Reporter gets space ticket

MOSCOW — A Japanese television network signed a commercial agreement to send a Japanese journalist into space in 1991 aboard a Soviet spacecraft, making him the first Japanese and the first reporter to make a space flight.

Under the agreement signed Monday between the Tokyo Broadcasting System and the Soviet Glavkosmos space agency, a Japanese journalist will fly to the Mir orbiting space station on an eight-day mission.

Vigil held at Three Mile Island

HARRISBURG, Pa. — A handful of anti-nuclear activists staged a candlelight vigil Tuesday to mark the 10th anniversary of the near meltdown at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant, warning that the potential for another accident still exists.

Eight protesters gathered in the dark at the gate of Three Mile Island to light candles and hold a moment of silence at 4 a.m. — the exact time a decade ago when the sequence of events leading to the accident began.

Bakker lashes out at reporters

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Television evangelist Jim Bakker Monday denied telling reporters to drop dead but said he wishes they would stay away from his church and stop telling big tales about him.

Bakker has more problems than just being hounded by reporters. Two weeks ago the Mecklenburg County Zoning Commission ordered him to cease broadcasting his new television program from his home south of Charlotte.

Then the outfit that leased him a satellite uplink truck enabling him to beam the television signal around the nation sold the truck. That spurred his current efforts to relocate, possibly to Florida.

Officials fly to spill site

VALDEZ, Alaska — With the nation's worst oil spill prompting a personal inspection Tuesday by three top Bush administration officials, Exxon conceded its effort to clean up millions of gallons of Alaska crude is in trouble.

"Recovering the oil that was released after the grounding is not proceeding well," said Exxon Shipping Co. President Frank Jarosai late Monday. "Believe me, that is an understatement."

Ever since the 987-foot tanker Exxon Valdez sliced into a reef Friday and spilled about one-fifth of its 53-million-gallon cargo of oil into pristine Prince William Sound, Jarosai has voiced optimism about his company's ability to deal with the spill.

Local teams lose in tourneys

It wasn't the best of times for local prep baseball teams playing in tournaments on Monday.

The Lake Brantley Patriots, playing in the 10th annual Colonial Classic in Orlando, fell to Germantown (Tennessee) 12-9 in their opening round game while at the Apopka Invitational, the Lake Howell Silver Hawks dropped an 8-1 decision to Jacksonville Sandalwood.

Two more local teams jump into action today, Lake Mary playing Fresno-McLane (California) today at noon in the Colonial Classic and Oviedo playing Brookville-Hernando at 10 a.m. in the Apopka Invitational.

Deputy shot, killed

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

CHULUOTA — A Seminole County deputy sheriff was shot and killed here this morning in a confrontation with one of three men who had been the object of a huge manhunt in the area more than a month ago.

The deputy was identified by officials as Hugh Thomas, 24, who has been a sheriff deputy for about five years.

The other man was identified as Tony LeMasters, 24, of Sanford.

Officials said they believe LeMasters shot and killed himself after having killed the deputy.

LeMasters, who was wanted on burglary charges, and two escapees from the Orange County jail, hid out in the woods in this area last month. The escapees later were apprehended.

Eddie Banks, of Snowhill Road, gave this account of the events this morning:

An Isuzu jeep-type vehicle stopped on Snowhill Road in front of his house at about 8:45 a.m. A man armed with a rifle jumped from the vehicle and scurried into a thicket of brush across the road from Banks. He saw the man lie down in the thicket.

Banks said he went to his own truck to arm himself with a rifle and told his wife to call the police.

Within about five minutes, the deputy who was assigned to traffic duty arrived at the scene.

The deputy and Banks saw the man lying in the brush and advanced toward him. The man moved into the thicket and the deputy pursued him. Banks said he was left behind.

Banks said he believed he heard the deputy say "Halt."

The suspect cursed the deputy, Banks said. He said he heard a shot he believed the suspect fired. That shot was followed by two more shots he believed the deputy fired.

He said he heard a fourth shot from an

Launch fees axed by city

SANFORD — Nearly a year after the city commission adopted an ordinance to collect launching fees and control parking at the marina, it's back to square one.

For now.

The city commission voted 3-2 last night to approve on second reading an ordinance abolishing the $5 launching fee, without weekend and holiday parking restrictions included on first reading.

The commission asked marina merchants and boaters to meet with Bill Simmons, city director of engineering and planning, to resolve the parking dilemma between the recreational and commercial users of the facility.

Commissioner A.A. McClanahan said he was concerned that a lack of enforced restrictions on marina parking would mean a greater demand on the police department to maintain order. "I foresee a uniformed officer being tied up down there when he could be utilized in better ways than directing traffic," he said.

Commissioner Lon Howell, who initially added the parking restrictions to the ordinance, made the motion to delete the restrictions from the measure passed last night. Commissioner Whitey Eckstein and Mayor Bettye Smith supported the motion.

Commissioners McClanahan and Bob Thomas opposed the ordinance.

SANFORD — The city won't continue fighting a countywide road impact fee if Seminole County agrees not to charge back fees, the city commission decided last night.

The commission voted unanimously to drop a law suit contesting the right of Seminole County to impose a fee on new development within the city, if the county would not charge fees on construction up to the date of a settlement the two agencies may reach.

Lake Mary city planner says he quit job over unfounded charges

By SANDRA BOUGHANINE
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — Former City Senior Planner Randall Cohen, 30, says he resigned from his job over unfounded sexual harassment charges and other "poor working conditions."

Cohen submitted a letter of resignation on March 7 to Acting City Manager Charles Lauderdale following his return to work after being absent from Feb. 18 to March 3.

Lauderdale said the letter of resignation has not been officially accepted by him and that a medical certificate presented by Cohen is inadequate because it does not state the nature of his illness.

"They want details, and details as far as I am concerned are very personal," Cohen said in an interview Monday.

Interviewed at his parent's home in Mims, Cohen said he was told that last December, Building Official Stan Welling informed Lauderdale that a subordinate had complained that Cohen had sexually harassed her.

Cohen said he also was told that Finance Director Nancy Teeter had mentioned that a sexual harassment complaint had been made but she did not specify who was involved.

According to Cohen, the female employee he was accused of "harassing" was unaware that the situation had been discussed among other city staff.

Lauderdale said that he officially took up the matter and asked Teeter to bring in the woman involved.

Lauderdale said the female employee mentioned that she did not appreciate some of Cohen's gestures and just wanted to be left alone. He said there were no witnesses willing to speak against Cohen.

Lauderdale said Welling told him he observed acts taking place including "gestures, remarks and touching" on Cohen's part.

"I do not consider it to be sexual harassment but inappropriate behavior. I told Cohen to watch himself and what he said," Lauderdale said this morning.

Youth improving after being shot during 'war game'

By SUSAN LODEN

WINTER PARK — A spring break war game between two rural Winter Park brothers ended with the wounding of the 7-year-old after he reportedly asked his 10-year-old brother to shoot their parents' handgun, which the boys thought they had unloaded.

Paul David Jump, who was wounded in the abdomen by a single shot from a .32-caliber semi-automatic handgun at home at 1457 Clematis Lane, at about 12:30 p.m. Monday, is in fair condition today in an Orlando hospital.

Paul's mother, Clara Jump, said today that Paul "is doing real good." He had a good night. "I stayed with him most of the night. He is conscious and in a lot of pain," Paul is in Orlando Regional Medical Center.

Mrs. Jump said that her older son Jonathan, who accidentally shot Paul after they climbed to the top of their parent's bedroom closet to get the family gun for their war games, is also doing well today. "He was a little upset at first. But he knows Paul is going to be okay, so he's handling it real well," she said.

Paul, who attends public school, was on spring break, and Jonathan was sick Monday, so had stayed home from private school, Mrs. Jump said.

They decided to play war, and found and loaded with a clip the family handgun. At one point the boys thought they had unloaded the weapon, but didn't know that a bullet remained in the chamber. Paul reportedly asked Jonathan to pull the trigger, and Mrs. Jump said, he did.

Crooms: School with a difference

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Crooms School of Choice on 13th Street in west Sanford is different from others in the Seminole County School District.

Like other schools, they have honor roll students maintaining a 4.0 average.

Like other schools, they have kids with some severe disciplinary problems.

In the Crooms "disruptive" program, however, they are often one and the same student.

Many of the students in that program have had trouble adjusting to the rigid schedule of a regular middle school.

Some lacked the confidence to succeed. Some rebelled against authority. And still others were bored with school.

All have been suspended from their zone schools three or four times and face expulsion by the school board for their disruptive behavior.

The Crooms School is often only a temporary stop for the students, though. They must stay a minimum of one semester, but once they graduate from the eighth grade, they must return to their district high school. Sometimes, they are mainstreamed back into their regular school sooner to make room for a more needy problem child.

As long as they are demonstrating a willingness to improve their behavior, they are allowed to remain in school.

Discipline at Crooms is a little different than at other district schools. For one thing, the school has the option of corporal punishment.

"We don't use it often, though," said principal Barbara Kirby. School administrators would rather help find an alternative situation in which a student will be better able to perform.

Students must face consequences for their infractions of the rules. Alternatives to the corporal punishment route are work detail, which includes keeping the campus grounds clean and well groomed and custodial assistance detail which includes interior cleaning and repair.

"We try to avoid punishing the students without teaching them a lesson," Kirby said. "We want to take a very positive approach to everything."

The school has placed a limit of ten students per teacher in the discipline program. The smaller classes allow for more individualized attention. Teachers are able to work with students on an academic as well as an emotional level, helping them to encourage as well as teach.

Eastern begins pilot training class

United Press International

MIAMI — Eastern Airlines began a six-week training class Monday for newly hired pilots as lawyers for the crippled airline prepared to tell a federal judge why the company's union pilots should be ordered back to work.

U.S. District Judge Edward Davis met with lawyers from Eastern and the pilots union early Monday, then scheduled a hearing for Thursday on Eastern's request for a court order to force its pilots to return to the cockpit.

workers and file for bankruptcy. Eastern currently is operating about 10 percent of its pre-strike schedule of 1,040 daily flights.

Eastern spokesman Robin Matell said the company began its first training class Monday in Miami for replacement pilots. Thirty-five would-be pilots are enrolled in the class, he said.

The company had said earlier that 40 to 50 students would begin the class.

"We cut back on the first class to about 35. We had about 50, but we decided to cut back ... to keep it as a more compact group," Matell said.

The company began advertising nationwide for replacement pilots last week.

Matell said other pilots hired by the company will begin a second training class, perhaps as early as next Monday.

"As far as we are concerned, it is just a bogus attempt to instill some fear and intimidation," said Ron Cole, a spokesman for the pilots union. "But it is not going to work."

Matell said the company would not decide on whether to continue its hiring program until after the court rules on Eastern's request for an injunction. Spokeswoman Karen Ceremak said the company hopes for a speedy ruling.

"We believe the judge has already heard the evidence and could make an expedited ruling," she said.

Davis refused to order Eastern's pilots back to work on March 7 after a court hearing, saying he did not have the authority to intervene in the labor dispute. However, a federal appeals court panel on Friday ordered Davis to reconsider his decision.

The three-judge panel said Davis must determine whether the pilots' refusal to fly constitutes a legitimate sympathy strike, as the union maintains, or an illegal attempt to gain leverage in contract negotiations, as the company has argued.

The Air Line Pilots Association was negotiating a new contract for Eastern pilots at the time of the strike.

Davis asked both sides Monday to submit briefs on the issue, Ceremak said.

The 8,500 IAM workers at Eastern struck the airline after negotiators failed to resolve a 17-month-old contract dispute. Eastern had sought contract concessions from the union worth an estimated $150 million.

Students find pipe bombs

TAMPA — Students playing soccer at Bellamy Elementary School in northwest Hillsborough County Monday found a bag containing five pipe bombs.

The 4-inch-long bombs made of plastic pipe were taken to an isolated area and detonated by members of the sheriff's department bomb squad.

The school was closed for the spring break and only a few students playing soccer were at the scene.

The students took the bag to their supervisor, who opened it and then called authorities.

"I opened the bag and there it was," said Susan Diamond.

Authorities said they did not know how long the bombs had been on the playground.

Multimillion dollar gambling ring broken

TALLAHASSEE — Law enforcement officers arrested 33 people Monday in Orange and Marion counties in connection with a multimillion dollar gambling organization, state law enforcement officials announced.

The arrests coincided with the FBI's seizure of six related bookmaking facilities in Louisville, Ky.

The Florida bookmaking group allegedly was lead by Robert and Shirley Kopp, who moved to Orlando from Kentucky to run the Florida operation in 1988.

The Koppas were charged in state court with racketeering, conspiracy to commit racketeering and 30 counts of bookmaking. Bond has been set at $250,000 for Robert Kopp and $50,000 for Shirley Kopp.

The bookmaking organization apparently accepted wagers on all kinds of sporting events year-round. Robert Kopp told investigators he earned about $180,000 a year from the illegal activity.

The Florida investigation, coordinated by Statewide Prosecutor Peter Antonacci and the Florida Department of Law Enforcement, found that Marion County bookmakers were coordinating their activities with the Koppas.

They arrested six Marion County bookmakers and 25 of their customers on charges of bookmaking and gambling.

In addition, officers seized two automobiles in Orlando and four more in Ocala.

Daughter lived with mother's corpse

GAINESVILLE — The skeletal remains of an elderly woman were discovered Monday afternoon on the couch where she died and her daughter said she had lived with the body for two years.

Every time the woman's son called during that period, her daughter would tell him she was out. The son finally became suspicious and called someone to go check on the woman, police said.

"The daughter said she had been dead for two years, but we are going to have to depend on the autopsy to determine how long she had been dead," said police Lt. Sadie Darnell. "We know she has been dead over six months because there were only skeletal remains."

Darnell identified the dead woman as Clara Peters Whiting, who would be 80, and the daughter as Myrna Joyce Vickers, 52.

She said the cause of death would not be known until after the autopsy, but there were no obvious signs of foul play.

Darnell said Vickers did not say why she kept her mother's corpse on the couch, in the front room of a huge two-well-lit neighborhood, other than that she had personal reasons. She said Vickers was not afraid of the body and was staying with a family friend.

DNA tests rule out Scasons

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. — Lab tests on a section of a severed leg found in the Tennessee River show the limb does not belong to a missing University of Florida student, an FBI spokesman said Monday.

FBI technicians in Washington, D.C., compared fluid and tissue samples from the leg with samples from the parents of Tiffany Scasons, 20. The University of Florida finance major from Miami left her apartment 2 miles from campus for a short walk Feb. 9 and never returned.

She was dressed in red sweat pants with a white sweatshirt, wearing a Rolex watch and carrying a portable Walkman radio when she left the apartment, Scasons, who did not take any identification with her, told her roommate that she would return in about 30 minutes.

Bob Dean, FBI supervisory agent-in-charge at Chattanooga, said Monday that the genetic tests on the knee joint showed it was not Scasons'.

"The test is definitive. It's not Tiffany Scasons," Dean said. The leg section, severed about 8 inches above and 6 inches below the knee, was discovered Feb. 12, shortly after Scasons' disappearance, at the edge of the Tennessee River in Marion County.

Company says it didn't plan to sell rocket fuel to Iran

United Press International

HOUSTON — Attorneys for a Florida company told a federal judge Monday the firm did not plan to sell a scarce rocket fuel to Iran and that its reputation has been "smeared beyond belief" by government allegations it was trading with the Iranians.

U.S. District Judge Sim Lake heard five hours of testimony Monday in the trial, which stems from the U.S. Customs Service's February 1988 seizure of ammonium perchlorate, an indispensable component of the solid fuel in rockets ranging up to the giant MX missiles.

Testimony in the case, which is expected to last up three days, will continue at 8 a.m. CST Tuesday. Lake scolded both sides Monday for the slow pace of the hearing.

The Customs Service filed a petition with Lake last week preventing the lifting of a temporary injunction that would have required the government to release 1,144 drums of ammonium perchlorate to Girindus Corp. of Tampa.

The chemicals were seized last year as they were being loaded onto an Iranian freighter in the Dutch port of Rotterdam. Customs officials believe Girindus plotted to send the materials to Iran from Houston under a bill of lading showing it was bound for a buyer in Basel, Switzerland.

Ray Berry, an attorney representing Girindus, said during opening arguments that the Florida company had a "covenant" that the fuel would not be sold outside of Europe but was betrayed by its European trading partners.

Girindus Co. attorney Sidney Weinburg, speaking from the witness stand, also denied any wrongdoing by the Florida firm.

"Our reputation has been smeared beyond belief," Weinburg said. "There was no license required at the time. Part of this proceeding is making sure there is public recognition from the government that we did nothing wrong."

Haitian refugees en route to homeland

United Press International

MIAMI — A group of Haitian refugees who held U.S. authorities at bay for 27 hours during the weekend, threatening to throw their babies in the sea, were en route to their homeland Monday. Coast Guard officials said.

The return of the 86 refugees, however, was delayed Monday morning when the Coast Guard cutter carrying the group picked up 42 more Haitians on a 30-foot sailboat heading for the United States, said Petty Officer 2nd Class Joe Dye, a Coast Guard spokesman.

The Confidence, which had planned to arrive in Haiti Wednesday, was not expected to reach the island until later in the week because of the latest interdiction, which occurred without incident 230 miles south of Miami, Dye said.

The larger group of Haitians were among 89 refugees discovered 150 miles south of Miami on the Kan Selita, one of two 30-foot sailboats carrying Haitians to the United States Saturday. Coast Guard Lt. Jeff Karonis said. Three refugees were undergoing medical treatment Monday in the Miami area.

The 79 refugees in the other boat surrendered peacefully and were en route to Haiti Monday onboard the cutter Escape, along with 101 others who surrendered to Coast Guard officials Friday, Dye said. The refugees were expected to reach their homeland Tuesday.

On the Kan Selita, where the refugees refused to surrender, one woman jumped into the water to protest her likely return, while her companions threatened to throw children into the sea, Karonis said. No one, however, was injured in the standoff, which ended Sunday.

Bakker ready to move, but doesn't know where to go

United Press International

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Television evangelist Jim Bakker Monday denied telling reporters to drop dead but said he wishes they would stay away from his church and stop telling big tales about him.

Bakker has more problems than just being hounded by reporters. Two weeks ago the Mecklenburg County Zoning Commission ordered him to cease broadcasting his new television program from his home south of Charlotte.

Then the outfit that leased him a satellite uplink truck enabling him to beam the television signal around the nation sold the truck. That spurred his current efforts to relocate, possibly to Florida.

"We were all upset when a few days ago we found out the zoning board voted against us and then we learned that the truck that beams our satellite signal had been sold and we thought, 'Oh my God what are we going to do?'" Bakker said.

Bakker and wife Tammy Faye went to Florida to look at a number of properties, including the old Ormond Hotel at Ormond Beach, a health spa on Lake Helen and a television studio in Orlando.

He said Monday they have not yet settled on a location.

"People say you've got to know where you're going if you're going to move, but you don't know us," Bakker said.

He said God gave him a vision that he will establish a chain of religious resorts like PTL's Heritage USA across North America and that Florida would be a good place.

The latest Bakker brouhaha arose at the end of his Easter Sunday sermon, when he announced next week's service will be a members only meeting at his office and reporters will be barred from entering.

"The people refused to be transferred and there was one threat that they would throw some of the babies overboard," he said. "In most of these cases the Haitians are rather passive. In many cases, they have been at sea for 10, 20 days."

"This is an unusual case, there's no doubt about it."

Coast Guard officials discovered the refugees while returning 99 other Haitian refugees to their homeland aboard the Coast Guard cutter Escape.

So far this year, Coast Guard officials have stopped an estimated 1,843 refugees from Haiti, Karonis said.

In March alone, U.S. officials have stopped at least 1,304 refugees, the highest one month tally since the interdiction program began, he added.

The number of Haitians stopped at sea by Coast Guard officials has soared since 1981, when the United States signed a bilateral agreement with Haiti concerning refugees.

In 1988, Coast Guard officials stopped 4,712 Haitian refugees, up from 3,808 in 1987. In 1981, officials stopped 64 refugees, Karonis said.

Two other Coast Guard cutters and other, smaller boats were called to the scene to assist the crew of the Escape, while negotiations continued Saturday to no avail, Karonis said.

Negotiations resumed Sunday morning. The Haitians surrendered about noon and were taken aboard the two cutters, he said.

Petty Officer Gary Starks said Haitians usually offer some resistance, but rarely something as dramatic as the weekend standoff.

"It had the potential to be a very large disaster," Starks told The Miami Herald. "You're talking about a lot of lives that could have been lost."

Haitians who are stopped outside U.S. waters typically are interviewed at sea by immigration officials.

Two arrested after cocaine found

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A couple seen talking to a pedestrian on Salina Drive, rural Altamonte Springs, at about 9 p.m. Sunday was watched by a Seminole County sheriff's deputy who suspected they might be buying narcotics. As the woman drove away, her pickup truck with an unassigned license tag was stopped and searched. Crack cocaine was reportedly found. Both Daniel Thomas Hannfwell, 26, and Shelly Anne Mahoney, 24, both of 2852 El Capitan Drive, Sanford, were charged with possession of cocaine. Mahoney was also charged for the unassigned tag.

Two arrested for trying to steal banner

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Two men were arrested Saturday morning after an Altamonte Springs policeman reported seeing them trying to steal a banner from the Centrust bank in Butler Plaza. The policeman reported they fled when he approached them, but officers ran them down nearby in the plaza. Arrested were Timothy John Buser, 23, 434 Poplar Court, Maitland, and John Francis Flood, 21, 1658 Augusta Way, Casselberry, were charged with theft, night prowling and resisting arrest without violence. Bond was set at $500 for each of them.

Man arrested for assaulting ex-wife

FERN PARK — A Fern Park man was arrested Saturday morning after his ex-wife reported he punched her in the face and tried to rape her. Webster Bennett Ott, 34, 2305 Driftwood Drive, was arrested by Seminole County deputies as he drove into the driveway of his home about a half hour after the incident reportedly took place. Ott was charged with first-degree burglary, aggravated battery and attempted sexual battery. He was held at the Seminole County Jail without bond. Ott's ex-wife, Tanya Ott, said Ott approached her in the garage of her home at 1945 Lake Drive at about 1:30 a.m. as she was folding clothes. She said Ott had asked her "Now, what are you going to do?" apparently referring to a threat she said he made on her life during an earlier telephone conversation. She said he asked her for sex, which she refused. Tanya Ott said Ott punched her in the face with his fist, knocking out a tooth, and pushed her to the ground. She said he pulled her pants off, then left the room. She said Ott came back after a few minutes and choked her before he left, driving away in his truck.

Carpet-cleaning whiz sentenced to 25 years

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Barry Minkow, who gained national fame as a teenager when the carpet-cleaning company he started in his parents' garage became a $100 million-dollar house of cards, was sentenced to 25 years in prison, and said "I deserve every bit of it."

The burly Minkow also was ordered to pay $28 million in restitution for his fraudulent fraud scheme that bilked tens of millions of dollars from investors, some of whom were in court for Monday's sentencing.

Minkow, 23, carried out what prosecutors said was one of the most "audacious and outrageous" white-collar crimes on the West Coast, constructing a pyramid of lies and swindles that he blamed on coercion from mobsters he owed money.

In an animated speech to the judge that recalled the fast-talking, confident TV commercials he used to make for ZZZZ Best company, Minkow told the judge before sentence was announced that the American justice system worked.

"Today is a great day for this country. The system works ... They got the right guy," Minkow said. "To me, winning was everything, everything at all costs. Prestige, power, money and winning — that's all that counted, that's all I wanted. What else was there? This type of attitude got me where I am."

Minkow, who faces a minimum of more than eight years in federal prison before becoming eligible for parole, tried to show to the judge he was sincerely accepting responsibility for his actions by offering not to appeal his conviction. He also apologized to victims of the fraud, turning to them and saying, "I'm going to get what I've got coming because I deserve it."

In addition to the prison term, U.S. District Judge Dickran Tevzian ordered Minkow to pay $28 million to swindled banks and investors and ordered five years' probation. He said he considered Minkow's contrition to be bull manure, or as he put it, "In Anglized Spanish, el toro poop-o."

"You're dangerous because you have this charismatic ability, this gift of gab," Tevzian said.

"You have no conscience for anything, no feeling for anything but Barry Minkow. This thing about winning is an excuse, because if you had any moral fiber you'd have known what you were doing was wrong from day one."

Minkow founded ZZZZ Best at age 16 in his parents' garage and its stock soon skyrocketed on Wall Street. Minkow hawked his company's services on television.

Study: State workers need increases

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — The average state employee makes $19,000, has worked for the state eight years and makes less than most workers in the Southeast and in local governments, a study released Monday shows.

"State employees' pay increases have not kept pace with other southeastern states or local governments," Department of Administration Secretary Adia Vila wrote in a study of state workers' salaries and job benefits mandated by last year's Legislature.

Vila's study took state officials to task for a "piecemeal" approach to pay raises and recommended more money be set aside to grant employees merit increases in pay or one-time lump sum bonuses.

The survey, which was submitted to legislative leaders and Gov. Bob Martinez, also recommended keeping the current salary structure — one with a minimum and maximum salary for a particular job — in place in lieu of setting across-the-board salaries for all workers.

The study recommended granting pay raises to workers in lower salary brackets instead of benefit increases because they might need the increased take-home pay, while allowing upper management to select benefit increases over salary hikes to take advantage of tax breaks.

The study shows Florida ranks 11th of the 14 southeastern states surveyed when it comes to average annual salaries and that 63 percent of the state Career Service workers make less than $20,000 annually.

Of that number, 63 percent are women and 40 percent are minorities, according to the study.

The survey showed Florida's benefits plans are competitive, but recommended bidding health care plans on a five-year basis instead of a two-year basis to insure stability.

The study showed state employee pay grade minimums are, on the average, 11.39 percent lower than local government minimums and that average salaries are lower by an average of 12.9 percent.

The survey also showed most state workers make less — as much as 50 percent or more in some cases — than their private sector counterparts — but there are some state job classifications where the pay scale is higher.

For example, a state statistician makes more than 57 percent less than a private sector statistician, while an accounting services supervisor has an average salary that is more than 9 percent higher than the private sector.

State appraisers fare even worse, making an average of more than 68 percent less than they would in private industries, while custodial workers enjoy a salary that is more than 25 percent higher than in the private market.

Overall, the study showed more than 110,000 state workers made less than $25,000 a year while about 8,000 Career Service employees made more than $30,000 annually.

Over the workers making more than $30,000 a year, about 2,800 were minorities or women, the survey showed.

Parkin pleads guilty in defense fraud case

United Press International

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Defense consultant William Parkin, hospitalized 10 days earlier for an apparent suicide attempt, pleaded guilty to charges he schemed to bilge a Navy engineer who helped Parkin's industry clients on contract awards.

Parkin, 65, who received a medal in 1983 when he retired as a senior Pentagon procurement official, hung his head and spoke softly Monday while entering his plea to three counts: conspiracy, bribery of a public official and wire fraud.

A divorced father of four, he faces a maximum sentence of 25 years in prison and fines of up to $750,000.

Parkin is regarded as a key figure in the FBI and Naval Investigative Service's sweeping "Operation Ill Wind" probe of allegations industry consultants bribed defense procurement officials for contract information.

Investigators have evidence — including wiretapped telephone conversations — that a dozen or more consultants ran a ring of corruption that involved scores of government and industry figures and tainted the awarding of defense contracts worth hundreds of millions, if not billions, of dollars, federal law enforcement sources say.

Parkin's plea was described by a federal law enforcement source as "significant" because of his pledge to fully cooperate with investigators.

Parkin told U.S. District Judge Claude Hilton he was "very satisfied" with the terms of his plea agreement.

His lawyer, Gerard Treanor, told reporters Parkin's "health is improving."

"He feels well and he feels this was the appropriate step to take," Treanor said, acknowledging there was "little likelihood" Parkin would escape a jail term.

On March 18, Parkin's daughter found him at his home after he apparently had taken an overdose of pills, sources close to the case have said. The apparent suicide attempt reportedly came a day after Parkin had been told that some of his co-defendants were pleading guilty and it appeared doubtful he could escape conviction by going to trial.

Law enforcement sources said Monday they expect him to provide information that touches on other aspects of the inquiry. For example, Parkin has been a friend of high-powered consultant William Galvin, a partner of former Assistant Navy Secretary Melvyn Palsley. Galvin and Palsley both are targets of the investigation.

The scheme involving Parkin, the focus of the first indictment in a nearly 3-year-old investigation, has now led to guilty pleas by five individuals and his two contractor clients, the Hazeltine Corp., a subsidiary of the Emerson Electric Co., St. Louis, and Teledyne Industries Inc., Newbury Park, Calif.

Parkin had been scheduled to face trial next Monday along with fellow consultant Fred Lackner and three former executives of Teledyne's electronics division. Parkin's guilty plea, along with earlier pleas from Navy engineer Stuart Berlin and a former Teledyne marketing representative, will heighten the pressure on the remaining defendants. All those who have pleaded have pledged to cooperate with investigators in return for leniency.

Court considers juvenile death penalties

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Death penalty statutes should be brought into line with other laws that treat juveniles differently, a lawyer representing a murderer sentenced to death for a crime committed at age 16 told the Supreme Court.

The comments came Monday as the court heard oral arguments in two cases dealing with whether the court should set a minimum age for capital punishment, a question the court has so far been unable to answer.

Nancy McKerrow, representing a death row prisoner from Missouri who was 16 at the time of his crime, told the court that "children are not small adults. ... Even the most mature adult is still a child."

She said that in Missouri a 16-year-old is not eligible to vote, sit on a jury or even witness an execution. She said giving the death penalty to those under age 18 violates the Constitution's Eighth Amendment ban on cruel and unusual punishment.

Frank Heft, representing a convicted killer from Kentucky who was 17 at the time of his crime, said the death penalty has no deterrent value for juveniles, who he said have no fear of death.

John Morris, representing the state of Missouri, said the criminals are "sentenced to death for what they did, not what they are," and said the "ultimate question is what did he do and how culpable was he."

Frederic Cowan, the attorney general of Kentucky, said the argument that people become sophisticated, mature and responsible adults at the age of 18 "flies in the face of common sense."

The cases present the court with the question of whether ordering the execution of a 16- or 17-year-old criminal violates the Eighth Amendment ban on cruel and unusual punishment.

The cases are also of special importance because only eight justices took part in last term's ruling involving an Oklahoma convict sentenced to die.

Rescuing the ozone

Realistic students of international politics dismiss the idea of one-world government as fantasy. But when it comes to rescuing the Earth's ozone layer, more and more political leaders are unabashed "one-worlders."

This was apparent recently in London when a 123-nation conference reached virtually unanimous agreement that harmful chemicals are destroying the upper atmospheric ozone layer. Scientists worry that as the layer thins, ultraviolet radiation from the sun will increase skin cancer and cataracts, reduce resistance to disease, the damage plants and marine life.

These harmful chemicals, called chlorofluorocarbons or CFCs, are widely used in aerosol propellants, refrigerants, air conditioners, fast-food cartons and computer solvents. They also trap heat and warm the planet in a process known as the "greenhouse effect," which has been blamed for climate changes.

As the London conference ended, 20 nations promised to sign an accord, known as the Montreal Protocol, requiring that CFCs be cut in half by the turn of the century. Thirty-three nations have already signed it, and another 14 are thinking seriously about doing it. The Soviet Union is hanging back, declaring it needs more scientific proof of the danger.

But the highly industrialized nations of the West, including the United States, are dedicated to totally banning the chemicals by the year 2000 by using newly developed substitutes. Since these countries produce and use 80 percent of all CFCs, this would go far toward controlling the threat.

Some Third World countries, however, believe the industrialized countries should fund their efforts to find substitutes to CFCs. For instance, China and India protest that they are just now getting into mass production of consumer goods using CFCs and, since the West invented and produces most of the chemicals, they argue that the West should pay to replace them.

Certainly the West can provide technical expertise, but a U.S. official rightly pointed out that it is up to developing countries to create a better business climate to attract Western investors to help solve a problem that makes a mockery of national interest.

Door-to-door sushi?

Shaklee Corp., a door-to-door sales outfit, is about to be purchased by a Japanese company. We're usually the one to sound the alarm about foreign ownership, but this one has interesting possibilities. Maybe the Japanese can inject some decorum into the sales technique of leaning on friends and neighbors. Can we offer Japan a deal on Avon, Amway, and Mary Kaye, too?

Murder capital, boom town or both?

WASHINGTON — Two conditions — apparently contradictory — can exist at the same time. So it is in my adopted hometown, Washington, D.C. And so it is in regard to Washington's strange mayor, Marion Barry.

One word has come to label Washington — "murder." On television and in magazines, it is said that Washington is "the murder capital of the United States."

It is true. In 1988, Washington had the highest murder rate in America. Since Jan. 1, the rate is 83 percent higher than last year. It is a tragedy.

Some facts: The great majority of the deaths were drug-related, with drug dealers killing drug dealers. Young black males constitute almost all of those involved. The killings are clustered in certain poor black neighborhoods.

Beyond the personal tragedy, the killings have tarnished the image of the nation's capital. The Europeans have been leading the evening television news with videotape of killings in Washington in the context of a city locked in war, out of control, a metaphor of American urban destruction.

That is one picture of Washington. Here is another: In the last 10 years the number of people employed has gone way up, the number of tourists has soared, and total office space has grown incredibly (up by 38 percent from 1983 to 1987). Income has gone up faster than the national rate. Among statewide jurisdictions, only Connecticut surpasses the District of Columbia in income.

Many commercial development experts believe that the Washington area today (including the Virginia and Maryland suburbs) has the healthiest, most vigorously growing economy in America. The city has blossomed as a true international capital in ways intellectual, cultural, social, political and economic. There is a brilliant new transit system that is safe and usually on time.

If you don't live near the killing fields, Washington is often a great place to live for most whites and most blacks. There are handsome single-family houses in tree-lined neighborhoods inside a 15-minute radius of downtown. That is unusual, if not unique, among world-class cities. Try replicating such neighborhoods in New York, London, Tokyo or Paris.

Washington equals murder and violence — accurate. Washington equals prosperity and gracious living — accurate. Two images, apparently contradictory, coexisting.

So too with Washington's weirdo Mayor Marion Barry, first elected in 1978. He has presided over a corrupt city government; key aides have gone to jail. Barry has been investigated for drug use and corruption, and is being investigated again. His personal behavior makes one wonder what adjective outranks flaky. A role model he ain't. Nor a geopolitician; he says we should invade five Latin American nations to deal with the drug epidemic. (Washington also has the standard urban horror stories of poor services and potholes.)

Bad stuff. But the political rules of the road stipulate that a politician in office when good things happen will claim credit for the good things. Barry has been in office when Washington boomed and blossomed. He claims cause and effect.

Indeed, it should be noted that he has worked closely with developers to bring new construction to town, much of it very creative.

"If you don't live near the killing fields, Washington is a great place to live."

Coal royalty cut irks some Western states

WASHINGTON — The Interior Department gave a huge gift to the coal industry in the last days of the Reagan administration — a gift that would have made even James Watt blush.

A new regulation was passed that drastically cut the royalties coal companies pay for mining on federal land. The man in charge of coal policy at the Interior Department, Assistant Secretary Steven Griles, has since walked out of public service and into a job as senior vice president of a coal company in Virginia.

Ethics officials at the Interior Department told us Griles followed the rules by officially excusing himself from deciding the royalties issue before he began shopping for an industry job last fall. Griles told us there was no conflict of interest and that Interior Secretary Donald Hodel approved the royalties issue.

But sources in the department say it was Griles' brainchild and would never have passed without his endorsement. "Griles was the only one who really understood the issues. Hodel could have cared less. Nothing moved out at that level without Griles' fingerprints all over it," one veteran industry analyst told us.

Our associate Jim Lynch interviewed nine Interior officials privy to the story behind the regulation that has triggered a furor in Western mining states.

Those sources said Griles, the department's authority on coal issues, pushed for the regulation against the advice of his staff. The new regulation allows coal companies to deduct certain taxes and fees before they calculate their royalty payments to the federal government. The rationale behind the change is that it would stimulate greater coal production on federal land.

Karen Larsen, a senior analyst for the U.S. Office of Technology Assessment, said no one who has studied federal coal issues agrees with that rationale. Larsen also noted that even former Secretary of Interior James Watt, the most notorious industry advocate of the Reagan years, rejected similar cuts in the royalties in 1982.

Royalty analysts in the Interior Department recommended against the change as far back as two years ago and as recently as December. "We felt it was hard to justify," said one staffer. "It just reverses a long tradition of policy," said another.

But Griles would not listen to his staff. He listened instead to the industry that flooded the department with praise for the idea. It appears that by the time Griles stepped back from the debate, the groundwork had been done and his allies, including a loyal deputy, pushed the regulation through.

Now some Western states and Indian tribes claim they stand to lose millions of dollars in their share of the royalties.

The controversy hit new Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan squarely in the face when he took office under the new administration in February. On his desk was a letter from the Western Organization of Resource Councils representing citizen groups in Montana, Wyoming, North Dakota, South Dakota and Colorado. The group told Lujan, "If the rule goes into effect, it will result not in more federal coal production, but in an unproductive, unjustified, multi-million-dollar subsidy to users of public minerals, and a multi-million-dollar loss for cash-strapped Western states."

Key members of Congress and governors in the West made a similar pitch to Lujan, claiming that the Interior Department underestimated the damage from the decision and that Western states will lose $20 million in royalties by next year.

"Griles would not listen to his staff."

ELLEN GOODMAN

Get tough on child care

BOSTON — Not long ago, in a London hotel room, I heard one of those very British television interviews with a "royal." This time it was Princess Anne talking about her role as president of the Save the Children charity.

In the middle of the hour, quite out of the blue, the princess and mother told her interviewer directly: "I wasn't particularly keen on children — and I'm still not. But you don't actually have to like children very much to be interested in giving them the best possible start in life."

At the time, I thought she sounded like a member of Monty Python doing Princess Anne. How British can you get? Even in England the only public officials who can admit to finding little ones less than enthralling are those who inherit their titles. I have never heard anyone in American politics say they didn't ardently love the little tykes.

Now I am wondering whether Princess Anne isn't onto something. We could use fewer professions of affection, photo opportunities of love, exhortations to care, and more hardheaded and hardhearted calculations about our interest "in giving them the best possible start in life."

I have been brought to a cynical state by the endless progression of data-filled, chart-ridden, thoroughly documented and gloomy reports on the state of children in America. Reports on nutrition, education, housing, drugs, child-care. They have landed on my desk one after another.

If you can remember only one figure from these studies, let it be this one: One out of every five children in America is poor. If you can remember two figures, add this one: Our infant mortality rate is higher than 17 other industrial nations. Or add yet another: On any given night, there are 100,000 children among the homeless.

We know about these problems. But since the end of the campaign, the man who was "haunted" by these visions has done little that you couldn't read on his lips. On Inaugural Day, George Bush said we have more will than wallet. In fact we have more wallet than will. In an emergency, the government can bail out the savings and loan associations, but we lack the will to bail out children — to make the investments in their future.

As Marian Wright Edelman, the indefatigable head of The Children's Defense Fund, says: "There is no sense of urgency. Nobody wants to make any decisions. The pressure is not going to come from Washington and the White House. It will only happen when people in the country say, 'This must stop.'"

Why hasn't that happened? Why isn't there an outcry to stop this vast national case of child neglect? Children were indeed a hot topic during the endless campaign. Was it the prospect of taxes that cooled the ardor?

The young, more than the rest of us, have inherited the Reagan legacy, financial and emotional. In the course of eight years, $40 billion was cut from programs for poor children and their families while the national debt doubled. Americans were taught not to look to the government for help. Now we are told the pockets are empty.

The emotional cycle follows the economic one. As the government pulls back from social service, middle-class taxpayers look more anxiously at their own bank balances. People who cannot count on help with education for their children or medical costs for their old age become more and more concerned about the need to take care of their own, and the definition of their own narrow. Read his lips.

The one idea put forward last week by the no-new-taxes administration is a tax credit for low-income families with pre-school children. It is mislabeled as a do-it-yourself, pay-for-your-own child-care assistance.

So it is time to be hardhearted. No more pictures of neo-natal clinics with the tiny babies of mothers who never got prenatal care or decent nutrition. No more television tours through the hapless welfare hotels and shelters where parents and children learn how not to be a family. No more stories about the funeral of a kid caught in a gun battle between drug dealers. No more appeals to moral sensibility or national pride.

Just the facts, Marian Edelman states them baldly. Look at these kids, she says. "Tomorrow they are going to be dependent on you, shooting at you, or working for you."

"One out of every five children in America is poor."

Stocks open higher

United Press International

NEW YORK — Prices opened higher Tuesday in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues, extending gains won in the previous session.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 14.82 Monday, was up 10.35 to 2268.21 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 370-223 among the 1,011 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Early turnover amounted to about 8,524,000 shares.

Stock prices closed higher Monday in the slowest trading session so far this year, boosted by futures-related buying and bargain hunting in the wake of the market's decline last week.

Analysts said the market got its initial lift from bargain hunting following the 49.10-point drop in the Dow last week, but trading was sluggish throughout the session as many investors remained on the sidelines.

Around midday, traders said the market got a boost from futures-related buying.

Dollar moves higher

United Press International

The dollar was higher Tuesday in moderate trading on major foreign currency markets as full participation returned after a four-day Easter weekend in Europe. Gold was lower.

In Tokyo, the dollar, after briefly hitting the 133-yen plateau for the first time since Oct. 7, 1988 closed at 132.90 yen, up 0.6C from 132.30 yen on Monday.

After opening higher at 133.00 yen, the dollar's highest opening rate since Oct. 7 when the dollar started at 133.82 yen, the dollar soared to the day's high of 133.25 yen.

The dollar, however, weakened to 132.82 yen after Finance Minister Taro Murayama mentioned possible intervention by the central bank.

Dealers said Murayama's comment urging caution if the dollar rises above 133 yen, dampened trading later in the day.

The dollar also ended higher in Singapore at 1.9485 Singapore dollars, up from 1.941 last Thursday.

In Hong Kong, the dollar eased to 7.7875 Hong Kong dollars, down from 7.7885.

In Europe, the dollar began the day in Frankfurt at 1.882 West German marks, up from 1.8865 marks on last Thursday.

The dollar began the day in Zurich at 1.64 Swiss francs, up from 1.621. In Paris, the dollar opened at 6.3635 French francs, up from 6.315.

The dollar opened in Brussels at 39.56 Belgian francs, up from 39.21, and began the day in Italy at 1,380.50 Italian lire, up from 1,373.40 lire.

Oil spill raises prices

United Press International

U.S. oil prices shot up on the New York Mercantile Exchange Monday, spurred by fears the largest spill in American history would restrict Alaskan production.

British Petroleum Co., the largest producer of Alaskan oil, told United Press International it is considering declaring Friday's spill of more than 250,000 barrels by the Exxon Valdez tanker a "force majeure" or act of God. Webster said such a declaration would protect the company from failure to deliver crude oil under current contracts to its customers. "We are considering it. We have not done it," Webster said.

West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude for immediate delivery, rose 38 cents to close at $20.53 on the Merc.

"What we hope to do," said Kirby, "is give these students the self-esteem they need to do well."

Kirby said that the instructors (all of whom are certified) in every school program, but especially in the disruptive program, have assumed a very positive approach to helping the students. Rather than dwelling on what the students are doing wrong, they accentuate the good things they have done.

Teachers are assisted in their ability to understand and deal with students' concerns and problems by peer counselors, two staff counselors and a social worker who works with the home in getting to the root of problems.

"You'd be surprised how much the peer counselors can help the teachers help other students deal with their concerns," said Kirby.

Often classes evolve into group discussions that bring out issues that are relevant to the students and come up with ways to solve the dilemmas.

An advantage Crooms has over other schools in dealing with discipline problems is that they mandate that parents become involved.

"We can't do it ourselves," Kirby explained. "We make them get involved."

Students can not stay at Crooms indefinitely, they must be mainstreamed back into their zone schools to make room for others who need the special guidance the staff at Crooms offers.

Deputy

Other deputies arrived at the scene and found that the deputy and the suspect had both been fatally wounded. Deputies found the two men lying about 30 feet apart.

Another witness, D. B. Rucker, said he was taking a walk on Snowhill Road when the dark-colored Jeep-type vehicle passed him. He said there were three white males in the vehicle. The vehicle stopped and one person got out before the vehicle drove away.

As Rucker continued his walk, he said, he approached Banks, who was standing on the roadside armed with a rifle.

Rucker said he walked back to his house, where he and his wife heard three shots fired.

Thomas is the first Seminole County sheriff's deputy to be killed in the line of duty in more than eight years.

Planner

Lauderdale cited a "personal conflict" between Cohen and Welling which he told the gentlemen to resolve otherwise he would fire them.

In his letter of resignation, Cohen stated that "personal welfare and health take precedence over an employment situation which has deteriorated since November, 1988" and he mentioned an "employee clique that cannot distinguish between personal matters and professionalism."

He said that other workers told him that Welling said he would see Cohen "run out of town like a whipped puppy with his tail between his knees."

Lauderdale said Welling would not speak to the press because of the nature of the matter, but said Welling told him the whole thing was "ludicrous."

Cohen officially filed a grievance which he turned in to Lauderdale on Jan. 4. The grievance alleged poor working conditions "affecting my performance as a city employee (and which) could affect my professional planning reputation." He asked that an investigation be made, that he be exonerated in writing of the charges regarding harassment and that appropriate disciplinary measures be initiated.

Lauderdale, in a written answer, denied Cohen's request for an investigation because he considered the situation a personal conflict between Cohen and Welling and because no formal charges were actually made against Cohen.

Cohen said that his marriage has been strained as a result of these allegations.

"It is apparent that the disdain for myself by other city employees is the result of promotional rumors associated with the hiring of the new city manager," Cohen said.

Lauderdale, who gave Cohen an excellent review in October said, "I frankly to this day feel the city of Lake Mary could have had an exceptionally good planner. I wish the man well."

Youth

David was more surprised than anything. They thought they had unloaded the gun. They didn't realize there was one in the chamber. He started crying and Jonathan carried to a neighbor's house," Mrs. Jump said.

That neighbor, Theodore Migdalaki, 71, told Seminole County sheriff's deputies the boys came into his kitchen, where Paul started to collapse. Migdalaki called the 911 emergency phone number and put clean towels to Paul's abdomen to curb the bleeding until help arrived.

Mrs. Jump said both she and her husband Phillip were at their jobs at the the University of Central Florida when Paul was wounded.

The accident, she said, will change the way they store their gun, but they will keep the weapon. The the ammunition, will now be locked away. She said her sons have been taught about gun safety, but didn't follow the rules. Mrs. Jump said, she is grateful to God that Paul survived the shooting. She added that is the legal right of her family to own a gun and they will keep that means of protection.

Suit

"I would very much like to see us get out of this litigation," Mayor Bettye Smith said.

The Fifth District Court of Appeals upheld the collection of a countywide transportation impact fee in a March 9 decision, overturning a Seminole County circuit court decision in favor of the three cities who contested the fee. Seminole County Circuit Judge Lefler ruled that Sanford, Casselberry and Winter Springs were entitled to "opt-out" of road impact fee collection under the Florida constitution.

The appellate court sent the case back to circuit court to try other issues. In a March 16 letter to Smith, Seminole County Commissioner Sandra Glenn said the county would file a motion to dismiss the case. City attorney Bill Colbert told the commission last night he would have to respond to that motion within 10 days.

Commissioner A. A. McClanahan said he wanted a good working relationship between Sanford and Seminole County, but not if Sanford has to make all the concessions. "I like courtship," he said. "...but I don't want to do all the court-ing."

More gun controls explored by Bush

Top officials fly to oil spill site

United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Bush met with top government leaders to explore possible further action to combat the rising use of semiautomatic weapons by criminals, particularly drug dealers.

Alixie Glen, deputy White House press secretary, described Monday's meeting as a "wide-ranging discussion of the situation." She said the group reached no decisions, and declined to predict when the president would do so.

Glen said Bush conferred with federal drug czar William Bennett, Attorney General Richard Thornburgh, Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady and Drug Enforcement Administration Director John Lawn.

Also attending the session were White House chief of staff John Sununu and Stephen Higgins, director of the Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

The 30-minute session was part of a review of semiautomatic weapons that began March 14 when the administration imposed a ban on the import of five types of "assault weapons," Glen said.

That ban is to remain in effect until the administration determines if the guns have a legitimate sporting use.

At Monday's meeting, Bush and the agency heads discussed a number of related issues, including a bill opposed by the NRA and sponsored by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said White House press secretary Marilyn Fitzwater.

Metzenbaum's measure, supported by several police groups, would ban specific semiautomatic assault weapons as well as those that are "substantially identical."

VALDEZ, Alaska — With the nation's worst oil spill prompting a personal inspection Tuesday by three top Bush administration officials, Exxon conceded its effort to clean up millions of gallons of Alaska crude is in trouble.

"Recovering the oil that was released after the grounding is not proceeding well," said Exxon Shipping Co. President Frank Iarossi late Monday. "Believe me, that is an understatement."

Ever since the 987-foot tanker Exxon Valdez sliced into a reef Friday and spilled about one-fifth of its 53-million-gallon cargo of oil into pristine Prince William Sound, Iarossi has voiced optimism about his company's ability to deal with the spill.

But he has come under increasing attack by state officials, environmentalists and fishermen for Exxon's sputtering efforts to corral the oil using dispersant chemicals, spot fires and skimming boats.

The Coast Guard has stood by Exxon, supporting company efforts to get the job done. But Recovering the oil that was released after the grounding is not proceeding well.

-Frank Iarossi, Exxon Shipping Co. President

Tuesday, the federal government decided to take a closer look at what was going on near the southern Alaska oil port.

The U.S. secretary of transportation, the head of the Environmental Protection Agency, and the Coast Guard commandant all were flying from the nation's capital to the small oil port city of 3,600 to view first hand the desperate attempt to save Alaska's fragile coastal environment.

Iarossi's comments that the clean-up was not going well represented the first Exxon admission about something state officials have been saying all along — that Exxon was falling to check the spill or recover oil.

For the first three days after the spill, Exxon made plans, mobilized forces and conducted spill-fighting tests — doing virtually no real cleanup.

Exxon planned to launch its cleanup effort Monday, but by then the perfect weather had been blown away by a wind storm. Winds whipped the oil into a thick frothy goo that Coast Guard Cmdr. Steve McCall labeled "chocolate mousse."

"What happened was our worst fears," Iarossi said, "and that was that very high winds gusting up to 73 mph essentially stamped that slick out of the center of Prince William Sound."

The oil took off to the west and washed ashore on several islands and 8-foot-high waves even took oil into the trees, said Al Kiegler of the state Department of Environmental Conservation.

"It's unbelievable," Iarossi said. "That slick is moving like it's on a superhighway."

Coast Guard spokesman Todd Nelson said oil contaminated shores of several islands. Monday's wind storm prevented burning of oil and made recovery efforts impossible. Winds also grounded planes for most of the day, but late Monday the Coast Guard flew over the spill and Nelson said it stretched 40 miles southwest of the tanker.

Weather also prevented aerial spraying with chemical dispersants until late in the day, but the effectiveness on the oil and the safety of the chemical on underwater life was debated.

Fishermen said the oil threatened their $100 million fishery, but that the dispersant threatened the quality of the fish.

Numerous fishermen said international buyers may turn their backs on fish from Prince William Sound, which just a few days ago was considered one of the most pristine marine environments on Earth.

Nelson shocked by new faces

Had Don Nelson known Larry Krystkowiak would come along, he might not have left Milwaukee.

Facing Nelson for the first time since he left Milwaukee to become head coach at Golden State, the Bucks got 26 points from Krystkowiak and 19 from Fred Roberts in cruising to a 121-109 victory over the visiting Warriors.

Krystkowiak, who also had 14 rebounds, and Roberts joined the Bucks following Nelson's departure after the 1986-87 season. Another new comer, Jay Humphries, added 14 points for the Bucks.

In other games, Detroit pounded Dallas 90-77, New York rolled past Charlotte 121-105, Miami crushed New Jersey 100-79, Indiana held off Cleveland 104-102, Utah romped over Seattle 124-105 and the Los Angeles Clippers nipped Denver 119-118.

Saints go marchin' in

United Press International

NEW YORK — The emotional and physical rigors of the Big East season provided the same dividends for St. John's in the National Invitation Tournament they way did for the Redmen's conference foes in the NCAA's.

"If they play that physically all year long in that league, it's a wonder they finish the season with any healthy bodies," Alabama-Birmingham Coach Gene Bartow said after the Redmen topped his Blazers 76-65 Monday night in the NIT semifinals.

Malik Sealy and Jayson Williams scored 17 points each and keyed the decisive first-half run, sending St. John's into the title matchup Wednesday night against St. Louis.

"Any way you look at it, we're national champions if we win the NIT," said Williams, who also grabbed 11 rebounds. "Right now we're in the Final Four. It's not the NCAA (Tournament), but I'm content with it."

The Redmen, 19-13, are bidding for a record fifth NIT title after missing the NCAA field for the first time since 1981. St. Louis defeated Michigan State 74-64 earlier Monday night in the other semifinal.

St. John's posted its worst record in the history of the Big East this year and lost to last-place Boston College in the qualifying game of the league tournament to wind up in the NIT. Conference foes Seton Hall, Syracuse and Georgetown reached the NCAA's final eight, with the Pirates headed to next weekend's Final Four at Seattle.

"The loss to Boston College was a bitter pill," said St. John's Coach Lou Carnesecca, whose team pounded the Blazers 46-32 on the boards. "But sometimes you learn from that."

"At this time of year you play on adrenaline, on emotion. That kid (Jason) Buchanan was spent out there, but he did it anyway."

The Redmen, who went on the road just once in three previous NIT games this year, often play at Madison Square Garden during the regular season. The homecourt edge was somewhat tempered by a quiet crowd of 8,440 — less than half of capacity.

Jason Buchanan and Robert Werdann added 12 points apiece for the Redmen. Reginald Turner led Alabama-Birmingham, 21-12, with 20 points, while Barry Bearden had 14 and Alan Ogg 11.

OVIDEO — Oviedo High School scored two runs in the bottom of the third inning to break a 1-1 tie and take a 3-1 victory over St. Francis from Buffalo, N.Y. Monday afternoon at Oviedo High School.

The Lions improved to 6-9 overall and will return to action today in the Apopka Invitational Tournament against Brooksville-Hernando. St. Francis fell to 8-8 for the season.

"We're finally starting to hit, but we're leaving way to many base runners," Oviedo coach Mike Ferrell said. "We left 14 runners on against Winter Park on Saturday and eight today. We're hitting, but we're not getting that one big hit. When we start getting the big hit we'll start winning more games."

The Lions broke on top in the bottom of the first inning with lead off hitter Micah Kinnaird reaching on an error by the third baseman, B.J. Capala then connected on a hit and run single to place runners on first and third.

Ferrell again called for a hit and run, this time with Greg Hughes at the plate. Hughes connected on a ground out to second that scored Kinnaird and moved Capala to second to give Oviedo a 1-0 advantage.

St. Francis evened the score in the top of the second when center fielder and clean up hitter Jamie Calveric led off with a towering home run over the left field fence to tie the game at 1-1.

That was the lone hit that Capala, who finished as the winning pitcher gave up, Brian MacInness came on Lake Brantley dug itself an early hole against Germantown (Tennessee) in the opening round of the Colonial Classic on Monday, giving up 10 runs in the first two innings. But the Patriots were able to make things interesting, rallying for five runs in the seventh before losing 12-9.

High school nines hindered by slow start in tournament play

From staff reports

It wasn't the best of times for local prep baseball teams playing in tournaments on Monday.

The Lake Brantley Patriots, playing in the 10th annual Colonial Classic in Orlando, fell to Germantown (Tennessee) 12-9 in their opening round game while at the Apopka Invitational, the Lake Howell Silver Hawks dropped an 8-1 decision to Jacksonville Sandalwood.

Two more local teams jump into action today, Lake Mary playing Fresno-McLane (California) today at noon in the Colonial Classic and Oviedo playing Brooksville-Hernando at 10 a.m. in the Apopka Invitational.

At Colonial's Epperson Field on Monday, Germantown (6-2) erupted for six runs in the top of the first inning, then added four more in the second to coast past the Patriots (8-8). Lake Brantley made things interesting with a five-run rally in the bottom of the seventh to close the gap.

Lake Brantley did get a pair of home runs in the game from first baseman Jim Morse and catcher Jason Varitek in the contest.

Meanwhile, the Silver Hawks of Lake Howell saw a close game blown open when Jacksonville Sandalwood broke open a 2-1 game with a five-run rally in the bottom of the fourth inning.

Lake Howell, which was on a two-game win streak going into the game, had only four hits and committed three errors in the game.

Yankees reacquire Balboni

The New York Yankees shored up their right-handed power hitting Monday when they acquired designated hitter Steve Balboni from the Seattle Mariners for pitcher Dana Ridenour.

Balboni, originally selected by the Yankees in the fourth round of the June 1978 draft, was signed as a free agent by Seattle last season. He hit .251 with 21 home runs and 61 RBI in 97 games. During the offseason, he was awarded a 1989 salary of $800,000 by an arbitrator, a move that upset Mariners management.

Elsewhere, the Cleveland Indians sent right-handed pitcher Neil Allen to the minor leagues and the baseball commissioner's office reported Monday that there would not be a ruling in the Pete Rose case at least until the end of the week. The spokesman added that a ruling still might not be forthcoming at the end of the week, and it might be much longer before an announcement was made.

49ers sign another free agent

SAN FRANCISCO — Spencer Tillman, who was little used as a running back during two seasons in Houston, agreed to a two-year contract with the San Francisco 49ers, a team spokesman announced Monday.

The 205-pound Tillman was the fifth unprotected free agent to be signed by the 49ers.

Although Tillman gained only 34 yards on 15 carries for the Oilers, administrator John McVay noted that Tillman was a good special teams player who could handle kickoff runbacks.

McVay described Tillman, a former star at Oklahoma, as a "utility running back" who "catches the ball well."

Tillman said, "I would love to get a shot at returning some kickoffs."

Canadiens, Flames roll along

Statistics indicate that as long as Montreal has home-ice advantage and as long as Calgary makes sure it leads after two periods, the respective conference leaders will be nearly impossible to stop in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Montreal, leading the Wales Conference with 112 points, has been unbeatable at home with Patrick Roy in goal. Monday night, the home-standing Canadiens improved to 25-0-3 at the Forum with Roy in goal by whipping the Boston Bruins 5-2.

Meanwhile, the Campbell Conference-leading Calgary Flames (113 points) boosted their mark when leading after two periods to 43-0-2 with a 3-2 triumph over the Minnesota North Stars.

Elsewhere, New Jersey whipped Philadelphia 5-3 and St. Louis edged Detroit 3-2.

BOSTON — After watching the three new Celtics lead Boston to a victory over Philadelphia, the 76ers' Mike Gminski wondered about the magical properties of the green-and-white uniform.

"I think that putting on a Celtic uniform must be something like putting on a Yankee uniform — it just makes you play better," Gminski said after Sunday's 105-103 loss to Boston. "A big plus for a player coming in here is that he isn't expected to be a savior. The other team will be focused on the Parishers and McHales and Birds and that leaves you open to do your thing."

In the past five weeks, Boston has added reserve center Joe Kleine, reserve forward Ed Pinckney and reserve guard Kelvin Upshaw. All three have been instrumental in Boston's recent rise from mediocrity. The Celtics have won seven of their last nine games and are 10-4 since Pinckney and Kleine joined the team after a Feb. 23 trade with Sacramento sent guard Danny Ainge and forward Brad Lohaus to the Kings.

Sabatini struggles to advance

United Press International

KEY BISCAKYNE — Top-seeded Gabriela Sabatini, playing her toughest match of the tournament, struggled past Ann Grossman in straight sets Monday night to reach the quarterfinals of the $2.1 million Lipton International Players Championships.

Sabatini, 18, a native of Argentina who lives on Key Biscayne, had lost just six games in her first three matches at the International Tennis Center. But she faced a stiff challenge before emerging with a 6-4, 7-6 (7-2) triumph.

Grossman, 18, of Grove City, Ohio, had 4-3 leads in each set, and led 6-5 in the second set before Sabatini held serve to force the tiebreaker.

"I think I had my chances," said Grossman, ranked 53rd in the world. "I'm a little disappointed, but at least now I know I can play with the top players."

Earlier Monday, 12th-seeded Yannick Noah overcame stomach problems in the fifth set Monday and went on to defeat fifth-seeded Jakob Hlasek 6-4, 6-4, 2-6, 7-5.

In other matches at the International Tennis Center, third-seeded Helena Sukova eliminated 10th-seeded Lori McNeil 6-3, 6-2; 15th-seeded Raffaella Reggi defeated Eva Pfaff 6-3, 6-3; seventh-seeded Thomas Muster trounced Eduardo Bengoechea 6-1, 6-1, 6-1; Carl-Uwe Steeb defeated 14th-seeded Mikael Pernfors 6-7 (5-7), 6-0, 6-1, 6-4; and

IN BRIEF

Garden Club to serve lunch

The Garden Club of Sanford will serve a fund-raising luncheon on Thursday, March 30, from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Sanford Civic Center. Proceeds will go to community service projects. Tickets, at $4.50 each, will be sold at the door. For more information, call 322-4507.

Antique autos to be shown

An antique automobile show will take place at Townsend's Plantation on Saturday, April 1. Registration will be from 8-11 a.m. Judging will start at 11 a.m. and awards will be presented at 4 p.m. A first-, second- and third-place trophy will be presented for all 22 classes of cars. For pre-registration, call Mike Lightcap at 425-7467 after 6 p.m.

Longwood library celebrating birthday

The West Branch of the Seminole County Public Library System, at 245 Hunt Club Blvd., Longwood, will celebrate its first birthday on Saturday, April 1, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Activities for children and adults will include: drawing favorite book characters in a Chalk-A-Thon from 11 a.m. to noon; blowing bubbles in the Bubble Blow from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.; and testing adults' skills with free word puzzles. For more information, call 862-2282.

Connecticut employees group to meet

The Connecticut State Employees Association Retirees Chapter 421 will hold a luncheon meeting on Saturday, April 1, at noon at Duff's Smorgasbord in the Outlet Mall, South Daytona. Officers will be installed. All chapter members and Connecticut state retirees living in Florida are welcome to attend. For more information, call Dorothy at 904-767-7003.

Class to help kids decorate T-shirts

Seminole County 4-H will sponsor another Special Interest Clothing Class in its Sewing Fun Program, titled "T" Time Fun. Youth will design and decorate a T-shirt in the class, set for Friday, March 31, from 10 a.m. to noon at the Seminole County Agriculture Center, located at Five Points. The program is open to 4-H and non-4-H youth from age 8-18. Each participant should bring a plain-colored T-shirt to decorate. Fee is $2 for supplies. Class enrollment is limited and pre-registration is required by Wednesday, March 29, by calling the Seminole County 4-H office, 323-2500, ext. 183.

Diabetics to take tour of food labels

SANFORD — Like adventurers through a land of doubletalk and half truths, participants in Central Florida Regional Hospital's "Diabetes: Take Control" education program soon will explore the jungle of food labels.

The program's participants are due to follow Mary Feick, dietitian, down the aisles of a local grocery store on Friday, March 31, to learn the true meaning of "weasel words."

"Weasel words are words used on food labels to attract buyers," Feick said. "However, they aren't exactly untrue, but aren't entirely true, either."

Such weasel words as "no preservatives," "no cholesterol," and "low in sodium" are designed to catch the eye, Feick said. But, for example, though a food may not contain preservatives, it could be high in sodium, cholesterol, total fat and sugar, she said.

A container touting no cholesterol could have food that is high in saturated fat, which is worse for one's blood-cholesterol level than dietary cholesterol, Feick said.

She added that "low in sodium" poses another question: Is the food really low in sodium or only lower in sodium than the regular brand?

Class members will learn to question words that could have several meanings or none at all. They also will discover a way to figure the percentage of fat in grams of carbohydrates, proteins and fat, as well as the number of calories in each.

Feick said participants will carry small calculators. She will provide them with printed formulas for each attendee to calculate with as well as a list of healthy snack combinations.

For more information about Feick's grocery tour, which is open to diabetics and heart-healthy patients, call 321-4500 or 668-4441, ext. 607. Reservations are needed by Wednesday.

Easter and 'grandmothers'

Standing, from left, Mary Smith, Edith Wright and Eula Nelson of the Grandmothers Hospitality Club of Seminole County prepare to serve Easter eggs and other goodies to youth at the Seminole Juvenile Detention Center in Sanford. The Easter party was held Thursday as one of the string of monthly parties the club hosts at the center to influence youth to live better lives.

Parent should keep mum about turning in a drug-dealing son

DEAR ABBY: Your well-intentioned advice to "Perplexed in California" may have endangered the parent's life. You suggested that the perplexed parent, who was aware of her son's drug dealing, warn him that he was going to be turned in if he did not stop his illegal activities. You suggested that if the son continued to deal drugs after the warning, "Perplexed" should have no qualms of conscience about blowing the whistle.

ADVICE

Abby, people who deal drugs often do it to support their own habits, and therefore may not react rationally to parental threats. I know. We advised our housekeeper, whose son was stealing her money to support his drug habit, to warn him, then lock him out of the house if he didn't mend his ways. He did not mend his ways—so his mother locked him out of the house. Her son's response to being locked out was to set fire to his mother's house while she was asleep in it! Our housekeeper barely escaped with her life and lost everything she owned in the fire.

Our newspapers are full of stories about acts of violence related to drug dealing. An addict or dealer will lie, cheat, steal, and in some cases will even murder his own parents if they try to interfere.

You should have advised "Perplexed" to notify the authorities anonymously of the drug-dealing son, and let the professionals handle it. Threatening a drug dealer—even one's own son—can be extremely dangerous. Sign me...

LEARNED BETTER IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR LEARNED BETTER: Thank you for writing. Your answer was better than mine. Within minutes of reading your letter, I received the following

IN THE SERVICE

Airman 1st Class Daniel D. Neely, son of Harold L. and Daniela G. Neely of Freeport, has graduated from Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

Neely

During the six weeks of training the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations. In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree through the community college of the Air Force.

His wife, Susan, is the daughter of Marie C. Ponterio of Altamonte Springs.

He is a 1979 graduate of Niceville High School and a 1983 graduate of the University of West Florida, Pensacola.

Western Union Mailgram:

"Dear Abby: For God's sake, contact woman whose son is possibly dealing cocaine. If she threatens to turn him in she could be signing her own death warrant. Drug dealers do not operate in a vacuum! Read article in recent Reader's Digest regarding drug dealing. Thousands have been murdered to protect cocaine interests—including judges and law enforcement agents."

Z.L.L., NORFOLK, VA.

DEAR ABBY: I have a big problem that is getting worse with time. I have a friend I've known for four years. Within the last year, her husband has been making advances toward me. This is not just my imagination. I know when a man is coming on to me. (I am not married.)

If I stay away, my friend is going to ask me why I don't come over anymore. What should I do?

FRIENDSHIP IN DANGER

DEAR IN DANGER: When at your friend's home, keep your distance from her husband. If he makes a move toward you, tell him to please cut it out because he makes you feel uncomfortable. If he persists, tell him that you would hate to stop visiting their home because you value his wife's friendship, and if she asks you why, you would be forced to tell her the truth. That should cool him down.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

Little miss

Letha Freeman, 8, a former Sanford resident, stands behind the trophy she won for her new title, Little Miss Hawaiian Tropic. The daughter of Jeanne Freeman of Orange City, Letha won the title March 11 in Ormond Beach during the sixth annual competition. Her prizes include $100 cash, $50 in gift certificates and the opportunity to represent Hawaiian Tropic in advertising campaigns. Letha attended Idylwild Elementary in Sanford until a few months ago.

Champs at talking

Bennie Alexander, exalted ruler; and Carletha Berkerson, daughter ruler. Wilson will vie for the district title at the District 2 Oratorical at 3 p.m. on April 2 at Trinity United Methodist Church. Earl E. Minott is district chairman, and Elaine Crumley is district of the district Elks education department.

Central Florida Auction is the home of good buys

Central Florida Auction, 505 S. Airport Blvd., is the newest full service auction company in the metropolitan Orlando area. They have had auctions of home furnishings every Monday evening at 7 p.m. since they first opened their doors to the public in September 1988.

Owners/auctioneers Tommy Stiffey and Gae Fine will buy, or accept on consignment, your quality antiques, modern furniture and glassware. They also offer a 10-day complete policy for your items.

Central Florida Auction is fully-equipped and licensed to liquidate any type of business or personal estate property.

The public is also invited to shop in the company's retail showroom Tuesday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Diane Adams is ready to assist you with your purchases and Eddie Arnold can deliver your purchases for a reasonable price.

Central Florida Auction is proud to be able to provide a service that you can trust and with which you can be satisfied.

Call Central Florida Auction at 323-9606 or 323-9607 for more information. Office manager Cindy Muse will be more than happy to serve you in all your purchasing needs.
