ECKENER GETS BIG OVATION ON GOTHAM VISIT

Salvo Of Cheers And 'Hooshs' And Clouds Of Confetti Greet Airship Commander

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin, and the man who made the whole world famous, received today New York City's official hand-clapping of greeting this afternoon.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin, and the man who made the whole world famous, received today New York City's official hand-clapping of greeting this afternoon.

It was a gray day, but there was nothing of gloom in the uproarious reception in this city conqueror received in the flight in three weeks.

The sky crawler felt of Lower Manhattan gave its usual cheer and hoots with salutes of confetti, "hooshs" and clouds of confetti.

Her tape that belted from roof and lofty windows in a patting storm. But behind the din and the flying cloudlets of paper there was a deep feeling of awe over the air conqueror's achievement in making a nonchalant the world-famous tour which made neighbors of three continents.

In the accompaniment of ringing cheers of millions and a barrage of toy paper wings, this morning's events in the city of the day.

Leaving the Battery at noon, the master matter of the air which has led to the greatest commercial circumstance of the globe, was accompanied the greatest honor that it has in the power of this city to give.

In recognition of his feat in shipping the gigantic craft around the world in a little more than 21 days, a munificent reception had been planned, which started when Dr. Eckener arrived at the Battery.

The army and the navy as well as the citizens of New York participated in the tremendous welcome to the man who made real of the ancient dream of world conquest of the skies.

Greater A. Whalen, New York's commissioner of police, and made his debut of office for this day, in order to become again the city's official greeter.

LIVING BY FAITH—Although the fig tree shall not blossom, neither shall fruit be on the vine; the labour of the sower shall fail, and the fields shall yield no wheat; the flock shall be cut off from the fold, and there shall be no herd in the stable; yet I will rejoice in the Lord, I will joy in the God of my salvation. Habakkuk 3:17, 18.

NEW ENGLAND COAST

Under the swiftness of this restless sea, Proud ships have dropped to rest in midnight graves. Ended their quest; they are abandoned, free; There is the quiet any old ship craves. Stern masters of the tempest and its slaves; They have deserted this unmoored, red sleep. Far from the wind, the fog, the breaking waves, Howling of gales, they will never keep. Their burning spirits in the breaker's sweep.

See, I bang, A kiss to lay upon your head for a crown, I am your slave, O wise and little-king!

Ruth Elder Always

There was a time when Ruth Elder entertained an ambition of becoming notorious, or, to speak less bluntly, famous. She had visions of her name on the lips of the public, her deeds emblazoned across the front pages of newspapers and herself the beneficiary of world-wide publicity. For want of a better way of obtaining the things which she ardently desired, she took off in an airplane bound for Europe and as luck would have it she was forced down nearby a passing steamer, which saved her.

Back to America she came to reap the benefits which such a feat guaranteed, back to a public eager to lionize her, even when it knew that her adventure at best was little less than foolhardy. But nevertheless Ruth Elder was welcomed, was feted and was the recipient of all the things she had longed for, fame, glory, cheering crowds and fat purses. In fact, she was a great success. She got what she went after.

Now, Ruth Elder or rather Mrs. Walter Camp, is disgusted with all her notoriety. She wants to settle down and forget that she ever was Ruth Elder, that she was the aviator who was defeated in an attempt to span the ocean and because of this received fame such as few great men ever attain. Unfortunately she cannot be gratified in this wish. She made a name for herself and whether it is a worthy one or not, it is, just the same, the one which will always follow her. We have a suspicion that if she was proud of her activities she never would be offended at being referred to as Ruth Elder instead of Mrs. Walter Camp.

Fun-making Law-makers

It has become a national pastime to poke fun at state legislatures for the passage of useless and absurd measures. From Maine to Florida, and from New York to California, state lawmakers have demonstrated periodic weakness for writing into the statute books legislation which becomes better known for its ridiculousness than for its wisdom. Whether state senators find it necessary now and then to indulge in such farcical actions to relieve themselves of ennui, or whether they occasionally lapse into a kind of comatose state, during which they are not responsible for what they do, no one has ever been able to explain.

"EXCEEDS" CALIFORNIA

John Steven McGroarty, a staff writer of the Los Angeles Times, who was sent to Florida to investigate the Mediterranean fly situation, wrote this journal a series of very excellent letters, their coming to our notice being most unfortunate and altogether fair. His articles of course tell us nothing new about the Medfly, but they do tell of other discoveries he made in Florida that are most interesting to us as no doubt they were to his California readers. Mr. McGroarty wrote to the Los Angeles Times: "It is not generally known how extensive the fruit and vegetable industry of Florida is. Myself I had the impression that her citrus industry, for instance, was somewhat negligible as compared with the same industry in California. I found, however, that counting young groves and recent plantings of California citrus exceeds that of California. Florida has more citrus trees than California has. In fact, had there been no (Med. fly) pest, Florida's revenues from citrus would have far exceeded those of California. I, who years ago are familiar with

Why Florida Is Not A Poultry State

The Florida Commercial, a "magazine of business," published in Jacksonville, wants to know why it is that the poultry producing industry of Florida is not in a position of development as it is in California. The answer is easy: for poultry producers of Florida will not or at least do not cooperate for either producing or marketing purposes as do the people of California and that is the whole secret. If the editor of The Florida Commercial will come to Bartow or to any other community of Polk county and make even the slightest study of the poultry producing business he will learn that what has been said in the foregoing paragraph is absolutely true. The writer of this comment has had some experience in California

SING LAD, WHILE YOU MAY

Sing, lad, while you may Under the sun; Soon cometh end of day And night begun. Ask not of gay or sad; They weep who must, All aching hearts, led, Are blowing dust. And fragrance of the May, Or sound of laughter, The wind has borne away, Gone not hereafter.

FOR THE MOON

Did they walk your green hills, making them songs Of desire and hope in the old and splendid? Why? Did they about in your streets their wrongs And wars, their gifts and greeds and when ended Under another moon, go home to sleep? Did they bury their prophets in your night and day? Marking them gravely, pledging to keep? Faith? And from the marginal couch of birth Did your small ones stare out on a sky Colored with rain and wind in night and day? Did they grow and laugh, and wonder as I? If their rich planet would in time be gray, Deserted and a-dust, its banners furled? This small white ghost of some once lovely world? By Bert Conkley

"QUICK" RECOVERY

PORTLAND, ME. PRESS-HERALD

It seems probable that the worst that could happen has happened in Florida. From this time onward it will be surprising if the state does not begin to make better progress than it ever has before. The Mediterranean fruit pest is not a permanent affliction. It will pass, as have other visitations of the same sort which have visited other sections of the country at times. For a few years it may be that the fruit fly will affect the citrus fruit industry and perhaps the agricultural industry as a whole. But Nature has a way of remedying such visitations. It seems likely that this will happen in Florida. With its tremendous resources Florida is bound to make a quick recovery. It is beyond all question the winter playground of the United States and as it will always be, from this source alone Florida receives a great many millions of dollars each year. Its income from this industry is continually increasing. More and more people from the colder northern states are going to Florida each year. Many of them are building winter homes here. More will do so as time goes on. This cannot fail to contribute a great deal to Florida's prosperity. The state is also the winter market garden of the north to a great extent. The Mediterranean fly may affect this industry for a short time but it is bound to come back as strong as ever if not stronger. From this source Florida receives millions of dollars each year from the other states and it will continue to do so for many years to come.

The general opinion seems to be that the worst is now over in Florida and from now on conditions will be greatly improved. Last winter was, in many respects, the best

Florida has known. Next winter its business will be greater than ever and it will be on a much better basis. Those who lost considerable money because of the land speculation will continue to be pessimistic about Florida's future but outside of those few unfortunate people the tone is more optimistic than it has been for several years.

Berlin Music Will Feature Marx Film

Irving Berlin's irresistible music is a feature of the all-talking, all-singing, all-dancing, all-laughing moving picture musical comedy, "The Cocoanuts," which will show at the Milane Theatre for three days starting Sunday next. The famous composer wrote the score for the stage presentation of "The Cocoanuts," a Broadway hit of two seasons ago. He wrote a beautiful theme song, "When My Dreams Come True," especially for the moving picture.

Dear Shaw and Mary Eaton, two brilliant Broadway artists, famous for their many appearances in Ziegfeld's Follies, carry the romantic leads in the picture and sing the Berlin songs. The Marx Brothers, inevitable comedy men, keep the laughs rippling throughout the picture.

Berlin made many visits to the studios during the filming of "The Cocoanuts" and, on several occasions, he directed the orchestra.

Our Funniest Men Up To Make Film 'Cocoanuts' Success

"The world's four funniest" and "two of Broadway's greatest" comedians, the Marx Brothers, are making chorus girls in a swirl of dazzling dances and the full Irving Berlin melodies, "The Cocoanuts," the talk-of-the-town first musical comedy film, the most surprising equipment ever offered in Sanford.

"The Cocoanuts" opens at Milane Theatre Sunday for five days, a real Broadway musical comedy will be available to everybody. On the talking screen, "Cocoanuts" is the same that thrilled New York on stage for one long year at a seat. It is all-talking, all-singing, all-dancing, all-laughing, the first successful attempt at the methods of musical comedy to the screen at popular level.

Trip to New York is complete without a Marx Brothers' Last season it was "Anti- Crackers." The season before was "The Cocoanuts." Now "Cocoanuts" is coming here the wise-cracking Marx brothers cracking their famous and Oscar Shaw and Mary Eaton, singing and making the romantic leads.

Chorus work, especially in singing because of the unique angles from which it is so beautifully performed by a host of Gaiety-Hall and Alton later girls. A strong support cast includes Katherine is, Margaret Dumont, Cyril Haast, Raymond and Sylvia.

Trim Chic Cloth Wraps Now in Favor

BY HELEN WORDEN
Copyright Frega Publishing Company (New York World) 1929

A very feminine scarf of soft black pony skin trims the chic street wrap worn by Mrs. Lawrence Snell. Deep cuffs of the same fur introduce an added note of chic. These wide attached fur scarfs are always smart and usually becoming to the majority of women.

The trim with the diagonal line furnishes the theme for the close-fitting fur hat which accompanies the wrap. It is trimmed with contrasting shades of ribbon, again stressing the diagonal movement so popular this season.

For accessories, a two-strand pearl necklace, oval brooch, light suede gloves, pouch kid bag, light silk stockings and three-eyelid eye-liner are selected.

These cloth hat fur-trimmed wraps will be chic for early spring wear, as well as the present moment.

Whereas, an all-wise Providence has again seen fit to cause the sudden messenger of death to visit in our midst and summons another of our dear old Veterans.

Resolved: That in the death of Mr. Robert J. Mickler, the N. D. C. Chapter, U. D. C. has sustained a great loss. They are passing away, these heroes of the South, men but a memory will remain. Mr. Mickler was an honest, sincere man, moved by the highest ideals of life. He was a loyal confederate-loving and holding in sacred remembrance the cause of the "Storm cradled" nation, that failed.

Resolved further: that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the beloved family, and that N. D. C. Chapter, U. D. C. extends to them deepest sympathy.

Resolved further: that these resolutions be inscribed in the minute book of our chapter.

Resolved further: that these resolutions be sent to the Sanford Herald for publication.
