Mrs. Shilling said Buie had indicated in a dictaphone message he would be away for five weeks and would leave Aug. 31. Buie was absent for a period of time during the summer when he reportedly was counselor for a group from Florida at a seminar at Eisenhower College at New York.

brace most of the world begin to sift into a more permanent status, there are three figures that have an especially poignant message. West Germany, it is publicized, has the largest national monetary reserve in the world -$17 billion in gold and currencies. Japan is next with $12.3 billion and the United States of America is third with $12,2 billion. The immediate impact of the figures is an emotional one - those responsible for the onset of World War II, those who were subsequently defeated, now have bigger bankrolls than those who shed their blood in defense of freedom and won. As mature as we try to be, the thought has to rankle all Americans. In reality, the figures do have other meaning. They are an index of American compassion, vision and leadership. For perhaps the first time in modern history, a victorious nation gave its former foes stability and prosperity instead of servitude.

The figures also are an index of American generosity. No country ever has committed so much of its national treasure and engeries to up-lifting the cause of peace and the welfare of crushed or developing nations. While the United States might have a small-
