Brilliant Reception

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Stevens was the scene of a brilliant reception Tuesday evening, tendered Dr. and Mrs. Brownlee by the members of the Presbyterian church.

The beautiful home, with its artistic decorations was an exquisite setting for the daintily gowned women, the youthful forms and happy faces of the young people, and the flower of manhood gathered beneath its hospitable roof, to offer congratulations and good wishes to the popular young clergyman, and his charming bride.

Entering the reception hall from the porch, its beauty and charm was pleasing and attractive. The balustrade leading to the upper landing was entwined with the pretty vine of the star jessamine; the chandeliers too were festooned with the same vine and graceful ferns were used in effective decoration throughout the lower floor. Vases of red roses in the parlor, and pink roses in the library added their beauty and fragrance to the charm of the pretty rooms. In the dining room a color scheme of pink and green was carried out in great masses of pink vine or Love's wreath and this too drooped from the chandelier in graceful sprays. A large bowl of the dainty flower centered the table.

Guests were received in the reception hall by Mrs. R. L. Peck and Mrs. O. L. Taylor and presented to Rev. and Mrs. Brownlee, receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Stevens in the parlor.

Mrs. Brownlee was daintily gowned in white crepe de chine and carried an arm bouquet of white china asters and asparagus fern.

Mrs. Stevens wore a becoming gown of blue crepe voile, fashioned with pleated Russian tunic and bodice over a blouse of white shadow lace and effectively trimmed in black velvet.

The bride's register, in which was inscribed the names of the guests was a pretty conception of the book-makers' art, a souvenir of a charming occasion that will be among the cherished relics of the happy couple.

Assisting in serving were the Misses Annie Lee Caldwell and Essie Purdon.

The delightful occasion will be among the most pleasant memories of guests and hosts alike.

Luncheon for Brides-Elect

A lovely pink and white luncheon was given by Miss Saidee Williams Thursday afternoon from one to three, in honor of three of the popular young brides-elect, Misses Mabel Hand, Genie Wicker and Linda Leffler.

A charming simplicity prevailed in the decorations of pink and white confined to the dining room. Vases of Love's Wreath and bowls of calladiums and ferns were placed about the room. The table was a beautiful conception of artistic taste. From the ceiling above the center of the table, reaching to the four corners, pink ribbons were tied with graceful bows of pink tulle and caught at the corners with the same effect. From the center hung a large white bell from which was suspended by pink ribbons a silver cupid. Upon a handsome centerpiece of drawn work over pink silk was placed a basket of pink double hibiscus and asparagus fern.

The place cards were pretty hand painted brides containing the guests name, tied to a long pink ribbon, at the other end of which was the favor, a lovely little cupid, concealed beneath the basket of flowers. For the brides-elect the favors were dainty doll brides.

Snowy linen, sparkling cut glass, gleaming silver and dainty china made a beautiful setting for the dainty luncheon consisting of:

- Clear Tomato Soup
- Bread and Butter Sandwiches
- Lobster Salad in Heart-shape moulds
- Saltines
- Fried Chicken
- Guava Jelly
- Creamed Potatoes
- Green Peas
- Olives
- Celery
- Strawberry Ice Cream
- with Whipped Cream
- Cakes
- Iced Tea
- Pink Heart Mints

In the cutting of the bride's cake Miss Mabel Hand cut the thimble, Miss Genie Wicker the ring and Miss Charlotte Hand the dime.

Those invited to meet the honorees were Mrs. Larramore, Misses Charlotte Hand, Elizabeth McLaughlin, Martha Fox, Peachen Leffler, Ruby Betts, Belle Smith and Ruth Mettinger.

Birthday Breakfast

Miss Lucca Chappell was the gracious young hostess at a delightful little birthday breakfast Wednesday morning at her home on Celery avenue. The table was lovely with its snowy linen and blue and white china. The pretty little place cards enclosing the young hostess' card with the two dates of her birth and birthday she was celebrating. The back leaf of the booklet contained a stamp picture of Miss Chappell, making a precious souvenir of the occasion. After breakfast, the girls enjoyed a happy joy ride in the machine. Miss Chappell's guests were the Misses Nellie Elder, Margaret Wight, Margaret Davis and Mary Chappell.

In Grandmother's Kitchen

A pretty affair that was given yesterday in honor of Miss Ruth Stewart was the kitchen shower at the home of Miss Jimmie Laing.

The decorations were lovely and Miss Laing, a gracious hostess, the whole affair being a charming success. In the hall green vines and the red coral flower were effective and beautiful, beneath its softened rays of the electric light shaded with red. The balustrade was entwined with the jessamine vine and potted plants completed the entrance from Fairyland into the green bower that led to the dining room. The back porch was enclosed with palmettoes and transformed into a cool, green retreat, where the refreshing fruit punch was served. Here the punch table was placed with its dainty cover of embroidery and gleaming punch bowl encircled with coral flower.

In the dining room banks of ferns and potted plants made an effective decoration in the center of which was the faintly appointed table.

Above the table from the ceiling green and pink crepe paper was carried to the four corners and finished with big bows of pink tulle. From the chandelier was suspended a spectacled, heart covered cupid in a swing, looking very wise and knowing at the pictured faces of a bride and groom just above him. The centerpiece was a large heart of pink oleanders and asparagus fern, from which strings of pink hearts extended to the corners. The favors were small pink hearts tied with green bows.

In the hall the guests were welcomed by Misses Clara Millen, Martha Fox and Julia Laing.

Receiving with Miss Laing were the Misses Ruth, Edith and Minnie Stewart.

Two contests, "In Grandmother's Kitchen" and the "Romance of a Cake" were greatly enjoyed. In the former Mrs. M. M. Stewart won the prize and in the latter Mrs. E. E. Cox. The guest prize, presented to Miss Stewart was a cute little live kitten. Much laughter and merriment was created when Miss Julia Laing, impersonating a dear old grandmother, charming in a pink crepe gown and green cap and apron brought in a heavy millinery packing box, covered with hearts. At the request of Miss Jimmie Laing, who suggested "Hats" Miss Stewart was invited to display the hats and drew forth many packages containing a complete outfit for the kitchen.

Chicken salad, olives, cheese sandwiches, heart shaped cakes iced in pink and green and fruit punch were the delicious refreshments served.

Besides the honoree, Miss Stewart, other guests were Mesdames M. M. Stewart, E. E. Cox, C. M. Williams, Geo. Hyman, A. C. Williams, Loreta Brotherson, R. B. Jarvis, M. M. Mitchell, W. C. Bray, J. B. Auction Bridge

Mrs. G. F. Smith was the charming hostess of the first large bridge party of the season Thursday afternoon at her beautiful home on Magnolia avenue, complimentary to her guest, Mrs. M. H. Mabry of Tallahassee.

The beauty of the attractive home was enhanced by the charming simlicity of the decorations. In the big colonial fire place a bank of ferns was very effective, while above, graduating from the top to the lower shelf were sprays of the lovely purple Boughan Villia. Vases of the purple flower were placed about the handsome rooms; completing an artistic arrangement that was charming. In the dining room the same effective decoration was used. Assisting Mrs. Smith in serving the delicious ice cream and cake were Misses Mell Whitner and Elizabeth McLaughlin.

Mrs. C. O. McLaughlin made top score and won a pair of fine silk hose. Mrs. Henry Wight won the consolation prize a lovely boudoir cap and Mrs. Mabry was presented with the guest prize of silk stockings.

Mrs. Smith's guests besides the honoree were Mesdames: W. Dickinson, A. W. Fitts, Henry Wight, C. O. McLaughlin, C. M. Vorce, Deane Turner, S. Puleston, Fannie Munson, D. L. Thrasher, R. A. THE LAKE BULKHEAD IS PROGRESSING

RAPIDLY PLACING CONCRETE POSTS IN POSITION

One of the greatest undertakings in the history of Sanford has started on the lake front. This is the bulkhead of Lake Monroe on the Sanford side and will extend from the front of the old fibre factory east of the alley below Palmetto avenue to a distance of about two thousand feet.

The bulkhead will follow the demarcation of the water line in width and will reclaim much land on the lake front that will be very valuable from a commercial standpoint aside from the beautification of the water front.

The first dredging was slow and difficult on account of the hard pan encountered necessitating the manufacture of a special apparatus for drilling into the hard pan and bringing it up through the suction dredge. New machinery has been added to the dredge boat and in a few days the pipes will be throwing a stream of lake sand over the bulkhead and the company expects to have the work completed in less than a year from date.

Haste is not one of the requisites of the work but thoroughness and when it is finished it will be a work of art and satisfaction not only to the contractors but to the citizens of Sanford.

Fred Ogrum, the well known contractor and concrete expert of Jacksonville is in charge of the work and together with F. W. Mahony and C. R. Walker of this city form the Seminole Construction Co., all of them imbued with the idea of giving the best work that can be obtained.

A visit to the lake front near the A. C. L. dock just now is most interesting. The new land recently made by the dredge has been turned into a construction dump and here can be seen the concrete pilings in all the forms of construction. The immense slabs are made from cement and granite heavily reinforced with steel rods and wire binders and this part of the work is being done systematically and well.

The pilings are 8 1/2 feet and are allowed to season before being put in place. All the modern appliances for the mixing of the concrete are used and machinery takes the place of hand labor in all the phases. After the slabs are made and seasoned they are loaded on trucks and hauled down to the end of the bulkhead where they are placed into position by hydraulic suction. The slabs are made to dovetail into position and will form a solid wall that will not only withstand the assaults of wind and water but will form a most handsome appearance from the lake side.

The tops at present show the steel rods but these will be hidden by a beautiful stone coping that will cap the entire bulkhead.

As soon as the wall is formed the dredge will be started with the new equipment and the filling will be made in record time. The work is progressing in fine shape and is something that can be pointed to with pride by our citizens this winter even though it is only in course of construction for it demonstrates that Sanford is alive to the many opportunities offered and our city will eventually be the most beautiful spot in the state, provided by nature with the most advantageous position on the great artery of trade and travel. The hand of man is only supplementing that work and making it more beautiful and sanitary.

The new sewers have all been extended and the manholes capped and all is in readiness to make Sanford's lake front the beauty spot that it should be.

Take a look at it and congratulate yourself that you are living in one of the finest cities in the entire southland.

No Raise in Price

Appropos of the increase in cost of many articles, especially those of foreign origin, we have received direct information from Sir Joseph Beecham (the proprietor of Beecham's Pills) that he has not increased his price to the trade and will not do so, and that there is no reason why any increase should be demanded by anyone.

Funeral of Captain Dunn

There was a large assemblage of friends Saturday afternoon at the home of Dr. G. H. Edwards at 409 South Orange avenue, attending the funeral of Captain E. W. D. Dunn, who died on Wednesday night. The services were conducted by the Rev. Arthur Beck, pastor of the Episcopal church of Sanford. Many beautiful floral tributes were offered as tokens of the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

The burial took place in the Orlando cemetery. —Reporter-Star.

THE WAR TAX IS $100,000,000

FREIGHT SHIPMENTS AND BEER TO BEAR THE BURDEN

Washington, D. C., Sept. 22.—An effort is being made by Congress to levy a war tax of $100,000,000 to make up the deficit in imports due to the European war. It is proposed that the freight shipments bear $65,000,000 and beer $35,000,000. The transportation companies are used merely as a collection agency of the fund and are to be compensated for their services. Beer is to bear an additional tax of fifty cents per barrel and the manufacturers of domestic wines also come in for a share of the tax burden.

As an additional relief for war conditions, Senate leaders announce that the Rivers and Harbors appropriation bill will probably be reduced $25,000,000.

Wet and Dry in Virginia

Richmond, Va., Sept. 22.—Virginia voters will ballot today on the question of state-wide prohibition under an act of the last legislature directing the Governor to call a special election for Sept. 22 upon petition of approximately 18,000 qualified voters.

Ninety of the one hundred Virginia counties already have voted on saloons or for prohibition and even if the state-wide prohibition is defeated, nine-tenths of the state will remain "dry." A prohibition victory would close all saloons in the remaining counties and in the principal cities.

Under terms of the legislative referendum if a majority vote be cast for prohibition in the special election the Governor will be required to issue a proclamation declaring it unlawful to manufacture liquors, except for medicinal, scientific, sacramental or mechanical purposes on and after November 10, 1916.

GOV. BUYS A BALE

Tallahassee, Fla., Sept. 22.—Gov. Park Trammell today in his effort to aid all possible in the "Buy a Bale of Cotton" movement, purchased a bale of cotton from W. H. Sellers of Arran, Florida, a farmer who was unable to hold his cotton, paying him ten cents a pound therefor. A few days ago the Governor issued an appeal to the people of the state urging the purchase of a bale of cotton or more at ten cents a pound by every citizen able to buy. The Governor is very anxious to have active interest manifested in this movement and believes in this way our cotton growers and the people of the cotton section of the state can be greatly assisted.

DEATH STRUGGLE FOUGHT IN GREAT BATTLE OF EUROPE

NO ADVANTAGE IS BEING GAINED TODAY IN THE BATTLE OF GIANTS

A STROKE OF FORTUNE MAY DECIDE IN FAVOR OF EITHER ARMY AND END THE WAR

London, Tuesday, 11 a. m. Reported von Kluck retired into Belgium and heavily reinforced.

Paris, Tuesday, 11 a. m.—Rheims cathedral can be restored, as it is not entirely ruined. French cleric of college in Dunkirk, falsely accused of being a spy, was court-martialed and shot at Valenciennes. Both armies are less violent in attack while allies are acquiring fresh troops.

London, England, Sept. 22.—While the fortunes of battle fluctuate along the center of the extended front in France, desperate efforts are being made to execute turning movements on both flanks.

The Anglo-French left wing is exerting every ounce of strength to turn the flank of the German general, von Kluck, who is reported as having received heavy reinforcements, while the German left according to a cautiously worded statement in Berlin, is making equally strenuous efforts to outflank the French right resting on Verdun.

Under ordinary weather conditions the Anglo-French task would be the easier for the reason that Verdun, heavily fortified, must fall before the French right can be seriously threatened; but on the German right the heavy rains have made such a morass of the valley of the Meuse that the allies are hardly likely to move along what would be their natural course until the German front north of Soissons has been driven back. The high ground between Noyon and Cauchy has been heavily fortified by General von Kluck and it dominates the whole valley of the Oise.

That the Germans choose their present defensive position deliberately is indicated by the fact that their heavy artillery rests on cement foundations, which must have taken some time to construct.

Some reports received in London declared that the reason for the desperate German counter attacks on Rheims is found in a movement of the allies which has virtually isolated Rheims from Laon, a town thirty miles to the northwest. If this is true, all of General von Kluck's marvelous strategy in protecting his sorely pressed left flank will have proved futile.

Berlin, Sept. 22 (via London).—Commenting on a report that Count von Bernstorff, German ambassador to the United States had said his nation was looking for peace upon condition that the entity of German territory would be preserved, the North German Gazette, the official organ declared in its issue of September 20 that the government has not even considered the matter.

"The assertions are intended," the paper says, "to foster the impression that we have tired of the war, in spite of our victories in the east and in the west. Peace overtures may not be looked for until the war, forced ruthlessly on our people, is brought to an honorable conclusion." The official statement given out last night made mention of the bombardment of Rheims. It said Rheims was in the battle lines of the French and that the Germans were obliged to bombard it. The necessity for this action was regretted, but the fire of the French, it was stated came from that direction. Orders to save the cathedral had been given.

The statement also made this reference to the progress on other points of the line.

The attacks on the French are progressing at several points in the Central Vosges. At Donon, near Sonones, 27 miles southeast of Lunéville and near Saales, in the German Vosges, their offensive has been repulsed.

"There is no news from the eastern Russian front camp."

War News Summary

There is no victory as yet for either side in the battle of the Aisne, which has now raged in France for ten days. Both sides claim successes and favorable positions.

The ten days of desperate battle, fierce artillery fire day and night, infantry charges in which the fighting has been hand-to-hand, and cavalry onslaughts when opportunity offered, have shown one result: the soldiers of the three nations are becoming exhausted. The human machine is weakening under the frightful demands made upon it. Lulls in the battle are ascribed simply to utter fatigue.

Another factor which has shown a notable effect on the conduct of the operations has been the weather. An incessant cold rain has flooded the valley of the Aisne. The river has overflowed its banks, roads and fields are heavy and trenches filled with water. The men are drenched and the day and night are dark. English soldiers coming to Paris from the front are disgusted with mud. Worn out men are succumbing to the hardships of fighting and living in the open air under such weather conditions. Transportation of all kinds, for both sides, is rendered much more difficult. It is even said the Germans can no longer move their heavy artillery with effective promptness on account of heavy roads. The men are camping in water and the French say the Germans are suffering from lack of food.

While neither side claims a decisive outcome, there appears to be good reason to believe that the battle is drawing to some definite development. Military opinion both in London and Paris leans to the conviction that the present lines, battered for ten days, soon will have to show noticeable change. The fight is fiercest on the allies' left, where desperate efforts are being made to turn the flank of the German army under General von Kluck. Von Kluck has been reinforced but in spite of this the French in late official reports claim an advantage, though it is admitted to be slight. The Germans appear to be making desperate and consistent efforts to turn the right wing of the allies, resting on Verdun. The help of this fortified position is of advantage to the French.

On the center the fortunes of war fluctuate. The positions now held by the Germans were well selected and well fortified. Some of their heavy artillery is described as resting upon cement foundations. A news dispatch received in London from France says an aeroplane reconnaissance has given rise to the conviction that a large portion of the German forces is retiring in the direction of fortified positions on the German border.

The destruction by German shell fire of the famous cathedral of Rheims has been made a matter of protest on the part of the French government. Berlin, in an official statement, asserts that the fire of the French came from the direction of the cathedral and the necessity of bombarding it is regretted.

Warning

On account of there being a number of fire escapes erected throughout the state that do not meet the requirements of the state law, I beg to ask that each and every one having to have such work done, being governed by the state law, Chapter 6475 No. 55, Sec. 14, Acts of Legislature, 1913, submit their plans to me for approval, before the work is done, and when such fire escapes have been erected, that they have them inspected and approved by state hotel commissioner, before paying for same.

WATER RUNS UP STREAM

PHENOMENON HAS BEEN NOTED BY GOOD MANY FLORIDIANS

Early in June this year I wrote an open letter to the Jacksonville Board of Trade calling attention to the fact that at low water in the St. Johns river the current was up stream from the mouth of the Wekiva river, at times as far Lake Harney. Therefore navigation was in no way dependent on the little stream south of Lake Harney. This condition has often prevailed during the spring months but I have never observed it at this season until the present summer. Owing to the shortage of rainfall this summer the current has been up stream as far as Lake Harney as late as the middle of this month, September. The object of this well authenticated fact but to call attention to the salt and perhaps other minerals noticeable in the water of the St. Johns at this stage.

We have the phenomenon of salt water crabs in and above Lake Monroe, and some thoughtless people attribute this to the cutting of canals above here and letting the salt water in from Indian river. No canals as yet have been cut into the St. Johns from Indian river and if they ever are, the water would have to run up hill 15 to 20 feet to get into the St. Johns. While to get at Sanford the Atlantic Ocean would only have to rise a few feet above high tide to come up the river, as it goes daily to St. George. The salt and other minerals, if any in the water of the river are from Salt Lake and certain salt springs and ponds that are on the east side of the river near Titusville.

Respectfully,

J. N. WHITNER.

Social Centers

The crying need of rural Florida is social centers where our young people can be entertained, amused and instructed under the direction of cultured, clean and competent leadership, where aesthetic surroundings stir the love for the beautiful, where art changes the atmosphere with inspiration and power, and innocent amusements instruct and brighten their lives.

To hold out young people on the farm we must make farm life more attractive, as well as the business of farming more remunerative. The school house should be the social unit, properly equipped for nourishing and building character, so that the lives of our people can properly function around it and become supplied with the necessary elements of human thought and activity.

Mrs. Edith Ellison Adams has been granted a decree of absolute divorce from Mr. Frank Adams of Maitland, Orange county, Fla. She will hereafter take her maiden name of Ellison in conjunction with that of her children and be known as Mrs. Ellison-Adams.

A SQUARE DEAL

The National Farmers' Union is demanding a square deal from Congress and State Legislatures on the marketing of farm products.

The Federal and State Governments have been spending millions of dollars annually in urging the farmer to increase production, but little attention has been given to the marketing side of the question.

It is a well known paradox that the larger the crop the less the value and a stimulant to production without corresponding aid in marketing, loses much of its worth to agriculture. The nation is fast awakening to the fact that marketing, and not production is the problem of the farmer.

FLORIDA IS FORGING TO THE FRONT

MANY PEOPLE ARE COMING TO STATE INVESTIGATING

In making a tour of Florida, evidences of improvement are everywhere to be seen on every main improvement in rail and hard roads, activities in city building, citrus fruit and vegetable culture as well as agricultural pursuits.

From one end of the state to the other there is an awakening spirit as to the improvement of the soil, better cultivation, wider diversification of crops and the general advancement of farms. No one familiar with Florida ten years ago can travel through it now without being impressed with the striking change that is taking place in the diversification of farming and the improvement of farm homes.

Men everywhere throughout the state are viewing with a broad vision limitless opportunities for development. They are actively at work doing things in accordance with the wealth and opportunities which the resources of the state justify.

There is no longer to be found any where in the state doubt as to its future, or any wavering in thought as to the fact that it is the most inviting field for man of brains, energy and capital in the world. Business men realize that there may be from time to time temporary halts in the march of progress, and they further realize that the prosperity of this state has been great and continuous for the past ten years.

One of the most interesting features is the number of men from other sections of the country spying out land, investigating its opportunities for investment, and investigating well as investigating. One can scarcely pick up a state paper without noting the arrivals here and there of capitalists, or men representing capital, from other sections, and land buyers are coming in from everywhere.—Tampa Weekly Tribune.

Millinery Opening

The signs of fall and winter are usually presaged by the millinery openings and the ladies of Sanford look forward to these displays of the late styles in headgear. The men look forward to them also in an entirely different manner, but nevertheless the first signs of fall will be displayed at the millinery parlors of Mrs. J. H. Bruton on Thursday and Friday of this week when the big stock lately purchased for the patrons will be displayed in all their loveliness.

Mrs. Bruton assures us that the stock this year is far and away the best, most beautiful and stylish that has ever been brought to this city and anticipating the war Mrs. Bruton has reduced the prices to the point where the hats are bound to sell. The styles are not freaks this season but are in the main most serviceable and chic and the ladies of Sanford and Seminole county will be treated to a great surprise this year when they note the beautiful hats at such reasonable prices. Miss King will be there also to show the hats and to lend her aid in arranging them just to suit the different ideas of the customers.

Sanford Lost to Orlando

Sanford boys met defeat on the Orlando floor by the tight score of 29 to 26. The game was a hard fought battle from beginning to end. Although the Sanford team was beaten we have not lost courage. We will play a return game with Orlando Friday, Oct. 2nd, on our floor, and we expect to do them up brown. Orlando has a much heavier team than we have, if not heavier than DeLand. We play DeLand Friday and not Tuesday, as was scheduled. Line up was as follows: Sanford Orlando Herring R. F. Martin Washburn L. F. Chapman Gilbert C. Moore Raynor R. G. Rodenbayer Routh L. G. Hyer Sulis, Pearson, W. Routh, Sanford. Sub, Salisbury, Orlando.

Hawkins Connelly left on Sunday night for Washington, D. C., where he will spend the next few months visiting relatives.

THE GREAT WHITE PLAGUE

The great white plague, tuberculosis is more to be feared than the Black Plague, the name given in history to bubonic plague, for "pulmonary consumption" is always with us. Its approach and development are slower, and if possible, more insidious and stealthy, while bubonic plague may be guarded against by well understood methods.

Tuberculosis, and here is meant the disease as it affects the lungs, frequently gets a firm hold upon its victim before its presence is ever suspected. Its greatest foe is fresh, clean air, an unlimited supply of it. It is more efficient than medicines, for no drugs can stop tuberculosis.

The disease is not communicable in open air, and this fact is recognized in the modern treatment. Vast sums are spent every year in the erection and maintenance of hospitals. Pennsylvania spends annually a million dollars for this purpose, to provide splendid buildings equipped and managed by experts; but these great sanatoria become in fact, little more than boarding houses for the poorer classes.

The enclosed sanatorium plan is almost prohibitive by state appropriation on account of its cost. In Florida it is entirely impossible, as well as inefficient, because both sexes and both races would have to be provided for in separate institutions. Even the open air sanatorium idea is objectionable, only in less degree, for the same reason.

The plan favored by Florida's Board of Health is based largely on the education of the people to the facts about the disease, its seriousness, its ways of spreading and the responsibility of the individual. For the treatment of tuberculosis is not a matter for the physical alone, it is largely a sociological problem.

The Board urges the open air treatment, because it is available to all and its cost is within the reach of the poorest. The patient should be separated in his sleeping and living from the rest of the family. A canvas tent, properly floored and furnished and placed in the yard surrounding the home, is almost ideal for the purpose.

The further development of the idea includes also the extension of the district nursing supervision, by which the entire state is divided into sections, each under the direct care of a competent nurse, who has an acquaintance with every tubercular patient and who by frequent visits is enabled to advise and direct and teach.

The plan is practical because it is within the reach of all, because it segregates the individual patient from other patients, and because it keeps him under the influence of accustomed surroundings and friends, whereas the removal from such environments necessarily must have an influence more or less depressing. And thus it has many advantages even over the general open-air sanatorium, where are gathered many other victims of the dread disease, whose conversations are usually a continuous comparison of symptoms and discussion of the depressing conditions that have gathered them in one place for one purpose—to fight off death as long as may be possible.—Fla. Board of Health.

To the Manor Born. A lady accosted a little girl who was entering one of the fashionable New York flats where she knew the rules were exceedingly strict, and after some little conversation, said: "How is it you live in these flats? I thought they would not take children. How did you get in?" "Why," replied the child, "I was born in."

One as Hard as the Other. "The training of children is a confessedly difficult task," says an editorial writer. No more difficult than the training of parents. Many children find the task of conquering the prejudices and old-fashioned ideas of father and mother almost hopeless.—Toledo Blade.

Florida's oldest college will open its doors for its thirtieth year of work on Wednesday morning, Sept. 30th.

During the summer Mr. B. W. Stone, the very efficient superintendent of grounds and buildings has been busy and the campus is already in fine shape to receive the large number of old and new students who are expected to enroll at that time. Baths and toilets have been installed in Lakeside Cottage, the only one of the three dormitories for young men which has lacked these conveniences hitherto, and the building has been painted. Cloverleaf Cottage, the dormitory for young women, has been painted, its supply for hot water for baths greatly increased, and other work repaired and freshened. All the other buildings have been thoroughly cleaned and made ready for occupancy. Swimming docks for both men and women, extending into beautiful Lake Virginia, have been built and provided with springboards for diving. An outdoor tennis court for the use of the men has been built making them all.

The fine gymnasium has been put in prime condition and other improvements have been carried out. Rollins' proposal to withdraw from intercollegiate athletics and to substitute for these a careful system of physical development and athletic sports for all her students has aroused a great deal of interest in various quarters. Many letters have been received from trustees, former instructors, graduates and former pupils, parents of present students, editors of important papers, and officers of other colleges in Florida and elsewhere, enthusiastically commending this action. Evidently it is felt by a large number of people that athletics have come to hold an abnormal position in the American college, costing too much money, taking too much time and absorbing too much interest on the part of a few pupils, and being too much neglected on the other hand by the rank and file of the student body. The experiment at Rollins will be watched with interest by the authorities here, and by many others who are concerned in the problem of education.

Raymond W. Greene, the very popular and efficient physical director, expects to bring at least a score of new students with him on his return to Rollins. Mr. Greene is also in charge of religious activities of the student body. He is an active and enthusiastic in his Christian life, as in athletics, and exercises a strong and wholesome moral influence throughout the institution.

Sanford Library. Dr. Wiley's letter explains itself. Every housekeeper who has puzzled over the suitability of aluminum for cooking utensils will be glad to read it and the article he promises later in Good Housekeeping. Mrs. George Waldron and Mr. J. D. Parker each contribute a copy of this magazine to the library. Dr. Wiley's "Pure Food" papers each month should be read by every one. M. KEY, Librarian. Bureau of Foods, Sanitation and Health, Harvey W. Wiley, M. D., Director.

September 8th, 1914. Mrs. A. D. Key, Sanford, Fla.: Dear Madam—I should think that sulphur water might readily blacken aluminum ware or any other metal when used in cooking. The only remedy is to carefully clean the utensils and avoid allowing water or any food to stand in them except when in use.

We have made quite an extensive study of aluminum utensils and the results I believe are to be published in the fall. The general conclusion reached was that the amounts of aluminum dissolved under conditions of ordinary care, were negligible; furthermore, acids do not attack the vessel so much as alkalies—the use of baking soda or cooking soda, or alkaline waters, causing dark stains to appear on the vessels, and warning is issued against the dangerous poison, oxalic acid, for cleaning these utensils. A small quantity of vinegar can be used to neutralize the alkalinity of the water, if such exists, and no dark staining follows. These vessels should always be most carefully cleaned, and materials should not be allowed to stand in them.

Yours truly, W. W. WILEY. Beware. In time of safety it is just as well to find where the fire escapes or the lifeboats are and to try on the cork belts.—Chicago News.

Foolish Question. A man charged at the Liverpool (Eng.) police court with fighting stated that the prosecutor hit him first on the jaw. "Did you hit him first?" asked the stipendiary. "No, sir," was the reply. "If I had hit him first he would have been in the hospital, not me."

CROPS ALL THE YEAR

The Jacksonville Metropolis in Sunday's issue printed a map of the southern states showing the length of time in growing crops and the actual number of days in which farming can be done. Only the southern states were given, as no other states, except California can compete with the south in the length of the growing seasons and California cannot touch Florida in diversified crops of fruits and vegetables.

The lines and figures show in days the average length of crop growing seasons in various parts of each of the six states as reported by the United States Weather Bureau. A crop season ranging from 200 to 348 days a year makes this the most profitable agricultural section of America.

It goes even further and brings the matter closer home by proving that the agricultural possibilities of Florida are unlimited and its unequalled advantages over other states in the Union in this and a great many other respects are unquestionable. No single state in the whole United States is well adapted to such a great variety of agricultural possibilities. With its thousands of acres of cut over lands in all parts of the state and the very fact that these same lands are capable of producing such enormous quantities of forage crops and furnish such splendid grax crops and furnish such splendid grazing when properly managed will make Florida one of the greatest live stock states in the Union. Meats of producing animals of all kinds can be raised cheaper in Florida than in any other state in the Union. Hogs can be raised when grazed upon the many different crops that are so well suited to their needs for not more than three cents per pound.

The general farm crops such as corn, hay, sugar cane and cotton are the principal crops for north and west Florida and cover a growing period of from eight to ten months of the year, beginning February 1 and ending December 1. Besides these just mentioned, all kinds of truck crops that can be grown anywhere in the United States can be and are being profitably grown all through the north, north-central and western part of the state during these months. There are also demonstrated instances that prove that citrus fruits can also be grown very profitably in this section of the state and with the proper varieties is not considered any more hazardous than further south.

The southern half of the peninsular part of the state stands in a class by itself, and when it comes to getting early vegetables on the northern and eastern markets, it is absolutely without competition with its pineapples and citrus fruits that are noted the world over for their unexcelled quality. South Florida from October to March 15 and sometime October to March 15 and sometimes later is feeding the balance of the country.

Practically twelve months of the year some crops can be grown in some parts of the state, there being possibly one and a half months during the year that couldn't be called perfect and ideal for crop production, and this applies more to the southern half of the state than the north and western parts, this being from July 15 to September 1. It is not to be understood by any means that crops are not grown and harvested during this period, for, as a matter of fact, a statement of this kind would not be true, but for planting many of the delicate vegetables that are so well adapted to Florida's climate and soil, the sun is a little too hot to be considered favorable for their growth.

No state in the Union can truthfully say that it can compete with Florida in balmy climate and the number of agricultural products that can be grown from ten and a half to twelve months of the year as compared with from six to eight months in northern and eastern states.

REVEAL AGE OF MAN

Flint implements which because of the thickness of the patina given to them by exposure are estimated to be at least 2,000,000 years old and believed to prove that man existed at that remote time in the valley of the Nile, with sufficient intelligence to fashion stone into weapons, are being shown in a collection of more than 5,000 items excavated in Egypt by Robert de Rustafjaell Bey, says the New York Herald. The excavator, a fellow of the Royal Geographical society, is at the exhibition.

Exposure to the elements for 100,000 years leaves a patina on flint the depth of a man's fingernail. The patina on some of the weapons shown, dating back to the paleolithic and mesolithic periods, is nearly half an inch thick. These relics form the beginning of a display which has been arranged in chronological order, showing the art of Egypt down to the present day. One of the most interesting things is a flint weapon on which is the finger print of a man who lived 200,000 years ago. The flint was cast aside, and as there was no rain the particles of silica in the air hardened and made a "Bertillon" record of the man's thumb and finger. There is a flint tool the age of which is estimated at 150,000 years and a stone dagger that was used 100,000 years ago. A set of serrated tools were used by prehistoric jewelers to saw ornaments out of shells. Two perfect flint bracelets illustrate the highest art of flint knapping.

A feature of the exhibition is the earliest known example of a painting on canvas, more than 3,500 years old, found on the site of a temple at Thebes. It is a symbolic representation of the goddess Hathor, in the form of a cow, before whom seven Egyptians are about to perform an act of veneration. Its colors are brown, red, green and blue. An inscription translated reads: "Hatho, the Lady of Heaven, in the midst of Thebes, adoration to the lord of two lands, bowing down in the midst of Thebes, that she may grant life, prosperity and health, fitness for service, favor and love to the spirits of the favorites of Hathor, Tehanefer, her sister, lady of the house Merhuft, her mother, Sent, his son Huy, his own beloved son Mahuta, her beloved daughter Thot-Amentet."

There are painted and inscribed shirts 3,000 years old, a set of intricate bronze surgical instruments, including probes and tweezers, 3,000 years old, and bronze fishhooks of the same period made with a barb exactly as they are today. Examination of wickerwork of the same period contain mummified fruits and eggs. Vases of alabaster antedating the invention of pottery have great beauty of form. The collection of pottery begins with predynastic tiles and extends down to the Ptolemaic period.

DOG CATCHER NABS WOMAN

Forces Her Into Cage When She Protests at Seizure of Her Pet Canine.

Williamsport, Pa.—Because Mrs. Nickola Rosata strenuously objected when Mike Shanahan, Williamsport's official dog catcher, attempted to put the untamed Rosata pet dog into the cage of his wagon and take it to the city pound, Shanahan forced the woman into the cage and hauled her about the streets for hours, according to the story told Alderman Blazie by Mrs. Rosata's husband, who had a warrant issued for the dog catcher's arrest. It is claimed that Shanahan grabbed the woman, forced her head first into the dogcage, then jumped on the wagon and drove through the main streets of the city, finally returning to the Rosata home and releasing his prisoner. Shanahan is in jail and no more dogs are being caught.

DOG FOILS A FARM THIEF

Canine Makes So Much Racket That Wagonload of Loot is Abandoned by Robber.

Vineland, N. J.—When Farmer O. W. Roper's dogs made a racket about midnight Roper discovered that a thief had stolen a wagonload of stuff from the barn. The telephone and an automobile quickly brought Constable Peter Kiker to the scene, and in the road behind some trees Kiker found a horse and loaded wagon, but no driver. In a coat pocket was found a letter addressed to Harry Sheon of Carmel, and at Carmel it was learned that Sheon had purchased the horse and wagon a few days before on a note, but the new owner could not be found.

HEN BRINGS QUAIL HOME

Lost Chicken Comes Back With an Adopted Brood of Eleven Youngsters.

Northfield, N. J.—Recently Adam Deckenback, who has a home and clearing in the woods between here and Livingston, missed a whiffler, Wyandotte hen. He saw no more of her until a week later, when she came into the barnyard leading a brood of 11 quail. The hen apparently found a nest and chased the mother from the eggs, which she decided to hatch herself.

Deckenback can't coop up the young quail, which would be against the law, but he is in hopes that the influence of the other chickens will make them quiet and domesticated.

QUEER BEDFELLOWS MELTING POT

Turkos, Gurkhas, Cossacks and Walloons Are Blended.

If politics makes queer bedfellows so does war, or at least this may be said of the present war, where especially among the armies of the allies some queer bedfellows indeed have come together. Think, for instance, of Turkos from Algeria, and Indian soldiers and Walloons from Belgium, and Cossacks from Russia, to mention no other heterogeneous elements, all fighting in a common cause. Indeed, the army of the allies is a remarkable melting pot.

The Turkos and other black and yellow regular troops of France have been brought over in numbers from Algeria and Senegal, French possessions in Africa, to fight against Germany. And

REGIMENT OF TURKOS

France has great numbers of these regular troops in her African possessions that she can call upon. The Turkos, native Algerian troops, made their first appearance in the war in the fighting about Muedhausen.

And so the French black soldier is once more at grips with the white German regular. Four and forty years have passed since they met on the field of battle on French soil. Then it was that the Turkos, in the Franco-Prussian war, drove back the German infantry with heavy loss at the battle of Welschburg on Aug. 4, 1870, while again, two days later, the Turkos, together with the spahis, more of France's colored troops from Algeria, under General MacMahon, cut and hacked their way through the solid German ranks at the bloody battle of Woeith.

Since the present war with Germany commenced the war office at Paris has been advised that literally hundreds of thousands of French black and yellow subjects in the various French possessions in Africa and elsewhere, many of them already trained soldiers and others who have in their the making of excellent fighting men, are almost beside themselves in their anxiety to go to France to fight the common enemy.

What of the extent of this present and latent force upon which France may draw for military support?

In Algeria alone the French native population of black and yellow people is 4,480,000, according to official statistics. In the Algerian Sahara there are said to be 50,000; in Tunis, 1,500,000; Sahara region, 2,500,000; Senegal, 3,500,000; Mibat territories, 4,000,000; French Guinea, 2,200,000; Ivory Coast, 2,500,000; Dahomey, 1,000,000; Kongo, 4,000,000; Small coast and dependencies, 200,000; Reunion, 178,200; Comoro Isles, 63,000; Nossi Bey, 9,500; St. Marie, 7,070, and in Madagascar, 2,500,000, making a total of 32,085,000.

In addition to this, in India the French population, almost all native, is 278,100; Anam, 6,000,000; Cambodia, 1,500,000; Cochin China, 2,400,000, and in Tonkin and Laos, 18,500,000, a total of 22,679,100.

AMONG ALLIES, OF NATIONALITIES

Strange Fighters Are Now Comrades In Com- mon Cause.

In Algeria, in Morocco, in Timbuktu, in Dahomey and on the Ivory Coast, on the Barbary coast, in Tunis, Senegal and in many other places in Africa the French native soldier has shown that in many ways he is fully equal to the white soldier. There they have served and are today serving as Turkos, tirailleurs, spahis, foot and horse and also as artillerymen.

England, too, can swell the allied armies with great numbers of dark skinned soldiers, fit comrades on the firing line with France's Turkos and spahis. Among the most formidable fighting outfits in the Indian army are the Gurkhas. There are ten regiments of Gurkha rifles. These little fighters, who come from the region of Nepal and who trace their descent from the Rajputs, would rather fight than eat. In appearance the Gurkhas are deceiving. They are short, stocky little men of somewhat the appearance of the Japanese, although a little heavier. And they wear perpetual grins on their faces. The grin does not come off when they go into a fight.

The Gurkhas were conquered by the British in 1814 after years of fighting and have become loyal subjects of England. When the Gurkha regiments were first made part of the Indian army they did not seem to take well to organized methods of warfare. It was not until the army authorities allowed them to make their national weapon, the kukri, part of their equipment that they regained their fame as fighters. Their instructors never could make them use the bayonet. The kukri is a long, heavy curved knife.

In close quarters the Gurkha throws away his rifle and takes to the kukri, which he uses with telling effect. When charged by cavalry the Gurkhas stand up and fire at the horsemen until they are within sabering distance, when the natives fall. As the charging horsemen pass over them the little warriors are up and hamstringing the horses or clinging to the saddles and stabbing the riders.

This method of fighting is not unlike that of the Turkos of the French army, who also "play possum" when charged by a heavier enemy, only to rise and take the attackers from the rear as soon as they have passed over them. Neither Gurkhas nor Turkos, however, do much defensive fighting except against cavalry, for they are usually leading any charge that may be taking place in their vicinity.

England, if necessary, can pour into France from India 235,000 trained men, of which 75,000 are British troops, including some of the crack regiments of the royal army, and the 160,000 remaining are the fighting native troops of the Indian army. Besides these regular troops of the Indian army the independent Indian rajahs have troops of their own, which they have offered with enthusiasm for service with the British expeditionary army.

Russia's most picturesque force and one that is perhaps the most efficient of its class in the world is the Cossack cavalry. For hundreds of years these superb horsemen, trained from childhood to feats of remarkable skill, have been famous for their courage and for daring raids against the enemy. The czar has 130,000 of these cavalymen, and so far in this war they have more than lived up to their legendary reputation.

Belgium's most famous soldiers are drawn from the Walloons of Wallonia, of which Liege is the capital. In southern Belgium, These Walloons are descendants of the Belgii, the men who so bravely faced the legions of Rome under Julius Caesar. The Flemings in the north are emigrants from German states, but the Walloons are indigenous, natives of the soil they are defending today as in the long, long past. The Walloon has been a striking figure in scores of wars in which his courage has shone, but perhaps he has made no more splendid exhibition of valor than in his brave defense of Liege.

AUTHOR AS MOVIE ACTOR:

Stewart Edward White Relates His Experiences In Making Dramas.

In a recent letter to a friend Stewart Edward White gives a graphic account of his first and only experience as an actor—and as a motion picture actor at that. It was during the production of Mr. White's novel, "Conjuror's House," in the woods of the Sierras that Mr. White had his experience as a movie actor. Patrons of the movies by this time will be familiar with Mr. White's Indian makeup, because "Conjuror's House" was recently produced under the title of "The Call of the North," with Mr. Robert Edeson in the leading role. Mr. White's account is as follows:

"When 'Conjuror's House' was sold for the movie, I confess I was only mildly interested. However, I had talked with the man, who was to manage the production, and had seen the cast and reviewed the preparations, I decided to go down personally to see the thing through. Apparently no expense was to be spared; but, more important, no detail making for accuracy, either of equipment, or of the woodcraft or of the historical values, was to be omitted.

"The big man who so impressively plays Meenigan is a cowboy and had never before seen a canoe. He never succeeded in learning to stay in one. 'Why,' he remarked plaintively after one disaster, 'I just reached behind me for my weapon and the blame thing bucked!' In spite of our training, however, we could get nobody skillful enough to take the bow and stern paddles so finally Mr. Fisher and myself had to assume costumes and play in him. For this, when payday came, we received $5 apiece. This is the first money I have ever made as an actor. Fisher, however, outdid me, for he succeeded in his mistake for the occasion.

"In the bear trap scene, in which Achille Phard gets his arm caught, we weakened the spring by hammering it until it barely closed. Even then, and with Phard's arm heavily padded, that character fough his part sufficiently realistic. The fight between Meenigan and Mr. Robert Edeson as Trent was another realistic bit. The struggle was long continued and very genuine, and as we were playing at an altitude of 7,000 feet the final stagger as they leave the film is not at all 'put on'.

self to Mr. Herrick, whose long experience enables him to be particularly useful at this troubled time.

Mr. Herrick has always been very popular in Paris and has shown remarkable ability as a diplomatist, although previous to his appointment by President Taft he had had no diplomatic training. He had been a political leader in Ohio and governor of that state. By force of character and by wise use of his abilities and grasp of the situation he has made for himself a place and a name not only in Paris, but all over the civilized world.

THE SANFORD HERALD

Published Every Tuesday and Friday Morning by THE HERALD PRINTING COMPANY... Subscription Price, $2.00 a Year in Advance...

Bob Holly of the Sanford Herald states that he is not a candidate for the U. S. Senatorship. That leaves only 97 candidates.

The Tampa Times calls Clarence Woods of the Eustis Lake Region a 'suit generis'. Well, he is.

The big dailies have a bunch of jingo dope each day that is denied the following day, but only the real facts of the war are published in The Herald and appear on the Herald bulletin board.

Bob Holly says that Rube Allyn was unable to see anything when he left Sanford for home on that junketing tour. Poor Rube!

Not in Sanford but Orlando. Sanford is strictly a temperance town, selling only cigars, cold drinks and newspapers on Sunday.

Bob Holly has relieved the complexity of the senatorial outlook by announcing he will not be candidate. Bob may never be senator but he shows consideration worthy of a senator.

Thanks, Joe. We would rather have the friendship of the press gang than to be President.

The editor of The Herald acknowledges with thanks the receipt of an invitation to attend the launching of the mammoth ferry boat, Henry M. Flagler at St. Augustine on Tuesday, September 22nd.

A. B. Brock of Sanford, wrote us and asks if we want to set any of our verse to music. Is this one of Bob Holly's jokes?

The Sanford Herald calls attention to the lowly Florida sweet potato, which, it says, was once classed with the razorback in the category of humility.

Johnny Borland, who has been quiescent for some time has come to the front again this time as editor of the Jennings Herald.

Bob Holly of the Sanford Herald, having heard that a newspaper man is likely to be the pro tem senator to succeed Senator Bryan, narrows the choice of Governor Trammell in that respect by withdrawing his name from consideration for the office.

IS IT NOW? Several of the newspapers in the state, notably those published in South Florida, insist that a South Florida man should succeed Senator Bryan in the event that gentleman is appointed to a federal judgeship.

Are you through now, you distinguished mollusk eating cannibal of word edgewise we might timidly arise from a back seat in the Amen corner and squeak that we rather opine South Florida has the rest of the state skinned fourteen ways in brains, livers and other organic matter.

NEWSPAPER DAY Everybody in California is expected to send a newspaper to a friend or relative in the United States or Europe on October first.

"The papers," says the dispatch telling about the plan, "will go as a direct and personal message from one friend to another. The object will be to enlighten the people all over the world as to the resources of California and as to the class of people best adapted to make a living in the state."

In setting a day for the entire state of California on which newspapers are to be sent out, it is possible that special editions of all kinds will be produced for the occasion, and for this reason it is scarcely wise to urge such a state-wide event for Florida.

But the people of Florida could make a practice of having every day a "Newspaper Day." When you have read your Morning paper, send it to a friend.

PRODUCER AND HIS PRODUCT In advocating a city market for Orlando the Reporter-Star has confined its advocacy to simple arguments for the health and convenience of the people.

The question of municipal markets is being agitated in Houston, Tex., and a special committee recently has been engaged in making an investigation of the cost of living, says the Courier-Journal.

It has been discovered by the committee that the producer gets 12 1/2 cents per dozen ears of green corn while the consumer pays 30 cents per dozen.

But everybody knows that the big profits go to others who merely officiate as mediums between producers and consumers. The Houston committee recommends the establishment of a number of ward markets.

MAKING MATTERS WORSE Some of our exchanges are making the serious mistake of commenting on the cause of our troubles and attributing the cause to hard times. They are also predicting more failures to follow.

But the brethren who take up the cry of hard times and pass it along are injuring not only their business, but that of the entire newspaper fraternity and all Florida.

Make the majority of the people believe that a financial crisis is at hand and you make them withdraw their funds from the banks. They hesitate before purchasing articles that are really needed and before you realize it they have withdrawn from circulation money enough to have made times good.

We do not believe Florida as a whole has ever been in a better shape financially than at the present time, and the outlook is bright indeed, if those in a position to feel the business pulse and diagnose the case are true prognosticators of the future.

This is the season of year in Florida when business is at its lowest ebb. But it is the season when the tide turns and soon its incoming flow will be bringing thousands and thousands of dollars in return for the fruits and vegetables shipped from the state.

Lime Instead of Potash It may be remembered that lime was a constituent of the manure of commercial fertilizers and that almost the whole of the world supply of potash was derived from a single mine in Germany.

Very wide attention has been called to this situation, with the result that alleged discoveries of potash have been made in other countries to which access may be had; and even, if these reported discoveries turn out to be deceptive, leading agricultural chemists assert that so far as agriculture is concerned the supply of potash is not indispensable to the growing of large crops as large in quantity and as excellent in quality as those now produced.

The president of the Federal Chemical Company of Louisville, Ky., in a recent article in the Manufacturers' Record says: "It will be difficult for our perturbed fertilizer brokers to impart their excitement over potash to the dealers in fertilizer or to the farmers who use them for the very obvious reason that a large number of the most intelligent farmers in the east and middlewest have long used fertilizers, and are continuing to use them, in which the element of potash is entirely absent.

stantially supported by leading American agronomists, who have given serious study and efficient field service to the subject. While potash is present in nearly all soils in sufficient quantities it is in many cases unavailable because insoluble and needs some other ingredient to bring it to a state where it can be used by the plant.

WOUNDED BIRD UPSETS BOAT Gets Caught on Woman's Hat and Nearly Causes Her Death by Drowning. Cold Spring, N. Y.—A malmed sparrow, which fell upon Mrs. Floyd Nesbitt's hat, and got entangled in the trimmings, nearly caused her death by drowning on Lake Oseawana.

Reunited After 38 Years' Separation. Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—Mrs. Margaret Mackey of Pittston and Peter Miller of Chicago, brother and sister, who have been separated for 38 years, each believing the other dead, were reunited when Miller walked into the home of his sister unannounced and declared he was her long lost brother.

MRS. BURLESON AN AUTHOR

Wife of Postmaster General Given Place Among Writers with Production of "Secretary."

Washington.—Mrs. Albert S. Burleson is one cabinet member's wife who does not shine in reflected glory. The postmaster general is distinguished among statesmen, but his fame is matched by the fame his wife has won in the literary world.

The production of her clever comedy, "His Secretary," in Washington last winter, with Preston Gibson as sponsor, gave Mrs. Burleson a place among recognized writers and called attention to the fact that she had already written "The Vixen," "The Hour" and "The Deluge," and several other plays that had been successfully produced.

"I began writing long before I assumed the responsibilities of a family," says Mrs. Burleson, "but I gladly laid aside my pen to rock the cradle, and I had little hope of ever writing again. But now the children are grown, my oldest daughter has a baby of her own, and my ambition to write is even greater than it was when I was a young girl, and so...

Pennsylvania Museum Official Is Found Guilty of Desecration of Ancient Burying Ground

Washington, Sept. 21.—The official in charge of the Pennsylvania Museum, who was found guilty of desecrating an ancient Indian burying ground in the town of Sandston, Pa., was sentenced to a term of imprisonment.

Mr. Hove was arraigned before Justice of the Peace John E. Whitney. The charge against him was dismissed. He announced that he would continue his excavations. He asserted that his position as vice-president of the museum was an honorary one, and that he had defrayed the expenses of excavation himself. Thirty skeletons and hundreds of relics have been dug up and sent to the museum.

NO TROOPS FOR THE FAIR

War Department at Washington City Cannot Make Detail Without Special Law.

New York.—A Washington dispatch to the New York Tribune says: The secretary of war has been compelled to deny the request of the managers of the Panama-Pacific exposition to detail a considerable number of army officers and regulars to serve in various capacities during the fair next year.

Officers and men would have to be detailed at once to assume the suggested duties, and nothing can be done, except by special legislation, which the war department is not disposed to recommend.

What Do You Know About This?

New York.—Norman McInnes, a mine manager, who has just returned from Nicaragua, declared that chickens brought by him from the states to that country ate so much growing tobacco that their eggs were unfit to eat because of the strong nicotine flavor.

FROM THE NATION'S CAPITAL

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON BY THE SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT OF THE HERALD

Washington, Sept. 22 (Special)—At a largely attended conference, held early this week, of the resident directors and vice presidents of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, it was decided to hold the eleventh annual convention of the organization in this city on December 9, 10 and 11 next. So vastly important will this meeting be that it was decided to make every possible effort to bring to Washington the largest number of delegates that has ever attended the conventions of this great waterway association for the beneficial effect it will have upon Congress in reflecting the sentiment of the nation toward improved waterways.

In view of the continued attacks upon the River and Harbor appropriation bill, Senator Joseph E. Ransdell, president of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress is more than anxious to make the forthcoming convention the most remarkable in the history of the organization which has, for upwards of ten years carried on a nationwide propaganda for developing the deserving rivers and harbors of the country.

The situation as to the River and Harbor bill has not changed, the filibuster against the measure continuing with no visible signs of its coming to an end. The great majority of the Senate are becoming heartily tired of the tactics of the opposition and are seriously thinking of inaugurating night sessions in order to get the bill out or in a position to be voted upon item by item. If it then appears that items are vicious the Senate will decide whether they should stay in or be stricken out.

The buy-a-bale-of-cotton movement, which was originated in the south a short time ago in order to help out the cotton planters, has grown to enormous proportions. President Wilson's purchase of a bale giving the movement a most unexpected, but none the less gratifying impetus.

At ten cents a pound, it is contended, many business firms and individuals could afford to buy a bale or more, and it would not be long before a piece of the surplus of the crop, which would give the planter a chance to start the wheel of commerce moving again. But if the south is not given a chance the industries of the northern and eastern states will seriously suffer for want of money with which to buy, according to far-sighted southerners who see in the present situation anything but satisfaction.

A preliminary examination of the reports from the 9,653 post-offices in operation as postal savings depositories at the close of August, 1914, indicates that the deposits amount to $48,000,000. The increase in August was approximately $4,200,000, which is the largest since the system began operation in January, 1911. New York City leads all offices in postal savings deposits, followed closely by Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia.

It is not generally known to travelers on the Ohio river that their safety is looked after by a dog, but the steamboat captains know it and are correspondingly grateful. The dog is known to the river men as Old Shep and is the property of a watchman who is employed by the government at Silver Grove, Kentucky, to place the danger signals in order to warn approaching steamboats and other craft.

Just before sundown the watchman and his dog can be seen coming down the river bank. The watchman stands on the bank while Shep picks up a lantern in his mouth and runs to the end of a dike where the lantern is placed in position. The dog will return to his master and the two will walk up the river to the next dike where the same performance is repeated.

MARQUARD WINS TWO REMARKABLE RECORDS

Rube Marquard of New York National League Team.

Rube Marquard, the Giants' southpaw, who pitched his team to victory in the 21-inning game at Pittsburgh recently, is a record maker. In 1912, when Marquard was at his best, he tied Tim Keefe's record for winning 19 straight games. Though the National League is 38 years old, it remained for Rube Marquard to win the longest game in the league's history. When Marquard created his 19 straight record in 1912, he beat Ed Reulbach, now of the Brooklyn, out of his honor for the modern record of 14 straight in the National League. Following this Rube plucked another feather out of Reulbach's cap, as Big Ed up to recently was the winner of the National League's longest game. On August 24, 1905, Reulbach, pitching for the Cubs, beat Sparks of the Phillies in a 20-inning game by a score of 2 to 1. Chicago and Cincinnati also fought a 20-inning 7 to 7 tie on June 30, 1892.

Marquard (proper name De Marquis) was born in Cleveland, Ohio, April 22, 1889. After the Cleveland Americans had refused him a trial he obtained a position with the Canton Central league team in 1907. He took part in 40 games and his fine work caused the Indianapolis club to draft him. Marquard's record of winning 23 games and losing 11 games with Indianapolis during 1908 brought many bids for his services from major league managers. Indianapolis finally sold him to the Giants for $11,000. With the Giants the following season Rube looked like the rankest kind of a bloomer, losing 13 of 18 games pitched. McGraw held on to his high-priced southpaw, allowing him to warm the bench most of the season of 1910. In 1911 Rube "found himself," and justified Manager McGraw's judgment by winning 24 and losing seven games and leading National League pitchers.

LOOK FOR BASEBALL PEACE

Many Students Believe Coalition of Some Sort Will Be Arranged Before End of Season.

Many students of baseball believe that some sort of a coalition between organized baseball and the Federal League will be effected before the end of the present playing season. They argue that both sides have tried of the heavy drains necessary to maintain the war. Up to the present organized baseball as typified by the two major leagues had held the whip hand in the fight against the Federals. But the revolutionary element has seriously crippled the minor leagues, especially those of Class AA, and it has been through these that the more pretentious magnates were hurt. The two major leagues could not go far without the support of the little fellows. If it were a case of the survival of the fittest there is little doubt that the major league club owners could go further than the Federals. But the lesser lights, upon whose success the majors must depend, have to be considered. And these have begun to grumble seriously over the present pinch.

NOTES of the DIAMOND

Leonard is doing the best work of any pitcher in the league this year. Manager Mack of the Athletics has corralled Davies, the Amherst college star.

It doesn't make much difference how many runs the other side gets, the Athletics are always there with a few more.

Ed Barrow says the players are getting all the money. From the size of the crowds this year we might add, "And then some."

The wear and tear on typewriters and linotype machines since the advent of the Federal League will mount into the millions.

The Cincinnati club has purchased Pitcher Fritty of the Evansville club. He is a left-hander with an excellent record in the minors.

Wallie Schang's brother, Bob, has been picked up by Pittsburgh and will report to the Pirates after the season with the St. Joseph club of the Western League.

Manager Bill Carrigan says that his Red Sox are still in the pennant chase, and with Hooper and Lewis back in the game he looks for a big string of victories.

To date the Cleveland scouts have broken all records in rounding up recruits for the Naps. They're probably going on the theory that none is too poor a player to be given a try-out.

If Frank Chance is worth $15,000 to the New York Americans, Joe Birmingham is worth twice as much, for if it wasn't for Birny and his Naps the Yankees never would have climbed

JACK BENTLEY IS PRAISED

Nick Altrock, Veteran Coach of Washington Senators, Thinks Young Pitcher Will Be Star.

"Somehow or other I can not get it out of my mind that one of these bright mornings Jack Bentley will wake up and find himself a great pitcher," said Nick Altrock, veteran fanning bee.

"Bentley is one of the few young pitchers I have given advice who really pays attention to what I say and tries to do what I tell him. I am not throwing any bouquets at myself when I state that at one time I was rated a fairly good left-hander. I think I know something about the pitching art, therefore it stands to reason that I can help Bentley if he only will let me," Nick added.

"In the first place, the kid has the stuff—he wouldn't be worth wasting time upon unless he had good speed and curves and fair control. What he really needs is work in order that he can get experience, and just as soon as Griff decides to pitch him regularly the worth of my prediction will be shown."

Altrock always has been one of Bentley's best boosters. The veteran has taken a fatherly interest in the youngster. He rooms with him on the road and is constantly by his side during practice. It will not be Nick's fault if Bentley does not deliver the goods for the Senators.

THE KITCHENER OF RUSSIA.

General Rennenkampf Has Been the Trainer of the Russian Troops. That Russia has surprised Germany and, incidentally, the world with an exhibition of military efficiency is largely due to the labors of General Rennenkampf, who has been responsible during the past few years for the reorganization that has taken place in the Russian army.

The disastrous war with Japan left the Russian military forces in a state of the utmost military demoralization, and it was not until 1905 that the government tackled the problem of reorganization. As a result the entire army has been reorganized, rearmed and re clothed. The peace footing was raised in 1912 from 850,000 to 1,300,000, organized in thirty-seven army corps, of which thirty were stationed in European Russia. These have been the gignitic duties of General Rennenkampf, who is known as the Kitchener of Russia, assisted more recently by the military genius of General Soukhomiloff, the present minister of war.

General Rennenkampf was one of the few Russian generals who emerged from the Japanese war with undiminished reputation. He has been in command of the first army in the north flank operating in East Prussia.

Rennenkampf played a brilliant part in the Japanese war and was promoted from major general to lieutenant general. He won distinction in the battle of Mukden and in other great conflicts, and at the end of the war was assigned to suppress the revolution against Russia in the Trans-Baikal province.

HIGHLANDERS IN FRANCE.

They Are Looked Upon as Amazons by the French Country People.

A never ending source of wonder and delight to the French country folk are the kilted highland regiments with the British expeditionary force. The highlander in full gala rig, scarlet tunic, tartan phibbrog with the gay "sporrnan" or pouch, white gaiters and big bear-skin headdress is a thing of beauty and joy forever at home, and even now when clad in khaki he is a remarkable sight for foreigners.

The French could hardly believe their eyes when they saw the husky regiments wearing what appeared to be short petticoats. True, the garment was of khaki, like the jacket, but it was undoubtedly a petticoat. The inhabitants of the country through which they are passing generally put them down as some wild troop of amazons which the English keep for serious fighting. When told that the kilted warriors are really men and Scotchmen they remember the famous Scotch quair of the old French kings and shout, "Vivent les croissants!"

The bagpipes are another attraction, and when the pipers are stepping out to "The Cock o' the North" or the Argylls and Sutherlands are announcing their presence with "The Campbells Are Coming" whole villages follow them for miles. There are four highland regiments with the British army

Impregnable Helgoland
Germany's Gibraltar
In the North Sea

THE eyes of the naval experts of the world were centered upon the island of Helgoland, Germany's Gibraltar in the North sea, when the war began.

It was the general opinion among them that the German squadrons would not attempt an open engagement with the British fleet in the North sea, but would remain in the safe haven of the Kiel canal, secure behind the chain of coast defenses, of which Helgoland is the principal link.

Had the island not existed and it were possible to construct a fortress at a point which would prove most formidable against attack in the North sea, Germany could not have chosen a more advantageous location.

But forty-six miles distant from the mouth of the Elbe and the Weser, Helgoland on three sides rises nearly perpendicularly from the sea, to a height of 150 feet. Its rugged, overhanging, natural walls are fortified and protected to a degree which has no parallel even at Gibraltar or the Russian Cronstadt. Helgoland is the most strongly fortified place in the world. It is the key to the impregnable wall of redoubts which protect Germany's North sea coast line, the Kiel canal and the approaches to Hamburg and Bremen.

A large section of the rocky plateau has been made to conceal guns in armored turrets, great coast weapons on disappearing mountings and a formidable array of rapid fire guns. Hewn out of the solid rock are ammunition magazines and bombproof shelters, and the entire scheme of fortification is so ingeniously engineered as to be from without completely invisible as well as invincible. The island is also a mighty naval station and is also provided with disappearing hangars for aeroplanes and accommodation for dirigible balloons.

Helgoland is a triangular island a mile long and a third of a mile in its greatest width, and standing 200 feet out of the ocean, twenty-eight miles from the mainland, at a point near the mouths of the rivers Elbe and Weser.

It was until twenty four years ago a British possession. The peaceful transfer of the rugged little island from Queen Victoria's government to that of her grandson, the kaiser, is an odd chapter of European history, and one which Britons do not now read with satisfaction.

From 1885 to 1890 Africa was a scene of frenzied scrambling for territory on the part of England, Germany, France, Belgium, Portugal and Italy. In 1890 a number of international agreements as to African colonial boundaries and "spheres of influence" were made. In one of these Germany agreed to recognize a British protectorate over Zanzibar. In return for this concession Great Britain ceded Helgoland (as England spelled the name) to Germany.

With a harbor accommodating the largest ships, Helgoland is a naval base of great importance. But a new importance has been given to the island by the establishment there of a base for dirigible balloons.

The eastern end of the island, where this base is located, is closed to all save trusted attaches having business there. Five Zeppelin dirigibles of first class size can be housed there, and a lighting plant and wireless outfit are connected with the station. Since the installation of the dirigible base less attention has been paid to the fortifications, military writers say, as it is held that the air craft could prevent the approach of a hostile fleet near the island.

The Zeppelin dirigibles are intended by their designers to rain explosives on an enemy's warship and their ability to travel 800 miles and to reach a height of 6,000 to 8,000 feet has been shown. They are thus out of gun range, and their inclosed cabins enable their crews to keep warm, while an aviator attempting to attack them in an aeroplane would be almost frozen.

Helgoland has a bathing beach which attracts 20,000 visitors every summer. The island's resident population is about 2,500.

Scarf-Mantle and Medici Collar

ONE way of arranging a scarf so that it becomes a mantle is very clearly shown here. A three-yard scarf of chiffon is finished with hem-stitching at the head of a two-inch hem on three sides and has a half-inch hem on the fourth side. A tuck, equal in width to the hem, and an inch above it, is placed across each end.

This length of chiffon is thrown around the shoulder like a shawl and a piece of wide silk lace is laid over it to form a collar. The chiffon and lace are caught up in small plaits to fit the mantle about the neck. A narrow knife-plaiting, made of the chiffon, edges the lace, and this collar effect is finished with a flat bow of folded chiffon at the front. There is a little quilting made of a plain fold of chiffon, gathered on a shirring thread, which borders the edges of the mantle at the front.

The beautiful collar of black embroidery is quite as well worth consideration as the novel mantle. It is one of the many daring designs, modeled on the Medici collar, that have captivated womankind wherever fashion counts for anything. It is wired, to hold its position, with tiny wires sewed between the two thicknesses of material used.

A strand of odd Chinese beads of mother-of-pearl and glass, fastened at intervals on a strong silken cord and finished with a tassel, adds an item of interest to the quiet gown of black cloth.

With a mantle which Spain may have inspired, a collar patterned after those worn in France three centuries ago, and queer beads of ancient Chinese origin as to design, the youthful wearer demonstrates how all the world pays tribute to beauty and is busy fashioning things for its adorning. It will not grow less busy, for beauty instinctively believes in going beautifully appareled.

BUDGET OF OPINION "JUST BETWEEN YOU AND ME."

EVEN THE GATE POST NOT IN IT

A CHIEF IS AMONG YE TAKING NOTES AND FAITH. "HE'LL PRENT 'EM"---SO SAYS SAUNTERER.

It has been suggested by some warped and twisted genius that the President appoint a commission of eminent American statesmen to submit proposals of peace to the warring kings of Europe...

From little sprouts big trees will often grow. We trample upon the sprouts of today and gaze with admiration upon the giants that were sprouts of a former generation.

And it is much the same in municipal affairs. We think too much of the ending and not enough of the beginning. We overlook the little things of today which have in them the making of the big ones of tomorrow.

This tendency of human nature is strikingly illustrated in the case of a gentleman who had occasion to spend a week in a country town, and was remarkably impressed by the uniform courtesy shown him by the citizens of the place.

If he was interested in a public building, or a park, or a manufacturing enterprise, a dozen men were ready with information and explanations, pointing out the various advantages, and with ever a good word for the people.

A few weeks later while traveling in another state he met a manufacturer who was in search of a change of location for his plant. He mentioned the place he had recently left, and spoke in glowing terms of the people, their characteristics, and especially of their courtesy to the stranger within their gates.

The manufacturer was much impressed, and a few days later visited the place. He is there now, with his factory and his 150 employes. Truly, a man can have a wonderful influence upon the future of his own town.

You hear a lot about war time prices and what an awful struggle we will have this winter to make a living and yet little Cupid goes right on and a marriage is noted every week in Sanford.

"The first and the one which is the most significant to many of them is that we have gone through a season of business depression for the first time in our history without a panic.

ing placed in position I want all the doubting Thomases to go down and inspect the work. This has been the dream of my life and now that it is about to be fulfilled I can die happy...

Here is one who realizes the magnitude of the work and one who will give due credit for the same. Sanford will be one of the prettiest places on the St. Johns, one of the prettiest cities in Florida and one of the healthiest when this is finished.

"Sit tight! Don't rock the boat! That's the watchword today. That's the first duty of every American at this moment. That is what this country needs to keep it straight and safe and true to its course--absolutely all it needs."

The above is the opening paragraph of a recent editorial in the Chicago Herald. It is sound advice. Let every business man in Rock Hill realize that at this moment calm confidence and calm thankfulness are the first duty.

According to the Boston Globe, "The consensus of opinion of some of the keenest and most far sighted men is that the United States is entering on an era of prosperity that will completely overshadow even the great periods of business prosperity that have already come to this country since the civil war.

"We have seen Europe throw back into this country from $250,000,000 to $300,000,000 worth of securities and have seen these securities absorbed and the gold sent to Europe without any particular fuss.

"We have seen a tariff enacted lower than the Wilson tariff, and yet we have seen raw wool, one of the best tariff barometers there is, sell higher than before.

"Business men, 'sit tight. Don't rock the boat. Keep its head well up against the sea. Don't let it go into the trough of waves!"

A good German citizen who shall be nameless, aside from the appellation of Jake, has been watching with interest the progress of the Kaiser's troops in the present war and naturally he has been much elated over the success and has discussed the matter with his friends on every occasion.

sponse. "Vat did dey do?" "Why," was the answer, "the bulletin say that a German army of forty thousand took Peruna yesterday."

The press dispatches carry the announcement that Christmas toys will be higher in price this year owing to the war in Europe. This will be sad news for the kiddies, for a vast volume of the toys which Santa Claus brings in his pack are secured in the countries that now are at war.

But this year all this is changed. The deft fingers which should be fashioning the things to delight the hearts of children at Christmas time are pressing the triggers of high-powered rifles to a sanguinary effort to exterminate the father of some other little boy or girl whose Christmas this year will be indelibly stamped upon their memory as a period of sorrow and hunger and suffering.

The great newspapers of the United States are cooperating in an effort to bring a little sunshine into the lives of the children of Europe by sending a Christmas ship across the water. A great ocean liner will be filled with toys and gifts of every description and when many a little one awakes on Christmas morning some of the sting will be taken out of their grief through the medium of the things which the Christmas ship will bring to them.

It is a beautiful thing to do and the response which is already being made to the appeals of the great-hearted, considerate men at the head of the movement insures its success. It is America's tribute to the innocent sufferers of the greatest crime in all history.

Luncheon A delightful affair, given in honor of the approaching nuptials of Miss Ruth Stewart was the luncheon and china shower given by Mrs. J. B. Calder at her home last Saturday afternoon.

As the guests arrived they were ushered into the living room, which looked unusually inviting in its decorations of blue and green. The centerpiece on the library table carried out the color scheme.

The doors to the dining room were then thrown open, revealing a beautifully laid table, the color scheme of blue and green being carried out in many pretty ways.

Wedding Cards Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mooney Hand have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Mabel Elizabeth to Mr. Archibald Lucius Betts, the wedding to take place Wednesday evening, September 30, at the Church of the Holy Cross.

Stocking Shower One of the delightful series of entertainments being given for Miss Mabel Hand, prior to her wedding was the stocking shower at the home of Miss Elizabeth McLaughlin, Friday afternoon.

The merry group of guests were given pencil and paper and told to write "The best way to retain your husband's affection." Many and varied were the ways suggested and read aloud to the accompaniment of joyous laughter and will be treasured among the bride's souvenir clippings together with the original verses penned to the gifts, many pairs of beautiful silk hosiery.

Another game enjoyed was the making of the greatest number of words from the names "Hand-Betts." In this contest Mrs. Bishop won the prize, a pretty little fancy work apron.

Delicious refreshments of cake and cream were served and the guests departed with hearty good wishes for the young hostess who had so graciously entertained them.

Afternoon Shower Miss Mabel Whitner entertained charmingly Monday afternoon in honor of the season's brides and brides-elect, Mrs. Bishop, Mrs. Brownlee and Misses Mabel Hand, Linda Lesser and Genie Wicker being the honorees.

An effective simplicity prevailed in the decorations, the pink and green tones of the color scheme being most artistic. A delicious sandwich course was served and the delightfully informal affair was much enjoyed.

Children's Parties Little Miss Evelyn Biggers was the happy young hostess to a number of her friends, in celebration of her eighth birthday Saturday afternoon, from three to six.

The little folks made merry until the afternoon was on the wane, when Evelyn's Mama served the party, which was very much enjoyed by all.

The big white birthday cake, with its pink and green candles was the center of attraction. Pink oleanders and green ferns featured the decorations. Evelyn was the recipient of many pretty gifts, among them being a set of silver ice cream spoons, the gift of her grandmother.

In honor of his sixth birthday Master Horton Washburn Mabry entertained with a beautiful birthday party Monday afternoon at the handsome home of his aunt, Mrs. G. F. Smith.

The music of a lively march the young people circled the room several times, marching into the dining room and around the table, upon which was the pretty birthday cake with its six pink candles.

Surprise Party Mrs. W. B. Noells was delightfully surprised by her many friends and neighbors, upon the occasion of her birthday last Friday evening at her home on French avenue.

The game of "Rummy" was enjoyed throughout the evening and the delicious refreshments were served upon the lawn.

VIRGINIA HAS GONE DRY

Richmond, Va., Sept. 25.—State-wide prohibition won a sweeping victory at the polls in Virginia Tuesday, returns showing that its supporters had won by a majority of 32,825. This figure will be increased largely in favor of the drys when further returns are received from counties which are inaccessible. With complete returns from all the cities and forty-four of the one hundred counties and with scattering returns from other counties, the total vote is 121,768. It is estimated that the final total vote will reach 150,000. Of this vote the drys received 77,453 as against 44,618 or the local optionists.

The cities expected to roll up a majority for the local optionists sprang a surprise by giving 1,315 for the drys. Only four cities, Alexandria, Norfolk, Williamsburg and Richmond returned majorities for the wets. The total vote cast by the cities was 40,977, of which the drys got 21,146.

Cain Away from Home, Miss Ruby Betts. Lessons from Cain's Life, Mr. S. G. Kennedy.

This proved a very interesting program and was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. Our subjects seem to be more interesting each Sunday. We had forty-one in attendance. We still extend a cordial invitation to anyone who wishes to attend these meetings with us. Cor. Sec.

CHURCH WILL BE FINISHED

WORK IS TO BE RESUMED ON THE NEW BAPTIST TEMPLE

The building committee of the Baptist Temple met recently and decided to resume work on the building by Oct. 5th, provided enough funds can be raised to cover half the cost of construction. An active campaign is being planned to raise the amount and it is confidently believed that workmen will soon be heard on the new building. In case this plan works then it is promised by the contractor that services can be held in the building by Nov. 15th. The auditorium in the front part of the Temple which is now being constructed will seat at least 100 more people than the old auditorium. The large audiences now attending the church demand more space.

Congregational Church Next Sunday morning, at the Sunday school and the 11 o'clock service a Sunday school rally, will be held. Every Sunday school scholar is urged to be present and to bring a friend with him—some one not going to any other Sunday school.

At 11 o'clock a sermon will be given on "The Influence of the Sunday School on the Community." Every parent and every individual, not interested elsewhere is cordially urged to be present.

The C. E. Society, at 6:45 p. m. will have for its subject, "How Every Christian can be a Missionary."

At the evening service, 7:30, the subject for consideration will be, "Moses, Failing Yet Victorious," a short, practical talk for those who feel burdened under their mistakes and yet who long for encouragement.

Sunday morning, Oct. 4th, the Lord's Supper will be received and new members received. Every member is urged to plan to be present for that service.

A splendid business and social meeting of the C. E. Society was held last Tuesday evening at Mrs. Ensminger's, with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kent as hosts. A good time was enjoyed by the company present and committees were appointed to look after the District C. E. convention to be held in Sanford on Oct. 30, 31 and Nov. 1st.

Prof. Maris begins his work with the Bible class on Sunday morning, Oct. 4th. He will take up for study, "The Teachings of Jesus."

NO DECISIVE RESULTS IN EUROPE'S WAR

VAST ARMIES STRUGGLE FORWARD AND BACK IN WHAT SEEMS FRUITLESS EFFORTS

A GREAT BATTLE RAGES AT BRESLAU—WARSHIPS ARE VERY ACTIVE IN THE BALTIC SEA

London, Friday 11 a. m., Special to Herald.—Zeppelin coming from Thournot dropped three bombs on Ostend escapes. City terrorized.

Paris, Friday 11 a. m., Special to Herald.—Von Kluck's communications cut by French cavalry at Catelet.

Petrograd, Friday 11 a. m., Special to Herald.—Russians capture Prizeworsk and Lancut on way to Craew.

Copenhagen, Friday 11 a. m., Special to Herald.—Great battle raging near Breslau. Thirty warships seen steaming into Baltic in Kattegat. Nationality presumably British.

Reports from the disaster in which the British lost three cruisers at Emden being torpedoed by German submarine is that sixty officers lost their lives. List of killed not yet obtainable but must be heavy, considering the loss of officers.

The allies are revived by the dispatches stating that in another week all Gabaia will be occupied by the Russian forces. Despite the retreat of Rencenkaf the Russian troops have pulled all along the line and the defeat of the combined Austrian and German forces is assured as the Russians out number their opponents ten to one and are forcing their way through Galicia by sheer weight of numbers. The Russians have all the supplies needed and an unbroken line of communication with their base.

The sinking of the three submarines has given an added vigor to the British fleet and under the advice of the heads of the Admiralty they will take a more aggressive part in the blockade, even to advancing upon the German fortifications that now block the entrance to the Kiel canal.

In the east the allies have the best of the engagements and are slowly forcing the Germans to retire. Unless the retreat is made in good order covered by the heavy siege guns it will soon become a rout, in which event the Germans will suffer heavily.

The allies have several plans perfected to cut the German line of communications, once their right wing is turned and a backward movement of the Germans spells disaster.

Rollins College Notes

Whoever returns to the Rollins campus, after a summer's absence is always impressed afresh with its unique beauty. It is perhaps not too much to say that no college campus in the country—not Cornell or Wisconsin has a more charming situation. Bordering Lake Virginia are a chain of four lakes of various shapes, connected together by navigable streams. A slope southward to nearly forty feet to the water's edge. The porches and windows of the men's and women's dormitories command a view of the lake, of the woods on the opposite bank and of the sunset. The campus itself is grassed, shaded with large water oaks, and decorated with numerous shrubs and plants. At the edge of the lake are the large college boat house, and two swimming and diving docks, one for men and one for women, and flanked by three clayed tennis courts for the use of teachers and students.

The college will open its doors for the thirtieth year on next Wednesday morning, Sept. 30. Several members of the faculty are already on the ground and the others are on the way.

Word has been received of the sudden death last Saturday in Oyster Bay, Long Island, of Albert Joseph White, a member of the incoming sophomore class. Mr. White was one of the brightest and best men in college, of a singularly refined nature, courteous and winning manners, and fine Christian character. He will be sorely missed.

Mrs. George Watson has returned from a visit to Mr. Watson's mother at Floral City.

SANFORD SCHOOLS OPEN MONDAY

Next Monday will be a red letter day in Sanford as it will mark the opening of the Sanford City Schools, the greatest asset of the city and an institution in which every citizen of Sanford takes the greatest interest.

The opening this year will be made a memorable occasion and in honor of the event one of Florida's foremost educators will be present and deliver an address, the Hon. John A. Thackston, dean of the Teachers College and Normal School Department of the University of Florida and better known as the State High School Inspector. Dr. Thackston has made the High School his life work and has accomplished much in his chosen profession. Sanford is fortunate in having such a well known authority here on opening day and to be given the opportunity of hearing from him on the subject of public schools.

The opening exercises will occur at the High School auditorium on Monday morning, September 28th at ten o'clock. The members of the school board of Sanford district, the county school board, the city officials and other prominent people will have a place on the rostrum and on the program and the opening exercises promise to be very interesting.

Methodist Church

Sunday school session 9:45 a. m. A class and a welcome for every one. Services at 11 o'clock, subject of sermon by pastor, "Standing with God."

Evening worship, 7:30, subject of pastor's sermon, "Marriage." A special invitation to the young people of the church and city.

The public is cordially invited to all our services being held in the Star Theater while the new church is being erected on corner of Park avenue and Sixth street.

On Sunday, Oct. 4th will be Rally Day in the Sunday school and Home Coming Day for the congregation. Let every Methodist in Sanford and vicinity know that their presence is earnestly desired, and the public will find a Methodist handshake awaiting every visitor.

The pastor is earnestly endeavoring to be what a true pastor would be in a city. He heartily appreciates the cooperation being given him in this great work. As we are entering the season of the year when the visitors are coming into our city, let every Christian seek out these who come into our midst and give them an invitation to the services of the churches.

The Judgment Day

On next Sunday night Rev. George Hyman will deliver a sermon on the above subject. So many people are to face the Judgment that it is well that as much as possible be understood in regard to the same. This subject will be used on next Sunday night. The Baptist church is located at the corner of Park avenue and Sixth street.

Large audiences continue to hear Mr. Hyman each Sunday evening. It is predicted that this winter will see the largest audiences at church in the history of Sanford. The crowds at the Baptist church this summer, if taken as a basis of reckoning will certainly bear out this opinion.

THE RIVERS AND HARBORS BILL SAVED IN PART

PROJECTS ALREADY BEGUN IN FLA. NOT TO SUFFER

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25.—The statement made here today by Senator D. U. Fletcher of Florida, chairman of the senate committee on commerce, that the recommitting of the rivers and harbors bill to that committee with the recommendation that it be limited to $20,000,000 would not injure Florida waterways improvements which have already begun or which have been provided for in former acts of congress; and the insertion in the Congressional Record of a speech by Congressman S. M. Sparkman of Florida replying to attacks on the bill were features of this matter today.

In order that many of the misstatements as to what the pruning down of the rivers and harbors bill would do for Florida might be offset, Senator Fletcher said:

"I would be glad if you would say that all projects now under way or which have been duly provided for heretofore by acts of congress will not suffer at all. The only ones to be affected are new cases. They will have to await another time."

Sparkman in Denial

On the house side of the capitol, Congressman Sparkman, although permission was refused him to reply on the floor to attacks made on the bill, succeeded in having his speech go into the Record. In making the position of the members of the rivers and harbors committee clear on this matter, Mr. Sparkman said in part:

"Time will not admit of a specific reference to all these waterways nor of a detailed answer to the criticisms Mr. Fear of Wisconsin makes of their treatment of the pending bill. Part of them, however, the Ocklawaha and Kissimmee river, being in the state of which I have the honor of representing here, I shall take the liberty of noticing, and of dealing at some length with his criticisms of the projects submitted for their improvement."

"When the gentleman strikes these two waterways he is particularly caustic and severe, characterizing the adoption of the Ocklawaha river project as a crooked game, fishing money from the treasury for the benefit not of commerce but to develop water power for the benefit of one J. D. Young."

Not for J. D. Young

"Now, first, I want to deny with all the emphasis at my command that the improvement is to develop water power for J. D. Young, or any one else, for it has absolutely no foundation in fact, as a study of the report will show. The gentleman was kind enough to refer to a certain portion of the engineer's report as proof of his assertion, and yet a reference to this particular paragraph contradicts the charge he makes, for it is there shown that it is not proposed by this improvement to develop any water power whatever."

Mr. Sparkman closed his remarks with a statement that nowhere else in this country would more fertile lands be found than along the banks of the rivers in Florida and he made an urgent appeal that we pursue a wise policy of waterway development until the demands of our commerce have been fully met.

RAILWAY HELPING FLORIDA

Another of the interesting exhibits of an educational nature is that of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, which is conducting a campaign of publicity throughout the north.

Messrs. Cardwell and Cohen, the former of the colonization department, are in charge of the display, which consists of fruits, vegetables, grain and other commercial articles of the south all the way from Virginia to Florida. They have received many inquiries from interested parties and it would not be surprising if there were a number of people from this county who will be lured by the riches of the southern agricultural fields. The exhibit is one of the most interesting and instructive on the fair grounds and is well worth visiting.—Easton (Pa.) Free Press.
