Sponsor Disinterest Blurring 'Visions'

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Last October, a series called "Visions" began on public TV. Its intent: To encourage original drama for TV and give new-TV American writers a showcase for their wares. Fourteen shows later, with 10 new ones ready for next fall, "Visions" chief Barbara Schultz already is getting set for season No. 3—but with only enough loot for six fresh productions. The problem: She and producing station KCBT here haven't been able to find corporate underwriters for the series, even though there's no lack of them for made-in-British shows. "No, I don't think so," Ms. Schultz said. "I've got to be very honest, sometimes I feel we're an affiliated station of the BBC. I don't mean to sound sour grapes because they do wonder about it." "But it gets a little tiresome at times." Despite no corporate backing for "Visions," Ms. Schultz said she's at least gratified for its good reviews and the commercial work it helped get for several of its new-to-television dramatists. She ticked them off—Conrad Bromberg, whose "Two Brothers" was the series' first show; David Epstein, author of "Pennyvanna Lynch," and Nell Cox, writer-director of "Lisa's Pioneer Diary."

It proved a good forum for these and other playwrights, she said. "I feel that if it's so important for this project to have a life, to continue." Subbed from the still-raw pain of her husband's death, Mrs. Gilmartin recalled with tears and smiles their life together. A plump, gentle woman with the bluest eyes, Mrs. Gilmartin loves a good joke (such as her husband was forever telling) and is fearless when aroused by such issues as abortion (which she opposed with vigor).

In her well-worn family room, one "memory wall" lined with family photographs and memorabilia, she recalled the long-ago days when she and her husband first met. "We both grew up in New York," she said. "He was a friend of my cousin. The first time he remembered seeing me was when he was playing stick ball in the street and I refused to move out of the way."

OURSELVES

EVENING HERALD, SANFORD, FL. Monday, June 27, 1977-18

NEW YORK (AP)—Divorced after 17 years of marriage and four children, Patricia O'Brien still believes in marriage—a conviction strengthened during the two years she spent interviewing dozens of couples whose marriages were apparently "working."

"I try to avoid the word happy — not because they're not happy," Miss O'Brien said in an interview. "But we have the presumption that happiness is still, quiet, finished. And marriage is something that's continuously happening. Life is a flow."

Sharing Center Is Gilmartin Family Memorial

Mrs. Gilmartin. And just a couple of days before VE Day, Gene Gilmartin was blinded by an accident in the engine room of his ship. "When he lost his sight, people asked if I would still get married. I would tell them I didn't know—but if he was still the same person, I didn't see why not." "When he got home, he was still the same terrific guy, even though he couldn't see," said his wife. "The first thing he did was grab my finger to feel if I was still wearing his ring." But their families were no wowed to the wedding. "Even one priest thought I was doing it out of pity." So the couple decided to elope. But the family relented, and the wedding was on once more. Mrs. Gilmartin continued to work at the telephone company, and when the children started arriving, her husband stayed home to raise them.

"He taught the boys what had to be done around the house. He could do just about everything himself, and what he couldn't do, he'd instruct us how to do it. In 1954, the family moved to Sanford, where Mrs. Gilmartin continued her telephone job at Southern Bell. Her husband had a tremendous memory, she said—"especially for jokes"—and loved people, his church and politics. Throughout his life he was involved with Scouts and Lions Club, as well as All Souls' neighborhood apostolate.

"I was surprised that money was considered so little a problem," she notes. "Children were a large problem. There was a lot of questioning about whether it was a good idea to have children. Marriage does not have to have children to be happy."

"Easy marriage is the problem. We need to make it harder to legalize a marriage rather than to make divorce harder."

Mrs. Gilmartin. But to Mrs. Eugene G. (Florence) Gilmartin Sr., the Sanford Christian Sharing Center is a memorial. It is her reason for getting up in the morning. She regards the center, which opened April 1, as a memorial to her husband ("Gill we called him") who died April 11. Exactly seven years earlier, Mrs. Gilmartin was responsible for the opening of the All Souls Catholic Church Sharing Center in Sanford. It was a venture which her husband had encouraged as a means of rechanneling her energies and helping take her mind off the tragic deaths of two of her eight sons, Paul, 18, in 1966, and Richard, 4, in 1970. That first center was a memorial to her sons. The present Christian Sharing Center is an outgrowth of Mrs. Gilmartin's original Catholic center, and is manned by volunteers from churches of 15 different denominations. The center supplies emergency food and clothing to needy families. It also sells clothes "to those who can afford to pay a little something—this way they keep their dignity and feel they are paying their own way," Mrs. Gilmartin explained. Although she works almost fulltime at the center, Mrs. Gilmartin asserts she is a volunteer, "and always will be."

FLORENCE GILMARTIN WITH 'MEMORY WALL'

"I feel that if it's so important for this project to have a life, to continue." Subbed from the still-raw pain of her husband's death, Mrs. Gilmartin recalled with tears and smiles their life together. A plump, gentle woman with the bluest eyes, Mrs. Gilmartin loves a good joke (such as her husband was forever telling) and is fearless when aroused by such issues as abortion (which she opposed with vigor).

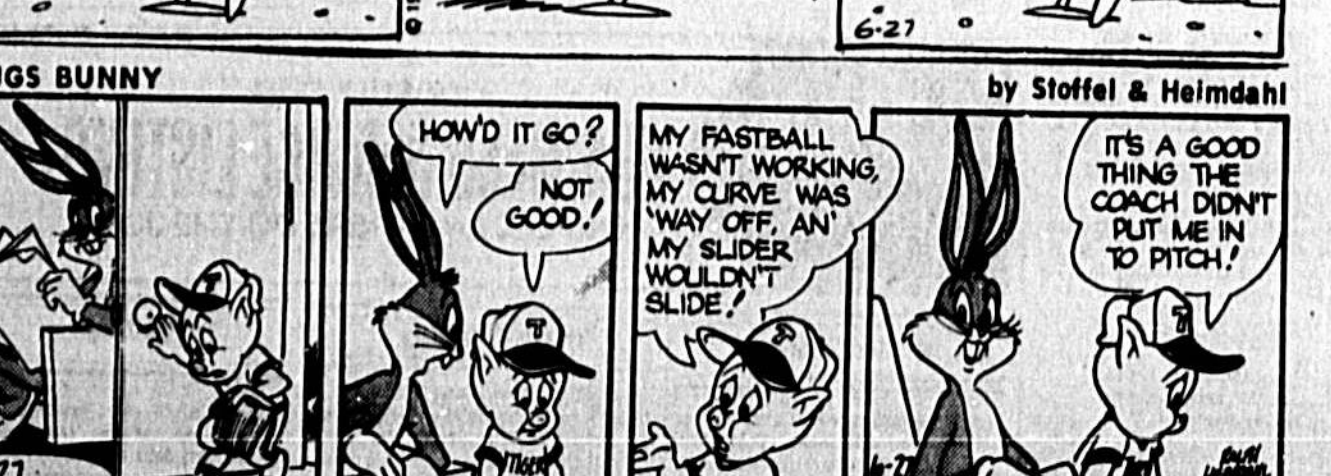

'Frigid-Dears' Or Clumsy Men?

DEAR ABBY: Don't tell me you've been a closet ass for all these years. How can you say flatly, "There is no such thing as a 'frigid dear'—only clumsy men?" I thought that satisfying sex was achieved through the loving cooperation of both partners, and not dependent on the male's aggressiveness or degree of expertness. Or maybe you will agree to another sexist corollary: "There are no inept men, only emasculating women." That way you can offend BOTH sexes.

DEAR ABBY: We have a big, headstrong, disrespectful 17-year-old son who uses abusive language and breaks the furniture in order to get his way. Now he is demanding the $800 he earned and put away in a savings account. My husband wants to give it all to him right now, and then completely disown the boy when he turns 18 (legal age). I want to hold back some of that money to pay for the damage he's done to our house and furniture, plus a deposit for further damage until he leaves. What do you think, Abby?

Court To Nixon: You Can't Have Tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled today that former President Richard M. Nixon is not entitled to control the White House tapes and 42 million pages of documents left behind when he resigned from office.

The justices, voting 7-2, decided that Congress acted within its authority when in 1974 it passed the Presidential Records and Materials Preservation Act, seizing all of the documents and tapes generated by Nixon's presidency.

Laxative May Not Be Needed Dr. Lamb straight on this. I was 47 when I had a hysterectomy and took hormones pills one year after, then no more and I have a problem of facial hair.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a male age 59 and have trouble getting my bowels to move unless I take a laxative. Doesn't that sound to you like I have a lazy or inactive liver. As long as I can keep that bile flowing my bowels move all right.

DEAR READER — Your doctors are probably right — that there is nothing wrong with your liver. More likely you are one of the many victims of the laxative habit.

What happens is that the laxative empties your bowel ahead of time. Then there will not be a movement again until it is filled. The lag leads a person to take a laxative again and soon that person is hooked on laxatives.

Bar Chief On Ads: It Will Erode Quality

A fear that the U.S. Supreme Court ruling permitting limited advertising by attorneys may result in cut-throat competition and erode the quality of legal work was expressed today by Seminole County Bar Association President Jack Bridges.

Bridges said the County Bar Association has not taken an official position on the question, but the American Bar Association had opposed advertising.
