16 More Elderly Face Forced Moves In Sanford

By Karen Talley Herald Staff Writer

Sixteen elderly men and woman face relocation following Sanford's telling three more property owners their residential care facilities violate a city zoning law and must be shut down by Oct.

Another property owner, charged last week with a $250-a-day fine for allowing the same type of operation, has been linked to the city's tipoff about the latest care facilities. He, however, denies direct involvement, saying he was "only asking questions" about licensed and unlicensed operations to develop information for the lawsuit he plans against Sanford.

All four property owners were charged by the city through an ordinance prohibiting congregate

The first property owner, Charles Cameron, who has the fine against him, was cited by the city Sept. 9. The latest three were cited Oct. 16, and one of them vows "I won't give up my ladies," and is consulting an attorney. Another is 'praying it will all work out," while the third says "They might as well come take me to jail, I can't pay no $250-a-day fine."

All three also say they did not know their operations violated city law and that they have not yet told their tenants about the city's notification. The property owners also admit they are not licensed for operation by the Department of Health and Rehibilitative Services, the state's overseer of elderly care facilities. One, however, said si e did have an HRS license at one time, but was u'd by the agency in June she no longer needed it because she cares for only one person.

Games Participants May Earn Eligibility For National Contest

Floridians who qualify in Sanford's 12th annual Golden Age Games, Nov. 10-15, will be eligible to participate in the first U.S. National Senior Olympics to be held in St. Louis next summer, but some day they may be competing locally for national honors.

Horner told members of the Games Executive Committee Tuesday that Sanford's Golden Age Games served as a pattern for other senior citizen competitions which have sprung up around the state and nation.

The local Games will be the only regional qualifier in the state of Florida for the U.S. Senior Olympics to be held June 27-July 2. The national event is expected to attract approximately 5,000 qualified athletes from across the nation in the categories of cycling, swimming, golf, tennis, bowling, horseshoes, archery, track and field, half marathon, table tennis and volleyball.

Sanford has all of the events with the exception of volleyball. Participants in the USNSO must qualify before registra-tion, but those who receive recognition in their chosen sport here will be exempt from this requirement.

With the 12th annual Golden Age Games only three weeks away, the Executive Committee is making final preparations for the weeklong event for those 55 and older.

Soviets Execute Spy

MOSCOW (UPI) - The Soviet Union said today a Soviet scientific researcher was executed for spying for the United States.

The official Tass news agency said Adolf Tolkachyov, a researcher at a scientific institute in Moscow, had been an operative for American intelligence services operating from the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

The report said Tolkachyov had been convicted of treason and sentenced to death.

"The sentence has been carried out," Tass said. The report did not say when or where Tolkachyov had been arrested or when he was tried and executed.

Execution in the Soviet Union is usually conducted by firing squad.

Gem-Stuffed Budda Surfaces In Marcos Treasure Case

HONOLULU (UPI) - The tale of a gem-stuffed golden Buddha statue said to be part of a Japanese general's lost treasure surfaced again in a legal battle over assets brought to Hawaii by ousted Philippine ruler Ferdinand Marcos.

A Justice Department attorney brought up the story in asking a federal judge to take posession of a reported $7.7 million worth of jewels and peso currency seized by the U.S. Customs Service from Marcos and his 90-member entourage in February.

The one-ton statue - partially hollow for a cache of gems and fashioned with a removable head — is said to be part of a treasure belonging to World War II Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, the so-called "Tiger of Malaya" who led the Japanese forces that occupied the Philippines.

The new Philippine government of Corazon Aquino has filed suit seeking to recover those assets, claiming Marcos plundered much of the nation's wealth before he fled into Justice Department lawyer John Seibert said at a court hearing Monday the United States has no interest in the dispute and wishes to withdraw from the case.

Scibert told the judge the case was complicated by claims linking the disputed assets to the Golden Buddha and other lost treasures Marcos is accused of raiding.

President Signs Tax Reform Bill

ing overhaul of the federal tax code in a generation becomes law today with President Reagan signing the landmark bill. capping a two-year struggle for his No. 1 domestic priority.

As a result, the way Americans are taxed will be drastically changed through tax rates lowered and compressed into two income brackets and many popular deductions wiped out. Still, the bottom line of how much people pay will vary widely depending on individual circumstances.

More than 200 guests, including Cabinet members, business executives and congressional leaders from both parties planned to attend the ceremony today on the White House South Lawn. It was expected to rival any similar event in recent memory.

The signing marks the fulfillment of more than two years of wrangling among Congress, the administration and special interests, beginning with a November 1984 report from the Treasury on tax reform and ending last month with final congressional passage of the landmark compromise bill.

At center stage: The 879-page document that stands as the biggest achievement of the 99th Congress. It may remain in its present form, however, only until the 100th Congress begins to whittle away at its provisions early next year.

House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., urged supporters and critics alike Tuesday to give the new law time to work before trying to repeal onerous provisions or insert special

"After two years, thousands of hours and millions of words, the bill will be locked up on the South Lawn of the White House and I just hope the president swallows the key," Rostenkowski told the American Stock Exchange at its annual international in- long-term capital gains.

vestment Conference in Washington. "The stability that business has long begged for is at hand," he declared. One of the primary architects of the measure, Rostenkowski noted with concern that many of the industry lobbyists who lost under the legislation already are laying plans for next year's "technical correction"

That inevitable document will clean up unintentional errors but also may insert changes for the lucky few who manage to convince Congress they were unnecessarily hurt by the legislation or unfairly disadvantaged because their competitors got a break and they did not.

The huge tax document embraces the basic concepts of reform that sharply reduces rates and eliminates many tax preferences, but it is a far cry from the picture of simplicity that the president and congressional supporters first painted.

The current structure of 15 tax rates, ranging from 11 percent to 50 percent for individuals and up to 46 percent for corporations, will be condensed. When fully effective in 1988, the two top rates would fall to 28 percent for individuals and 34 percent for corporations.

During a phase-in period next year, there will be five rates for individuals with a top rate of 38.5 percent.

The measure retains mortgage interest deductions for first and second homes, restricts the tax deductibility of contributions to Individual Retirement Accounts. retains deductions for property taxes while repealing writeoffs for sales taxes, raises the floor for medical deductions from 5 percent to 7.5 percent of adjusted gross income, and eliminates the preferential treatment of eral Edwin Meese, making his first foray in a long-promised war against pornography, plans to create a team of federal lawyers to help state and locals prosecutors crack down on smut.

Meese, acting on a recommendation from his Attorney General's Commission on Pornography, planned to announce the formation of the obscenity task force at a news conference today. The team will focus on cases of child pornography, and "violent and degrading" materials, a Justice Department official said.

Meese also planned to announce the establishment of a national data base for pornography to serve as an information clearinghouse for state, local and federal law enforcement officials.

The plan, however - described by one official as "fairly modest" - falls far short of the commission's call for law enforcement crackdowns nationwide.

The controversial panel, set up in Mav 1985 by President Reagan and Meese with promises of administration action, issued a 2.000-page report in July with 92 recommendations calling for a revamping of federal and state laws to more rigorously pursue pornographers.

Several anti-pornography leaders halled the attorney general's moves but said they would withhold judgment until they see some results.

Jerry Kirk, a Presbyterian pastor who met recently with Meese as president of the National Coalition Against Pornography, said he was encouraged by the announcement but he and other antipornography leaders "don't want something that looks good but isn't.

Attorney Barry Lynn of the American Civil Liberties Union, which has condemned the commission report as too broad and unscientific, said he was pleased Meese decided to respond with only limited proposals.

House Race Pits Pair From Mt. Dora

By Paul C. Schaefer Herald Staff Writer

The survivor of a six-way primary race will square off against an unopposed primary candidate in the Nov. 4 election for the Florida House of Representatives District 27 seat.

Six Republicans lined up to vie for the seat, being vacated by Rep. Bobby Brantley. R-Longwood, who joined gubernatorial candiate Bob Martinez as his running-mate for lieutenant governor

While the Republicans duked it out for the nomination, eventually won by insurance executive Stan Bainter, the Democratic nominee had a quiet fall. Unopposed in the primaries, Jeff Book quietly stalked voters at meetings and candidate forums. Both finalists are from Mt. Dora.

Bainter won his party's nomination by defeating runoff opponent Tully Patrowicz. The two survived a six way race in the Sept. 2 first primary. Candidates eliminated were Joe Creamons, Sanford: Greg Gay, Longwood; Dick Van Der Weide, Longwood, and Jim Williamson.

Van Der Weide was the top primary vote getter in Seminole County in the Sept. 2 primary, followed by Gay. Bainter finished last in the 11 Seminole precincts included in the district, with only 126 votes. However, totals from Lake, Marion, Putnam, and Volusia counties gave Bainter the nomination by a margin of about 3-2.

Bainter also received the endorsements of the four Republicans who were eliminated in the Sept. 2 primary.

Book is a 27-year-old attorney from Mt. Dora, who was once a legislative aide to State Rep. Everett Kelly. He is a member of The Florida Bar, the American Bar Association, and the Economic Development Council. His law degree came from the University of Florida. A Mississippi native, he is a 25-year resident of the district.

Bainter, 55, is a self employed insurance executive and a Florida resident since 1959. He is a U.S. Army veteran of the Korean War. He is the director of the Lake County Agriculture Advisory Council and attended the U.S. Armed Forces Institute, the University of Miami, and Valencia Community College.

Here are the candidates' responses to League of Women Voter's questions:

1. Florida's new growth management legislation requires that adequate infrastructure (schools, roads, social services, etc.) be in place concurrent with development. What revenue sources would you support to fund the requirements of this legislation?

Bainter: Growth itself provides much of the revenue by increasing the tax base. Before we increase sales tax let us first have a full investigation of every state department for waste. HRS, DOT, the Insurance Department, etc. Finally, let's implement Workfare programs to reduce the cost of Welfare.

Book: I like Republican Gov. Thomas Kean's "infrastructure bank," which lets the state raise money through bonds, and then loan the money at low or no interest to local governments needing infrastructure investment. Bonds spread the cost out over time, and let us pay for improvements as we use them. 2. How would you solve the problems of overcrowded criminal court systems and the overpopulated prison system?

Bainter: The 5th Judicial Circuit is not overcrowded. We must legislate a penalty system so severe that it will create a deterrent to crime. It may cause an immediate overcrowding, but will reduce crime and overcrowding in the long run. Light sentencing does not work.

Book: Criminals must face swift and certain punishment, and therefore we need good judges and tough prosecutors to make the system work. A society that can send a man to the moon and back ought to be able to find a way to keep its people safe from criminals.

3. The Carnegie Report, released in May of 1986, says: "We do not believe the educational system needs repairing: we believe it must be rebuilt to match the drastic changes needed in our economy if we are to prepare our children for productive lives in the 21st century." What measures would you support to repair or rebuild Florida's educational system?

Bainter: As long as the drug and alcohol problem exists, students do not have the will nor ambition to learn, particularly in a group. Treat the causes rather than this symptoms by controlling drugs and alcohol first. Separate those who want to learn from those who cause the problems.

Book: The key is attracting the best people to choose education as a career. If our teachers are well trained, if they are true professionals, if they show each student that they care, our schools will become centers of hope again. The real answer lies with how we see education itself.

4. The Florida Elections Commission currently can act only on violations in the area of campaign financing. Which, if any, of the following possible areas relating to voting would you consider adding to the commission's jurisdiction: incorrect voter registration; faulty absentee ballots; incorrect ballots, or any other concerns that you may have?

Bainter: None. I believe in Home Rule. However, I feel each county should have more authority to regulate violators of voter registration, absentee and incorrect ballots. Counties should also strive for correct voter mailing addresses.

Book: Currently the Elections Commission handles financing violations (Chapter 106) and the State Attorneys handle all other challenges (Chapters 97-105). State Attorneys have criminal prosecutions to do, so we should explore giving all Chapter 97-106 jurisdiction to the Commission. A 1986 bill on this passed committee, but died on the calendar.

Bob Martinez For Governor

Florida's tremendous growth rate and all of the socio-economic problems implied in that growth rate cry out for strong leadership at the highest level of state government. A leadership that can provide the necessary professional management that will keep costs in tow while providing streamlined essential services.

Former Tampa mayor Bob Martinez has that leadership ability and should be elected Florida's next governor.

Martinez, 51, racked up an enviable track record as mayor of Tampa for seven years. Chief among his accomplishments in that capacity was the bringing about of a considerable reduction in the property tax rate while streamlining services in public safety and a myriad of other vital areas. Martinez' management expertise was the direct cause.

Martinez certainly has his priorities in order: He says one of his main objectives as governor would be to bring more efficiency to state government, particularly in the Department of Transportation and the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services. two areas of critical importance to Florida's Martinez would also bring to Tallahassee expertise in the area of solid waste disposal. sewage treatment, and toxic waste disposal and cleanup ... other matters of extreme importance to this state's citizens.

As to the environment. Martinez has pledged to protect Florida's existing resources, our water sources and the beaches, and, he's committed to working closely with local governments to help them meet their responsibilities in ensuring the best quality of life for their citizens.

These are all commitments that go to the heart of state government furnishing the citizenry with the best possible quality of life through management expertise. If government is big business, then it takes someone with business savvy to run it efficiently.

Martinez has that savvy. There's a plus for Seminole County in Martinez being elected governor, and that es from his running mate, Longwood's Bobby Brantley, a seasoned state legislator who knows his way around Tallahasece.

The Evening Herald endoses Bob Martinez

Vote Yes On Amendment 1

How can Florida get a better handle on criminals who operate across county lines? By naming a special prosecutor who can cross county lines and prosecute those engaged in multi-county criminal activity without interference from local state attorneys.

Voters will have an opportunity on Nov. 4 to give Florida's attorney general the authority to appoint a statewide prosecutor who'd be able to do just that. The authority comes under Amendment 1 on the ballot. which voters should endorse.

A special prosecutor who can concentrate his or her efforts throughout the state without concern for crossing jurisdictional lines will be just the impetus Florida needs to keep tabs on criminals who have no such restrictions.

Drug dealers, organized crime members and other white-collar criminals whose dealings take them from county to county need to be scrutinized by law enforcement and prosecutors working cooperatively. A special statewide prosecutor will provide that cooperative spirit.

Vote "yes" to Amendment 1.

Guess Who Brought Sand Box To Spain

WASHINGTON (UPI) - This can't have been a very happy year for fans of Christopher Columbus

I'm not referring merely to the pre-Columbus Day report by the National Geographic Society suggesting that although Chris may have been a great discoverer, he was a lousy navigator.

According to a five-year study by a team of Geographic mathematicians, computer experts. archaeologists and assorted other mavins, Columbus actually landed 65 miles from the Bahamian island where he was credited with discovering the New World.

Nor do I have exclusively in mind the fact that the latest "Big Two" summit meeting was held in Iceland, birthplace of Leif Ericson, whom Scandinavian partisans claim sailed to North America about half a century before Columbus.

What I am referring to primarily is a release by the Geographic news service that the items Columbus brought back to Spain from the New World included a barrel of sand.

"Columbus thought the sand was a precious ore," says the report.

Which is exactly the sort of assumption you and I might make.

Only we would never confuse Cuba, nor any other Caribbean island, with Asia. The beachen are too sandy for that. Asian sand might be worth more but we all know what a barrel of New World sand brings on the open market. Maybe that explains why there has never been a international cartel of composed of sand exporting countries. I remember once having given a young woman some sand jewelry. To say she didn't appreciate my generosity would be understating her reaction. "That's plain old Atlantic sand," she pointed out, reacting adversely. In truth, the jewelry came not from Cuba but from a beach resort north of there, where it was Maybe Columbus intended to build a house on the barrel he sent back.

It also should be noted that one of his ships, Nina, was formally christened the Santa Clara.

That could confuse anyone, most of all latter-day poets and lyricists who would undoubtedly have trouble making the Santa Clara scan with the Pinta and the Santa Maria.

Furthermore, in 1498, the year of Columbus' third voyage to the New World, the ship "had four masts, instead of two or three as she has always been depicted." Small wonder Columbus brought back a barrel of sand from his second voyage.

"On the second voyage, which left Spain in September 1493. Nina was among the flotilla of 17 yessels. Convinced that Cuba was the Asia he sought," the Geographic says, Columbus "required all his crews to swear to their belief about reaching the Asian mainland."

"On her return to Spain in 1496," it further reported. "Nina brought back New World goods: gold, wood, cotton and a barrel of sand."

Unfortunately, the Geographic doesn't identify the type of wood. I'm betting Columbus regarded it as an ore that was even more precious than the sand.

BONN, West Germany (NEA) -The U.S. Congress is not overly popular in European ruling circles at the moment.

Its override of President Reagan's veto of sanctions against South Africa has the members of the European Community again snarling at each other over the same issue, just after a compromise had supposedly been reached.

At a meeting in Brussels in September. Britain and West Germany steamrollered through a package of exceedingly mild restrictions on South African trade. This was done over the vehement opposition of several smaller members, who thought the community ought to take a stand on principle even at some possible economic cost

But those nations were unable to prevail over the Anglo-German alliance, and the measures were approved largely as they were written in London and Bonn. That outcome prompted the Danish foreign minister to comment that it

Now the Danes and like-minded partners are the possibility of a second challe, thanks to Congress. The Dutch want a recount and are recommending new and tougher measures to bring the community's sanctions into line with what Congress has approved for the United States. The British and Germans may be hard present to head them

The September measures left a bad taste all around. London and Bonn argued that stiffer sanctions will hurt South African blacks, the very people the community wanted

But the German and British stakes in South Africa escaped no one's notice. The two nations are South Africa's major economic

The community's sanctions affect primarily European imports of South African steel and iron valued at some $450 million annually. But that is less than 5 percent of the community's total annual purchases of close to $10 billion from South Africa.

German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genecher returned from Brussels to a volley of political criticism, predictably from the opposition Socialists who term the Anglo-German package "absolutely laughable." Not expected was what he heard from the most conservative wing of his own government: "pure hypocrisy."

"He admits he's an American but insists he's not CIA. He says he's in Nicaragua on business. Do we need any storm windows?"

Help The Elderly

The Sanford Code Enforcement Board should lower their $250/day fine to $1 a day while the City Commissioners write an ordinance that allows "Adult congregate living facilities" as a conditional use in all residential areas. This would make Sanford the 51st zoning area that provides non-restrictive zoning laws for elderly group homes in full compliance with the intent of the state legislatures. Seminole County "lost a similar case when an appeal court upheld a circuit judge's order that a zoning exception be made to allow a Markham Woods Road couple to operate a group home for the elderly," according to the article by Gary Taylor and Jim Robinson of The Orlando Sentinel.

The neighbors should have no fear that such an ordinance would allow a convenience store or any other commercial enterprise. An examination of the conditional uses already permitted in single-family residential districts are schools.

utility plants, churches, factory-built houses, carports and interment of remains. How many unrelated individuals are now living in single-family residential dwellings in Sanford? How about the city allowing a summer camp in a SR-AA zone when the ordinance specifically states that private camps are only allowed as a conditional bee in an AD Agricultural

This decision lies directly with our City Commissioners who have the responsibility of looking after the health and welfare of city residents. We have received bad publicity from this action and I don't want our city to be known as "the unfriendly city to the elderly." A picket line around City Hall at the start of the Golden Age games could result in national press coverage. Is that what our city officials and the residents of Sanford want?

Mary Tumin Sanford

Dear Editor:

Your article on the front page of the (Sanford) Evening Herald of Oct. 16, 1966, headed: "Women Upset" etc. is nothing more than another example of supposed do-gooder reporting on a matter that you present in a bleeding heart style that in reality is a matter concerned more with what is legal and, to say the least, poor business judgment and lack of concern for homeowners.

As far as the "poor little old ladies" concerned their situation is not the "crux" of the matter. The meat of the problem is the lack of logic on the part of the would-be "rest-home business" principals concerned.

Too long the city of Sanford has been slack on enforcing zoning regulations and many of Sanford's oldest. fine neighborhoods are becoming "slums" and the oldtime residents who have invested much money, time and attention establishing their homes over the years now face property value loses they can never re-gain becuase the area becomes undesirable for residential family living as well as a public eyesore.

Nobody has anything against "little old ladies" or elderly people. Residential property owners who bought, built, and live everyday of their lives in their home don't want their homes and their families surrounded by commercial establishments. If they had wanted to live in a commercial area there is plenty of empty old commercial buildings available in Sanford they could buy and move into. Jim L. Powell

Soothing Tea For

SCIENCE WORLD

Throats By Gayle Young UPI Science Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) - It is the season of sore throats and soothing tea as the weather turns colder throughout most of the country.

People are driven indoors where they cordially exchange the viruses and bacteria that cause irritation, swollen glands and a dry feeling that makes swallowing difficult.

"The more people are inside the more chance they have of coming into contact with an infected person," said Dr. William A. Alonso. a professor of surgery at the University of South Florida Medical School in Tampa who specializes in throats.

"Viruses also tend to appear more commonly in colder months," he said. "Patients always start to show up in the fall and by winter it is a very common problem."

Almost everyone suffers from occasional sore throats, either as a symptom of a cold or flu or as a reaction to allergies, dry air and irritants.

boni But the condition is rarely serious onnand doctors said, in most cases, people can treat themselves at home by getting plenty of rest, drinking soothing liquids like tea with honey and gargling periodically with warm salt water.

They recommend people seek professional treatment if the sore throat persists more than a week or is accompanied by high fever or difficulty breathing.

"People seem to like to lubricate their throats with tea and honey or other home remedies." Alonso said. "But most people know to come in (for treatment) if the pain persists."

The majority of sore throats are caused by the viruses responsible for flu and colds - upper respiratory infections that strike the nose, cars and throat, doctors said. The viruses are inhaled through the nose or mouth where they lodge in the mucus membranes.

Doctors said an aching feeling in the throat, swollen neck glands and difficulty swallowing are often the first symptoms of a bout with the flu OF a cold.

It takes about a week for the body to fight off the infection, and doctors said the sore throat should not last much longer.

However, one special viral infection takes longer than a week to get over. It is mononucleosis, a virus that lodges in the lymph system and causes a severe sore throat, swollen glands and enlarged tonsils. It usually takes several weeks before the body sheds the taxing virus.

Thompson, as a civilian working for the Army, was one of thousands of Americans who fathered illegitimate children in Vietnam during the long U.S. presence there. Unlike many, he was there when his son was born; he remembers the butterfly-shaped birthmark on the baby's

Now Thompson is one of dozens of Americans who want to bring their half-Vietnamese children to this country. They are frustrated by red tape, lack of concern and political differences between the U.S. and Vietnamese governments.

About 3,700 Amerasian children have been brought here since the Vietnam War. U.S. officials estimate that 8,000 still remain, but Hanoi claims there may be as many as 15,000. Known in Vietnam as "children of the dust." these offspring of mixed parentage are often discriminated against by the Viet-

A State Department official explained why: Since there are no formal diplomatic relations between the two countries, processing the children is difficult. Most contacts take place at the United Nations. Furthermore, the law encompasses Amerasians throughout the Far East; the special circumstances of the strained U.S.-Vietnamese relations require special legislation, the official said.

Another roadblock is that the 1982 law does not cover the children's Victnamese mothers, and few of them are willing to give up their children.

Racism Said To Have Played Role In Black Infant's Death

Court documents reveal a white foster mother facing felony charges in the death of a black infant voiced racial feelings against the child, and prosecutors say that was the basis for the neglect and mistreatment that led to his death.

Abortion Ad Dispute Goes To Federal Court

TALLAHASSEE. (UPI) - An anti-abortion group's claim that state officials violated its rights by canceling an advertisement it purchased in the new Florida state government telephone directory is under consideration by a federal judge.

Kenneth Connor, representing Florida Right to Life, orged U.S. District Judge Maurice Paul Tuesday to order the reprintbook to include the ad.

Right to Life filed the suit after state officials including Gov. Bob Graham and the Cabinet refused to overrule the decision to delete the ad, which featured a drawing of an 8-week-old fetus with the caption, "Alive and growing: heartbeats, brainwaves, fingerprints, feels pain,'

The display ad was ready for printing when it was deleted. The directories were scheduled for publication in mid-November.

Lawyers for the state defended the action, citing a longstanding policy against accepting ads on controversial political issues likely to prove disruptive to the work environment.

The state's lawyers added that every day's ing of thousands of copies of the new phone delay in the release of the new books will cost taxpayers more than $30,000 - plus untold confusion as state workers struggle to cope with a massive restructuring of Suncom, state government's long distance telephone network.

> Connor told Paul the directory has accepted political ads in the past. He cited an advertisement in the inaugural 1973 directory for a group seeking support for U.S. servicemen captured or listed as missing in action during the Vietnam war. and a 1976 ad for a clinic that offered

"Once (the state) undertook to allow any advertising by third parties, it could not discriminate on the basis of content," Connor said.

Claire Dryfuss, representing the state, said the 1973 ad was the first and only one accepted for the directory that promoted a political view point. She said the 1976 ad listed services offered by Tallahassee's Feminist Women's Health Center but carried no political message.

She said the anti-abortion group was told it could advertise its services if the political content were purged but the group refused.

Japanese Purchase 11 Boeing 747 Jumbo Jets

WASHINGTON (UPI) - All Nippon Airways, the world's sixth-largest airline, has ordered 11 Boeing 747 jumbo jets and spare parts in a $1.56 billion deal that should help reduce the bloated U.S. trade deficit with Japan. T.A. Wilson, chairman of Boeing Commercial Airplane Co., announced at a news conference Tuesday that the aircraft will be delivered during the next five years and the purchase will permit Boeing to "sustain employment levels" at its facto-

Akio Kondo, All Nippon Airways deputy president and chief operating officer, said the airline signed contracts last year for 25 Boeing 767-300 aircraft worth $2.36 billion. The deal announced Tuesday means the carrier now has ordered $3.9 billion worth of Boeing aircraft and spare parts in one year. "Our partnership with Boeing is more solid than ever before." Kondo said through an interpreter. "Our orders for Boeing have exceeded the total for the previous 21 years."

"All Nippon Airways is the largest purchaser of American equipment in Japan." Wilson

The $3.9 billion purchases equal 7.8 percent of last year's trade deficit between the United States and Japan. The Commerce Department said the deficit reached nearly $50 billion last year and is expected to increase in 1986.

'We feel very proud that All aircraft over the last 12 months Nippon Airways is contributing to ease very considerably the U.S. trade deficit," Kondo said.

Last year, All Nippon Airways ranked as the world's sixthlargest airline in terms of number of passengers carried, trailing the Soviet airline Aeroflot and four U.S. airlines: Eastern, American, Delta and United.

ANA, which began as a domestic carrier in 1952, in July began operating five flights a week from Tokyo to Los Angeles and three flights a week from Tokyo to Washington.

Sanford eyes saving taxpayers money while offering citizens opportunity to participate in city government through a new municipal volunteer program.

Area elderly and others are sought by the Sanford Association of Volunteers (SAV). headed by a local resident and coordinated through the city's administrative services department.

An approximately $4,500 proposed start-up cost for SAV should be exceeded by monies saved through staffing city positions with volunteers, according to Administrative Services Director Kim Smith.

Staff research into other volunteer programs shows Hurt, Texas, saving approximately $10,000 a year, and, "We belive as the program gets rolling. Sanford can also realize significant cost savings," Ms. Smith said.

City commissioner indicated in work session Monday the SAV spendings will be approved once they have been firmed up by Commissioners on Monday were also introduced to SAV's chairman. Dot Waller. who said prospective volunteers can reach her at 323-3165.

SAV was proposed by Mayor Bettye Smith, who heard of other city's successful volunteer programs during a governmental seminar in San Antonio last spring.

The mayor worked with administrative services staffers to develop the program and recommended Mrs. Waller as chairman. Mrs. Waller retired last summer after 24 years as an administrative secretary and will be volunteering about 10 hours a week as SAV chairman.

SAV offers residents positions that primarily focus on switchboard assistance in city hall and clerical work in the city's engineering, police, recreation, fire and utility departments, Ms. Smith said.

She also said the key to the program's success is community support. Bumper stickers promoting SAV will be part of the approximately $4,500 proposed start-up expenditure, she said.

The volunteer effort is informative as well as enjoyable for participants, Ms. Smith

"Citizens gain a great deal of personal satisfaction, by knowing they've done something good for themselves, their neighborhood and their city," she said. "The programs also offer job experience and are a positive approach to good government. An involved volunteer is part of the city's political system and therefore becomes a better informed voter. Volunteers also get to meet civic and political leaders as well as fellow citizens."

Peking Accuses Congress Of Wanton Interference

PEKING (UPI) - Peking accused the U.S. Congress. today of "wanton interference" in China's internal affairs by passing an amend-ment to the Export-Import Bank Act that lists Tibet as a separate country.

'We express indignation at this," said Foreign Ministry spokesman Yu Zhizhong at a press briefing.

"Recently the Senate and the House of Representatives of the U.S. Congress went so far as to disregard the wellknown facts and listed Tibet separately as a country" in an amendment to the 1945 Export-Import Bank (Eximbank) Act. Yu sald.

"This constitutes a wanton interference in the internal affairs of China." he said.

The spokesman noted, however, that when President Reagan signed the amendment, he said in a statement that Washington recognizes the remote Himalayan region as part of China.

We hope that in the future there will be no recurrence of such incidents of interference in the internal affairs of China and hurting the feelings of the Chinese people." Yu said. Tibet has been a sensitive region since 1950 when communist forces moved in a few months after establishing their rule, in Peking.

Flying Ranch Is Sued By Water District

The Governing Board of the St. Johns River Water Management District has filed suit against an Altamonte Springs man over construction at the Seminole Flying Ranch southeast of Oviedo.

The suit, seeking a permanent injunction and a civil penalty of $10,000 a day since June 26. was filed against Michael D. Jones of 112 W. Citrus St.

According to the suit, airport where asked in April for a ermit to expand the airport. Those plans included a 4,000 bot runway and swales. District personnel said a permit was not seeded because the area under planned construction was not arge enough for the district to consider.

An on-site inspection in September, however, indicated that more work was being done than mentioned in the airport's origial letter and was large enough to come under authority of the

Jones, however, told the dis-

He suggested in the letter that all interested parties meet and discuss the situation so a law suit could be avoided.

Advisory Heads Meet With Mayor

Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith and the city's advisory board heads will discuss various municipal concerns over breakfast during an informal meeting Thursday morning at the lakeside Holiday Inn.

The session was proposed by City Commissioner John Mercer earlier this fall as a way for Mayor Smith and the board chairmen to touch base on common concerns.

Rather than work up an agenda, the group will meet "as a cross-committee, to share in-formation and ideas," with Thursday's session possibly being the first of quarterly meetings the participants would hold, Mayor Smith said.

Chamber Schedules Candidates Forum

The Sanford Chamber of Commerce legislative committee will host a candidates forum at the chamber, Monday, at 8 a.m.

Thirty-three invitations were sent last week statewide to candidates. Chamber president Dave Farr said. "We're trying to give residents more exposure to as many candidates as possible."

Repondees as of Tuesday were Circuit Judge candidate Ned Julian, County Commission Chairman Bob Sturm and his challenger Bob French, incumbent District 5 school board member Jean Bryant and her challenger Ann Neiswender.

Mets Discover Sticks, 7-1

York Mets, who remembered how to hit Tuesday night, now get a shot at squaring the World Series against Boston's forgotten pitcher.

Al Nipper, passed over by Manager John McNamara during the playoffs, is scheduled to start tonight against the National League champions, who collected 13 hits — more than their total in Games 1 and 2 — in a 7-1. Game 3 victory over the Red Sox.

"This was crucial," New York catcher Gary Carter said. 'There's no team in the history of the World Series that has come back from a 3-0 deficit. Now we're 2-1 and our chances

Ron Darling, who lost 1-0 in the Series opener Saturday night, will oppose Nipper at Fenway Park on three days rest. New York, which batted just .190 over their first eight postseason games, are primed to face a right-hander who was 10-12 with a 5.38 ERA in the regular season.

Before the World Series. McNamara had said he would start left-hander Bruce Hurst three times. Now, in order to give Hurst. Roger Clemens and Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd four days between starts. Nipper is getting

"I'm glad to see Al start." Boston's Dwight Evans said.

'He's been here in the bad times. I think he can pitch a Privately, though, the Red Sox are concerned about Nipper, an off-speed specialist who hasn't pitched since losing Oct. 4. Before Tuesday night, they were thinking sweep; now, they may be thinking survival.

Can another Red Sox collapse be far behind?

"There's no pressure on us," Evans said. "We're the underdogs. Everybody picked them. We've got nothing to

The Meta received a fine effort Tuesday night from former Boston left-hander Bob Ojeda, who looked even better with a four-run lead after one inning.

Len Dykstra, who was 4 for 5, hit Boyd's third pitch of the game into the right-field seats, Wally Backman and Keith Hernandez singled and Carter doubled to give the Mets a sudden 2-0 advantage.

One out later, Ray Knight hit a grounder to third baseman Wade Boggs, and Hernandez was caught in a rundown. Hernandez and Carter were within feet of each other near third base, but the Red Sox somehow failed to get an out.

"We looked like a little-league team out there," first baseman Bill Buckner said. "We screwed up," catcher

Rich Gedman said. Gedman, rather than run the ball to third, threw in an attempt to nab Hernandez, who snuck in ahead of Boggs's throw to

Thomas Loses Dance Step, Locates Stride

Herald Sports Editor

Robert Thomas knows that dancing and football don't mix. Did you ever see Michael Jackson or Fred Astaire in a football helmet?

And even though Thomas, Lyman's 175-pound senior tailback, enjoys breaking it down on occasion, he said the shuffle wasn't getting him any-where on the gridiron. He was gathering enough real estate for most backs - but not for Robert

'I was doing too much dancing instead of running," Thomas said Tuesday night. "I had the jitters. I knew I had to run straight up the field and not sideways.

Last Friday night against Oviedo he did. The result: Two carries and a 19-18 Lyman victory.

"Robert is just running a little harder," Lyman coach Bill Scott said. "He wasn't that bad before. For a lot of backs, what Robert did the first four weeks would be a good year." But not for Robert Thomas who ran for 911 yards last year and just missed the Evening Herald All-County First Team Backfield. Thomas, who always places the team ahead of himself, did admit to a few personal goals when pressed.

Making the All-County first team is one of them and getting 1.000 yards is another. Friday's performance put him right on target for both. His 167 yards pushed his total to 507 for the year at the season's halfway mark and second place in the county.

The three-year varsity performer is averaging 4.9 yards per try. He trails Lake Howell's Nate Hoskins by 116 yards. Hoskins has played one more about the Tribe. "They will be a good challenge."

Thomas knows the yardage won't come easily Friday, though. as Lyman hosts Seminole. "They are pretty aggressive with speed," he said

The 28 attempts were also a season high for the hard-running senior. Thomas relishes the extra work load, especially when he line responded as it did Friday night. "Everything was just working right Friday." he said. "Bobby Luce and Mike Nelson were getting good blocks. Dan McNeal had a good first half and Shawn Martinson always grades out real well."

Thomas said he has a simple philosophy for carrying the ball. He likes to run inside and then break it outside. "Quickness is the big thing," he said. "I would much rather have quickness than strength. I think first down first and when I break, I think touchdown."

The super junior year, however, made Thomas a marked man. He was the target of enemy defense during the first four

Lately, though, teams haven't been able to draw a bulls-eye on Thomas. The development of sophomore Steve Jerry along with juniors Ira Melton and Victor Farrier has also helped Thomas. "Steve, Ira and Victake a lot of pressure of me," Thomas said. "They are all good runners and they make our misdirection plays work. I go one way without the ball and they came back the other with the ball."

While Thomas made his move on the rushing leaders, Lake Howell senior quarterback Mark Wainwright continues to set the pace among the passers. Wainwright has thrown for 380 yards and three TDs, all to slotback Bill Wasson.

Lake Mary junior Sheldon Richards leads the receivers with 15 grabs. Lake Brantley Junior Nigel Hinds is second with 12

PHOENIX (UPI) - The NBA is expanding, but where and when won't be determined until next

Commissioner David Stern announced Tuesday the league's Board of Governors had voted unanimously to add a maximum of three teams between the 1988-89 and 1990-91 seasons.

However, representatives of six prospective NBA cities must wait another six months to find out if their efforts were successful.

The board appointed a fivemember committee on expansion to study the applications more thoroughly. It will offer a recommendation to the Board of Governors at an April 20 meeting in New York, at which time a vote will be taken and the expansion cities named.

Competing for an expansion franchise are applicants from Charlotte, N.C.; Miami; Minneapolis; Orange County, Calif.; Orlando: and Toronto. The last time the NBA expanded was 1980, when the Dallas Mavericks were added to the league. At least one bidder believes the league will award the maximum three teams in April. meaning each proposal has a 50-50 chance of succeeding.

"They said that if three (areas) were qualified to get in, they would announce all three," said Miami representative Lewis Schaffel, formerly New Jersey Nets general manager. "They'll announce three in April."

Stern said the league could award three franchises for the 1988-89 season, but found that possibility unlikely.

"I think it's possible," Stern said. "But if you were to ask the individual owners, they would

Howell Receives Dunkel's Respect

If respect is what coach Mike Biaceglia and his Lake Howell Silver Hawks want, respect is what they received this week when Dick Dunkel released his weekly Dunkel Index Power Rankings.

The DI, probably one of the most accurate polls in prepaports, is based on strength of achedule, won-loss percentage, margin of victory and tradi-tion. While the Silver Hawks can't yet qualify for the last category, they have posted some impressive numbers for the first three critera.

Lake Howell, on the strength of a convincing 31-14 victory over Winter Park, moved to the top of the Class 4A-5A Seminole. Orange and Volusia county ratings with 70.0 power points.

Paulucci To Share Another Dream

Stars Come Out For Heathrow Tennis Tourney

Herald Sports Editor

Jeno Paulucci shares a dream. Unlike many, however, the Sanford developer/entrepreneur; makes his dreams come true.

A self-made multi-millionaire via astute ventures in frozen foods (Chun King and Geno's Pizza) and real estate, Paulucci will realize another dream this weekend.

Call it a dream upon a dream. Just as Paulucci developed and opened Heathrow several years ago, the 68-y and old Minnesota native will unveil his Heathrow Royal Grand Prix Tennis Tournament this Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the $4 million Racquet & Swim Club at Heathrow (west of Lake Mary Boulevard-Interstate 4 exchange).

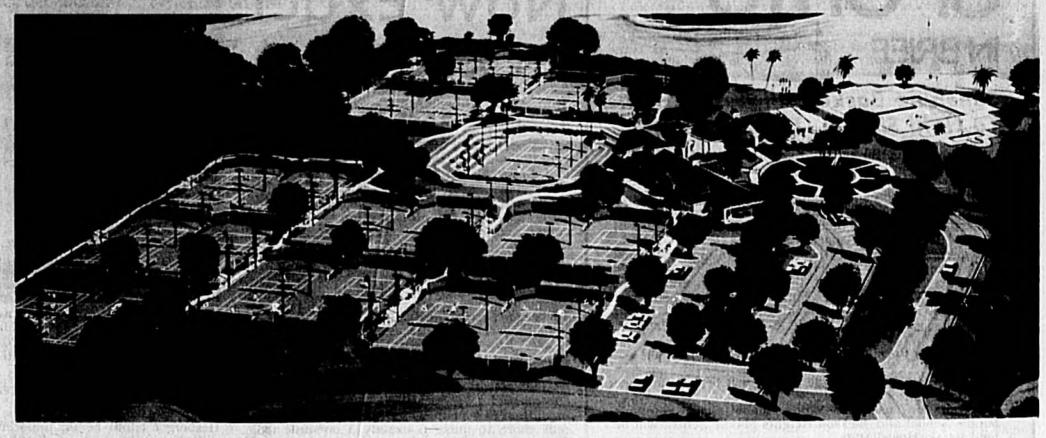

And, in usual Paulucci style, the unveiling will be star-studded. Superstars Bill Cosby, Linda Evans and Charlton Heston will be on hand to lob and smash with a dozen noted tennis professionals.

Sanford's Tim Raines, a star in his own right on the baseball field, will also join the field for the weekend fun. Raines won his first National League batting championship this year with a 334 average.

Paulucci said the "Who's Who of Hollywood" will be on hand. Celebrities Mike Connors (of Mannix fame), Richard Anderson, Donna Milla. Cliff Robertson, Veronica Hamel, Wayne Rogers. Bernie Koppel, Robert Loggia, Trini Lopez and Lyle Waggoner have all indicated they will join the festivities.

This weekend's extravaganza is one of five in a world-wide series of tournaments which holds similar events in Monaco, London and at the White House.

Designed by Ray Scott and Associates, a Central Florida architectural firm, the clubhouse, pool and courts are nestled in a park-like setting beside a 23-acre lake, complete with tree-topped island and sunning beach.

"This is set up to be the finest facility in Florida," Gavin Ford, head tennis professional, said. "The planners at Heathrow toured clubs throughout the world before building. It has paid

The clubhouse itself is a site to behold. It is decorated in the style of an English Colonial resort. Designed to capture an informal atmosphere, the clubhouse centers on a dining room of terraced decks that overlook the courts. A large deck for outdoor dining and covered veranda share the view.

The lake affords opportunities for windsurfing, paddleboating and sailing.

One wing of the clubhouse is specially set aside for the tennis set - lockers, Jaccuzi, spa, showers and a tennis pro shop surround a social room which overlooks a garden.

Swimmers are accommodated on the opposite wing with the separate locker facilities near the pool and the beach. Paulucci really does share with his dreams.

Ford said the main beneficiary of the tournament will be the Transplantation Immunology Research Fund of the Duke University Medical School. He said the fund supports an integrated clinical and basic science program devoted to the discovery and development of more effective methods and procedures for all aspects of human organ transplants.

Also to benefit from the tournament will be the Florida Symphony Orchestra and The Mailman Center, located on the campus of the University of Miami. The Mailman Center was established in 1961 and treats children born prematurely or those with genetic disorders.

The celebrities will begin arriving on Oct. 24 and be royally wined and dined during their visit. Tournament play begins on Oct. 24 and continues through Sunday afternoon when trophies will be presented to the winners.

The highlight of the weekend could well be the gala dinner held on Saturday night for the stars. tennis pros and sponsors. Various celebrities will perform for the entertainment of all the guests at the gala.

Lady Lions Kayo Howell, Avenge Loss

By Chris Fi Herald Sports Writer

CASSELBERRY - This is the main event. Three rounds of your corners and come out

The next time Lake Howell's Lady Silver Hawks and Oviedo's Lady Lions get together for a match, they might want to hire a ring announcer to read that statement.

The two Seminole Athletic Conference rivals locked up in another classic Tuesday night. In a match in which neither team would give an inch, it was the Lady Lions who finally delivered the knockout punch in the end with an electrifying 15-12, 14-16, 15-11 victory before 301 fans at Lake Howell

Oviedo ran its SAC record to 6-1 with its seventh straight win and avenged its only conference loss. The Lady Lions, 16-2 overall, return to league play Thursday at Lake Brantley.

Lake Howell, 10-6 overall, is now 5-2 in the SAC and one game behind Oviedo and Lake Mary (which defeated Lyman Tuesday). The Lady Hawks have a nonconference match tonight at home against Orlando Boone before setting their sites on what has now become their biggest SAC match of year Thursday at Lake Mary.

"We made one or two critical mistakes that you can't make against a strong team like Oviedo," Lake Howell coach Jo Luciano said. "But the team really played one of its best games. There was some excellent volleyball played by both teams."

Tuesday's draining duel saw both teams come back from the brink of elimination with Oviedo riding some strong serving to victory in the end.

"Our adrenaline was so high it kept us pumped up the whole match." Oviedo senior Kelly Price said. "We wanted this win so bad and we knew we could do it if we kept our chins up."

The solid front row play of Suzanne Hughes and Kim Marr got Oviedo going in the opening

Gebhart Sparks Lady Pats' Win

By Mark Blythe Herald Sports Writer

Sophomore Dawn Gebhart played an impressive all-around team to a 15-10...9-15. 15-12 victory over Seminole Tuesday night in before 201 fans at Seminole High School.

Lake Brantley upped its record to 4-13 and 3-4 in the Seminole Athletic Conference and will host Oviedo Thursday. Seminole, which fell to 1-9 and 1-6 in the SAC, will travel to DeLand today and will host Lyman Thursday.

Gebhart, who had five kills and three blocks for the night, produced the big points for the Lady Pats who came up with enough defense to hold off two Lady Tribe rallies.

"We're becoming much more consistent," Lake Brantley coach Stephanie Glance said. "Every team is playing better now, but it's encouraging to see us play the way we are because we are a very young team."

In the opening game Seminole's Liz Long sent two consecutive kills down and the Lady Tribe jumped out to a 2-0

Brantley, though, used the the serving strength of Pam Wittig and Jeanne Seidel to bounce back and take a 5-3 advantage. Seminole added a point before Gebhart came on to serve. Gebhart's first attempt fell in for offense. Gebhart's next two serves also went for points as she received help from Gretchen Rodriguez, to stretch the Brantley lead to 8-4.

Sheri Peterson then came on block to cut the rally short.

Seidel then put Brantley in control with four straight service points to build the Lady Patriot interesting, though, when Lisa McGrotha and Maryann

Shelly Wittig, aided by a timely block by Mull, managed to pick up the last two points for Brantley to win the first game. "We let up on them when we

The third game turned out to be a nightmare for the Lady Seminoles who had quickly built up a 6-0 lead. The Lady Tribe relaxed and Seidel served seven straight points to give the Lady Pats a shot in the arm.

Seminole got a side out but a missed serve gave Brantley the ball right back. Wittig kept the momentum with the Lady Pats scoring three more points as Brantley took a 10-6 lead.

Peterson was able to stop the Lady Patriot rally to an extent as she was able to score three straight to bring the game back to a one-point affair.

SMITH KEYS MARY SWEEP

At 5-5, Lake Mary junior Val Smith may not overpower anyone with her front row play. But if her opponents underestimate her ability, there's a good chance she'll outsmart them.

Smith's front row ingenuity was one of the highlights Tuesday night as Lake Mary's Lady Rams swept Lyman's Lady Greyhounds, 15.7, 15-10 in Seminole Athletic Conference play at Lyman High.

Lake Mary, 11-5 overall, improved to 6-1 in the SAC and remains tied for the lead with Oviedo. Lake Mary is at Lake Howell Thursday.

"The biggest thing I saw tonight was Val (Smith) can play a very good front row," Lake Mary coach Cindy Henry said. "She's really smart on covering blocks and reading dinks and she's a good offspeed hitter."

Along with Smith's promising front row play. Henry said the all-around play of senior Angela Capps paved the way for the Lady Rams Tuesday night.

SAC Path Now Exact

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer
There's no need for Seminole County cross country coaches to bring their tape measures to Thursday's Seminole Athletic Conference Championships.

The new Lake Mary High course, designed by boys coach Mark McGee with girls coach Mike Gibson's input, is exactly a one-mile loop to the foot. And, if McGee and Gibson say it's exact, you can believe it. These guys aren't just cross country coaches - they're math teachers.

The Lake Mary mentors will unveil their knew course Thursday night for the second SAC Championships. The meet begins with girls junior varsity at 4 followed by boys junior varsity at 4:30, girls varsity at 5 and boys varsity at 5:30. Lake Howell High is the defending champion in all four divisions.

The course used for the Lake Mary High Opener the first week of the season was some 50-feet short, but McGee and Gibson put their geometrical minds to work in designing the new SAC course.

"This course is exact to the foot (5,280 feet)," Gibson said. "We measured backward from the finish line to a point where we needed a quarter mile more to make it exactly a one-mile loop. Then we used the formula for the circumference of a half circle which is 'pi-R.' We measured 160 feet, got a radius of 80 feet and took that and multiplied it by 3.14 (pi).

"I said, 'McGee this isn't going to work," Gibson added. "He said, 'It's got to work - it's math."

Such logic was not to be denied and the new Lake Mary course was born.

For Thursday's race, girls will run two loops around the course while boys run three. Gibson said he expects it to be faster than the old Lake Mary course.

"The course is faster because it runs on more flat surfaces," Gibson said. "When you go around the baseball field it's a good running surface and it's shaded. And the hill is a lot faster since we put more clay on it."

The task of repeating as SAC champions will be a tough one for the Lake Howell boys. Lyman High has proven that when it has its top team together, it has the potential to be a powerhouse.

Still, Lake Howell began to peak at this time a year ago and can't be counted out. The 'Hawks have a strong top two in seniors Chuck Buster and Jeff Van Buskirk while sophomore Kavan Howell is a consistent number three runner. Coach Joe Corso will look for solid races from his fourth through seventh men.

Lyman has one of the individual favorites in Robin Rogers who has won the last two races the Greyhounds have entered. Behind Rogers, Lyman has talent in sophomores Nick Radkewich and Darren Marshall, senior Mike Mohler and freshman Teddy Mitchell.

While Lyman and Lake Howell are seen as the favorites, Lake Mary's Rams are hoping to put forth their best effort and possibly challenge on their home course. Like Lake Howell, Lake Mary top two in Eric Petersen and Brad Smith. McGee is counting on his third through fifth runners to move up closer to the top two.

Seminole High has its most competitive team since the 1984 squad that went to the state meet.

Martha Fonseca has been a consistent performer for Lake Howell all year.

The Tribe has a pretty solid to five in David Johnson, Alan Seward, John Skees, Rufaro Matipano and Jason Kaiser while sixth man John Herberger could be an important runner if he continues to improve. Coach Sid Blackwell also has an up and coming freshman in Joe Peeple. who came in second in the junior varsity race at the Seminole County Postal Run.

Oviedo and Lake Brantley have mostly inexperienced teams and don't figure to challenge for the title. Brantley is led by Greg Webb and Tim Iller while Mark McDonald and Derek Bates lead Oviedo.

In the girls varsity race. Lake Howell is seen as the clear cut favorite. The Lady Hawks, ranked second in the state, have seven of the top 10 runners in Seminole County led by seniors Lisa Samocki, Martha Fonseca and Mary Fonseca. junior Bonnie Oliver and sophomores Jenny Bolt. Tammy Bolt and Michelle Lee.

Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots are looking to solidify their ranking as second in the conference and sixth in the state (4A). Brantley does not usually have a runner up front, but has a tight pack that coach Mary Littlebrant hopes will move up meet by meet. That pack includes sophomores Heather Camino, Kristin Longmire, Mindy Olinger and Kristin Avery and senior Jennifer Josephs.

Lyman's Lady Greyhounds have not run a complete team since early in the season but they can challenge Brantley with a strong effort. Lyman is led by the top three of Julie Greenberg. Lynn Gomezperalta and Tracy Fisher.

Lake Mary's chances will be boosted by the return of Sue Kingsbury who has not run since the second week of the season, With Kingsbury and Heather Heikkila forming a strong top two, Gibson looks for Tabatha Gano, Allison Snell, Lisa Shelby and Debi Smith to turn in strong performances.
With Martin running with the leaders most of the time. Seminole figures to have a shot at third fourth place. But the remaind Tribe team can not sit back and let Martin carry them. Seminole needs improvement from Viola Posley, Sherry Burgess, Ginger Skees and Nadrian McGill.

4-Run First Sets Tone For Game 3

BOSTON (UPI) - The New York Mets' four-run first inning set the tone for Game 3 of the World Series, said Mets and Red Sox players after New York's 7-1 victory Tuesday night.

Len Dykstra, the game's first batter, blasted a 1-1 pitch into the right-field stands. The homer, off Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, ignited a four-run surge from which Boston never recovered. The decision left the Red Sox with a two-games-to-one lead in the Series.

"When the leadoff hitter juices one like that, it sets the tone for the whole game." Mets third baseman Ray Knight said.

The New York Mets had batted only .194 in the first two garnes against the Boston Red Sox. "and we had to start swinging the bats," Knight said.

Knight's view of the homer was shared by teammates Gary Carter and Danny Heep. "That kind of broke it for everybody. It hyped us all up," said Carter, the Mets' catcher.

"You want to jump out and bury people," said Heep, the Mets' designated hitter. "You don't want to take any chances in this ballpark. If you get ahead. you can try things: the hit-and-run, the steal, move runners. We weren't able to do that the first two games."

The psychological value of an early lead is important for a pitcher, Boston center fielder Dave Henderson said.

"Anytime a club gets four runs before your pitcher takes the mound, he goes out there with four-run confidence," Henderson said. "If your pitcher has a four-run lead, you know he's going to give you a good game." Bob Ojeda, traded from Boston to New York in the offseason, limited his former teammates to five hits and one run over seven innings. The 28-year-old left-hander.

18-5 in his first season as a National Leaguer, used his effective, off-speed pitches to keep Boston's hitters off-stride. "He was a little off, a little on,"

Boston's Bill Buckner said. "Anyone who's won 18 games has done a pretty good job. He doesn't blow you away, but he gets you out." "He just didn't make any mistakes," Red Sox right fielder Dwight Evans said.

The Mets say the one mistake Manager Davey Johnson didn't make was trying to work out his team too much. After the weekend's back-to-back losses in New York, he gave the Mets a day off Monday.

"We went through a series that was the most draining physically and emotionally as possible," Carter said. "We thought it would be advantageous just to take the whole day off and get a better frame of

What they wanted was a return to their former frame of Knight said Game 3 was more a Mets-type ballgame."

"Today, we played like a team and that's the way we played all year," Heep said. In Game 4, Boston will start right-hander Al Nipper, who has yet to play in the postseason. Ron Darling, the loser in Game

1, will pitch for the Mets. Nipper, who last pitched Oct. 4, was 9-12 this season.

"We'll just have to throw the dice tomorrow and see what happens," Boston reliever Joe Sambito said. "He's capable of throwing a very good game. I hope tomorrow is one of his good games."

Owen then ran after Carter but, when he turned and saw Hernandez feign a dash for home, he healtated between second and third - and that allowed Carter to slip in safely at second.

'Keith was really the key," Carter said, "because, when he started to break toward home, Owen turned around and I was able to get back. Certainly, it wasn't because of speed."

Danny Heep, playing because of the designated-hitter rule in the American League park, then singled to center for two runs, and the Mets had a four-run

That was all Ojeda needed to quiet the Red Sox and the crowd of 33,595. The southpaw, who followed New York's Game 1 loss in the NL playoffs with a complete-game triumph, allowed just five hits over seven innings in his return to Fenway Park. Roger McDowell retired all six

Coach Laments A Rule Unplayed By

If there is one thing I learned in Louisville, Ky. that day, it is this: Always play by the rules.

I was coaching at East Tennessee State University and we had taken our tennis team on an extended road trip through Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky. We had a young team at East Tennessee, we were building. (That's another way of saying we were not very good).

The trip had been a killer. We had overscheduled and had already lost to the University of Cincinnati, Ohio State, Notre Dame and Purdue. Our last match on the trip was in Louisville against the University of Louisville. The Cardinals were not known for their tennis program and this looked like a match we could win. The boys were fired up and ready to go. We were all confident and optimistic.

When the match started things began going our way. It was evident that we were not overmatched and, in fact, looked like the better team. We won the first set in all six singles matches. Things were really going our way. After another half-hour or so, four of our six players had won their match in straight sets.

We were ahead in the team match,

Our other two matches were into the third set. All we needed was one of the two to close out the match. (Five points wins the team match). Our number five player was leading 5-2 in the third set. This looked like the point we needed. He was going to win, ETSV would have their first tennis victory of the 1966 season. (It was also to be my first victory as a tennis coach).

Our player had a set point, the rally was long. The Louisville player hit a ball deep to the backhand corner, my player ran hard got to the ball and hit a lob high over the net - but about 15 feet too long. The Louisville player nonchalantly reached up, caught the ball before it bounced, and called

Even though the ball was well out it was still our point because he touched it before it bounced. Our point, our match, our team wins.

Not yet, my player decided to ask the coach what to do. The Louisville player was very hurt and did not want to lose on that kind of stupid mistake. I talked with both players and the other coach and we decided to play the point over. (We could be big-hearted, after all we were ahead 4-0 in the team score, and 5.2 in that match).

We lost that match 7-5 in the third set. My players never won another game. We also lost the remaining singles match. Now we led in the team score by 4.2. Oh well, we still had these doubles to go and all we needed was one more point.

Midway through three doubles matches, as it was getting colder and darker, I started getting this feeling that way back there - in that singles match where we had match point and the Louisville player caught the ball we should have taken that point and the match. We were down in all three doubles and just before it was so dark that we could not see to play, we lost

We just played so tight, we wanted the win so badly and we realized we had snatched "defeat from the jaws of victory." As Casey Stengel so aptly put

By rights the match should have been ours. We actually won that match and the team match, 5-0, when the Louisville player caught that ball. We did not play by the rules, though, and we gave him another chance.

Final score: Louisville 5, East Ten-

If you play tennis, particularly meaningful matches it is important to know the rules and adhere to them. For goodness sake, don't catch the ball and then call it out; Do not reach over the net or hit the net with your racket or clothing while the ball is in play; If the ball is out do not play it ... even if it is only a couple of inches out.

Out is out, that's what the lines are for. Never play a point over on a call, it is against the rules. You may play a ball over on interference from another court but not on a close call. Keep track of the score, call it out after each exchange.

If you do lose track re-trace the points until you find the proper score. You have one minute to get a drink or towel off during change-overs. You have 30 seconds between points. A lot of people abuse these rules and really stall and slow down the match.

Play by the rules. Don't stall. Don't leave the court. Don't put your apponent by using these tactics. Don't hurt your own chances by giving in and letting your opponent "have" the point, or "play the point over."

Rules are rules - play by them. There was time I wish that I would

The Dow Jones industrial average, which lost 5.34 Tuesday, was up 0.84 to 1806.52 shortly after the market opened.

Declines led advances 403-345 among the 1,176 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 6,926,000

The market opened with the knowledge that the economy grew by an estimated 2.4 percent at an annual rate in the third quarter. The Commerce Department report Wednesday on the gross national product was in line with Wall Street expectations.

The stock market ended mixed in quiet trading Tuesday as investors remained cautious and indecisive.

"It's a waiting game," said Hugh Johnson, head of the investment policy committee at First Albany. "Investors are disinterested, confused. and waiting for some event to get the market off dead center," he said.

"The economy is in a 'no boom - no bust' stage, and investors are impatient to see a clearer resolution," Johnson said.

"Money managers like a picture that has more black or white than grey because their orders are to buy or to sell," Johnson said. "When the picture is grey, they feel very uncomfortable."

Both women were given 10 days to begin the HRS licensing process, or face a $5,000 fine or court injunction to cease operation, Mrs. Linch said.

'However, while Mrs. Jack soon shut down and moved to 2005 S. Oak Ave, Mrs. Westmeyer continued operation, and the HRS licensing office in Jacksonville has no record of her having submitted the necessary application, according to Barbara Hallihan, HRS certification program analyst.

Mrs. Westmeyer said she never applied for an HRS license, although she also said she does not recall ever having been told to do so.

She said her concern right now is the 10 elderly men and women she cares for and that she "is praying things will work out." Mrs. Westmeyer said she has operated a care center at 2901 Sanford Ave. for seven years and that she hopes to either receive a zone change from the city to allow the operation's continuation, or that a real estate agency she's contracted will find her a new home. If neither is securred by Oct. 29, Mrs. Westmeyer said she'll contact her tenants' families about making new arrangements for

Mrs. Darnell said she has had her 77-year-old tenant since April, and that she has cared for other elderly at the home "off and on" since 1972. She said she used to be licensed by HRS, and that HRS had referred two tenants to her several years ago, but that in June the agency told her she did not need a license any longer because she had only one tenant.

Mrs. Darnell also said she has been at city hall since receiving the Oct. 16 noticication and told building officials "I don't want to lose my tenant. Every tenant I've ever had has been well cared for. I'm not doing anything wrong."

Mrs. Durley said she has cared for the elderly at 2402 Key Ave. since 1982 and has contacted an attorney to look into the city's charge.

"I won't give my ladies up," Mrs. Durley said. "I feel they need me and if I give them up, what are they going to do?' "When they're sick I don't leave them alone," she said. "What nursing home would do that?"

New VJ Fills Network Bill

The much-ballyhooed nationwide talent search for a new VH-1 video jockey is over. The winner, Texas TV news reporter Edye Tarbox, may have been the only person in the country much less among the 523 entrants — who didn't know the cable music net was conducting an open talent hunt in the first place.

"I didn't know I was in a contest until the very final stage," says Tarbox, a 25-yearold honors graduate in broadcast journalism from the University of Texas. "I had been watching VH-1, and I just decided I could do a good job as a VJ. So I sent them a letter and a tape.

Two months later, Tarbox was called to New York for an on-the-set audition with 20 other finalists. A month after that, she was informed that she got the gig.

"It was during the on-set tryout that a reporter asked me which trade journal I'd read about the talent contest in. I said. 'So that's what they've been talking about!''

Up against big-name competi-tion in the finals, Tarbox doubted that she had a chance at the well-paid, two-year VJ contract. "They were so highfashion and trendy, and I'm so conservative and small-town," she sighs. But, as it turned out, the girl-next-door look was exactly what VH-1 wanted.

If Edye Tarbox comess across as the Mary Poppins of rock 'n' roll, she doesn't mind. That's the real Edye. As a radio and television personality in Dallas, Waco, San Antonio and Austin. she would volunteer to speak at local high schools, cautioning teens against drug and alcohol

"I've always been a big comting involved with the local Girl Scouts, symphony organizations and Junior League." She is close to her family and had attended all of three rock concerts in her life befor this job materialized.

The most exciting thing about this position, says Tarbox, is that it will give her an even higher profile to help promote the things she believes in particularly her fight against drug and alcohol abuse.

"Being a. VJ is kind of a hip image," she says, "and this way I can show people that you can be hip and also be drug-free.

"I know this is a timely issue. and a lot of people are jumping on the bandwagon," she says. "But I don't care what gets people involved in it. I'm Just happy it's picking up steam.

"I'm not one of those people who does drugs and then gets up in front of the public and says it's a bad thing," she says. "No one's going to believe them. Anybody can see me at any party and see that I don't do drugs - it's not a public image that's different from the private

Aside from the opportunity to "be able to change the world in a positive way," as she puts it. Tarbox is pleased that this new job will give her a chance to meet many of her favorite music celebrities.

"There's a list of people I want to meet," enthuses the monthlong veteran of music television. "I want to meet John Cougar Mellencamp and Huey Lewis, particularly, because they both seem like such nice folks.

"I suppose I'll get to find out whether a lot of the people ! think are neat are really neat." she says. "I expect I'll be in for some shocks!"

Cook Of The Week Teacher Loves Children, Camping And Just Plain, Ordinary Cooking

Since 1958, Linda Bose, our Cook Of The Week, has been one of our dedicated educators. teaching kindergarteners and first graders in several Sanford schools and is currently at Hamilton Elementary. "They're so tickled when they learn to read," says Mrs. Bose. "You can see the light in their eyes and they're so thrilled when they can finally read something. I wouldn't want to do anything else but teach," she says. "I teach with the 4-Her's, I teach with my own children, I teach all day long, it seems, but I wouldn't want any other kind of a job. As a third generation Floridian from Apalachicola, Mrs. Bose recalls, "I did a lot of cooking and sewing, and we did things like skating and swimming for fun. My mama taught us all how to cook. She was a good cook; just plain, ordinary southern type things, the things my Daddy liked to eat." Biscuits and combread were an integral part of the southern fare in those days, says Mrs. Bosc, but, "When I was growing up we also had "light" bread, sometimes, that you got at the store." This was in contrast to the heavier, homemade breads and biscuits that were made at home.

Mrs. Bose's family lived all up and down the state of Florida, she says, before settling in this area, where she attended Stetson University and received her teaching degree. Her family of two brothers and three staters are all part of the educational system and teach a variety of subjects ranging from music to math. "My mother went back to and still works with young people in that organization. Club members meet once a week at her home where they learn about things they are going to have to know as adults, such as child care, food, nutrition, business relationships, leadership,

Good cooks aren't necessarily born that way and Mrs. Bose admits that she has had her share of mishaps in the kitchen. She can remember when, early in her marriage, her husband came home with a brand new coffee pot, the percolator kind, and she didn't know how to use it. "We had always had the drip kind," she laughs, "and I had never seen one like that. I knew how to cook and everything, but I didn't know what to do with that pot and I cried. But he showed me and I learned how to use it. I mean, he didn't get rid of Loving the outdoors, Mrs. Bose and her family are avid campers and hikers. As members of the Florida Trail Association, they have hiked the trail from Big Tree to Chuluota, camping overnight. in a few years, when they retire from their respective jobs, Linda and Chuck Bose intend to spend a great deal more time at their rustic cabin in the North Carolina mountains. "We go up there a lot now in the summertime," says Mrs. Bose, 'And we'll go there at Christmas ime. We build it aimselves with a lot of help from our friends. It has a wood burning cook stove. and we use oil lamps; there's no electricity." In keeping with the rustic nature of their mountain hideaway, the Bose's even built a new outdoor rest room with cedar lining and a skylight.

Queen's Visit To China May Be Her Last

By Paul Anderson

HONG KONG (UPI) - Queen Elizabeth sailed into sunsplashed Hong Kong harbor aboard the royal yacht Britannia today, welcomed by brass bands, water-spouting fireboats and all the pomp and pageantry due a monarch visiting her far-flung empire.

Long-time observers of the royal family said this could be the last visit to Hong Kong by a British monarch before the colony - the last glittering jewel in the crown - reverts to China on July 1, 1997, at the end of a 99-year lease signed in 1898.

The Hong Kong government, apparently hoping to avoid embarrasaments such as the one caused by Prince Philip's remarks in China, warned that people who meet the royal couple during their three-day visit should not repeat their conversations to the media.

Philip raised eyebrows when he described Peking to British students in China as ugly and warned them they would get "slitty eyes" if they stayed too long in China.

Government protocol officer Peter Harvey, advising on correct behavior if approached by the royals, told Hong Kong residents exchanges with the royals should be kept private. "I think it is unnecessary" to

"As you move toward a new phase in your development, our thoughts will always be with you." she said.

"As 1997 gets closer, it seems most unlikely that the queen would return to Hong Kong." one veteran observer of the royal family said. "Such a visit might be seen as upsetting the agreed-to status quo on Hong Kong. It has been 11 years since she last visited and it seems unlikely she would return any time close to the hand-over of Hong Kong."

This is the season for pumpkins. They appear at roadside stands, at front doors, carved as jack-o'lanterns and just about everywhere you look. To the north of us, picture in your mind's eye, fields of bright orange pumpkins surrounded by trees having turned crimson, amber and gold.

This is the week of one of the largest festivals in the United States. Started in 1903 in Circleville, Ohio, the pumpkin festival spotlights this native vegetable.

Well, cnough for trivia. Let's talk about micro-cooking pumpkin. Since the size of a whole pumpkin is usually too large to cook evenly in the microwave oven, it is best to cut it in half. By placing cut side down in a baking dish, the skin forms a tight fitting covering. Cooking time varies with the size. A pound of fresh pumpkin yields about one cup cooked.

To prepare a medium pumpkin for micro-cooking, cut in half and remove seeds and stringy membrane. Microwave on 100% 18-20 minutes or until tender. Cool; scoop out pulp and place in food processor or blender. Process until smooth. Can be frozen and ready to use.

Don't throw away those seeds! TOASTED PUMPKIN SEEDS

Wash seeds, removing membrane; pat dry. Place 1 cup fresh pumpkin or squash seeds and 2 tablespoons butter or margarine in a shallow baking dish. Microwave on 100% power I minute. Stir, coating the seeds with the butter. Sprinkle lightly with salt. Spread even in dish. Microwave on 100% power 10-12 minutes or until lightly toasted, stirring occasionally during last half of cooking time. Sprinkle with additional salt if desired.

There is more to a pumpkin than ple. It can be a base for cream soup. Serve this soup with a dollop of sour cream and a dusting of nutmeg or chopped parsley. Complete this festive fall meal with crusty bread, a pasta or green salad and gingerbread. PUMPEIN SOUP questions about Lassie, I am writing to set your reders straight, as the information you received from the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences was not totally accurate.

I am Bob Weatherwax, son of Rudd Weatherwax (now deceased), who owned and trained the original Lassie. I am also a trainer and worked on the Lassie series for more than 10 years. I now have the seventh. generation Lassie and will series for TV next year.

Although there have been seven Lassies since 1942 (all males), there was only one Lassie at a time. While shooting, we used a stand-in and stunt see them or call them, I could. double, but to say that there My mother was told, "You don't were "many" dogs portraying know how she feels about us. be like saying there were many 18, her real father will look her actors portraying Tony Curtis in up and then she can do what she the same movie.

As for Lassie being a mixed breed, anyone who watched "Lassie Come Home" on TV recently could see that Lassie was obviously a purebred collie. The dog was given to my father in lieu of payment for boarding and training, but Dad never received the papers. Although Lassie was bred to AKC collies, it was not important that Lassie have pedigree papers because my father never showed Lassic in AKC dog shows, nor did he sell the pupples.

I hope this clarifies the misconceptions about Lassic.

BOB WEATHERWAX, CANTON COUNTRY, CALIF. DEAR BOB: It does, indeed, and thank you for writing.

DEAR ABBY: My mother had me while she was married to her first husband. They were divorced when I was 5. My mother remarried and her new husband adopted me. This man is the only father I have ever known and I love him very much. My mom told me she would answer any questions I had about my natural father. I've never had any.

Now that I am 17, my paternal grandparents, aunts and cousins have started coming into the place I work and telling me that they are my "family." Abby, these people are strangers to me. I have a family that I love and am very happy with. I just want possibly be doing a new Lassie to be left alone. How do I get them to understand this? I asked my mom to call them and ask them to please leave me alone. She did. She also told them that I was happy, and if I wanted to Lassic at the same time would—but in a few months, when she is wants to do about him and his family.

Abby, I can do what I want to do right now, and my mom and dad do know how I feel. They know I am happy with the family I have, and want to be left

Now I dread the thought of turning 18. I don't want to have these people bothering me. I hope they are happy, but I have a life of my own and all the family I want or need. How do I get them to leave me along?

ANONYMOUS, PLEASE DEAR ANONYMOUS: Since you and your parents have both made it clear to the family of your biological father that you want to be left alone, their constant "bothering" you is harassment in legal terms. If it persists, a lawyer should be consulted.

DEAR ABBY: Would you please tell us where you find the names of our elected representatives? I am sure there must be others like me who would write to them is they knew who they were, and where to write.

Please do not use my name, as for 59 years I have succeeded in keeping from the public what a dummy I am for not knowing who my congressperson is.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've had four ultrasound treatments over the last several months for an inflamed cartilage in the chest area. It still bothers me. Is this the best treatment?

DEAR READER: Ultrasound treatments sometimes help the pain of chest-wall inflammation. You appear to be having continuing trouble, so I conclude that ultrasound is not the best treatment for you. Ask your doctor to recommend antiinflammatory medicine or other forms of physical therapy.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I seem to have excessive ear wax, which runs out of the ear and gets the ear inflamed. What can I do about this?

DEAR READER: The application of hydrogen peroxide once every week or so might help your wax problem. Pour about one-third of a capful in each ear. wait until the fizzing stops, and then drain or wash out the residue. The effervescent action of peroxide tends to loosen wax particles and bubble them out of the car. The treatment is safe and inexpensive. If this simple approach doesn't solve your problem, check with your doctor.

DEAR DR. GOTT: For the past few months, many foods and drinks have tasted moldy or fungusy to me. Now things are beginning to smell that way, too. Is this an allergy or a sign of a disease? I am 33 and more than 100 pounds overweight.

DEAR READER: You might have an allergy or a fungus infection in your throat or sinuses. See an ear, nose and throat specialist.

DEAR DR. GOTT - What's the difference between an optometristandan ophthalmologist? Does the former have the training to diagnose and treat glaucoma?

DEAR READER - An ophthalmologist is an M.D. who is specially trained in (and limits his or her practice to) diseases of

An optometrist attends optometry school for two years after college - about one-quarter the training of any eye M.D. He or she is trained to recognize eye diseases, but not to diagnose or treat them. Optometrists are oriented toward the normal, healthy eye. They perform examinations and refractions, prescribe lenses and provide routine eye care. In most states, they are not licensed to perform surgery, treat eye dis-cases or prescribe prescription

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby You need 12 tricks to make a small slam. But there is no need to take the first 12 tricks if it's easier to take tricks two through

This slam was not that easy to reach. It was not at all clear that North should cue-bid five clubs as a slam try, since South would frequently be bidding under pressure after the four-club pre--empt. If South had really stuck his neck out to bid four hearts, then North's five-club bid might just be getting their side too high. In fact, the slam was unbeatable except for declarer's carelessness.

Naturally the king of clubs was opened, and South immediately demonstrated that his bidding was superior to his declarer skills. He put up the ace of clubs and saw it ruffed away. Later he had to lose a spade and his contract. Had he analyzed the lead and reviewed the bidding. he would have avoided his silly mistake. It's normal for West to hold eight clubs for his preemptive opening, and so, rather than have that ace ruffed, declarer should have simply played low from dummy on the opening lead. He can play low again on the next lead and ruff, then draw trumps and discard his losing spade on dummy's preserved ace of clubs.

Biko: A Film With No Name

By Philip Williams

MOMBASA, Kenya (UPI) -Richard Attenborough is a little worried. The Oscar-laden movie mogul is busy spending $22 million of somebody else's money on a movie with no name.

"Well, it's difficult," he says. "The shooting script is called Asking for Trouble,' but that won't do.

"The obvious title would be Biko' - first 'Gandhi,' so then 'Biko' - but the problem is the film isn't a biography of Steve Biko. We'll have to come up with something."

Attenborough is in Mombasa on a tight 48-hour schedule, shooting beach scenes for a feature movie based on journalist Donald Woods' books about Biko, the South African black activist who died in police custody nine years ago.

Attenborough uses the word "murdered" and concedes if movies he has made like "10 Rillington Place," "Oh What A Lovely War" and "Gandhi" stirred them up, the latest sublect is the hottest he has ever handled.

'The condemnation of South African apartheid in this film is 100 percent," he says, pouring lemon soda into his parched body after another day in the remorseless African sun. "There's no question about that — no room for doubt." He speaks quietly, lays down the glass and looks carnestly through heavy, black-rimmed

"The lines are drawn there. I don't think any film could make things worse. The conflagration is already happening.

"The film lays the inhumanity of the political system of apartheid bare. I want it to influence public opinion. I hope it does. I hope it contributes to the debate and I hope it helps to bring about what is needed sanctions, whatever, to force political change and the release of Nelson Mandela."

Lobster-red from 13 weeks shooting in Zimbabwe, Attenborough said the finished film will be delivered next summer to the principal backers at Universal after interiors have been shot at Pinewood Studio in Britain.

It is scheduled for release next autumn - the 10th anniversary of Biko's death.

Though an inquest cleared South African security police of responsibility for Biko's death from brain damage, human rights organizations and friends like Woods always have been here." he said. "Gandhi" convinced Biko was beaten to death by interrogators who ignored his injuries.

Woods, a South African jour- tionally nalist, fled the country with his family after his friendship with Biko radicalized his politics.

Attenborough said he read Woods' two books when looking for material for a South African film after making "Gandhi."

A 1984 trip to South Africa. unpleasant brushes with the government, meetings with black leaders — and many of the characters now to be portrayed in the movie - convinced him to

"In a nutshell, the film shows how two old-fashioned white liberals become friendly with and then are deeply influenced and changed by Biko into active participants in a struggle against an inhuman system of political oppression," Attenborough said in an interview. The cast is relatively little known: Kevin Kline as Woods, Penelope Wilton as his wife Wendy and American actor

Denzil Washington as Biko. British actors John Thaw as police chief J.T. Kruger and Timothy West as a police officer have other roles. Attenborough, 63, said the film, like "Gandhi," is a return to his political roots and that his financial and artistic success in

"We have such an opportunity reached 300 million people yes, bums in scats. Not even television can do that interna-

the last 10 years now enable him to make the films he wants to

"My talent, if I have a talent, is for films, for telling a good story through actors. That's what I'm good at Yes, I make commercial films. It's no secret. I've got no interest in making films for art cinemas to be seen by three men and a dog."

Attenborough said no studio was interested in "Oh What A Lovely War," which won 17 international awards, or "Gandhi," which won eight Oscars. Except for a personal contact at Universal, he said. nobody would have wanted the Biko film either.

"Look at 'Gandhi," Atten-borough said. "Nobody wanted that, 'Who wants a film about a funny little man in a join cloth with a spinning wheel?' That was said to me. The major studios probably have financial interests in South Africa. Who wants a film that makes trouble?

"These are one-off films. There is no formula here. There is no 'Son of Gandhi' or 'Son of Biko' to make. It's not 'Star Wars Part II' or a Bond thing. Its a gamble.

WORLD IN BRIEF

OPEC Reaches Pact; Prices Rise Predicted

GENEVA (UPI) - OPEC oil ministers, in the early hours of their 17th day of wrangling. finally managed today to agree on extending temporary production limits until Dec. 31 in an effort to further boost prices.

Agreement was announced by exhausted ministers at 2.30 a.m. (9:30 p.m. EDT Tuesday) after OPEC's longest meeting since it was established in 1960.

But despite the drawn-out talks, OPEC was unable to achieve accord on returning to permanent new pricing and productionsharing arrangements.

instead, ministers succeeded only in extending at a slightly higher level the organization's previous temporary output ceiling for September and October of 16.8 million barrels a day.

OPEC President Rilwanu Lukman, the Nigerian oil minister, told reporters that members believe their continued production restraint should boost prices — currently around $15 a barrel — to between $17 and $19 per barrel by year's end.

Soviets Signal Flexibilty

MOSCOW (UPI) - The Soviet Union says its position on laboratory testing of "Star Wars" is undecided, indicating it may be more flexible than originally believed by U.S. officials.

The Kremlin, however, reaffirmed that there can be no deal on cutting the number of nuclear missiles without U.S. concessions on the Strategic Defense Initiative - the "Star Wars" anti-missile defense. It called U.S.

claims to the contrary "groundless."
In a report on Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's talks with visiting Danish Prime Minister Poul Schleuter, the Tass news agency said, "The desire of the American leadership to achieve military superiority on the basis of SDI was the reason ... a breakthrough was not achieved" at the Reykjavík, Iceland, summit.

Shamir Opens Settlement

JERUSALEM (UPI) - Israel's new prime minister, Yitzhak Shamir, wrapped up his first full day in office by inaugurating a new Jewish settlement on the occupied West Bank.

The ceremony at the Kokhav Yair settlement Tuesday came amid growing Arab-Israeli tensions underscored by a government announcement that 153 Arab teenagers had been arrested in rock-throwing protests in the occupied Gaza Strip.

Shamir, speaking at a youth village Tuesday evening, said, "We need to develop the economy to increase our security and to settle all of the 'Land of Israel' so that we can absorb the Aliya (Jewish immigration) when it comes."

Shamir, 71, has said he believes the West Bank and Gaza Strip belong to the Jewish people as the historic "Land of Israel."

Moslems Hold Airman

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) - The chief of the Shiite Amal militia confirmed his fighters captured an Israeli airman whose plane was downed in southern Lebanon but did not say where the prisoner was being held.

Nabih Berri, whose Amal movement is the largest Moslem militia group in Lebanon, admitted for the first time Tuesday that "the (Israeli) captive pilot is with Amai movement." Berri said he would free the airman when Israel pulled out of the Israeli-designated security zone on the Lebanon-Israel border and freed about 200 Shiites and Palestinians, many held by the Israeli-backed South Lebanon army that controls the zone.

Hasenfus: I'm Guilty

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) - The lawyer representing captured American flier Eugene Hasenfus said he will seek a two-day delay in filing a plea for Hasenfus, who could draw a 30-year sentence from a People's Tribunal if convicted. Hasenfus said in a television interview he is guilty of terrorism charges against him.

The People's Tribunal set a Thursday deadline for Hasenfus's plea. But defense lawyer Enrique Sotelo Borgen - an opposition member of Nicaragua's National Assembly told a news conference Tuesday he would request a two-day extension of the deadline

There was speculation Sotelo might be trying to arrange some sort of plea bargain.

'I am guilty. Everything they've charged it's there," Hasenfus said in an interview with NBC News broadcast Tuesday.

'How can I say I wasn't there, I was not carrying small arms and munitions? ... I need help," he said.

Greeks Suspect Victim

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) - Police are leery of a Palestine Liberation Organization claim that laraeli agenta are to blame for a bomb blast that killed a PLO official.

Greek authorities said the victim may have killed accidentally - by a bomb he planned to use in an attack on an Israeli or Jewish target.

The PLO identified the dead man as Monder Jaoudad Abu Gazala, 44, a senior member of the PLO's mainline Fatah faction. He was killed early Tuesday by a bomb that exploded in his car as he was driving in an Athens suburb of Nea Smyrni.

The PLO said Gazala commanded the group's naval force based in Sanaa, North Yemen, and charged that he was "assassinated by Zionist agenta."

Aquino, Enrile Reconcile

MANILA. Philippines (UPI) - President Corazon Aquino announced a reconciliation today with outspoken Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, and in her toughest anticommunist speech since assuming power said she will soon set a deadline for an end to peace talks with the rebels.

The case was turned over to investigator Daren Tjomstol who reported driving through that neighborhood with the suspect who pointed out four of about a dozen vehicles the suspect reportedly claimed to have burglarized.

Food legends are intriguing. especially when the dish in question is an eating experience. One such is chicken mole poblano, or chicken with chocolate. It is one of many Hispanic creations being enjoyed throughout the United States. One tale explains that a monk was preparing a feast for a visiting viceroy. He left the kitchen briefly, and while he was away a breeze blew his assortment of herbs and spices from a tray into a pot holding a turkey. Thus mole poblano was born. The same sauce often is used with chicken.

A West Indies dish features plantain, a cousin of the banana. Select a ripe plantain. A finger of plantain should be deep yellow and speckled black or entirely black. (Do not eat fresh plantain.) Bananas may be used in this dish, but they are sweeter.

Elegant Vegetable Wreath Sure To Draw Raves Appliance experts predict that three out of five homes will have a microwave oven by the end of the year. Popular for defrosting and reheating foods, the timesaving wonder is also well suited to certain types of cookery. Vegetables are the foods most frequently mentioned as tasting good when microwaved, according to consumer surveys. Preparing them in a circle is the best technique for even cooking. An elegant Vegetable Wreath illustrates how easily a colorful side dish can be made in a microwave. Broccoli and cauliflower are pre-microwaved, arranged in a ring mold with tomato wedges and heated with a simple butter sauce. Miraculously, the wreath holds together! The butter mixture is seasoned with a little garlic and red pepper sauce, the liquid pepper seasoning which adds a pleasing piquancy and flavor enhancement without the harshness of ground cayenne

Because stir-fry ingredients are cut into small. uniform pieces and frequently stirred, they cook evenly and beautifully in the microwave. The oven also enables foods to "fry" in less oil and keeps cooks cooler because less work and heat are necessary to achieve satisfying results. Fiery Jamaican Dish Trendy Form Of Barbecue

By JOHN DOMERS UPI Food Editor

BOSTON BAY, Jamaica (UPI) - In trendy Caribbean restaurants from New York to San Francisco, the mouth-searing barbecue known as "jerk" is the entree of choice for the eat-and-be-seen set.

But for Russian, Black Boy and the rest of the gang around the ramshackle stalls in the jerk capital of the world, it's what they do for a living because it's what their fathers and their grandfathers did.

"Jerk has got to be lick-finger style," observed Russian (the only name he owns up to), lifting a board that had been holding pork, chicken and sausage over a smoky charcoal fire.

"I feel happy that more and more people are making jerk and liking jerk — as long as they're not stopping us." Considering the dish's tangled history, it's doubtful even the onset of chic could stop the boys the rugged interior section called around Boston Bay. Meat has long been jerked in Jamaica, by people not only under privileged but under siege.

The very word "jerk" lets on that a cross-cultural trek is in order. It is the English form of a Spanish word of Indian origin. meaning to prepare meat in the style of the Quichua Indians.

The basic idea of covering pork with a peppery mix of spices and cooking it slowly over a fire goes back to the earliest South American tribes to spread out into the Caribbean.

The tradition was preserved by a rather dashing bunch called the Maroons - former slaves of the Spanish and runaway slaves of the English who conducted a tireless guerilla warfare against their frustrated former masters.

For the most part, jerk remained a mystery outside Maroon outposts in the north coast parish of Portland and in the Cockpit Country.

By the 20th century, however, it had become a kind of Jamaican roadfood. And by all accounts, it was best enjoyed around the three or four rickety stalls on the shores of Boston

Despite the dish's recent spread up and down the island and into the United States, purists still find their way to Boston, order a pound or two from Russian or Black Boy and sit down amid the pigs, goats, chickens and dogs to dig right

According to the experts (and where better than Boston Bay to interrogate them) the secret is to slaughter a pig at the start of each business day - up to three pigs on a Sunday - clcan it thoroughly, cover it with spices and cook it over low coals for five to six hours.

By the time the meat is cooked, it has absorbed herbs and spices from the mix, along pork works just fine, the Boston with smoke from the charcoal and from the hard pieces of plmento wood that hold it above the heat.

The meat has also, in effect, been preserved. The word around Boston Bay is that jerked meats can be kept without refrigeration for two to three days, though leftovers tend to be a fantasy considering the unforgettable flavor.

Interestingly, few of the men standing around the fire or gnawing meat off charred bones between swigs of Red Stripe beer know about the dish's history. Nor do they seem to care much which stall snares jerk-lovers from the next car pulling in off the pockmarked highway.

"We're all friends here," said a stall-keeper named Cyrli, "even though we're competitors."

Despite its exotic origins, pork chicken or fish can be jerked at home without undue time. money or labor. Store-bought

Bay crowd notwithstanding (and or any other cut is a good deal neater than slaughtering a pig).

spice in a West Indian market (Bromley's is a good brand). you'll have to prepare a paste that blends alispice berries (known in Jamaica as pimento) and hot peppers (preferably the fire-breathing Scotch bonnel) with other herbs and spices.

Here is a simple kitchen-tested formula that will delight many more diners than it will send stumbling for a drink of water. And it will delight quite a few of those too.

JERK PORK 1/3 cup alispice berries

7 stalks scallion, chopped

3 hot peppers, chopped, with or without seeds 5 fresh cinnamon leaves (or bay leaves) Salt Freshly ground black pepper

5 pounds thick-cut pork chops, tropical greenery. Serves 6.

To prepare the spice paste for any jerk meat or fish, heat the Unless you find a jar of jerk allspice berries in a small frying pan. Stir for 5 minutes, then place the berries in a mortar and pound them until they are powdery.

Add the scallton, hot peppers. cinnamon or bay leaves, salt and pepper, grinding this mixture together until you have a thick paste. Wash and dry the pork. then cover it with the peppery paste and leave it to marinate for at least an hour, preferably overnight in the refrigerator.

When it's time to cook, place the seasoned meat on the grill of a barbecue and cook gently for about 1 hour, turning the pork when the first side is done.

The Jerk Pork can be served in whole chops or slices, or it can be chopped off the bone and placed in a serving-size mound on a banana leaf or some other
