Rooted deep in an Italian quarter in a South Philadelphia section, the ring sought victims and clients alike from groups of foreign-born or from people steeped in superstitious beliefs. One phase of the ring's activity was to prey on the desires of unlovely women for affection. Herman Petrillo's cousin, Paul Petrillo, held on a murder charge, was said to be the Lothario of the plotters.

One woman prisoner asserted that the little liaison wooed her, then plotted the poison death of her insured husband, ostensibly so he could marry her.

Love Powders, Charm Drops. In other cases, wives were encouraged to buy "love powders" or "charm drops" to put in their husband's food. Those powders and drops are believed to have killed the men so slowly doctors were duped.

Judge Harry S. McDevitt said at an arraignment he would leave it to the court to determine whether these wives were pawns in the hands of these vicious murderers" or if the women, also, were to blame.

One of the women was Mrs. Josephine Romualdo, tallow complexioned mother of two children whose attorney told the court this story:

"About three years before her husband died, he started losing his affection for her. She learned of the great work of Mrs. Favato in bringing back lost lovers. Mrs. Favato put her under a spell . . . then told her to go home and send her husband around for a magic love treatment.

"All this did her no good because her husband still did not love her. Then Mrs. Favato gave her a bottle containing a love potion, and asked her to take a spoonful of it to show it was harmless. She took it home and it had no effect on her. After that her husband started to fall in health.

"A short time later he died." Mrs. Romualdo insisted she never gave her husband any of the "love potion." She said she had been happy with him and would not have harmed him.

Montverde Buildings—J. M. Lowry furnished the report from the Montverde section of the county, which showed $3,000 in remodeling, including the church building, the Montverde School wood-work shop and $10,000 in improvements by way of sewer irrigation in the Montverde section, making a total of $13,000 from that part of the county.

Lookouts Defeat DeLand 10 - 4 For Sixth Straight Win

Barnett, Langston, And Lane Lead 17-Hit Attack Of Locals Pinder Sets Down Red Hats With Nine Safeties But Gentry Fattens Battering Average With Three Hits

The DeLand Reds concentrated so hard on stopping Dale Alexander last night that they forgot the eight other men on the Lookout squad who blasted out 16 hits, plus one the skipper dumped in, to hand the third place Red Hats a 10-4 defeat as the locals racked up win No. 32 for the season and their sixth straight win since a loss to Leesburg snapped the previous winning streak.

Gray, Red starting, who ousted Alexander from the top of the league's hitters, did not receive quite the conscientious attention accorded Alex, for he connected three times for four trips to add to his stature with the statistic.

Barnett, Langston, Lane and Campbell each collected three safeties during the course of the evening. Two of Barnett's being doubles which drove in two runs. Lane also received credit for two of the runs driven in, while Campbell drove in three runs with his two bingles.

The Lookouts showed nerves two runs in the first, but the redmen came back in the last half of the same inning to even things up with two tallies of their own.

In the first of the third, the Lookouts unlimbered their war clubs to collect three more runs, and then in the last of the sixth they duplicated this feat while merely fattening their batting averages.

In the last of the seventh the crimson bonnets aroused themselves enough to produce two runs before Pinder slowed their ambitions.

Again in the ninth Sanford picked up a brace of lullies to run their total to 10 runs.

Neither starting pitcher lasted the route. Vincent, Sanford starter, was taken out in the first when it appeared he was headed for trouble. Elder came in to lead off in a capable relief job, setting the redmen down neatly with nine scattered hits.

Hayes, the starting pitcher for DeLand, was yanked at the start of the seventh after being pounded for 12 blows. He was replaced by Belknap, who was swatted for three hits in the remaining three innings.

Islets Nose Out Gainesville Nine By 8 To 7 Score

Saints Blank Palatka While Orlando De-feats Angler Team

Coming from behind a 7 to 6 score, the Daytona Beach Islanders rallied in the eighth inning to push across two runs and win from the Gainesville G-Men 8 to 7 in a free hitting contest at the university city last night. In the other Florida State League contests, the St. Augustine Saints blanked the "collar-dwelling" Palatka Azaleas 4 to 0 while at Orlando the Senators rallied in the early innings to turn back the Leeburg Anglers 6 to 1.

In the game held at Gainesville, the Islanders began scoring early and held a 6 to 0 lead over the G-Men until they collected their wits and began scoring in the fourth inning. Collecting a single tally in the fourth and adding two more in the fifth, the G-Men rallied in the seventh to add four more tallies and take a one run lead. It is in the sixth, the Islanders clinched the game with a two-run effort.

In St. Augustine, Buddy Lake, of this city, won his fifth game in as many starts by shutting out the Palatka Azaleas 4 to 0. He took the big end of a hurling duel with Lancaster, Azalea tosser, when he set down the cellar dwellers with only four safeties while the ancient city crew were collecting six bingles off Lancaster. Three Azalea errors contributed in no small way to the Saints' victory.

The Orlando Senators got into the win column again when Dwyer held the visiting Anglers scoreless for seven innings while O'Neil's combined four hits and two errors to score six runs in the first three innings.

YOUR GOLF

By GENE SARAZEN
Former American and British Open Champion

Good golf starts with a sound grip. I think that the grip is the most important thing in golf. You'll find that slicing is the common fault of 85 percent of golfers. And it doesn't take a professional teacher more than one look to discover that you average slices. Trouble lies in his grip—generally his left hand is not far enough over on the shaft. Four knuckles should show as he grips the club. This keeps the left arm straight with the shaft of the club. The right hand should be far enough over the shaft so that the V between the thumb and forefinger should slope to the right shoulder. The thumb and the first three fingers of the right hand are on the shaft. The little finger lies on the forefinger of the left hand. Get yourself a good, comfortable grip like this and many of your golfing troubles will be over.

Finally pews in the Dome Church, Tallin, Estonia, are enclosed with windows which apparently were opened or shut according to whether the sermon was interesting or dull.

The average death rate for the first quarter of 1939 was 0.2 percent below the rate during the first quarter of the last 10 years.

Laboratory Cat Retrieves Mice

OMAHA, Neb., May 25.—(AP)—Mable, the marvelous cat brings 'em back alive.

The mouse, who sort of manages things around Creighton University's anatomy laboratory, is doing her bit for science by keeping a close eye on mice with wandering proclivities.

The command of "get 'em Mable" from Caretaker John O'Connell has her to action should a white mouse wander off. From that point it's a good sport for Mable to escape away and bring back the errant clutched gently but firmly in her mouth.

Not so gentle, however, is Mable with alien rodents. She cleaned out the common variety of rats and mice that infested the laboratory when she took up her abode for over 10 years ago.

The Golden Gate Bridge at San Francisco had taken in $3,219,000 in toll fees up to May 24 of this year. Receipts in March, 1939, were $1,300 a day more than in the same month of 1938.

Repeal Of Gross Receipts Levy Is Voted By House

Source Of $2,000,000 School Revenue Is Voted Out Despite Deficit For ecasts Voters To Decide On 7th Justice Proposal To Keep Cattle Off Roads Is Virtually Killed

TALLAHASSEE, May 26.—(AP)—The House voted 64 to 23 today for repeal of the one-half percent gross receipts tax which produces $2,000,000 a year for public schools. Predictions of a public treasury deficit running as high as $10,000,000 annually were cast aside in the House vote which came after a 49 to 23 defeat of the proposal to repeal the entire state tax which carries a gross receipts levy up on all stores and a graduated scale of license taxes against chain stores.

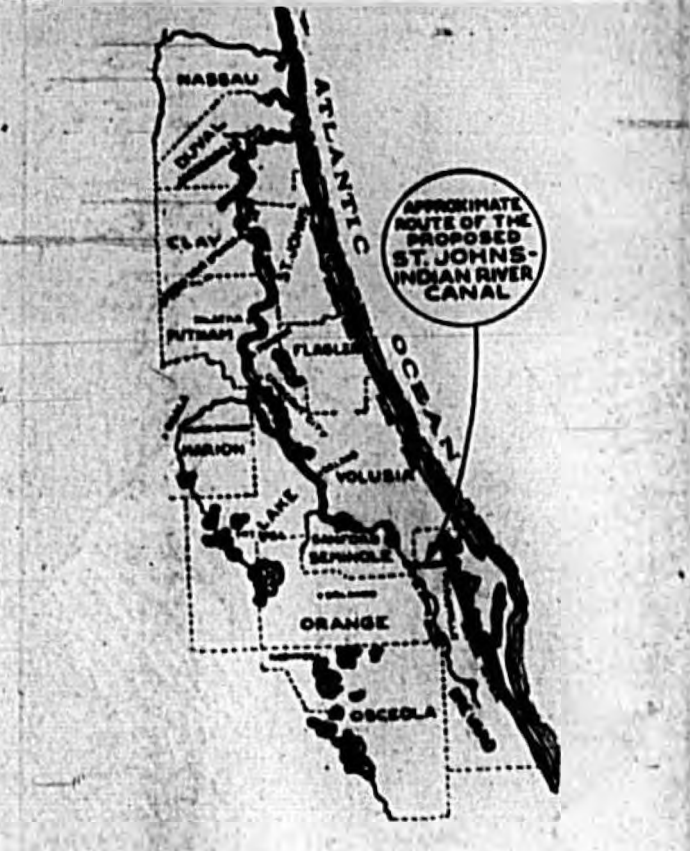

The repeal vote was on an amendment to the Senate bill exempting farm implements and farm product containers from the gross receipts tax. The legislation will be completed until the Senate vote in the House amendment but this appeared to be only a matter of legislative routine.

The Senate joined the House in submitting to the voters the question of adding the proposed amendment to the ballot in the 1940 general election. The proposed constitutional amendment will be on the ballot in the 1940 general election. The House approved a general appropriations bill, calling for an expenditure of more than $10,000,000 a year for the operations of the State government, will be taken up in the Senate Monday morning.

The suggested constitutional amendment to keep livestock off the highways was virtually killed in the House which sent it back to an unfriendly subcommittee. The Senate in an executive session confirmed 23 appointments made by Governor Coe.

Supervisors of House-approved bills 901 and 902, which would limit county participation in gasoline tax revenue and exclude revenue of inter-county roads from bond debt, were being considered by the Senate subcommittee today.

Townsend Plan May Get Action On Wednesday

Rules Committee Dispatches Measure To House To Accept Or Reject As It Stands. WASHINGTON, May 26.—(AP)—The Rules Committee today dispatched the Townsend bill to the House floor for a vote, probably next Wednesday. It approved a procedure by which the bill cannot be changed and must be accepted or rejected as it stands.

The Senate Appropriations Committee cut a budget of flood control and rivers and harbors project money from the House-approved bill appropriating for civil functions of the War Department, reducing the total to $25,190,000.

By a 10-1 vote, the Senate approved legislation yesterday that would place domestic water carriers under the same government controls now imposed on railroads. The final bill call gave little evidence of the four days of debate over the bulky 200-page transportation act, which now goes to the House.

Great Britain today sent Russian her plans for bringing the Soviet union into a British-French front and invited Marshal Klement E. Voroshiloff, Soviet war commissar, to attend the British army maneuvers.

The dispatch of the British formula advanced the projected British-French-Russian assistance accord still further toward a reality. The surprise invitation to the Red army chief was seen as a move aimed to strengthen the bloc through a display of friendliness between London and Moscow.

The British expected Russia's approval of new proposals, at least on the main points. The Russian government newspaper Izvestia announced the Soviet union would insist on postponement of examination of the League of Nations proposal to fortify island islands.
