Weekly Program Is Led By Girl Scouts

Opening the weekly assembly program, four girl scouts presented the flag, leading the students in the pledge and the "Star-Spangled Banner". The program was presided by Doris McCall who afterwards led the students in the Lord's Prayer. The introduction of the members of the cast of "The Magazine Princess" was followed by a short scene from this production.

Everyone Thrilled At Junior High As Annual Student Pictures Taken

Everyone was either thrilled or agonized Monday during the annual event of having pictures taken. Since then, it can hardly be said to see how many have been a frequently heard comment. Mrs. Fleming was in charge of our chapel program on Tuesday morning. These taking part in the program were Grammar School pupils who are members of Mrs. Fleming's organization.

Huck Finn Pictures Are Used In School

The Photoplay Series of "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" which are furnished through the courtesy of Mr. J. L. Marenzeller, have been received by the English teachers and are now being used in their classes. The picture, "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" is the story of a boy on the Mississippi in the days when river boats churned its yellow waters. Huck, the principal character of the story, is a typical boy in every way. Like all boys he neither likes to go to school nor wear shoes and of course there is always a pipe stuck in his back pocket.

Practice Debates To Be Held

The towns competing in the league are Orlando, Deland, Daytona Beach, Lyman, Leesburg, South, and Sanford.

High Student Tells Of Interesting Trip On St. Johns River

A ST. JOHNS RIVER TRIP. By Kirby Odham, Fourth Grade. The St. Johns River is a river in Florida. It is about 300 miles long. When I took a trip on the St. Johns River, I left Sanford at eight o'clock in the morning. I took some books and games. I started fishing about nine o'clock and fished until about twelve o'clock. After a tanned fishing, I went down the stairs of the yacht and helped get the lunch. At twelve-thirty we ate lunch in the yacht. At one o'clock we went upstairs, say down, and went to sleep. About four o'clock we got up. We played games until about six o'clock. I went out and looked at the stars and the reflection in the water. I was going to spend the night on the yacht so we did not have to hurry about anything.

Board Of Trustees Has Monthly Meet

The monthly board meeting of the County Board of Trustees was held Wednesday afternoon, Mar. 5 at the Junior High School. The board voted that all Semole close at noon Thursday, Mar. 10 and all day Friday, Mar. 11. A luncheon was served to the members of a group of girls from the senior Home Economics class. The girls who assisted in serving the luncheon were: Martha Telford, Doris Sue Williams, Virginia Pezold, Stun Strange, Joyce Hunt, and Helen Shogmaker.

Overnight Camp Is Enjoyed By Group Of High Students

The Athen Chapter of Deland met the Seminole Future Farmers group for an overnight outing at Blue Springs last Friday. The local boys began their trip leaving the boat house of Mr. Johnson at 4:15. During the course of the three hour journey, three boys, with Mr. Johnson's help attempted to display their cheiflike ability with food by making a stew and an invigorating pot of coffee. The more energetic of the boys stayed up all night to fish and were rewarded with nothing more nor less than a few fatfish.

Hi-Y Group Holds Bi-Monthly Meeting

The Hi-Y held its bi-monthly meeting Monday night at the home of Mrs. Maybelle Maxwell, the club sponsor. There was only a small group present as most of the girls were rehearsing the "Magazine Princess" which was presented last night. Following the rehearsal and minutes, the girls discussed an invitation extended to them by the Deland Chapter to attend a meeting on Tuesday night. The girls were very interested in the invitation and decided to attend the meeting.

Vocational And Trade School Helps Young People To Find Employment

The Vocational and Trade School of Florida, established in recent years, fills a long-felt and very practical need—the training of young people to earn a living, especially those who do not go to college. These schools are a part of the Public School System of Florida, administered by Mr. Robert B. Dole, State Supervisor of Trade and Industrial Education. About 23 counties of Florida have these schools, furnishing many kinds of trade and industrial training. It is most interesting to read the list of subjects taught in the schools in the larger cities of the state. For example, some offer, among other things: police training, beauty culture, auto mechanics, plumbing, machine shop, air brakes, drafting, fire fighting, diesel engines, cabinet making, selling groceries, showcard lettering, interior decorating, etc. etc. The Sanford Vocational School offers commercial work only, including the following subjects: shorthand, typing, bookkeeping, business English, business law, and filing. Some day we shall be able to attend our own schools.

Seminole Library Makes Good Progress

The library of Seminole High School has been making rapid progress. Many new books and magazines have been added to the shelves, contributing much to the variety of literary works in the library. Special emphasis has been placed on the magazine department. The past issues of the "Magazine Princess" and "National Geographic" and "Popular Mechanics" have been bound, so that they may be of permanent use to the students. The library is open to all students and is a most interesting place to visit.

Who Gets Burned?

The "sensational disclosure" that the railroads are opposed to the construction of the Cross State Canal is not nearly as sensational as it might have been a generation ago. For when you say railroads today, you do not mean bloated capitalists, or pot-bellied profiteers, but hard working, furrowed-browed, calloused-hand laboring men and office employees.

The time has long since passed when the railroads were a profitable investment, or when strings were pulled and politics fixed so that monied interests could unduly benefit from the elimination of competition of the acquisition of unexpected business. The railroads have been in the dog house since long before the war.

It has been so long since the stockholders of great railroads have received any dividends that they have forgotten there is such a thing. Even the bondholders, too, of those railroads, not already in bankruptcy, are likely to be wondering when and if their interest is going to be paid. Furthermore, most of the railroad bondholders are the insurance companies upon which widows and orphans depend for their livelihood.

Nowadays, when you say that the railroads will be hurt by the construction of a canal by the government out of funds more than likely to be raised by an increase in the level of taxes, the railroads have to pay, you mean that it is the railroad engineers, the firemen, brakemen, and all the rest of the railroad employees who will be hurt. They may not get the raise in pay to which they are entitled; they may have their wages cut; they may even be laid off altogether.

It was not a Wall Street money baron who testified before the House Rivers and Harbors Committee that the Florida Cross State Canal would hurt the railroads, and that whatever freight traffic passed through the canal would be taken away from the railroads; it was John T. Corbett, a representative of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Corbett said that if the government would be fair to the railroads, they would not have to worry about wage cuts, unemployment, and cut-throat competition. But the government fixes rail rates at levels to suit itself, lays on heavier and heavier taxes, and then digs canals at public expense for barge lines to compete with the railroads. It just doesn't seem fair.

And it is not the railroad owner we're thinking about; but the railroad worker, who may be laid off, if the canal goes through and is one-half as successful as its proponents say it will be as a traffic producer.

NORTHERN TWILIGHT

(From The Lantern)

Who has not wandered in sub-tropic lands
And seen day blotted out by instant night
Sky, river, shore, an ibis on the sands
Can know how one will hunger at the sight
For twilight in the North
Between the last glow of the sun
and dark
How like a friend it comes per-suading him
Away from strife. Let but the least man hark
And he will hear it deeply breathing peace
Over the hill and countryside and town
Even the town with stirrings of release
From the unequal tasks that fight men down;
And he who hears will cherish till he dies
The calm serene of Northern twilight skies.

MILITARIZATION OF THE CCC

Repeatedly squelched in the past, the proposal to include military training in the CCC regime has bobbed up again, writes Willis Thornton. Though no responsible military authority has asked or even indorsed the plan, it continues to be advanced. Congress can not too definitely reject this proposal, once and for all. "It is bad in theory," it is bad in practice, he insists.

"Not only the most rabid backers of increased armament have as yet suggested universal military service for the United States," says Thornton. "Yet it is proposed to subject to military training a single class of young men—those who have not been able to find a place in industrial life.

"This is undemocratic," he continues. "If military training is to be established on anything like a universal basis, then let all youths be subject to it. Even the totalitarian states do this and at its worst, their military program has the merit of taking everybody without distinction. The draft of World War days at least had the merit of taking everybody.

"But this proposal would train as soldiers a particular segment of the country's youth, leaving those in more fortunate circumstances untouched. To advance any such program in a democratic country, whose foundation is in the equal treatment of all regardless of their circumstances, is a grave mistake.

"The value of any such training, with six hours a week of military training sandwiched in with the regular week's work, is highly doubtful. The CCC is a work program. It is, and is meant to be, a civilian program, as indicated plainly by its name "Civilian Conservation Corps." The aim is to furnish productive work to young men who have not been able to find a place in regular jobs, meanwhile teaching them as much as possible to qualify them for regular jobs when they get out.

"Military training doesn't fit into his picture at all. It would merely disrupt the work without providing military training of any value whatever. The CCC has done a fine job, as almost everybody admits. To mix it all up (at great expense) with military training, would ruin its record as a work organization, provide no worthwhile military resources to the nation, and flout the basic democratic principle that if one young man owns military service to his country, all own it.

Termination Of Conflict In Spain To Get Greatest Welcome In Madrid

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON, Mar. 11.—(AP)—Termination of the war probably will be welcomed throughout Spain, but in no place more than in Madrid.

The war started in July of 1936 and since the fall of that year has been fought right in the front yard of Spain's capital city. Correspondents back from Madrid tell worst stories of city life going on in a strained sort of way while artillery shells and overhead and machine gun bullets splatter on buildings within a few hundred yards of the downtown business district.

In places trenches are 10 feet apart—the distance across a room. Soldiers wedged each other back-and-forth in gaps on each side have set proposals designed to undermine the morale of the others.

"The city population never has been united. Loyalist and insurgent sympathizers have lived side by side through the long months of the bombardment. Trenches cut through western Madrid, with the insurgents holding a salient reaching deep into the city like a great tongue. All the fighting has been in the never-resident part but for a year or more neither side has been able to gain an inch.

Trenches Impregnable

Well-constructed trenches have made surface gains impossible. The result has been attempts at undermining each other. In places deep underground fighting has gone down 200 feet or more. Loyalist trenches are connected with the city sewer system, with lights, telephones and water.

The telephone system, American owned, has not been broken off between the Loyalist and insurgent sections, although it is under strict military supervision. Those on one side can telephone across the trench lines to exchange their words with the other.

All civilian-owned automobiles were confiscated for the army early in the war and only a few foreign-owned ones are operated. Street cars and taxis are loaded with passengers as a rule.

"They hang on the roofs to get a ride," and one correspondent said.

Those with permits can ride the tramway within a three-mile radius of the front line trenches, and with the balance of the city subject to the same of hanging, but always under strict guard.

Madrid's "International Progressives" Committee, long a leader in the anti-fascist struggle, has been active in the city since the war started.

County Reaches 100 Percent In Refund Program

County Commissioners signed a contract with the R. W. McCormack Company to deliver 25,000 plants to the National Park Service of the Department of the Interior. The plants were delivered to the National Capital Parks, which will be used for the National Park Service of the Department of the Interior.

South American Flowers Plans To Be Introduced Into Florida Parks

Public parks and gardens of Florida within the next two years will be enriched by new varieties of flowering trees and shrubs indigenous to South America. The plan, recently approved by the State Board of Parks and Gardens, was suggested by President Roosevelt following his trip in 1936 to the countries south of the United States.

In announcing the program for interchange of plants between the United States and South American countries is to be expanded, Jack Guthrie, state director for the National Emergency Council, explained that the President exhibited much interest in the parks of the countries he visited, particularly in the varieties of their plants. The President was so greatly impressed by the splendid designs of the public parks and gardens, as well as by the unusual use of plant material, that he asked the Secretaries of Interior and Agriculture to send experts to Latin American countries to make a survey of the parks and their landscape design.

Malcolm Kirkpatrick of the National Park Service, Interior Department, and Dr. L. C. Corbett of the Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture, were selected to make the survey and spent several months in Chile, Argentina, Uruguay and Brazil, studying the possibilities of further importation of foreign plants for use in the parks of this country.

Florida already has the bougainvillea, tucuchias, amaryllis, palms, araucarias, daturas and many other plants, but it is hoped that more South American plants will be recognized and used particularly in the southern parts of the State.

Some of the plants that attracted the special attention of the experts are familiar here but not used as much as they might be. For example, there is the common coral tree which glorifies one of the city parks of Buenos Aires with its great sprays of crimson flowers. The delicate lavender-purple flowers of the common leucandrea are used in South America with spectacular effect. Instead of our more common magenta bougainvillea, there is a much wider use of the pink. Not only could there be a revival of the use of these plants, but many of them could be used as tub plants in parts of our cities where they are not suitable for outdoor use.

An exchange of plants has been in progress for many years between the Department of Agriculture and scientific institutions and specialists in South America. It is only since this survey that an exchange of plants has been initiated by the National Park Service of the Department of the Interior. Their preparations, in the greenhouses of the National Capital Parks, have begun and include many plants from South America parks whether native to South America or not, since that continent like our own has drawn on all the world for its gardens. All have made satisfactory growth during the past season and have been put for winter storage in the National Capital Parks greenhouses.

The plants and shrubs will be allowed to develop to the blooming stage before being distributed to metropolitan, county and city parks, so that complete observations of their characteristics of the new varieties of South American flowering trees and shrubs for cultivation in Florida probably will be possible in about two years.

We high school pupils in the Finger Lakes Region of Central New York are joining together to invite thousands of former residents to come and visit their old home towns this summer. What is troubling us mostly is that we don't know where these former residents are. It occurred to me, if I wrote your paper, you might be kind enough to publish the communication. In this way the invitation from the high school pupils of the Finger Lakes would probably reach some in your city who otherwise would never know of the welcome which the youth of this region extends to them.

We are especially inviting residents who once lived in counties bordering Seneca, Yates, Oswego, Cayuga, Seneca, Keuka, and Canandaigua Lakes to come to visit their Finger Lakes Region again.

All that we high school pupils want to do is to let the old Finger Lakes residents anywhere in the United States, know that we hope they'll make the New York World's Fair an excuse to come back and visit this region.

If you don't attend the World's Fair, come back anyway to fish, swim, and call again.

Everyone of us pupils is planning to make this a home coming year in the old Finger Lake Region, and I know you'll help us.

Yours very truly,

Noising up out of rough waters, this U. S. navy seaplane proves it can "take it" in high seas in Atlantic test off the Virginia capes. The observation craft, built at navy's Philadelphia plant, represents forward step in solution of one of naval aviation's prime problems—landing and taking off in rough seas.

Touching off the spark of their organization's 27th birthday celebration, Camp Fire Girls Patsy Birge, left, and Jane Brandt help President Roosevelt press a White House button which lights crossed-logs-and-burns lamp in new Camp Fire headquarters at New York City.

These five people constitute a perfectly happy family in the opinion of Dr. Paul A. Zahl, scientist from Union College, Schenectady, N. Y. They are Indian residents of a "lost world" which he discovered in British Guiana. There, Dr. Zahl reported, everybody lives harmoniously without warfare or strife. He recommended the region as an ideal home for European refugees.

Wig, place and show in the $50,000 Widener Cup classic at Hialeah, and the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap. Top, Bull Lea romps home by more than two lengths over Sir Damion in the Widener, with Stagenand third. Below, Kayak II is out in front at the finish at Santa Anita, with Whiccees second and Main Man third. Kayak's 2:01 2/5 was a new track record for the mile and a quarter.

NEWTON PERRY of Ocala, and Johnny Weissmuller exchange greetings at Silver Springs, where Johnny and a company of 20 are filming "Tarzan in Exile" for MGM. Perry and Weissmuller recall with interest the underwater picture they made together eight years ago at Silver Springs. It started them both on the way up. Perry is now featured in underwater shorts, while Weissmuller continues to make successful Tarzan pictures.

The clash of city and country is given a new twist by Detroit Councilman John A. Kronk, above, who heads a secession movement that would make a "49th state" out of five counties in Detroit metropolitan area.
