

Miss Florida Case

Dr. Irrgang Stands By Her DUI Alcohol Content Testimony

DR. SARA IRRGANG

By MICHAEL BEHA
Herald Staff Writer

Dr. Sara Irrgang, assistant Seminole County medical examiner, said today she stands by her testimony that Miss Florida, Deanna Pitman, was not drunk when the car she was driving struck a mailbox the night of July 16.

Dr. Irrgang's testimony at Miss Pitman's trial was disputed last week by five medical examiners around the state who said the evidence did not support her conclusion.

"I really don't know too much about what was said," said Dr. Irrgang, who returned to work today following a week of vacation. "Someone called me and read me part of the story. But that's all I know."

Dr. Irrgang testified that the absorption of alcohol into Miss Pitman's bloodstream took about 3½ hours.

Testimony in the trial by Kenneth Kirchman, Miss Pitman's boyfriend, said she drank about three glasses of wine with dinner. He said they left the restaurant at about 10 p.m. The collision with the mailbox took place at about 11:25.

A blood sample taken from Miss Pitman at the Seminole County Jail put her blood alcohol content above the legally intoxicated level of 10 percent.

Dr. Irrgang used what she called an absorption curve to explain that although Miss Pitman was drunk when the blood sample was taken, she was just reaching the peak level of alcohol absorption in her body when the sample was taken.

Dr. Irrgang said she has spoken with Dr. G. V. Garay, the county medical examiner, one of the five pathologists quoted in last week's story by the Orlando Sentinel.

"I talked to Dr. Garay," she said. "He said the story had a lot of incomplete statements."

Garay confirmed that statement. He said the statements attributed to him were accurate but not complete.

In the story, Garay said he thought Miss Pitman would have been drunk sooner than the 3½ hours Dr. Irrgang testified to. What the story did not say, Garay continued, was that he was not privy to other evidence in the case, such as how much Miss Pitman drank, what she ate at dinner and what alcoholic content the wine had.

Dr. Irrgang said, "You need to know how much she had to drink, what time she drank it, what she ate with it and other factors. On the videotape (made at the jail after Miss Pitman's arrest) her reactions showed she was not drunk."

Dr. Thomas Hegert, chief medical examiner for District 9, which includes Seminole, Orange and Osceola counties, said last week he wants to meet with Garay and Irrgang to discuss her testimony.

Dr. Irrgang said today she has not heard from Hegert.

Hegert was unavailable for comment today.

Health Officer Called 'Rude'

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

A Seminole County sheriff's dispatcher has complained that the county health officer was "uncooperative, rude and downright antagonistic" to her Sunday during a telephone conversation.

The health officer, Dr. Jorge Deju, said today he was upset when dispatcher Victoria Petticrew called him at his home asking him to respond immediately to a potential health hazard at a south Seminole County kennel, which he says was not an emergency situation.

Deputies received a call from Andy Garam, 46, and John Kirkpatrick, 53, both of Maitland, that they smelled dead animals in the area of their homes and that the smell was coming from the Jancy Kennels on State Road 426. Deputies responded to the kennel and reportedly observed several trash bags partially buried in a pit, surrounded by flies and emitting a rancid smell.

After being told by witnesses that this situation has existed previously and that the health department had been notified, deputies notified the kennel owner, Lovell Hughson, about the problem. Hughson agreed to come to the kennel Sunday to cover the pit with dirt, deputies said.

Deputies also asked the dispatcher, Ms. Petticrew, to call the health department to have an investigator of that office view the site.

"It is beyond my comprehension why they (deputies) should ask me to go out there on a Sunday to look at the kennel after the owner already has agreed to remedy the problem," Deju said. "They called it an emergency situation and a potential health hazard. We had a complaint on that about two months ago and I don't see the emergency and I also view it as a possible health nuisance but not a hazard to the community of Seminole County."

A reminder to motorists that they need to be extra careful when school begins, Aug. 30 is provided by Seminole County school bus driver Agnes Freeman at a training session for county school bus drivers today at Seminole Community College.

School Bus Drivers Getting Ready

With a week to go before the start of school in Seminole County, the 275 school buses are ready to roll. Now, school officials are turning their attention to the drivers.

And in-service training session for the 220 drivers is being held through Wednesday at Seminole Community College. "The three-day workshop is designed to refresh the drivers on safety," Seminole County Schools Transportation Supervisor Woodrow Burnsed said.

On Thursday, the drivers will make a dry run of the routes they will drive when school starts Aug. 30.

The training session is required by state law for the drivers to be certified, Burnsed said.

"Safety is something we always have to be concerned about," Burnsed said. "We have to make sure our drivers are thinking about it all the time."

Seminole County bus drivers have been involved in some accidents but none have resulted in any serious injuries for "several years." Statewide, there were 1,227 accidents involving buses in 1980, the latest year for which the state has statistics. Lt. Roger Collar of the Florida Highway Patrol said 392 injuries were reported in those accidents. Burnsed did not have local accident statistics.

(A complete listing of Seminole County school bus routes and schedules will appear in Tuesday's Evening Herald).

Burnsed said the county transports about 20,000 students to school every day. "We put on over two million miles a year."

"We've had a few accidents, all of the fender bender variety," he said. "I think our record is pretty good." Burnsed said inspections of the buses were done beginning in June. "We've had them all inspected for more than a week," he said.

Burnsed said when school begins the buses also will be inspected no less than once a month. A lengthy checklist of mechanical and safety items must be approved for the vehicles to stay in service he said.

Collar, acting director of the FHP, said drivers around the state should exercise extra caution with the return of students to school.

Unfair Rules On Political Signs To Go

The Sanford City Commission will take action at its 7 p.m. meeting today to remove "inequitable" sign requirements on political signs from city law.

Three city commissioners — Mayor Lee P. Moore and David Farr and Eddie Keith — said today they agree with City Manager W. E. "Pete" Knowles that the law isn't fair and should be changed.

And Farr and Keith said although they will vote for change, they abhor the thoughts of even more signs proliferating in the city during the general election campaign season.

The law permits candidates with primary opposition to post signs 30 days before the Sept. 7 primary election. But the law forbids those candidates who do not have primary opposition to post signs until 30 days prior to the Nov. 2 general election.

Knowles notes this gives some candidates 30 days exposure with signs while their opponents may have 90 days.

Cases in point would be the campaigns of U.S. Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Lakeland, and Florida House of Representatives candidate Troy Piland of Winter Springs, also a Democrat.

Neither have primary opposition while there are Republican primary candidates for both seats.

The primary candidates could have their signs posted for 90 days.

Last week the campaigns of both Bettye Smith of Sanford, Democrat, and Art Grindle of Altamonte Springs, Republican, candidates for the District 35 seat in the Florida House clashed over the Sanford sign law.

Grindle, unaware of the law, had a number of signs posted in the city. And Mrs. Smith learned of the violation when she called city hall for information. At that time she notified of the Grindle violation.

Grindle was ordered to take his signs down.

Meanwhile, a worker in Mrs. Smith's campaign posted signs at her campaign headquarters, off U.S. 17-92 and a GOP official complained. Mrs. Smith said today she took down the signs before being ordered to by city hall.

Knowles in a memo to the city commission recommended the law be changed so that candidates in the general election are permitted to post their signs 60 days before the general election.

Commissioner David Farr today said that obviously the city must be fair to all the candidates. He added that he still dislikes the idea of a "zillion signs going up all over the city."

"But it is an election year," Farr said, adding that the city does a "pretty good job of keeping signs out of the right of way as much as possible. I don't have a problem with treating all candidates fairly with the same amount of signs, but I'm sorry that means more signs in the city."

Mayor Moore said the city has to handle the signs in an equitable manner and the current city law doesn't sound fair. "The neatest way to do this would be to adopt an emergency ordinance," he said.

Keith said he favors allowing primary candidates 30 days for their signs and general election candidates 60 days for theirs.

"Personally I hate to see more signs go up, but it's a way of life and we almost must permit it," said Keith.

GOP Hopefuls

Bafalis Says President Reagan Asked Him To Run For Governor

State Sen. Richard Langley, R-Clermont, and Mrs. Langley talk to prospective voters at the "Elephant Stampede," sponsored by the Sanford Republican Women's Club.

Herald Photos by Tom Vincent
Vernon Davids, seen here with his wife, is the "unknown" candidate for the GOP nomination for governor, he told a crowd Saturday.

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

"President Ronald Reagan asked me to run," GOP gubernatorial candidate L. A. "Skip" Bafalis told 250 to 300 persons attending a barbecue rally at the Central Florida Zoo.

U. S. Rep. Bafalis asked the crowd, "Why would I leave the safest congressional district in the state to run for governor?" "In November Ronald Reagan invited my wife Mary and I to the White House to ask me to run for governor. The president doesn't want Gov. Bob Graham in 1984 at the state borders greeting Ted Kennedy," Bafalis said.

Kennedy, the Democratic U.S. Senator from Massachusetts is being talked about as a presidential candidate in 1984.

Bafalis, on his statewide campaign over the weekend, deplaned at the Sanford Airport for his appearance at the ninth pre-election "Elephant Stampede" sponsored by the Sanford Women's Republican Party at the zoo.

Before a strongly partisan audience composed in large part of Republican candidates, their campaign workers, supporters and friends, Bafalis said Graham has provided no leadership in state government. And because of the high crime rate in the state, the people have lost faith in the criminal justice system.

Calling for a hard line in prosecuting criminals, Bafalis said that those committing crimes should be charged with the crimes they commit, rather than lesser offenses. And those in prison should be required to raise their own food, their own swine and their own beef to help the taxpayers who are paying the costs of the prison system.

He praised Fifth District member of Congress, U.S. Rep. Bill

McCullum of Altamonte Springs, for his leadership in Washington, noting McCullum has broken the tradition of freshmen congressman being seen and not heard.

He also lauded State Rep. Bobby Brantley of Longwood, who has no opposition in his re-election bid this year. Bafalis said Brantley serves on his crime task force.

Bafalis' opponent in the Sept. 7 GOP primary for governor, parroted Bafalis' remarks about being asked to run by the president and criticized the national Republican leadership for funneling money into the Bafalis campaign before the primary.

Vernon Davids of Winter Garden said he is the only candidate who can carry the election battle to Graham, noting an underdog has won every gubernatorial election the past three times, pointing specifically to the elections of Republican Claude Kirk in 1966 through the elections of Democrats, Reubin Askew and Graham.

Slamming Graham for allowing Florida's ranking in education nationally to slip to 37th from 26th place, Davids also said the state's 15 congressmen and two U.S. senators did nothing about it.

Two of the three Republican candidates for a U.S. Senate seat — David H. Bludworth and Van B. Poole — appeared. The third candidate, George Snyder, did not attend.

Bludworth, state attorney of Palm Beach County, said he cares about the rights of victims and not criminals. He also said he favors capital punishment and a limitation on frivolous appeals.

Bludworth favors sending back to Cuba the criminal and

IN BRIEF

Congress Makes Small Start To Cut Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI)—By cutting federal spending $30 billion and raising $98.3 billion in new taxes over three years, Congress has made a start—but only a start—toward the deficit reductions called for in the 1983 budget resolution.

This year's difficult and hard-fought decisions on program cuts and new or higher revenues represent only the guidelines for the deficit reductions required by the resolution.

And they account for just over 31 percent of the savings and revenue increases required.

The rest of the savings must be made in the appropriations bills—the bills that actually provide the money for government spending.

But fiscal 1983 begins Oct. 1, and Congress—which has yet to even consider any of the 13 appropriations bills for that does not return from its Labor Day vacation until Sept. 8.

That makes it virtually impossible. Congress will be forced to pass another so-called "continuing resolution," to keep at least some government agencies and programs funded at 1982 levels.

Death Came Too Soon

DAVID CITY, Neb. (UPI)—Roy Gillespie died May 31 at 11:23 p.m. but the Social Security Administration said that was 37 minutes too soon for him to collect his May benefits.

Since his heart attack did not allow Gillespie, 72, to live past midnight, the government wants his widow to repay $358.60—the amount of his May Social Security check.

Kay Gillespie, 72, said she spent the money on her husband's funeral and will not give the government a cent.

"Thirty-seven minutes," she said. "That's incredible."

But Social Security officials say it's the law. "He would have had to live until 12:01 to qualify for May," said Darrell Gray, district manager of the Council Bluffs, Iowa, office.

Gray said a person must be alive every second of a month to qualify for that month's Social Security payment. Officials said the regulation has been in effect since Social Security began and has drawn frequent criticism.

Religious Right Plugging

WASHINGTON (UPI)—With temporary liberal victories on abortion and school prayer in Congress, liberal Sen. Lowell Weicker declared: "I don't think these social issues are going anywhere this year."

Some ardent conservative supporters of legislation on these emotional social issues quietly fear the same thing that Weicker, R-Conn., pronounced aloud, and are hoping President Reagan will do something about it. But they really don't believe he will.

While lobbying for the tax bill he acknowledged disliking, for example, Reagan took a large group of lawmakers to Camp David for lunch and a little hard sell. Some conservative evangelists wish the president would do the same for the anti-abortion, school prayer, tuition tax and anti-busing legislation they thought he was backing heartily.

Chicago Greets Archbishop

CHICAGO (UPI)—A crowd of well-wishers welcomed archbishop-designate Joseph L. Bernardin, who will shepherd the nation's largest archdiocese of 2.4 million Roman Catholics.

Bernardin, traveling with one aide, arrived Sunday from Cincinnati. He will be installed as the new head of the archdiocese Tuesday.

As Bernardin walked through O'Hare International Airport, well-wishers applauded, fathers perched children on their shoulders for a better view and curious onlookers inched through the group to shake the hand of the prelate.

 mental incompetents who have immigrated here. "I'll be a caring U.S. senator," he said adding that he is the only Republican who can win against the two-term Democratic incumbent Lawton Chiles.

Poole, a 12-year veteran of the Florida Legislature, four of those years in the state Senate, criticized the state's rising crime rate. He said a special federal crime-fighting role in Florida is essential. He said he would work for solutions to the nation's economic problems by cutting budget deficits on the spending side and not by raising taxes.

Poole said if he had been in Washington he would not have voted for the tax increase urged by President Reagan and approved by the Congress last week.

Both Republican candidates for the District 34 seat in the Florida House — James Lavigne and Carl Selph — talked.

A Casselberry Councilman, Lavigne in brief remarks said he is best qualified and will beat the Democratic nominee for the seat in November.

Selph said Seminole County needs someone in Tallahassee who can be effective. He added that Lavigne is unable to work with his colleagues on the Casselberry Council.

Selph said judges are needed who "will keep the crooks in jails for the maximum sentences." He said the state needs better roads without increasing taxes.

Art Grindle, who is running for the District 35 House of Representatives seat, told of his childhood in Chicago, and said if elected he would have an impact on Tallahassee. "I believe strongly in the family," he said.

McCollum, a past chairman of the Seminole County Republican Executive Committee, lauded the GOP ticket in Seminole County this year. "We have an opportunity to elect good Republicans from the top to the bottom of the ticket," he said. "We can be proud of our field of candidates."

He said he would be working not only for his own re-election but for other Republicans.

Incumbent State Sens. Richard Langley of Clermont, District 11, and Toni Jennings of Orlando, District 15, made brief remarks.

County Commissioner Sandra Glenn, who has no opposition in her re-election bid, said she would continue to do a good job for the people.

Introduced were Bill Kroll, a School Board member who has won re-election without opposition. Candidates for the District 5 School Board, Allan Keeth, the incumbent, and Jean Bryant were introduced, but did not speak.

Rounding out the speakers were non-partisan judicial candidates: Circuit Judge Kenneth Leffler and his opponent, Irving Gussow, vying for the Group 1 judgeship for Seminole and Brevard counties and Edward Jackson and Jere Lober seeking the group 3 seat.

Gussow said he plans to provide a strong, new and vital judiciary, if elected. Laffer noted he has served on the Circuit Court bench for the past seven years and would appreciate support and votes on Sept. 7.

Lober said he is last on the ballot in his non-partisan contest. "When voting, don't wait before you get to the bottom of the ballot," he said.

Jackson reminded that 31 years ago he played for the Sanford Giants baseball team.

Some Prime At 13 1/2 %

Prices Open Mixed On Wall Street

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices, which scored their biggest gain ever last week, opened mixed today in heavy trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which soared 30.72 points Friday and a record 81.24 overall last week, was off 3.13 points to 866.15 shortly after the market opened.

The closely watched average has gained 92.37 points over the past six sessions, including a record 38.81 last Tuesday.

Advances led declines 544-328 among the 1,210 issues crossing the

New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early Big Board turnover amounted to about 7,100,000 shares. Friday's 95.8 million shares was the second best day ever and part of last week's record 455.1 turnover.

Can the market sustain its rally?

Many of the nation's major banks have lowered their prime rate to 13 1/2 percent from 14 percent as the federal funds rates banks charge one another for overnight loans skidded to 8 1/2 percent.

There was speculation late last week the Federal Reserve would cut its discount rate for the fourth time in little more than a month but bonds gave up some of their gains Friday when the board didn't move.

Wall Street rallied early Friday following congressional passage of the Reagan-backed tax bill designed to keep the budget deficit down.

"What last week's rally did was show us that the window was open and that blue-chip stocks will lead the next bull market," said Ralph Acampora, vice president of New York's Kidder Peabody.

"But I can't see this rally going straight up," the technical analyst said. "I think we could get a punch in the nose somewhere in here. I think there will be some profit taking."

More major banks today joined the move to a 13 1/2 percent prime rate adopted by many in the industry Friday.

Analysts expect the half-point cut to spread industrywide and some expect further reductions in the business loan rate.

Among the banks moving Monday were Morgan Guaranty, First National of Chicago, Marine Midland and Bankers Trust.

Chase Manhattan Bank, the nation's third largest bank, led the move on Friday and was followed by No. 2-ranked Citibank and others.

A 13 1/2 percent prime rate is the lowest in nearly two years.

Banks slashed the prime rate three times last week from the 15 percent mark. Coupled with analysts' predictions of further declines in both long- and short-term rates because of the weak economy, Wall Street engaged in a record-shattering stock market rally.

The Federal Reserve's latest money supply report released late Friday afternoon, showed M1 — the nation's basic supply of money — fell $100 million in the latest statistical week — about in line with analysts' expectations.

Haben Says Comptroller Aides Should Take Lie Tests

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — House Speaker Ralph Haben today challenged two of Comptroller Gerald Lewis' aides to take lie detector tests to determine if they were telling the truth when they denied trying to raise $63,000 from two banking institutions seeking approval for a merger.

Mary Repper, Lewis' former statewide campaign coordinator, charged Friday in a St. Petersburg Times story that she was instructed to seek $25,000 from Gordon W. Campbell, president of the Exchange Bank in Tampa.

She also said she was told Lewis expected

$40,000 from North Carolina National Bank, a bank holding company seeking a merger with Exchange.

Mrs. Repper said the instructions came from Louie Wainwright Jr., Lewis' campaign manager, and Raymond B. "Vic" Vickers, a former Lewis aide.

Wainwright denied the allegations last week. He could not be reached for comment today.

Haben and Lewis meet in the comptroller's race in the Democratic primary Sept. 7.

Haben, making his challenge during a press conference at the Florida Press Center, stood in front of an enlargement of the Times' Friday story. Lined in pink ink was a paragraph that said Mrs. Repper had voluntarily taken a lie detector test and passed.

"Vic Vickers and Louie Wainwright ought to come forward and take a lie detector test. ... then we'll know whether Mrs. Repper or Gerald Lewis is telling the truth," Haben said.

Haben said the test should be administered within the next 72 hours by an impartial examiner selected by the Florida Department of Law Enforcement.

Haben said he resented charges by Lewis had planted the story. Lewis said the story is a "classic, desperate smear tactic" and said Mrs. Repper's account is a "fairy tale."

Mrs. Repper said the requests came when she was summoned to a midnight meeting with Vickers and Wainwright at the Hyatt Hotel in Tampa July 8. She said Lewis was not present, but she said the phone rang twice during the meeting and she believes Lewis was the caller. Haben said the "mystery caller" should also take the lie detector test.

Mrs. Repper has since gone to the state attorney in Hillsborough County.

Sanford Woman Sentenced In Embezzling Charge

By TENI YARBOROUGH

A 22-year-old Sanford woman has begun serving 4 years probation and has been ordered to pay $5,000 in fines and repay $2,066 to a Sanford savings and loan company she embezzled from while working as a teller there.

Jan Kilgore, a former teller employed at the First Federal Savings & Loan Association of Seminole, 312 W. First St., was sentenced Friday in U.S. District Court in Orlando by U.S. District Judge Elizabeth Kovachevich.

Ms. Kilgore, who pleaded guilty to a charge of misapplication of funds before Kovachevich on July 12, admitted stealing 21 money orders from the savings and loan institution between October 1980 and January 1981, totalling $2,066.

LEBANON ELECTS CHRISTIAN LEADER

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Members of Lebanon's Parliament today chose Israeli-backed Christian militia leader Beshir Gemayel to be the nation's youngest president, despite efforts by leftists to block his election.

Gemayel, 34, leader of the right-wing Christian militia during Lebanon's bloody 1975-76 civil war, won a second-round ballot by a comfortable 10-vote margin.

On the eve of the election, Moslem leaders appealed to their followers not to vote for Gemayel. Leftist leader Walid Junblatt said a Gemayel presidency would be a "Gemayel dictatorship."

Parliament obtained the necessary quorum of 62 votes two hours after it assembled for today's election to choose a successor to outgoing President Elias Sarkis.

Gemayel, who is not a member of Parliament and therefore not entitled to vote, failed by four votes to carry a first-round ballot requiring a two-thirds majority.

But he won 57 votes in the second ballot immediately afterwards, 10 more than required for a simple majority.

As the decisive 47th vote was announced, deputies erupted in applause. Right-wing Phalange radio interrupted its programs to ask supporters not to fire weapons into the air.

Announcing Gemayel's victory, Speaker Kamal Assad said, "The speaker of Parliament announces the election of Sheikh Beshir Gemayel as president of Lebanon in accordance with article 49 of the Lebanese constitution."

A first attempt to elect a successor to Sarkis collapsed five days ago when Assad postponed the session for security reasons.

Today's ballot was held not in the Lebanese Parliament building on the war-scarred demarcation line between west and east Beirut, but in a military school in the town of Fayadyeh.

Gemayel, the only declared candidate, lost further favor with Moslems in recent months as his "Lebanese forces" militia collaborated openly with Israeli forces.

However, prosecutors said Mark died as a result of injuries incurred in a fight prior to the accident and not from the accident itself.

Prosecutors are charging that the elder Mark was pistol-whipped by his son and died as a result of a blood clot in his brain.

Police said the two men apparently had been arguing, began fighting and that the elder Mark was injured in the fight. Police said the elder Mark got into his vehicle and left his home and subsequently was involved in a traffic accident. Witnesses at the scene of the accident told police Mark told them he had been fighting with his son just before he lost consciousness. Mark never regained consciousness and died June 4, police said.

The younger Mark told police his father pulled a gun on him and that he hit him.

A week following his father's death, Mark was sent by Circuit Judge Dominick Salfi to the North Florida Evaluation and Treatment Center in Gainesville where physicians determined the 33-year-old is competent to stand trial on the charges.

Paris' Jewish Scapegoats

The Jews of the Marais believed they were finished with anti-Semitism. The quiet quarter of Paris had once known their agony: Here French Jews were rounded up by the Vichy government and sent to the Nazi extermination camps.

But when the war ended, survivors of the Holocaust came back, joined by Jews from North Africa. The Marais rebuilt itself, and the Jewish community baked matzo and observed the religious holy days and celebrated weddings without fear.

But the peace of the Marais was shattered last Monday by machine-guns and hand grenades.

Four terrorists blasted their way into a Jewish restaurant, firing indiscriminately at diners and waiters. Six people were killed, including an Arab kitchen worker.

Twenty-one people were left bleeding on the cobblestone streets. It was the fifth anti-Jewish attack in Paris in 10 days.

Direct Action, the craven terrorist group which claimed responsibility for the Marais attack, said it was retaliating for the Israeli invasion of Lebanon.

The victims of the attack were not Israelis, nor did they have anything to do with invading Lebanon. They were as innocent as the Lebanese caught in the deadly crossfire between Israel and the PLO.

The logic of slaughter was the logic of Hitler, who insanely blamed the Jews for the defeat of Germany in World War I and burned them in the ovens of Auschwitz.

Israel rose out of the ashes of the Holocaust, settled by Jews who vowed never again to live as a powerless minority in a nation not their own.

The importance of a Jewish homeland is underlined by attacks on Jews in the Diaspora such as happened in the Marais. Israel must forever endure as a haven for worldwide victims of anti-Semitism, a sovereign nation for the Jewish people who return to Zion.

But as a sovereign nation, Israel joins the community of nations, a community where survival is based not only on moral justification, but on strength and ability to live with neighbors.

Criticism of Israel's invasion of Lebanon is not anti-Semitism. Uncritical support of a friend can be a dangerous form of self-indulgence, which harms the one it seeks to help by fostering illusions until too late.

We intend to stand by Israel's survival in the tempestuous Middle East, but not stand silent when we feel our ally has gone too far, as Israel has in bombarding Beirut.

The killing of innocent Jews in Paris is not a threat against Israeli military policy. It is a recrudescence of anti-Semitism, a virus which lies dormant until vicious Jew-haters see an opportunity to strike.

Israel has its own threats and problems, its errors and history to overcome. It cannot alone protect Jews from anti-Semitism. Outraged people of all lands must decry the slayings in Paris and give anti-Semites no chance to raise their ugly heads at this time of international crisis.

BERRY'S WORLD

"WOW! If I had known THIS back when I talked to Atlantic Monthly..."

In 1964 the Florida Legislature decided to separate the selection by the voters of the state's governor and cabinet from presidential elections by scheduling them in off-presidential election years.

One theory at the time was that the state races did not get enough attention in presidential election years. Of secondary importance was the theory of that by separating the elections national politics would have no effect on state politics.

The actual result was that fewer people thereafter have voted in these state contests in the off-presidential election years.

At least that is what statistics compiled by Florida's Secretary of State George Firestone indicate.

In 1960, a presidential election year, 58.2 percent of the registered voters cast ballots in the governor's race in the first primary, 52.75 percent in the second primary and 70.4 percent in the general election.

In 1964, 56.9 percent in the governor's race in the first primary; 50 percent in the second primary and 66.5 percent in the general election.

The elections time for the governor and the Cabinet changed in 1966 and the turnout dropped in all three elections that year. Turnout in the first primary was 49.5 percent, second primary 46.5 percent and general election 60.5 percent.

In the 1970 elections, the turnout at the primaries declined even further. Some 40 percent voted in the first primary, 40.3 percent in the second primary and 61.9 percent in the general election.

By 1974, only 23.7 percent of the voters turned out in the first primary and there was no second primary for governor. Some 50.5 percent turned out in the general election.

In 1978, 34.3 percent turned out in the first primary, 21.8 percent in the second primary and 60 percent in the general election.

During each of the election years noted, the governor's race drew the highest voter participation of any state office. Votes cast dropped markedly for other seats, including Congress, the Cabinet and the Legislature.

As far as national politics having an effect on gubernatorial elections in Florida, the first Republican since reconstruction was elected governor in 1966. Perhaps that foretold the election of a Republican president two years later when Richard Nixon won his first term.

A breakfast honoring U.S. Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Lakeland, will be held at 8 a.m. Wednesday at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce building on First Street at Sanford Avenue.

Chiles is running for a third term in the Senate.

ROBERT WAGMAN Will Maine Ban Nuclear Power Plant?

PORTLAND, Maine (NEA) — Maine will vote again this November on the fate of its only nuclear power plant.

The heated battle has already begun between proponents and opponents of a referendum that would phase out the Maine Yankee plant over a five-year period ending in 1987.

Maine Yankee has been in operation for 10 years. About 30 percent of the electricity sold in the state is generated by the plant, which is located at Bailey's Point near Wiscasset.

The force behind the measure is the Maine Nuclear Referendum Committee, which gathered more than 35,000 signatures to place the issue on the ballot.

This is not the first time that the state's voters have been asked to kill Maine Yankee.

In 1980, a measure calling for an immediate shutdown of the plant gained an impressive 42 percent of the vote. Its defeat was credited to the massive advertising campaign funded by the utility companies and corporations that favor cheap power.

The key issue raised by foes of the 1980 referendum was that an immediate shutdown would leave the state short of power. The proponents of this year's referendum hope to have silenced that objection with their five-year phase-out.

The utility companies and the nuclear industry are taking the new initiative very seriously.

The 11 power companies that own shares of the plant have banded together under the banner of the Committee to Save Maine Yankee. They are already saturating the state's media with their message.

"Polls show the issue is very close," says Peter Thompson, a spokesman for Central Maine Power Co., which owns the largest share of the plant.

Another source reveals that a recent "limited" poll commissioned by the Committee to Save Maine Yankee showed the two sides running "almost dead even."

The initial advertising suggests that economic issues will be at the heart of this year's campaign on behalf of the plant.

One group of advertisements features businessmen saying that their companies will not be able to expand if Maine Yankee is closed.

Other ads cite predictions that electricity costs might increase as much as 35 percent if more expensive sources of power generation must be used to replace nuclear.

Businessmen in these ads warn that the higher costs might force them to close their plants.

Spokesmen for the Referendum Committee dispute these cost estimates and accuse the power companies of using scare tactics.

Ed Schlick, a spokesman for the Referendum Committee, says that state officials have estimated the cost increase at between 15 percent and 25 percent, depending upon the amount of replacement power that will be oil-fired and the cost of oil at the time. The Referendum Committee thinks that even this estimate is high.

PLO Death May Spawn Terrorist Groups

WASHINGTON—As the sands run out on the Palestine Liberation Organization in Lebanon, intelligence analysts predict it will disintegrate into a dozen underground groups that will spread terror and revolution throughout the Western World.

In fact, the PLO has never been anything more than a collection of revolutionary bands and aggressive egos held together by a web of agreements and alliances. Its charismatic chairman, Yasser Arafat, has limited control over its disparate parts.

Now that its 12 fighting factions have been defeated on the battlefields of Lebanon, the survivors are expected to go underground. They will work closely, the analysts believe, with revolutionary movements around the world.

Surely, they will take out their vengeance on Americans. U.S. government and corporate officials may become the victims of shootings and kidnappings, the analysts fear. The PLO may even try to set up a terrorist base in the United States.

The PLO turned Lebanon, as I have reported in the past, into a haven for terrorists. During a recent tour of the Lebanese front, I spoke with PLO soldiers

Art And Immigration

Ten years ago, the French writer Jean Raspail published a remarkable novel called "The Camp of the Saints."

I consider it one of the major works of our time, but there may be more than literary significance to the fact that it has just been reissued as a paperback by The Institute for Western Values in Arlington, Va. I have never heard of this organization, but it deserves our thanks for making this great novel more widely available.

When Charles Scribner published the hard cover edition, translated by Norman Shapiro, in 1975, the reviewer in the New York Times Sunday Book Review did no one a favor in describing the book as racist. I certainly would not characterize it that way. Indeed, I find that "The Camp of the Saints" has central themes in common with the hit movie of this summer, "Blade Runner," but more on that point in a moment.

Raspail's novel has a plot of large and dramatic outline, exciting in itself and also as a giant metaphor which asks Western civilization to define itself and examine its core identity.

The setting is the near future, on the Riviera. The central figure in the story is an old professor named Calgues, who likes Mozart, table linen and the other amenities of civilization. His family has lived in the house overlooking the Mediterranean since the 17th century.

But disaster is rapidly overtaking this peaceful scene. A horde of poverty-ravaged residents of Calcutta has seized a rickety flotilla of rusting and rotting vessels, thousands upon thousands of the wretches jammed into them — dying, defecating, copulating. This grotesque flotilla makes its way down the eastern coast of Africa, its destination not immediately apparent. When it seems to be trying to land in South Africa, the answer is a resounding no, backed up by a destroyer.

But then the flotilla of the wretched rounds the Cape and heads northward up the west coast of Africa, and it soon becomes clear that it is headed for Europe — indeed, for the French Riviera.

As this becomes clear it naturally gives rise to heated French discussion over what to do about the situation. The amorphous and alien human mass — and the millions upon millions observing their progress, and drawing conclusions depending upon their reception — will inundate France, overwhelming its Western identity and no doubt destroying its society. Some French leaders therefore advocate blocking it, even sinking the flotilla outright.

But others, including some wonderfully portrayed liberal media people and major columnists, insist that France must submit to what amounts to an invasion, an anti-cultural tidal wave of humanity. The point there is that to those who would submit, France and its culture are not worth saving. The Catholic Church by that time is entirely liberalized, and the pope has sold all of the Vatican's art and given the money to the Third World, where it had no visible effect.

In the end, the horde from India lands on the French beaches and we understand that the country is finished, inundated without firing a shot.

The movie "Blade Runner" also depicts a civilization ruined by Third World inundation. The scene is Los Angeles in the year 2019. The streets are shabby, and the earlier Anglo-American population has been submerged.

Automobiles have given way to bikes, and Los Angeles looks like a nightmare version of Tokyo. The incessant blare of music in the streets is sometimes Arab, sometimes Japanese. The people seem to be a mixture of Orientals and Hispanics, and they speak "streetspeak," a mixture of Spanish, Japanese, and German. A gigantic neon Japanese woman's head asks people to drink Coca-Cola in Japanese.

Clearly the preoccupation of Jean Raspail and Ridley Scott, who directed "Blade Runner," is with cultural inundation and devastation, and just as clearly it is rooted in manifest realities.

preparations for extensive military cooperation between the PLO and East Germany.

For example, one East German official is quoted as telling the Palestinian visitors that his government was studying "an agreement—to accept trainees from the liberation organization and attach them to our military schools."

He outlined the training that would be offered to the PLO and then asked: "The Marxist-Leninist doctrine constitutes the basis for training. Do you have any objections to that?" According to the transcript, the PLO man replied: "None at all."

The PLO delegates asked that their guerrillas be instructed "within the same training framework" as the East German army. Their hosts countered: "They will be training with German officers, but as an independent group, as their proficiency in the German language is limited."

A question was raised over the length of training that would be given to the PLO recruits. The East Germans' three-year hitch was too long for the PLO's taste, so the

DON GRAFF Human Rights Matter

I remember most vividly Patricia Cuellar's intense commitment.

She was a small woman in her mid-20s, dark hair parted in the middle, no makeup, a pale-copper complexion and six or seven months pregnant. Hardly a heroic figure. But my notes compare her to "Liberty at the barricades," recalling the heroic art of the French Revolution and suggesting something of the impression she made in discussing her work.

Patricia Cuellar was at that time secretary of the legal aid office of the Roman Catholic Archbishop of San Salvador. A few weeks earlier, police had raided the office, seizing case records of thousands of Salvadorans who had sought the church's assistance in the personal calamities of the spreading civil war. They had also carted off correspondence with recently assassinated Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero.

Given the political climate in El Salvador that summer of 1980, such an experience might have persuaded a less intensely committed individual to find other work. It did not deter Patricia Cuellar.

The legal aid office was located in San Salvador's Jesuit high school, three cramped rooms off a colonnaded passageway enclosing a sunny courtyard. At one open end, the passage overlooked a soccer field where a game was in progress. A sound system blared American pop music—"I Need You," by the soft-rock group America.

From the other end, beyond a modernist chapel, the view was strikingly different. The contrast said a lot about El Salvador. Tin-roofed shacks straggled along rutted dirt paths, invisible from the busy boulevard just beyond a thick screen of subtropical foliage.

It was mid-morning and a few adults were about, but mostly children and dogs.

The visitor doesn't see much of that El Salvador. What impresses are the broad boulevards and the pastel villas of the capital's comfortable neighborhoods that suggest a Mediterranean city.

But something ugly was happening to the villas. Cement-block walls topped off with barbed wire were rising around them, turning each into a miniature fortress. Even in the best of neighborhoods, it was not advisable to be out after dark. The nights were punctuated with gunfire. People disappeared. Bodies were found in the morning.

There have been occasional familiar names in the dispatches from El Salvador the past two years. Ian Mates, a South African photographer working for United Press International, fatally wounded in a landmine explosion. Manuel Franco of the National Democratic Union, one of six opposition political leaders abducted by army and national guard troops from a press conference at the Jesuit high school. The mutilated bodies were found in various parts of the city the following day.

And now Patricia Cuellar. She was reported arrested by uniformed soldiers the afternoon of July 28.

Germans agreed to "speed up training" for the guerrillas.

The Palestinians also gave their hosts a shopping list of the military equipment they wanted to buy. The list included: A missile-carrying light patrol boat; armor-piercing ammunition (22,500 shells); 37-mm, 57-mm and 130mm artillery pieces; ammunition for 100-mm and 122-mm guns.

The PLO trip ended, according to the captured transcript, with a speech by an East German official extolling "the character and the manners of the delegation and its military proficiency, both professionally and politically."

Intelligence sources note that East Germany is only one of a number of Soviet-bloc countries that have played host to the PLO. The Soviet Union itself has trained PLO guerrillas and sent the Palestinians huge amounts of armaments on a regular basis.

My sources say PLO recruits have been trained in the use of Warsaw Pact military hardware, and intelligence analysts suspect the goal was for the PLO to attain the capabilities of a conventional army, instead of just a guerrilla force.

IN BRIEF St. Pete Suburb Hopes For Riches From Sheik

SOUTH PASADENA (UPI) — This tiny suburb of St. Petersburg is planning another big welcome for billionaire Saudi Arabian sheik Muhammad Al-Fassi and this time officials hope he comes to see it.

Similar doings were planned six weeks ago, but the frequently unpredictable sheik never showed.

Al-Fassi's latest plans called for a visit today and city officials hope the reputed billionaire will consider leaving a little donation to remember him by.

Al-Fassi, who has residences on swank Star Island on Miami Beach, donated money to two U.S. cities last week. He gave $15,000 Saturday to the northern Chicago suburb of Evanston, Ill., and donated $30,000 Friday to Virginia Beach, Va.

Now, South Pasadena would like to join the group.

In honor of Al-Fassi's visit, city fathers have borrowed a Rolls-Royce and several Cadillac limousines to meet the sheik's private jet at Tampa International Airport and whisk him over to the South Pasadena city hall for some plaque-bestowing.

Attorney Is Sentenced

United Press International

An Orlando attorney has been sentenced in U.S. District Court in Orlando on one count of failure to file a federal income tax return.

Francis W. Blankner was sentenced to five years probation and fined $10,000 Friday for failing to file his 1978 income tax return. U.S. District Court Judge Elizabeth Kovachevich imposed the sentence after Blankner had pled guilty to the charge.

Blankner, 58, of 2223 Leu Road, had been charged last May with failure to file his tax returns for 1977-79. According to the indictment, Blankner had nearly $193,000 in gross income during this three year period.

In addition to the criminal sentence imposed, persons convicted of criminal tax offenses are required to pay the tax determined to be due, along with all interest and civil penalties that may be assessed. A civil fraud penalty of up to 50 percent of the tax amount could be assessed under the law.

Machine Gun For Police

HALEAH (UPI) — Two police officers hope to get a license to manufacture machine guns for police departments and foreign governments, but some officials are afraid they might wind up in the hands of criminals.

A. Edward Preston and Thomas P. Mexas Jr., of the Hialeah police force are looking for a warehouse in suburban Hialeah to assemble the firearms, Nevins, 29, said.

"It's a necessary evil. Somebody has to do it," he said. "Shouldn't the United States be the strongest country on earth? Shouldn't our allies be properly prepared to defend their democracy and ours?"

Citizens in most states, including Florida, legally may own submachine guns. The two officers are working closely with the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms to set up the business legitimately, Preston said.

IN BRIEF

Italy Organizes 42nd Government Since War

ROME (UPI) — Prime Minister Giovanni Spadolini formed Italy's 42nd postwar government today, a carbon-copy of his five-party coalition that lasted 13 months before collapsing two weeks ago.

Spadolini presented the new government to President Sandro Pertini, who had rushed back to Rome from his vacation in the northern Italian mountains to swear in his cabinet ministers.

The prime minister now must present the new government to parliament for the traditional vote of confidence, but under Italy's system of coalition agreements the outcome of the vote was assured.

The new government is almost identical to the one led by Spadolini that fell Aug. 7.

Ark-Hunter Irwin Better

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI) — Former U.S. astronaut James Irwin headed for a speedy recovery today from a fall off a cliff on Mount Ararat that abruptly ended his hunt for the remains of Noah's Ark, hospital officials said.

Lt. Orhan Baser, of the Turkish army escort accompanying the 12-member U.S. team, said Sunday in a telephone interview that two American scouts reached the mountain's 16,946-foot peak Thursday but saw no trace of the biblical ark.

The official said the 11 remaining U.S. climbers on Irwin's team drove by bus Sunday to Erzurum and were considering hiring a plane to scout the mountain by air for clues to the whereabouts of the ark.

Death Of Ruler Mourned

MBABANE, Swaziland (UPI) — The nation today mourned King Sobhuza II — the 83-year-old "Lion of Swaziland" who wore leopard skins and walked barefoot among his people, reigning longer than any monarch since Queen Victoria.

Sobhuza, head of one of Africa's last ruling dynasties and monarch for 61 years, will be buried in a cave in the mountains as tradition decrees, his son, Prime Minister and Prince Mabandla Dlamini, told the nation Sunday.

Fires Panic Tourists

DRAGUIGNAN, France (UPI) — Panicked tourists clogged highways in an attempt to escape forest fires that killed at least one person and injured 19 on the fashionable Cote d'Azur.

The blazes, fanned by the violent wind, destroyed scores of homes, trailers and tents and ravaged thousands of acres of forest, officials said Sunday.

Firemen complained they had trouble reaching burning areas along the Mediterranean coast because the roads were filled with vacationers trying to escape the flames.

"The tourists are very frightened," said Sainte Mazime fireman Rene Bergon.

Israelis Express Surprise At Comments

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israeli officials took issue today with Secretary of Defense Casper Weinberger's criticisms of Israel for temporarily halting the evacuation of Palestine Liberation Organization forces from Beirut.

A senior official said there had been a "very clear violation" of the "detailed plan" Israel agreed to in negotiations with U.S. envoy Philip Habib.

Justifying the Israeli action Sunday, the official cited the U.S. blockade of Cuba during the 1962 missile crisis.

Weinberger said in a television interview Israel had "no basic right" to hold up the departure of the ship carrying PLO members and a number of jeeps, which Israel objected to as not covered by the agreement.

"We were very surprised at Weinberger's comments," the official said. "Specific violations were very clear and obviously the comments were not justified."

He pointed to three alleged violations: the loading of jeeps on the departing vessel, the carrying of rocket-propelled grenades and launchers and the attempt to disguise women and children as departing guerrillas.

He also said Israel was not aware of any registration of the departing fighters. If the guerrillas are not being checked by French and Lebanese troops, Israel would consider it another violation, he said.

The official said Israel has no objections to the departure of family members along with the guerrillas so long as there was no attempt to count them as departing fighters.

The official said Habib may have misjudged the situation if her game the go-ahead for the loading of the jeeps, as reported by Israel television.

"We have tremendous respect for Philip Habib," the official said. "Perhaps he thought it most important to get the terrorists out of Beirut, no matter if they brought jeeps with them or not."

When Israel raised the issue, Habib agreed a violation had taken place, the official said, adding that the delay in the ship's departure was due to lengthy negotiations on how to proceed.

Israeli newspapers printed the text of a letter from U.S. Ambassador Samuel Lewis assuring Prime Minister Menachem Begin the jeeps would be removed from the ship before the guerrillas arrive at their destination of Tunisia.

Begin said Sunday that Israel soon will propose a new plan for an overall Middle East peace, but he ruled out any initiative that would push the nation into concessions beyond those contained in the Camp David accords.

The government announced that once the PLO's departure from Lebanon is complete, the Cabinet would conduct a review of the war "focusing on its causes, developments and security and political results."

More PLO Groups Leave

United Press International

The third group of Palestinian guerrillas packed their bags to leave Lebanon today after tense negotiations conducted by U.S. officials ended a seven-hour Israeli blockade of a ship filled with a group of fighters and their jeeps.

On Sunday, 982 Palestine Liberation Organization members — most from the Al Fatah organization of Chairman Yasser Arafat — sailed for Tunisia on board the Cyprus-registered Sol Phyrne ferry.

But their departure was held up for nearly seven hours by what one U.S. source termed a "misunderstanding" with Israel.

The Israelis charged Sunday the guerrillas violated the withdrawal agreement by bringing up to 21 jeeps and rocket-propelled grenade launchers on board.

But pressure from U.S. envoy Philip Habib and his aides kept the withdrawal plan on time and by late Sunday, 1,379 of the estimated 7,000 to 9,000 guerrillas to be evacuated had left west Beirut.

Several thousand more Syrian and Syrian-backed Palestine Liberation Army troops were also scheduled to leave west Beirut by the time the withdrawal ends in less than two weeks.

Israel Television Sunday said Israel had accused Habib of giving the PLO permission to take the vehicles. But in Washington, Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger blamed Israeli Defense Minister Ariel Sharon for the delay.

Israeli gunboats maintained a day-long blockade of Beirut harbor before U.S. diplomats and Israeli leaders worked out an agreement.

It eventually was agreed that the PLO vehicles will be unloaded before the vessel reached Tunisia and future departing guerrillas would bring neither jeeps nor their hand-carried grenade launchers.

The blockade came as Prime Minister Menachem Begin told the Israeli Cabinet his government will launch a new initiative aimed at achieving a comprehensive Middle East peace — but based only on the 1978 Camp David peace accords.

There also were reports Israel and Syria could be heading for a new round of fighting, as Lebanese sources said both countries were moving hundreds of tanks into the Bekaa Valley for a possible battle for eastern Lebanon.

Child Born After Wreck

ORLANDO (UPI) — A 2-year-old Orlando girl died in a two-car crash Sunday after she was thrown into the dashboard and windshield of her mother's car, police said.

Authorities said the child's pregnant mother, 22-year-old Brenda Smith, went into labor several hours after the accident and gave birth to a 7-pound, 3½-ounce boy.

The victim of the crash, Erica Smith would have been 3 years old next month. The Florida Highway Patrol said the youngster was not strapped into the seat.

Mrs. Smith gave birth shortly after 11 p.m. Sunday. Her doctor said the accident triggered the labor, which was only a week early.

The physician said the woman may have a dislocated or broken hip, but the full extent of her injuries were not immediately known.

The Highway Patrol said the accident occurred when a car driven by Patsy Williams, 35, of Oviedo failed to stop for a stop sign and struck Mrs. Smith's car.

Ms. Williams was treated for minor injuries and released from a city hospital. Her daughter, Kimberly Bettis, 4, was admitted for observation and was listed in satisfactory condition.

Many Must Receive Shots

ATLANTA (UPI) — Children without vaccinations against the seven leading childhood diseases will find it more difficult to enter school this fall because of tougher immunization laws in all 50 states.

For the first time in many states, every child registering for school, not just those entering kindergarten or first grade, will have to show proof of vaccination against the major childhood diseases, said Dr. Alan Hinman, director of the immunization division of the national Centers for Disease Control.

In most cases, students without such proof will not be allowed to attend classes until the immunization requirements have been met, he said.

"All 50 states now have laws requiring some immunizations for admission to school," Hinman said.

Some 25 states recently passed or beefed up their school immunization laws, extending requirements for vaccinations against a wide range of diseases.

Most states require vaccinations for polio, measles, rubella (German measles), diphtheria, tetanus and pertussis (whooping cough). Students in about 30 states must be vaccinated against mumps.

States that still require immunization or proof of past vaccination only for kindergarten and the first grade are New Hampshire, West Virginia, Virginia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Wyoming, Utah and Hawaii, Hinman said.

He said Pennsylvania lawmakers have passed the all-inclusive immunization law but it does not take effect until next year. Idaho requires proof of vaccination for all elementary school students.

Citing one childhood disease as an example, Hinman said, "There is a very clear correlation between immunization and measles. There is a very clear correlation between enforcement of immunization requirements and the incidence of measles."

Hinman credits large measles epidemics in Alaska and Los Angeles in 1977 with building widespread support for tougher immunization laws.

"What these experiences demonstrated is that parents want their children protected. And they support this approach," he said.

The beefed-up school immunization requirements, according to Hinman, have been a major contributor to what he calls the "remarkable progress" made in the last five years in reducing the incidence of childhood diseases.

Casselberry Eyes Restaurant Plans

Site plans for two new restaurants will come before the Casselberry City Council in a work session following tonight's council meeting.

Plans call for a Benning's Tavern to be built on a two-acre site north of the Tropic Bank near Butler Plaza on State Road 436.

The proposed Ponderosa Steak House is scheduled to be built on a 1-acre site on State Road 436 at Winter Woods Boulevard.

Also on the work session agenda is a proposed ordinance which would control commercial and domestic burning. The city has received complaints that developers clearing property were setting fire to trees and allowing them to burn all night, causing smoke in nearby residential areas. The ordinance would expand current regulations to include this type of burning.

Included on the regular agenda also will be the adoption of resolutions calling for the paving of the unpaved portion of Park Avenue (off Winter Park Drive); a request to include the city's pumper on the maintenance agreement with Seminole County (it is the only fire truck not included in the present agreement); and a request for the Casselberry Senior Citizen Multipurpose Center manager of the vice chairman of the board of directors to attend the Florida Council On Aging Fall Conference and Workshop to be held at the Holiday Inn in Orlando and a transfer of funds to cover the expenses.

$250,000 Condo Planned Here

Construction is to begin Sept. 15 on a unique type of condominium in Sanford.

The Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission Thursday night approved a site plan for a two-story condominium office building.

Six covered garages will be on the first floor and three professional offices will be on the second floor.

Wendell Agee, builder, said construction will begin on the $250,000 building Sept. 15 and will be completed Dec. 1.

The building site is at 1120 W. First St. near the new Central Florida Regional Hospital.

He said each of the office suites will have from 2,200 to 2,300 square feet and two exclusive garages.

"This is a unique concept for Sanford," Agee said. "Technically the office suites are already sold," he said, noting he has potential buyers for all the units.

He said the buyers will not be doctors.

Cox Confident Braves Will Bounce Back, Win West

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bobby Cox, fired by them last fall, was talking about the Atlanta Braves' terrible slide like so many other people are. Somewhere in the middle of his remarks he came up with what has to be a minority opinion.

"I think they're capable of bouncing back and winning," offered the best manager the Toronto Blue Jays have ever had, or at least the one who has given them some respectability even though they're still trying to get out of the basement in the American League East.

With the Los Angeles Dodgers leading the National League West now after having trailed the then front-running Braves by 10½ games only a few weeks ago, nobody really is giving Joe Torre's bunch much chance of ever getting the lead back, but Cox doesn't see why not.

"There are 60 games left, aren't there?" Cox said. "Do you know how many different things can happen in a stretch like that? The Braves have a good ball club. I know because I was over there four years. They're completely capable of turning it around and winning it all. I'm rooting for them."

Atlanta fans deserve a pennant winner, Cox said.

"Those people have suffered so much with clubs that just weren't good," he said. "The Braves' plan was to keep bringing up kids and let them develop and that's what happened."

"Ted Turner spent a lot of money on the farm system. Now it's beginning to pay off. Here's my view of the National League West: You can see some of the power teams like Cincinnati and

Milton Richman

UPI Sports Editor

Houston starting to crumble. Age has something to do with that and so has free agency. Then you'll always get some established players who won't play well in any given year.

"When the Braves started off the year winning their first 13 in a row, I honestly was happy for them," Cox continued. "Pennants sometimes are won by doing things like that. Then when they hit that slump and couldn't get out of it no matter what Joe Torre tried, I was suffering along with him."

Cox is tremendously enthusiastic about his Blue Jays even though they dropped a 3-1 decision to the Yankees Sunday and have lost two out of three to them. What he's so enthusiastic about is the unmistakable signs they're showing of finally coming together as a unit for the first time in their history after six consecutive last-place finishes, including two of them in last year's split season.

"I'm really proud of our club," he said. "We've got some players who you're going to hear a whole lot about for a long time to come. I'm talking about Damaso Garcia, Willie Upshaw, Lloyd Moseby, Barry Bonnell and Jesse Barfield, just to name a few."

"Right now, Garcia is in a class with Willie Randolph and he gets better all the time. He's got 45 stolen bases, makes plays around second base you can't believe and has been over .300 all season long. Only once this season has he gone two games in a row without getting a hit."

The Blue Jays' primary objective is to get out of last place. Right now, they're 2½ games behind the sixth-place Indians and 3½ behind the fifth-place Yankees.

Cox vigorously disagrees with those who believe the National League is superior to the American.

"The players over here in this league are every bit as good as those over in the National regardless of what keeps happening in the All-Star games," he insisted.

"There are some great ones here in this league. On one club alone like Milwaukee you've got guys like Cecil Cooper, Robin Yount, Paul Molitor and Gorman Thomas. And how about fellows like George Brett, Hal McRae, Willie Wilson and Rickey Henderson? I can name you a lot more."

Cox said it's "more fun" managing in the National League because a manager has to make far more moves without the designated hitter.

"But I'm used to the designated hitter now," he said. "It's part of the American League and I think it'll be here forever. They'd be crazy to vote it out because they'd only be hurting themselves."

"Now when a 'position player' no longer can play a position, they can move him to DH and he's still an asset to the club, so I can't picture the owners looking to do away with it. Having the DH also helps finding a place for players with long-term contracts."

Golsteyn Makes Believers Of Buccaneers, Redskins

"Don't stop believing, hold on to that feeling."
— Journey

By CHRIS FISTER
Herald Sports Writer

TAMPA — Jerry Golsteyn and the Tampa Bay Buccaneers were living by those words Saturday night, coming back from a 13-0 halftime deficit to hand the Washington Redskins a 28-13 loss before 63,896 jubilant fans at Tampa Stadium.

Golsteyn, a resident of Chula Vista (near Chulaota) and former Orlando Americans quarterback, tied a Tampa Bay-preseason record by tossing three touchdown passes in leading the Bucs' second half surge to victory.

"They (offensive line) provided good blocking tonight. That, plus the confidence I have in myself was the big difference," Golsteyn said.

A hard-luck quarterback who has been with five NFL teams and wasn't even playing football two years ago, Golsteyn did not stop believing in himself and came on in the second half to complete eight of 10 passes for 145 yards and the record tying three TDs. Gary Huff (who?) set the record in a 1977 exhibition game with the Atlanta Falcons at the Tangerine Bowl in Orlando.

Golsteyn's offensive spark was offset by the stingy Bucs defense and the sloppy play of the 'Skins in the second half.

The first half, however, was all Washington.

A Tampa Bay fumble paved the way for Joe Theisman's 3-yard scoring pass to fullback John Riggins with 2:20 remaining in the first quarter. Mark Moseley added the extra point.

Moseley's 39-yard field goal with 9:48 showing on the clock gave Washington a 10-0 second quarter lead and Danny Miller's 34-yard field goal increased it to 13-0.

"We were lethargic in the first half," Tampa Bay Coach John McKay said. "They dominated us and I don't think they should have scored."

The offensive statistics exemplify Washington's first half supremacy. The Redskins had 11 first down to Tampa Bay's three and rolled up 171 total yards to the Bucs' 80.

Tampa Bay's only bright spot was a 34-yard run by running back Michael Morton. Joe Lavender, Washington's veteran cornerback, quickly dimmed things when he stripped the Nevada-Las Vegas rookie of the football and linebacker Rich Milot recovered the loose ball for the Redskins.

In the second half, the veterans gave way to the rookies who are giving it their all in hopes of making the squad. The offensive line that was giving Golsteyn all the protection he needed, was led by the play of the Bucs' number one draft choice Sean Farrell at right guard. Farrell started the game in place of Greg Roberts.

"It's good to be welcomed to the NFL with a 10 year veteran on top of your nose," McKay said of Farrell who was up against Washington's 6-7, 295-pound defensive tackle Dave Butz.

While Golsteyn was resurrected after nearly giving up pro football, wide receiver Gordon Jones was rejuvenated after a disappointing 1981 season. Jones grabbed three passes for 49 yards and two touchdowns.

"He did not have a good year last year," McKay said of Jones. "But Jones has performed very well in mini camps this year and should be an important part in our offense."

Tampa Bay's first score came with 10:18 left in the third quarter on a dazzling 80-yard touchdown drive. The drive culminated with Golsteyn throwing 24 yards to Jones who eluded a few would-be Redskin tacklers and danced into the end zone. Shay Smyth added the extra point to trim Washington's lead to 13-7.

A 34-yard pass to Gerald Carter combined with a costly penalty against the Redskins paved the way for Tampa Bay's second TD. Again it was Jones on the other end of a Golsteyn spiral, this time for 12 yards and the TD. Bill Capece added the point after and the Bucs claimed a 14-13 lead.

The Bucs got a break on Washington's next possession as Wilbur Jackson hauled in a pass from Tom Flick, took a shoe from Tampa's Scot Brantley and coughed up the ball. Mark Cotney alertly scooped it up for the Bucs.

On Tampa's third play after the fumble recovery, Golsteyn found rookie tight end Jerry Bell in the clear for 24 yards and a touchdown. Smyth added the extra point as Tampa Bay went on top 21-13.

The Buccaneers' final score came early in the fourth quarter when Mike Ford took over for Golsteyn at QB. Ford engineered an eight play, 72-yard drive and rambled the final two yards himself for the TCD. Smyth's third extra point of the night made it Tampa Bay 28, Washington 13.

It was another outstanding showing for the Bucs' rookies and starting quarterback Doug Williams said he was optimistic about the outlook of the '82 Bucs.

"There's no doubt we have a better team than last year," Williams said. "It was the best draft we had in years and we're hoping to win a few more games than we did last year."

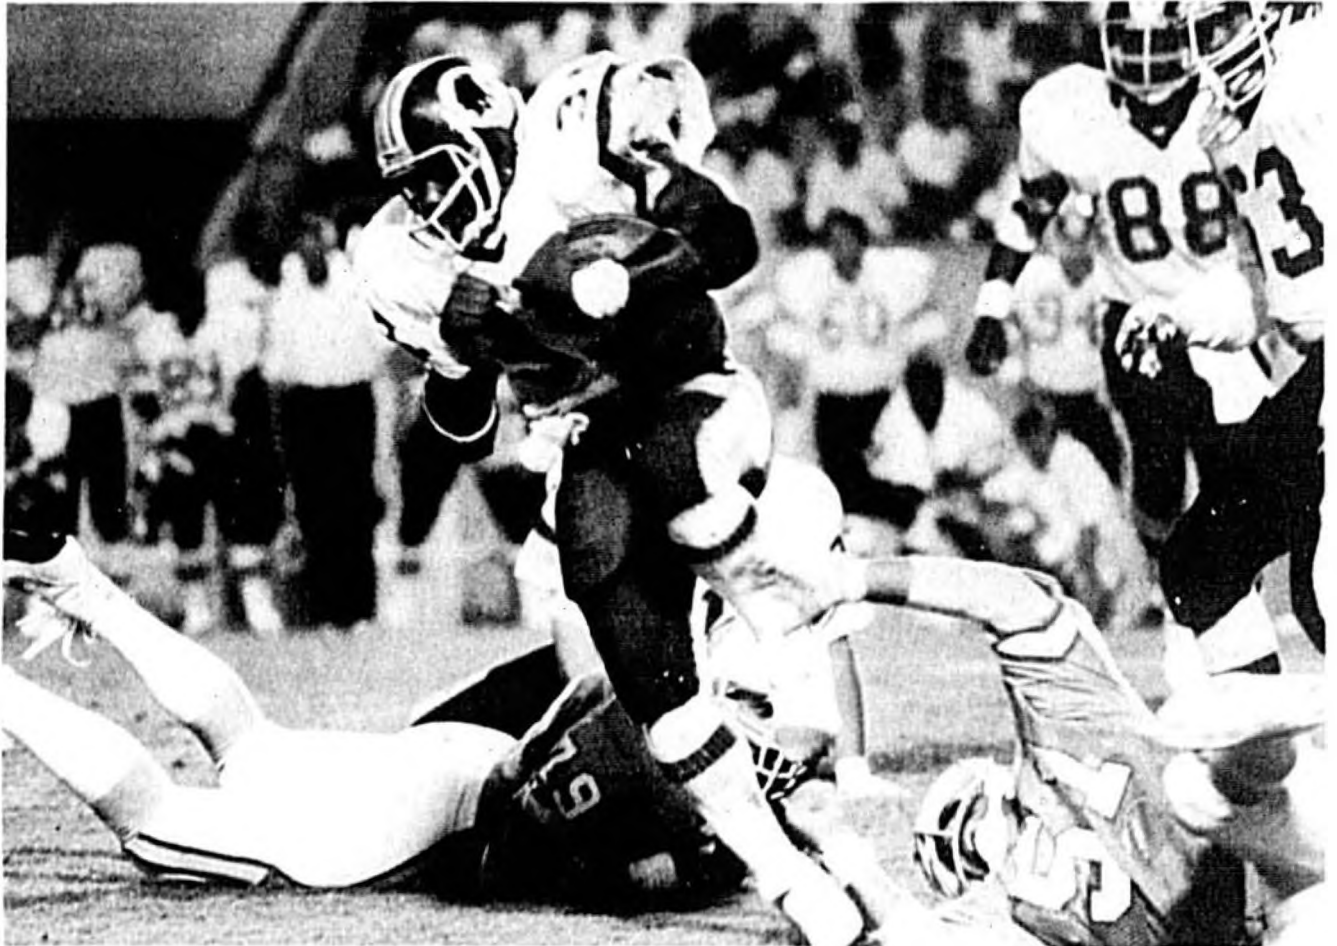

For the second week in a row the ex-Nevada-Las Vegas backfield tandem of Morton and Melvin Carver were impressive. Morton carried 12 times for 70 yards to lead all rushers and Carver carried 10 times for 41 yards.

"I felt like I was back at Nevada-Las Vegas with Carver in the backfield with me," Morton said. "We play well together and know each others moves." Carver was more intent on making the Bucs' roster before reminiscing. "I'm playing my hardest and now I know what I have to do to make this ballclub."

The Buccaneers ended up with 378 yards of total offense compared to 260 for the Redskins. Tampa Bay now stands 2-0 in the pre-season while Washington fell to 0-2. The Bucs play at Houston on Saturday.

O-Twins Trim Charlotte

Baseball

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — For the first time in over two thirds of the season, the Orlando Twins have found a winning combination.

After struggling through the first half and slumping in the second, the Twins have put that combination to work en route to a four-game winning streak and a two-game lead over Jacksonville in the Southern League's East Division.

The O-Twins swept a double header from Charlotte Saturday and edged the Orioles 3-1 Sunday night. The Twins' road trip stops in Savannah tonight for a single game with the Braves.

Orlando got sound pitching performances by Lee Belanger and Jack Hobbs in its double-header sweep Saturday. Belanger (5-10) tossed a three-hitter in the opener and wound up with a 4-0 shutout while the Twins triumphed 3-1 in the nightcap behind Hobbs' (7-1) two-hitter.

A three-run homer by Mark Funderburk, his 21st of the year, provided for all of the Twins' runs in the nightcap.

The Twins' number one draft choice, Bryan Oelkers, and reliever Eric Broersma shut down the Orioles Sunday in the Twins' 3-1 victory.

Oelkers earned the victory for his first professional win since joining the Twins out of Wichita State University where he was 18-2.

Orlando picked up the decisive runs in the top of the fifth inning. Ken Foster and Rick Austin both doubled and, after Kevin Williams' sacrifice bunt, Dave Meier ripped a single to drive in the Twins' third run.

Meier led Orlando with three hits in four trips to the plate while designated hitter Andre David had two hits.

Vikings Go 'Inside' Looking For Success

COACH BUD GRANT: "I've said it before. Teams that end up on top are those that get through a season injury-free. Moving indoors changes our concept. It revives the little back — like Darrin Nelson, whom we drafted. I also feel one benefit we might get from playing indoors is from the fans. They'll get more involved in the game."

In 1981: 7-9, fourth in NFC Central

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

OFFENSE
PASSING Tommy Kramer, detoxified and re-kneed, must carry Vikes if they're to rebound as winners. His mobility suffered, but he didn't require knee surgery. He has excellent cast of receivers with Sammy White, who had good year, and slick Ahmad Rashad at wide spots; Joe Senser, a fine tight end; and backs who catch the ball well. GOOD RUNNING Bound to be stronger than '81 when Ted Brown had to carry entire load. Rookie Darrin Nelson, first back drafted, could be a sensation in domed stadium, either darting from scrimmage or catching passes. Tony Galbreath can provide fullback threat to help Brown. GOOD BLOCKING Essentially same unit that has been together a few seasons, with longtime tackle Ron Yary (14 years) the senior member. And in his case, though he is a Jim Marshall-type who takes good care of himself, there is relief in sight with the drafting of Terry Tausch, a touted Texan, on second round. Dave Huffman another sub.

DEFENSE

LINE The 3-4 is now Vikings' basic defensive alignment, with the three-man front populated by first-round draft choices — Mark Mullaney and Randy Holloway at the ends, James White at nose tackle. Ready to fill in or play on passing downs is another first rounder, Doug Martin. FAIR to GOOD LINEBACKING Dispatched veteran Jeff Siemon to San Diego because Dennis Johnson was ready to step into regular job as an inside backer, teaming with Scott Studwell, who got some personal problems straightened out. On outside, Matt Blair and Fred McNeill now starting ninth season together. Rookie Jim Fahnhorst could push McNeill. VERY GOOD SECONDARY This is among the more physical quartets in NFL, but coverage warrants improvement. Better pass rush up front would be greatest tonic. Top defenders against pass are Willie Teal at one corner, third-year man coming into own; and free safety Tom Hannon. John Turner at other corner had off year; Kurt Knoff has some knee problems. FAIR SPECIAL TEAMS

KICKING Punter Greg Coleman, placekicker Rick Danmeier can hardly wait to move indoors to the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome after watching all those homers ride wind currents during baseball season. Both OK. GOOD RETURNS Little Eddie Payton, who's done good job in recent years, is still on hand, but real excitement is generated by Nelson off his performances in open field at Stanford. He'll break long one. VERY GOOD

OUTLOOK

Disastrous collapse last year, losing five when it looked like they had division locked up, will be avoided if Karmar stays in one piece. Low-keyed Bud Grant is building team suited to new playing arena, with stress on passing and quickness. As good as any in wide-open division. PREDICTION Second in NFC Central, shot at wild card with 9-7.

Jets Rip Oilers, 33-16

United Press International
It's not easy to pull rave reviews out of New York Jets quarterback Richard Todd.

"They did all right," Todd said of his team's defense. "I've always said we win with defense."

"But we (the offense) did OK, too," he added after the Jets walloped Houston 33-16 in an exhibition game Sunday.

Happy birthday, Pam.

Congratulations are in order to Anna and Vance Hooper for the birth of Jonathan Vance Hooper, on Aug. 16.

Bouncing baby boy seems to describe Jonathan to a T. He weighed in at 10 lbs, 9 ozs. and was 21 1/2 inches long.

Another cliché that fits is the third time is a charm. Anna made three trips to the hospital thinking each time Jonathan would arrive, but he persisted on being late. Finally, on the third trip, baby Jonathan decided to put in his appearance.

Mother and baby are doing fine. Anna says that Jonathan looks like he's three months old instead of a newborn.

Sister Julie who recently turned 5, is eagerly awaiting her baby brother to come home.

The maternal grandmother is Mrs. Anna Fernandez of Miami and paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John L. Hooper of Griffin, Ga.

Aug. 27 is the date set for open house at Red Bud Elementary School for students in Kindergarten through fifth grades, from 1:30 to 3 p.m.

The open house provides the students with an opportunity to meet their teachers and to become familiar with the school. Also they can find out their bus schedules and what supplies they will need for the coming school year.

Pro-Choice Advocates Speak Out

DEAR READERS: Recently a letter from Julia Child on the pro-life movement appeared in my column. Your response to that letter was heavy. Today's column features letters supporting Julia's comments. The Right-to-Lifers have their say tomorrow.

DEAR ABBY: Julia Child may want to hear from a former Right-to-Life member. I had been a Right-to-Lifer until the Lord put me in the following position and opened my eyes:

When I was in labor with my youngest child, I tried to comfort a young girl who was also in labor. She was 13 and all alone. She said her mother thought she deserved to be punished for her "sins" by having to go through pregnancy and labor and then giving up her baby. She and I shared a room after delivery — until her father showed up, took her home, and left a deformed baby for the state to support.

Dear Abby

Poor baby. Right to what life?

SHIRLEY KINSLER
DEAR ABBY: Three cheers for Julia Child! The Right-to-Lifers have gotten so caught up in their cause, they actually believe their own propaganda.

These people preach that the "solution" to accidental pregnancy is adoption. Do they actually believe that a woman can carry a baby for nine months, then give it away and forget about it?

Never! I speak from experience.

I was an unwed mother at 17. I was talked into giving up my baby when she was 8 days old, and a day never passes when I don't regret it. I married the baby's father when I was 22. He was 25 and in med school. We are still happily married and have five children and four grandchildren.

The Right-to-Lifers keep harping on the "trauma" of abortion. Hear this: When I became pregnant on the onset of menopause, my husband and I agreed that we wanted no more children, so I had an abortion. I can tell you in all honesty, I suffered no trauma or regrets. Thank God abortion was legal when I needed it. At least I had a choice.

I pray that we will never again see the day when abortion is illegal, and a woman is denied the right to choose whether or not she wants to bear a child.

ON JULIA'S SIDE

DEAR ABBY: Hurrah for Julia Child! As a social worker for 30 years, I am outraged that the Right-to-Lifers would presume to make personal, private, medical and moral decisions for all women.

An estimated 5 million children are physically and/or sexually abused every year, and no less than 300,000 are killed because they weren't wanted in the first place.

I am tired of hearing the "pro-life" people refer to abortion as "murder." To abort means to stop — or prevent something from happening. Until a child is born it is a "fetus" — and to prevent its coming into the world is not killing a human being!

I'm also tired of hearing how many "empty arms" are longing to hold a baby, as though that justifies forcing women to have illegitimate babies to give them away. Would you want that for your daughter? I think we are all entitled to the right to make our own decisions.

PRO-PLANNED PARENTHOOD

DEAR ABBY: I would like to commend Julia Child for her guts and integrity in pointing out the most obvious reasons for being pro-choice.

I have spent years doing volunteer work with abused, neglected and abandoned children, and I can assure you that these children are not getting the "life" the Right-to-Lifers think they are. Even in the obvious cases of child abuse, the courts return the abused children to the homes they came from because there aren't enough foster, adoptive or shelter homes.

Don't suggest adoption. Very few people want children who are past the cute baby stage, or children of mixed races.

These children that pro-lifers insist have a "right" to be born end up with parents who are too poor or too young to provide for them. Many don't survive at all.

CATHERINE CHUNN, TEMPE, ARIZ.

DEAR ABBY: These Right-to-Lifers are death to poor people and minorities. If they really want to support life, let them adopt black children, and American-fathered Vietnamese and Korean kids. Only then will they get the world support they want. The Right-to-Life movement is designed for white couples who want healthy, white babies. The rest of the babies can grow up to sweep floors, sling hash and fight wars. I know I am right. Print this. You'll see.

Sinuses Don't Cause A Hearing Problem

DEAR DR. LAMB — My mother-in-law is very hard of hearing. She blames it on her sinuses. I know that when the weather is humid she is worse and you have to shout to make her hear you. She never talks about this condition. I don't know if she is vain and thinks it is a symptom of getting old, or what. We just can't talk to her about it, as it is too uncomfortable.

We would like her to get a hearing aid or see a doctor, but she thinks nothing can be done. She takes Dristan every day and that unplugs her head a little but she is still hard of hearing. Please advise us on what we should do. It is very hard on everyone when you have to shout all the time to make her hear you. She doesn't know all the things she is missing out on, as she pretends to hear what you are saying rather than to say, "What" all the time.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I love liver, especially calf liver. I eat a small portion every day — probably no more than two tablespoons. My friends and relatives, whether meat eaters or vegetarians, tell me that liver is full of poisons, chemicals, insecticides, etc., most of which were injected into the animal for growth.

Every nutrition book that I've read praises the very high nutritional value of liver as almost a miracle food. Should I continue eating and enjoying liver?

DEAR READER — Many people are unaware that they have a hearing loss. The change is so gradual that it sneaks up on a person. Of course if you have an acute condition it may not be so gradual.

Sinuses have very little to do with loss of hearing, unless you have an allergy or inflammatory condition that also involves the ears or causes fluid to accumulate in the middle ear.

Your mother-in-law must have an examination. In some instances a hearing loss is made much worse because of accumulation of wax in the ears. Some people think that means they have not washed their ears properly. That is not the case. The waxy secretions form internally where you should not be poking anyway.

The first step is to find out what is the real cause of your mother-in-law's hearing loss. Only then can a proper decision be made regarding what to do about it. She could have a correctable defect. Or she may benefit from a hearing aid if the problem cannot be corrected otherwise. And if she can't use a

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Tuesday, August 24, 1982

YOUR BIRTHDAY
August 24, 1982

STRIVE to be original this coming year. You could do well for yourself in ventures which you create. Don't be afraid to gamble on your abilities.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today if you are helpful only to those who are first helpful to you, it's not likely many favors will come your way. Don't make kindness a mathematical proposition. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the seasons following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph, Mail #1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Pay your fair share today in activities with friends. However, don't be a big spender in order to try to make an impression.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're basically an intense person. You must be careful today not to come on too strong or you could scare-off persons who wish to help you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be content with what you have today, as well as with your present involvements. Wishing you had more or that you were doing something else will only frustrate you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try not to place a friend in an awkward position today where he or she would be forced to side with you against another pal. You could lose both.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If another helps you achieve something today which you could not do without such assistance, make doubly sure to give this person proper recognition and praise.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Even though your intentions are to protect someone you care for, you must be careful not to force your will on this person today. Guide, but don't dictate.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Guard against tendencies today to be jealous or possessive with your loved one. You could severely scare your romance if you fail to handle things wisely.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try not to get into an "I did more for you than you did for me" contest with your mate today. Instead of making comparisons, be kind without expecting returns.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Unfortunately, not everyone today will appreciate your sense of humor. Don't tease those who are sensitive.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There is a possibility today that fun endeavors could end up costing more than you intended to spend. Keep your budget in mind.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're not likely to be as good a self-starter today as you should be. However, you also won't respond to being pushed, so stay away from persons who might try to do so.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Alan "Modern experts would probably get to seven hearts. The bidding in the box shows a couple of scientists at work."

Oswald "North starts with a mere two-club response. He is going to do a lot of bidding thereafter. South rebids two hearts and North's mere raise to three is a forcing bid in his system. South bids four hearts unhappily, but he bids it."

Alan "North trots out the old Black and South has to show his two aces. Now North makes the unusual bid of six diamonds. This is a modern version of Ely Culbertson's old grand slam force. Poor South, with two of the three top honors in hearts, grits his teeth and bids seven."

Oswald "A masterful performance, although perhaps a trifle rich for most players' taste. The opening diamond is won in dummy and South decides that he can't handle a 5-1 spade break, but can take care of 4-2 in that suit. He cashes dummy's king of trumps, plays king of spades and a spade to his ace. Then he ruffs a spade with dummy's jack of hearts, picks up East's last three trumps and claims."
