

Jackson May Lure More Black Voters To Register

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

The prospect of having black activist and potential presidential candidate the Rev. Jesse Jackson pay a visit to the Central Florida area may motivate more blacks to register to vote.

Meanwhile, the Democratic Party in Seminole is gearing up for a year-long voter registration drive.

"We'll be trying to register 10,000 new voters in Seminole County," said party chairman Marvin Meltzer, adding that rumblings from Jackson has nothing to do with it.

Currently, there are 5,111 black Democrats registered in Seminole County and only 128 black Republicans registered in the county.

Democrats will kick off that voter registration drive tonight.

Would Jackson be a viable presidential candidate?

Meltzer said if Jackson is talking about becoming a black third party candidate, he would be defeating his own purpose and would be splitting the Democratic Party. "the traditional political party of minorities."

Meltzer said it was shown in the past few days in Philadelphia that if a good black candidate runs against a mediocre white candidate, the black is going to win.

Seminole County Republican state committeeman Fred Streetman said Jackson as an individual can have a major impact on the political scene.

"I do think if he runs as a candidate he will be able to use his followers as leverage to extract commitments from the ultimate Democrat nominee," Streetman said.

In the 1980 federal census, Seminole County's total population of 179,752 was counted. The census reports showed that slightly more than 10 percent — 18,028 — is black.

Beginning in May 1982 and through June, the county supervisor of elections office at the request of the local Democratic Executive Committee deputized committee members to conduct a voter registration drive.

The committee registered about 1,537 new voters and of those 744 were blacks. And the voter registration rolls climbed from 71,353 to 72,890 total. Black registration went from 4,206 to 4,850.

The current number of registered voters is 77,941, of which 5,284 are blacks. There are 39,172 registered Democrats and 32,267 registered Republicans in Seminole County and 6,502 listed as "others".

Meltzer's theory is that if 1,500 new voters could be registered in a little more than a month, 10,000 new voters is not an impossible goal to reach in a year.

Supervisor of Elections Sandy Goard has been asked to attend the Democratic Executive Committee meeting at 7:30 tonight at Casselberry City Hall to deputize 15 members to work on its special voter registration drive. The Democrats will be trying to sign up 10,000 new voters within a year.

Mrs. Goard said she and her office staff will give those deputized a training class, administer their oaths, and require them to publish the locations where they will be registering voters in newspapers, citing places and times.

"The drive isn't just for blacks," Meltzer said. "It's for anyone who is not currently registered."

Of Jackson's public statements recently, the Rev. Amos Jones, executive director of Seminole Community Action and pastor of a local church, says he believes Jackson, a disciple of the late Dr. Martin Luther King, is leaving the door open to a presidential candidacy more or less to keep people guessing and motivate those he is trying to reach to go to wherever the books are and register.

"I think it is a kind of baited hook where he is luring people into responsible action toward voter registration. I would frankly be surprised if he announces his candidacy," Jones said.

Willie King, manager of the Orlando Times, a newspaper devoted to black news, and president of the Seminole County Chapter of the NAACP, says Jackson probably will be coming to Florida because of the potential voting power of the state.

King said Jackson's first objective would be to have more influence in the Democratic national platform.

"I believe one of the major reasons blacks and poor people in general don't vote is because they feel they don't have any input into the result of voting," King said. "They feel totally frustrated by the voting process."

Until recent years, Seminole County did not have a single black elected official. The racial barrier was broken with the appointment of Roland Williams to the School Board. He was subsequently elected by the people and has been selected by his white colleagues each year during the past two years as the School Board chairman.

Whether Jackson becomes a national candidate for some office or not, Jones says he is immediately qualified.

Jones has met and spoken with Jackson twice.

"The last time I talked to Jesse Jackson was in Orlando," Jones said. "The first time we met was in Chicago in his office and that's been a good five years ago. He is very charismatic without question. He has some resemblance to the attraction of Dr. King. He has a kind of magnetic personality. I guess its primarily because of his household name.

"A big factor is his ease in communicating with people. He does it very well and seems to enjoy it. That's certainly something that would draw people to him and he always has something to say. He makes people think, ponder and search their very souls," Jones said.

Jones said from what he knows at this point, he don't really think a presidential candidacy is Jackson's aim at all.

"Without question he is totally competent. There is no question whether he would be a viable and capable candidate," Jones said, adding, "I don't see how he can avoid coming into this area. I have no idea when, but I'm reasonably certain he will be in the Central Florida area."

Grand Jury Indicts 3 Deputies

By Diane Patryk
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County Sheriff John Polk said today the three sealed indictments handed down by a Seminole County grand jury investigating allegations that sheriff's deputies stole property from tenants during evictions vindicates the majority of deputies who are law abiding.

Sanford lawyer Thomas Greene said his client, Aaron Sanders, a former Seminole County deputy sheriff, was one of the persons named in the indictment. He said Sanders would turn himself in at the sheriff's department shortly after noon today.

Polk said names of the other two persons indicted could not be released until their appearance in court at 1:30 p.m. today at the Seminole County Jail. He said other media, quoting sources "close to the case" put forth the wrong names in speculating on the indicted persons.

In February Gov. Bob Graham ordered the an investigation of allegations that 40 to 50 Seminole deputies had been involved in stealing property from evicted tenants in the past three years.

"I knew in my own heart and mind it was nothing like that (many)," Polk said today.

He said he believes the three indictments will be all that are forthcoming.

"As far as I know this is the end of the matter," he said.

He said he had investigated charges of such thefts beginning in December 1981 after receiving an anonymous letter. After that investigation he fired three people, he said.

Then in March of 1982 he received, he said, notice of a lawsuit being brought by a person evicted in 1980. There was another investigation and it was discovered that one of the persons previously dismissed, Aaron Sanders, had apparently stolen property and sold it in Orange County, Polk said.

He said his office then brought charges in Orange County against Sanders for disposing of stolen property. It could not be proven that the property was stolen in Seminole County.

"The person who filed that lawsuit continued to watch the papers to see if this person was arrested," Polk said. "But they weren't watching the Orlando papers."

Consequently, they continued to agitate for an investigation.

Polk said he did not want to personally investigate the matter again.

But the sheriff said he is now pleased that an independent investigation has showed there "were only three bad apples."

Graduation Time

It's getting closer to the big night for graduates at five Seminole County high schools. Although the preparations have all been completed, there are still some minor adjustments to be made, like the angle of your mortarboard. Seminole High Principal Wayne Epps gets Senior Class President Martha McIntosh's mortarboard just right in preparation for commencement exercises Saturday at 8:30 a.m. at the school stadium. The other four public schools with a graduating class this year also will hold their commencements Saturday.

Seminole County Jail Too Crowded: State

The Seminole County jail has been cited by the state for the second time in five months for overcrowding at the 212-bed facility near Sanford.

A state inspector visited the jail on May 24 and discovered that the jail had 225 prisoners, 13 above the state authorized capacity.

The situation is the worst on weekends when prisoners serving weekend jail sentences are at the facility. Jail population sometimes exceeds capacity by as much as 30 inmates on weekends, a state inspector said.

In May, the prisoner count on one weekend was 270, the inspector said.

The state has not yet approved the addition of 32 beds in eight 4-person cells at the jail.

But when the capacity exceeds 244 some inmates must still sleep on the floor, the inspector said, in violation of state standards.

The county closed a deal Tuesday for the purchase of 15.85 acres of land adjacent to the jail at the county's Five Points complex part of which will be used to construct a 200-bed jail expansion.

And even though that project has been scheduled to begin in the 1983-84 budget other capital improvement projects may force postponement of the $4 million expansion.

If that happens, the state will continue to cite the county for the overcrowding.

If the citations continue indefinitely, a federal court could order the county to release some prisoners or build more jail space.

Other violations cited in a January inspection of the jail have been corrected, the inspector said.

State Help Sought On Crooms' Fate

By Michael Beha
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County School Board members voted 4-1 Wednesday to ask a state Department of Education crew to examine Crooms High School, Goldsboro Elementary and Sanford Middle Schools to determine their future uses.

The board delayed a decision on the use of those schools until the state survey is completed. That report could take as long as three months to complete.

Board Chairman Roland Williams cast the dissenting vote, claiming the delay is unnecessary and that the district has its own staff which is capable of conducting the survey.

No date has been set for the state team to begin its survey, according to Seminole School Superintendent Robert Hughes who said the report should be in School Board members hands no later than the beginning of school in September. He added that the report could be completed much earlier.

"I don't see where a spot survey is going to help us more than what we have already," Williams argued.

The district already has surveys on the school facilities conducted by the state in 1974 and 1979 which could be used to make the evaluations, he said.

Williams called the state survey request "throwing darts in the dark." He added that Assistant Superintendent of Facilities and Transportation Benny Arnold is qualified to make an "objective evaluation" of the schools.

Arnold agreed that he could conduct the survey but said he has little time available since the district is planning construction on four schools.

Hughes, who had recommended moving Goldsboro Elementary students to the Crooms facility and closing Goldsboro, said the district has established new educational specifications since 1979 and the facilities should be analyzed according to those new specifications.

Hughes supported his recommendation, calling it "educationally sound but not perfect."

"When we try to improve schools, when we build new schools, we cannot keep every old school in the north end of the county open," he said.

The board's decision was to reject Hughes' recommendation on the schools and to study all three facilities. Goldsboro will be analyzed as a grade school with a capacity of 750. Sanford Middle School will be examined for its present use and Crooms will be judged against specifications for grade schools and middle schools.

Board members agreed to sell about 10 acres of land adjacent to the Crooms campus. The sale of that property will be used to fund capital improvements at the school.

Roland Williams

Earlier this year the board voted to eliminate the split high school, voting to close Crooms as a ninth grade school and make Seminole a four-year high school.

But a group of blacks recently filed a motion asking a federal court judge to intervene in the closing of Crooms.

The group, Concerned Citizens of Seminole County, said the move violates the intent of the 1970 desegregation order.

School Board Attorney Ned Julian said the board will file a response with the court and an evidentiary hearing will be held on the motion.

School Named For Veteran Educators

William Hamilton

William L. Hamilton's first job as a school principal in Seminole County could well have been his last. But instead of quitting when he was fired from that first job, Hamilton worked for 39 more years as an educator in the county.

In honor of those 41 years and the 44 years spent by his wife, Aleatha, as a teacher in county schools, the Seminole County School Board voted 4-1 Wednesday to name the district's newest school Hamilton Elementary School.

The school will be built behind the district office at the corner of Mellonville and Celery avenues in Sanford and will replace Sanford Grammar, Hopper and South Side elementary schools. The school is scheduled to open at the start of the 1984-85 school year.

School Board member Jean

Bryant cast the lone dissenting vote. She supported naming the school after Margaret Reynolds, an educator in the county for 27 years.

Hamilton, who was on hand at Wednesday's meeting, said the district has come a long way since he took that first job 43 years ago. Back then, the district administration consisted of a superintendent and a secretary. Each school had its own board of supervisors.

Hamilton was appointed principal of Oviedo Elementary School by School Superintendent T.W. Lawton in 1930. In 1932, he made the mistake of flunking the daughter of a member of the school's board of supervisors and was fired.

But Hamilton soon bounced back, becoming principal at Rosenwald Elementary School in Altamonte Springs that same year. He stayed there until 1953 when he was named principal at Midway Elementary School, east of Sanford.

More than 750 people signed petitions asking for the school to be named after the Hamiltons.

After the decision was announced, Superintendent Robert Hughes also revealed recommendations to honor Mrs. Reynolds and another Seminole County educator, Velma Williams.

He said a children's museum should be established at Sanford Grammar School when the school is closed next year. That museum should be named after Mrs. Reynolds, Hughes said.

He also recommended that when South Side Elementary School is closed it be turned into an administrative complex and be named after Mrs. Williams. — Michael Beha

Hundreds Flee Homes Due To Chlorine Leak

Deltona residents from more than 300 homes in a one-mile square area around the Deltona Country Club were forced to evacuate the homes this morning when a leak was discovered in a chlorine tank at a Deltona Utilities water pumping station.

The leak was discovered at about 5 a.m. by a Volusia County sheriff's deputy on routine patrol. Residents of the area were alerted by telephone and by house to house checks by deputies.

Some of the evacuees took shelter in the Deltona Junior High School, while others went to the home of friends temporarily.

An emergency crew had the leak repaired by 8:30 a.m. and residents were allowed to return to their homes. The 150-gallon tank is used to automatically chlorinate the community's drinking water.

According to the Volusia County Sheriff's Department, the evacuation was precautionary due to the toxic nature of the gas, but there were no known injuries.

The gas was circulated into the atmosphere and dissipated rapidly.

IN BRIEF

$700 Income Tax Cap Picking Up Support

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Speaker Thomas O'Neill's call for a $700 cap on the July tax cut picked up support in the Senate, but a key committee chairman in the House expressed concern that it may not be a wise political move.

Sens. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., and Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., announced Wednesday they will lead a Senate fight to limit the tax cut to $700, as O'Neill suggested earlier this week. The senators said if a House-approved bill is not sent to the Senate soon, they will attach the proposal to other legislation.

Like O'Neill, the two senators said it was a matter of fairness that wealthier Americans, who have benefitted from large tax deductions over the past two years, should sacrifice part of their July tax cut in an effort to reduce the budget deficit.

On the other side of the Capitol, meanwhile, House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski said he is not convinced it would be politically wise to adopt the tax cut cap.

"I think it's a good idea economically," Rostenkowski, D-Ill., told United Press International. "Politically, I don't know."

Lavelle Pleads Innocent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rita Lavelle, fired from the Environmental Protection Agency, pleaded innocent to contempt of Congress charges that could send her to prison for up to a year if she is convicted.

At a brief hearing Wednesday, Miss Lavelle softly declared she was "not guilty" of willfully refusing to appear to testify March 21 before a House subcommittee investigating allegations of political manipulation in the EPA's toxic waste enforcement program.

U.S. District Judge June Green released the former EPA assistant administrator on personal recognizance bond but ordered her to return to court June 22 when a trial date will be set.

Miss Lavelle, who formerly earned $67,000 as head of the EPA's toxic waste cleanup program, became the first agency official to face criminal prosecution as a result of the recent controversy that forced the departures of 21 political appointees from the agency. She was fired by President Reagan Feb. 7.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: The West faced thunderstorms and warm temperatures today that could "grease the skids" for more disastrous mudslides and floods while storms soaked Florida and the southern High Plains. A mudslide hung just above the homes of 300 residents of North Ogden, Utah, and some residents of Boise, Idaho had to use boats to reach homes cut off by the flooding Boise River. The National Weather Service said temperatures in the 70s and 80s would prevail for several days over most of the western United States, where the threat of flooding persists due to record and near-record mountain snows the past winter. Fast snowmelt swelled the reservoir behind Lucky Peak Dam near Boise and flooded low-lying areas along the Boise River. Some residents had to use boats to reach their homes. The Army Corps of Engineers increased water release from the dam to 8,000 cubic feet per second, the highest level in 40 years, and said they would step up the water release today. Corps officials estimated damage from high water to crops, levees, irrigation structure and farm buildings would reach $500,000. Thunderstorms across the High Plains into the Plateau Wednesday night spun off tornadoes near Farwell, N.M., and Muleshoe, Texas. Large hail hit Las Vegas and Tucuman, N.M. Storms in Florida dumped an inch or more of rain on much of the state. Tornadoes were reported in East Naples, near Fort Myers, and just south of Plant City, about 20 miles east of Tampa. The Plant City twister destroyed a trailer and injured two people. Cold air pouring down from Canada broke a 97-year-old record for the lowest maximum temperature at Brownsville, Texas where the mercury dipped to 66.

Senate Honors 'Orange Blossom Special' Writer

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Even if "The Orange Blossom Special" never replaces "Old Folks at Home" (Suwannee River) as Florida's state song as has been proposed, the old favorite and the two men who wrote and performed it have been given their due — special honor by the state Senate.

Ernest Gordon Rouse of Miami, the surviving member of the Rouse Brothers country music team, was accompanied to Tallahassee by long-time family friend Bob Grady of Winter Springs to receive the tribute earlier this week.

Featured in an April 8 article in the Herald, while visiting here with the Grady family, Mr. and Mrs. Rouse were injured in an automobile accident while returning home and have not fully recovered. Mrs. Rouse, who also sang with the country music group, was not well enough to make the trip to Tallahassee.

State Senator John Hill of Miami introduced the resolution which was passed by the Senate "honoring the Rouse Brothers for their contribution to Florida by composing, recording, and performing 'The Orange Blossom Special', a song commemorating the train bearing that name."

Ervin Rouse died in 1981, but Hill described as his brother Ernest as "a goodwill ambassador for Florida who has brought warmth to all the people of Florida with his music." He escorted Rouse to the rostrum where he was presented with a parchment copy of the resolution by the Senate President Curtis Peterson.

Just as gratifying for Rouse was the warmth and enthusiasm shown by individual senators toward him and his music. Senators surrounded Rouse to get his autograph and have their photographs taken with him and tell him how much "The Orange Blossom Special" meant to them.

On Jan. 8, 1927, the last section of track for the Orange Blossom Special that ran from New York to Miami, was opened with great fanfare, enabling northern visitors to travel from New York to Miami in just 40 hours and 20 minutes.

Ten years later, the Rouse Brothers composed the music and wrote the lyrics for "The Orange Blossom Special." The song has been heard by millions of people, and in 1982, some 45 years later, it was named the "Most Played Song" of the year by ASCAP (The American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers).

It has been recorded by more than 50 recording artists, including Johnny Cash, and was played by Charlie Daniels in the movie, "Urban Cowboy."

Ervin and Ernest did not have any formal musical training, composing and performing all of their music by ear. "The Orange Blossom Special" was the first song they had ever composed and recorded. The inspiration for the song came as they watched the train as they drove from Miami to Kissimmee. Among the more than a dozen songs they wrote were "Sweeter Than the Flowers" and

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Rouse look over old sheet music of "The Orange Blossom Special" with long-time friend Robert Grady (right) of Winter Springs.

"Little Parakeet", both of which were recorded by country music great Grandpa Jones.

But their most famous song remains "The Orange Blossom Special," now a violin classic. It is played not only by country western bands, but by classical orchestras as well.

Murder Suspect Released On Bond

A second-degree murder charge has been filed against Ronald Wayne Nixon, accused in the shotgun slaying of a 40-year-old Sanford man. The charge carries a maximum penalty of life imprisonment.

Mixon, 35, East Highway 48, Sanford, was released from the Seminole County jail Wednesday on $6,000 bond set by County Judge Wallace Hall.

Mixon was arrested Saturday after Seminole County sheriff's deputies were called to the Nixon address where they discovered Jerry Dillard dead of a shotgun wound to the head.

Deputies' reports said the shooting followed an argument over a female friend of Nixon's.

Dillard, of 2608 Hartwell Ave., was found lying next to a pick-up truck in the front yard of Nixon's residence. Deputies said Dillard and Cecil Simpson, 33, of West Cameron Avenue, Sanford, arrived at Nixon's house to collect money Nixon owed Simpson.

Dillard and Simpson were partners in the ABC Roofing company, 300 Art Lane, Sanford.

Deputies said Simpson apparently received payment from Nixon inside his trailer, but after the two men went outside, Nixon saw Dillard and an argument ensued.

Deputies said Dillard reportedly said to Nixon: "Let's finish this once and for all."

Mixon then allegedly got a shotgun from his trailer and came back outside. The argument apparently continued, ending with Dillard being shot in the head. Nixon called sheriff's deputies to the scene.

TOOLS TAKEN

Tools of an unreported value were taken in a burglary of the Thrifty Service Station, 300 E. 2nd Street, Sanford, sometime between 5:30 p.m. Thursday and 7 a.m. Friday.

STEREO STOLEN

A stereo and speakers valued at $359 were taken from the home of Marie Murray, 514 Cypress Avenue, Sanford, sometime between 1:30 and 10:30 a.m. Saturday, police report.

GENERATOR GONE

An auxiliary electric generator valued at $500 was taken from the backyard of the Arther Middleton residence, 1900 Locust Ave., Sanford, sometime between 11:30 p.m. Friday and 8 a.m. Saturday, police report.

JEWELRY, CASH STOLEN

A burglary at 1404 East 8th Street, Sanford, netted thieves $740 in jewelry and cash.

The burglars apparently gained entry to the home of Rebecca M. Bradshaw via a west bedroom window. They escaped with the stolen items between 10 a.m. and 9:40 p.m. Friday.

Economists Aren't Worried About Decline In Revenues

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — State taxes last month produced $7 million less than expected, with the corporate profits tax triggering the shortfall, but legislative economists say they aren't worried.

Corporate profits revenues for April were substantially higher than expected, so it appears now that some receipts that normally coming in to the Department of Revenue in May were sent in early, the Joint Legislative Management's Division of Economic and Demographic Research reported.

Total general revenue receipts for May were $481 million. Sales tax collections for the month were $289 million, $1.9 million off the mark, but the shortfall is less than 1 percent, so it is considered negligible.

Insurance premium taxes totaled $48 million, $6 million more than expected, but it is likely that the surplus is caused by early receipt of money that normally would come in this month.

Revenues from the intangibles tax (collected on stocks and bonds, primarily) were $6 million over the estimate.

Strong showings by the corporate profits tax prior to May prompted state government's economists in mid-May to raise by $166 million the official estimate of funds to be available from current taxes for the 1983-84 fiscal year.

The economists concluded that construction and tourism are rebounding from last year's recession stronger than had been expected.

The May shortfall in corporate profits tax money is considered temporary and a result of a quirk in the collection system, rather than a sign that the recovery is not as robust as it appeared to be at the time of the revenue estimating conference.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

FP&L's Latest Rate Hike Not As Bad As It Seems

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Consumers will be charged more on their monthly electric bills to pay for Florida Power & Light's new nuclear power plant, but they won't be stuck footing all the bills if the facility breaks down.

Rejecting claims that Florida Power & Light spent too much to build the St. Lucie Nuclear Power Plant II, the Public Service Commission awarded the utility a $238-million rate hike Wednesday.

FP&L, which serves more than 2 million customers from south Florida to the Georgia line, asked for $256 million. The PSC cut that request by $18 million.

A performance clause in the ruling states that if the plant does not produce as much power as it is supposed to or if it breaks down, consumers will not be made continue paying costs of building the plant at the same time they are footing the bill for extra fuel required because of the malfunctions.

The commission's ruling means that residential consumers using 1,000 kilowatt hours a month will pay an extra $5.62 a month for basic service. But they will save an estimated $5 on each bill because expensive petroleum products won't be necessary. FP&L expects to save $179 million a year on fuel savings.

Stano's Life Threatened

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI) — Tight security was expected today at sentencing hearings for confessed mass murderer Gerald Stano, who faces the death penalty for the killing of two Volusia County women.

Sentencing hearings began Wednesday for Stano, who reportedly was the target of death threats. Five deputies were posted at Volusia County Circuit Court, where Stano arrived for the beginning of the scheduled three-day hearings.

Although Stano has been convicted of eight murders, this marks the first time a court has considered the death penalty. Stano, 31, is serving six consecutive life terms at the Florida State Prison in Starke.

Stano is expected to be sentenced Friday or early next week.

Stano has confessed to killing 39 women from 1969 to 1980. Authorities have discovered 26 bodies.

He Seemed To Be Doing Better, Then...

Young Cancer Patient Loses Battle

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

A long, valiant struggle against cancer ended quietly this morning for 14-year-old Jonathan Byrd who died at his home in Casselberry.

Hope raised by the apparent improvement in the condition of the young cancer patient was dashed recently when a CAT scan revealed a second brain tumor and his condition continued to worsen.

Jonathan, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Byrd, 450 Diane Circle, went to Metamoris, Mexico in April for the tumorex treatment not yet approved for use in the United States. Friends and South Seminole Middle School classmates raised more than $5,000 to help cover the cost of treatments. Johnathan was a freshman at South Seminole.

When he left for Mexico with his mother, Wendy, Jonathan had been given only three more weeks to live after cobalt treatments failed to cure the cancer gnawing away at his brain. The tumor was also pressing on Jonathan's eyes and he was on his way to going blind, according to family friend Ellen Phillips of 705 Trinity Court, Longwood, who headed up the drive to aid the teenager.

Upon returning home, he was examined by his neurosurgeon who could find no sign of the cancer, according to Mrs. Phillips. She said Jonathan was looking and feeling better after his two-week immune therapy treatment. A few weeks later, however, he began acting unusual and was given a CAT scan 11 days ago at Florida Hospital, Orlando. It revealed that although the original tumor was considerably smaller than before, a second, rapidly-growing and inoperable tumor had developed.

Jonathan who had been at home under nursing care, had demonstrated difficulty swallowing and breathing for several days.

"They couldn't do anything for the tumor, it involved too much of the brain," said Mrs. Phillips. "He went to the doctor Tuesday, and there is nothing more he could do."

In order to help Jonathan's parents cope with the financial burdens caused by their struggle to keep their son alive, the Jonathan Byrd Cancer Trust Fund was set up at the First Federal of Seminole in Longwood.

"Needless to say, the family has incurred overwhelming expense in their efforts to seek recovery," said Sid Boyette, principal of the South Seminole school. "He has shown remarkable courage during this difficult time. He has been an inspiration to all of us."

A total of $2,684 was raised by students, faculty and parents of South Seminole Middle School. The Students Advisory Board of South Seminole Middle School voted to donate $300 to Jonathan's trust account. A students vs. faculty volleyball game held April 22 raised $397.60 and a bake sale took in $121 for the fund. The faculty donated $1,427, the parents, $273, and the students $27, plus a $30 contribution. One of the teacher's sponsored a golf tournament at the Casselberry Country Club, which raised $108. The volleyball fundraiser was covered by WESH-TV Channel 2's Rick Moore.

"I knew him before his illness and he was a normal child full of spiffire," said Boyette. "Up until three weeks ago he was still attending school and he has been trying to keep up with his school work, but it is difficult. I went to see him Monday and he was very weak and had difficulty talking. His vision appeared to be impaired. He is very appreciative of all that has been done for him, he has unusual gratitude and spirit."

'Truth In Sentencing' Bill Should Ensure Uniformity

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham says a new sentencing guidelines law giving judges more say on how long felons spend behind bars and eliminating parole will be a model for the nation.

Graham signed the measure into law Wednesday, clearing the way for the state's courts to switch to the sentencing guidelines system beginning Oct. 1.

The measure (SB 1140), dubbed a "truth in sentencing" bill by its creators, is intended to take sentencing authority away from the Parole and Probation Commission and give it back to circuit judges and also provide uniform sentences for similar crimes by similar defendants from county to county.

Under the guidelines, judges will have a small range of penalties to impose for a given crime and will consider a defendant's job history, criminal background, age and other factors now weighed in determining parole.

Felons will have to serve the entire sentence given by the judge minus only gain time awarded for good behavior, participation in classes, work in a prison job and similar activities.

A judge's sentence currently has no real meaning unless he retains jurisdiction over a portion of it, a practice often frowned on by appeal courts.

The actual sentence to be served under the existing system is largely determined by the parole formula provided in the statutes. This formula, involving employment histories, prior offenses and the like, sets a "presumptive parole date" that supercedes the actual sentence handed down by the judge.

Some Facts About AIDS...

When facing an epidemic, the most life-saving responses are courage, reason and compassion.

A disease called Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome is spreading in epidemic proportions across America, almost entirely among four risk groups. The risk groups are: homosexuals, intravenous drug users, hemophiliacs and recent Haitian immigrants.

In the United States, there have been more than 1,300 cases reported.

With each new report of AIDS in the media, the public becomes more alarmed. Rumors are spreading, many without foundation. Risk groups feel threatened. Public health officials are under pressure. Families are worried that AIDS may strike the general community.

All of these responses are human. But the best defense against overreaction is facts. Here are the questions asked of health officials and the answers they gave:

What is AIDS?

Doctors aren't sure. AIDS is a syndrome, a complex of symptoms occurring together and resulting from a breakdown of the body's natural immunity system. The AIDS victims' defenseless body is commonly invaded by two types of disease: malignancies of the skin, such as Kaposi's syndrome, or by opportunistic infections, such as pneumonia. Mortality rates are extremely high. About 75 percent of AIDS victims reported three years ago are now dead. Some doctors speculate that in a five-year period, AIDS victims would show a nearly 100 percent mortality rate.

What precautions can be taken?

The Center for Disease Control at Atlanta recommends:

1. Sexual contact should be avoided with persons known or suspected of having AIDS.
2. Members of groups at increased risk should refrain from donating plasma or blood products.
3. Studies should be conducted to evaluate blood donor screening procedures.
4. Physicians should give transfusions only when medically necessary, and wherever possible individuals should be their own blood donors.

What are some early signs of AIDS disease?

Dr. Michelle Ginsberg of the Health Services Department listed these warning signs:

1. Losing weight, without thinking about it.
2. General swelling of the lymph glands in three areas outside the groin persisting for three months without a recognizable cause.
3. Fever, night sweats, malaise and achiness or fatigue persisting for a month or more, without an identifiable cause.

Ginsberg recommended: "If a person in a risk group shows these signs, he or she should go to a doctor."

Is AIDS spreading to the general community?

Dr. Edward Brandt, assistant secretary of health, said: "There is no evidence to date that indicates AIDS is spread by casual contact. On the contrary, our findings indicate AIDS is spread almost entirely through sexual contact, through sharing of needles by drug abusers and, less commonly, through blood or blood products. For these reasons there is no cause for fear among the general public (other than high-risk groups) that individuals may develop AIDS through casual contact with an AIDS patient."

Those are the facts. The suffering of AIDS victims is great. They should have the best medical attention possible. The responsibility of AIDS victims is clear. They must do everything possible not to spread their disease to other people. The role of public health officials is vital. They must educate the community to the dangers of AIDS and give information on how to avoid its spread.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Dad got the idea from Gary Crosby. He's writing memoirs on what it was like to be my father."

By Jane Casselberry

Fourth of July — the mention of it brings up a nostalgic collage of glorious, fireworks displays, picnics at the beach, beauty contests, greased pigs, parades, and unabashed patriotism.

One of the longest running, most successful, celebrations of the all-out community Independence Day celebrations in this area has been the Maitland-South Seminole Chamber sponsored "Maitland Day" event held each year. The best part was the parade with kids dressed up as Uncle Sam or Betsey Ross and their bikes, wagons and pets decorated for the occasion.

So it is with disappointment that we learn that the chamber has decided not to hold the event on the traditional July 4. They are planning to hold it in October or early November instead. This decision was made for several reasons, according to the chamber newsletter, some being the lack of crowds on long holiday weekends (the Fourth falls on Monday this year), the increased cost of renting the Maitland Civic Center, and the difficulty experienced in signing up bands for the parade during the summer months when the schools are not in session.

They gave up the fireworks display several years back citing the increased development in the Maitland area causing a safety problem, the horrendous traffic jams they caused and increased cost.

An exact date has not been set, but will be decided in the near future. But somehow it just won't be the same.

Hooray for the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, which is sponsoring the Fourth of July Family Festival in Fort Mellon Park to be climaxed with a fantastic fireworks display at dark on the lakefront. It is important to carry on these traditions so that the younger generation can also experience them, but these events take a lot of hard work, cold cash and cooperation to be a success so it is hoped that individuals and groups will contribute to the fireworks fund, participate in the festival, or just come out and enjoy it.

The Altamonte-South Seminole Jaycees and Women Jaycees are also to be congratulated for sponsoring a Fourth of July celebration at the Altamonte Mall. Part of the event will be the Little Miss Firecracker 1983 pageant for little girls between 5 and 8 years old sponsored by the Altamonte South Seminole Women Jaycees. The contestants will be judged on appearance, poise, and personality. The pageant will begin at 2 p.m. on July 4 at the mall.

Applications must be submitted by June 28 to P.O. Box 695, Altamonte Springs, FL 32701 along with a $30 registration fee for each child. Only the first 30 entries are eligible. Applications may be obtained by calling Mrs. John B. Verali, listed in the telephone directory.

Attorney John Tyson will speak on Legal Problems of the Elderly at the Casselberry Senior Citizen Multipurpose Center at the 1 p.m. meeting of the American Association of Retired Persons chapter on June 21. He will conduct a question and answer period after his talk, which is open to the public. AARP membership is open to all persons 55 and over.

Reagan Stresses Education

By Helen Thomas
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On the advice of his strategists, President Reagan has decided to try to make mediocrity in the education of America's children a hot issue in the campaign.

According to Reagan, merit increases for teachers will do the trick.

The nation's underpaid teachers will probably be happy to have the salary boosts if there is objective evaluation of their work, and the hikes are not given at the price of lowering their overall base pay.

Their starting salary is around $12,000, far below other occupations that require college qualifications.

Teachers have had a tough row to hoe. The nuclear age, the national political turmoil of the '60s and '70s have had their impact on the schools.

For some instructors in elementary and high schools in the big cities, the classrooms have been blackboard jungles where discipline has occupied the teachers as much as reading, writing and arithmetic.

Teachers also had to take on some of the responsibilities of absent parents who work all day. For those extracurricular activities they are not paid.

For teachers who remained at their posts it was like manning the barricades. Some decided that there was no appreciation of their talents or training and they sought jobs in more remunerative fields.

There have been times when there was a teacher shortage and times when there were too many teachers and not enough jobs to go around.

Reagan and Democratic presidential aspirant Walter Mondale grabbed the issue after the National Commission on Excellence in Education, created by Education Secretary Terrell Bell, issued a report warning of a "rising tide of mediocrity" in the nation's schools and the steady decline in student learning.

The commission recommended better pay for teachers, a longer school year, more homework and greater emphasis on math, science and English.

The president blamed "federal intervention" for the school problems cited by an 18-member panel.

"I think I can make a case that it began to deteriorate when the federal government started interfering in education," he told a recent news conference.

He said that the faults in education can be corrected "without money," adding: "It takes some leadership. It takes some return to basics."

He said that English, math and science should be stressed in high school. "And yet we've seen a time in which you can get credits toward graduation for cheerleading in some of our schools," he said.

"Or would you like to graduate by getting straight 'A's in bachelor life?" he asked reporters.

Reagan has highlighted the issue in several forums and that's only the beginning.

VIEWPOINT

The British Election

By Ronald Waring

(Editor's Note: The author is the Duke de Valderano. He contributes to many journals in Europe and lectures at the Royal Defense College in Great Britain. His article is provided by the USIC Writers Group.)

LONDON — Today there is a general election in Britain. Most Americans may believe it to be a sort of contest between British Democrats and Republicans, and that the outcome, whichever way it goes, will not greatly affect the United States. Unfortunately, this is not so.

The British Labor Party has moved a very long way from what it once was. Should the Laborites win the elections and be able to implement their political and economic program, not only Britain, but all the Western European countries, NATO and the United States would be affected.

To begin with, the Labor party is committed to unilateral nuclear disarmament; that is to say, that they advocate scrapping the British nuclear deterrent completely. They have also demanded the removal of all American nuclear weapons from Britain.

They are committed to the reduction of conventional military forces and, although the Labor party, by a majority, voted to remain within NATO, it is highly questionable what possible use Britain would then be to the alliance.

In addition, the Labor Party is committed to taking Britain out of the European Common Market. Many Labor members wish to see Britain enter into closer trading agreements with the Soviet Union and Comecon. This will certainly affect trade with the United States.

Among other measures, the Labor Party is committed to greatly increasing the power of the trade unions, and giving them what would amount to a share in the actual government. The Laborites endorse a policy of widespread and massive nationalization of industry, and renationalization, without compensation, of some industries.

Furthermore, under a Labor government, the currency would be devalued by perhaps as much as one-third to allow for a huge increase in wages and a government spending spree. Unemployment is to be solved at a stroke by the "creation of jobs." In effect, make-work jobs.

The British Labor Party says that it does not see that inflation is a real threat, and supports a policy which not only allows for inflation, but which is dependent on inflation.

To pay for his job creation schemes and other socialist measures, Mr. Michael Foot, the current Labor Party head and a potential prime minister, intends to borrow on a gigantic scale, which in a short time will see the British economy follow that of Brazil, Mexico, Poland and Argentina into multi-billion dollar debt.

All the major currencies are to some extent linked. Thus a Labor victory at the election would have a catastrophic effect on the world money markets. This will affect business of every sort, trade, banking, insurance and petroleum.

In Britain itself, a Labor government would impose very strict exchange controls, which would prevent the free flow of capital and all free exchange. Laborites are committed to this as one of their first priorities. Britons who wish to travel abroad will be given only a minuscule allowance each year, and those who wish to leave this socialist paradise may perhaps be allowed to go, but to take nothing with them, not even their own valuables and possessions. The vowed policy of the Labor party is to transform Britain into a real socialist state. In order to do so, they intend to abolish the Upper House — the House of Lords — and probably all titles. This, very many in the Labor Party openly admit, is a first step to the abolition of the Monarchy.

Private medicine and private schools are to be abolished. All children are to go to the state schools, where they will receive "political education."

DON GRAFF

Changing Salvador Guard...

Some of us are going to miss Thomas Ostrom Enders.

A lot. The physically imposing career diplomat has played a commensurately large role during the past two years in shaping American policy in Central America, particularly El Salvador, which has made him a convenient target for critics of that policy.

Enders came to his responsibilities with impressive foreign service credentials. He had previously held embassy posts in Stockholm and Belgrade and was ambassador to Canada during the Carter administration. There was also a stint in the early '70s in Phnom Penh which, according to reports, had greater military than diplomatic significance, involving as it did the targeting of American air strikes as Cambodia was following Vietnam down the tube.

The critics particularly liked that part. Would you buy a used policy from this man?

Yes Tom Enders had been around before January of 1981. But not around Latin America, which was very clear early in 1982 at a State Department press background briefing on the origins of the Salvadoran civil war. He either was unaware of or chose to ignore key points of the tragedy. Either way, it was a disturbing performance.

But he was willing to learn, which he demonstrated by embarking on a crash course in Spanish.

Apparently he proved a reasonably quick learner. I don't know about the Spanish, but by November of 1982 he seemed to be acquiring a much clearer perception of certain Salvadoran realities that eluded higher echelons of the Reagan administration.

While not completely abandoning the hardliners' preference for a military solution to the guerrilla war, Enders began advocating a "two-track" approach which would also encourage negotiations with less-extreme rebel factions.

That, apparently, was his undoing. Enders has been relieved of his Latin American responsibilities at State. Going with him is the department's other key figure in shaping Salvadoran policy during the past two years — Deane R. Hinton, who also, on the evidence, proved too competent a learner on the job.

Hinton had been sent to San Salvador as an antidote to Carter administration envoy Robert White, who had pushed political compromise over military confrontation and had been harshly critical of Salvadoran right-wingers responsible for most of the violence directed at the civilian population.

But by last November, Hinton was warning the Salvadoran establishment that it could continue to indulge in "gorilla" tactics only at the peril of eventually losing American backing.

Hinton's remarks were reported to have had the approval of Enders. But they had not been cleared with the White House, which promptly disavowed any change in "the substance or style" of American policy that might be read into them.

Foster Grandparent Program Hurt

WASHINGTON — In their zeal to save a few nickels, the White House budget busters have managed to break the heart of a 74-year-old blind woman, damage one of the most successful social programs in the country and leave the president's wife with egg on her face. Here's what happened:

In her book, "To Love a Child," Nancy Reagan told the poignant story of Mary Lee Wright, who volunteered her time as a foster grandparent to two blind and mentally impaired children. For almost two years, Mrs. Wright had poured out her love to her two foster grandchildren. They depended on her gift of love, and in time she grew to depend on theirs.

But the First Lady's touching story was published before her husband's budget cutters went to work on the program. Last February, ACTION, the federal agency which administers the Foster Grandparent and other volunteer programs, decided the New York state agency which sponsored Mrs. Wright's foster grandparent activity was spending too much money on administrative expenses.

So the bureaucrats in Washington, without so much as a formal hearing, canceled the state agency's Foster Grandparent sponsorship — shrugging off the fact that ACTION had incorporated several of New York's innovations into its handbook of model programs.

Rather than deal with the state, ACTION "decentralized" the program by handing out sponsorships to local community agencies. The federal agency's deputy director, Betty Brake, promised that foster grandparents, placed under new sponsorships, would continue to be with the children they had grown to love.

That promise was broken. When new sponsors couldn't pick up the transportation costs and the state wouldn't, Mrs. Wright and others were assigned to children closer to home.

For more than two months, Mrs. Wright sat home alone, cut off from her foster grandchildren. Finally, in desperation, she wrote to Mrs. Reagan, whom she had met a few months before in Washington. My associate Corky Johnson obtained a copy of Mrs. Wright's handwritten letter. Here is part of what she wrote:

"My meeting you in Washington was an experience I will always treasure, but the turn of events here in New York State since then makes it a bitter-sweet memory. It really breaks my heart to sit at home with nothing to do... and to know that Jason and Marion must be lonely and wondering why I have deserted them. They can't understand why this had to happen and, frankly, neither can I..."

"Without sight, I need special help to get to my children every day, so this wonderful program can no longer make my life worth living."

"Many of the other 'Grandparents' who aren't handicapped might be able to work with children in public schools, but Mrs. Reagan, these youngsters don't have the 'special' need that our disabled children have..."

"We found that our loving them is all that this world can give them. Because they are 'special' children with 'special' needs, they are the children we want to be with. They are the children ACTION said we would remain with. However, now our love has been cut off by ACTION and our new sponsor..."

Mrs. Wright got no response from Mrs. Reagan. An aide said the First Lady does not interfere in administrative matters.

Footnote: Mrs. Wright was recently assigned to work with a mentally impaired 10-year-old girl. But she still worries about Jason and Marion. "They probably feel they are being punished," she said, with concern.

Stubbs Has Unforgettable Night; Maldonado Smolders Over Demotion

As long as he lives, Franklin Stubbs will never forget what he did last Thursday night.

Same with Gandy Maldonado. He'll always be able to tell you what he did that night, too, so who knows, maybe they were destined to wind up in the sticky conflict they're in now.

Stubbs was the hottest hitter in America Thursday night. The 22-year-old, lefty swinging first baseman turned outfielder rocketed four home runs, including two in the same inning, and drove in seven runs for the Albuquerque Dukes in their 15-5 blowout of the Phoenix Giants.

That all took place in Albuquerque, which is where the Los Angeles Dodgers operate their No. 1 farm club under the direction of the best manager in the minor leagues, Del Crandall.

On that same night, 819 miles away in Los Angeles, the Mets, playing their last game under George Bamberger and making the poor man suffer one more time, were locked in one of those late-hour marathons with the Dodgers. Pinch hitting for pitcher Pat Zachry, Maldonado finally ended the struggle with a two-out single in the 14th that made the Dodgers 5-4 winners. The RBI was Maldonado's first of the year. He had gone to bat only 20 times and that base hit of his raised his average to .150.

We now go to the following night, Friday.

Guess what Stubbs does his first time up against Phoenix? You're right, he hits another home run, making it five in his last six at bats. Not bad for a kid with only one year's pro experience who had been brought up to Triple A ball only 10 days before from San

Milton Richman
UPI Sports Editor

Antonio of the Texas League.

Maldonado, meanwhile, wasn't having such a good Friday night. He didn't get to play in a 5-2 loss to the Mets and after the ball game, he got bad news. He was being sent back to Albuquerque where he already has played the outfield the past two years and hit .335 and .301. Needless to say, he wasn't too thrilled with his return trip to the minors.

After flying from Los Angeles to Albuquerque, the 22-year-old right-handed hitting Maldonado had to catch up with the Dukes in Tacoma, Wash. That trip was another thrill.

He arrived there Tuesday and who do you think he discovered playing right field, his natural position? You got it again — Franklin Stubbs.

When the Dodgers moved Stubbs up from San Antonio, that automatically terminated his career as a first baseman even though that was where he played at Virginia Tech, with Vero Beach of the Florida State League last year and in the Texas League earlier this year. The Dodgers sent orders to play him in right field.

playing first for them now, the last thing in the world the Dodgers figure to need for a long time is another lefty hitting first baseman. Brock hit 44 homers with Albuquerque last year and has 11 already with the Dodgers.

So Stubbs will stay in right for the Dukes. But Maldonado's best position is right field and he prefers that position. When he was tried in center last season, he didn't adjust to it too well.

Before Stubbs came to the Dukes, Lemmie Miller was playing right field exceptionally well for them and hitting .326. Now he's playing some left field and some center field and DH-ing. The Dukes have two other fine looking young outfield prospects in Ed Amelung and Tony Brewer.

Stubbs, a 6-foot-2, 205-pounder from Laurinburg, N.C., is hitting .268 with Albuquerque since the Dodgers moved him up and of his 11 hits so far, there are those five homers and three other doubles. He had a horrible start before his home run binge, hitting into three double plays and failing to get a hit his first 11 times up.

"Are you gonna stick with him?" a writer asked Crandall after Stubbs' first three games.

"Certainly," replied the Dukes' manager. "He isn't the first guy who ever went 0-for-11."

Stubbs didn't get too excited about his four home run game.

"I had to turn it around," he said. "I was leaving people on, hurting the team and hurting myself."

With Maldonado returning, Crandall has himself a problem getting everybody enough playing time, but he has had bigger problems before and feels he can take care of this one.

Speaking about Stubbs from Tacoma, Crandall said, "I like his overall makeup. He breaks on every ball and just seems to be in the game all the time. He's just beginning to play the outfield and he's playing it the way you might expect. Like he's just starting to learn how."

"Dick McLaughlin, one of our coaches, has been working with him and he's showing some improvement. Whether he'll be able to throw as a right fielder on a big league level, we'll have to wait and see. He'll stay in right. The most impressive thing about him is his strength as a hitter."

Stubbs broke a bone in his right ankle while with Vero Beach last July and played only 16 games there, but when he was sent to the Arizona Instructional League last fall, he led the league with .374. His 31 RBI and seven homers in 28 games earned him the Jon Carey Award as the outstanding Dodger player.

Crandall left no doubt as to how he feels about Maldonado, who comes from Areibo, Puerto Rico, and is beginning his sixth season in the Dodgers' organization.

"I know he doesn't feel too good about having to come back, but sometimes this is the best thing that can happen," said the former Milwaukee Brewers' manager. "When he goes up next time, it'll be to stay. He's an excellent outfielder with a strong arm and has exceptional power. This is a young man with tremendous potential."

Disabled American Veterans (D.A.V.) rallied for 10 runs in the first inning Wednesday en route to a 15-4 thumping of Railroaders at Bay Avenue Field in the final day of Sanford Little National League regular season action.

The winner of the National League, Poppa Jay's, will face the American League winner, Adcock Roofing, for the City Championship. The first game will be played Monday, June 13 in the best two out of three series. The second game will be Wednesday, June 15 and a third game, if necessary, will be Thursday, June 16. All games will start at 7 p.m. Poppa Jay's is the defending City Champion.

Kerry Wiggins and Chris Pierce belted out three hits apiece for D.A.V. while Joe Barrett and Garrick Williams had two hits each. Scooby Donaldson had a pair of hits for Railroaders.

D.A.V. put the game on ice with a 10-run first inning outburst. Joe Barrett and Brooke Winn walked to lead off the inning and Wiggins followed with a single to load the bases. Williams then singled to drive home one run and singles by Cliff Sims and Pierce plated two more runs. Mark Barrett then clubbed a double to chase home a pair of runs and another scored on an error on the same play to give D.A.V. a 6-0 lead. Mark Barrett reached third on the play and Quincy Ticooni and Elliott Brownlee both walked to reload the bases with all no outs in the inning. Joe Barrett then unloaded a three-run double and he scored on Williams' RBI groundout for a 10-0 cushion.

Railroaders failed to score off D.A.V. until the fourth inning. Chuk Roll slammed a solo home run for Railroaders in the sixth inning.

In Sanford Junior League action at Chase Park, Kiwanis erupted for eight runs in the fifth inning and added seven more in the sixth and went on to hammer Rotary, 18-7.

Rotary had taken a 5-3 lead after four innings, but Kiwanis put up eight in the top of the fifth to take a 11-5 lead. Arthur Hersey led off the inning with a single and he stole both second and third. Dwayne Willis drew a walk to put runners on the corners and Walter Hopson followed with a single to knock in Hersey. Willie Grayson then cracked a double to drive home two runs and Grayson scored on Tommy Mitchell's triple to right center. Mitchell scored on a single by Craig Brown and Brown came around to score on a wild pitch. Dexter DeBoe then drew a walk and he scored on a two-out double by Hersey. Hersey scored the eighth run on a wild pitch.

Kiwanis came back and put seven runs on the board in the top of the sixth, and before the inning ended, Rotary coach Ed Korgan conceded the game.

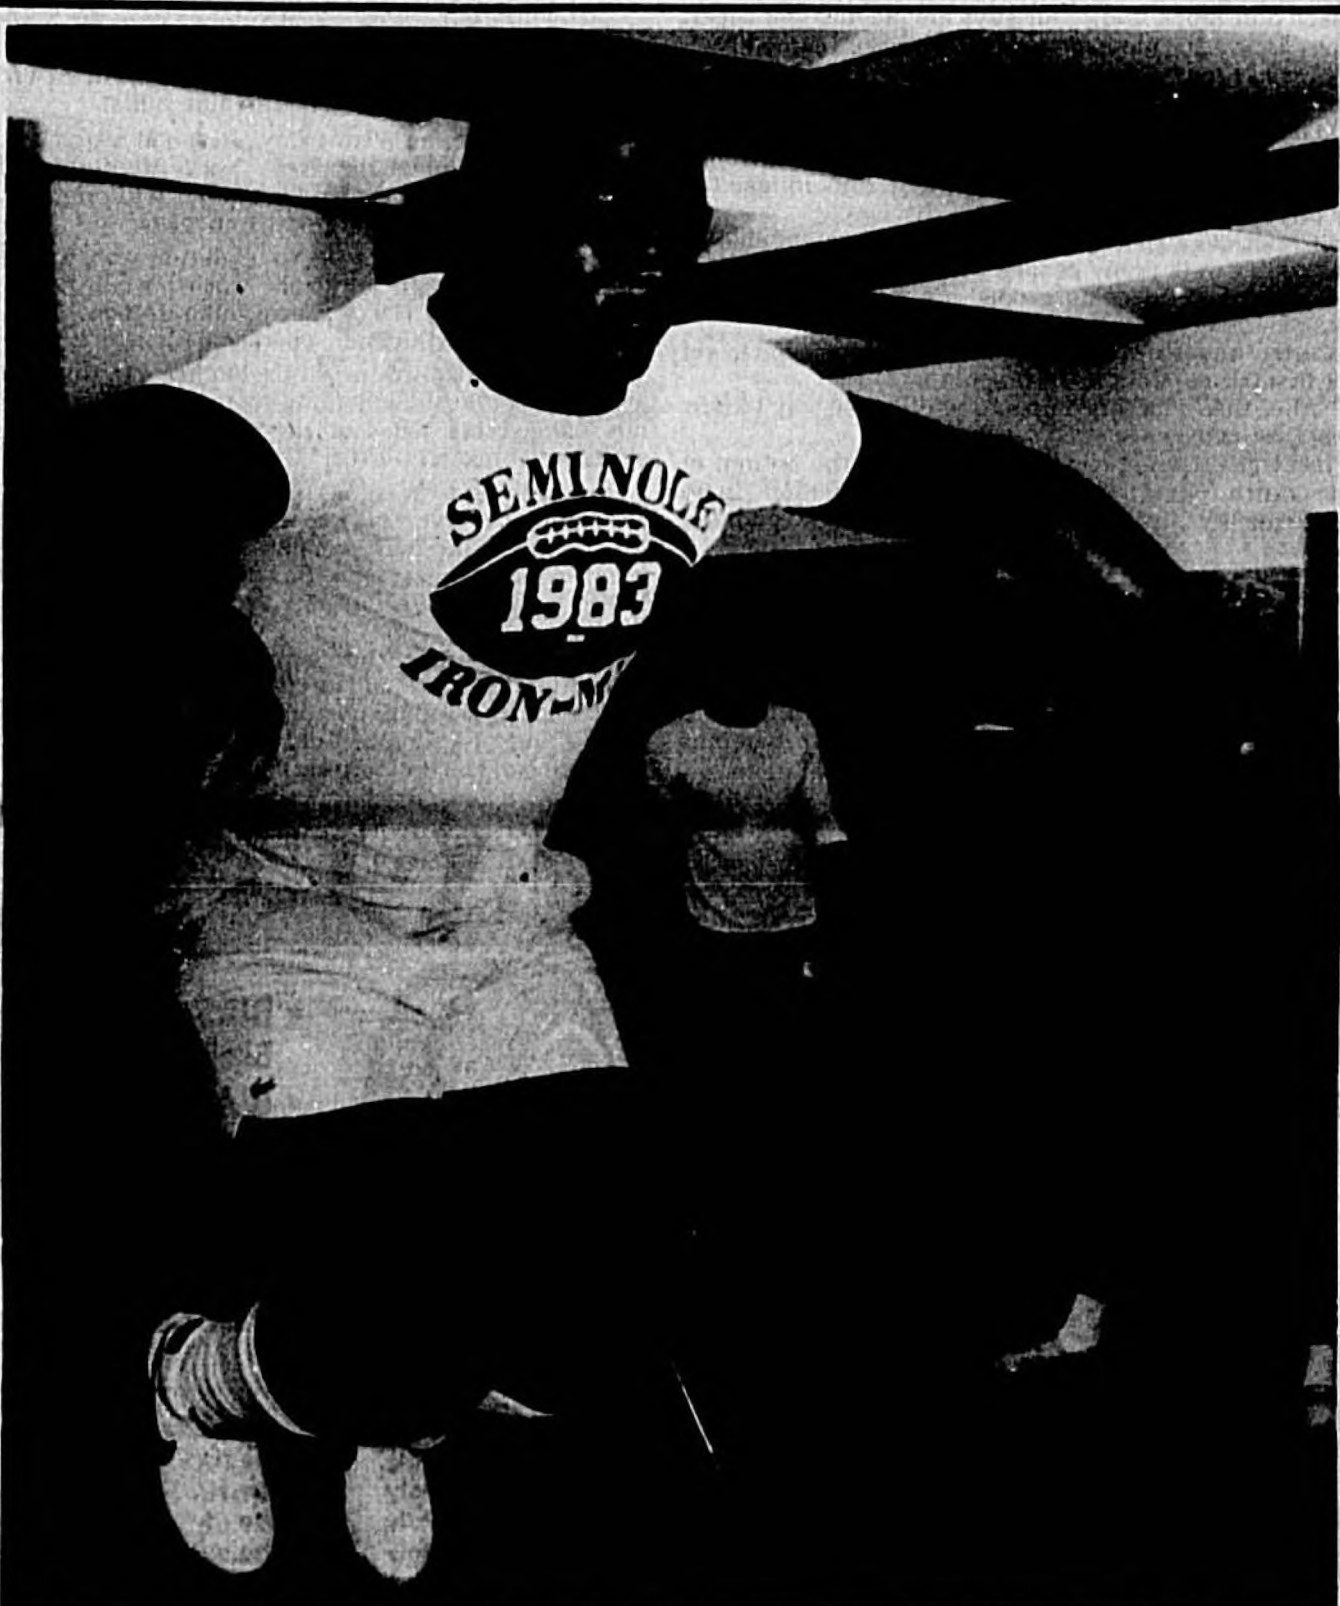

Kiwanis improved to 4-3 in the second half and 11-6 overall while Rotary fell to 2-4 in the second half and 11-5 overall.

In Wednesday's first game, Knights of Columbus won by forfeit over Ball Motor Lines. KOC now stands at 7-0 for the second half while Ball Motor Lines fell to 0-7.

Issac In The Box

Issac Williams does his imitation of "Jack in the Box" during a workout Wednesday night at Lake Mary High School's weightroom. Really, though, this is serious stuff. The former Seminole High All-State tackle is getting ready for his sophomore football year at Florida State University where he is in a tough battle for a spot on the defensive line. Williams, along with former Seminoles Arthur Gee Knight and Robert Guy work out three nights a week. See Sunday's Evening Herald for a feature on Knight, a scholar-athlete at Morris Brown College in Atlanta, who recently signed a contract to play for the Kansas City Chiefs.

Valenzuela Belts Braves

ATLANTA (UPI) — Tom Lasorda has no intention of trying to switch Fernando Valenzuela from pitcher to full-time batter — as Babe Ruth did — but he says he wouldn't hesitate to use the left-hander as a pinch-hitter.

"He's no Babe Ruth and he's no Don Newcombe (a former Dodgers pitcher who was an outstanding power hitter)," said the Los Angeles manager. "But, as pitchers go, Fernando is a pretty good hitter and that's what you have to compare him with."

The 22-year-old Valenzuela turned in his fifth route-going performance of the season Wednesday night while pitching and batting the Dodgers to an 11-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Valenzuela, now 7-2, gave up 11 hits — including three home runs — but helped keep himself in the game with his hitting.

After striking out his first time up, Valenzuela, who has 11 hits in 38 at bats, had a run-scoring single, an infield out, his first home run of the season and a sacrifice fly — giving him three RBIs for the night.

"I just got up there and I'm not making contact," Valenzuela said through an interpreter while soaking his left elbow and left shoulder in ice.

"Give (Dodgers batting coach) Manny Mota the credit," joked Lasorda. "He's the guy who has worked to make Fernando the hitter he is."

"Yeah," Mota injected. "I'm going to have him out at 3 p.m. tomorrow to take some more batting practice."

Wednesday night's game, which widened the Dodgers lead over the second-place Braves to 1-1/2 games and enabled the Dodgers, at 38-17, to continue with the best won-lost record in the majors, was a real slugfest.

In addition to Valenzuela's second career homer, the Dodgers also had two-run homers from Dusty Baker (No. 6) and Pedro Guerrero (No. 13) and a solo shot by Rick Monday (No. 3).

The Braves had their share too, rookie relief pitcher Rick Behenna hitting the first of his career on the very next pitch after Rafael Ramirez hit his first of the season and Bob Horner hitting his 10th of the year in the eighth — the same inning Valenzuela got his.

"Some nights it's bat night and some nights it's ball night," said Baker. "Last night (when the Braves won 4-1) it was ball night and tonight was bat night."

Dale Murphy, the National League RBI leader, got his 44th of the season when he doubled in the ninth inning. But the first four times Valenzuela got him out.

"Fernando was as good as usual," said Murphy. "What more can you say? He's just tough."

Valenzuela was involved in a bit of a controversy in the fifth inning when he tagged out Horner at home after a strike-three wild pitch had the Braves' slugger trying to score from second.

Tibbitts, Wain Impressive In Savages' Debut

If first impressions are a true indication — the Seminole Savages 15 and Under Softball team is ready for Hollywood Boulevard's wet cement.

Behind the three-shutout pitching of Chris Tibbitts and the excellent all-around performance of tournament most valuable player Kim Wain, the Savages swept six games last Sunday to capture the Tampa Mustangs Invitational Tournament at Greco Field in Tampa.

"We played almost errorless ball the whole day," said manager Roger Richardson. "Our defense was awesome and our bats were working, too."

Tibbitts, a freshman from Lake Howell, walked just 10 batters in the six games the Savages won. In two games, she didn't walk a hitter and also added four strikeouts.

Wain, a freshman shortstop from Lake Brantley, clobbered two home runs and two triples. She also speared a line drive by leaping a foot and one-half off the ground to secure the final out in the sixth game.

The 14-member team is a combination of girls from area high schools and middle schools who played in the newly formed Seminole Softball Club. Along with Tibbitts, third baseman Ava Gardner and outfielders Jennifer Jonas and Kris Korzon are also Silver Hawks. Jonas' little sister, Jaudon, is an outfielder from South Seminole.

Joining Wain from the Lady Patriots are outfielders Laura Davis, Angie May and Cindy Staggs. First baseman Kristie Kaiser and catcher Riane Richardson along with second baseman Kelly Neary join the team from Lyman. Lake Mary products include outfielder

Girls' Softball

Karen DeShetler and pitcher Beth Watkins. Outfielder Mikki Eby from Jackson Heights completes the squad.

The Seminole Softball Club will hold a gigantic 28-team tournament beginning Friday at the Seminole Softball Complex on County Road 419 near Winter Springs. Twelve teams will be in the 15 and Under division, eight teams in the 12 and Under and six teams in the 10 and Under. The Savages will compete in tournaments in Merritt Island (June 24-26), Plantation (July 1-4) and Conway (July 16-17) in preparation for the Metro Tournament which will be held at the Seminole Softball Complex. The Savages hope to qualify for the regionals in Oxford, Ala. (Aug. 5-7) and the nationals in Tifton, Ga. (Aug. 18-21).

Here's a breakdown of Sunday's results:

Game 1 — Seminole 13, Naples 4

Gardner slugged three hits while Neary, Davis, Kaiser and Jennifer Jonas had two apiece as the Savages broke loose for six runs in the first inning to make it easy for Tibbitts who allowed just five hits and shut out Naples for four of the six innings. One of Neary's hits was a triple.

Game 2 — Seminole 9, Clearwater 14

Clearwater roughed up Tibbitts for four runs in the first inning, but the Lady Hawk frosh blanked the visitors for the next six frames as the Savages rebounded for five in the bottom of the first and then four more in the sixth to seal the win. Davis and Kaiser each stroked three hits, one of Kaiser's was a double. Wain had a single and Richardson a base hit.

Game 3 — Seminole 12, Kissimmee 0

Wain and DeShetler each powered homers and singles as the Savages needed just five innings to rout overmatched Kissimmee. Kaiser chipped in with three singles and Neary added a pair. Tibbitts scattered six hits for her first shutout while striking out one.

Game 4 — Seminole 19, Clearwater 11

Tibbitt was even sharper against Clearwater II, allowing just four hits and not walking a batter. DeShetler, Wain and Gardner all clouted round-trippers. Gardner had two other hits. Neary had two singles and a three-bagger. Jennifer Jonas ahd a triple and a single while Tibbitts added two singles and a double as the Savages ripped 19 hits.

Game 5 — Seminole 14, Naples 1

Seminole tuned up for the championship game by crushing Naples as Tibbitts blanked the visitors for four frames as her teammates built a 14-0 lead. Neary walloped a triple and a homer while Wain had two triples and DeShetler blasted her third homer. Richardson and Tibbitts added two singles apiece.

Game 6 — Seminole 4, Tampa 0

The Savages put together their best defensive game for the host team. Tibbitts spaced seven hits and the outfielders ran down all of the Tampa line drives. Seminole jumped ahead in the first when Kaiser singled

Close's Clout Ousts Stanford; Brett Breaks Toe Rushing To See Buckner Bat

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Freshman Casey Close's grand slam homer in the ninth inning Wednesday night sealed an elimination round College World Series win for Michigan. Peter Incaviglia performed the feat earlier for Oklahoma State but it proved too little, too late.

Close's clout sparked a seven-run Wolverine outburst in a 11-4 victory that ousted Stanford from the series. Oklahoma State was unable to score after Incaviglia's ninth inning homer against Arizona State and was eliminated via a 6-5 defeat.

Tonight's single winner's bracket card features the two undefeated teams — Texas, 63-14 on the season, and Alabama, 45-9. Both are 2-0 in the series.

The Wolverines, 50-8 on the year and 2-1 in the series, advanced to a Friday night contest against Texas, and Arizona State, 44-23 on the season and 2-1 in the series, faces Alabama.

Close, who had just one homer in his first 80 at-bats for Michigan, blasted his second roundtripper to push his team from a two-run lead into a commanding 10-4 bulge.

"I told him that all he had to do was hit it out of the park and not drive it all the way down that hill," said Wolverine coach Bud Middaugh. "I'm happy we were able to show that we're a much better offensive team than we have (shown)."

Stanford coach Mark Marquess said Close's homer was "out of the world."

"Obviously we're disappointed," Marquess said. "We didn't show what we can do offensively. Defensively, we played well in the series but our offensive attack was not there."

Run-scoring doubles by Chris Sabo and Jeff Jacobson and a triple by Dale Sklar aided Michigan's ninth inning.

Sports Roundup

Following the win over Oklahoma State, Arizona State coach Jim Brock said, "Our guys are playing just super. They are getting mentally ready to play each game."

"I won't take any credit for that," Brock said. "They are a fun bunch to watch."

Oklahoma State coach Gary Ward praised Sun Devil pitcher Kendall Carter, who went eight innings, scattering five hits and giving up three runs to take the victory.

"Carter did a good job of running the straight change and didn't walk many people," Ward said. "I've always wondered how he beats people and tonight he showed us."

Carter, now 12-2, said, "It was important for me to get the first two guys out in the first inning."

"After that, I loosened up and pitched the way I know best," he said.

Incaviglia's home run with two out in the bottom of the ninth came off reliever Jim Jefferson, who subsequently struck out Steve O'Donnell to end the game.

Incaviglia's homer was his second of the series and 23rd of the season, an Oklahoma State record.

"I'm not in too good of a mood right now," Incaviglia said after the loss.

"I'm running around third base and all of a sudden I'm thinking I want to be happy," he said, "but it's hard to be happy when you're one run down with two outs and nobody on in the ninth."

The decisive run came in the Sun Devil eighth when Doug Henry singled in Barry Bonds, who had doubled. Bonds, the son of former major league standout Bobby Bonds, smacked a solo homer in the sixth. It was Bonds' 11th of the year and his fifth homer in six games.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Fluke or not, George Brett is hurt once again. And even the all-star third baseman is beginning to wonder if he has an injury jinx.

Brett was at home Wednesday afternoon watching the Chicago Cubs play the New York Mets on cable television while he was doing his laundry in preparation for Kansas City's upcoming six-game road trip.

The American League's No. 3 hitter was throwing another load of clothes into the washer when he heard Cubs' broadcaster Harry Caray talking about Chicago first baseman Bill Buckner, a personal friend of Brett.

So Brett hurriedly dumped the clothes into the washer and rushed into the adjoining room to see Buckner bat but banged his left foot in a door jamb en route, suffering a broken little toe.

Brett figures to miss at least five game and will be re-examined in five days to determine his playing status. It's the third time Brett has missed action because of an injury already this season. He sat out five games with a pulled hamstring and one game with a groin pull prior to the broken toe.

"When stuff like this happens you have to start worrying about it," said Brett, who was off to his best start ever with a .369 average. "Maybe it's just one of those things. As soon as I did it I knew I was in trouble but what can you do about stuff like this?"

New Jersey Selects Albeck; Clippers Promote Assistant

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — After more than a decade of professional coaching, Stan Albeck has come up with a jewel of a philosophy.

"I'm looking for a group of players only interested in winning," Albeck said Wednesday after being named head coach of the New Jersey Nets. "I don't want guys interested in individual stats. For that you only get a wristwatch, you don't get a [championship] ring."

In signing Albeck to a multi-year contract for an unannounced sum, the Nets filled a hole left by the defection of Larry Brown. The Nets had been without a coach since Brown jumped to the University of Kansas six games before the end of last season. Bill Blair, an assistant under Brown, was the interim coach the rest of the season.

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Portland Trail Blazers assistant coach Jimmy Lynam has inherited the unenviable task of trying to put the San Diego Clippers back on the right track.

Lynam was named head coach of the Clippers Wednesday, replacing the fired Paul Silas. Lynam, who served two years in Portland, came to terms with the Clippers on a multi-year contract after meeting with club officials Tuesday in Los Angeles, where Clippers owner Donald T. Sterling resides.

Financial terms of the pact were not disclosed.

Cubs Win 7th Straight; Steib Stops A's For 9th

CHICAGO (UPI) — Those stirrings about night baseball at Wrigley Field are coming at an appropriate time because the Chicago Cubs continue to indicate they aren't asleep anymore.

The Cubs, who haven't won the National League pennant since 1945, partially due to their punishing schedule of summer day home games, are on their best streak in more than five years.

Keith Moreland singled in Leon Durham with two out in the bottom of the ninth inning Wednesday to cap a two-run rally and lift the Cubs to their seventh straight victory, a 2-1 decision over the New York Mets.

The decision gave the Cubs their longest winning streak since May 1978 when Chicago won eight straight. The streak comes in a year of increased talk over the possibility of lights being someday installed at Wrigley Field.

"When you're winning, that's how things go," said Ellis, whose club is unbeaten in June. "We used all 27 outs that they gave us. That's how it goes when you've got momentum."

Durham walked with two out and took second on a wild pitch by lower Mike Torrez, 2-7. Ron Cey then was walked intentionally before Moreland lined a shot to right-center.

"I was fortunate. We're winning so the momentum is with us," Moreland said. "Give credit to Torrez. He pitched a whale of a game."

Torrez was on the verge of his first shutout in three years but Ryne Sandberg hit his fourth home of the season with one out in the ninth to tie the game at 1-1.

"I was really just thinking of getting on so someone could knock me in," Sandberg said. "When I got a curve, I just went after it and hit it out."

Moreland's hit one out later gave Chicago the victory.

"You give it the best you have," said Torrez, who also helped himself out with some good fielding plays in the game. "I pitched well, we lost. What else can you say?"

Lee Smith, who went one inning, raised his record to 1-2.

The Mets took a 1-0 lead in the eighth. Rookie catcher Ronn Reynolds, who went 5-for-3, lined a one-out single to center. Torrez sacrificed Reynolds to second and Mookie Wilson doubled off the glove of center fielder Mel Hall to score Reynolds.

Expos 5, Pirates 4
At Montreal, Al Oliver singled home runs in the first and third innings to help hand Pittsburgh its seventh loss in its last eight games. Bill Gullickson, 6-6, went a strong eighth inning before faltering error in the ninth. Jeff Reardon finished to earn his sixth save. Rick Rhoden, 2-6, took the loss. Tim Lincecum went 0-for-4 for Montreal.

Padres 5, Reds 3
At Cincinnati, Dave Dravecky became the NL's first nine-game winner and Kevin McReynolds, Terry Kennedy and Sixto Lezcano homered for San Diego. Sid Monge escaped a none-out, two-on jam in the ninth for his second save. Joe Price fell to 4-3 as the Reds lost their fourth straight.

Phillies 7, Cardinals 4
At Philadelphia, Tony Perez hit a three-run homer with two out in the ninth for the Phillies. Pete Rose, hitless in his last 20 at-bats, led off with a pinch hit single off Bruce Sutter, 4-3, and Perez later connected to make a winner of Al Holland, 2-0. It was Perez's fourth homer of the year.

Astros 1, Giants 0
At Houston, Phil Garner singled home Omar Moreno with two out in the bottom of the 11th to lift the Astros. Reliever Bill Dawley pitched the 11th for his fourth win in five decisions. Lavelle, 3-1, was the loser. Houston's Joe Nickro pitched 10 innings and the Giants' Andy McCaffigan went nine.

Blue Jays 5, A's 3
Toronto right-hander Dave Stieb continues to make American League batters look like turkeys, but says pitching victories are only the gravy. Team victories, he emphasizes, is his main course.

"I just didn't think it was realistic for me to (set personal goals)," Stieb said after becoming the league's first nine-game winner Wednesday after pitching the Blue Jays to a 5-2 triumph over the Oakland A's. "The only thing I'm interested in is pitching and winning."

Stieb pitched a shutout in the eighth, striking out three batters.

win," he said. "If the victories come to me, so much the better."

Orioles 7, Brewers 3
At Baltimore, Cal Ripken and John Lowenstein rapped two-run homers in a five-run eighth inning to rally the Orioles. Ripken, who struck out his first three times against starter Don Sutton, crushed reliever Tom Teilmann's pitch over the left-center field fence for his ninth homer of the season. After Eddie Murray walked, Lowenstein followed with his eighth homer down the left-field line.

Tigers 6, Red Sox 3
At Boston, Lou Whitaker slammed his fifth home run and added a pair of doubles and an RBI triple to lead the Tigers. The victory was Detroit's third in a row the series, the first time the Tigers have won three straight at Fenway Park since 1973. Jack Morris, 5-5, hurled his fourth complete game of the season for the triumph.

Royals 9, Twins 2
At Kansas City, Mo. Willie Aikens slapped three singles, knocked in two runs and scored another to carry the Royals behind the combined five-hit pitching of Steve Renko and Dan Gulsenberry. Renko, 5-4, scattered five hits, walked two and struck out two over seven innings.

Yankees 3, Indians 2
At New York, pinch hitter Lou Pinella singled home Dave Winfield from second base with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning to lift the Yankees. Rich Gossage, who recorded the last out in the top of the inning, got the victory to improve his record to 3-2.

Angels 7, White Sox 4
At Anaheim, Calif., rookie Rick Adams cracked his first major-league home run and a two-run single to back Ken Forsch's five-hit pitching, helping the Angels snap a three-game losing streak. Forsch raised his record to 5-3.

Rangers 1, Mariners 0
At Seattle, rookie Mike Smithson came within one out of his first major-league shutout and Seattle's Matt Young wild-pitched home the game's only run to lead Texas. Smithson, 4-4, scattered nine hits, walked one and struck out seven before being lifted with two out in the ninth in favor of Odel Jones, who pitched his eighth save.

Keith Moreland (left) and Ryne Sandberg are two of the prime reasons the Chicago Cubs are not imitating their usual cellar-dwelling position. Sandberg homered in the ninth inning to tie the game Wednesday against the Mets and Moreland came through with a single to win it. The Cubs have won seven in a row.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Reprieve Rejected; 3 Black Guerrillas Hanged

PRETORIA, South Africa (UPI) — Three black nationalist guerrillas were executed early today after the white-ruled South African government rejected a last-minute reprieve request, a prison spokesman said.

The three African National Congress guerrillas were hanged in Pretoria's Central Prison despite appeals for clemency from the United States, the U.N. Security Council, European Common Market nations and anti-apartheid activists.

The executions were the first of ANC activists since 1979, when Solomon Mahlangu was hanged for murder. Since 1976, reprieves have been issued for seven other ANC activists sentenced to death.

State President Marais Viljoen turned down clemency appeals by the men last Monday, ruling they should be executed because four police officers died in 1981 bombing and sabotage raids for which they were convicted of high treason.

Israelis Tighten Security

Israeli forces tightened security in the southern suburbs of Beirut today, increasing patrols and roadblocks after two of their soldiers were killed and two wounded by a remote-controlled car bomb.

Police said the attack occurred shortly before 11 a.m. Wednesday as two Israeli armored troop carriers moved along the Galerie Semaan crossroads in southern Beirut. Israel Radio said the bomb in a Mercedes Benz contained 440 pounds of explosives.

Police said two Israeli soldiers were killed and two wounded, and five civilians were also injured in the blast, which destroyed a nearby shop and sent shards of glass and metal fragments flying through the air.

Thatcher A Shoe-In

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's national elections today virtually promised Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservatives of the biggest majority in Parliament since World War II, dealing a severe blow to Labor's left-wing Socialism.

That Mrs. Thatcher, 58, would be the winner when the polls close at 10 p.m. (5 p.m. EDT) was not even questioned. The opinion polls all predicted a landslide in the voting by more than 42 million Britons.

...Black Voter Registration Here May Increase

How would one measure success if Jackson inspires a black voter registration here?

"When we are really talking about success we would have to talk in terms of what measure of success is to be used. I believe if a significant number of blacks register who have not been registered before that would be a success," Jones said.

"And if through Jesse Jackson's urging we have a significant number added to the registration books his effort would be successful," Jones said.

Has Jackson become the black leader in the United States?

Jones' response was deliberate and thoughtful.

"I do not believe that we need nor do we have a black leader in this country. I think we have been, since King, moving toward a more responsible leadership among blacks in this country on a broad scale. So, we are finding persons in all walks of life, in the church, on the street, in particular job situations exhibiting leadership qualities much more so in recent years than before," the minister said.

"We are not followers of one or a few. We are doing more planning now instead of reacting. An era ended with the death of Dr. King. I think the Moses image was needed at one time, but I don't think that will best serve our purpose anymore. It was a great unifying force and during that time it was necessary. There was such a disarray among blacks, primarily in reacting to what was happening. We had to have someone who had charisma, the strategy setting capabilities to sort of draw up a blueprint and put it before the people, not just blacks but the nation," Jones said.

Pointing to the recent elections around the nation of black mayors in big cities and blacks elected to state houses, Jones said the more that blacks are interwoven into mainstream America, the less need there is for "black leaders."

King said that he hasn't accepted the fact that Jackson is going to be the black presidential candidate. "Certainly some blacks are qualified to run for president."

"The concept of a black candidate would improve the whole political process for blacks," King said. "If a black candidate could go to the Democratic National convention with 5, 10 or 15 percent of the electorate from his state pledged, it would give that candidate for more influence." He pointed to black candidate victories in Chicago and Philadelphia as proof that blacks can win elections.

"Once people see that their vote will count, they will turn out," King said. "When people see that their vote counts, this overcomes voter apathy."

Streetman said he sincerely believes that the Republican Party has traditionally and now more so than ever afforded the black community the best opportunities for those who want to become successful either as an entrepreneur or to climb the ladder of success within a company.

"Unfortunately, we apparently haven't done a very good job of communicating that. We do, however, have an increasing number of middle income blacks who are becoming Republicans," Streetman said.

Meltzer said target areas in the voter registration drive will be Midway and Goldboro, noting the deputized party members will set up voter registration booths in flea markets because a lot of persons frequent such places. Another segment of the community to be targeted, he said, will be senior citizens.

Meltzer said the black community must put up and help good qualified black candidates seeking local office, beginning with cities, through to the county government and on into the state government.

"On the local level they could get the help they need," the Democratic chairman said.

Sewage Treatment Plant Purchase Study Approved

By Michael Beha
Herald Staff Writer

For Sale: Sewage collection and treatment system. 1.5 million gallon daily treatment capacity with permit to build additional 1.5 million gallon plant. Centrally located between Longwood and Altamonte Springs. Make an offer.

You probably won't be seeing this ad in the real estate section of the newspaper advertising the possible sale of Sanlando Utilities Inc. but Seminole County commissioners have set in motion steps which could lead to the purchase of the utility by the county.

Commissioners unanimously approved Tuesday an acquisition study by the Orlando consulting firm Post, Buckley, Schuh and Jernigan to determine what the utility's assets are and what would be a fair price for the firm which serves customers in the Longwood and Altamonte Springs areas.

The $36,500 acquisition study will determine how much the utility is worth and how large a bond issue would be necessary for the county to purchase the private utility firm, according to Ken Hooper, the county's environmental services director.

Hooper said the study will take between two and three months to complete. Then, if the purchase is approved by county commissioners, preparation of a bond issue will take another two months.

Hooper said the purchase of the utility would give Seminole County control of growth in the southwest section of the county. "If you control the utilities you control development," he said.

He said the county has been looking to take over private utility companies "whenever they are available."

Hooper said the firm has an existing treatment capacity of 1.5 million gallons per day but has a permit to build an additional 1.5 million gallons. Additionally, Sanlando has a million gallons of capacity reserved at Altamonte Springs' regional sewage treatment plant.

Expansion of the utility is one of the focal points of a six-month study just released on sewage capacity needs in the county.

Acquisition of the firm was recommended in the study, prepared by county officials and developers, because of rapid development expected in that area.

Hooper said Sanlando has asked the state Public Service Commission for a rate hike. He isn't sure how large the rate increase request will be.

Supreme Court Opens Way For Greater Use Of Anonymous Tips By Police

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Anonymous tips to police shot up in value under a new Supreme Court ruling that gives officers wider latitude to use them to obtain search warrants and catch criminals.

In an important law-and-order decision, the justices voted 5-4 Wednesday to throw out a rigid test that often barred anonymous letters and phone calls about crimes from being used to obtain search warrants.

Instead, the high court ordered judges and magistrates to use more "common sense" when assessing whether a tip from an unknown informer is believable enough to justify a search of the suspect's car, home or property.

The decision upholds a search by Bloomingdale, Ill., police of the car and home of a couple identified as drug smugglers in an anonymous letter. Illinois courts had ruled the search illegal and barred use of more than 350 pounds of marijuana and cocaine discovered in the couple's possession.

Wednesday's ruling also was notable for what it did not decide.

The justices dashed the hopes of the Reagan administration and law enforcement officials by sidestepping requests to relax a search rule often blamed for setting the gully free on legal technicalities.

Under the controversial rule, the penalty for an illegal search is to have any evidence of guns, narcotics, gambling devices or other materials barred from the trial, as if police had never found them.

There was both relief and disappointment that the Supreme Court did not plunge ahead and permit the use of illegally seized evidence.

Reaction likewise was mixed to the action the court did take on anonymous tips, generally seen as slanted in favor of police and detrimental to the privacy rights of innocent citizens.

In dissent, Justice William Brennan warned the ruling damages constitutional protections against invasion of privacy and will allow intrusions "on less than reliable information from an honest or credible person."

He warned the ruling will allow innocent people to be searched, simply on the basis of an anonymous tip phoned in to police perhaps by someone with a grudge.

Lewis, 26, succeeds Harvey Hutchinson in the $18,000-a-year position. Hutchinson resigned as director of the 500-member Chamber in May. Lewis served as executive assistant and press secretary to Nevada Gov. Robert List for the past two years.

Even In Defeat, Honesty Makes A Hero Of 13-Year-Old Speller

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Not wanting "to feel like a lime," Andrew Flosdorf confessed to the National Spelling Bee judges that they had misunderstood him and that he had actually misspelled the word "echolalia."

Andrew's admission Wednesday in the 56th annual war of words made him an instant celebrity and a famous loser — one loudly applauded by the crowd, embraced by his parents and swarmed by reporters.

Between arranging an appearance on a network television program, Andrew, 13, of Fonda, N.Y., said he was a bit surprised by all the attention generated by his honesty.

"The first rule of scouting is honesty," said this scout, whose initial tears were soon replaced by smiles. "Right now, I feel like the most famous loser at the spelling bee."

Andrew was among the 85 of 137 whiz kids eliminated in the opening day of the two-day bee that ends today.

During an afternoon break Wednesday, Andrew went to the judges and told them that although they thought he spelled the "echolalia" correctly in the third round, he had mistakenly substituted an "e" for the first "a."

"The judges said I had a lot of integrity," said Andrew, adding that part of his motive was: "I didn't want to feel like a lime."

Chief judge Robert Baker announced the surprise development shortly before the start of the fourth round.

"We want to commend him for his utter honesty," Baker said, drawing loud and sustained applause from the audience of more than 500 people in the ornate ballroom of the Capitol Hilton.

When Andrew initially spelled "echolalia," nearly alluring the final letters together, the judges listened to the tapes several times before they mistakenly agreed he had spelled it correctly.

Andrew said he learned of his mistake when other contestants asked him how he spelled the word, which describes a speech defect. During the break, he checked and realized he had in fact misspelled the word, which means an uncontrollable repetition of words.

His parents, Robert and Mary Woods, said their son made the decision himself to go to the judges.

"We're proud of him," said Woods, director of counseling at Utica College in New York.

Use Of Unleaded Gasoline Causes Lead Levels In Humans To Decline

BOSTON (UPI) — Lead poisoning, blamed for a variety of mental and behavioral disorders in children, has declined in the United States since unleaded gasoline became widely used, a federal study said today.

Lead levels in the human blood stream dropped 37 percent from 1976 to 1980, while the amount of lead used to produce U.S. gasoline dropped from 212,000 tons to 96,000 tons per year during the same period, government researchers reported.

Leaded gas accounts for 90 percent of the lead in the air in the United States, they said.

The findings, based on tests of 27,801 people of all ages living in 64 areas of the country, were reported in the New England Journal of Medicine.

Increased public awareness of lead sources and toxicity and a decrease in lead in the national diet could also be factors in the dropping levels, the researchers said.

High levels of lead have been blamed for many otherwise inexplicable childhood disturbances ranging from apathy and loss of appetite to severe seizures and mental retardation.

Recently, however, investigators have noted that even low levels of lead can cause blood and nervous system damage in children, said head researcher Joseph L. Annest.

Some 675,000 children between 6 months and 5 years old have elevated blood levels of lead and black children living in large urban areas were the most likely to have lead poisoning, the study said.

"Lead exposure to paint continues to be a problem, especially among children living in economically deprived areas with old, dilapidated houses," the researchers said.

Lead eventually builds up in tissue, causing symptoms including anorexia, apathy, anemia, extreme irritability, clumsiness, vomiting and impaired developmental skills in children.

The front yard of urban homes have two to three times more lead than the backyard, located further from the road, the researchers said.

Reader Occasionally Loses Taste, Smell

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — About 15 years ago I lost my sense of smell and taste. At times I can smell and taste for a few days or for just an hour. Then months pass before it happens again.

I went to a doctor and he gave me prednisone pills to take for a week. My smell and taste comes back, but dwindles away when I stop taking the pills.

The first time he injected prednisone into my nose. The next morning I was able to smell and taste. But he said you can't take prednisone all the time. I haven't smelled or tasted anything for a few months now. Last week while walking to the store I suddenly smelled gasoline from a car but it only lasted a minute.

I was hoping you would be able to tell me what you think is wrong. I tried zinc but it didn't help.

DEAR READER — Your intermittent loss of taste and smell is a bit unusual, as is the story about the effects of prednisone.

The cells that sense odors are high in the top of the nasal cavity. If you have an obstruction that blocks air flow to the area you may not perceive odors. I wonder if the prednisone relieved nasal congestion and enabled odors to reach your odor-detecting cells.

Why not review your problem with a specialist in ear, nose and throat problems? If you have a nasal allergy or a mechanical obstruction, he may be able to improve things for you.

Taste is a different matter but it is affected by being able to smell. I have discussed these problems in more detail in The Health Letter 20-4. Taste and Smell, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR READER — The best solution of all is to grow a beard. The condition is called pseudofolliculitis barbae (PFB) and it is caused by the curled hair turning inward and penetrating the skin. There are accompanying infections. If the beard is about an inch long, this doesn't happen. The hair shaft is then softer because of its length.

You are right. Many of the promoted products do not work. I note that the American Safety Razor Co., Staunton, Va., has a "PFB" Shaving System which is reported by some to be helpful. Many other razors promoted for PFB are not very effective. The chemical depilatories, Magic Shave and Surgex, have been satisfactory for some men.
