Bus Depot May Get More Time

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The Trailways Bus Depot and agreements with County Commissioner Robert G. "Bud" Feather and the Seminole County Commission will occupy the attentions of the Sanford City Commission at a 7 p.m. meeting today at city hall, 300 N. French Ave.

The commission two weeks ago gave John Root, owner-operator of the bus depot at 1002 S. French Ave. at 10th Street, 30 days to comply with city direction to pave a parking area or have his occupational license lifted.

City Manager W. E. "Pete" Knowles will tell the commission tonight that he has seen a paving agreement between Root and L.A.W., sealing and maintenance company, of Lake Mary for the paving and confirmed with First Federal Savings and Loan of Seminole County that a loan agreement exists for funding for the project.

Knowles will recommend that the commission take no action against Root at this time and review progress at its March 14 meeting.

Feather's attorney, Edgerton van den Berg, and City Attorney Bill Colbert are scheduled to present to the commission for consideration a proposed agreement with Feather to extend the city's reverter clause for the 8.8-acre formerly city-owned property behind the Evening Herald Building and fronting on the lakefront for 90 days from today; to release the reverter when Feather pays the city $54,500 within that 90 days; to require Feather to pay the city $10,000 annually in addition to property taxes beginning March 1, 1984, and annually thereafter until the property is developed to the point where a certificate of occupancy can be issued by the city; and to declare that failure to pay the $10,000 annual fee will be a foreclosable item and agreeing the deed for the property will include a clause committing that property taxes will be paid on the land and improvements.

The City Commission and Feather came to an informal agreement over the issue at a special meeting last week.

Feather acquired the property from Altamonte Springs entrepreneur Tom Rucker with the city's permission last June. At that time Feather agreed to begin development of his proposed $16 million life-care center within nine months.

When he came back to the city asking for more time and complaining that reverter clauses—clauses allowing the city to repurchase the property for its original sale price of $100,000—in the contract were making it impossible to get financing, Feather and the commission agreed on the new terms.

The commission will also conclude its agreement with the County Commission on the use of the city's old library building—a 1917 era former postoffice on First Street.

Knowles has reported to the commission that the county will acquire the deed for the property from the city for $10, promising to continue its use as a public library until April 17, 2003. If the county discontinues library use of the building before that time, the county agrees to pay the city $136,250, Knowles reported in a memo to the commission. Another option in the contract would allow the city and county to waive the payment of the sum "by mutual agreement for the public good."

Cancer

Volunteers Will Knock On Every Door

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

Volunteers for the Sanford-Lake Mary American Cancer Society (ACS) Unit are gearing up for the 1983 fund raising crusade to be held April 16-30. The theme for this year's campaign will be "Knock on Every Door" and that is what the workers will be attempting to do.

"I am very interested to have our first year as our own unit (South Seminole is now combined with Orange County) very successful," said Crusade Chairman Duke Admson. "And I hope to raise $50,000. We have a very dedicated group heading up our campaign."

Irene Brown is president of the Sanford-Lake Mary unit. Bettye Smith is residential chairman, Dr. Harvey Kansol is professional and business chairman for Lake Mary, Dr. Bob Smith is professional chairman for Sanford and Bill McLaughlin is business chairman for Sanford.

Several fund raising events are planned in conjunction with the crusade. A tennis tournament is scheduled for March 19-20 at the Bayhead Tennis Club. Carol Kirchhoff is chairman of the tournament and Dr. and Mrs. John Morgan are co-chairpersons. A golf tournament is scheduled for March 25 at the Mayfair Country Club with Dr. Charles Park as chairman.

The ACS 125 Club benefit will be held April 21 and will be hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Don Bauerle at their home, Manor House. Vivian Buck is chairman of the event.

A Bike-A-Thon is also planned in which participants will solicit donations from their sponsors in the community. The date and place will be announced.

Mrs. Smith hopes to have 100 or more captains for the various areas, who will meet with her Tuesday at Sunniland's offices on State Road 419 at Five Points. The captains will in turn recruit crusaders within the various neighborhoods and developments. There will be a kick-off get-together for all the volunteers on April 16.

"We need men or women willing to go to 10 or 15 homes in their neighborhood and they will have two weeks to do it in," said Mrs. Smith. "Their aim will be to educate as well as asking people to donate. It's just as important in helping stamp out cancer. They will be passing out material such as the "Seven Danger Signals" and making people aware of the services available.

"Cancer touches two out of three families and the Cancer Society estimates there will be 51,000 cases in Florida this year," she said.

To volunteer, persons may call 323-0783.

During the first three quarters of 1982, the then-Seminole Unit gave guidance and information to 235 patients; provided 648 round trips for treatment for 38 patients; 87 round trips for 8 patients by commercial transportation; provided 112 equipment loans to 76 patients; issued medication assistance to 41 persons; provided Reach to Recovery visits to 30 patients.

Although the ACS does not pay for hospital bills or treatment, it does provide transportation to treatment centers for cancer patients who need it, loan of home care equipment, such as wheelchairs, prescriptions to relieve pain, wigs and dressings, said Mary Cain, full-time secretary in the Sanford-Seminole's office.

It is located on the second floor of the Flagship Bank building at 200 W. First St., Sanford. She is in the office from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., Monday through Friday. The office phone number is 322-0849.

Several local church groups make gauze bandages, bed pads, gowns and lap covers for cancer patients and local volunteers serve as drivers to take the patients for treatment.

The Bridge to Recovery program is available for mastectomy patients and there is an eight-week "I Can Cope" program for patients and their families sponsored by the ACS in conjunction with the social services department at Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford.

Public education programs are available for schools, employee groups and organizations.

ACS funds are allocated as follows: research, 31 percent; public education, 17 percent; professional education, 9 percent; patient services, 13 percent; community services, 7 percent; fund raising, 13 percent; and management and general expense, 10 percent.

Jobless Rate In Seminole Up To 7.4%

By MICHAEL BEHA
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County's unemployment rate increased by 1 percent in January due to layoffs following the Christmas shopping season, an analyst with the state employment service said today.

Sterling Tuck said the increase to 7.4 percent from December's 6.4 percent, "was expected because of the annual Christmas seasonal jobs."

In January 7,816 people were out of work in Seminole County, he said, while 97,303 people held jobs.

Seminole County continued to have the lowest unemployment rate in the area. Orange County had an 8.7 percent jobless rate in January and Osceola County had a 14.2 percent jobless rate. The Orlando metropolitan area's unemployment rate was 8.8 percent, up from 8 percent in December.

Seminole County's jobless rate is 1 percent lower than a year ago when 8.4 percent of the work force was unemployed.

Seminole's jobless rate has followed the state and national trends on an upward path throughout the second half of 1982. The jobless rate was 5.6 percent in July and increased each month through November when it hit 6.9 percent.

Tuck said the unemployment rate should head downward at a slow, steady pace through 1983. The county is still feeling the effects of the recession but the effects have been minimal. Throughout Central Florida, where tourism was down during the last three months of 1982, hotels are booked solid through the end of March, he said.

Tuck predicted an acceleration in the recovery with a tremendous increase in housing starts during the last three months of 1983. That boom should mark the beginning of a 5-year period of rapid growth in Seminole County, Tuck said.

County planners estimate that the county will almost double in population from its current 185,000 by the year 2000.

That growth has already been evidenced somewhat in the past year with an increase of 36,900 new people in the work force since the end of 1981. More than 30,000 new jobs were created in that time.

Tax Protest Group Armed With Roloids

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The Rev. John Butler Book, pastor of the Northside Church of Christ and chairman of the new citizen-ministers-truckers' lobby—GAS (Grudge Against Suppressive Taxes)—is on his way to Tallahassee today to give each member of the 1983 Florida Legislature a roll of Roloids in his fight to stop Gov. Bob Graham's plan to raise taxes for roads.

Last week, Book organized the lobby and as a first act sent the governor a letter asking "with all due respect" that he submit himself to a psychiatric examination over his proposal.

Graham has called a special session of the Legislature Tuesday and Wednesday to consider the proposal to raise money to build and repair state roads.

Included in the proposal are: the removal of the sales tax exemption on gasoline sales and the elimination of 4 cents of the present 8 cents gasoline taxes. Counties would be given the right to levy a 2-cent gas tax within county boundaries without a referendum. The proposals also include doubling tag fees for heavy trucks.

Before leaving for the state's capital today, Book said that state Rep. Bobby Brantley told him that the Carter administration and the Reagan administration each offered Florida $50 million for state road repairs and when the state failed to use the funds, they were returned to Washington.

"Why would Graham plead for taxes when he allowed $50 million to slip through his fingers twice?" Book asked, noting he will try to get an answer from the governor personally.

The minister said he will urge the legislators to join with the lobbyists to fight the Graham proposal and if that is unsuccessful to take a Rolaid.

Book said he has polled every Central Florida legislator, who has a published telephone number, and 90 percent of them are opposed to the Graham plan.

He said the Roloids have been donated by various sources, including a Maitland pharmacy.

He hopes the group will be successful and "if we aren't, we will all have acid indigestion," Book said.

County Eyes Indigent Patient Subsidy Increase

An increase in the county's subsidy to Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford for the care of indigent patients is on the agenda for Tuesday's meeting of Seminole County commissioners.

Dr. Jorge Deju, director of health and human services, has recommended that commissioners increase their funding for indigent care by 14 percent. The contract would take effect immediately and would increase the maximum amount the county would pay for indigent care by $42,000 from the current $300,000 allocation.

Deju said the $300,000 ceiling has been in place since fiscal 1979-80 but has never been reached. But this year, if costs incurred so far are any indication, medical costs for indigents could reach $450,000, he said.

The subsidy increase was determined by the Blue Cross Voluntary Rate Review Commission, an independent group that reviews hospital rates in Florida. Central Florida Regional voluntarily participates in the program.

Central Florida Regional is the only hospital in Seminole County which works with the county to provide indigent care. According to the county's guidelines a non-farm family of two would be eligible for the program if the family income was $6,220 or less. A farm family of two with an income of $5,310 or less would be eligible for the program. For each additional non farm-family member the eligibility level increases by $1,540. For farm families, the eligibility level increases by $1,300 for each family member.

Also on the board's agenda is an appeal of a bid that was awarded to the Nidy Co. of Orlando to construct six tennis courts at Sanlando Park in Altamonte Springs.

In December the firm was awarded the bid to construct the courts for $65,074. But on Jan. 5 Mark P. Lang, an attorney for Varsity Courts, Inc., of Longwood, filed a protest of the bid award.

Pitman's Public Service Hours Accepted

By VICTOR ASSERSON
Herald Staff Writer

The six-month controversy surrounding the 40 hours community service given to Florida beauty queen Deanna Pitman for driving offences was brought to an end today during a 15-minute session.

The slate was wiped clean when Judge Alan Dickey, who sentenced Pitman to the 40 hours community service last August, accepted 46 hours of public appearances to count against the sentence.

He accepted a suggestion from Assistant State Attorney Alan Robinson that Pitman's lawyer, Jack Bridges, should place before the court an affidavit stating that Pitman had performed the public duties without payment and that they were optional and not part of her Miss Florida contract. Bridges was told by Dickey that the court was not ordering him to submit the affidavit but would accept it.

Bridges told the judge sitting in chambers that Pitman had performed a total of 46 hours without the controversial six hours he had earlier asked be credited after the appearance at a charity gala for the Florida Symphony Orchestra. The gala had been held at the home of Miss Pitman's boyfriend, Kenneth Kirchman. The submission of this had been objected to by Robinson.

NATION

IN BRIEF

Jobs Bill Of Little Help To The Unemployed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The compromise jobs bill headed for House passage this week will make only a small dent in unemployment, President Reagan's top economic adviser acknowledges, but it is the only measure the president will sign.

Martin Feldstein said the best medicine for the jobless, is a sustained recovery, not legislative fragments that only "nibble at the edges" on the problem.

But the compromise bill now before Congress is the only bill providing emergency relief that would be signed by President Reagan, who believes his economic program will generate its own recovery without need for additional federal spending.

Reagan wanted only $4.3 billion for jobs. The House will give him $4.6 billion, and an effort will be made in the Senate to cut back the figure.

Rep. Edward Boland, D-Mass., said nobody knows how many jobs would be created by the package, estimating the number at between 300,000 and 600,000.

EPA's Burford Should Quit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If Environmental Protection Agency chief Anne Burford delayed a Minnesota toxic waste cleanup to justify stalling action on a California site so she could damage Jerry Brown's Democratic Senate bid, it would be "immoral," a congressman says.

Rep. Gerry Sikorski, D-Minn., said Sunday the allegations disclosed by United Press International provide a possible reason that the EPA administrator blocked the Minnesota funds in the weeks before the election although the state's top officials were Republicans.

Sikorski said Mrs. Burford went so far as to announce twice, on Aug. 17, 1982, and again in a visit to the state on Sept. 27, 1982, that the money to clean up the St. Louis Park, Minn. site had been released but it did not arrive until early this year.

Four EPA officials have alleged, in UPI interviews, that money for both the Minnesota site and the Stringfellow Acid Pits in Avon, Calif. was held up without legal justification.

Sikorski, in a telephone interview from Minnesota, said with the disclosures, and others, Mrs. Burford has "got to resign. She's dead wood at this point."

Deficits Concern Governors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Many of the nation's governors, caught in a crossfire of demands for more state services and shrinking revenues and federal aid, see deficit reduction and jobs creation as the road to recovery.

About two-thirds of the 50 chief executives, assembling in Washington for the midwinter meeting of the National Governors Association Saturday and Sunday, responded to a United Press International survey that asked their opinion of the fastest way to speed national economic recovery.

Lowering the federal government's $200 billion-plus budget deficit was the answer most often placed first, followed by action to create work for the nation's 12 million unemployed. Cutting defense spending was a third ranking choice.

But a large number of governors said all three steps could and should be combined.

Although the association in the past has been reluctant to involve itself in anything but federal-state issues, there will be an effort to take a stand on national economic and budget policy, including such previously taboo areas as defense spending and federal taxation, at the 1983 meeting.

The governors' opinions on how to spur the economy did not always follow party lines as they have developed in Washington.

A number of Democratic governors, who dominate the association, 34 to 16, ranked deficit reduction ahead of jobs legislation while at least one GOP governor chose jobs creation as the first priority.

Colorado Democrat Richard Lamm said there is "a growing chorus" saying projected deficits of $250 billion to $300 billion must be cut to about $100 billion to keep from thwarting recovery.

"What we're going to try to suggest on a bipartisan basis is that you continue to be very tough on domestic spending, you're probably going to have to find additional revenue or cancel (income tax) indexing and that you're going to have to be tougher on defense spending," Lamm said.

New Jersey Republican Thomas Kean put jobs on an equal footing with deficit cutting.

Overweight Britons Get Fatter

LONDON (UPI) — Britain is a nation of fatties who eat too much, exercise too little and spend too much time in front of the TV set, says the Royal College of Physicians.

The doctors, in a recent report, say one Briton in three is overweight, nearly 65 percent of British women are trying to diet at any one time, and obesity has become such a giant-sized health problem that government action is required.

"The problem of overweight is a substantial one in Britain, with about 5 to 30 percent at different ages of the adult population and some 5 percent of children affected," the 58-page report says.

It lays the blame squarely on too much sugar and not enough exercise.

"In Britain the consumption of sugar per head is higher than in most other countries and, apart from its effect on dental caries, sugar is an unnecessary source of energy in a community with such a widespread problem of overweight," the report says.

Modern conveniences have brought a general decline in physical activity leading to a "fall in energy intake," the doctors say. "This conclusion matches the reports of children spending 3-4 hours each day watching television rather than playing inside and outside the home."

Besides recommending less fat and sugar, the doctors urge the government to boost taxes on alcoholic drinks to reduce such ailments of excess weight as diabetes, hypertension and heart disease.

The Ministry of Health said it is examining the report's conclusions but doesn't have any immediate proposals. The Health Education Council, a government-sponsored agency, agrees with the college's findings but thinks fat is an international issue.

"I think it's a worldwide problem because of the types of lives we live and the food we eat," spokesman Michael Jacobs said.

The report's recommendations on diet may not be welcomed by a nation where Cadbury's chocolate is an institution, beer a social lubricant and deep-fried fish and chips the national dish.

"It's a question of attitude," says Marilyn Atherton, Weight Watcher's 1983 member of the year.

Miss Atherton, 31, weighed 266 pounds 12 months ago. She was so fat she couldn't go to the movies because she got stuck in the seats. Today she is a trim 129 pounds and spends her evenings playing badminton.

She attributes her success to the balanced eating and group therapy techniques of the slimming organization.

The physicians' report prefers the Weight Watchers' combined "behavior modification" and dietary advice over other reducing techniques. It cautions that diet without exercise isn't sufficient.

The British, many of whom still believe aerobics has something to do with planes, aren't doing enough of either.

In New York's Central Park, strollers are liable to be trampled underfoot by panting joggers. Britons, who suspect the Americans invented jogging to avoid muggers, leave their parks to the dog walkers.

New breakfast television programs — Britain only recently began morning TV broadcasting — have captured the flabby viewer when most vulnerable. Two channels have introduced lissome keep-fit experts to conduct early morning warm-ups.

The BBC's Diana Moran invites bowler-hatted commuters at Waterloo Station to stretch and bend and touch their toes. But putting this "Green Goddess," lithe in a green leotard, next to a group of pin-striped tubbies seems to provoke more amusement than inspiration at home.

The London Times TV critic found Diana Moran "horrifying."

"The antics of the keep-fit goddess made me shudder at that time in the morning," Cardiff housewife Glenda Jones said.

On the commercial channel, TV-AM, fitness queen Jackie Genova tries out her routine on a 238-pound "guinea pig," Michael van Straten, who confesses:

"I'm overweight, balding and middle-aged. Millions of depressed and overweight viewers will identify with me at first sight."

The nations' top doctors say too few of Britain's fatties do.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: A low pressure system rolling out of the Gulf of Mexico spawned gale-force winds and rammed high tides into Florida's coasts, eroding beaches and further drenching south Florida's already-flooded inland areas. Forecasters said the weather system, which carried winds gusting up to 50 mph, would move over the state and into the Atlantic Ocean by tonight. Flash flood warnings were in effect throughout the night in Gulf, Franklin, Jackson and Calhoun counties in the Panhandle, and forecasters issued gale warnings for most coastal areas. Coastal flood watches were in effect from Vero Beach northward on the east coast, where beach erosion was reported. Heavy rains that virtually covered the state Sunday continued overnight and into the day today. By late today, the water was expected to give way to warmer, drier weather. By late Sunday, many areas had received more than 2 inches of rain. Miami recorded 2.8 inches and in Fort Lauderdale, 3.65 inches had fallen by Sunday night. Two to four inches of rain were expected to fall in most areas by late today. National Weather Service forecaster Ray Biedinger said severe thunderstorms were forecast for parts of Florida, and fast-moving patches of rain would continue to cross the state today. The heavy rains and winds forced cancellation of a sport car race, a golf tournament and a tennis tournament. The rain was bad news for south Florida's water managers, who have been pumping billions of gallons of water daily into the Everglades to drain excess rainfall from Lake Kissimmee southward. Winter is usually the state's dry period, but this season has been unusually wet, with rainfall amounts up to 500 percent above normal. The water has robbed deer of food supplies and devastated nesting areas of rare wading birds. South Florida Water Management District officials had said more rain would increase the chances of dangerous flooding.

Lake Monroe Postmaster Recognized For Service

BY JANE CASSELLBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

Except for one relief clerk, the Lake Monroe Post Office is a one-man operation and that man is Postmaster Robert Allen Mann, who received recognition recently from Orlando Section Center Manager Robert Sheehan for 25 years of dedicated service to the U.S. Government.

Counting his four years in the Air Force which he joined Dec. 15, 1956, Mann will have 27 years in government service completed by the end of this year. When he got out of the Air Force, he returned home to the small unincorporated rural community where he grew up and went to work as acting postmaster—across the street from the house where he was born.

He was appointed postmaster by President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1961. In addition to his commendation, he was presented a 25-year service pin at the regional meeting.

The Lake Monroe Post Office has no delivery service so folks have to come in to check their postal boxes for mail and meet their neighbors and check up on the latest gossip at the same time. There are 424 rental boxes in all. But since the post office serves three area campgrounds, Mann says he has between 2,000-2,500 patrons in all.

To some folks Lake Monroe might seem small potatoes, but it suits Mann just fine. He is a third generation resident so that's where his roots are. His grandparents moved there in 1908 from Georgia, and his father, Jack J. Mann, was born here.

"My father and I went to the same school—Lake Monroe Elementary—and so did my kids until it was closed," he said. "There are a lot of good memories about that school, but most of the ones I went to school with are now scattered around."

Mr. and Mrs. Mann have two daughters and two grandchildren.

Life is not always dull at the Lake Monroe Post Office. Mann says it has been burglarized several times and once the clerk was left tied up by robbers.

Concern For Wallace's Health Grows

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — A mid-night trip to the hospital ignited smoldering concerns about Gov. George Wallace's overall health and his ability to cope with the duties of the fourth term he began about a month ago.

Billy Joe Camp, Wallace's press secretary, insisted there was nothing unusual about the partially-paralyzed governor being admitted for tests at an hour normally reserved for emergency cases.

As it turned out, Camp said Wallace's physician determined the governor's abdominal pains were caused by a "slight inflammation" in the left colon area and antibiotics were prescribed to treat the diverticulitis condition.

Even the most protective of Wallace's followers speculated privately that he was either sicker than the public was led to believe or he tried to keep his hospitalization a secret.

Despite the lateness of the hour, word of Wallace's hospitalization hit the news before he was settled in his room.

The physical condition of the almost deaf Wallace and what appears to be his obsession with some issues have been fodder for whispered conversations for years.

Sympathy for Wallace, 63, whose once active life was suddenly turned into a nightmare by a would-be assassin's bullets in 1972, neutralized some of the talk.

On the other hand, fears that the seriousness of his ailments are being withheld from the public naturally arise.

Wallace knew in 1982 that he had to "clear the air about his health and get the jump on his opponents as he asked the voters for a political comeback.

He insisted he was in good health and noted he served as governor in a wheelchair nearly seven years after his close brush with death in the Laurel, Md., parking lot.

Wallace joked that he governed with his head, not his lifeless legs.

Pain is not a word in Wallace's vocabulary. He prefers to say he suffers "discomfort" from the bullet wounds and related miseries that he said might send other folks to a hospital.

Nonetheless, he has tried acupuncture, faith healing and the "wonder drug" DMSO in an effort to make the discomfort more bearable. If any of them had a significant effect, Wallace has not publicly given them credit for helping him.

Wallace has frequently been hospitalized for assorted complaints, most of them spinoffs from the shooting. At one point, one of his legs was accidentally cracked and he did not know the damage was done until much later.

Budget Cuts In Drug War Draw Congressional Fire

MIAMI (UPI) — Plans to cut the number of federal agents fighting the anti-drug smuggling war in south Florida have drawn sharp criticisms from a congressional subcommittee meeting to review the administration's program.

Rep. Glen English, D-Okla., chairman of the House Government Operations Subcommittee, ended a two-day hearing over the weekend with the conclusion that anti-drug forces in south Florida were being "disbanded."

He also accused the Defense Department of "breaking the president's promises" by failing to cooperate with the Miami-based federal task force.

Representatives of the administration and the Pentagon denied the accusations.

English, however, said that south Florida will be "back in the same position it was in a few years ago" if the administration follows through with its planned budget cuts.

The cuts will mean the elimination of 820 of the nation's 5,000 U.S. Customs agents and the reduction of the permanent staff of federal agents in south Florida from 337 to 157.

Special Prosecutor Asked

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham is considering a request by black community leaders for a special prosecutor to try police officer Luis Alvarez for the shooting death of a young black courier in the Overtown ghetto.

Alvarez was indicted two weeks ago on charges of manslaughter for shooting Nevell Johnson Jr., 20, in an Overtown district.

Habib Has New Plan For Troop Withdrawal Talks

JERUSALEM (UPI) — U.S. envoy Philip Habib reportedly offered a new compromise today to speed the withdrawal of foreign forces from Lebanon amid charges by Israel's new defense minister of U.S. favoritism toward the Arab cause.

Defense Minister Moshe Arens, attending his first Cabinet meeting in his new job, unleashed the criticism at Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and certain State Department officials Sunday, Israel Radio said.

An Israeli official said Sunday that despite "some progress," significant differences remained on Israel's demands for normal relations and security arrangements to prevent a regrouping of guerrillas in southern Lebanon.

Habib's new compromise, reported by the Lebanese Central News Agency, would circumvent Israel's demand for Israeli-manned outposts in southern Lebanon by staffing bases with U.S. Marines and Lebanese soldiers.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert MacLeod of Oviedo, her 1,160-pound Angus-Simmental Cross steer was judged Grand Champion Saturday night after winning first prize in the 1,000-1,050-pound class.

The Grand Champion will be the first to be sold in the auction at 7:30 p.m. today at the fair in Orlando.

Other Seminole County youths with steers among the six finalists were Christy's sister, Heather, 17, also of Lyman FFA, and 4-H'er Mike Lee, 13, of Sanford.

60,000 Households Questioned Each Month

How Government Counts The Jobless

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The monthly announcement of the nation's unemployment rate — due out this Friday — is anxiously awaited by politicians, economists, industry and labor leaders and the public.

The rate, a key indicator of the nation's economic health and a hot political issue, is much discussed, interpreted differently and used in formulating government policy. But it isn't generally known how the U.S. Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics determines unemployment and what the rate is intended to reflect.

The following is based on interviews with four BLS officials in Philadelphia and on BLS publications and documents.

Q. How does the government gather data?
A. By talking to people. Each month, Census Bureau workers armed with a lengthy questionnaire interview a sample of 60,000 U.S. households. This sample, called the Current Population Survey, is designed to represent a cross-section of Americans. Interviewers collect information on the employment status of household members 16 years of age and older based on the previous week. The questionnaires are filled out by the Census workers and turned over to the BLS for computer processing. The survey is the basis for the monthly unemployment figure for the nation as a whole and for the 10 largest states.

Q. What kind of questions does the interviewer ask?
A. The interviewer never directly asks if somebody living in the house is "unemployed." They ask questions such as, "What was so-and-so doing most of last week?" If the person was working, the interviewer will ask, among other things, how many hours were spent on the job. If the person wasn't working, the interviewer will try to find out why and ask whether the person looked for work. It's the job of the computer, not the interviewer, to determine a person's employment status.

Q. What is meant by status?
A. Except for people in an institution such as a prison or mental hospital, everyone is classified in one of three categories — employed, unemployed or "not in the labor force." The labor force — the sum total of the employed and unemployed — is always changing in response to economic forces and with the seasons.

Q. Who is counted as employed?
A. People who did any work at all for pay or profit during the survey week. This includes all part-time and temporary work.

Q. Who is counted as unemployed?
A. People who are without a job, who have looked for work in the past four weeks and are available for work. Looking for work can mean any number of things: filling out applications, reading want ads or registering at the employment office. It's important to understand that, in most cases, a person must have actively looked for work in the past four weeks to be considered unemployed. Otherwise, people who have no job and are not looking for one are put in the third category — not in the labor force.

The unemployment figure means more than just people who have lost their jobs. It takes in people who have quit their jobs to look for another one, new workers looking for their first job, and experienced workers looking for work after having been out of the labor force for a while.

Q. What does "seasonally adjusted" mean?
A. Employment levels change because of vacations, holidays and shifts in production schedules. This makes it hard to determine whether these changes reflect important developments in the economy or merely normal seasonal fluctuations. The statistical technique of seasonal adjustment lets experts compare jobless figures from month to month more accurately. The adjusted rate is the one usually referred to when officials talk about unemployment.

Q. I read there were 1.8 million "discouraged workers" in America in January. Who are they?
A. People who want a part- or full-time job but don't look for work because they think they can't find one. They are not counted among the unemployed because they don't meet the test of actively looking for work.

Q. That seems odd. Discouraged workers don't have jobs, so shouldn't they be considered unemployed?

A. It seems odd because because the terms employed, unemployed and not in the labor force probably don't mean the same thing to you as they do to the government. Unemployment statistics are intended to measure "unutilized available labor," not people suffering hardship or need. Some experts feel discouraged workers should be counted among the unemployed.

Fern Park Man, 23, Dies In One-Car Accident

A 23-year-old Fern Park man was killed early Saturday morning in an automobile accident on Interstate 4, west of State Road 436 and a passenger in his car was taken to Florida Hospital-Altamonte Springs with injuries.

Florida Highway Patrolman R.W. Lovering said a 1980 Ford, driven by Jeffrey Alan Marsh, 23, of 551 Semoran Blvd., Fern Park, slid down the shoulder of the highway and overturned after Marsh attempted to pass another vehicle in the emergency lane, one quarter mile west of the 436 cutoff.

Marsh died at the scene. His passenger, Pamela Michele Marsh, 22, was treated at the Altamonte Springs hospital and released.

The Marsh death brings to seven the number of people who have died in traffic-related accidents in Seminole County this year.

MEN GIVE FALSE IDENTITIES

Two men arrested in Casselberry last week are still being held in Seminole County jail on bond of $35,000 each on charges of kidnapping and armed robbery.

The two men, who gave false names to police, were arrested after a Clermont woman and her two young daughters were abducted and robbed after they had gone to buy ice cream at a Leesburg shopping center on Monday.

Action Reports

- ★ Fires
- ★ Courts
- ★ Police

A computer check revealed that the person who said his name was Theodore Goldson is really Timothy Larence, 20, of Sarasota. The other man who gave his name as Glen Parker is really David Ballet, 18, of Leesburg, police said.

The two were arrested after they abducted a Clermont woman and her two young daughters from a parking lot in Leesburg and then robbed them of about $300 which the girls had collected selling Girl Scout cookies.

Casselberry police have charged both men with possession of concealed firearms and auto theft. Lake County officials have charged them with kidnapping and armed robbery.

LIGHT BULBS SMASHED

Vandals have stolen about 30 lightbulbs and glass covers from lights at the Crossings club house, 951

Q. Can you provide some unusual examples of people who are considered employed, unemployed and not in the labor force?

A. A father of four with a part-time job is considered employed even if he needs a full-time job to support his family and only took part-time work out of desperation.

A full-time college student is considered unemployed if the interviewer finds the student has been looking for a job, part-time or full-time, and hasn't been able to find one.

If a mother tells the interviewer her daughter has looked for work in the past four weeks but knows of no specific efforts the daughter has made to find a job, the daughter does not meet the activity test and is not in the labor force. By not being in the labor force, she cannot be counted as unemployed.

Q. Is the national unemployment figure accurate?

A. Yes, with a margin of error of no more than about one-tenth of 1 percent. A jump in the unemployment rate from 9.8 percent to 10 percent or more is considered very significant.

Q. Are local jobless figures collected the same way as national figures?

A. No. These figures are determined through a process called Local Area Unemployment Statistics. The cornerstone of this process is unemployment insurance information compiled by state governments and given to the BLS. Also used is information from industry surveys. These jobless figures, compiled for the nation's 40 smaller states and communities of 50,000 or more, are released by the BLS days after the national rate.

Q. Are local jobless figures as accurate as the national unemployment rate?

A. No. Pennsylvania's third-quarter 1982 unemployment rate for blacks, for instance, was put at 20 percent. However, the BLS said the rate could actually have been as low as 15.9 percent or as high as 24.1 percent.

Unemployment rates for states sometimes fluctuate broadly. New Jersey's rate was 9.2 percent in August and September, 9.1 in October, 9.9 in November and 9.3 in December. To get a clear picture of the rise and fall of unemployment, especially locally, it is necessary to look at the rate over many months. BLS officials feel New Jersey's jobless rate was essentially flat over this five-month period, despite the seemingly big jump to 9.9 percent in November. The 9.9 percent rate stemmed from some unexplained statistical error.

Greenwood Boulevard, Lake Mary, during the last three weeks, and some of them wound up being thrown into the pool.

Club officials estimate that it will cost about $200 to replace the broken and missing items.

Withholding Plan Should Be Killed

Members of Congress are receiving literally tons of mail urging them to repeal the law passed last year which will require income tax to be withheld from interest and dividend payments after July 1. So far, neither the Republican nor Democratic leadership is impressed, and the chances of repeal are held to be slim.

The withholding scheme was a feature of the 1982 "revenue enhancement" bill which was designed to keep the 1981 tax cuts from opening too wide a deficit in the federal budget. The Treasury estimates that $20 billion a year in interest and dividend income is never reported on annual income tax returns, deliberately or by accident, and therefore is going untaxed.

Having banking institutions withhold 10 percent of interest and dividends as a prepayment of taxes would generate about $1.3 billion in new revenue in the first year and an average of nearly $5 billion a year during the next four years. That's not to be sneezed at when the government needs desperately to reduce its deficits.

Yet we would urge Congress to repeal the withholding plan if the impact can be offset with the closing of loopholes elsewhere in the tax system or, better yet, by a reduction in spending of a comparable amount. The reason is not that withholding would cause hardship for low-income seniors, as much of the congressional mail suggests incorrectly; they can exempt their accounts from withholding by filing a simple form.

Rather, making savings-account interest and stock dividends a withholding target works against one of the main goals of the administration's economic policy. That goal is to stimulate the formation of capital through savings and investment, thus holding down interest rates, the key to economic recovery. When President Reagan embraced the withholding plan last year, it was one of the most damaging compromises with his own supply-side economics.

Savings and investments are not encouraged by reducing what savers and investors see credited to their accounts each month or quarter. Nor does it help the banking industry maintain lower interest rates for consumer loans and home mortgages when it must bear the cost of new bookkeeping and tax-collecting duties on behalf of the Internal Revenue Service.

The IRS should try to do something about the tax on interest and dividends which is now slipping through its fingers. Why not attack the problem by improving the reporting and auditing system already in place? The IRS argues that computers will make it easy for banks to handle the withholding chore. Then why can't computers make it easy for the IRS to ferret out the tax returns that are omitting interest and dividend payments?

The vast majority of taxpayers dutifully report their interest and dividend income and pay taxes on it. The withholding plan only socks them with a penalty for the sins of the minority who aren't paying what they owe.

Pacivism Revisited

The emotional strength of the pacifist movement among young Americans and Englishmen before World War II is hard for contemporary young people to credit.

World War I was the first war in which it became apparent that the killing power and destructiveness of modern weapons had made total war between industrialized nations a no-win proposition.

College students in England and the United States reacted with passion, rejecting all militarism and espousing pacifism.

They learned better in the "Winds of War." Recently, at Oxford University in England, a debating society debated once again the question, "That this House will in no circumstances fight for its King (Queen) and country," which had been debated in the same hall exactly 50 years before, in 1933, the motion carried, 275 to 153.

This time one of the speakers who had supported the motion before World War II returned to oppose it. It failed, 416 to 187.

BERRY'S WORLD

"I told him that we already have a KGB agent who has infiltrated our anti-nuclear group, but he insisted on coming to tonight's meeting anyway."

Forty high achievers from area high schools will spend five weeks this summer immersed in computer science and engineering classes at the University of Central Florida as participants in the 1983 Governor's Program for gifted students. Students selected as Governor's Scholars will be enrolled for six semester hours and receive comparable college credit. Applications from qualified students nominated to attend are due at UCF no later than April 1, and will be considered by a selection panel of university faculty and administrators. Twenty students will be selected for each of the two areas of study. Each high school in the 11-county UCF service area is eligible to nominate candidates for the program. Included in the roster are Orange, Osceola, Seminole, Brevard, Volusia, Flagler, Marion, Lake, Levy, Citrus and Sumter Counties. Those studying in engineering or computer science will be enrolled in two courses in their particular area. All 40 students will attend classes in English, composition and technical writing. Classes will begin June 25 on the UCF campus. Students will be housed in dormitories through the week. They will have access to the university's recreation facilities and programs and may participate in UCF's summer activities including movies, dances, concerts and speakers.

The Seminole County School District has been awarded a special grant from the state Bureau of Highway Safety for purchasing seven safety films. School transportation officials are selecting films emphasizing school bus safety for students.

Thirteen districts from throughout Florida were selected for this grant if they demonstrated a commitment to safety through an outstanding safety instruction program for bus drivers and if they currently employ two hundred drivers.

"We feel that our safety program is second to none and we are committed to continue our outstanding safety record," Hughes stated.

VIEWPOINT

Getting Ready For 1984

BY ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — We may not know for sure for some time whether President Reagan is going to run for a second term, but he certainly has been hard at work in the first months of 1983 getting ready for 1984.

The first and most important step Reagan took this year was cut a deal with the Democrats on Social Security.

Republican political strategists have known for some time that the perception that Reagan was going to try to cut Social Security benefits was big trouble.

The Republicans took a terrible battering on this issue in 1982.

Democratic charges on Social Security hurt GOP candidates more than the state of the economy, the nuclear arms issue or cuts in social programs.

Because the Republicans had blundered into a premature proposal for Social Security cuts and restrictions in the spring of 1981, they could not claim the Democrats were manufacturing their charges out of thin air.

They had to neutralize the issue by getting the Democrats to agree on at least a short-term solution to the cash crisis that was rapidly approaching.

COMMENTARY

They had to give more than they got in the final deal — bow to a speed up in Social Security taxes in return for a delay in a cost of living increase that wasn't going to be very large anyway.

But politically, they succeeded by getting Speaker Tip O'Neill's name on the compromise.

If the package passes, it is hard to see how Democratic campaigners can attack it or the Republicans next year.

The other big problem was, and is, jobs. Even if the economy stages a healthy recovery this year, the unemployment figures well into 1984 are likely to be high — near, if not over, 10 percent.

It does not solve the political problem to make sympathetic statements about unemployment or argue that when business picks up, it will provide "real" rather than "make work" jobs.

When people see factories and stores closing — in their home towns, not just on the evening news — they start worrying even if they have not lost their own jobs.

So Reagan offered another deal. In effect, he agreed to 80 percent of the same job-creation program the Democrats proposed last fall and he threatened to veto.

It can be said that neither of these examples constitute evidence that Reagan is planning to run for reelection. He could, after all, be trying simply to solve the problems of Social Security and unemployment. The problem with that explanation is that both represent changes in the course the president urged the country to stay before the verdict of the 1982 elections was delivered.

Feds Foul Up Killer's Protection

WASHINGTON — The hired assassin who broke the notorious Orlando Letelier murder by confessing his part in it has been the victim of a bureaucratic foulup — a mistake that could cost him his life. His identity was inadvertently revealed to a fellow prisoner by an incredible clerical error.

Michael Vernon Townley, now 40, was born in Waterloo, Iowa. But he's hardly your All-American Boy; he became an expert in explosive devices and went to work for DINA, the notorious Chilean secret police. He was given the assignment of assassinating Letelier, the exiled Chilean leftist who had taken refuge in Washington, D.C., after the bloody overthrow of his Marxist President Salvador Allende.

On Sept. 21, 1976, Townley and some Cuban-exile accomplices carried out their mission. Driving along Embassy Row in the morning rush hour, Letelier was blown up in his car. The explosion also killed a young American passenger and colleague, Rosny Moffitt.

A lengthy FBI investigation led to Townley's arrest, and he decided to cooperate with the prosecution, implicating DINA and the Cuban exiles. In return, Townley was allowed to plead to a single count of conspiracy and drew a 10-year sentence.

But the most important part of Townley's deal with the prosecutors was his enrollment in the federal government's witness-protection program. Aware that his life would be in danger from those he had betrayed, the authorities gave Townley a whole new identity. The prison where he is serving his sentence is also kept confidential.

Obviously, such a masquerade involves a whole chain of federal agencies — and it can be only as strong as its weakest link. In Townley's case, the weak link was the U.S. Parole Commission.

After serving three years, Townley became eligible for parole, and was given a hearing before the commission. Another prisoner at the same facility, who had no connection with Townley, went through the same procedure.

But when the second prisoner asked for and received a tape recording of his parole hearing, he was astonished to discover Townley's hearing — in all its revealing detail — on the flip side of the tape.

The prisoner sent the tape to my associate John Dillon, along with a letter describing what happened when the authorities discovered the mistake. They "tore the place apart" looking for the tape, he wrote, and an FBI agent asked the prisoner "what I wanted" for it.

"My reply was nothing," wrote the prisoner. "I just want to be left alone." He said he had been harassed and punished.

Prison officials confirmed the FBI visit to the prisoner, and said he was disciplined for trying to "blackmail" them into giving him "certain benefits" in exchange for the tape.

The Townley tape reveals the importance of his testimony in the Letelier case — and the deadly peril he is in from his former associates. Prosecutor Lawrence Barcella told the commission Townley had provided "complete, total, candid and truthful cooperation" and should be paroled.

An FBI agent said Townley went "far beyond his agreement" in cooperating with the government and had "put the life of himself and his family in jeopardy." As chilling evidence of this, Townley's attorney, Barry Levine, read the commission a letter from Virgilio Paz, a former accomplice of his client.

"You will pay with your life," Paz warned Townley. "In no part of the world will you ever live in peace. The long arm of the Cuban exile movement will overtake you ... Your wife and your children are the most precious things you have. Don't allow the blood in their veins to stop running because you are a traitor. Everything depends on your loyalty."

Footnote: A Parole Commission spokesman said the release of the Townley tape was "some kind of clerical error." Barcella said the government has taken extra precautions to protect Townley, whose parole appeal was denied.

JEFFREY HART

His Marne: Indexation

If the French had not held at the Marne in the summer of 1914, the Kaiser's armies would have seized Paris and won the war.

If the Reagan administration sees Congress repeal the legislation that would index the income tax to take account of inflation, then it will have suffered a catastrophic defeat at its own battle of the Marne.

The liberal spenders in Congress will have preserved the hidden tax of inflation, a tax which on any strict reading of the Constitution is unconstitutional, since new taxes are supposed to be specifically voted by the legislature.

A few examples of how this hidden and highly regressive tax actually works:

Congress allows you a $1,000 deduction for each dependent child. But, because of inflation, the cost of living doubled in the decade between 1972 and 1982. The real value of your deduction is thus half what it was a decade earlier. Your taxes have silently risen.

The same sort of thing is true of the notorious "bracket creep." If a man earned $20,000 in 1972, he would have to earn $40,000 in 1982 to have the same real income. But he would have moved from a 38 percent bracket to a 50 percent bracket. His taxes had been raised stealthily by inflation, providing the spenders in Congress with additional funds, but sparing them the embarrassment of raising taxes in broad daylight.

This kind of taxation, moreover, is highly "regressive," to use a favorite liberal word. It affects most painfully the huge mass of middle-class taxpayers, moving them into higher and higher tax brackets, whereas the wealthy taxpayers are already in the high brackets, and the poor pay little or no income tax at all.

The enormous middle-class constituency for indexing taxes ought to give pause to those liberal Republicans, like Sen. Howard Baker and former President Gerald Ford, who have recently come out for the repeal of indexation. (The Liberal Republicans, however, have never been notable for electoral shrewdness, and have ridden to their present influence on the coattails of Ronald Reagan. If they facilitate repeal of indexation, the long knives of political vengeance will be out on the political right.)

If Ronald Reagan has an eye to his place in history, indexation could well go down as one of the permanent legacies of his administration. The present indexation legislation goes into effect in 1985. It will probably be impossible for future Congresses to repeal it. The essential fairness of the idea will render it politically invulnerable. It is thus more important in principle than even the Reagan tax cuts, which themselves can be nullified by bracket creep or altered by the legislative process.

Without indexation, the spenders in government have every incentive to foster high rates of inflation. No one, not Senator Baker, not Gerald Ford, has offered any sort of reasoned defense of taxation through bracket creep, and the whole idea is too much even for Senator Robert Dole, who does not mind raising taxes in the usual legal way.

If Congress serves us up yet another dead cat by repealing indexation, let it pay the political price, which ought to be the termination of some unnecessary careers.

Reagan Deserves The Credit

For two years, the liberals in the press and in Congress have watched the Reagan administration squirm as the economy sank into the deepest slump since the Thirties.

We witnessed the smirks of network anchormen and heard in the sarcasm in their voices not just the usual bias against conservative policies, but undisguised glee at the administration's embarrassment that its early predictions of recovery were shown to be wrong.

The liberals enjoyed the recession.

In mid-February, however, nearly all economic indicators tell us the worst is over. Unemployment dipped from 10.8 to 10.4 percent in January, when compiled the old way, without counting the military as "employed." For January, auto production was up 6 percent, and the automakers plan a 38 percent production boost for the first quarter. New car sales rose 12 percent in January.

Lumber production was up 12 percent, and prices rose, reflecting the sharp upturn in home construction and sales. The nation's inventory of unsold new single family homes is at the lowest level in ten years. For the week ending January 15, initial claims for unemployment compensation dropped to 491,000, the fewest since September 1981. The number of individuals receiving unemployment payments dropped to 3.9 million early last month — down from 4.7 million in November.

The recovery, then, is underway.

Although the Reaganites will try to take the credit, we can be assured mainly that the old laws of the business cycle have been proved still to work: excessive taxation, regulation, and interest rates cause business to contract operations and reduce investment.

Unemployment, therefore, results. Exorbitant wages and wages demands cause people to lose their jobs. Heavy taxation, regulation and labor costs lead to higher prices for goods, whether consumer products like automobiles, or industrial materials like steel, which then persuade purchasers to buy less, or to turn to cheaper imports. More imports mean fewer manufacturing jobs for Americans. Unemployment — it's no surprise.

Well then, when did all this begin happening? Surely not on January 22, 1981. In fact, high interest rates, too many people without jobs, and high taxes all had something to do with why Ronald Reagan was elected.

Today, the prime interest rate and the inflation rate have been slashed by half.

Taxes and unemployment are up, the legacy of the inflation and interest rates of the Carter years. Still, the jobless rate is declining.

Will Reagan get the credit? Does he deserve it? We don't yet know. All we do know is that the liberals (but only the liberals) will suffer through a Reagan Recovery.

PROFITABLE PRECAUTION?: Members of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission have normally been forbidden to trade in most of the commodities they regulate. But an amendment slipped into the commission's reauthorization bill last year lists a new exception that allows the regulators to dabble in mineral leases.

Oddly enough, the amendment originated with Commissioner Kald Hineman and was included in the legislation at his request. And Hineman, a Kansas farmer, is the only commissioner with a significant personal interest in mineral leasing: He has leased 2,720 acres of his land to oil companies.

The amendment allows commissioners to lease mineral rights through a trust. Though Hineman's holdings had already been OK'd when he was appointed to the commission in 1981, the new procedure could make it easier to collect profits if his leaseholders strike oil. (So far, their $1-an-acre leases have produced only dry holes.)

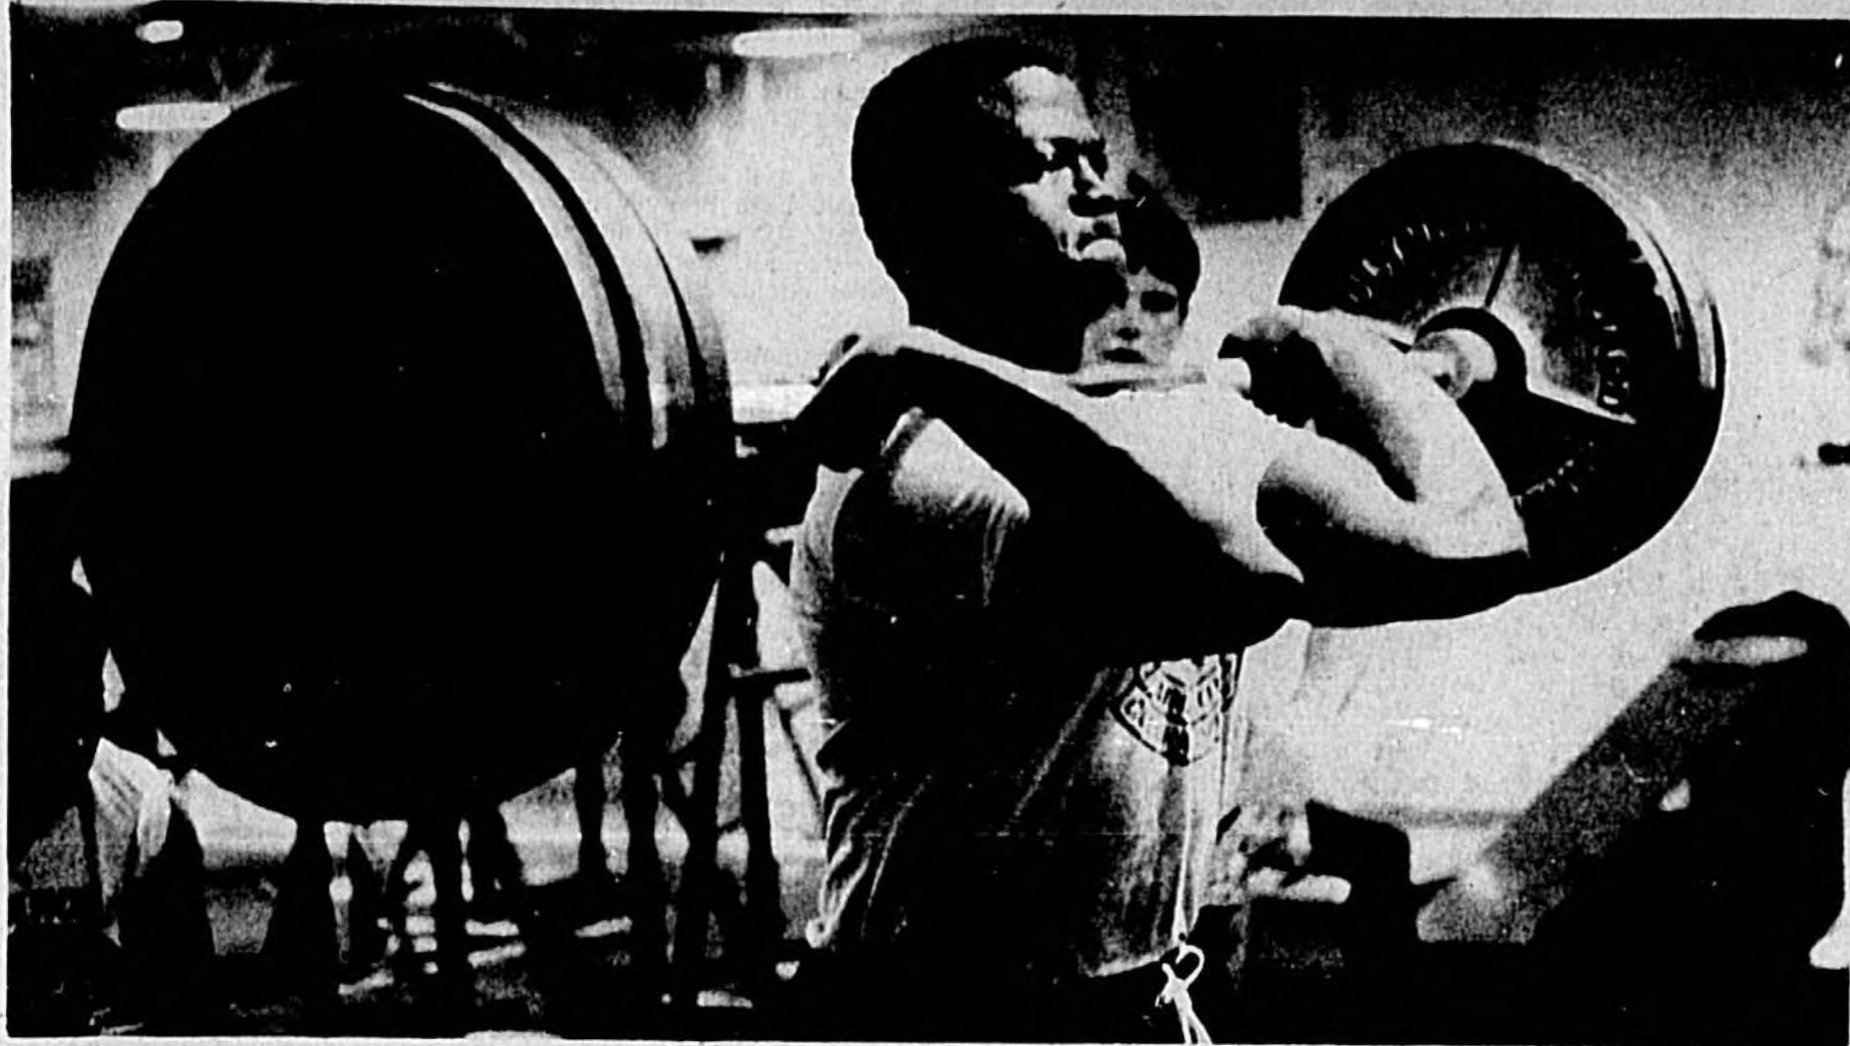

Hineman acknowledged that he had pushed for the mineral-lease exemption and voted for it when it was approved by the commission. But he told my reporter Jock Hatfield there was no conflict of interest involved.

"It was simply a matter of clarification, not a substantive change," he said. "I was already approved. I had nothing to gain."

Successful Seminoles

Issac Williams, Florida State noseguard, works out in the weight room for spring football practice. Williams, a 1981 all-stater for coach Jerry Posey, has added 20 pounds of muscle since going to FSU last year. Williams is fighting for a spot on the Seminoles' defensive line.

Williams Muscles Way Into Freshman All-American

BY MIKE RADIGAN
Herald Sports Correspondent
TALLAHASSEE—Tonnage is what Florida State football coaches were searching for when they went recruiting high school talent in 1981. Down linemen. Big down linemen.

Seminole High's Issac Williams was one of the trucks they ended up with. They were lucky.

In just his first season with FSU, Williams, all 6-foot-2 and 255 pounds of him, has been named to the Football News Freshman All-American team. Next to the listing of outstanding freshmen in the January issue were these words:

"The Defensive Down Man of the Year is Issac Williams of Florida State. He is reminding of another FSU standout of the recent past, Ron Simmons, who also broke into the Seminole lineup right from the start."

It took word of the award awhile to reach for the former Seminole High First Team All-State offensive tackle, but when it did, you couldn't have found a happier first-year player.

"I was ecstatic," Williams said. "My coming out of high school playing on offense and then moving to defense—it was a shock."

Williams said one team's athletic trainers told him he had made the All-America squad, then the strength coach told him. He finally believed the rumor when he obtained a copy of the Football News and saw his name right there in black and white.

College Football

His roommate, offensive lineman Jamie Dukes from Orlando Evans High School, was named to the elite squad along with a third Seminole, wide receiver Hassan Jones.

When Williams showed up at FSU for two-a-day practices last August, his chances of gaining a starting assignment seemed pretty slim. There were just too many veteran leftovers from the 1981 squad ahead of him.

Them some strange things started to happen.

DeLand's Lenny Chavers, who seemed the sure bet to start at noseguard in the season opener against Cincinnati, went down with a knee injury during the early weeks of practice. Changes had to be made. Issac Williams was one of them.

The coaching staff asked Williams to exchange his white practice jersey—the color worn by members of the offense—for a garnet one. It wanted him on defense.

Williams had been recruited as an offensive lineman.

"I had been trained for the offensive line where you take about five steps per play," he said, smiling. "They switched me to the defense and I was all over the field. It took me awhile to get into shape, but I wouldn't give it up for anything now."

Williams adjusted well. When the season began, he was alternating at noseguard with junior starter David Ponder. Ponder had been shifted from defensive tackle to fill the spot vacated by Chavers while junior Brad Fojtik, an offensive lineman, was bumped into Ponder's old spot.

Ponder started and Williams checked in on special defensive formations. If Ponder needed a rest, Williams was there.

Williams was in on 24 tackles, not counting the Gator Bowl. Of those, five were solos and one was good for a loss of yardage. He also forced an opposing ball carrier to spit up the football once.

"We were very, very impressed with Issac to come in as a freshman and do as well as he did," said defensive coordinator Jack Stanton. "He has a good chance of starting this fall."

Fojtik and Chavers should prove to be Williams' biggest obstacles in the making of the starting unit. Ponder is expected to move back to tackle, so his presence shouldn't be much of a threat to Williams.

But seriously, folks, another Ron Simmons? Issac Williams?

Simmons was big, quick, strong and the former FSU All-American ended up ninth in the 1979 Heisman Trophy balloting his junior year—the only lineman to place in the voting's top 10.

"Issac is awfully strong, but when Simmons came in as a freshman, he could lift the building," Stanton said. "Ron was further ahead because Issac had to switch from offense to defense."

Strength, however, has never been a problem for the Sanford strongman. Williams was a Junior Olympic weight lifting champion in both the snatch and clean-and-jerk competitions before his senior year at Seminole High. He also holds the all-time record for FSU football players in both the clean (345 pounds) and leg sled (755 pounds).

His strength comes primarily from his legs, unlike Simmons who had a chest the size of Nebraska. Simmons had been known to bench press as much as 525 pounds. Williams shyly admits the bench press is his worst lift. He can push only 375 pounds.

Williams will join the rest of the Seminole football squad when it resumes practice in the middle of March—right after spring break. Spring practice traditionally has been known to make or break a player's chances of starting when fall rolls around.

"(Defensive line) coach (Chuck) Amato wants me to learn strong tackle, too, so if somebody gets hurt I can go in there," Williams said. "I'd like to start (this fall), but if I don't, there won't be any tears dropped."

Manley's Magic Guides JV To Fine 15-1 Season

By CHRIS FISTER
Herald Sports Writer
Sonya Manley was one of the most versatile athletes in the history of Seminole High. She was a standout in volleyball, basketball and track for three years before being awarded a scholarship to Seminole Community College in volleyball and later a partial basketball scholarship at the University of Central Florida.

Now, Manley is back at Seminole High as coach of the girls junior varsity basketball team. And, in only her first year as coach, Manley's squad compiled an impressive 15-1 record, its only loss to Orlando Evans, whose varsity team is the second-ranked 4A team in the state.

Her list of athletic achievements at Seminole High began in 1975 when she was named most improved in track and field. In 1976, Manley was named most valuable player in both track and basketball and won the most scholastic award.

As a senior in 1977, she was MVP in track, basketball and volleyball and received a two-year scholarship to SCC.

At SCC, Manley played both volleyball and softball, being named most valuable in volleyball in 1977 and most valuable in both volleyball and softball in the 78-79 school year. She was also named most athletic female at SCC in 78-79.

From SCC, Manley went on a partial basketball scholarship to UCF where she was outstanding rebounder for the 1980-81 season.

In 1982-83, Manley returned to Seminole High and became coach of the JV Tribe and assistant coach to Ron Merthle for the varsity team.

Manley's knowledge of the game combined with eight young players anxious to learn more so they could one day accomplish what coach Manley did in her days with the Lady Seminoles proved to be an unbeatable combination.

Of the starting five, three averaged over 10 points per game and two more than 10 rebounds per game. As a team, Seminole averaged 77 points per game.

Point guard Andell Smith led the way averaging 22 points and nine assists per game. Smith had a high game of 34 points and scored 29 on two occasions. "She's the fireball of the team," Manley said. "She is a good ball handler and runs the fast break well."

The other starting guard, Temika Alexander, averaged 11 points and 15 assists per game. "She is well disciplined and can also handle the ball well," Manley said. "She is a good shooter and good defensive player too."

Prop Basketball

Sonya Manley...successful beginning

Center-forward Katherine Anderson was the team's top rebounder as she swept the boards for 20 per game and also chipped in with 15 points per game. "She's our best rebounder and can handle the ball well for her size," Manley said.

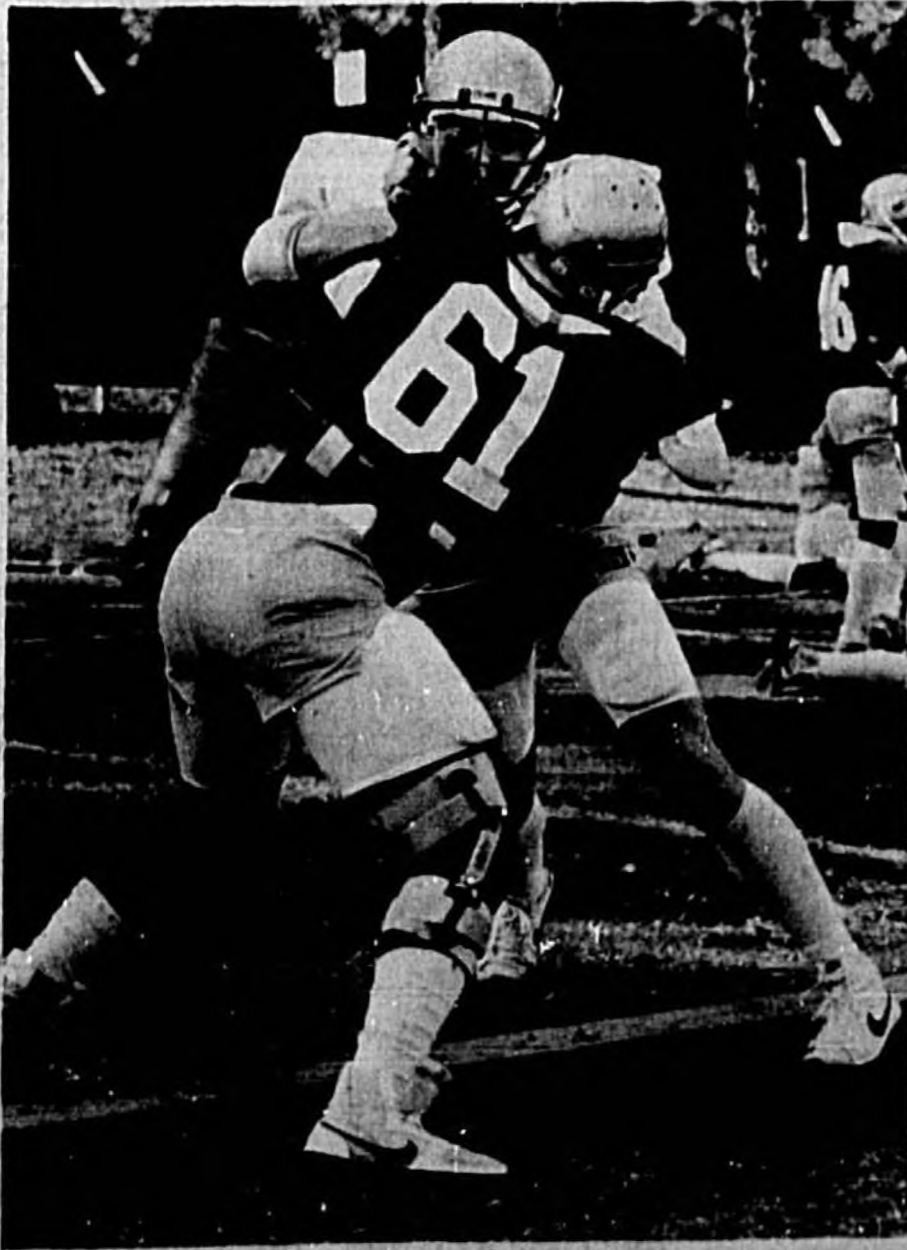

"Katherine could be a guard or a forward on the varsity team."

Also at forward, Beatrice Smith averaged 13 rebounds and six points per game. "Beatrice is a scrappy player," Manley said. "She's a good rebounder and loves to hustle."

The fifth starter, Angela Carpenter, proved to be a good all-around player as she averaged eight points, 10 assists and eight rebounds per game. "Angela has patience in running the plays," Manley said. "She's a pure shooter, a good defensive player and a real hustler."

Strong off the bench for the JV Seminoles, were Julia Brown (four points and five assists per game), Mary Hicks (five points, six rebounds) and Sonia Jenkins (six points).

The future for girls basketball looks bright at Seminole High, all of the varsity team will be returning next year and Manley is preparing the junior varsity for its chance at the big time.

Former Seminole High standout Issac Williams (no. 61) fights off a blocker during football practice at Florida State. Williams, a noseguard for FSU after spending his entire Sanford career as an offensive lineman, was named to the Football News Freshman All-America Team. Williams has a good chance to earn a starting spot for FSU this year, according to defensive coach coordinator Jack Stanton.

Mainland Holds Off Greyhounds For District 4A-9 Championship

By CHRIS FISTER
Herald Sports Writer
Daytona Beach Mainland's Issac Bell dropped in a layup with five seconds left Saturday night to lift the Buccaneers to a 48-44 victory over Lyman's Greyhounds in the 4A-9 District Tournament championship at Seminole High.

Lyman had a chance to tie the game with nine seconds left, but the 'Hounds committed a turnover and Bell converted the layup to clinch the victory for Mainland.

"I thought that it would go into overtime the way both teams were playing in the last two minutes," Mainland coach Dick Toth said. "It seemed like neither team wanted it. We missed two one-and-ones and a layup near the end, but I'll take the win any way it comes."

Mainland will now host the Region 5 title game against fourth-ranked Stuart Martin County Tuesday night.

Although Mainland had beaten Lyman twice in the regular season, both times by 15 points, the Greyhounds stayed close the entire game. "If we had gotten a few breaks we would have won," Lyman coach Tom Lawrence said. "I'm proud of our kids, they played hard and kept their composure."

The first quarter saw the two teams tied two times and the lead change hands five times. Greg Pilot hit 1 of 2 free throws with 54 seconds left in the quarter to break a 12-12 tie and give the Greyhounds a slim 13-12 lead going into the second quarter.

Prop Basketball

The Buccaneers took the lead back, 14-13, early in the second quarter on Will Anderson's layup. Mainland never lost the lead again until early in the third quarter. Lyman made only 2 of 7 shots from the floor in the second quarter and Mainland built a 25-20 lead and had the ball with 1:30 left until halftime.

The Bucs elected to go for the last shot and brought the clock down to two seconds. But, Mainland did not get off the shot it had planned as Kevin Morris shot from the top of the key was well off the mark as the score stayed at 25-20 at halftime.

Anderson, who scored 14 points in the first half in Mainland's semi-final win over Seminole, boosted the Bucs with 12 points. Alexis Cleveland had seven for the 'Hounds.

Mainland lost the shooting touch in the third quarter and Lyman got its fast break going as the Greyhounds outscored the Bucs, 14-9, to tie the score at 34-34 going into the fourth quarter. Lyman hit its first four shots from the field in the third quarter and wound up hitting 7 of 12 for the quarter while Mainland made only 4 of 14.

In the first six and a half minutes of the fourth quarter, Mainland made only one field goal. But, the Bucs still held a four-point lead, 46-42, by hitting 6 of 10 free throws. Lyman didn't shoot a free throw in the second half until James Pilot hit two with 40 seconds left to cut Mainland's lead to two points, 46-44.

With 27 seconds left, Mainland sent Tony Burks to the free throw line for a one-and-one situation. Burks missed the shot and Lyman grabbed the rebound with a chance to tie the game and possibly send it into overtime.

The 'Hounds ran the clock down to nine seconds and tried to get the ball inside to Gregg Walker. Three Mainland players surrounded Walker and Walker lost the ball to Burks, who spotted Bell down court for the clinching basket.

"Anderson made some big baskets when we needed them," Toth said. "The pieces of the puzzle really fell together well for us. We won the coin toss and got to play Lake Brantley in the first round instead of Spruce Creek who beat us twice during the regular season, then we played probably our best game against Seminole and capped it off with the district title."

MAINLAND (48)
Anderson 8-13 5-8 21, Bell 3-6 0-0 6, Hinson 4-7 4-5 12, Morris 0-4 2-5 2, Irick 1-4 0-0 2, Burks 2-11 1-3 5. Totals: 18-45 12-21 48.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Jackson Outjumps Cold, Pioneers Sweep Relays

Considering the weather conditions, Seminole High's Dion Jackson might have been more tempted to jump into bed than the sand pit Saturday at the Eagle Relays at Double E (Edgewater and Evans) Stadium at Orlando.

"It was a horrible day for jumping," confirmed Tribe track coach Hank Daviero about the blustery conditions. "But Dion (Jackson) jumped pretty well. He was leading the triple jump until the Oak Ridge and Evans guys beat him on their last jump."

Jackson, a senior, settled for third in the triple jump with a leap of 41-feet-7½ which was 10½ inches off the winning jump. "Jax" took second place in the long jump with a leap of 20-feet-11¼. Twenty-one feet-2½ won it.

Daviero's crack mile medley relay team of Joe Whack, Torin Williams, Clifton Campbell and Mike Wooten grabbed a first place with a 3:42.6 clocking. The mile relay team of Williams, Campbell, Wooten and Rendel Manley took second place to Oak Ridge with a time of 3:33.8.

Powerful Oak Ridge, two-time defending state champion, won the meet with 65 points. Edgewater and Titusville Astronaut tied for second with 40. Seminole was seventh with 29 while Lyman was eighth with 24. Lake Mary was 12th with 14½. The Rams' speedy sprint medley relay team of Will LaVelle, Charlie Lucarelli, Pat Murray and Keith Mandy took the blue ribbon with a time of 2:05.1. Mike Rouse was second in the high jump with a leap of 6 feet.

In girls actions Saturday, Oak Ridge made it a clean sweep by running away with the Lake Brantley Relays at Altamonte Springs.

The Lady Pioneers rolled up 110 points to more than double the second-place output of Sanford's Lady Seminoles who finished with 52. Lake Howell and Evans tied for third with 46. Lyman was fifth. Lake Brantley sixth and Lake Mary 12th.

Only three county teams won relay events. The Lake Brantley foursome of Laura Barnhill, Barbara Holmes, Joanne Hayward and Kathryn Hayward won the two-mile relay in 10:39 while Holmes, double Hayward and Anne Murray took the mile medley relay in 13:35.

Lyman's trio of Erica French, Pam Jackson and Lynn Lugerling took the discus relay with a combined effort of 277 feet. Lake Howell's Kerry Ryter, Lyn Lucas, Candy Franklin and Angie Smith ran a 23:37 to win the four-mile relay.

Seminole took second in the 990 hurdles as Arlene Jones led the way. The Tribe took seconds in shuttle hurdle relay, 440 and 880 relays along with the mile medley relay. Crystal Caldwell, Traci Brown, Charita Medlock and Tabatha Davison led the sprinters.

The next big meet is Tuesday for the boys and girls when Seminole hosts Lyman and Lake Brantley beginning at 3:30 p.m.

Barker Leads SCC To Split

Seminole Community College's Tim Barker rapped three hits while Bryan Holzworth, Sammy Duda and Bruce Parker had two each as the Raiders topped Miami Dade New World Center, 7-5, Saturday to gain a split of a double-header Saturday at SCC. The Raiders, 5-10, lost to 8-8 New World, 3-2, in the second game.

Right-hander Alan Soyer limited New World to just four hits in the opener to gain his second victory of the year. SCC exploded for four runs in the bottom of the ninth to take the win.

In game two, former Springstead High School hurler Pete Frantzis allowed just three hits but didn't get any bat support as the Raiders dropped a one-run decision. Five SCC errors aided the demise.

The Raiders host Manatee Junior College Tuesday at 3 p.m.

SCC Netters Sweep 2

The Seminole Community College tennis team raised its record to 6-0 with victories over Daytona Beach CC, 9-0, and Fer is State, Mich., 7-2.

The defending national champion Raiders won despite having Greg Miller and Martin Bromfield sidelined with injuries.

Bromfield, a newcomer to the team, has been slowed with a groin injury.

If that two-handed backhand looks familiar, it should. Claire Evert, younger sister of tennis standout Chris, came to Lake Mary High School with her Fort. Powerful Aquinas, coached by the other Evert sister, Jeanie, blanked Lake Mary, 7-0. The Rams also played Cardinal Newman Saturday and lost, 5-2. Mickey Reynolds was a big winner for the Rams, taking her singles match and teaming with Rae Ryerson for a doubles' victory. Lake Mary, 5-3, takes on Oviedo at Red Bug Park today at 3.

"It's a tough thing we've been through here the last two games," UNLV Coach Jerry Tarkanian said. "We need to go home, get healthy, and work our butts off. I don't think the Fullerton loss had any effect on this game, except we didn't have a lot of time to practice."

Brucato, Rae Take 4ths At Mat Meet

WINTER PARK—Lake Brantley's Billy Brucato is a determined young man. One has to be to come all the way through the wrestlebacks to finish fourth in the State 4A Wrestling Tournament here Saturday.

Brucato, 27-1 going into Friday's wrestling, ran into eventual 149-pound champion Todd Gustafson of Brandon in the second round and lost a 7-0 decision. Gustafson edged Evans' Carlton Small for the title, 2-1.

"Billy wrestled well after he lost to Gustafson," said Lake Brantley coach Kevin Carpenter. "He looked a little flat against Gustafson, but Gustafson didn't do much either. He just laid on top off him."

Brucato's long climb back started with Plantation's Jose Morette who he decided, 8-3, in the first round of wrestlebacks. Then Brucato dominated Lake Worth's Edward Engram, 12-4, in his second wrestleback. That earned him a shot at St. Petersburg Seminole's Mark Surette who toppled Brucato in the consolation championship match, 8-3.

Prep Wrestling

Lake Howell's Dan Rae, (224) also ran into a tough customer—Tampa King's Richard Batchelor in his attempt to grab a consolation championship. The senior Silver Hawk pinned South Plantation's Lee Stovall in 1:30 and stuck Lakeland Kathleen's Chris Franklin in 5:10 Friday to advance to the quarter finals.

In Saturday morning's semi-finals, however, Rae battled defending 189-pound champ Marcellino Moss and lost a decision. Moss then pinned Southridge's Wes Crosby in 3:26 for the title. Rae won his wrestleback matches but lost to Batchelor, 15-3.

Brucato and Rae were the only Seminole County wrestlers to place.

Southridge won the title with 107½ points. Brandon, last year's champion, was second with 91. Miami Sunset (71), Tampa Chamberlain (54) and Miami Killan (43½) completed the top five. Edgewater was eighth with 30½ points.

Riechle Makes Transition, Blanks Seminole In Debut; Patriots Edge Rams In 7th

It didn't take Oviedo's Darren Riechle long to make the transition from basketball to baseball. The hard-throwing right-hander tossed four no-hit innings in his first outing Saturday as the Lions upended Seminole, 7-2, in prep baseball action at Sanford Memorial Stadium.

"Riechle looked real tough," said Seminole skipper Bobby Lundquist about the 6-3 junior. "We didn't do anything with him. He's going to beat some people."

Riechle gave way to freshman Craig Duncan who gave up two runs on two hits over the final three innings for coach Howard Mable's 5-3 Lions. Seminole, 2-3, opens its Five Star Conference season today at 4 when Daytona Beach Mainland, last year's district champions, come to town. Right-hander Greg Hill, 1-2, will be on the mound for the "Holes. The Lions host 1-6 Lake Howell today at 3:30.

Oviedo jumped on sophomore James Hersey for five runs in the first inning Saturday to give Riechle all the cushion he needed. Hersey, 1-1, had control problems in frame one which led top his problems. After the first, the Tribe right-hander blanked Oviedo until the sixth before giving way to Andy Griffith.

Seminole scored its two runs in the sixth on an RBI-single by Kevin Smith which chased home Brian Rogers who had reached on an infield single. Griffith drove in catcher Steve Dennis with the other run with a ground out.

Chris Kessinger led the Lions' attack with two singles.

In other action Saturday, Lake Brantley remained undefeated by pushing across a run in the top of the seventh inning to edge the Lake Mary Rams, 2-1, at Altamonte Springs. The Patriots of coach Sam Momary are 5-0 while the Rams fell to 1-4.

The Patriots scratched out a run in the top of the seventh frame when John Luzzi doubled down the left-field line off Lake Mary right-hander Mike Schmit and eventually scored two batters later when the Rams threw away a potential inning-ending double play relay.

Right-hander Marty Coffey and Kevin Gross combined to hold the Rams to three hits. Gross picked up the win, pitching the final two innings. Coffey singled in the Pats' first run in the first inning after Scot Inez reached on an error by the third baseman and moved up on a sacrifice.

Lake Mary scored a run in the bottom of the second when Rod Metz walked, moved up on a wild pitch and scored on a base hit by Keith Wallace. In the fourth, Schmit singled, went to second on a sacrifice, to third on a passed ball and scored on a passed ball. Brantley added its second run on an error after center fielder Bobby Garrison walked.

In junior varsity action over the weekend, coach Ron Baker's Lyman junior varsity took its first two games of the season in easy fashion.

On Friday, the Greyhounds used a number of Crooms' errors to topple the Panthers, 9-4. Clint Baker struck out 10 while going six innings for the win. Gary Nuss finished up.

Wife's Surgery Severs Husband's Love

DEAR ABBY: Why don't gynecologists warn their patients that after they've had a hysterectomy they are no longer sexually desirable? At age 47, I had a total hysterectomy. I had tumors and was told I should have my uterus removed. But had I known then what I know now, I would have put it off as long as possible, or even taken my chances and not had the operation at all? After my surgery my husband told me that our lovemaking wasn't the same — that I had lost my appeal for him. Then he found someone else. The same thing happened to a friend of mine. After her hysterectomy, her husband said she didn't "feel" the same, then he took up with a young woman in his office. Would I be wise to forget about men? I take Premarin and I haven't lost my sex drive. I'm attractive, neat and clean, and people tell me I look about 40. I need a truthful answer, Abby. Would a man ever be sexually satisfied with me now?

REJECTED DEAR REJECTED: Yes! In a total hysterectomy, the uterus is removed, which in no way diminishes the sexual satisfaction of lovemaking. A man cannot tell whether his partner has a uterus or not. If he claims he can "feel" the difference, he's either looking for an excuse to look elsewhere, or the problem is not in her body, but in his head!

DEAR ABBY: How do I tell a good friend I do not want to lend her my clothes? She is leaving for a trip and has hinted that she would like to borrow two new dresses she saw in my closet. I bought them on sale last fall and they still have the tags on them! What kind of excuse can I give her without losing her friendship? I've never borrowed anyone's clothes in my life, and I don't want to lend mine. Hurry, please. I know she'll be asking me soon.

STUCK DEAR STUCK: Don't look for an "excuse," tell her the reason: "Sorry, I don't lend my clothes to anyone." If you lose her friendship, what have you lost? A friend with whom you can't be honest.

DEAR ABBY: We're expecting our first child, and we are thrilled. My husband is a health nut. He jogs, watches his diet, takes vitamins and gave up smoking. When "Bob" learned that I was with child, he insisted that I quit smoking. I promised I would and said I had, but I've been sneaking cigarettes whenever possible.

Bob caught me and gave me a long lecture. I told him he wasn't my father, then I asked, "What are you going to do the next time you catch me? Give me a spanking?" He said, "That's a good idea."

I thought he was kidding, but last night he caught me smoking again, so he put me across his lap and spanked me with my hairbrush. I cried. Is smoking really harmful to the unborn child? And is spanking grounds for divorce in New Jersey?

SPANKED IN NEW JERSEY DEAR SPANKED: Yes, doctors have agreed that a mother's smoking is indeed harmful to the unborn child. And a New Jersey lawyer can tell you whether spanking is grounds for divorce.

Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Fish Are Good Food To Reduce Cholesterol

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently I saw a small item in a newspaper that said if you ate mackerel you could decrease your cholesterol level. According to the story seven people ate mackerel and lowered their cholesterol to the low levels the Eskimos have. The article said Eskimos don't have heart disease. I have also heard for years that you should eat fish rather than red meats if you want to avoid heart disease. Is there any truth to these statements?

DEAR READER — I wouldn't rush out and start on a mackerel diet thinking it will prevent you from ever having heart disease but there is some promising research being done in this area.

There is a chemical produced by your body called prostacyclin which may protect against the clumping of platelets that leads to clot formation. Scientists are experimenting with its effects on preventing blood clots and fatty-cholesterol deposits. The Greenland Eskimos eat fish that feed on one-cell animals and produce a similar chemical with a similar action. That led to the idea that cold water fish may help protect against fatty-cholesterol deposits and thrombosis. The idea was tested with a mackerel diet in seven medical students in Munich, Germany.

Fish have long been recommended as part of the diet for people wanting to lower cholesterol or avoid heart attacks and strokes. Perhaps some of the observations are related to the Greenland experience. But they have also been recommended because they are low in fat and contain a better ratio of polyunsaturated fat to saturated fat than red meats. In fact, fish are the only major source in our diet of fats that are truly highly unsaturated.

Now, not all fish are low in fat. I'm sending you The Health Letter number 11-12, Fish and Shellfish

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read in your column about the lady who cooks her meats at 140 F and I wondered if you would answer this question. I have a friend who never washes her chicken before cooking it. She says she read somewhere that the flavor is lost. I say wash it and get rid of the bacteria. What do you say? Please settle this friendly argument.

DEAR READER — As long as washing it does not mean soaking it, I see no reason why you would lose flavor — other than the flavor of any dirt that might be on the carcass.

I favor washing or at least rinsing before cooking but you should know that this will not eliminate the bacteria. Even when a surgeon scrubs with special soaps to prepare for surgery, he still has bacteria on the skin. That is why a doctor wears sterile rubber gloves and sterile gown. I don't think you will do as well with cleaning a chicken as a surgeon does in scrubbing for an operation.

That is why cooking is so important. It is the main way of eliminating potentially harmful bacteria in food.

YOUR BIRTHDAY March 1, 1983
Strive to be enterprising this coming year, because there are indications you may be able to open up an additional source of income equal to your present earnings.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your greatest possibilities for success are likely to come from joint ventures today, especially if you're the helmsman who steers the ship to port. Your 1983 predictions for Pisces are now ready. Send $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet. Reveals romantic combinations and compatibilities for all signs.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You could be extremely fortunate today in partnership situations where, collectively, you have a long-range objective in mind. Breaks might suddenly develop.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Where your work or career is concerned, be alert for unusual signals today which could be indicative of new opportunities. Two may begin to flash.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Someone you're quite fond of could be instrumental at this time in introducing you to a new circle of friends with whom you'll have much in common.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You should be quite lucky today regarding goals you've planned for.

However, matters might not develop in the ways you originally envisioned.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Try to make a good impression on any new people you may meet today. There's a strong possibility one or more could play prominent roles in your future.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If negotiating a matter of material value today, it's to your advantage to wait until the last possible moment before making your closing moves.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your optimistic attitude today will smooth your own path and also encourage those who walk by your side.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Heed your hunches today regarding ways to feather your nest or add to your income. Don't discount perceptions, even though they may be grand in scale.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You could be extremely lucky in two unrelated areas today; one is romance, the other is the furthering of a new project or enterprise. Think "win" in both cases.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Conditions which went against you yesterday could suddenly make a positive reversal today. Obstacles should now begin to fall by the wayside.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You've got a number of extra things going for you today which could help make your hopes a reality. Of these, your resourcefulness is the most outstanding.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Jim: "Not really old. Bill is 60, Edgar 58, Norman 56 and John a mere 38."

Oswald: "It is easy to get hands from too modest. Norman had no hand of any moment so I am going to show a hand he and Edgar defended against me in the trials to determine the American team for the 1987 World championships."

Jim: "Why did you bid seven no-trump?"

Oswald: "I expected a trifle better hand from North. If he had wanted to stop me he could have doubled seven diamonds."

Jim: "I take it Edgar sat West. Where does Norman get into the story? All he did was hold five spades to the jack."

Oswald: "I decided that Edgar held at least 12 red cards. I won the diamond lead, led a club to dummy's ace and played the deuce of spades with every intention of finessing the five spot. Norman foiled my plan by playing his six to hold me to four spades tricks."

Jim: "Nothing sensational, but the sort of small card play that almost anyone would not bother to make."
